

Dark Intent

By RAE FOLEY

CHAPTER ONE

ROGER BRINDLE was dead. From New York to California people read the story with the same unbelief, the same sense of loss. Unbelief that anyone so brimming with life could die. A sense of loss because Roger had established a curious personal relationship with the readers of his syndicated column The Way I Heard It.

When they opened their papers that Monday evening and turned to Roger's daily chatter about his friends and neighbors, they found a black-bordered portrait and under it the words, "Died in his sleep," and to most of them it seemed something warm and vital had gone out of their lives.

Radios commentators gave brisk accounts, hastily culled from the margin, of his phenomenal success as a writer for big-city newspapers about small-town people and their affairs. On a memorial program a half-dozen speakers paid tribute to him as a human being, and told I-Knew-Him-When stories of the big, modest, kindly man who had made the people of a nation his neighbors. Unlike most success stories, those about Roger Brindle were records of friendships.

While the slow cortege moved along the green at Stoneville and out of the village to the cemetery, a city reporter in search of local color joined a group of men who stood outside the hardware store, watching.

"Any of you know Brindle?"

"We all knew him. I saw him only a week ago in Paul's Barber shop. He looked kinda flushed but you wouldn't have thought he was a sick man. He called me by name."

"No side to him. He's always been the same. You'd see him coming along, towering above everybody on the street."

"How tall was he?"

"Maybe six-four. Homely as sin but you couldn't ask for a nicer expression."

"He used to take his place."

"Not by a long shot. Funny how, even if you didn't know him, you felt like he was a friend of yours."

"Hey! See that?"

"What?"

"Woman in the green car—no, right in front of you."

"What about her?"

"I guess she was before your time. Roger Brindle's first wife, that's all. Only time she's been seen since the divorce. Ten years it's a day. She's changed some. A bit heavier and a little gray in her hair. But there's no doubt—that's Jane Brindle."

"Kind of queer for both wives to be here, isn't it?"

"Neither could anyone else. At Copyright, 1954, by Elmore Hamilton. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

least, his second marriage worked out."

"Poor girl. But Carol is good looking and only thirty. Fifteen years younger than Roger. She'll marry again. It's the people he helped who are more to be pitied. Take the Kibbees. Roger and Albert Kibbee have been friends since they were kids. Roger supported Albert most of his life. And Albert's wife. Even put their son through college."

"I never knew the Kibbees had a boy."

"That was Roger for you. Not a word about what he was doing for people. The way he wrote them up in his column, you'd think the Kibbees and the rest of them were the ones who did things for him. That's Mrs. Kibbee in the median. Must be her son with her. He sure has been kept under wraps since he came here."

"Why didn't Kibbee go out and get himself a job?"

"He's a minister of one of those obscure sects. He's got a job or a call or whatever it is, and a year later he'd lose his church. I thought he was an unimpressive little runt but don't let my wife hear that. Roger said he was a saint, so he's a saint."

"More than anyone could say about Joe Hattery."

"That's Roger again. Taking in an ex-convict and giving him a second chance. He let the Hatterys have one of those little cottages and kept Joe working around the place and he went straight. He made Mrs. Hattery his secretary. Way he wrote about her in his column, you'd think he was the fortunate one and his secretary did half his work."

"Well, sir, this funeral is bringing out even the ghosts. Believe it or not, that's Hattery's house in the convertible."

"Stow! I thought he'd died or moved away."

"Nope. The war messed him up some and he sold his house to Brindle and moved into a little cottage. Like a hermit."

"First Stowe since there was a Stoweville out, you take an interest in the town. What does he do with all his money?"

"Pity Roger Brindle didn't have part of it. I wonder what his wife will do now."

That was what Carol Brindle was wondering. She had returned from the funeral, shutting the door firmly against everyone who wanted to see her, except for Max Griswold who had been Roger's attorney and general man of business. He insisted on talking to her without a delay.

"There is almost no money," he told her bluntly. "I don't understand it. Roger was— he was out on with caution—sometimes no—"

He set himself out of the house and got into his car, thinking of the fame that had greeted behind Carol Brindle's eyes. Roger's second wife had always reminded him of a long-haired cat, lovely to look at, soft to touch, with only a hint of hidden claws, with tawny hair and eyes so pale a brown they seemed to be yellow. Like a cat, Carol loved comfort; she was lazy and content and decorative and, he had assumed, with something of the unchangeable nature of the Persian feline.

Radio-TV Highlights

NEW YORK (AP)—The late World Series has caused me to stop shaving. No, I'm not letting my beard grow because I lost a bet. Rather, my beard is a soundless, fuzzy protest against the commercials that marred the presentation of this national institution on television.

Now that I've stopped wanting to look sharp or feel sharp or be sharp and have given up using either the light or the medium or the heavy razor, I'm taking my baseball coverage next season in the daily paper. The beautiful, steady flow of a news story has never looked so good to me as on these recent days following a World Series game. Nowhere in any news story has my concentration been jarred by a paragraph to the effect that Pee Wee Reese or Hank Bauer shaves with a —

It was to be expected that we'd get commercials between the innings in one world series. After all these people had a heavy advertising investment in bringing us, the most captive audience ever rorralled, the World Series. But we not only got commercials in the middle of innings, we got commercials in the middle of middles.

AMBASSADORS MEET

GENEVA (AP)—Ambassadors of the United States and Communist China met for the 21st time here today in an effort to settle their repatriation of civilians of both sides and reduce tension in the Far East. No progress was announced after the secret meeting.

A 30 word communique said another session between U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Red Chinese ambassador Wang Ping-nan would be held Oct. 20.

USO

Saturday night things were "really booming" at the USO when a "MaryAnn's" dance was held with Miss Mary Ann Michels acting as junior hostess. Refreshments were served and Mrs. H. A. Canell and Mrs. R. A. Pinkerton represented the Episcopal Women as senior hostesses. Dancing was enjoyed by a large crowd that attended and several remarked "we've never had such a good time."

Sunday night the unique idea of a Pumpkin Pie Party was carried out. Junior hostess for the event was Miss Pat Cassube and senior hostess, again representing the Episcopal Women, was Mrs. Canell.

Eighty-five pieces of pie were served along with steaming cups of coffee. Television was enjoyed in the TV room and games were played. Miss Betty Buckimer added to the fun by bringing her collection of records down.

AT NIGHT IT LIGHTS UP Concrete Roads

At night you can see further and better on concrete. Its light-colored surface spreads illumination. Pavement edges, obstructions and pedestrians are clearly defined.

Night or day, wet or dry, concrete has uniformly high slip resistance because of its permanently gritty surface.

Concrete saves money, too. It is moderate in first cost yet can be designed accurately for any axle load—and concrete keeps its load-carrying capacity throughout its long service life.

Concrete pavements cost less to maintain, too. They are easy to clean and they last longer. All this adds up to a longer service life.

Chance To Work In Nations Capital Offered Persons

An opportunity to work in the Nation's capital and to start a career with the Federal service is offered now to young people in this area who can type or write shorthand. It was announced today by Miss Anna Knight, Navy civilian representative, who is interviewing applicants at the Navy Recruiting Station, Federal Office Building, 43 E. Central, Orlando.

These positions, under civil service, have base entrance salaries of $265 and $285 per month. An automatic salary increase is granted for each year of satisfactory service. The employment is based on a five-day work week and carries excellent annual and sick leave benefits, in addition to eight legal holidays a year.

Miss Knight gives examinations for these positions, rating the papers immediately thereafter. The examination consists of a ten-minute typing test and a fifteen-minute clerical test for typist applicants; and for those applying for stenographic positions, there is an additional test of three-minute dictation at eighty words per minute.

The Navy feels a deep responsibility for the welfare, happiness, and advancement of its employes. Miss Knight said. Among the many advantages which are provided for them are: guaranteed housing upon arrival in Washington, recreation programs, special training courses, non-profit cafeterias, credit associations, Government life insurance, and cash awards for superior performance.

Interviews are conducted daily for a limited time only. Contact Miss Knight at the Navy Recruiting Station, Federal Office Building, Orlando, Phone 7001.

BLOWUP FEARED

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Sheriff Herman C. Kirchner said the Lock of the dynamite storage shed was pried away by a thief at a quarry. Sixty sticks of the explosive and a quantity of dynamite caps were taken.

The sheriff isn't so concerned with the theft itself. What does the thief intend to do with the dynamite is the big question.

Fire Convention Confab Is Planned

TALLAHASSEE. — Fire, windstorms and extended coverage insurance rate reductions, approved by his office for the period 1943 through 1954, State Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Larson estimates, are saving insurance buyers more than $17 million annually. Larson made this estimate today in urging fire fighting authorities all over the state to send representatives to St. Petersburg for his sixth annual fire prevention conference, which will be held on Nov. 2 and 3. "What I mean," said Larson, who is also the state's treasurer and its fire marshal, "is that the people of Florida are paying $17 million less on the present volume of business than would have been paid had rates not been reduced." "It is only appropriate to mention," he added, "that throughout the years, as rates have been adjusted downward, policies have also been broadened to include perils and conditions not previously covered." Larson said reductions are not possible where had fire records exist and he credited the prevention conferences held each year with having exerted a "powerful influence for good." He added that institutional heads and any other desiring to attend the conferences.

There Is No Substitute For Free Enterprise—A Democratic System

We looked up the meaning of socialism. It's shown very plainly and defined, in one part as, "the ownership and control of the means of production in the community as a whole."

In other descriptive words, and a simple way to express it, socialism means government ownership and operation. Therefore, those who believe in government ownership and operation, believe in socialism. Let's point that out from the very beginning.

Of course, every man has his own opinion and it is the privilege in this great country of ours to believe in socialism, or other forms of government, if they want to believe that way. But, there is a strangeness in the belief of one who is a supporter of socialism, since in all recorded history there is no instance of socialism succeeding.

We admit, socialism sounds good, after all these many years of being tried in various and many places. It sounds better if we pay no attention to history and the facts are not examined. So, some people have to learn the hard way.

That's exactly what happened to Great Britain following the end of the last conflict of worldwide significance. Socialism sounded like an excellent idea to the British people, and so socialism it was. And why not? It promised to take care of everybody. There was Utopia at the end of every dollar sign. The people would get everything.

And then look what happened! The nation peeped over the very brink of ruin—we'll perhaps never know just how terrible that picture was or how close to ruin they came.

Yes, they saw the light and there was a split in the ranks with a return to conservative operation. When socialists fall out there are signs of hope. It means that you can't fool all of the people all of the time. It means that our great system of free enterprise still survives.

We are getting a taste of this fact with what is happening to a socialist experiment in this country — the Tennessee Valley Authority. When the government took over the electric power industry in the valley, it brought about and established socialism there, so far as that particular industry was concerned.

This principle of socialism applies to Government in all fields of business—electric power or otherwise.

An operating business should be a business that employs people, pays taxes, shops here at home, has its offices here, stands up for what is right and wrong just as all of the other folks do.

Take a private industry out of a community and you destroy a part of the heart of your city. It is just the beginning of a gradual destruction, or erosion, eating away, little by little, the lifeblood of your community's welfare.

We don't believe in socialism. But we do believe, very strongly, in the spirit of free enterprise, the American way of doing business.

It's Everybody's Job - Today!

The "do-it-yourself" movement is really catching hold here in Sanford, and before the week is over some big dividends are going to be reaped because of the way folks here in Sanford and Seminole County want to help themselves to a lot of growth and prosperity.

This morning, the Membership Committee of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, headed by Clifford McKibbin, started their new-member canvas and drive.

When the committees of the 1955-56 Chamber of Commerce met during a "Planning Galore at Ten-Two-and-Four" week, they decided to do a lot more than had been accomplished in other years. They took on that "do-it-yourself" attitude. None of the committees wanted anything handed to us on a silver platter, so there was a big jump in the overall budget. If we do it ourselves it will take more planning, more money, more people, more members.

It all adds up to a spirit of aggressiveness here in Seminole County once more. Folks want to get things accomplished. But, just as has been the story in years gone by, one man can't do it all. Members are needed to lend their hands, their strength, their planning, their accomplishments, to the long string of "let's-do-this-this-year" programs.

If you haven't been approached to join the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, then don't wait for someone to call on you. Call the Chamber of Commerce, and ask to have someone call by, or just stop in and sign up.

Forward looking business men know that through the Chamber of Commerce a community flourishes. And as the community flourishes, so do the business houses and industries within the community prosper.

Recent Arrival Rauben Walley Stays In Squadron

Ruben Ellis Walley, Ship Serviceman First Class, USN, of Arabi, La., became the twentieth person to re-enlist in Composite Squadron Nine this year. Walley is a recent arrival, having served aboard the aircraft carrier Valley Forge before coming to Sanford.

Before joining the Navy almost twelve years ago he attended Fairhope High School, Fairhope, Ala., and was employed by the Alabama Drydock Co. of Mobile. He is the son of Mrs. Ella D. Walley of Fairhope, Ala. and is married to the former Miss Gladys M. Alwert, of Arabi, La.

General Coleman Re-Enlists In Navy

The Army, Air Force and Marines don't have a corner on the General supply, there's one in Composite Squadron Nine! He's General (that's his first name) Coleman, Boatwain's Mate Second Class, USN, who re-enlisted for another tour of duty in the Navy last week.

Coleman is barracks Master-Arms in VC-9. He is a native of Macon, Ga., where he attended Lanier High School before joining the Navy. Coleman has been in the Navy over 10 years, and reported to VC-9 from the seaplane tender USS Duxbury Bay.

He and Mrs. Coleman, the former Miss Doris Ruks, are proud owners of a new home in Sanford. They have two children whose education is assured by the U.S. Savings Bonds purchased with Coleman's re-enlistment bonus.

Want To Tune Out TV Commercial?

NEW YORK (U— There are several gadgets on the market today that will enable a listener to tune out a television commercial. But they do little to help the veteran video viewer in his real predicament. Your hardened TV fan no longer rants against commercials as he did in those faroff pioneer days when Hopalong Cassidy first rode into our living rooms on a 12-inch screen.

The TV addicts have developed a protective mechanism similar to that acquired by husbands married to talkative wives. The moment a really boring commercial begins to flash on the screen they turn off their ears, and glass creeps into their eyes, and they sink into the same restful torpor they would if they were listening to a long-winded after dinner speaker.

Government Outsmarts Itself

WASHINGTON (U— John David Provo, once found guilty of treason and sentenced to life imprisonment, has beaten the rap because the government outsmarted itself and kept him in custody too long before trying him.

A Supreme Court decision yesterday left him free of the charges. The government reportedly spent one million dollars trying to convict him. One government lawyer said this was the most important treason case since Aaron Burr's.

Some said he had been a vicious bully and Japanese collaborator. (The defense argued that Provo had used his knowledge of Japanese to ease the lot of fellow prisoners and to this end might have earned favor with his captors. Any propaganda help that he might have given the Japanese was defended as forced under pain of punishment or even death.)

On Feb. 11, 1953, a jury found him guilty of treason, specifically for aiding the Japanese with propaganda broadcasts and being partly responsible for the execution of an American Army captain, Burton C. Thompson, by informing on him to the Japanese. The judge gave Provo a life sentence.

Residents Clean Up Ruins Left By Flood

DANBURY, Conn. (U— Henry Rocco was amazed because his sporting goods store had only eight inches of water in it.

"I don't know how it happened that we were spared such a great deal," he said.

Next door, in the Danbury Book Co., three men shoveled books out into White Street. The water had gushed in there. Thousands of books were destroyed.

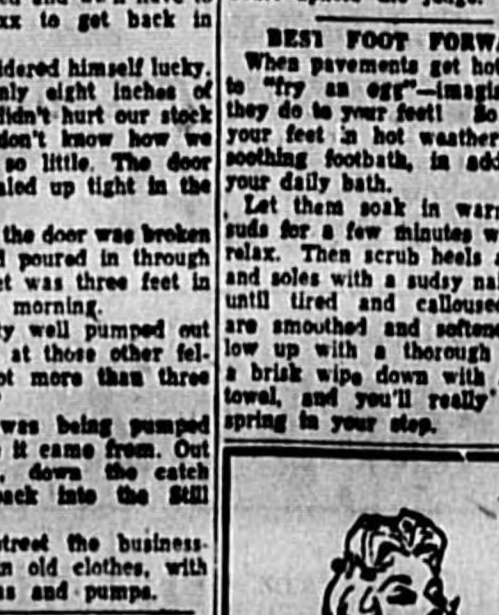

Residents clean up ruins left by flood. The Justice Department wasn't ready to throw in the sponge on Provo. It had him retained for treason by a federal grand jury in Maryland. He was to have been brought to trial last March 14.

Provo's court-appointed lawyers sought the guilty verdict and won. On Aug. 27, 1954, a federal appellate court in New York overturned the verdict by ruling Provo should have been tried for treason in Maryland, where he had been in the Army instead of in New York.

Teachers Attend Florida Art Conference In St. Petersburg

Huntington Hotel, St. Petersburg, awoke from its summer sleep just to play host to the 200 teachers attending the Art Conference 13, 14 & 15. The theme of the conference was: 1) Understanding non-supportive attitudes concerning art education; 2) Identifying valid contributions art makes to general education; 3) Developing communication techniques for changing non-supportive attitudes.

There were 8 workshop centers where teachers could not only see demonstrations and exhibits but could take part in the fun and make something for themselves. These workshops were in jewelry and enameling; sculpture and oil; painting; textiles and weaving; printing; processes; appreciation; visual display techniques; puppetry; murals, etc.

On Friday evening there was a barbeque out on the beautiful tropical patio and later a panel discussion on "The Place of Art in the Child's Life". Dr. Walter Smith, Department of Psychology at Florida State University, was chairman of the panel.

She requested that District 7 be allowed to stage an art workshop as part of its basis for determining the content of the guide and her request was granted. COMING SUNDAY

AN OPEN LETTER TO YOU:

First I want to express to you fine people of Sanford my appreciation for the fine response to my letter of last Wednesday and to so many of my regular customers who either brought some one in with them or sent a friend in.

Then we want to assure you of our interest in you: that we do not take you for granted and that we extend to you an invitation to inspect our meat department at any time.

A majority of patrons are not informed about the different grade of meat; probably could not identify U. S. Choice or U. S. Commercial cuts. Many retail meat dealers establish their own quality designation as a prestige builder. As for us, we follow the U. S. Government Grading.

We also honor Freezer Orders - - - Don't buy until you have checked with us.

I hope to see you this week at the Meat Counter at the SUNSHINE MARKET.

Sincerely
JIM ROSE,
 Your Meat Man

Cattlemen Given Special Invitation To Join In Show

MIAMI—Florida cattlemen today were extended a special invitation to compete for $187,000 in prizes exhibiting first class livestock at the International Fair for Peace and Progress, Dec. 30 through Feb. 1956, at Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic.

Entries representing 18 cattle associations from five countries already have been received by the Fair committee in charge of the event.

Beef and dairy cattle, sheep, horses, swine, goats and poultry will be exhibited Jan. 8-10, 1956. The fair will be judged by the International Livestock Show Association, which will be followed by an auction, allowing breeders to sell their animals.

All livestock will be sheltered in up-to-date barns and stables. Hay and fodder are provided under an eight dollar registration fee. Entry regulations can be obtained by writing Dr. Miguel A. Herrera, Dominican Consul, 1038 Brickell Ave., Miami.

Baseball Whizz Keough Strikes Out

NEW YORK—Baseball whiz Patrick (Paddy) Keough of St. Louis struck out last night on the $22,000 question.

He was given a $5,000 Cadillac as a consolation prize on the CBS television and radio giveaway show The $22,000 Question.

Keough, a 42-year-old businessman is the first loser at a prize level above $1,000 in the 20 weeks the show has been on the air.

He was asked what baseball player holds the record batting average for three different major league teams, the names of the teams and the player's record average with each.

Keough identified Rogers Hornsby as the player and the St. Louis Cardinals Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves as the teams.

He got 424 as Hornsby's record average with the Cards, and 330 with the Braves. Stumped on the Cubs average, he said it was .357-.343-.357. The correct figure was .357.

Two other contestants made the grade on the $18,000 question.

Don E. Sell Jr., 24-year-old physicist from El Paso, Tex., who is working on Long Island, did it in his mythology category.

The Rev. Alvin H. Kershaw, rector of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Oxford, Ohio, made the grade in his jazz category.

Sell and the Rev. Mr. Kershaw will announce on the program next Tuesday night whether they will try them for the $22,000 question.

Group Working To Help Physically Handicapped Person

ST. PETERSBURG—“National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week” is over, but the job of giving handicapped people work is a year round necessity,” stated Dr. R. C. Adair, executive director of Goodwill Industries.

“When we consider that one out of every 10 persons in America is handicapped and that one out of every one hundred persons in America will be on relief the rest of their lives, unless they are given an opportunity to learn trades and work, one can see the enormity of the task.”

“It is for this reason,” Adair continued, “the Governor’s Committee on employing the physically handicapped is working the year round. Instead of just one week and why such agencies as the Florida State Employment Service are constantly endeavoring to place handicapped people in industry.”

“Other agencies working in this field of training and placement of handicapped workers in Florida, include the State Vocational Rehabilitation Department with offices in all her cities in the State. They are training and placing hundreds of handicapped people in good self-supporting jobs every year.”

“Goodwill Industries, the largest private rehabilitation agency, is giving work and training to an average of over 100 handicapped people in Florida every month.”

“The job of rehabilitating handicapped people is a year round job. It is just good business to take handicapped out of the charity line and put them in the pay line,” Adair concluded.

All Wife Wants For Christmas Is 11-Year-Old Watch

MEMPHIS—A truck driver strode into a jewelry store, picked out a $35 watch and put it into the layaway.

That was a bit better than 11 years ago.

The watch is still in layaway today. And he’s still working on it—a little here, a little there. Already this year he has paid $2.53. Total payments to date: $242.91.

The normal layaway limit is about a year. But in this marathon, the case was a little different.

It is an ornate watch, set with a ruby and diamond, in a style popular in the early ‘40s.

But on that September day in 1944, it was the only watch the man would look at. It was for his wife. He wanted the best. But by Christmas 1944 his payments had totaled only $31.

“Keep it for me,” he told Mrs. Hilda M. Reiss, vice president of the store. “I’ll pay it out by next Christmas.”

The watch aged, lost its market value. A 2 per cent state sales tax was imposed later rose to 3 per cent. The federal tax dropped from 30 per cent to 10. The account was getting complicated.

Every time Mrs. Reiss was ready to call it quits, the man would show up with a few dollars.

“Keep it a little longer,” he’d say. “I’ll have the money by Christmas.”

“We’ll continue to hold it,” she said. “If he ever does pay it out, it’ll be here waiting for him.”
