By JIM HAYNES
Herald Sports Editor

The Seminole High School football team today swallowed the bitterest pill of the season when Principal Don Reynolds discovered an ineligible player had suited up and played in the last two games of the season.

Reynolds reported the incident to Florida High School Activities Association Executive Secretary Floyd Lay, who indicated the two games must be forfeited.

The incident takes Seminole out of the state playoffs and instead moves Gainesville (9-1) into the playoff spot opposite Winter Park Friday night.

"This hurts a lot," said Reynolds this morning after calling the FHSAA office and reporting the situation. "After you go 10-0 and are looking forward to the playoffs, it hurts even more. But we are at work."

The specific problem was that a third-string player had failed two subjects and it was not discovered by the coaching staff in making out weekly eligibility lists.

"I don't know exactly what the problem was, but the coaches did check their grades," said Reynolds, hinting at a possibility the player in question may have gotten his report card mixed up with his brother's.

A teacher at Seminole first brought the situation to light today and in a matter of hours, Reynolds had traced the problem, recognized the error and reported the incident.

A special meeting was called for the football team before lunch today, and coaches made the disclosure to team members, who took the news in shock and disbelief.

Gainesville was planning on playing in the Florida Bowl at University of Florida Field Saturday night.

The Hurricanes, a 21-19 loser to Seminole, were to play Largo, 8-2 Florida Bowl chairman Neil Zimmerman said this morning his committee was also "set back" by the development. "We will be contacting Seminole because they are the most logical replacement for Gainesville," he added.

There was no indication from Seminole if the coaching staff or players would be interested in playing a bowl game.

"I'm sure there is a natural letdown... but by Saturday it might be different," said Zimmerman.

Also stunned was Winter Park Coach Larry Gergley, who had spent the last two weekends devising a plan to stop the running of Tim Raines. "I've got to find out something about Gainesville in a hurry," said Gergley. "I don't know anything yet. And it is a short week. We can do it, but we have a little less time than usual."

Gainesville Coach Wesley Dicks made an announcement to the student body just before lunch today.

"That took a lot of courage on the part of Reynolds and Posey (Jerry, head coach) to turn themselves in," said Dicks. "I admire them for doing it."

Donations Trickle In Zoo Getting $ome Help

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Since Central Florida Zoological Society officials made an appeal last Thursday for donations to meet a desperate short-term financial crisis, a steady flow of small donations and membership renewals have begun to flow in. Al Rizon, executive director of the zoological park, said today.

Rizon said so far $5,500 has been received to help offset the $37,000 in outstanding debts. Employees of one area firm have pledged $500 matched by $500 from the company and offers to help have come in from schools and clubs, he added.

Finance Committee chairman Wayne Simpson reported Thursday that the zoo's creditors had threatened to cut off food supplies for the animals if payment was not forthcoming and the zoo might be forced to close.

Rizon said because of bad weather over the past weekend, late receipts were way down Wednesday and Saturday, was only $18 and Sunday, $85, compared 13 Years Ago...

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas was to briefly and silently mark the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy today — two blocks from where shots shattered the calm of a sunny November day 13 years ago.

Meanwhile, Dallas police gathered records of the killing, subpoenaed by a House committee investigating assassinations.

A short prayer and a moment of silence were scheduled at the Kennedy Memorial, close to the spot where — according to the Warren Commission — Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, shot and killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

"There will be no speeches," Dallas County Democratic Chairman Ron Kessler said of the short service.

The Rev. Zan Holmes, a former Texas legislator, and Dr. Paul A. Stauffer, executive director of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, were to officiate at the memorial service.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw confirmed Sunday that the department's records had been subpoenaed. He said he presumed the records would include those detailing the killing of Oswald by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby two days after Kennedy's death.

County-Eyed Utility Plant Failing State Standards

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

A utility plant under consideration for purchase by county government is not meeting state standards for sewage disposal and treatment, the county's utility consultant said today.

The plant — Eagle Utilities — serves about 200 customers in the Deer Run subdivision just north of Red Bay Road near the city of Casselberry.

Hugh Harling said in the "short run" there exists no health or environmental problems. But, he added, if the situation is allowed to continue public safety could become endangered.

"They are not meeting the minimum allowable standards for operations," Harling said. He said he picked up the information by monitoring monthly reports.

Harling said the state requires a 90 per cent removal of BOD (Bio-Chemical Oxygen Demand) from effluent. The Eagle plant, Harling said, operates at about an eighty-five per cent level of efficiency.

About two months ago, Eagle operations fell below state standards.

I guess in the long range it could affect the health of the people — but now it's more of an environmental problem than health." He said inefficient waste treatment causes surface water

HOW COME EVERY TIME HE DOES SOMETHING WRONG HE'S MY HUSBAND?

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband has outgrown the art of savings and you are thinking of getting it away from him. It's very weird when going to the bank to get the money out of the account.

Remove the savings, leaving the money in the account. Across the center of the card, one of two boards and drage them with a colorful sheet or other material. Press your fingers on the top of the "x" frame, decorate with tiny, twinkly lights, hang on things that suits your fancy.

Makes a lovely conversation piece!

Zoraida Stokes

Oh-h-h-h, indeed, it would. It's such a practical idea, too.

DEAR HELOISE:

When hanging pictures, I have a problem with the adhesive tape at the spot where the nail is to go, then drive through the tape, the plaster from cracking.

Cities Getting The Lion's Share

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, which met less than a week after the election, tried to put the cities first in line for consideration of new programs when Jimmy Carter enters the White House. The mayors may find that something more than their own elbow-wink will determine federal spending priorities in the next few years.

In calling for a new "urban development bank" to rebuild cities the way the Marshall Plan rebuilt Europe after World War II, the mayors have revived a familiar refrain, if we can afford to help countries overseas with foreign aid and institutions like the World Bank, why can't we do as much for our own needy cities?

Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., put it another way. There needs to be a better balance, he said, between domestic expenditures and those for "the Pentagon and foreign aid." Well, he's right about needing a better balance, but not in the terms he has in mind. The proportion of the federal budget going to national security and foreign aid has been in steady decline for more than 20 years. Congress took the first step toward reversing the dangerous underfunding of defense programs with its relatively generous military appropriations this year.

The cities have their problems, to be sure, but when Mr. Carter starts studying the budget he is sure to recognize that there are two kinds of "urban problems" in America. One set of problems involves the people who live in cities, and the other involves the municipal governments represented in the Conference of Mayors.

The unemployment rate Mr. Carter wants to bring down is primarily a problem of city-dwellers, and they would be first to benefit if his efforts in that direction bear fruit. Three-fourths of the American people live in cities, and are the prime beneficiaries of the health, education and welfare programs now consuming an inordinate share of federal dollars. There are already nearly 1,800 separate grant programs funneling money into urban areas. While there is a need to reorganize those programs as the Ford administration has tried to do, no one could argue that there aren't enough of them.

In short, the "cities" are already getting the lion's share of federal spending. When the mayors plead for aid for "hard-pressed cities in deep fiscal trouble" they are talking mainly about their own governments. They have just succeeded, and properly so, in getting Congress to renew the revenue sharing program which will give states and cities $6.8 billion a year in federal funds through 1980. To fit a new program for federally financed urban development into a tight budget could be asking Mr. Carter for more than he can deliver.

The mayors deserve credit for seeing the No. 1 priority as reducing unemployment. But that goal is woven into the whole fabric of economic policy, and may even lead to a federal tax cut as a means of stimulating the economy. If the federal budget is to absorb that loss of revenue, it hardly points to a high priority for mayors wanting the federal government to underwrite their hopes for an urban renaissance.

Farmer's Share

A study by the federal Council on Wage and Price Stability indicates that the farmer's share of the average retail food dollar has remained virtually unchanged over the past 15 years.

This finding rebuts the argument frequently advanced by farmers who blame "the middleman" for making unreasonable profits at the expense of the farmer and the consumer. We have the most efficient system of agriculture in the world. It is so efficient because, first of all, it is largely free of government regulation and controls. It is distributed by the free market. It is invigorated by competition. American farmers must be efficient to survive. They are efficient, much to the benefit of American consumers.

But when farmers complain of "the middleman" they are on shaky ground. Our food processors, shippers, wholesalers and retailers also are part of the free market system. They also are forced by competition to become ever more efficient. Those who are slow to respond to market conditions cannot survive. We would wager that, thanks to the free enterprise system, our entire food production, processing and distribution chain is the most efficient in the world. It will believe one link in that chain to be the most efficient.

That Robert Dole (Robert Who?) fellow dies hard. He just doesn't know when to quit.

It was this gentleman from Kansas, you might recall, who during this past election campaign carved himself a reputation as a gut fighter, a lurcher-man, a master of the one-liner.

And as the leader of the fastest-moving in the West — East, North and South.

Well, the United States Senator from Kansas and erstwhile Republican vice-presidential nominee, has gone too far in his post-mortems. And, in doing so, he owes Floridians and the South an apology.

In his usual, inimitable, sarcastic and facetious tone several days ago, he observed that President-elect Jimmy Carter won the South because Southerners "voted their accents and not their convictions."

Too much. The man just doesn't have any class — besides showing himself a sore loser. It was just an extension of the true colors he displayed during his Oct. 15 debate with his Democratic counterpart and now-vice-president-elect Walter Mondale.

Following this debate, many observers pointed to his performance as an anti-Ford turning point.

The Kansas on that night, as was noted here on Oct. 17, came across as "Senator Cross" while he openly projected himself more as "Senator Class."

And the voters, it could be argued, agreed on Nov. 2.

His comment this week about the Southern vote is a slap in the face to the intelligence of voters in Florida and neighboring states who cast their ballots on Nov. 2 for the man they deemed better suited to lead this nation: Jimmy Carter.

There are again many observers and commentators who consider even Dole running in the first place for the second highest office in the land a slap in the face to voters everywhere.

Many attribute the loss of Gerald Ford to his unpalatable choice of a running mate.

The man's utterances in this post-election period are reminiscent of those of another loser — 1972 variety. His name: George McGovern.

For months on end, that gentleman from South Dakota was just thrashing about looking for scapegoats, for reasons he lost. Not once did he even focus on the possibility that he was the reason — that perhaps he was just too much of a lightweight to run for the highest office — let alone serve in it.

Maybe it's the accumulation of cold temperatures in the Midwest of Kansas and the Dakotas that over a period of years just dulls the senses of some of its residents — including some of its politicians.

Whatever it is, Dole's ill-tempered comments were completely irrational, uncalled for and inaccurate.

It must be noted in passing that, although Florida overall and its Southern neighbors voted for Carter, our own Seminole County opted for President Ford.

Does this mean that, using Dole's gauge, the Seminole County, Florida, accent is different? Less meaningful? Less significant?

RAY CROMLEY

Capital Clash Brewing

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter struck pay dirt by arguing he had no Washington entanglements.

But senators and representatives do — and up to their necks. And it is on these men President Carter must depend if he is to keep his campaign promises. To wit:

Government reorganization, tax and welfare reform, programs to get industry moving and meaningful jobs programs other than frauds like the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

It will be relatively simple for Mr. Carter and his team to prepare model laws and send them to Congress. But as surely as each is submitted, at least 50 senators and 100 congressmen will start working on exceptions favoring constituents or backers, promoting their own ideas of equity and efficiency or providing material for self-serving handouts.

Congressmen react much more strongly, of course, to pressures from home than they do to pressures from the White House. For it is clear to every man in the Congress that it is his district or state which elects him, and assures his return for another term or going down to defeat. Few presidents have been much help in this regard. So far as I can determine, there are very few of next year's Congress who feel indebted to Mr. Carter for their seats.

For 30 years in this town I have watched presidents come and presidents go. In each man's time there was feuding with Congress. For all his charm and national popularity, President Franklin Roosevelt in the end had to depend on the veto, as did Presidents Johnson, Truman, Kennedy, Nixon and Ford. Yet Johnson knew the ins and out of the Senate and its sources of power as have few men. Kennedy, Truman, Nixon and Ford were not neophytes. Being expert in the ways of Congress thus did not seem to help. Nor popularity. Nor charm.

Carter's term as governor of Georgia does not signal a happy time with the Congress. He used the veto strongly, lost out on some of the measures he most prized, reportedly because of an unwillingness to compromise.

A Time magazine account puts it this way: "The governor's relationship with the legislature was... stormy. A stubborn, even self-righteous man, he seemed temperamentally unsuited for... give-and-take... He thought nothing of tongue-lashing legislators and lobbyists... he considered obstructionist..."

Wrote Phil Stanford in Capitol Hill News Service: "By the end of his term (as governor) Carter was at odds with a large portion of the state legislature..." Stanford quotes the Atlanta Constitution as stating that Carter "made a number of senators see the light of his logic by threatening to cancel pet projects, by calling some of their key constituents back home and on occasion by simply berating them in front of friends." He quotes then Georgia House Speaker Thomas B. Murphy, who supported Carter in the gubernatorial race, as saying: "There was both gubernatorial and legislative support for him. It was total conflict during his entire term. Jim has no compromising ability... It's his way or no way." And State Senator Julian Bond: "I have never seen a man so rigid and it was not a question of high principle. Carter just won't give in."

Carter Must Defuse Panama Time Bomb

WASHINGTON — The Panama Canal is a time bomb set to explode next year. Unless Jimmy Carter can find a way to defuse it, the canal controversy could erupt into a crisis of international proportion.

Here are the ingredients which make the Panama Canal a dangerous, ticking time bomb: — Intelligence reports warn that Panama's military dictator, Omar Torrijos, must produce a satisfactory settlement next year or risk being swept out of office by a left wing rebellion. The issue is charged with emotion among Panamanians. The best estimate is that no government could survive that doesn't regain control of the canal within a reasonable period. — There is another dark cloud on the horizon. A small check, drawn on a Panamanian government agency, has just bounced. The government had been juggling funds, it turned out, from one account to another. Bankers tell us this is a symptom of an approaching financial crisis. At the first sign of domestic trouble, dictators habitually try to divert public attention by seeking a whipping boy. Torrijos is expected to respond to any crisis at home by using the canal issue to whip up the passions of the people against the United States.

DON OAKLEY

Citizens Capable Of Task

It happens every presidential election — at least every election that turns out to be a squeaker, or when there is a strong independent candidate in the running:

We hear renewed calls to junk the antiquated Electoral College system, but no sooner has the tumult died than we forget about it for another four years.

It has happened again this year, and once again the angels who watch over drunkards and small children and the United States have pulled us through.

Jimmy Carter received a comfortable plurality of the popular vote — 81 per cent to President Ford's 18 per cent. But a shift of as few as 4,000 votes in Ohio and Hawaii would have given the Electoral College majority to Ford, even though Carter would still have had a majority of popular votes.

There have been a number of defenses of the Electoral College system.

One is that since a candidate takes all of a state's electoral votes even though he may have lost that state by only one more popular vote than his opponent, it gives the appearance of a greater mandate for the winner than is actually the case. This is said to confer some sort of psychological benefit by console those who voted for the loser.

It also gives small states a greater voice in the election process in proportion to their populations since each state has as many electors as it has senators and representatives. Smallest state opposition to abolishing the Electoral College has, in fact, been the major reason why any number of proposed constitutional amendments have never gotten anywhere.

Three times in our history, however, a president has been elected with fewer popular votes than his opponent, and his possibility remains that someday a third-party candidate will win enough electoral votes to deny a majority to any candidate, throwing the election into the House of Representatives.

The Electoral College is an 18th-century relic bequeathed us by the founding fathers, who designed it to insulate the selection of the president from the passions of the "mob." The people were to vote for electors, who in turn would — theoretically — use their own judgment in choosing the president.

But the college quickly became merely a rubber stamp for the popular vote by each state, and that is the only reason we have put up with it for 187 years. Thus the Electoral College remains in existence — useless, unnecessary and potentially dangerous.

It took until 1912 to abolish the indirect election of U.S. senators. Surely we have reached the point where we may safely eradicat the election of the president and vice president to the popular will.

In the meantime, Jimmy Carter is not officially our 39th president-elect — not until Dec. 13 when 538 electors (how many can you name?) meet in their respective state capitals and tell us he is.

Throughout the federal establishment, others are maneuvering to protect themselves from the democratic boom. The day before the election, for example, Dr. Walter A. Gantharp, administrator of the Rural Development Service, submitted a reorganization plan. Carefully he was playing it safe in case of a Jimmy Carter triumph. The reorganization was carefully calculated, they say, to create civic service positions for political refugees. Gantharp is also trying to put an old military crony on the payroll as an "expert consultant." The would-be constant drafted a memo, which Gantharp signed, justifying the job.

It's an old familiar game, which has been played the past by the Republicans and Democrats alike. But this time, the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee will be watching for any lobbying that might violate civil service regulations. Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., is also keeping an independent watch. "There's not many of them," he told us. "It's just a matter of someone here putting in a call to a personnel director at an agency on behalf of a guy in need."

JOHN CUNNIFF

A Similar Challenge

NEW YORK (AP) — The challenge to the administration of Jimmy Carter is becoming by the day more like that which faced John F. Kennedy in 1960: Get the economy moving again.

Both men inherited economies that were operating below their potential. Both men were encouraged almost immediately to boost the economy by means of a tax cut.

Whether the resemblance continues will depend upon several factors over which the president-elect has far less control than he might wish to have.

He does not, for example, control Arthur F. Burns, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. And he does not control public opinion and confidence, which he must have on his side if his economic measures are to be effective.

Burns, who has almost autocratic independence in shaping the country's monetary policy, has thrown up a series of confusing signals in recent days that leave in question his attitude toward a tax cut.

He has, at different times, indicated he was against a reduction in federal income taxes, that he wasn't necessarily opposed to a cut, that discussion of the subject was premature, and that his mind remains open.

Burns could challenge the president-elect's goals by refusing to adjust monetary policy — that is, the money supply and interest rates — to the fiscal — or spending and taxing — policy of the administration.

The potential for such a conflict exists, because Burns has repeatedly indicated that in his view the major problem is inflation, while he insists they are not dangerous.

REPUBLICAN OPPONENT — As each new administration lays down the controls of government, it leaves behind several political appointees who burrow into the bureaucracy. They quietly put up in the heads behind the purge level, wangle civil service ratings and continue to draw their government pay.

The deposed Richard Nixon had scarcely landed at St. Clemente two years ago before his loyalists began a scramble for civil service positions. Several of his henchmen and henchwomen succeeded in entrenching themselves in the federal government.

"FLORIDA ARRIVE ALIVE" SUNSHINE STATE

Jimmy Checking Out His New Washington Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter is getting a glimpse of his home for the next four years as he makes his first post-election visit to Washington for a meeting with President Ford.

Carter arrived in Washington Sunday night, flying from Albany, Ga., in a chartered jet rather than an Air Force jet. He headed immediately to Blair House, the government's guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Carter, as has become his custom, carried his own suitcase as he walked off the plane. He planned to use Blair House as his operations base, with the secretaries of Defense, Health, Education and Welfare, and the Treasury visiting him there. But he planned to cross the street to confer with Ford in the White House for his first visit with his defeated rival since their final debate one month ago.

An evening rain stopped just before Carter arrived. His motorcade wound past the Lincoln Memorial on wet and glistening streets, arriving at Blair House just before 10 p.m.

Asked how he felt arriving in Washington as president-elect, Carter said he felt "gratitude to the people of this country for giving me their confidence and a determination not to disappoint them."

"I feel a very deep and sober sense of responsibility about the future," he said. On Sunday, Carter attended services at the Plains Baptist Church. Also attending was the Rev. Clennon King, a black nondescript minister whose application for church membership led the congregation to vote a week ago to allow blacks to worship at the church and seek membership.

Carter spent the rest of the day at home. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, predicted that the meetings today would deal with "substantive" matters and would not just be courtesy calls.

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame said Sunday that Carter had assured him he would talk to Secretary of the Treasury William Simon about the city's latest fiscal crisis. Beame said Carter had pledged to do what he could to help the city get past its current plight, caused by a court ruling that the moratorium on payments on city bonds was unconstitutional.

Carter plans a series of meetings Tuesday with House and Senate committee chairmen, Republican leaders, the House International Relations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Good Chance, Says Raley Of Seminole

By CHUCK McCLUNG
Herald Correspondent

Being defensive coordinator of a state championship team two years in a row, Jim Raley ought to know a strong title contender when he sees one.

And after seeing Seminole High up close and in person Friday night, he concedes his cross-country rivals have good shot at winning the state championship in the coming weeks.

"You have to be lucky, being just good isn't enough," said Raley after his Lake Brantley Patriots were soundly thrashed by Seminole Friday night, 41-19, before coming to Lake Brantley, Raley had a big hand in Ocala Forest winning the Class AAA title last two years.

"But I think Jimmy Posey (Seminole coach) has the kids to do it. They have a good chance. What impresses me about Sanford is that they have the breakaway runner in Tim Ruines, but they have so much other stuff, too. They have the ability to throw and catch the ball very well and they have the ability to run. That's what's good about them."

No Stalling For Brantley This Season

(One of a series)
By CHUCK McCLUNG
Herald Correspondent

"One of those days Brantley is gonna be on top, I don't know how long it's gonna take, but Brantley is on its way up."

Those optimistic remarks come from the Patriots' first-year basketball coach Manuel "Red" Washington, and he's very sincere about what he says.

Those were the words of a man who saw the chances slipping away for a chance to reach the playoffs.

Here is what is left of the divisional races, brought to you by the National Football League.

Allier's Redskins, who could have been eliminated by a loss, but their playoff hopes alive in the National Conference East with a 16-10 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. The victory, combined with Atlanta's 12-10 upset of Dallas, kept Washington within two games of the first-place Cowboys and one game of the Cardinals.

Gregg's Browns helped themselves in the American Conference Central, lashing the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-7 Sunday and remaining hopeful of the wild card spot for a playoff trip.

In the other divisional races, New England's Patriots lashed their one-half game of the AFC East-leading Baltimore Colts who visit the Miami Dolphins tonight — with a 32-4 victory over the New York Jets. Pittsburgh's surging Steelers kept pace with Cleveland at 10-6 Sunday night, while the leading Cincinnati, ripping the Houston Oilers 26-16 for their sixth straight triumph.

The NFL's West-leading Los Angeles Rams put down second-place San Francisco 23-9 and opened a 1½-game margin over the others, who lost their fourth in a row.

Meanwhile, the Bengals nipped the Kansas City Chiefs 24-14. The San Diego Chargers nipped the Buffalo Bills 24-13. The Detroit Lions bested the Chicago Bears 14-10. The Denver Broncos clipped the New York Giants 14-13 and the New Orleans Saints blasted the Seattle Seahawks 31-7.

Vikings 17, Packers 10.

Fran Tarkenton completed 23 of 43 passes for 189 yards and two touchdowns as the Vikings, 9-1-1, nailed down the crown against Green Bay, 47. His 11-yard pass to Alvin Harrison in the fourth period broke a 10-10 tie.

Raiders 17, Eagles 7.

Clarence Davis and Mark van Eeghen combined for 206 rushing yards and two touchdowns, lifting the Raiders to their seventh straight triumph and their 10th in 11 games. Philadelphia, 24, got its score on Roman Gabriel's 20th career touchdown pass.

Redskins 16, Cardinals 10.

The Redskins, 7-4, got their only touchdown from Mike Thomas, who rushed 31 times for a team-record 193 yards. The other points came on Mark Moseley field goals.

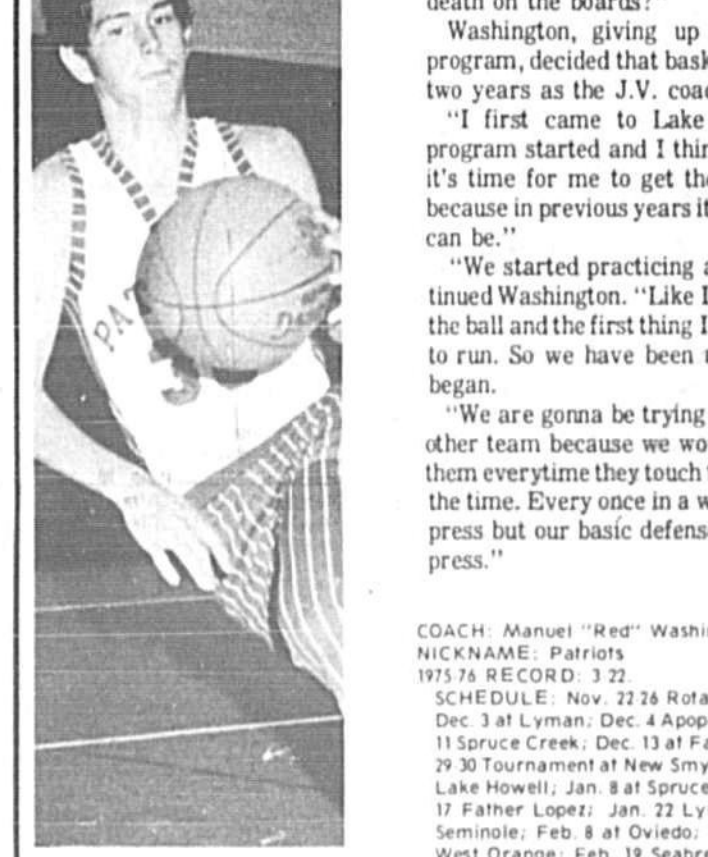

"We didn't do the job," said Coach Don Coryell of the Los Angeles Rams.

Browns 14, Buccaneers 7.

Forest Gregg, got his players in the right mood for a second-half surge with a tongue lashing of which defensive end Joe Jurek said, "What we had isn't printable." But the results were: 17 second-half points against Tampa Bay, 9-11. Quarterback Brian Sipe hit veteran Paul Warfield for a 14-yard touchdown, breaking a 7-7 tie in the third period as the Browns improved their record to 7-4.

Falcons 17, Cowboys 10.

"You got to make the plays to win, and we didn't," said Coach Tom Landry, who saw his Cowboys' NFC East lead

Marathon Men Plan Record

Four members of the Guinness Book of World Records will attempt to put their names in the Guinness Book of World Records this weekend with a record of 54 hours continuous tennis, breaking the old standard of 53 hours and a few minutes.

Ken Williams, David McCook, Joe Ewitz and Andy Tharpe will play 56-minute sessions, rest for five minutes and continue at the Fort Mellon courts beginning at 6 a.m. Friday.

The four are collecting pledges to raise money for the school athletic department. They plan to play through Sunday noon.

away at the Seminole lead and, after trying the score at 47-14, the visitors started to pull away, thanks to the versatile play of Stanley and the excellent Florida College squad.

Florida College pulled into a 65-37 lead midway through the second half and were never again headed as Staley pushed 11 points through the mesh and Ken Moorer hit for six consecutive free throws, tying Washington two and Mike Pringle two more.

All told, the visitors hit on 13 of 16 charity tosses in the second half and didn't fall convert one on one-and-one situations.

Staley, a native of Tampa and one of the most prolific young players around the state today, led all scorers with 21 points and was instrumental in the team's lead in both halves. Florida College was winning 62-36 when he hit his second shot.

And for the second time in three games, the Raiders blew a halftime lead and now stand at 1-2 on the season while Seminole was winning 82-36.

Tuesday night, Seminole Community College is in Temple Terrace, a suburb of Tampa, for a return encounter with the Falcons and then travel to Cocoa this weekend for the Holiday Tournament.

The next home game for the Raiders, which was not on their original schedule, will be Thursday night, Dec. 2, against the Rollins College junior varsity at 7:30.

The well-coached and well-disciplined Falcons were a determined bunch right from the outset, but Bob Zipko, Bob Lewis, Karl Krueer and Willie Williams kept the host Raiders on top during the first 20 minutes with Zipko's 10 points setting the pace, matching the output of Florida College's Leroy Staley.

With just one second showing on the clock and Seminole holding a 37-35 advantage, Williams took an in-bounds pass, just shy of the mid-court marker and let fly with a 56-footer that never touched the rim on its way through the circular sardine seine for two more Raiders points and a 39-35 lead.

The Tom Wilson-coached Falcons weren't out of it by any means, as they kept chipping away at the Seminole lead and, after trying the score at 47-14, the visitors started to pull away, thanks to the versatile play of Stanley and the excellent Florida College squad.

Vincent Has Won Title, Tell Him What To Do

Posters advertised Tuesday's championship fight between Emmett Atlas and Joey Vincent thus: "COME SEE JOEY VINCENT GET KILLED."

No one really expected to see Vincent literally die, even though promoter Pete Ashlock was advised by his lawyers to get Joey to sign a "waiver," but most certainly expected him to lose.

"Anyone you don't go 100, you're disappointed, if you say you're not, you're a liar. He could end our season at 6-4. We had a good chance to win the state but states are his own team, we are gonna get better. We gotta lot of unity and yes sir, I guarantee we are gonna be better than 97 next year."

"When a new coach comes in, it is definitely a rebuilding year. Our philosophy here is different than any that has ever been here at this school. We have more unity, honest unity and the kids really care about each other."

"Anytime you don't go 100, you're disappointed, if you say you're not, you're a liar. He could end our season at 6-4. We had a good chance to win the state but states are his own team, we are gonna get better. We gotta lot of unity and yes sir, I guarantee we are gonna be better than 97 next year."

Hooks And Jabs

By LOUIS SAPISS

"It is the most prestigious regional title in the United States, and I guess because of that, it really means a lot of money to the person who holds it."

"Pete Ashlock wants me to meet either (Mad Dog) Ross or Gene) Wells for the title. I am not at liberty to discuss the terms, but let's just say they are substantial."

"I was explained a bout with Atlas because I knew I could beat him," Vincent explained, while vacationing in Daytona Beach.

"Have you ever known something? I mean really know it deep in the pit of your stomach? And when you tell anybody, all they do is smile and say 'sure'."

"If that has happened to you, then you know just how I felt."

"I am after a shot at the world's welterweight title set for Dec. 7 at the Sports Stadium. That fight was signed for, before I beat Atlas. I had promised that I would fight 'Tiger' Cliff Johnson on my very first night, whenever that took place."

"But once that is out of the way, I am free to do whatever I want. The first thing looks like a match in Daytona Beach. This is my adopted home town, and I have promised to fight over here as long as Atlas was the champ. I figured I might as well take the title."

"But, I was going to give it up the next day."

"The only problem is, that the next day I started getting offers, and they are still coming in. I never realized that this title meant

Wiksings, Raiders Sweep Divisions

By The Associated Press

"We had a chance to fail and we didn't." Those were the words of Coach Bud Grant, whose Minnesota Vikings beat the Green Bay Packers 17-10 and won the championship of the National Football Conference Central Division for the eighth time in nine years.

"This is only the first step," those were the words of Coach John Madden, whose Oakland Raiders clubbed the Philadelphia Eagles 26-7 and clinched their fifth consecutive American Football West title and their ninth divisional crown in 10 years.

They were expressions of slight relief, ones used by men who realized divisional championships mean little should their teams fall short of a trip to Pasadena for the Jan. 17 Super Bowl.

"We still get hope and we've still got a chance," said Washington Redskins Coach George Allen. "We're just not to keep it going and never let up."

"We win them or else we are out. We can't have anything," said Cleveland Browns Coach Arturas Gregs.

Those were the words of a man who saw the chances slipping away for a chance to reach the playoffs.

tripped by the Atlanta upset and now faces a game against St. Louis with just three days to prepare. The Falcons, 4-7, turned two pass interceptions and a short Dallas punt into 17 fourth-quarter points in beating the Cowboys, 9-2.

Patriots 28, Jets 21.

New England, 8-3, intercepted seven passes and recovered three fumbles in beating the Jets, 34-24. Prentice McCray picked off two of the passes and turned them into touchdowns of 63 and 55 yards.

Steve Gronan threw three scoring passes for the Patriots.

Steelers 27, Oilers 6.

Pittsburgh, 7-4, gave up a touchdown for the first time in six weeks — 22 quarters, when Houston's Ken Brantley handed in a 69-yard touchdown pass from Dan Pastorini. Pittsburgh used a pair of scores by Reggie Harrison to hand Houston its sixth straight loss.

Rams 23, Oilers 3.

The Rams, 7-3-1, managed eight first downs and three pass completions. But Jim Youngblood picked off two Jim Plunkett passes, and Monte Jackson — the NFL's interception leader — returned his 10th of the season 41 yards for a touchdown to embarrass San Francisco, 6-5.

Bengals 21, Chiefs 21.

Salts 51, Seahawks 27.

New Orleans, 4-7, intercepted three passes and recovered two touchdowns in crushing the Seahawks, 29-7. Getting two touchdowns runs from quarterback Bobby Douglass and one each from rookies Tony Galbreath and Chuck Mancus, the Saints tied a team record for point production.

Seattle 'Supermen' When Play At Home

By The Associated Press

The Seattle Supermen are really the Seattle Supermen at home.

Merely human when they play basketball in arenas around the National Basketball Association, they rise to uncenter heights at the Seattle Center Coliseum.

Friday night's modest 107-102 record so far this season-but after Sunday night's 115-106 beating of Milwaukee, have won 26 straight games at home over the past two years. The NBA record for consecutive home-court victories is 36.

Lakers 96, Nets 91.

Barry Abdul-Jabbar scored 33 points to lead Los Angeles past New York Abdul-Jabbar, who made 14 of 16 shots from the field and contributed 15 rebounds.

Suns 101, Bulls 96.

Paul Westphal, with 15 second-half points and 26 overall, led Phoenix over Chicago. The teams were tied at 47-47 in the first quarter, then Westphal hit 10 points in the second quarter to help the Suns edge ahead 48-45 at the half. Phoenix held a 76-68 lead in the third quarter.

Scott May, the top collegiate player last season for the NCAA champion Indiana Hoosiers, made his first NBA start after being sidelined with mononucleosis. He had 15 points, including 5-of-5 from the floor in the first half.

Jazz 97, Cavaliers 92.

Scott May scored a sore ankle and scored 41 points, leading New Orleans past Cleveland Maravich, who notched his 10,000th career point after Philadelphia with an ankle sprain, had 18 points in the fourth period when a Cleveland rally fell short.

Kings 106, Hawks 87.

Bob Boone scored 30 points, including 18 in the third period, leading Kansas City over Memphis Atlanta. The victory snuffed a four-game losing streak for the Kings, who had won only one previous game since the start of the season. The defeat was the Hawks' fifth straight.

Trail Blazers 128, Braves 88.

Dave Wardick led a half-court Portland attack with 19 points as the Trail Blazers ran away from Buffalo Twardzik, who hit seven of nine field goals. Wardick had 11 points, including a 35-foot jumper, who scored a double figure. The victory was Portland's ninth straight at its home Memorial Coliseum this season and the 10th in a row over two seasons.

Ullman Comes Through In Clutch For Oilers

By The Associated Press

If Norm Ullman has learned anything during his 22 years in professional hockey, it's how to score clutch goals.

Ullman, who just that Sunday night, struck in a 15-foot wrist shot with 1:10 remaining in the third period and giving the Edmonton Oilers a 3-2 victory over the Quebec Nordiques. The victory was Ullman's 100th in the NHL.

The Oilers' second of the game, ended a seven-game losing streak for the Oilers, who were the WHA's Western Division and the front-runners in the East.

The Quebec loss enabled Edmonton to tie the Montreal Forum and Philadelphia Spectator for the top spot in the East. The Oilers edged Winnipeg 4-2, while Birmingham beat San Diego 4-3 and Minnesota doubled Calgary 5-1.

Ullman's heroics capped a struggle in which Quebec jumped to a 3-1 first-period lead, but the Oilers rallied with three straight goals in the second period.

Taste Barrier Broken.

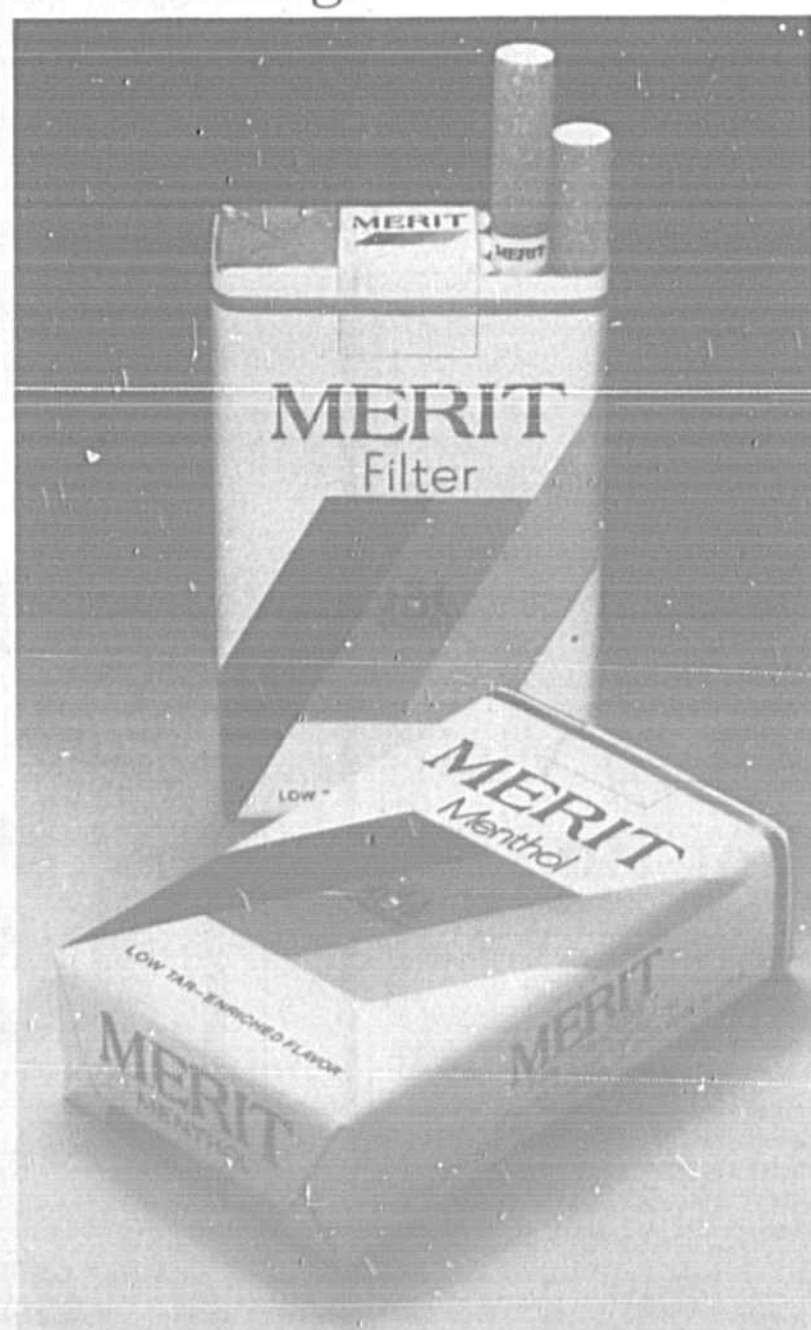

'Enriched Flavor' breakthrough ends struggle to bring taste to low tar smoking.

For years, dependency on tar for taste has created a taste barrier for low tar smoking.

Now that barrier has been broken. Broken for good by a remarkable new cigarette called MERIT.

MERIT is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. The result of a radical new discovery so successful at boosting flavor, MERIT actually delivers the taste of cigarettes having more tar.

Up to 60% more tar. Yet MERIT has only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Tests Verify Taste

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

MERIT was taste-tested against current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved. The majority report: even if the cigarette tested had up to 60% more tar than MERIT, MERIT still delivered as much—or more—taste.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette.

Author Gets Cancer: 'First, You Cry'

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Hollin can talk calmly now about having had a breast removed — a straightforward term that she prefers to the "euphemistic mastectomy."

But it was different 18 months ago when the writer, network correspondent for NBC News and former columnist for Look magazine learned that the lump was probably cancer.

Even before she wrote the book she made no effort to hide the fact of the surgery. She reports that men "tend not to want to hear about it and shift uncomfortably in their chair" but that women have been sympathetic although she detects an "I'm glad it's not me" attitude.

"I read the papers and know the awful things that happen to people," she said. "I hated it, but how could I feel this wasn't fair?" I still consider myself a fortunate person. It's a liability but not as bad as other liabilities like being stupid or ugly.

Miss Hollin, 40, has since been divorced from author Arthur Herzog but says that the operation led to the divorce only in that "I felt suddenly in a hurry to be happy. We're all going to die but maybe I was going to die sooner than other folks."

"I hadn't had breast cancer before. I'd have endured it, the marriage either forever or at least longer, but I wasn't in the mood to endure. I was in the mood to gratify."

Her attempt to "gratify" led her to leave her husband to live with another man, an arrangement that didn't work out. Miss Hollin, who says she liked being married, doesn't foreclose the possibility of marrying again and adds that the publication of her book has solved the problem of whether or when to "tell" a potential husband.

As for how it has changed her life, she says, "The corny things are really true. If you've had a semibush with death it does make you value life more; you wake up and feel grateful to be alive; you pay more attention to pleasure and pay less attention to small difficulties."

"Do I hear two dollars — three dollars — on this beautiful Christmas wreath?" Laurie Dickey plays auctioneer at the Sanford Junior Woman's Club annual Christmas Boutique auction which this year netted $291 for the club.

Even Santa was there (alias Don Bauerle)! Bursting in on the auction with a hearty "Ho, Ho, Ho!" the jolly gentleman checked whether Pat Smith and other club members had been good, before distributing gifts.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his first wife were divorced after 28 years of marriage. The divorce was her idea, and I was in no way involved. They have three grown children with whom I have a warm relationship.

My husband and I invited his children to our home for Thanksgiving dinner. All have accepted, which means his ex-wife will be all alone on Thanksgiving, so my husband asked me to please invite his ex-wife.

I have met her, and although I bear no ill feelings against her, I really don't see why she should be included. She divorced him because she wanted her freedom, so being alone on holidays is part of the price she has to pay.

Also, I'm afraid that if the entire family is together, I'll feel like an outsider. I really don't want her. What should I do?

NUMBER TWO: Don't assume that she'll be alone if you don't include her. (She may have other friends.) Feeling as you do, tell your husband you'd feel awkward having her as your guest, and that should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this because we want to see if other parents of teenagers feel the same way.

Why can't we sit down for a family evening of TV without every other commercial being for bras, douches, tampons, Kotex or some other personal feminine product?

Our teenagers have more than once gotten up to leave the room because they're uncomfortable.

When teenagers in this day and age are embarrassed, it must be pretty bad.

We aren't prudish, Abby, but we think there is a time and place for everything. Newspaper and magazine advertising seems more appropriate for such advertising.

DEAR ABBY: I notice you sometimes print people's pet gripes. Would you please print mine?

To put it simply: My name is Patricia. It's not Pat, Patty or Tricia. It is PATRICIA, which is, I think a very beautiful name.

Why then do new acquaintances insist on calling me "Pat" or "Patty," especially after I have pointedly introduced myself as Patricia?

If someone introduces himself as Robert, I call him Robert. Unless someone gives me permission to call them by a nickname, I think it's bad manners to do so.

Further, if a 30-year-old continues to call me by a short name after I've told him (or her) that my name is Patricia, I become extremely irritated. A person's name is a very personal thing, and goofing around with it is a direct insult.

PATRICIA: Few people feel as strongly as you about having their names shortened. I don't regard it as an insult, but if you do, you can save yourself many insults and much irritation by emphatically stating each time you're introduced that your name is addressed ONLY as Patricia.

Working Wives Happier; Housewives Dissatisfied

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Working wives are happier than housewives, according to a recent study by a University of Connecticut social psychologist.

Dr. Myra Marx Ferree, assistant professor of sociology, based her study on the responses of 133 mothers of school-age children living in a working-class community near Boston.

Dr. Ferree, who described the findings in "Psychology Today," found that almost twice as many housewives as employed wives reported that they were dissatisfied with their lives and believed their husbands' work was more interesting than theirs. Only about 25 per cent felt happy with their lives and felt their accomplishments were recognized, she reports.

"More housewives claimed they had not had a fair opportunity in life and wanted their daughters to be 'mostly different' from themselves," she notes.

One working wife told the researcher, "I have to work. I'm at home, I go crazy. I hit the children. When I work, I'm okay."

Although some women actually enjoy the role of housewife because of the social support it provides, Dr. Ferree adds that "in the present condition of our society, fulltime housework is becoming a job that is difficult to enjoy."
