Detective plays cupid

BROOKSVILLE - After 26 years of regret about passing up the love of her life, a woman hired a private detective to get him back. It worked - they're now engaged to be married.

A month after she started the search, 44-year-old Marie Tumaniszwill got the call she had been waiting for, and the words flowed as if they had never been apart.

"We picked up the conversation like. 'As I was saying yesterday ... ""she said. Her old sweetheart, Iztok Djordjevic, 51.

hopped a plane from Connecticut to western Florida, and doesn't plan to go back.

The couple met in 1964 in a cafeteria at the University of Hartford in Connecticut. After a year of dating. Ms. Tumaniszwill's father, who chaired the philosophy department, ordered her to end the romance because he feared Djordjevic, a music student, wouldn't be able to support her properly.

Without revealing that her father had "put the kibosh on the relationship." Ms. Tumaniszwili tearfully bid her beau adieu.

In the intervening years, both got married, had children and were divorced.

In March. Ms. Tumaniszwill spotted a phone-book advertisement for a private eye and hired him for $250 to find out if Djordjevic was

Trees honor winners

SANFORD - Six students from Sanford elementary schools have been chosen as the winners of the City of Sanford Utility Department's Drinking Water Week poster con test.

Trees will be planted in their names at the schools which they attend. One winner was chosen from each grade level.

According to Bill Marcous. project coorinator, the tree plantings began last week and will continue through next week.

We want to give the students a lasting award for their cooperation in the contest." Marcous said.

Crystal Caldarelli, a student at Goldsboro Elementary School, was the winner in the kindergarten category; Jennifer Otis, a student at Hamilton Elementary School was the first grade winner; Heather Koen, a student ai Goldsboro was the second grade winner.

Mary Owens, a student at Midway Elementary School, was the third grade winner: Nichelle Taylor, a student at Hamilton was the fourth grade winner and Michael St. George, a student at Goldshorn was the fifth grade winner.

A special recognition was given to Page School of Sanford for the collage that a group of students produced for the project.

The contest was sponsored by the city's Utility and Public Works Departments.

Students at all the public and private schools in Sanford were asked to design posters to help the department's celebrate Water Week. There were over 70 entries received. Each participant received a pencil with the inscription "Use water wisely" imprinted on it. The posters, reflecting the themes "Water Conservation" and "Water Is Life" were judged by Mayor Bettye Smith and the top six pieces were selected to be displayed at City Hall for a couple of weeks.

"They will be recycled." Marcous said of the ultimate fate of the posters.

Speeding coupons proposed

DALLAS - For $25 a year, leadfooted motorists in Texas may soon be able to pull "speeding coupons" out of the glove compartment if they're caught cruising over the speed limit.

The House passed a bill earlier this month that would allow motorists to simply hand over a $5 coupon if they're stopped for driving 70 mph on the 65-mph interstate. Each driver would be entitled to a pack of five coupons a year.

The bill was under review in the Senate, but its prospects of passage were believed to be slim.

"This is a very wide-open state with vast distances," said Rep. Tom Craddick, the bill's sponsor who's from Midland in western Texas. "Drive 55 in my district and there isn't nothing but mesquite trees and jackrabbits.

Birthday shared for 70 years

BISMARCK, N.D. - Merle Kenny says It's getting harder and harder to share his birthday with his father now that dad's nearing the century mark.

"Every year, they make a bigger fuss over dad," said Meric, who turned 70 on Friday, the same day his father, Sam Kenny, turned 99.

"My birthday seems to be forgotten," he said. "Everybody seems to be impressed with how old he is, and they look at me like I am still a kid."

Father and son had cake and coffee with friends and relatives on Friday. Merle Kenny was born on his father's birthday in 1921.

The elder Kenny said he's confident he'll make it at least to 100.

"I am too ornery too die," he said. "My philosophy is that age is a state of mind."

Encephalitis mosquito count again rises

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Stalf Writer

SANFORD - The numbers of mosquitoes capable of carrying the dangerous St. Louis encephalitis to humans continue to mount, but they pose no health threat to residents. Seminole County health officials say.

More than half the mosquitoes counted May 9 at a county environmental health trap site near the Hidden Lake subdivision in Sanford were of the Culex nigripalpus variety, said John Cochrane, director of the county Environmental Health Section. Cochrane said 3.200 mosquitos were counted and 1.728 were nigripalpus.

At a second trap site near close to Red Bug Lake Road and Dodd Road near Casselberry, 992 of the 4.392 mosquitos counted were nigripalpus. Cockrane said. Neither site trapped any Acdes. albopictus. Asian tiger mosquito, which is also capable of transmitting St. Louis encephalitis to humans.

"In general, we're seeing large amounts of mosquitos," Cochrane said. "We're not making any health conclusions from that, though,

Although two chickens in across the St. Johns-River in Orange City earlier this month showed evidence of encephalitis, Cochrane said Volusia County mosquitos posed no threat to Seminole County residents.

Last year's outbreak of mosquito-spread encephalitis resulted in 212 illnesses in humans and nine deaths. St. Louis encephalitis can prodice a swelling of the brain and can lead to death in the very young, the very old and the infirmed. Because it is a virus, only the symptoms of a severe headache, high fever and stiff neck can be Ireated.

reduce their workforces. "Encouraging workers to re-tive is one strategy for preventing layoffs," she said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

But one catch to the strategy. Quadagno said, is that it leaves pension funds increasingly strapped. As employers reduce the number of workers, leaving fewer contributors to pension is such as that of the Unite Auto Workers, more retirees will be drawing pensions and for longer periods of time.

pension plans to older mployees, and older workers increasingly are accepting, said seciology Professor Jill "Early retirement is going to put financial pressure on pension plans if these plans have to support the worker until they are eligible for Social Security," site said.

The researchers found that workers were more likely to retire due to plant closings, impending layoffs or health age to receive Social Security and place greater penalties on workers in the form of decreased benefits for retiring early. "Raising the Social Security entitlement age is not going to keep blue-collar workers work-ing longer," said Guadagno, who Skilled workers were more likely than the unskilled to remain on the job. Quadagno said, and those with working spouses tended to postpone re-tirement to coincide with their spouse's.

But two-thirds said the decision to take early retirement was an easy one.

"The auto workers we interviewed were, in general, very happy to be retired, especially the ones who indicated health problems." Hardy said, though she added that some early retirees take on new, though often less demanding jobs.

"Now you have people referring to retirement as the end of a particular career, but not the end of all work." Hardy said. "Some choose at some point to supplement their retirement income with earnings from part-time work."

Job stress takes toll on workers' outlooks

Sy CANDARA DEWEY Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS - One in three Americans seriously thought about quitting their jobs last year because of workplace stress and a third expected to burn out soon, according to a survey.

The survey of 600 American workers was conducted in January and February for Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

Among the findings: Seven in 10 workers said job stress caused frequent health problems and made them less productive.

One in three said they expected to burn out on the job in the near future.

•34 percent said they thought seriously of quitting their jobs last year because of workplace stress. Fourteen percent said without regard to region, size of company, type of job or age of the worker. workplace stress caused them to quit or change jobs in the last two years.

•46 percent said their jobs are highly streasful, double the per-centage cited in the 1985 Na-tional Health Interview Survey. •53 percent said they were required to work more than 40 hours a week very often or somewhat often.

082 percent said victime of burnout deserve disability pay from their employer. Scott Knowiton, manager of the insurance company's disability management programs, said job-related stress has created a "crisis that largely goes unrecognized by employers." Significant burnout occurred in companies that substantially cut employee benefits, changed ownership, required frequent overtime or reduced the work force. Peggy Lawless, Northwestern National's research analyst, said job stress and burnout have a foothold in the U.S. workforce

6 win degrees without going to campus

FORT LAUDERDALE - Six South Floridians have earned bachelor degrees in ornamental horticulture from the Universi-ty of Florida College of Agriculture, but only two ever took any classes at the main campus in Gainesville.

Instead, they were students in the resident instruction program at the Fort Lauderdale Research and Education Center, which is part of UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

The program is the first UFIFAS attempt at outreach teaching, where classes are taught off a main campus. The six residents, two of whom are graduating this month to follow four who finished earlier, are the first to receive degrees but about 350 students have taken classes in the program since its started in 1985.

Dr. Stephen Verkade, associate professor and program coordinator, said 85 percent of the students already work in the industry.

arrested on Friday. He was charged with loitering and prowling. According to the arrest report. Barr allegedly arrived at the Lake Katheryn Motel in Casselberry and used the pay phone in the hotel's parking lot. He then allegedly went toward the soda machine in the rear of the building and stayed what the manager thought was an unusually long time. Upon investigation, the manager allegedly found Barr on his knees peering into the back window of one of the rooms, police reported. When he was approached by the manager he allegedly attempted to escape but was tackled by the manager.

Police investigations determined that Barr was not registered at the motel, nor did he know anyone who was registered there. He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $100 bond.

Florida fishing lures president hooked to the bone

By BILL BOWLE Associated Press Writer

When President Bush takes time off to go bonefishing, he's after one of the finest fighting fishes in the ocean.

'It's utterly shocking the first time you encounter the first run of the bonefish." says guide Philip "Flip" Pallot of Home-stead, Fia.

"They're capable of melting the drag system on sophisticated tackle. They're capable of a sustained, uninterrupted run of up to 100 yards. And it almost doesn't matter what kind of pressure you put on the fish he's going to make that first run.

The bonefish's beauty is in its appearance and its fight. It's definitely not something a gourmet cook would prize.

The fish runs 36 inches and longer, and a good-sized one in Florida waters will go 13 pounds or more.

"They're extremely silvery fish, very hard to see in the water because their sides act as giant mirrors and reflect the bottom over which they swim." Pallot says.

So an experienced guide doesn't look for a fish - he looks for a shadow - which is fairly visible because most bonefish hang out in 8 to 18 inches of water.

WASHINGTON - Four days after having its death certificate signed, the staff of an obscure federal commission packed its suit-cases for Mexico and Canada for a two-week international conference. Some believe it was a fitting finale for the gilded President Executive Exchange Commission, which once wanted to buy mono-grammed gold jewelry at taxpayer expense for commission bureaucrats and participants.

EDITORIALS Soviet seesaw

Mikhail Gorbachev continues to meneuver between left and right in his efforts to rescue the Soviet Union and his own presidency. That's made possible in part, irosically, by the political tug-of-war between himself and Boris Yeltsin, head of the Russian Republic and still the most popular politician in the country. If Yeltsin didn't exist, Gorbachev might have to invent him.

The other day, Gorbachev made it possible The other day, Gorbachev made it possible for Yeltsin to deliver on a promise to striking Siberian coal miners in Russia from the Kremlin to the republic. That unprecedented cession of central authority served serveral purposes: Yeltsin won a political victory, a strike that has crippled an already reeling economy is coming to an end and, to an extent, the burden of reviving a key part of the economy shifts from Gorbachev to Yeltsin. Yeitain.

Of course the problem is more complex Of course the problem is more complex than that, since saving the economy, and national unity, depends on a much wider range of decisions implying a radical devolu-tion of power from the central government and the Central Committee of the Communist Party to the republics and, indeed, to state enterprises that may yet become private. To justify such moves, Gorbachev can tell hard-liners that the devil Yeltsin made him do it. it.

Just for good measure. Gorbachev also placates the right wing with tough talk toward Washington over its reluctance to extend new credit for grain purchases while at the same time apprarently making con-cessions to the Bush administration on arms control; and with a violent crackdown in Armenia, where ethnic clashes have flared up again, while at the same time hinting that the republics that want to leave the union may be allowed to do so.

In all of this, Yeltain has been indispens-able. In April, he and eight other republican leaders joined with Gorbachev in a pact to preserve the union through a gradual transfer of power to the republics while upholding the ultimate authority of Moscow, and through economic reforms that amount to a revival of the perestroiks (restructuring) that Gorbschev's liberal critics accuse him of abandoning.

Again. Gorbachev is keeping one step ahead of disaster while, deliberately or not, moving toward the decentalization and privatization that he first seemed to embrace, then backed away from and now seems to be embracing again.

The odds remain against him, but with Yeltsin pursuing his own ends as adroitly as his rival, it's conceivable that this seesaw act may serve the country's interests, whether or not either of these clever men is around to take a bow at the finish.

ROBERT WAGMAN U.S.: restrict high-tech optics

WASHINGTON -- Central to George Bush's "new world order" is greatly curtailing high-tech weapons sales to the Middle East and Third World countries. However, he is having difficulty selling this idea to some close allies. In the 1970s, the United States convinced most major Western nations to form COCOM - the Coordinating Committee For Multilateral Export Controls. The Paris-based organization maintains a list of high-tech items that have military applications. On a voluntary basis, nations belonging to COCOM prohibit or limit sales of listed items to the Soviet Union and Third World countries.

While compliance is voluntary, it is almost universal. COCOM members include all NATO countries plus Japan and Australia. Currently, COCOM is embroiled in a bitter debate over restricting low-light optical equipment. The Gulf War demonstrated the importance of night-vision devices, which allowed advancing allied forces to attack and destroy Iraqi tanka long before the threat could be detected by the Iraqia.

For years certain low-light optics and components were on the COCOM restricted list. Products on that list come up for regular review.

In May 1990, the U.S. team at COCOM - on orders from the White House - chose not to object when restrictions on the sale of such optical equipment were lifted. The White House had been persuaded by Commerce Department pleas to allow increased exports by U.S. optics makers.

The decision was almost disastrous. Prior to the allied land invasion of Kuwait and Iraq, the Iraqis staged a daring night probing raid into Saudi Arabia and captured the northern Saudi town of Khafji. U.S. commanders were amazed at how easily the Iraqis had been able to execute complex maneuvers in the dark. After Khafji was retaken, U.S. intelligence officers found the Iraqis had been equipped with some of the latest night-vision equipment.

The equipment had been manufactured by Delft Instruments, a Dutch company.

Even more troubling to intelligence officers was that the Delft products contained the very latest in low-light optical parts manufactured by a Hughes Aircraft subsidiary in Los Angeles. Hughes said that it had sold the parts to Delft to be installed in night-vision equipment for sale to the Dutch army and NATO countries only. At first Delft denied it had illegally shipped night-vision equipment to Iraq: later, though, it insisted it had done nothing wrong because the optics were no longer COCOM restricted.

The Pentagon and Commerce Department have put Delft Industries on their "suspended" list, meaning no U.S. firm may export sensitive equipment to them. The Dutch government continues to investigate.

Meanwhile, the United States is trying to undo its error and put low-light optical equipment back on the COCOM restricted list. However, the effort is bitterly opposed by Japan and Germany — the world's two largest makers of optics - and by the Netherlands.

Although the current argument focuses on reinstatement of night-vision optics to the restricted list, the ramifications run deeper. Many countries, especially the Japanese and Germans, are anxious to increase their export markets. Many litems on COCOM's restricted list are highly profitable and in great demand.

"The Germans and the Japanese would just as soon see COCOM done away with." says a highlevel Pentagon source. "They argue that, with the Soviet Union now in such trouble and the Warsaw Pact dissolved, the need for such export controls in most high-tech areas has lessened. As for the Third World, their argument there is these nations are so technologically underdeveloped that these sales will have only minimal impact."

While compliance is

voluntary, it is

The official says the Pentagon does not agree:

"We view this as a big problem. We made a major mistake in signing off last year on the removal of the low-light optics from the restricted list. But it's like trying to get the genie back into the bottle. Once something comes off the list, getting agreement to put it back on is almost impossible.

Some in the Pentagon believe the United States has enough muscle to get low-light optics back on the COCOM list. However, to do so it may have to make some deals with the Germans and Japanese to remove some other products.

The dispute demonstrates how difficult it will be for Bush to fulfill his vision of radically restricting military sales to the Third World and Middle East.

hotshots to work in top federal posts for a year, the commission was once likened to a 'hallmark of démocracy" by President Bush. It was supposed to act as a big cultural exchange program — pincing not-only corporate executives in gov-ernment but also government officials

E It was supposed to act as a big cultural exchange program. in corporate offices. The commission dates back to 1968.

The commission, which Bush ordered fazed out earlier this month, will be remembered as a trough. Loaned executives enjoyed perks, like last year's three-week, all-expenses-paid trip to Europe. Their mission was to talk to foreign trade and government officials. There was also the case of John Healy, a Chicago public-relations executive, who was initially assigned to the Energy Department. That job didn't work out, and the alternative position paid $12,000 kms - but Healy was given the higher salary and took on some extra duties to earn it, such as setting up photos on the European trip.

It will also be remembered as a revolving door, An executive with a major defense firm with a contract with the U.S. government won a sensitive job at the Pentagon. Andrew Phelps of Bechtel Corp., an engineering and Press of Bechtel Corp., an engineering and construction firm, participated with the commission in 1969. He got a senior post in the Pentagon involving confidential projects in engineering — Bechtel's main business line. Bechtel did about $136 million worth of Pentagon business that same year. (Govern-ment lawyers checked each assignment for conflicts and checked fiche for the senior. conflicts and cleared Phelps for the assignment.)

Drug company executives have gone to work for the Health and Human Services Department. One executive with an aircraft manufacturer worked for the Federal Avia-tion Administration. And farm pesticide makers have set up offices in the Agriculture Department.

Until last year, Gordon Hamel, director of placement for the commission, was fingering violations of federal spending laws and questionable job placements at the com-mission. Hamel took his complaints to top government investigators last summer, and then his private nightmare began. Commission Director Betty Heitman, who had hired Hamel, was indignant her underling went over her head. Soon Hamel found himself suspended on charges he used profanity and suggestive language about female employees. Last November he was fired.

However, even investigators for the Office of Personnel Management have confirmed some of Hamel's complaints and recommended that his dismissal be revensed. Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., who plans to hold hearings on June 10, has championed Hamel's cause and even chaired a hearing on the issue.

No one from the commission would respond to repeated phone calls from our associate Melinda Maas.

The story of these units and their war service is told in a series of displays and monuments here in the Camp Blanding Museum and Memorial Park of the Second World War, which opened last November.

A Memorial Day ceremony to honor those who lost their lives in all wars is planned for 3 p.m. on May 27. State Rep. Chance Irvine, R-Orange Park, is the keynote speaker.

Although the museum is frequented by scout, church and school groups, many who visit are World War II veterans who trained under the sweltering hot Florida sun and biting North Florida winters at Blanding.

"I personally have a feeling that some of them, maybe in the back of their mind ... felt like that had been forgotten." Hall said.

Hall and Bloodworth. both retired, are the moving force behind the museum and memorial park on 13 acres at the Camp Blanding main gate.

The museum traces the history of Camp Blanding from its infancy in 1939 through the end of World War II with photographs, documents, maps. weapons, uniforms, cartoons. The St. Augustine cemetery is on land that once belonged to a Spanish convent. It later was the site of military barracks built under English rule that subsequently housed Spanish and American troops. The U.S. Army set aside land for a cemetery at St. Francis Barracks and the first interment took place in 1828.

KENNEBUNKPORT. Maine - President Bush won't have long to savor his hard-fought congressional victory on streamlined trade negotiating powers. Now comes the hard part, and officials say Bush's goal of a unified North American market is years away. The president's decision to consult with Congress every step of the way - one of the concessions the administration had to make to win Democratic support - could further slow down an inherently slow process, some sides matters.

The 1989 U.S.-Canadian free-trade agreement, often held up as a model, took three years of difficult riegotistions. And it didn't undergo nearly as intensive congressional scrutiny in the early stages as has the fledging U.S.-Mexican free-trade effort.

"It won't be quick and it won't be easy," said presidential spokesman Martin Pitswater, who is accompanying Bush as the president enjoys an extended Memorial Day weekend at his oceanaide home.

The Senate's 50-36 vote on Friday completed congressional action to give Bush special "fast track" trade negotiating authority for another two years.

This streamlined authority allows him to

Lakers one win from finals

INGLEWOOD. Calif. - A.C. Green warmed the bench in the first two games of the Western Conference finals. When he got opportunities in Games 3 and 4, it was the Los Angeles Lakers who reaped the benefits.

"I thought A.C. was the difference over the last two games." Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said after his team overpowered the Blazers 116-95 Sunday to move within one victory of reaching the NBA Finals for the ninth time in 12 ycars.

Green played only 10 minutes in Game 1 and three minutes in Game 2. In Game 3, he had nine points and nine rebounds in 26 minutes, and on Sunday he had 16 points and seven rebounds in 28 minutes.

The Lakers lead the Blazers 3-1 in the best-of-7 Western Conference finals and can win the series Tuesday night in Portland.

Green wasn't the only Laker who was much more effective in the third and fourth games than he was in Games 1 and 2. There was also Vlade Divac.

Divac had 20 points, four rebounds and three blocked shots despite sitting out the fourth quarter in Game 4.

Magic Johnson had 22 points, nine rebounds and nine assists to lead the Lakers. James Worthy added 18 points, Byron Scott had 13 and Sam Perkins 12 for Los Angeles.

Jerome Kerney led the Blazers with 25 points. Walter Davis and Clyde Drexler added 14 each. Terry Porter was held to 10 points but added a game-high 10 assists, and Buck Williams had 10 points and eight rebounds for Portland.

Taking the day off

Three-day weekends are hazardous to your health

I know you won't listen to me, but don't do it.

You won't listen to your parents or spouses, but don't do It. Today, Memorial Day, is one of the most hallowed of American non-religious holidays. It also creates one of several three-day weekends enjoyed by Americans.

And abused by weekend warriors. You know as well as I that we're no good on our own with 48 hours to ourselves. Add another 24 to that and we'll find some other fool way to fold, spindle or otherwise mutilate our bodies in the name of having a good time. Don't do it.

You'll get out there and throw a few burgers or holdogs or chicken or ribs on the grill, open a few cold ones and start enjoying the holiday afternoon.

But will you be satisfied with watching the baseball tripleheader on ESPN? Will the Chicago Bulls-Detroit Pistons playoff game be enough to satisfy that Basketball Jones?

You know the answer. Don't do it.

An easy game of catch becomes a full-blown softball game. A simple game of Horse escalates into a cul-throat three-on-three clash for world domination. A friendly volleyball game turns into fullcontact "Who's teeth are these?" jungle ball.

It'll be ugly. You won't be dressed for it (if you are, that's evidence that the activity is premeditated and will extend the amount of time you spend in somebody's doghouse for turning yet another friendly get-together into an exercise in bloodletting), so you'll ruin some good clothes.

Your body won't be prepared for II lit was going to be just a quiet afternoon, remember?), so you'll pull any combination of the several hundred muscles that cover our skeleton. If you're lucky, bones, ligaments and tendons will stay intact.

Don't do it.

But that won't be the worst of it. You can take the humiliation of once again of getting beat by your kids in a Parents vs. Children showdown. You'll survive the cold shoulder you so richly deserve from your spouse for letting yourself get carried away (or carried off) one more time.

The piper will be paid tomorrow. Yes, tomorrow morning, when it's time to go back to work, when the combination of too much sun, too much food, too much drink and way, way too much physical exertion takes its toll.

It's worse than Mondays following 220-yard sprinter for, Seminole before he went on to attend and compete for Auburn University. Since then, he has competed in meets around the United States and out of the country.

Seminole High School coach Ken Brauman accepted the award for Campbell, who was unable to attend the meet.

The only Seminole County athlete who came away with a victory this year was Oviedo High School's Wendy Peters, who won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 2 inches. Peters was second in the high jump at the Class 4A state track meet on May 11 with a jump of 5 feet, 4 inches. She cleared 5 feet, 6 inches at the state heptathlon last weekend.

Another local athlete who continued to excel at the end of the high school track season was Lyman High School junior Janet Greenberg, who won the bronze medal in the 3.200-meter run. Greenberg was the runner-up in that event at the Class 4A state track meet on May 11.

This time, she ran an 11:50, adding 32 seconds to the 11:18 time she ran in the state meet. Ktanah Bresnick. Greenberg's teammate at Lyman, was sixth in 12:12.

"I ran my worst time of the season but still got third." Greenberg said, adding, "We didn't know what to expect coming in."

a bad Saturday of banging heads. At least you've had Sunday to ice down and soak in the tub. You've at least had time to learn how to walk without a noticeable limp. Most of the swelling should have gone down (If not, see a doctor right away).

But the Tuesdays following a Monday-celebrated holiday are a weekend warrior's nightmare. There's no time to recuperate, no time to heal. And on top of the injuries, you'll be so stiff you could audition for the role as the Tin Man in a community theater version of "The Wizard of Oz."

Don't do lt.

INTERPORTED BALLED DESCRIPTION OF THE PARTY NEWS

If the kids come up and want you to throw them some passes with a football, thank them kindly and shoo them away. If somebody wants to shoot a little hoop, suddenly look over your shoulder and say. "Coming, dear." before telling your temptor "Maybe later."

Make up excuses, make up injuries if you have to. Don't doit.

You'll pay for it tomorrow.

INDIANAPOLIS - All the days

Rick Mears spent shaping his car final sonic blast of speed.

After the crackups and blowouts were cleared off the track, after A.J. Foyt limped away from his final ride and Willy T. Ribbs made his historic first start, the 75th Indy came down to a classic 220 mph duel between Mears and Michael Andretti.

This was as close as Indy gets to hide-from-the-cops weekend drag races on the edge of town. But Mears is getting used to Memorial Day thrillers.

He won this one by 3.1 seconds, his narrowest margin of victory and the fifth closest in Indy history. He lost two others by less - .16 seconds to Gordon Johncock in 1982 and 1.88 seconds when he finished third to Bobby Rahal in 1986. This time Mears raced only slightly less cautiously until the end to join Foyt and Al Unser as four-time Indy winners with the second fastest average speed ever - 176.460 mph. Arie Luyendyk won last year at darted daringly past Andretti on the outside as the crowd of 400,000 roared at the move. Means pulled away steadily for the next few laps, turning in speeds of 217 mph, but was forced to give up much of the advantage when Andretti's father. Mario, stalled out nine laps from the end. When the pace car took the 10 staggered survivors of the 33-car field to the green flag on the 196th lap - one more was in the pits - Mears gunned his Chevy for all it was worth and left Andretti as if he were waiting at a stoplight.

Luyendyk was third, a lap down, followed by Al Unser Jr., John Andretti - Mario's nephew - and Gordon Johncock, who started last and almost didn't race because of the flu. Mario Andretti finished seventh.

Allison rules Coke 600

Allison remembered that Murphy's Law had caught him here when he least needed the trouble.

"I've led this race in the last 50 laps a number of times and had some things go wrong." he said. "In 1967, we were leading the race with 45 laps to go and the motor let go. In 1966, we led that race in the closing stages and put on a bad set of tires. I'm just glad things are different now.'

Ken Schrader finished second with Dale Earnhardt third. followed by Harry Gant and Dale Jarrett. Rounding out the top 10 were Hut Stricklin, Ernie Irvan. Darrell Waltrip, Ricky Rudd and Terry Labonte.

Allison was almost monotonous in the way he carned the victory. He'd drive his car into the pits, and on those times when he didn't get out first, he'd bide his time in the midst of the pack, then blast by anyone in his way until he was out in front.

it may seem odd to have as article in the spring about poinsettias. But the care that you give your poinsettia now may effect how it looks around the holidays.

Poinscities are growing rapidly at this time of year. A compact plant with lots of blooms may be obtained for the holidays rather than a tail, leggy one with few blooms, by pruning several times during the summer. The new growth should be cut back when it reaches 10 to 12 inches long. Leave 4 leaves on each long. Leave 4 leaves on each shoot. This will cause the plant to branch out, doubling your number of shoots. Repeat the pruning every time the new growth reaches 10 to 12 inches. Each time you prune, you will double your number of shoots and potential flowers and produce a nice compact plant rather than a leggy one. However, stop pruning around the beginning of September. Pruning after early September may interfere with flowering, as poinsetties start to initiate flowering around the first week of October.

Did you have a poincettin near the house or on the front lawn that didn't bloom hat year when all the others in the neighborhood were in full bioom? The explanation for this problem lies in day length which is what causes poincettias to initiate flowering. As the days become short in the fail, poincettias set their flower buds around the beginning of October naturally. Any interference by artificial light will extend the natural shorter day length and prevent the poinsettin from initiating lowering. This condition frequestly occurs when poinsetties are grown near a street light or spotlights in the yard. Even light from a window or door is afficient to prevent or delay insure blooms, place the and a set of the set o it each morning to start flowering. Point ettine should be fertilized about three times per year --when growth starts in spring, again in June and a fall applica-tion in October or early Novemtion in October or early Novem-ber. The fail application pro-motes larger bracts (flowers) with richer color and aids in root growth during the winter. Oc-casionally, a fourth application may be needed in mid-summer if heavy rains occur frquently. Use a 6-6-6 or similar fertilizer that han at least 80% of its nirrogen in an organic form and one that Pointettine are subject to both insect and disease problems during the summer. Check for spider miles, sphids or whitefiles and apply an insecticidal scorp if they occur. A fungue discuss called acab will cause leaf dis-tertions in the fail and must be controlled preventively with applications of a copper fangicide starting in spring. For more information about poinsettia culture, call or drop by the Agriculture Center for our free fact about.

Widow wants to know why man drags his feet

62-year-old widow. just retired from my teaching job. 1 am seeing a 60-year-old widower. At first I felt fortunate to have found someone so kind, gentle and honest. He talks of marriage, but there is always something to delay it. First he needed foot surgery, then he had a respiratory problem, then heart problems. He claims he wants to marry me, but there always seems to be something standing in the way. Mind you. I am not pressuring him. As a matter of fact, I'm having second thoughts about it mynelf. Of course, we'd have a prenuptial agreement, but why should I marry him to be his nurse in his old age? He's a lousy lover, and he as much as told me he doesn't care for sex. MUTUALLY COMPATIBLE DEAR COMPATIBLE: Why marry? Why don't you two compatible people just shake hands and continue to be close friends?

DEAR ABBY: I was so infuriated by the letter from the who couldn't stand having workmen using her bathroom facilities, that I had to cool off for a couple of weeks before I could even respond.

My husband is a carpenter. His work clothes may be stained (they get that way in his business), but they are clean. He showers every night to wash off the dirt - sometimes filth - he gets while he works.

One cannot be stupid and be a good carpenter, plumber or electrician. If he's self-employed, as my husband is, he must also be a good businessman. He works hard without such benefits as company-provided health insurance, paid vacations and pension plans. If he's in-jured on the job, we'd better woman (I won't call her a lady) have money in the bank to live on because the state doesn't have workmen's compensation for us. And if business is slow, he can't file for unemployment. These are some of the reasons why good carpenters, cabinetmakers, plumbers, etc., are becoming an endangered species.

> People like her are usually very grateful to have a workman show up when they have a problem - sometimes in the bathroom she's so stingy with. Maybe somebody should remind her that Jesus was a carpenter. Would she begrudge him the use of her facilities?

FURIOUS IN FORT WAYNE DEAR FURIOUS: Well said. lady. Very well said.

make it, the opponents might misjudge, taking a phantom sacrifice.

At other times, it pays to pass. You sit back and listen to what the other players have to say, hoping to be able to judge later how high to bid.

Look at today's North hand. What would you bid over West's takeout double, which promises spades?

The deal occurred in the Vanderbilt Knockout Teams held in Atlantic City last March. At one table, South overcalled one spade and North blasted all the way to five diamonds. This was one level too high, declarer losing two major-suit aces and a trump trick.

immediately). When West made a thinner-than-thin negative double, North (Glenn Eisenstein of New York) decided to pass and await developments. He is still waiting - East and South passed also.

However, the story had a happy ending. West led a heart, East winning with the ace and returning the club two. The declarer, Margie Gwozdzinsky of New York, finessed the eight successfully, led a heart to dummy, cashed the diamond ace (discarding a spade), ruffed a diamond, threw dummy's spade on her heart jack, trumped a spade in dummy and led a winning diamond, which was ruffed and overruffed. Declarer

Don't be hasty in writing off situations that start out on a sour note in the year ahead. Interesting twists could be in the offing that will enable you to come out a winner, instead of an "also ran." GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Because you were considerate enough to look out for another's interests recently, this individual will make every effort today to ensure that yours are protected. too. It pays to be thoughtful. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. CANCER (June 21-July 22) By dealing with people who possess a traditional outlook rather than with those who are too avant-garde, your rewards could be more gratifying today.

ANNIE

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might get involved in a devel-opment today where you will skillfully turn a negative situation into a positive one. The tactics you'll use will engender respect from observers. \

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your possibilities for achieving difficult objectives should be better than usual over the next few days. This is the time to focus on meaningful goals. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should have an easy row to hoe today - if you deal with subordinates in a thoughtful manner. When their willingness to assist is aroused, you'll receive the help you need to further your purposes. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is the right day to move ahead on something you've thoroughly explored. If you're certain your premise is sound, take the next step. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) If you and your mate share a major objective today, your probabilities for achieving it are excellent. The secret is to work in the closest harmony possible.
