RALLY IN NINTH GIVES CELERYMEN VICTORY

TWO RUN LEAD OVERCOME TO DEFEAT SAINTS

Lee Crowe Brings Tying Tallies Across And Myers Hits To Send In Last Run

Hawkins, Fergus In Pitching Duel

Frisbie And Pug Allen Furnish The Fielding Features Of Day

Going into the last of the ninth two runs to the bad and with Jack Hawkins sailing along in big time style on the opposition slab, Lee Crowe and his league leading celerymen yesterday decided that the time was opportune for a trio of runs—and they went out and got them.

It was like this: Rip Dunbar pried open the inning with a single past third. A moment later he was forced at second by Frisbie. Hoke Beasley worked Hawkins for a free ticket to first and the stands went wild. Pug Allen grounded out to Wickham but the two runners advanced and when Lee Crowe popped a single back of third which three Saints tried for and missed, Frisbie and Beasley crossed the plate and the score was tied. Crowe went to second on the throw home. Bill Meyers, from the "show me" state, shook the snow from his boots, ambled to the plate and slapped a scorching single past Hawkins and into the center garden. Crowe succeeded and the fans went home after one big round of delirious cheering. It was easily the most exciting windup witnessed in Sanford this year.

Throughout the game, which was threatened by rain from the fifth inning on, the celery seemed a hopeless one; for the Champions, they were unable to nick the offerings of Hawkins with any degree of success.

Bill Fergus, working a good game for Sanford, and incidentally his second victory of the week, was touched for a pair of safeties and one run in the sixth for the first score of the game.

Going into the ninth, the Saints grabbed off another counter on a hit and an error and it looked bad for the aspirations of the Celerymen.

There was little to get excited about in the early innings of this game. Fergus and his mound opponent were both working in great style. The fielding of Frisbie at short and the fly chasing antics of Rip Dunbar and Pug Allen deserve honorable mention.

The hustling Sarasota Tarpons come here for a three-game series on Monday.

EXTRA BASE HITS FEATURE TARPON TO WIN FROM COLTS

Jones Pitches Shutout Ball As Sarasota Takes Second Straight From Well's Men; Viau Plays Excellent Game

SARASOTA, Fla., July 5.—Jonca pitched splendid ball on the mound for Sarasota here and Orlando dropped its second straight game to the Tarpons, 5 to 0. Jones allowed seven hits and did not walk a man. Abrams was the only Colt to reach second and he was given a life there when Hornick failed to touch that bag on a fore-runner. The local hurler collected a single and triple at the bat. The game was played in one hour and 20 minutes, which time is believed to be near the league record. Viau's fielding at short for Orlando was a failure. Four Tarpons drove out triples. Score:

Buckley and Edwards led on their batting togs, the former getting four hits in five times at bat, and the latter three in three official at-bats. One home run, Hinkle Miami's best pitcher, also smacked out a home run. ### SHARKEY THINKS JACK WILL LAST ABOUT 5 ROUNDS

Boston Fighter Says He Will Tire Out Former Champion And Then Knock Him Out In Picture Of Confidence

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, July 5.—Generous by nature, Jack Sharkey suddenly discovered today that he never had his boy friend, William Henry Dempsey, anything as a token of his esteem, so he made all haste to give Dempsey not more than five rounds to remain with the situation on the night of July 21. Our Mr. Sharkey was in his customary good voice.

He let it be inferred that the spirit of giving would not be confined to this single gesture. Indeed, no. After the fifth round, it seems, he will give Dempsey a slap on the side curtains and then graciously notify the nearest kin.

"Let him punch this Polack around for four or five rounds and he will be through," said the man of few words, the first few thumps and being the hardest. "I told Dempsey I could beat him when he was champion last year. Nothing has happened in the meantime to make me change my mind. He wanted me to be his sparring partner for the Tunney fight and explained that I could learn something from working with the good ones."

"I asked him if he thought he was good enough to lick me. He seemed surprised and, while his mouth was open, I told him I could lick him any time."

For some reason, this remark seemed to end the negotiations with very little accomplished or settled. Anyhow, it is a matter of record that Dempsey still is looking for sparring partners and Sharkey still is around maintaining that he can lick the young man.

"He'll tire and I'll finish him after he finds that he can't lay me out with a haymaker," the boy orator added. "But I'll lay odds that they don't give me any credit for it. They'll say Dempsey was

DEMPSEY MAKES PUNCHING BAGS OF HIS PARTNERS

Jack Lands Eleven Left Hooks And Nine Take Effect With Four Mates Being Koyed; Jack's Trainer Is Jubilant

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 5.—"And now, children," said Leo Penochie Flynn, to the assembled class of sport writers, "Can any of you tell me how many left hooks Jack Dempsey actually left loose for human jawbones since last Sunday?"

"Yes," replied one, "he has un-corked 11."

"And who can tell me what happened when he let 'em loose—I mean those 11 since Sunday?"

"I can tell," spoke up the "bright child" thumping the pages of a note book. "One hit Marty Burke and dropped him to his knees. Two hit Eddie McMullen and knocked him cold, and out of the ring. Two hit Italian Jack Herman and they had to lift Herman out of the ring. Two others hit Pietro Corri and they lifted him out of the ring. Two hit Jack Hilderbrand and he was assisted from the ring. I have no record of what happened to the other pair, so I guess they missed."

"Correct, most eminently correct," beamed Leo. "Eleven left hooks, two of which missed and the rest resulted in knock downs or knockouts. I guess that's something to write the home folks about, is it not?"

Before any answer could be made, Leo Penochie added:

"This left hooking that the big fellow has been doing has been really against my orders. I've been requesting him to keep it parked away in campher balls until he meets up with this Sharkey fellow. And I know Jack has tried not to use it. But every so often he forgets his cue and it slips out—and you have seen what it can do."

"Dempsey's left hook is the same old murderous weapon that it was in the earlier years—except that I think it's a bit better. I've been drumming it into him

Attired in a military jacket and waving a white baton, a woman recently stepped in the center of a crowded Paris boulevard, ordering all vehicles to stop immediately. ### TUNNEY OFFERS NO PREDICTION ON BIG BATTLE

Champion Hopes Best Fighter Will Win And That He Does It In Spectacular Fashion

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 5.—(INS)—Gene Tunney today balked at making any prediction of the outcome of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

"I've fought Dempsey and I have seen Sharkey in action," he declared. "Both these things convince me that Dempsey is essentially a slugger and that Sharkey is a boxer. Dempsey may be a bit old and weatherbeaten by the years—but I figure that he still can hit hard enough to come off as the consistent any man who happens to get one of his shots on the vulnerable spot."

"Sharkey is a splendid boxer; seemingly a keen and crafty fellow with plenty of speed and cleverness. If he makes the weight of Dempsey's war, stem the Dempsey rushes and save himself from being hit—well then I'll say that if the affair resolved itself into a boxing battle, Sharkey would have a great chance of winning."

"It is quite immaterial to me which man wins," Tunney hoped. "The better one triumphs and that he does so in spectacular fashion. Then there will be no further debate over the point that I am going to fight the best man in the world when I go to battle in September."

Tunney declared he would be one of the customers at the ringside when Sharkey and Dempsey prepared to throw nasty looks and nasty hooks at each other.

I said, I will write it today, I will call it "A Song Before Spring." I will tell of faint clouds As bright and as dim as a dream, Of the willow wands amber in mist, Of the first little snowy-white lambs;

I said, I will tell. Of the laughter of children— And then I remembered a seam to be stitched In a gay little frivolous frock. A ruffle to net, and a sleeve, She wanted to wear it tonight.

And the poem curled up in my heart Like the tight little frond of a fern, Not a word of it written at all. And the needle and thimble and I Said, What does it matter today? It will surely come out before Spring!

The best bit of sarcasm we have seen this week is in the Lakeland Ledger. It calls Jack Dempsey the celebrated ship builder—Palm Beach Independent. Grantland Rice began calling Jack Dempsey the "celebrated shipbuilder" eight years ago.

Grass Grows In First Street

One of the favorite stories of the Oldest Inhabitation is how the grass used to grow through the bricks in First Street. Long before then, hogs and cows mingled with shoppers and wallowed in the mud puddles. That was about the time people were beginning to use the public bathtubs, at present preserved as historic relics of an interesting past in front of the Seminole Cafe and the Scotch Woolen Mills.

But the people became progressive along about 1902, filled in the old mud puddles and laid a brick street. For a few years the city prospered and business looked up. During the nation-wide slump which preceded the entrance of the United States into the World War, things took a turn for the worse. Business was dead. There were actually so few people on First Street, and so little traffic that grass grew between the bricks.

As time wore on conditions grew better. More and more people came to Sanford. Traffic increased and the wheels of automobiles killed the grass which had advertised our period of depression. Traffic increased to such an extent that new regulations had to be made. Parking was limited to thirty minutes, and First Street was made a through thoroughfare and all cars entering this street were compelled to stop.

No cars were allowed to park at the end of Magnolia and silent policemen were placed at the busy intersections. It was even necessary at times to have regular traffic policemen on duty and there was much talk of installing an elaborate system of "red and green" or "stop and go" lights, such as Orlando and metropolitan cities have. All this was very good in its time.

But now grass grows again in First Street. Right in the middle of the intersection of Magnolia and First, the grass grows tall and luxuriantly. It compares most favorably with the best grown in the good old days and we feel sure if horses still drew wagons, they would stop there to graze with the same gusto that marked their voracious munchings when Bob Holly first began to print The Herald.

This is not due to any lack of traffic or slump in business conditions. We feel sure that with times even as they are, enough wheels roll over First Street to keep the grass from growing. It is due rather to a peculiar phenomenon of our traffic regulations. It is forbidden when entering First Street on Magnolia, to turn to the left. It is also forbidden, when on First Street to turn to the left into Magnolia. Consequently there is a small space there in the middle of the intersection which never feels the pressure of traffic.

Now the Herald does not like to appear superstitious, but we do feel that this evil should be remedied. The grass, of course, does nobody harm. Grass in its place is very beautiful and it might, by chance, even in this day and time, provide some wandering cow with necessary provender. But the darn stuff, right there in First Street gives us the willies. It makes us feel that we are going to the dogs. Let's either turn traffic loose upon it, or drag out the municipal lawn mower.

Florida's Murder Record

The St. Petersburg Independent, in speaking of the murder record in this country and particularly in Florida cities, two of which, Jacksonville and Tampa, lead the list of per capita slayings, says:

"What this country needs is more quick and certain punishment—and less legal technicality and maudlin sentiment in behalf of criminals."

The Independent goes on to say that "in Pinellas county during the last ten years there have been scores of homicides and yet the penalty has not been imposed on any slayer in that time. Many years ago a negro was hanged for a dastardly murder committed near St. Petersburg. That was the last time the death penalty has been imposed for any crime in the county. Two men are now under sentence of death for the coldblooded killing of a policeman in Tarpon Springs, but the date for their execution has been postponed several times and they are yet alive despite the fact that they were originally sentenced about a year ago. The failure to put murders to death, even when the case against them is clear and inexcusable, undoubtedly has a tendency to encourage the taking of life."

A table giving the homicide rate per hundred thousand persons in various cities during 1926 has been compiled by the Spectator, an insurance journal published in New York. According to this tabulation, Jacksonville and Tampa, our two leading Florida cities, were at the top of the list with more killings in proportion to population than any other cities in the country.

This is a situation which we cannot permit to exist for long. Florida is essentially a tourist state, and advertises itself as the "Playground of the World." Without the thousands of tourists which flock here during the winter, there would not be much for Florida to do. Yet tourists will not want to come where their lives will be endangered, or where the homicide rate is the highest.

We do not know the statistics for Seminole County. More than likely they are bad enough, although this has a reputation for being a law-abiding community. We do know, however, that some six months ago a brutal murder was committed. The guilty person confessed, was tried and convicted, but has not yet paid the penalty.

IT IS NOT the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; . . . who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat. —Theodore Roosevelt.

"A FIGHTING NAME"

There was a fight in the streets of Miami a few days ago and one man knocked another down. In falling the victim of the blow hit his head against a stone and an injury was inflicted which caused death. The man who struck the blow must stand trial for murder. "He called me a fighting name," explained the man with the powerful fist, "and I hit him." It is often easier to hit after being called "a fighting name" than it is to retain one's control of his Halemaunau Is Angry. The First Round-Tripper. Cheer For Publishers. 2 Foreigners; 2 Failures. By ARTHUR BRISBANE Copyright 1927 by Star Co.

THE GREAT MOUTH of Halemaunau or "pit of everlasting fire" on the slope of Mount Kilauea, biggest volcano, is spouting fire. Its huge crater eight miles round is filled with boiling lava, a fearful sight, the volcano roaring constantly, fire leaping to the clouds. "I wonder the natives gather, bump their heads on the ground and offer food to pacify the Goddess Pele, supposed to be angry because Dr. Jagger, great earthquake authority, has left for a visit to Alaska."

You smile at the simple natives, yet not so long ago, the wisest Christians rang their church bells and prayed violently to drive away an invading comet.

CHARLES LEVINE, who financed Chamberlain's flight to Europe, and flew with him, plans to fly back. He says, "I want to do something first," and will be the first "round-tripper" in trans-Atlantic flying.

Mr. Levine, who is a Jew, knows that some of his predecessors of Semitic blood, the ancient Phoenicians, "did something first" in many directions. They first dared to take a sailing ship out of sight of land. There was no compass then, and they were first to sail from the calm Mediterranean through the Straits of Gibraltar into the wild Atlantic and on to the tin mines of England.

DOING THINGS "FIRST" is not new with people of Semitic blood. There was a good deal of it in Christopher Columbus, who made one important "first" trip.

THE GIANT FOKKER flying machine ordered by W. R. Hearst will have an interesting baptism. Bertand will fly the Hearst machine from New York to Rome, Monday, and Mr. Hearst has invited Captain Hartley, of the steamship Leviathan, to act as navigator on the trip.

Bertand will start as soon as the big machine is ready. It will have a wing spread of 61 feet, a wing surface of 630 square feet, weight loaded, 12,000 pounds, and, instead of three 250-horsepower engines, originally ordered, Bertand prefers one big engine to three smaller for a long flight.

GENERAL PATRICK, head of the army air corps, says, flying is getting safer all the time, and in 10 years will be the safest kind of travel.

Gernany's Great Flying Company, the Luftbahn, carried 33,000 passengers through the air in 1926, with an average of 7,000 passengers per month—not including great quantities of newspapers sent by special planes. The Luftbahn will operate in 18 European countries this year.

CHAIN STORE SALES reach a new record. Twelve leading companies did $314,582,067 business in the first six months of this year. Child's restaurant sold nearly $3,000,000 worth of food last month.

BUSINESS MEN AND newspaper publishers will notice that chain stores enable advertisers to get fullest value for their money. Within ten years department branches sent out by the "mother store." When John Wanamaker first put carpet on the floor of his store he said to those who were amazed, "It always pays to make the customer comfortable."

Stores in each big section of a city, with one "mother store" in the center, will be the next step, and deserving publishers will be cheered by advertising increasing rapidly.

MISS CONSTANCE Talmadge, excellent moving picture actress, requesting a divorce from her husband. "He is the nicest man, but I am out of love."

"Out of love" is modern, typical of our day. Strict logic might confirm the view that if you marry when "in love" you should unmarry when "out of love." There are other considerations, however, that still influence many.

Twice Miss Talmadge has married a man foreign born. Perhaps the third attempt will include an American and permanent bliss.

MR. COOLIDGE HAS decided that this country and not our good friends in Great Britain shall decide the character of Uncle Sam's battle fleet. That sounds reasonable, in spite of the fact that steel fighting ships floating on the water are only interesting targets for submarines and airplanes. Useful out-of-date, the number and size of our ships should be decided in this country.

BANK CLEARINGS in New York City alone for last week, exceeded the clearings of last year by more than a thousand million dollars. Business is good, nothing to frighten anybody except "nervous prosperity."

FOUR THOUSAND BARRELS, 128,000 gallons of excellent Feigenspan ale are sent to Mr. Heinz's pickle company in Pittsburgh to be changed into first class malt vinegar. Metaphorically at least 4,000 barrels of salt tears will be shed by thirsty gentlemen reading that.

LIVES AGAINST ORDERS

There is master for a whom history of morals in the shocking picture of three boys drifting to their death off Sing Sing, in full sight of hundreds of able-bodied rescuers held back by the rifles of the prison guards because such were the rules. It is so important to society to keep a criminal in prison that three youths should be allowed to drown rather than risk the chance of an escape? Were not the guards, who threatened to shoot any one attempting a rescue, in effect guilty of murder, and so worse criminals than any whom they were restraining? But the guards, who were obeying strict rules backed up by the recent memory of an attempted jail-break through a plot to simulate just such a situation, were merely performing the duty which they were sworn to perform. Were not the regulations too rigid? But the extreme unlikelihood of this particular emergency arising, together with the obvious wisdom of the regulation under all ordinary circumstances, make it difficult to blame the prison administration for having such a rule in force.

jump the fence, the rest held back, and the rescuers easily kept within range of the guns. But in the excitement there might be a general jail delivery. The drowning might be an other "fake". The guards might lose their jobs and livelihood for the violation of orders. The boys might be pulled out some other way. What happened was that one guard ran for a non-existent boat, another sought to notify the Warden and get authority, some one else summoned the Ossining police—and three lives were lost. It is the old, old story, constantly repeated wherever rules must be laid down and emergencies, which no rules will ever exactly fit, may arise. The morally courageous man violates the order and relies on the event to justify him; the unencourageous man obeys the order, makes sure of his justification and forfeits the respect of others.

Captain Smith of the U. S. S. Nautilus, as he opened fire at Nanking, that he would get either a court martial or a medal for it. That remark should be blazoned in every office, workshop and institution of the land. It is the willingness to accept the obloquy without complaint, should it come, that makes the reward worth having. The prison guards were right; but they were not admirable.

IRISH LEADER ASSASSINATED BY 3 ENEMIES

(Continued from page one) Ination in the morning papers today said that five men were involved. The motor car which they occupied had been stolen on Saturday night near Dublin.

Two of the men acted as "look-out" while the other three did the actual shooting.

After he had been shot O'Higgins ran across the roadway and fell upon the sidewalk. The three men who had shot him turned away assuming he was dead. O'Higgins raised his hand slightly and the three murderers ran back and fired another shot into his body to make sure of death. Then they reentered their stolen automobile and sped away. Later the car was abandoned and the police recovered it.

Gen. O'Duffy, Commander of the Irish Civic Guard, had the last interview with O'Higgins before his death. O'Higgins' last words to O'Duffy were:

"I am dying, Good-by. We have done good work in the past. I hope it is continued on the same lines in the future."

"I forgive my murderers."

O'Higgins then directed that a message be sent to his wife.

The adjutant general of the Irish Republican Army issued a statement declaring that the army council and general headquarters have no knowledge of the O'Higgins assassination and repudiate any intimations that the republican organization may have been responsible.

"We feel certain that the responsibility when traced home will not involve any of our volunteers," said the statement.

Fears has been expressed in London that the O'Higgins assassination may lead to new and widespread outbreaks of political violence in the Irish Free State unless the Cosgrave government adopts a strong policy.

The Daily News editorially admits today the possibility of disaster stating that "in a country like Ireland the real danger is lest an episode of this kind should suddenly re-ignite the fires of civil war."

The news expresses the hope that public opinion will range itself boldly on the side of law and order. Asserting that "the curse of lawlessness" still clings to the Irish Free State. The Morning Post, which opposed the creation of the Free State, declares there are "intricate and subterranean connections between crime and the new politics of Ireland." This paper declares that the Free State never has succeeded in divorcing itself "from the criminal organization by which it was established. Whether this new and horrible crime will do the dangerous, but necessary work remains to be seen."

The Daily Mail, pointing out that the Cosgrave government lacks a majority in the dail, says that O'Higgins' violent death will further complicate the political situation. It declares that O'Higgins was a power in the government "with a firm relentless mind" and "now that he is removed the political situation in the Free State is more than dark. It is stormy."

POLICE FEAR 3RD WOMAN IS VICTIM OF AX MURDERER

(Continued From Page One) found Saturday morning in Battery Park, Manhattan. Police cannot reconcile themselves to the belief that robbery was the only motive for the brutal slaying. The bodies of the women had been terribly mutilated, hacked and torn into several pieces with axes and saws. The weapons with which the murders were committed were found in the basement of the home where Mrs. Brownall lived.

Lee, who is a Norwegian, was employed by Mrs. Brownall as janitor. He knew Mrs. Bennett as a police declare, for it was Mrs. Bennett that the other woman purchased recently the house in which she lived and kept boarders. He identified the pieced together bodies of the two women.

Lee is formally charged with homicide. Two other men are held as material witnesses.

Fear that two other women may have met a fate similar to that of Mrs. Brownall and Mrs. Bennett, arose this afternoon when two other was the discovery of the head of a woman about 30 years of age in the yards of the B. M. T. subway in Brooklyn some distance from the scene of the crime. Mrs. Bennett's head has not been recovered but she was a woman 45 years of age and the discovery of the younger woman's head led police to believe that another brutal murder and dismemberment had occurred.

Walker Funeral Is Held On Saturday

The funeral of David E. Walker, Volusia county constable, who was murdered at Osteen Friday, was held from the Miller-Ericson Funeral Home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. F. D. King, Pastor of the Baptist Church, was in charge of the services, both at the home and at the cemetery. Mrs. A. M. Phillips rendered two solos. The body was laid to rest beside that of Mr. Walker's son in the Lakeview Cemetery.

Mr. Walker was murdered while attempting to search an auto for liquor. Mr. Walker in well known in Sanford having served for some time as a patrolman on the Sanford police force. He is survived by a wife and six children who reside at Osteen, his father and four brothers and four sisters.

Franchise Action Is Delayed By City To October Meet

(Continued from Page One) ment that the citizens were not acquainted with the matter and that in taking action, the Commission would be placed in a position for criticism. He expressed his opposition to taking action, although he said he was personally in favor of giving the Florida Power and Light Company a definite answer today.

E. A. Douglass and S. O. Shinhober both favored deferring action, each declaring that the people should be given more time in which to make a study of the proposition, which they termed of vital importance.

Joe H. Gill vice president of the Florida Power and Light Company explained that a new franchise was requested in order that his company might be able to finance its improvement program here. He pointed out that rate reduction was given Sanford two years ago on the basis of a new franchise and that extensive improvements had been made here in anticipation of a renewal of the franchise as soon as conditions warranted it.

Mr. Gill agreed to mail a copy of the advertisement appearing in The Herald, to every consumer in Sanford, as part of a program to bring the matter before the citizens.

GOVERNMENT HAS ACADEMIC VIEWS ONLY ON KISSING

Administration Officials Are Believed To Find No Bars For Gov. Ritchie's Charge That U. S. Regulates Kissing

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(IN S)—The federal government's interest in kissing is purely academic. That in short is the reply of official Washington to charges by Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, before the Indiana Bar Association, that government bureaucracy mannerisms and customs.

Addressing the Hoosier Barriers at French Lick, Governor Ritchie, cited an agricultural pamphlet entitled "A Vest Pocket Essay on Kissing," as evidence supporting his contention that the interests of government in the United States have reached far beyond their legitimate field.

"The government is no longer the creature and protector of our individual rights, but is rapidly becoming the dictator of them," Governor Ritchie said. "The citizen is told what he may see on the stage, what books he may read, what he may drink, what to cook for Christmas dinner, and not two months ago the Department of Agriculture distributed throughout the country a vest pocket essay on kissing."

The Department of Agricultural officials were startled by the revelation. The mounting card indexes of the publications division produce nothing closer than a Bureau of Entomology pamphlet in 1900 entitled, "Insects Known As the Kissing Bug."

At the Library of Congress, the venerable kissing classic, Marius Baisson's "Universal Anthology of Kissing," bore no record of the department's exhaustive interest in rural home life. Neither did the millions of cards in the files of the government printing office offer a clue. The files which are reputed to contain a record of every government publication for more than a hundred years.

It was with a genuine feeling of relief that the perspiring circle in the administration building received news late in the afternoon that the publication which drew Governor Ritchie's fire had been written and circulated through the University of Maryland.

It was a state mimeographed circular on the ravages of hog cholera written by a state employee as part of a campaign for sanitary pig pens throughout the free state. The kissing article was used at the outset for its interest gripping powers. The piece never was circulated by the federal Department of Agriculture.

According to Pliny, Cato believed that husbands started kissing in order to determine whether their wives and daughters had been drinking wine.

Tapioea is a product of tapioea flour, which comes from the root of the cassava, a tropical plant similar to our sweet potato plant. Most of our supply is imported from Java.

Woodbridge, Suffolk, is the home of a unique water mill which, although nine miles inland, obtains all its power from the tides of the River Deben. Rental records show that a mill, probably this water mill, was standing on the same spot 740 years ago.

In early Saxon marriages the father of the bride delivered one of her shoes to the bridegroom, who touched her head with it as a symbol of his authority. Today only the idea of luck is associated with throwing shoes at both bride and groom.

Commercial frauds cost manufacturers and wholesale firms more than one thousand dollars a minute for each business day. These frauds consist of obtaining credit on false statements of assets, of concealing assets from creditors or referees in bankruptcy, and of other misrepresentations.

First Picture of Illinois Gang Leader on Trial

What Is Ice Cream

On February 27th, Congress passed a new District of Columbia milk, cream and ice cream bill. The paragraph relating to ice cream is as follows:

"Ice cream means the frozen products or mixture made from pasteurized cream, milk, or products of milk sweetened with sugar, to which has been added pure, wholesome food gellanin, vegetable gum, or other wholesome stabilizer with or without wholesome flavoring extracts, fruits, nuts, cocoa, chocolate, eggs, cake, candy, or confections, and which contains not less than 8 per centum, by weight of milk (butter) fat, and not less than 10 per cent solids not fat."

Our ice cream is made and standardized to have the following average composition: 12 percent milk fat, 10 percent milk solid not fat, and 14.5 percent sugar, thus making it far above the requirements of the National Law and most State Laws.

We suggest that you read Professor Walter H. Eddy's article on the food value of ice cream in this month's issue of "Pictorial Review."

Ice cream, like most other food products, should be bought for quality, not price.
