World Federalist. He said the Tallahassee senator was a member of the organization, which he claimed wanted a world government.

"I don't believe the people of Florida want a governor who believes in a world government," Johns said.

At Fort Myers last night Johns slapped at Sen. James A. Franklyn who is seeking re-election from the 24th district and is opposed by W. R. Nablett of Key West.

Johns linked Franklin with Collins as a "big corporation lawyer."

He said "I didn't say anything when Jim Franklin was working against me in the first primary. I understood—I represent the people, like you and me, and he represents the big corporations."

Johns told his listeners he was "not going to make you people in Lee County suffer because of this News-Press."

The Fort Myers News-Press has endorsed Sen. Collins in the governorship race.

Former congressman J. Hardin Peterson of Lakeland pressed Johns on the speaker's platform.

Peterson, who was hired by Johns at $500 a month as a liaison man for the state with the federal government, has been accused by Collins of violating the State's "Little Hatch act" by campaigning actively for the acting governor.

Peterson said he didn't like Collins' inference that he was not doing the job the state was paying him for and detailed his efforts at Washington in behalf of red tide, expansion of the Central and south Florida Flood Control District, beach erosion relief.

Peterson said he was not violating the "Little Hatch act" because it prohibits state officials from coercing or influencing their employees in political matters.

"I don't hire any employer and have no influence and my employment with the state is on a

declared. "Without any question that they are holding a $7 million dollar bag containing nothing but wind. The bag has been punctured and there's not even any more wind in it."

He made those remarks after reading a paragraph of a letter written former road Chairman Alfred McKethan by W. A. Williams, auditor for the State Road Department. Williams wrote there was "little or no" money left to match $5 million dollars in federal funds and all but $3,200,000 of funds available for primary roads had been spent.

In his speech at Hialeah last night, Collins said "I congratulate you as the home of that great race track, Hialeah." He added he had supported most legislation to give a great program of racing to the track.

He told his audience that when Johns spoke at Hialeah the acting governor said he was "not going to use his influence to change racing dates" for the three big horse tracks.

Yet, Collins said, Johns "came down from the racetrack" where he was serving as Senate president "and in some of the most violent language ever heard in the Senate" vilified the management of the (Hialeah) race track.

Johns worked for the bill designed to give Gulfstream better racing dates.

Collins said "That just explains his inconsistency."

"An Editorial"

When You Look At The Issues, A Vote For Johns Is A Vote For You And Florida

The two remaining candidates for Governor of Florida, Acting Governor Charley E. Johns and Senator LeRoy Collins, made themselves well known to the people of this state during the first primary campaign. Their personalities now are well known to all the voters.

Now that we know the two men as a result of the intensive campaigns they have conducted, it would seem well that we disregard personalities and take a long look at the real issues of the race — issues of great importance to all the people of Florida.

Probably the most important difference of opinion between the two men, as far as the average citizen and home owner is concerned, involves the question of creating a State Tax Commission. Governor Johns has said flatly that he will oppose the creation of such a Commission with all his strength when the 1955 Legislature convenes.

Senator Collins has many times said he favors the creation of a State Tax Commission.

Governor Johns makes the sound point that if we elect Senator Collins we are voting to saddle the people with another expensive, dictatorial bureaucratic agency. He is especially concerned, and we applaud him for it, about the effect such a Commission would have on the benefits Florida home owners receive as a result of the Homestead Exemption Amendment.

The avowed purpose of those who advocate a State Tax Commission is to compel 100 percent assessments. This agency, which Senator Collins supports and Governor Johns opposes, would have the power to overrule our local, elected county tax assessors and compel them to assess your property on the basis of current inflated values.

For the average home owner, creation of a State Tax Commission probably would mean an increase of several hundred dollars a year in his tax bill. We are glad that Governor Johns has quickly seen the injustices and hardships that this would cause and has expressed strong opposition to the plan.

After all, when the people voted the $5,000 Homestead Tax Exemption Amendment in 1934, more than 90 per cent of Florida homes were completely covered. The people showed they wanted the average man to have security for his home against foreclosure for taxes. The spirit of the Amendment has been carried out by Florida's elected county Tax Assessors. They have recognized that values of everything are inflated since 1934 and they have adjusted assessments downward to keep the true value of homesteads within the $5,000 figure set in the Constitution.

The people of Florida showed again in 1940 that they wanted to protect the average man in his home from having that home confiscated through excessive taxation. They wrote into the Constitution a provision that real estate could not be taxed for state purposes.

But under the plan advocated by Senator Collins all this protection would be swept away.

Under our present system, the County Tax Assessor values your home. He takes into account the inflation that has occurred since the Homestead Exemption Amendment was adopted. Then he sends you your tax bill. If you think it is too high, you can protest to your Assessor—the man you help elect. If he persists in assessing your property too high, you can appeal to your local Board of County Commissioners. They can overrule the Assessor in your favor.

But if Senator Collins is elected, a super-agency would be created in Tallahassee that could raise your assessment far beyond what your local officials had decided was just and fair. And if you wanted to appeal against this injustice, it wouldn't be a matter of just stopping by the Courthouse to talk to your local officials. No, it would involve hiring a lawyer and making a trip, or perhaps several trips, to Tallahassee to get on your knees and beg for fair treatment.

On this issue alone, we feel the people of Florida would be justified in giving Acting Governor Johns an overwhelming majority on May 25. Those who regard the race with indifference should remember that the election of Senator Collins easily could mean an increase of several hundred dollars a year in their tax bills.

But there are other issues, also. In each instance, careful examination of what the two men have said and done shows clearly that Governor Johns should be given the two-year term to finish the fine program he has started.

Take the question of road building as an example. Governor Johns has started the greatest road building program in the history of this state and he has shown clearly that he intends to carry it through to completion if given an opportunity. His is a bold program, a program adapted to the needs of a growing dynamic Florida. And he has appointed men to do the job who have been successful in their own businesses and who share the Governor's belief that good roads pay for themselves in increased gas tax revenues. That is the kind of vision and courage we need at this critical stage in Florida's history—a time when we can either go forward or backward.

An example is the proposed four-lane highway between the East Coast and the Everglades section in Palm Beach County. The project has long been recognized by local interests as an economic necessity, but Friday's visit of SRB Chairman Cecil Webb, along with other State officials, resulted in the first concrete action ever taken toward its realization. That is the kind of action local people may expect from Governor Johns and his aides.

Senator Collins, on the other hand, has had a timid, almost fearful approach to the road-building problem. He finds a great many reasons why Florida can't build the roads it must have, both for the prosperity and welfare of its people and for their safety when they travel on the highways. Of the two viewpoints, we'll take that of Governor Johns every time.

There is another issue in this race that is of vital importance to the people of Florida.

That is the double question of whether we should expand the present enormous Everglades National Park and whether we should try to regain the oil rights that were so foolishly given away when the Park was created.

Senator Collins says yes, we should expand a park that is already as large as the state of Maryland and about one and a half times as large as the state of Rhode Island. And he is not in the least concerned about preserving for the benefit of all the people the rights to the millions of dollars worth of oil which competent geologists believe can be found in the park area.

Governor Johns is opposed to further expansion of the Park. He rightly says that it is big enough and that further expansion would leave little land on which Floridians in that section could hunt, or fish, or farm.

Again, we believe Governor Johns has by far the better side of the argument. We admire his courage for standing up for the people's right to the people's heritage—the oil in the Everglades.

It is interesting, also, that while Senator Collins has accused Governor Johns of trying to create a political machine, he has been completely silent on the question of whether he would attempt to succeed himself if nominated on May 25. It is rather plain that if Senator Collins is nominated and elected, you could expect to find the name of Governor Collins on the 1956 ballot.

But Governor Johns has said flatly that he will carry out the spirit of our Constitution and that he will be content with the two-year term. Which man, then, would have the greatest temptation to try to create a political machine? Would it be the man who says he won't try to run again, Governor Johns, or would it be the man who has pussy-footed on the question, Senator Collins? The answer is obvious—the inclination to create a political machine and the incentive for doing so would be much stronger with Senator Collins.

Furthermore, Acting Governor Johns has given his positive assurance that he will veto any proposal for new or increased taxes on the people of Florida. Senator Collins has given no such assurance and, in view of his voting record in favor of higher taxes, it is unlikely that any such pledge will be forthcoming. Score another point for Governor Johns.

Senator Collins has been in a rather inconsistent position throughout this campaign. All the attacks that have been made on Governor Johns' record have stemmed from events that occurred prior to the 1953 Legislature. Yet, Senator Collins, knowing full well as a man close to the McCarty administration that the then Governor's illness was serious and could prove fatal, voted to elect Governor Johns President of the Senate. By his vote, he testified that in his opinion Governor Johns was the best qualified man among the 38 Senators to succeed Governor McCarty in the event the state's Chief Executive was called to his reward.

It was not until Senator Collins decided to become a candidate for Governor that he began to shout invectives against our acting chief executive. If all the things that Senator Collins has said against Governor Johns were true, or even had any basis of fact, why didn't Senator Collins raise his voice in protest on that April day in 1953 when Governor Johns was elected President of the Senate?

Senator Collins didn't protest. He voted to make Governor Johns President of the Senate and first in line for succession to the governorship. He did this with the full knowledge that Governor McCarty's condition was such that there was a strong possibility he might not survive.

Finally, there is a strong contrast between the campaigns the two men have carried on. Senator Collins has reminded us of another Senator—Senator McCarthy. Like Senator McCarthy, Senator Collins started out in pursuit of a worthy objective. In Senator McCarthy's case, it was the elimination of Communists in government. In Senator Collins' case, it was a desire to carry out the fine principles of Governor McCarty.

But each man lost his way somewhere along the line. Each became irresponsible and reckless in making charges against innocent persons without offering any shred of proof against them. While Senator Collins has made a great number of charges against our Governor, he has offered no proof to substantiate any of them. And the charges sound almost ridiculous when it is remembered that Senator Collins voted in April of 1953, after serving with Governor Johns in the Senate for several years, to elevate Governor Johns to the Presidency of the Senate. He apparently thought Governor Johns would make a fine successor to Governor McCarty in the event Divine Providence called Mr. McCarty from our midst."

Be Sure To Use Democratic Privilege; Vote At Primary Election On Tuesday

Next Tuesday, voters of Seminole County will go to the polls to help determine whether our next governor will be the present acting governor, Charley Johns, or Sen. LeRoy Collins.

Both Democratic candidates have long served in public life. Collins has served in nine sessions of the State legislature as both a representative and a senator, while Johns has been in the State legislature during 10 sessions in both capacities. During these long terms of service, each candidate has had ample time to survey the needs of the state and to decide what is best for its future.

In stipulating his views as to what he considers best for Florida, Johns has set forth the following platform: More and better roads, no new taxes, promotion of the citrus industry, preservation of the state's potential oil wealth for the benefit of all the people.

Limitation of the governorship to four consecutive years, better schools and higher teachers' pay, safer highways, promotion of health, assistance of the needy, aged and handicapped, abolition of illegal gambling.

Retirement Plan Is Proposed

NEW YORK (AP)—Do you have a simple, fool-proof retirement plan? If not, I think I have one that may interest you. (Wait! don't run away. This won't cost you anything.)

Here is what is wrong with most retirement plans:
1. A man retires and discovers his pension is really only peanuts money. He then has the problem of convincing his wife that peanuts not only taste good but are even more nutritious than steak.
2. Or a man skimps all his life, figuring he will have enough money so that he can retire and do all the fine carefree things he dreamed of doing when young. Then he makes the sad discovery that the dreams of youth lose their glamor and become nightmares in old age.
3. A man nearing 60 put his situation to me this way the other day: "Retirement locks wonderful to a man in his 20's or 40's, but as you actually get nearer to it you begin to see it as a pitfall."

"Take my case. They tell you to prepare for retirement by developing a hobby. Well, I've tried conscientiously to build an interest in gardening. But—ugh—it simply isn't in me to be a wet nurse for a pansy bed. The only growing things I have a respect for are weeds and poison ivy."

"For years I have been putting away dough so that my wife and I could take a trip around the world when I retire. But lately I've been thinking what a nuisance it would be going through European museums gawking at picture I don't like being explained to me by a guide who learned his English by reading old copies of the National Geographic."

"Work has always been the real hobby of sensible men. The closer I get to retirement the less my daily routine looks like a rut, and the more it looks like a friendly bomb shelter. I even hate to tear the page off my desk calendar anymore. It depresses me."

This man, it seems to me, has made the mistake of many men who plan for retirement by postponing small present pleasures in order to achieve some greater and more expensive luxury in the distant future.

My modified pay-as-you-go retirement program simply calls for a reversal of these tactics. Instead of squirreling away dough so you can see Africa from a wheel chair at 66, you take a coach plane to Florida while you are still young enough to enjoy a swim and a sunburn. After all, you can always see lions and tigers at the nearest zoo.

The thing to do is to achieve as large a fragment of your dreams as you can while you are young and active, before your dreams turn into wistful regrets. Why not retire your dreams by living them up along the way?

But every sound retirement program requires that you postpone something. My plan is very sound on this point. But instead of postponing your pleasures, you go ahead and do as much of what you want to do as you can—and you postpone doing until retirement all the unpleasant things you feel you ought to do, or the things a well-meaning wife tells you that you ought to do.

I know I ought to get some other hobby besides cigar smoking. I realize I ought to learn to drive an automobile, and, to please my wife, learn some dance step newer than "the turkey trot." I realize also I will never leave an imperishable name in literature until I finish the book I'm working on (so far I've only gotten as far as the title, which is, "The Industrial Uses of the Monarch Butterfly in War and Peace.")

But these things seem to me to be ideal retirement goals. And I know that at 65 they will still look so utterly repulsive that I will tell my wife:

"Honey, most fellows at our office do quit at 65, but in my case the boss said that 10 years more of putting my nose to the grindstone would give my face the polished look it now lacks. But word of honor, the day I'm 75 I'll start taking dancing lessons."

If the boss does make me quit at 65, forcing me to face the task of making good on all my postponed repulsive promises, my retirement program will solve that, too. I intend to run away from home.

13,823,337 acres of Florida timberland are under organized protection against uncontrolled forest fires. This is approximately seventy percent of all commercial forest land in the State.

Pretty Donna Reed Is Living Proof Of Acting Adage

By BOB THURMAN
HOLLYWOOD — Donna Reed is living proof of the adage that as an actress you've got to be bad to be good.

It is now history that Miss Reed walked off with an Oscar for playing a shady lady in "From Here to Eternity." This was after playing nice girls for more Hollywood years (13) than she would like to recall.

She paid a lunch call on Donna to find out what the Oscar has done for her and to her. She is back at her home lot, MGM, where she apprenticed eight years in Anny Hart's "Thin Man," Dr. Gillespie and other films before reaching stardom. She came back to the studio as a free lance, appearing with Lar Taylor, Van Johnson and Walter Pidgeon in "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

"The role I play is not really a good girl," she remarked, "but she turns out to be all right in the end. No, it's nothing like 'From Here to Eternity.' That kind of a part comes along only once in an actor's lifetime—if he's lucky."

Asked how the Oscar has changed her professional life, she replied that more scripts are being submitted to her, and the roles are better. But she hasn't noticed any increase in films that would cast her as a bad woman.

"I guess people can't get used to my playing such a role," she smiled.

Donna admitted that she fell into the "fifteen" role somewhat by chance. When she first became acquainted with the part, she played her as a brunette in a test with Aldo Ray who was trying out for the role Montgomery Clift eventually did. She never thought much about actually getting the part.

Then she did another test with Ray, this time as a blonde. Now she began to get noticed and made a pitch for the role with Columbia boss Harry Cohn.

"Absolutely not," he replied. "We've signed Deborah Kerr for the other girl's part. That's one lady switching her type. We can't have another."

But a day later she was assigned to do another test, again as a brunette. She convinced the brass and won the role.

The picture did wonders for her career—it was good for everybody connected with it. Oddly enough, she left her Columbia contract shortly before she won the Oscar.

She is now busy on the free-lance circuit. She was also set to play Jose Ferrer's wife in his Sigmond Romberg biography, but had to cancel when Liz Taylor's illness stalled the "Paris" pic. She said she'll never again sign a term contract at a studio, although she has had handsome offers. After 13 years at studio, she cherished her independence. She wants to devote more time to her family.

Mrs. G. McCall Is President Of Garden Club

Centering the head table was bleached driftwood adorned with tiny birds containing gladioli, lilies, geranium foliage, and fern. Place cards marked individual settings. Throughout the hall, the same theme prevailed to make a most effective background.

Plentiful Supply Of Cucumbers Are Available

Now that cucumbers are in season and there is a plentiful supply you will want to take advantage of this opportunity, says Myrtle Wilson, Home Demonstration Agent.

Cucumbers are one of the favorite foods, to be used fresh in salads, sandwiches, relishes and the like.

Everyone likes to have a supply of pickles and relishes on the pantry shelf for use throughout the year. Why not take advantage of the plentiful supply now and make some?

All housewives probably have a favorite recipe for sweet cucumber pickles, but here is one for medium size cucumbers. Slice into slices about 1/2 inch thick. Mix slices with 1 cup salt. Let stand overnight. Drain and press out all juice. Rinse slices in cold water. Add together 9 cups vinegar, 3 cups sugar and 1 cup mixed pickles spices for 5 minutes. Pack slices in clean, sterile jars. Leave 1 inch head space. Cover slices with hot pickling syrup. Seal and store in cool place. A peck of medium size cucumbers makes about 12 1/2 pint pickles. For variation add 2 quarts peeled, sliced small white onions in cucumbers and salt. Let stand 24 hours and follow same directions given for the slices.

Pointers to remember in making pickles: Use enamel, aluminum or galvanized steel for pickling. Copper or galvanized buckets or pots are not good to use. Use only fresh cucumbers, within 24 hours after picking. Seal for size. Use right ingredients and measure accurately. Always tie the pieces in a bag so they can be lifted out when packing pickles. Success when packed in jars with pickles will turn them dark. Store finished pickles, sealed in jars, in a cool dry place.

Titusville Meets Winter Park Tonight At Stadium

Late Terrier Rally Hands Seminoles Fourth Defeat Of Season, 5-3

By TOMMY KUHN
Sanford Seminoles blew whatever chances they had of going to the state baseball tourney last night in the semi-finals of the Group 1, Class A District tournament.

Over 370 eager baseball fans piled into Memorial Stadium to see the Seminoles grab a 2-1 lead and then lose it in the last inning. Behind the four hit pitching of Harry Gene Bennett from Titusville, Sanford lost its fourth baseball game of the year in 18 starts. Titusville had its big inning in the last inning when the team got two singles, a double, and a triple. The rally let Titusville win 5-3.

In the afternoon game Winter Park didn't have much trouble with the Leesburg Yellowjackets and made it three in a row over the jackets by a score of 5-2.

Winter Park will play Titusville tonight in Memorial Stadium, with the game beginning at 8:00 p. m. The winner of this game will go to the Class A state tournament held in Fort Pierce.

The Titusville Terriers drew first blood in the ball game when they scored one run in the first inning. First Terrier man was hit by a wild pitch. He moved to second with a stolen base. He went to third on a hit and scored on an error.

The Seminoles evened things up in the bottom of the first and then went ahead of their opponents. Randy Reynolds reached first on a walk. He went to second when Russ Hannum grounded out. Johnny Jones then singled and Reynolds scored.

While Jones was trying to go to second, the Titusville pitcher threw the ball into the outfield and Jones scored on the error. When the first inning ended Sanford was ahead 2-1.

Nobody was able to score more runs until the bottom of the fourth inning. Sanford then increased its lead to three runs off Larry Bates' long double. Bubba Blaes was on second and scored on the hit.

The Titusville team had plenty of chances to tie the score and jump ahead, but they just couldn't seem to do it in the early part of the game.

In the bottom of the sixth inning Sanford had a good chance to score a run but couldn't. Johnny Jones had tripled and was thrown out when he tried to come home on Jim Kridler's bunt.

In the top of the seventh everything happened. It seemed as though the Titusville team had finally found the range of outfielder Jimmy Hawkins. The first Terrier batter walked. The next one struck out, but the third batter singled.

With two men on base a Terrier tripled into center field and tied the score. A double followed and the visitors took the lead. Another base hit and Titusville increased its lead to a 5-0 margin. Jim Kridler came in to relieve Hawkins and finally put the fire out.

The only thing that the Seminoles could do in the bottom of the seventh was to get a man on third base. Jim Hawkins hit a high fly that was dropped by the left fielder. Hawkins ended upon third base. The game ended soon after that with Titusville winning 5-3.

LAST OUCH CORNER: Johnny Jones got three hits in three times at bat. . . Larry Bates doubled. . . Russ Hannum made a sensational catch in center field. . . Hawkins struck out seven batters. . . The game lasted one hour and 37 minutes.

NEW HOPE FOR GIANTS - - By Alan Maver

JOHNNY ANTONELLI OF THE GIANTS WHO LOOKS LIKE THE FAIR-HAIRED BOY OF THEIR FUTURE PITCHING

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP) — The greatest problem faced by any baseball manager is a highly personal one—that of trying to superintend the after-hours activities of the group of high-spirited and talented young colts who have been entrusted to his care with the object of winning a pennant.

The successful manager is the one who solves this delicate problem in human relationships, who knows when to bend a little in the cases of certain of his athletes who can "break training" with a minimum of harm and to crack down hard on those who cannot.

The manager who is an absolute martinet, who lays down stringent rules and enforces them inflexibly against all hands, will end up with a sore-headed ball club rooted in the second division. The one who tries to be buddies with his boys and puts them on their honor to keep in shape—as a certain freshman manager did some years ago—will fall on his face just as surely.

There is, in other words, a very delicate balance. The best of the managers seem to strike it sort of instinctively. Some never do, and that is why, more than any other reason, there is such a steady turnover of pilots in the big leagues. Every player we've ever heard discuss this facet of the great national pastime knew he was subject to a certain amount of surveillance during the late hours and accepted it along with his salary check.

Cardinals Play At Groveland Sunday Afternoon

Sanford Cardinals will travel to Groveland Sunday afternoon and meet the Groveland baseball team in a Central Florida League contest. The Cardinals will be looking for their third win in the league. Groveland has yet to win a game.

Last Wednesday night in Sanford, the Cardinals took a slugfest game from the Groveland Bulldogs by a score of 15-12. Sanford has a 2-3 record in the league and is in fourth place.

Time Trials This Weekend For Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The glitter of a quarter-million-dollar purse and a record-cracking pace in last weekend's trials will about a double stimulant into about 40 drivers Saturday and Sunday in final 10-mile time trials for the 500-mile auto race May 31.

It could be dangerous on a track that has killed 44 people. Sixteen drivers qualified last weekend at an average speed of 128.369 miles an hour, almost 2 miles faster than last year's field. Only 17 starting spots remain for 47 unqualified cars in the speedway garages.

The new 10-mile record of 141.023 m.p.h. set last Saturday by Jack McGrath of South Pasadena, Calif., may be challenged by two or three drivers, although most of them figure 137 will be good enough.

New Legion Heads Take Over Sunday

Newly-elected officers of Charles Young Post No. 201, American Legion, will officially take over their duties May 23. They are James D. Hagin, commander; S. Ponds, first vice-commander; Moses McKnight, second vice-commander; A. Knox, adjutant; Rufus McClain Sr., service officer; W. Courier, finance officer; Willie Greene, sergeant-at-arms, and J. Cardwell, chaplain.

Commander Hagin held an executive meeting Monday night to map plans for future activities. The Post has been granted by the City commission a site for a Post home. Plans are being drawn up and building should begin soon, Hagin said.

The executive committee agreed to hold a memorial service on May 20, with the place of service to be announced later. The committee also agreed to give an award plus a cash prize to the outstanding senior student of Crooms Academy.

"We'll make a motion in the morning to put it on the calendar and I think our chances are good," the Tallahassee senator said. "The Tallahassee senator said."

Collins said "we're not making any plans beyond the motion to put the bill on the calendar because we're going all out on that. We want a showdown on the governor's bill."

There seemed to be no lessening of effort on the other side of the issue, either. Carl Hoffman, attorney for the Miami Beach Kennel Club and principal spokesman for the dog track interests, wouldn't discuss the track's strategy or say anything about the administration move except: "I hope they won't override the committee. I hope they will sustain it."

Senate Pres. Charles E. Johns announced effort to bring about a compromise over the weekend doored at the outset when Gov. McCarty promptly announced he wouldn't give another inch.

The administration bill as introduced and passed by the House would

Sen. LeRoy Collins

FIGHTING FOR THE PEOPLE

FROM ORLANDO MORNING SENTINEL, MAY 18, 1953

THE TEMPER OF the people is rising. Not since the Legislature started its deliberations in early April has our phone rung so repeatedly in protest over legislative action as it did over the thumbs down vote by a Florida Senate committee on the proposed increase in dog track taxes.

The citizens who called were downright mad. One woman, who had written a letter to the editor telling of her surprise and pleasure with the "face of the Legislature" during a recent visit, called asking us not to print it.

"It would be ridiculous now in view of the Senate action," she said. "It is outrageous to learn that the Senate has slapped the people of Florida directly in the face on this dog track thing."

"The taxpayers are hit in the pocketbook and the old people suffer while those whose gambling racket breaks up families and homes are protected. I hope the voters will remember the names of the offending senators when they come up for re-election."

All the calls were in similar vein. TEN MEN IN THE Florida Senate have demonstrated how a powerful lobby representing selfish interests can work against the general welfare of the people.

Gov. Dan McCarty campaigned on a pledge to ask the Legislature for more equitable dog track taxation. The people liked his views and elected him. He offered a bill which proposed to tax the tracks 2 1/2 million additional dollars each dog racing season.

This bill could in no way be viewed as punitive taxation for it was general knowledge that dog track operators pay a lesser percentage of profits into the state revenue coffers than do the horse tracks. Both of these groups are operating in Florida by an act of the Legislature legalizing pari-mutuel gambling.

Operators of both horse and dog tracks take millions of dollars North with them as profits each season. But the percentage of profits at the dog tracks is higher than those at horse tracks.

The governor planned to correct this inequity. His bill had easy sailing in the House where it passed 91 to 1 after a skirmish over a crippling amendment failed but showed that 27 House members were in sympathy with the dog tracks.

There had been an early sign that the dog track lobby had many friends in the Senate.

Senate Pres. Charley Johns of Starke referred the dog track bill to two committees, a procedure which usually means death because either of the committees could turn thumbs down on it. It was a move by the Senate leader which pointedly showed he was on the dog track team.

The recent action of the miscellaneous legislation committee of the Senate revealed the names and faces of nine other senators willing to protect dog track interests over the expressed will of the people.

The senators who voted against the governor and the people were:

LEST WE FORGET

JUST ONE YEAR AGO, the people of Florida were incensed by the ruthless, arbitrary manner in which a minority group of state senators—led by their then President—now the Acting Governor—turned their backs on the people—and attempted to wreck the late Governor McCarty's program to give to the counties and the aged a larger share of the tremendous profits made by the thirteen dog tracks of Florida.

The now Acting Governor, then the Senate President, led the wrecking crew—it was LeRoy Collins who fought the battle for the people and the late Governor—it was LeRoy Collins who fought the wrecking crew at every turn—it was LeRoy Collins who led the dog track tax bill to final passage—it was LeRoy Collins who wrecked the "wrecking crew"—it was LeRoy Collins who led the people's cause to final victory—a victory that meant $20,000 additional funds to every county in Florida—a victory that meant $1,250,000 to the state welfare fund for the benefit of the totally disabled.

LOOK AT THE RECORD AS REFLECTED BY THE PUBLIC PRESS—look at the RECORD and judge for yourselves—whose record is on the side of a ruthless special interest?—whose record is on the side of the public good?

Farmer W. A. Smith lived in New York State with his wife and two small children. Like so many other northerners they disliked the cold winters and longed for the day when they could move to a warmer climate. Having heard and read much about Florida, they sold the farm one day and moved to the Sunshine State. They settled near Micanopy, built a home and went to farming.

A year later Farmer Smith wrote to his brother in the north: "Florida is the land of sunshine, a paradise," he said. "It's wonderful here, the crops are good and we are prospering here, but I think some of the "crackers" here resent us Yankees. Nevertheless I shall advise you to move to Florida."

The letter is much the same as thousands of similar ones written by people who come to Florida—except Mr. Smith's letter was dated "April 5, 1826."

THIS WEEK'S COVER

Art director Bob Bolton (Mrs. George Bolton of Belleview in private life) has portrayed a scene familiar to most Florida mothers. Muddy tracks and loving devotion usually come out even during each day of her career of raising a real American boy. The honeybee nesting on the petals of the extended gift is something else again that shouldn't happen to anybody's "Mom."

ASH'S NASH—I know a woman in St. Petersburg who has a hobby of wall papering. She has papered the rooms of her home five times in five years! The Maitland Town Council pays its volunteer Fire Dept. $10 per fire, but if there are no fires during the year it must pay the volunteers $50! . . . Wife: "You beast!" Husband: "You burden!" . . . You know, I'd be awfully happy for items for this column. Human interest yarns, information, etc.

Dania, already famous for tomatoes, is now blossoming in potatoes. A 280-acre tract is producing nearly 100 carloads of spuds for the northern markets. Likewise Federal Point, near St. Augustine, where potatoes are dug, gathered, washed, graded and shipped mechanically.

At Flavel Village in Gainesville, the UF married vets housing project, where the child population is almost 100 per cent per unit, they've got strict speed zone regulations. At each intersection

BEVERLY HILLS ADJUSTABLE CHAISE

By DONALD R. BRANN

Summertime is relaxation time. And you don't have to go to the beach to relax, if you've got the right facilities at home. A perfect substitute for a hammock is this portable, adjustable lawn chaise, which you can build yourself and save dollars for that new bathing suit or outfit you need.

As you can see from the smooth, curved contour of the smartly designed chaise, it is styled for comfort and convenience. The two wheels enable you to move it quickly into shade or sun with scarcely any effort.

You can make this chaise yourself, quickly, easily and cheaply, if you but follow the instructions on a special woodworking pattern available, as offered below. The pattern tells you exactly what lumber and other materials to buy, in what sizes and quantities. Clear illustrations and simple language of directions, tell you how to put the chaise together, step-by-step. Only stock size lumber and simple hand tools are needed. You trace the full-scale patterns directly on the lumber and cut as prescribed, to achieve perfectly fitting pieces. No more skill than it takes to make a flower box is required.

When you are finished with the chaise, you can make your own water-repellent duck cushion or pick up one at your local department store. The result will be a handsome piece of lawn furniture which would cost three or four times the price you pay for materials.

Building lawn furniture is fun no matter which way you look at it. Working with wood is an exhilarating experience. You'll get a big kick out of discovering talents you never suspected you had. You'll get terrific satisfaction out of creating something with your own hands, which will double the enjoyment you'll get out of using it later. And make believe you won't point with pride to friends or neighbors who drop over.

Once you've gotten the furniture-building bug, you probably will want to go on from there and build a companion piece, such as the lawn chair, Pattern No. 32. I've heard of several families who have built up lucrative businesses, in fact, turning out quantities of chaise, chairs, and picnic tables with benches, from these patterns.

Send 50 cents for the Beverly Hills Chaise Pattern No. 31; 25 cents for the Briarcliff Lawn Chair No. 32; and 35 cents for our brand new, illustrated 32-page catalog which describes over 180 items which can be made from woodworking patterns. A man's car stalled in suburban West Palm Beach. A lady motorist offered to push it.

"Thank you, ma'am," said the man, "but my car has an automatic transmission and won't shift out of 'low' until it reaches 30 miles per hour."

The lady said she understood and the man got into the seat, looked out the rear-view mirror and waited. He saw the lady motorist back up a considerable distance.

He jumped out just in time—the kind lady sped her car into his—at 30 miles per hour!

"She laughs a little at the first one as she peeks into the mirror, then asks to see another."

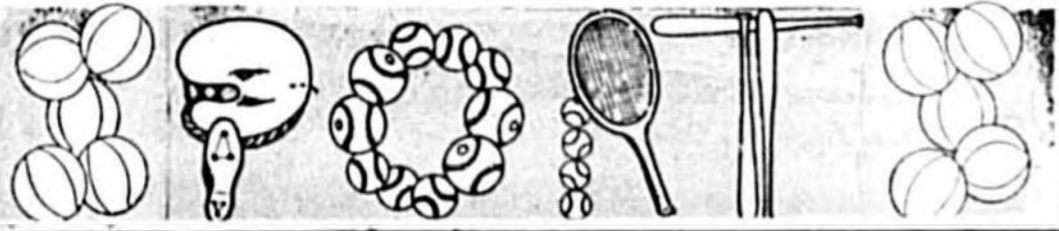

"A few moments later, she clowns a little with one that just wouldn't fit any way she tried it."

"Finally, after a hundred more hats, the clerk tells the clerk she'll be back, and we go to another store."

FLORIDA BOOSTS 'EM UP

By BOB BALFE
All Florida Sports Editor

After playing host to the biggest names in baseball each spring, Florida fans might be expected to spurn a diet of minor league ball in the summertime, but that's not the way it works.

In the spring the fans cheer the major leaguers, in the summer they cheer along promising rookies who are taking the first steps up the baseball ladder—and when one player makes the grade to the big time the fans who "knew him when" are happy.

Minor leagues have seen healthier days in the past, but Florida communities defied the threats of declining attendance this season, opening with clubs in the South Atlantic (Class A), Florida International (B), Florida State (D), and Alabama-Florida (D).

Everywhere fans were hopeful that they'd find youngsters following the trail which dozens have blazed from Florida to the majors in the past.

Of those who made the jump in the past, the outstanding example is Stan Musial, a rookie pitcher whose hitting ability became so evident that he was converted to an outfielder while at Daytona Beach in 1940, going on to become one of the all-time National League batting stars for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The same Daytona Beach fans recall Chuck Diering, who also went up to the Cards, in Sanford they're proud of Early Wynn, the Cleveland mound wizard, and Sid Hudson, who made the grade with Washington after apprentice terms at the Celest City.

Gainesville had a hand in developing Jim Rivers, the Chicago White Sox star, and Bob Thout, of the Milwaukee Braves, who also played briefly at West Palm Beach. Sherry Robertson played in Orlando en route to Washington, Bob Swift, a Detroit catcher, was in Palatka for two seasons, and the following year, 1938, Palatka watched Sid Sam Zoldak in his early career as a successful pitcher.

Davey Williams, who later became a New York Giants infielder, was the second baseman for Pensacola in 1938 when that city played in the Southeastern League.

Bob Hooper, who hurtled for both Philadelphia and Cleveland in the American League, got some of his early training at Jacksonville in 1942.

Tampa fans are unusually proud of Al Lopez, their favorite baseball son who rose to be manager of the Cleveland Indians, and old-timers recall him as a player for Tampa in the Florida State League in 1925-26 and for Jacksonville, then in the Southeastern, in 1927.

Of more recent memory in Tampa is Carlos Bernier, who went up to the Pittsburgh Pirates from the Tampa Smokers of the Florida International. Fans throughout that league have watched with interest the success of the international invaders from Cuba, including Conrado Marrero, Sandy Consuegra, Julio Moreno and others who were successful at Washington. Marrero won 70 games in three years (1947-49) in the NL, playing for Havana.

Dick Donovan had a miserable 7-15 record at Fort Lauderdale as a pitcher in 1947, but by 1950 he was in the majors with the Boston Braves. Octavius Rubert, who pitched for West Palm Beach and Tampa, went up to the Cardinals, and Arnold Portocarrero, now with the A's, had his rookie year in West Palm Beach.

The Florida East Coast League, predecessor of the Florida International, helped Gene Bearden attain American League pitching fame after he played for Miami Beach, while Bobby Hogue, a Missourian who also pitched for Hollywood in the FEC, also graduated to the majors.

That's one of the lures of summertime baseball in minor league cities. The kid you watch today and encourage by your support may be a Stan Musial of tomorrow.

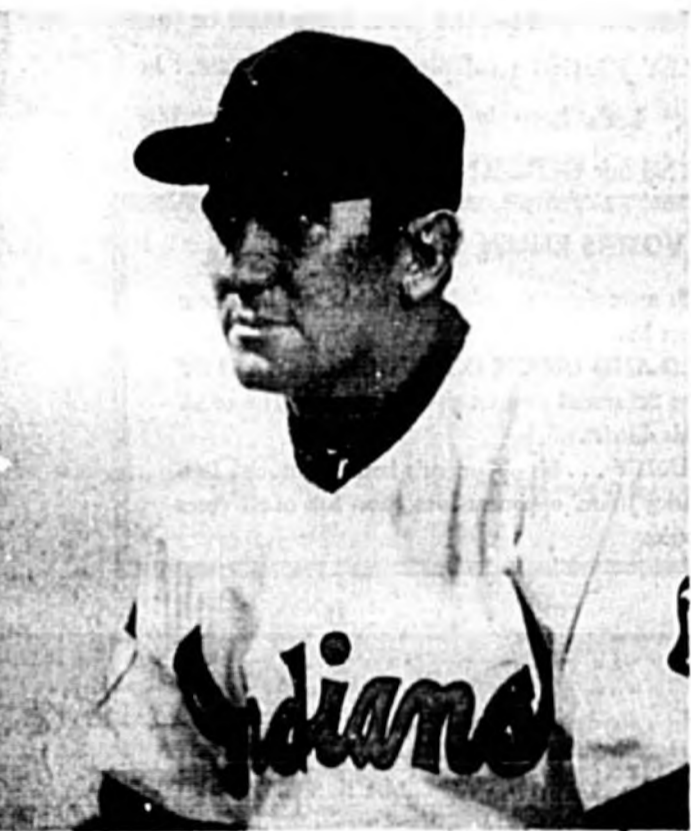

Florida baseball fans are accustomed to sights like this in springtime—Bill Skowron of the Yankees reaching the plate after a fence-clearing homer.

But in the summertime Florida fans see a mixture of ex-major leaguers and hopeful minor leaguers. Here Gil Torres, former Washington Senator star, gives advice to Rene Solis, a pitcher from West Palm Beach in the Florida International League, which opened the 1954 season with Torres as manager.

Al Lopez is better known now as manager of the Cleveland Indians, but veteran Florida fans recall him in his first professional baseball years as a catcher for Tampa and Jacksonville.

FROCKS 'N FRILLS

By PAULA CLARK
All Florida Fashion Editor

Fashion has gone color mad. If fabric designers and fashionists have their way, your wardrobe will look like a cross between a Gauguin painting and a Miami sunset.

Your blacks and whites are still summer fashion news, of course. But they're losing ground down here to the riot of colors that reflects Florida's tropic flora and fauna—presumably the latter term includes birds.

Primary colors loom high in fashion's color palette—but the red has become "hot," the blues are "intense," the greens are "muted" and the yellows are "suffered." Spring's bad colors—pale yellows and greys—appear and Paris is pushing pink and blue, with soft grey accents.

A new heather purple dominates the lavender of previous seasons. In stripes and plaids, this new heather is teamed with ceramic blues, subdued by beige.

Some designers trace their colors to the rich stained glass of Gothic cathedrals, while others raid the kitchen spice chest for new shades of brown. That's why you'll be seeing narmeg, cinnamon and clove in spex fashions seasoned with a liberal dose of pepper and salt.

The current "do it yourself" fad has affected fashion and, as a result, working clothes in brilliant new shades will permit you to look like a peacock as you refinish the furniture.

Pink terry coveralls, for example, are designed to glamorize the duller sanding and staining job. Measuring tape stripes add interest to practical coveralls.

The man in your life will look particularly dashing in scarlet poplin blouse and slacks behind the lawn mower, as you gals go glamorous in the garden with golden terry separates.

It's still a big year for black, as we told you. But it's black tinted with brown, shaded with blue, garnished with charcoal.

There's your color story, girls. No problem here, just select the shade that does most for you. If it flatters you, it's bound to be fashion-right.

group of people who are referred to by their friends as "incurable optimists" and by their critics as "blowing idlers."

But cheer up — there's a fine line between genius and insanity and an equally fine one between practical ingenuity and screwball inventiveness. A man doesn't have to be an Edison to build a better mouse trap, and there's nothing wrong with being an optimist about it, incurable or otherwise. We looked up optimism in the dictionary to make certain it's not a disease, and we find that it's a doctrine—the doctrine that the good of life overbalances the evil of it; anyone who has ever triumphed over a folding chair knows that it does.

So, little or big, let your ideas bloom—and let the folks grin as you work away at your spring project.

The versatile lawn chair, the perfect barbecue, has yet to be built, and it's certain that if you can make a better mouse trap—one that's "disposable" that can be set by wife and child without danger to life and limb—your name will go down in history with those other "incurable optimists" who benefited mankind.

Sandpile Hobby

For a hobby that is fascinating and requires very little outlay and almost no time, try sun-coloring old glass. Some 20 years ago when she was exploring an old cemetery where Indians and Negroes were buried, Mrs. Edith Fulton Craigie of Brooksville saw that the pitchers, vases and jars that had once held flowers had acquired a deep purple color from long exposure to sunlight reflected on sand. This gave her an idea and she bought, at a junk shop in Tampa, some old glass. She acquired a sandpile in her backyard and on it she placed the pieces. A pressed glass bowl turned a beautiful lavender and she sold it for $4.00. She had paid 50 cents for it! With her profit she bought some more old glass and she was in the hobby business.

Through the years she has pursued her hobby in various states but all in all she has found that the Florida sunshine is her best partner. She has learned through experience that if the water color more quickly she'll get it by placing the piece in a white enameled pan. Colors may range from shades of amber, through purple, to lavender, and azure blue. One thing to remember—color is coming it will come quickly, and it will get deeper the longer it's exposed to the sun. Old glass does best but some modern glass takes a beautiful tone. Color from the sun never fades as some sort of chemical change takes place in the glass. Color may increase up to from five to 20 years, according to the composition of the glass.

Puddin' Proof

With an edible species of fish practically at hand you wouldn't think we Florida cooks would get in a rut—but we do. We can't see the need for the mess-out fanny friends always wind up on the frying pan and there's a good reason for it—there's nothing better than good fried fish and we're giving you our favorite recipe in our cookbook to prove it. But—there are other delicious ways of cooking fish and just for the fun of it, and for that thrill of adventure that every true cook enjoys when she tries a new recipe we're going to suggest some new flips of the wren for the cooking of fish—a few "turnin' notions" highly adaptable to our Florida tastes.

Cooking is a creative art and like any other art it demands imagination. How many times have you changed that "fried and true" recipe and come up with something just a little bit better, a little bit different? Of course there's been times when you should have been to the line but one culinary triumph out of two or three failures is an over all win. We're going to give you some ideas to play around with and if you come up with a "win" for us know. A popular dish in Scotland is fish pie—pieces of raw fish placed in a casserole, with a basic sauce prepared over and put to bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes or until set. To highlight this simple dish and give it that extra taste fill it with bits of out-of-the-ordinary—what would you do?

In Denmark they call it fish pudding. The fish is chopped fine or ground, the skin and bones saved for the stock. Three eggs, whites beaten stiff, with a cup and a half of cream folded in and 1/2 teaspoon salt are added to the fish. This you bake in a mold, individual or large, set in a pan of water, for one hour, 125 degrees. You make your basic sauce by boiling fish skin and bones in 3 cups of water until the liquid is reduced to 1 1/2 cups. To your stock add 1/2 cup cream and then thicken in the usual manner with your egg yolks. Before pouring over your un-molded fish pudding would you add mushrooms? "cheese" in chowder? or ? You tell us. We'll publish the winners! Send your recipes to Mary Louise, 1220 Dixie Avenue, Leesburg.

FISH COOKERY

Most people eat fish because they like the taste of it. But it's not to do so, but fish is one of the finest natural sources of calcium, phosphorus, iron and copper—and that it provides protein of high quality. And when you sit about preparing it, you should know whether the fish is fat or lean — as each needs a different treatment. Fat fish, such as mackerel, Spanish mackerel and pompano you need not bake or broil with lemon juice. During the cooking process as their own oils will do the job of keeping the fish moist. Fat fish should be served with a tart sauce or a refresh-lean fish, which must be baked, takes a tart sauce but not one so highly seasoned that it masks the delicate flavor of the fish. If you are frying your fish invest a saladier over your frying pan to eliminate any splattering. And when having your fish, whether fat or lean, allow a generous half pound per serving. And last, but not least, here on hand that essential accompaniment to fish—lemon. Garnish your platter with it, serve your tartar sauce in trend cups, and when you are baking, broiling or boiling fish, rub it all over with the lemon. It adds flavor, keeps it a good color.

BAKED STUFFED FISH

Fish weighing 4 to 5 pounds may be stuffed and baked with bread and tomatoes, if or not as desired. Clean fish, dry and rub inside and out with salt. Stuff and seal at clearest opening. Place on piece of heavy paper (eg. paper aluminum foil) on baking sheet and bake in oven, hot oven, 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes or until browned. Reduce temperature to hot, 425 degrees F. and bake 30 to 45 minutes longer. Allow 10 minutes to the pound for first 1 1/2 pounds and 5 minutes for each additional pound. Bake lean fish every 10 minutes or cover with thin slice of fat salt pork on top, so it's not brittle to fish. To serve, lift fish with paper and fish tongs onto platter. Serve with your favorite sauce.

BREAD STUFFING

Two cups fine soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon ground onion, 1/2 cup chopped celery, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter, and 2 table-spoons water. Combine ingredients lightly, but thoroughly. Stuffing for one 1 pound fish.

MUSHROOM STUFFING

One lemon juice. Cook 1/2 to 1 cup sliced mushrooms in the butter for 5 min. on browning with remaining ingredients in 145 F. 35 minutes or so, mushrooms to the mushrooms.

FRIED FISH

Using fresh or frozen fish dip pieces in a 1/2 cup egg mixture with 1/4 teaspoon salt, then roll in sifted flour. Place in hot frying pan containing 1/2 inch of peanut oil. Brown on one side, then turn and brown on other side, allowing 8 to 12 minutes and cooking time, depending on thickness of fish. Serve with tartar sauce.

Weekly Household Hint: For a temporary on-suit, tie fish cap on the cap of a fern. It'll hold for days.

Since the General Extension Division of Florida at Gainesville began forming new Community Forums the ANALYZE-DISCUSS-DEBATE fever has spread throughout the state — and INTO PRISON!

Dr. George L. Crutcher (center) conducts a panel discussion before an audience of teen-agers.

George L. Crutcher (standing) says, "The Raiford Prison Forum is considered one of the most responsive, provocative groups in the state." Raiford's Director of Education, W. N. North (seated, center) has sponsored the institution forum since its inauguration.

That "men are never so likely to settle a question rightly as when they discuss it freely," sounds like a truism, but the General Extension Division of Florida, at Gainesville, has parlayed it into a 29-year-old program serving our state. Since 1923 they've been organizing "film forums" in all of Florida's 67 counties. Several times over the years they have serviced as many as 125 active groups with data on a span of subject matter as unrelated in interest as "The Poll Tax" and "The Pole Cat."

The Division, working in cooperation with various sponsoring groups does its best to develop lively discussions of the hundreds of everyday problems facing our people. The more heated the discussion (short of fistfights) the better!

Moderators are trained so that a new group can carry on after the Division, having given the movement a good push, moves on to another community.

The plan is simple—and effective. "Package libraries," as they're called, are sent out before scheduled discussions. These are groups of references, each on a single subject, that give members background material for their forums. At Gainesville there are about 6,000 such package libraries available for loan to groups and individuals.

For the forums themselves the Division owns and lends over 100 films (and has access to many more through cooperation with other film libraries). They cover a wide range of subjects, such as "Our Basic Civil Rights," "World Trade," and "Consumer Protection," and are a wonderful source of discussion material.

The moderator handles these discussions so that individual members are encouraged to present opposing viewpoints on a problem. These are then analyzed and compared by the group, as it tries to arrive at a sound opinion or solution.

How successful has this idea been in practice? George L. Crutcher conducts several such forums—one of them at the Raiford State Prison. Working through Mr. L. F. Chapman, the superintendent, and Mr. W. N. North, supervisor of education, Mr. Crutcher has found the men in the prison forum not only exceptionally interested, but superior to many outside groups in the knowledge and insight with which they attack a question.

"Raiford inmates show an intellectual curiosity typical of groups all over the state," Mr. Crutcher observed, and added, "Film forums, such as these, serve a vital need of Americans who are daily demanding more complete information about the world around them and their places in it."

Recently Dr. B. C. Riley, dean of the General Extension Division, discussed with several state officials the amazing spread of interest in forum groups throughout Florida.

Acting Governor Johns said a considerable number of inquiries have been addressed to Tallahassee, seeking information on forums. He expressed the belief that discussion-debating groups would be formed in every hamlet in the state if responsible citizens would encourage local organizations to request the General Extension Division's assistance in setting up a forum in their community. Of course, this is done as a public service without charge, he added.

Many forum leaders think Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Mayo hit the nail on the head when he observed, "Floridians, like all good Americans, are becoming so acutely cognizant of the divided views expressed through all media of communications that their confusion as to fact and logic can only be alleviated by open discussion of national and world problems with their neighbors. The increase in forums is proof enough that Floridians are not merely headline readers, nor are they willing to accept predigested, and often subversive, opinions. It's a healthy sign."

Dean B. C. Riley, head of the General Extension Division of Florida, representing all state institutions of higher learning.

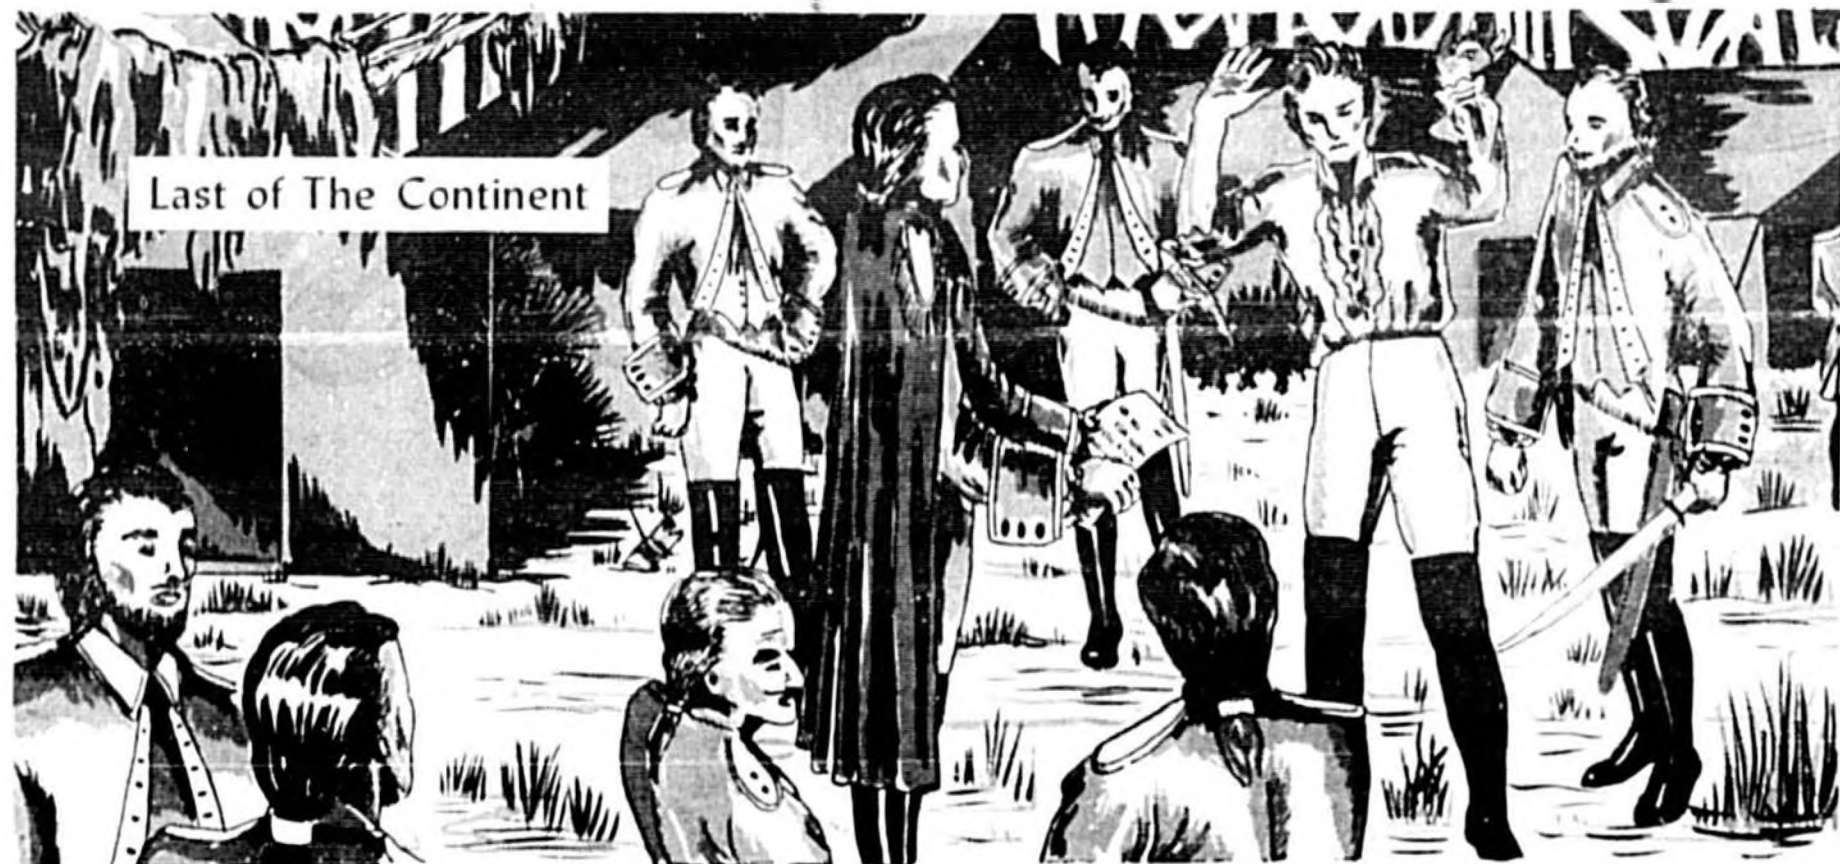

The libraries of the General Extension Division contain over 6,000 "package libraries"—groups of related references.

A film forum in action. Frank, open discussion of a problem is essential to a sound understanding of that problem.

Last of The Continent

The defeat at Bloody Marsh was a hard blow to the combined Florida and Cuban Spanish force trying to reconquer James Oglethorpe's Georgia for Spain. But their commander, Don Manuel de Montiano, Governor of Florida, was resolved to have another go at it.

"Some land attack is impracticable," said Montiano, "we'll try by water."

On the 11th of July, 1732, he ordered his galleys to move within cannon range of the fort at Frederica, Oglethorpe's headquarters at St. Simons Island. The galleys opened fire on the fort, but the British replied with such a furious bombardment of the Spanish vessels that they were forced to withdraw.

By that time the Spanish camp at Gasconne's Bluff was in a miserable state. The wounded from the battle of Bloody Marsh lacked any kind of medical attention. In addition to that, all the Spanish troops were on a short allowance of water, for there was little fresh water to be had.

Discouraged and harassed by heat and thirst, the tempers of officers and men grew short. Councils of war turned into sessions of disagreement, until finally the men from Florida and the men from Cuba were hardly on speaking terms. They divided and set up two separate camps.

When General Oglethorpe heard from escaped prisoners about the Spanish split, he was pleased. "Well now, that's fine," he chortled. "We'll wipe out one camp of them first, then the other."

With this purpose in mind, one night he stole close up to the nearest Spanish camp with a band of picked men. He was a gently reconnoitering the enemy when a Frenchman in his party deliberately fired off his musket and dexterly fell pell-mell to the Spanish.

"Spread out!" Oglethorpe ordered quickly. "And beat the drums!"

When the French drummer came crashing into their midst, the Spanish sprang to their arms. Then they heard drums beating in the woods about them in several directions. They thought a large British force was upon them and in the resulting confusion Oglethorpe and his men beat a hasty retreat.

Oglethorpe knew the French drummer would tell the Spanish how small his forces really were, so he devised a means of bringing the Frenchman's testimony to naught.

He released a certain prisoner whom he had been holding, allowed him to escape to the Spanish camp, and put him to carry a letter addressed to the Frenchman. The letter gave instructions in how to lead the Spanish into a British trap and was written in such a way that anyone who read it would immediately conclude that the Frenchman was a paid agent of the British.

As Oglethorpe had foreseen, the man who carried the letter was scolded by the Spanish guards before he could deliver it. He was searched and the letter was found. He was taken before Governor Montiano.

"The Frenchman is an English spy," Montiano exclaimed. "And this letter states that an English fleet is on the way to attack St. Augustine. Senores, if this be true, we must not tarry longer in this swamp. We must return to defend our homes in Florida!"

They were going to do just the opposite of what the Frenchman said. The Frenchman is a spy, but Montiano mercifully spared his life. Then there was more argument between the separate factions among the Spanish. Some of the officers were convinced that the letter was true and counseled returning to St. Augustine; others maintained that it was nothing more than a ruse of the wily Oglethorpe.

But the minds of all of them were made up to the first course. An amazing luck favored Oglethorpe. English ships from Charleston suddenly appeared along the coast, just as Oglethorpe had predicted in his letter, when at that time he had no way of knowing whether they were coming or not.

The Spanish didn't know that King George's men of war were not really on the way to St. Augustine. They were merely cruising along the coast to make a show of force, a sort of token attempt to favor Oglethorpe.

Nevertheless the Cuban outfit, without any apologies, stood out to sea and headed for Havana

They left Governor Montiano to get home with his Florida army as best he could.

Oglethorpe followed them as far as Amelia Island, which the Spaniards tried to take again, unsuccessfully. Then in March of the following year, 1733, the intrepid General invaded Florida for the second time. He landed on the St. Johns River and defeated a Spanish force which opposed him there. Then with a small body of men he marched to the gates of St. Augustine.

"Come out of there and fight!" he challenged, as he stood in plain sight of the Spanish on the battlements.

The Spaniards calmly ignored him. They had learned that Oglethorpe had cancelled the greater part of his force behind in the forest, ready to cut them down if they came out to chase him.

Since the Spaniards wouldn't fight, Oglethorpe left in disgust and returned to Georgia. He had won the Spanish then, ancient Gaule province, which he had renamed Georgia. And the Continent of Florida was no more.

When Prince de Leon named Florida, he had meant it to include all the land to the north. Because of his discovery, Spain had claimed everything from Cape Sable to Canada as the Continent of Florida. But now, in 1733, with the exception of her holdings west of the Mississippi, she had lost all but the best part of it—the beautiful slender peninsula with its narrow western limb—our Florida.

GATOR DEBATERS

By JAMES M. GAY

The University of Florida is training some of its young men and women to literally talk their way to success.

The University of Florida's debating program is one of the best in the country. It has produced many winners in the past, and it is expected to produce many more in the future.

Members of Florida's first debate team are some of the state's better known citizens. United States Senator Spruill, Holland and Attorney Gordon B. (Gibbs) Knowles of Bradenton were members of Florida's first debate team in January, 1910.

Other well known persons who debated for the University in Congress are Charles Bennett, D. R. White, Matthews and W. J. Ham. Linnell, Sr., and George Smith are Attorney Wilford Ayres, president of the U. F. Alumni Association, Devin Berger, president of the Florida Bar Association, William M. Rice, another past president of the Alumni Association and a Rhodes Scholar.

Paul B. White, U. S. Senator from Florida, the nation's first Kappa Alpha delimiting society, was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Society of Law, George L. Miller, now on the University faculty, was a Rhodes Scholar, and the Washington Post has named Florida Debate men.

Not only the names of some of the prominent alumni make the Debate Society proud to wear. In recent years, Dr. D. K.

By the way, the country music scene in Florida is hot. It's not just the old-time fiddlers and banjo players who are still popular, but the new country music is also making a name for itself. The new country music is a blend of the old and the new, and it's a sound that's catching on fast.

It's a sound that's catching on fast. It's a sound that's making a name for itself. It's a sound that's making a name for itself. It's a sound that's making a name for itself. It's a sound that's making a name for itself.

UNCLE JACK'S ANIMAL STORIES

The Silver Fox Family

Penny was a beautiful silver fox cub, though she had a little white on her chest. Her mother, Mrs. Fox, was a beautiful silver fox, and her father, Mr. Fox, was a beautiful silver fox. Penny was a beautiful silver fox cub, though she had a little white on her chest. Her mother, Mrs. Fox, was a beautiful silver fox, and her father, Mr. Fox, was a beautiful silver fox.

When Rennie had been a cub, he and his family possessed the most beautiful silver foxes anywhere. He had never heard of airplanes, nor cities, nor of ladies who buy silver fox furs. He slept late mornings, and became lazier every day. Penny was in despair, and kept telling the cubs not to be as slow as their father.

"Get up, get up!" she barked at Rennie, one morning. "The cubs are outside with no one to watch them. They will be eaten by the wolf, or the coyote, or the bear. Get up, get up!"

Rennie was slow to get up, and when he did, he was nearly motionless. He had been lying on his back, and he had not moved for a long time.

"What are you doing?" asked Penny, looking at her father. "Rennie, come! Rennie, come!"

Rennie went over and sniffed. At once he wheeled around and headed back toward the cave, barking to the cubs to follow. They had never seen their father run so fast before, and it was all they could do to keep him in sight.

The cubs were looking curiously at their father, then ran after Penny. Rennie suddenly regretted the lazy life he had led. A true thing it his two babies could outrun him, he thought to be killed by the ground. He was so slow, and when he ran, he was nearly motionless. He had been lying on his back, and he had not moved for a long time.

He gave his mother and father a look that said, "I'm not going to be a fox, not a lazy, lumbering old fox. I'm through being lazy."

"After this," he said, "I'm going to remember that I am a fox, not a lazy, lumbering old fox. I'm through being lazy."

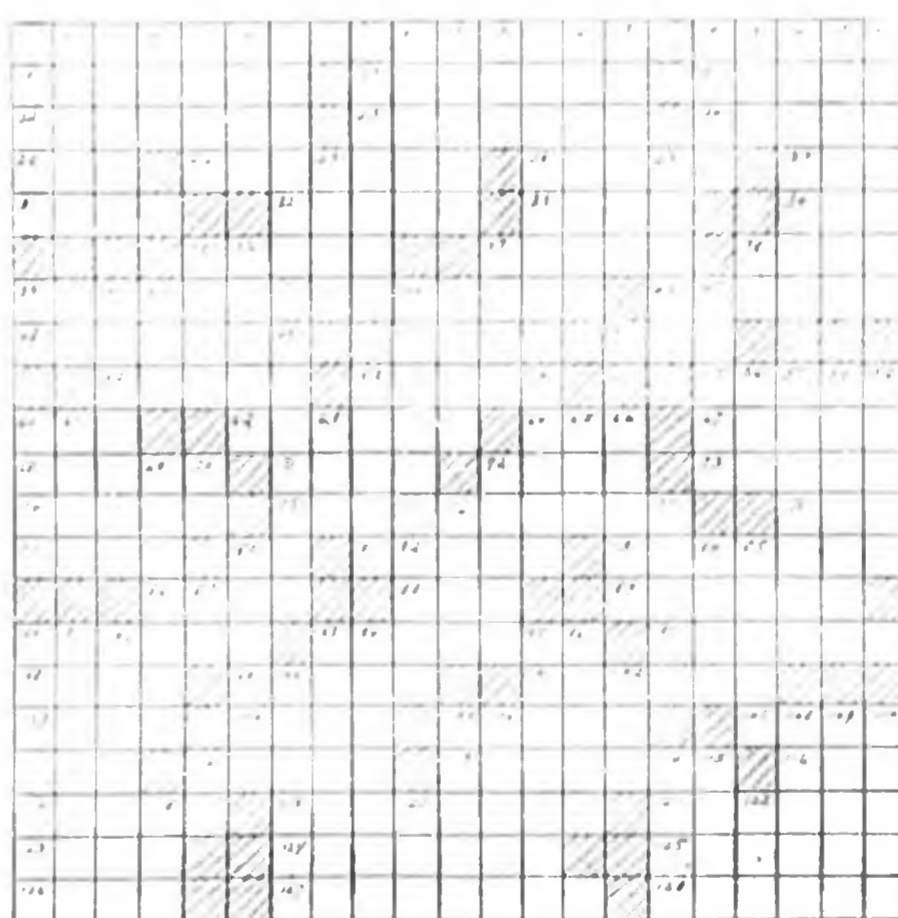

"I am glad to hear it," said Penny. "That's the way for a fox to talk." Then they curled up and went to sleep.

SECRET NUMBER
You can guess any number very easily. Ask someone to choose a number and write it on paper which he is to hold folded, in his hand. Then tell him to double the number, then to multiply by five and give you the total. You can then tell him the "secret" number by merely knocking off the final digit.

For example, if he has 13 as his secret number, it becomes 26 when doubled. Multiplied by 5 it is 130. Knock off the final digit, and you have the secret number, 13.

Here are some facts that can help you if you are planning to buy a used car . . .

Did you ever stop to think that people buy more used cars than new ones? The cost is lower, of course. And a good used car has a lot to offer you in the way of enjoyable, economical transportation. It's a wise investment. This information can help guide you to a satisfactory choice.

In many ways, buying a used car is just like buying a new one. You want something that you can drive with pride, with pleasure, and with confidence in its performance and safety. You want the car you buy to be a good, sound investment over a lot of miles and over a long time.

How do you go about finding that kind of used car? How do you recognize it when you see it? What are the things to consider beyond its general appearance and its price? Well, the first and single most important thing is this:

Buy from a Reliable Dealer

Instead of a used car, let's suppose you wanted to buy some expensive jewelry—a diamond ring, say. And suppose that, like most of us, you weren't sure that you could recognize all the differences in diamond quality and value. Wouldn't you want to be certain that you bought from a recognized and reliable jeweler or store? Then you could be confident that the ring would be exactly as represented, and that you were getting a fair and honest value.

Well, it's the same way in buying a used car. As an authorized Chevrolet dealer, our reputation for integrity and reliability is our most important asset. We have been in business for some time and we expect to stay in business. The only way we can protect our substantial investments in this community —and our business future—is to earn and hold the respect and goodwill of our customers.

That's one important reason why you can buy a used car with confidence here. The OK Used Car program is another—and an exclusive—step that we have taken to win and deserve your confidence.

What the OK Tag Means on a Used Car

Every used car we sell represents a full measure of value per dollar. From the many, many cars traded in on new Chevrolets, we have many good used cars available.

Certain of our trade-ins are selected for special treatment. These are the OK Used Cars that are sold to you under our dealer warranty in writing. The OK Tag means that the used car has received all the benefits of the OK program and is sold under its conditions.

The Six Special Benefits of an OK Used Car

The OK Tag on a used car tells you six things about that car. First, that it's been thoroughly inspected by trained mechanics. Second, that it's been carefully reconditioned for top performance. Third, that it's been reconditioned for safety. Fourth, that it is priced for value. Fifth, that it is honestly advertised and described. And, finally, that you, as the buyer, will receive our dealer warranty in writing on that car.

Permission to use the OK Tag is granted by the Chevrolet Division of General Motors to authorized Chevrolet dealers who accept definite responsibilities in connection with the OK program and who agree to bring you, as the buyer, all of its benefits.

The Same Service that Backs Up the New Cars We Sell

Is good service available for the used car you buy? Does the seller have the facilities and the organization to back up the things he says about the car? These are other questions well worth considering when you buy.

We know that friendly service after the sale helps us keep old customers and gain new ones. As a Chevrolet dealer, we provide a modern and complete service department staffed by well-trained people. You can count on our service to back up your purchase of a used car at all times.

Used Cars that are Priced to Sell

Certainly, price is a big consideration in anything you buy. Ordinarily, the price you pay for a used car depends on its make, model, and condition.

Along with the other benefits of the OK program and our used car policies, you'll find a consistently high standard of value for your money. As a Chevrolet dealer, we must sell more used cars in order to sell the most new cars, which is our primary business. And in order to sell more used cars, we must offer them at prices which mean quick sales.

Buy with Warranted Confidence When You See the OK Tag

We'd be glad to have you come in and let us know the make, model and price range you have in mind. We have a wide selection of OK used cars available, as well as OK Used Trucks for truck users and operators.

We think you'll be interested in seeing for yourself all the things we do to give you greater confidence and value in your used car or truck.
