One Campaigner Declines All Funds

Commission Candidates Vie For Contributions

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

District Three contenders Martha Yancey and A.A. McClanahan are neck in neck as top contribution collectors in the 13 candidate race for two Sanford City Commission spots.

With all candidates campaigning in high gear for the Dec. 2 election, Mrs. Yancey has netted $2,120 in contributions, McClanahan, $1,900.

McClanahan has, however, received the highest contribution from a private donor, $300 from Wendell Agee. His District Three opponent, A.B.

"Bart" Peterson, has noted the smallest, 41 cents. District Four candidate Dot Waller is declining all contributions. She's loaned her campaign $580, of which $422.94 has been spent.

The candidates' financial information is noted on disclosure forms each filed at Sanford City Hall as of Nov. 14. The candidates must submit another report by Dec. 1, and a final disclosure by March 2.

With 13 candidates vying for two commission seats, run-offs in the Dec. 2 election are already set for Dec. 16. A run-off is held in each district between the top two vote getters, when one candidate fails to receive more than 50 percent of the vote. District Three voting will be held at the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, 2315 Park Ave.; and District Four voting at Sanford Fire Station #2, 3770 Orlando Drive. Polling in both districts is from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

To varying degrees, all 13 candidates have loaned funds to their own campaigns, although all but Mrs. Waller are also accepting outside assistance. District Four candidate Whitey Eckstein notes a $200 loan as his sole contribution as of Nov. 14, but says he has since received about $700 in contributions he'll include in his next disclosure report.

Four challengers seek to unseat District Three Commissioner Milton Smith, 67, 885 E. 20th Street. They are McClanahan, 61, 409 Editha Circle; Mrs. Yancey, 64, 2100 Cordova Drive; Peterson, 31, 420 S. Virginia Ave.; and Eddie Keith, 69, 205 E. 18th Street.

Lake Mary Approves Skyscrapers

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

While a request to amend the Comprehensive Plan to accommodate a developer was denied, the Lake Mary City Commission did approve a request to allow the erection of the three tallest buildings in the city; they will be the new Oxford Executive Park, an office complex abutting Interstate-4.

Meeting until after 1 a.m., the commission approved a request from Oxford Development Enterprises, Inc., of Maitland to modify buildings on the property. Instead of conforming to the city's height cap of 35 feet, two office buildings were approved at 85 feet and one at 75 feet. The original request was for two buildings of 100 feet each.

Commissioner Buzz Petros said the project is "appropriate" because it will be so close to I-4 and will have many large trees and 40 percent open space. Normally, only 35 percent open space is required.

City Hall was packed Thursday night when a developer asked for a change in the Comprehensive Plan for higher density to construct 84 Carlton Homes at Country Club Road and Bridge Road. The density allowed without the change would be for 72 homes.

Many residents in the area, most of whom have one-acre lots or larger, were on hand to protest saying the density there should not be increased.

Since the change would require amending the land use plan and since so many people appeared against it — and the P&Z board had recommended unfavorably — the commission turned down the request.

Another developer had asked to annex into Lake Mary to get a Comp Plan change amending use of a Lake Emma Road property at the south end of the city limits (Richland properties) from agricultural to industrial. The developer apparently withdrew this request after learning that Seminole County was unwilling to provide sewer service if Lake Mary annexed it.

State Attorney Claims No Improper Jury Acts

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Preliminary findings of an internal investigation at the Sanford office of the Seminole-Brevard State Attorney indicate the office did not act improperly in handling a complaint about the county's purchase of 2,900 acres of land, said Norman Wolfinger, Seminole-Brevard State Attorney.

At issue is whether an assistant state attorney and possibly an investigator in the Sanford office refused to present to the grand jury accusations that Seminole County purchased 2,900 acres of land — known as Yankee Lake — illegally in November 1985. The county says it has done nothing wrong.

Wolfinger said Thursday that he does not have the final report because the investigator from the Brevard office is on vacation. He said he was not sure when the investigator would be back and the report turned in. Wolfinger did say, however, that from what he knows of the investigation so far no one in the Sanford office acted improperly.

His office was accused by Casselberry developer Grant McEwan and Sanford developer Art Davis of "impeding justice" by not presenting their accusations about the Seminole County Board of Commissioners to the grand jury.

They said the office refused to handle the case because it was during the fall elections and possibly could have been viewed as political ax-grinding. One of the men's wives worked on the campaign of a primary candidate who unsuccessfully tried to unseat a county commissioner. Though the State Attorney's Office reportedly indicated that it shunned the issue because of possible political overtones, the issue and related aspects were reported in the news for almost a year.

Wolfinger said that while his office tries to be accommodating, it is the grand jury that ultimately decides what it shall and shall not consider. And though his office has access to the jury, as do citizens through the jury foreman, he said, his office as policy does not take every such request to the grand jury. It is a policy that prevents his office from being used, he said.

He added, though, that every request in writing that his office has received that falls in the realm of the grand jury has been presented to that body.

Wolfinger said he did not know if the new grand jury, seated Nov. 3, would consider the Yankee Lake controversy, which occupied the former

P&Z Board Discordant On Elderly Issue Put 'On Hold'

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Possible zoning revisions to allow more residential elder care facilities in Sanford were put on hold by the city's Planning and Zoning Board at a frequently discordant meeting Thursday night.

The session brought to the forefront board members' emotions and opinions about the elderly's right to select their living conditions. It brought out differing perspectives of what city commissioners want the board to do regarding the zoning amendments.

It also raised one board member's reservations about the possibility of halfway houses for recovering addicts in Sanford through the relaxing of residential zoning restrictions.

Board member Lon Howell said more than once Thursday night he didn't want zoning considerations for the elderly to open the door to other congregate facilities, such as drug, alcohol and juvenile rehabilitation centers.

"Oh, get your drug rehab and get out of here," board member Eddie Keith said at one point in response to Howell's statements. Keith said the board's concentration should lie with considering whether the elderly "are going to be denied their right to live where they want."

P&Z chairman John Morris attempted to waylay Howell's reservations by saying if revisions were made they could exclude all types of operations except those for elder care.

City commissioners asked the P&Z last month to begin looking into the possibility of zoning revisions to allow more residential elder care facilities in Sanford. Their call came on the heels of controversy that was generated when city representatives told four property owners their elder care operations had to be closed because they violate city zoning code.

The four cited homes are all located in single family residential zones, where elder care operations are prohibited. The Sanford code enforcement board has agreed to freeze all actions against the illegal operations until the P&Z comes back to commissioners with its recommendations.

The motion to conclude considerations Thursday was made by P&Z member Jay Malone. He said the issue was becoming obscured by "emotion," and proposed that the staff come back to the board in two weeks with "facts" that can be applied to board considerations. Malone said the facts will assist the board in determining if the city already has enough areas zoned for elder residential care.

Staff is being asked to see what percentage of Sanford is zoned to allow the elder care facilities and what percentage of the population is more than 55 years of age.

Malone offered his own percentages Thursday night, which staff could neither confirm nor deny them. He said approximately 45 percent of Sanford is zoned to allow the facilities with conditional use permits and that only 18 percent of Sanford's population was over 55. Malone said the figures indicate to him the city "is already providing adequate areas" for elder care facilities.

The point was raised, however, that none of Sanford's single family zones allow the facilities. The lowest density residential areas they're allowed in are multi-family zones.

County Impact Fee Report Delayed

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's transportation impact fee ordinance will probably not be ready for adoption by the county commission on the target date of Dec. 23. The consensus of the impact fee review committee Wednesday evening was that the group, comprised of more than two dozen residents, attorneys, developers and Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida representatives, needs more time to review the draft document, before presenting it to the county local planning agency and Board of County Commissioners for consideration.

The original schedule when the committee began its work a month ago was to have the document ready for a public hearing before the local planning agency by Dec. 17, and the county commission Dec. 23.

"We were given a schedule that was almost impossible to meet," review committee chairman Roger Neiswender told

Linkletter: Banquet, No; Lunch, Maybe

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Vehement opposition from a black Sanford commissioner has prompted the cancelling of plans for Art Linkletter to speak at a Jan. 17 banquet that will culminate the city's week-long Martin Luther King celebration. Linkletter may, however, be coming to Sanford for a King tribute luncheon earlier in the week.

And, while Commissioner Bob Thomas' scathing comments about the selection of Linkletter for the banquet caused tribute planners to rearrange their plans, his statements also indicate a lack of regard for the program's message of "brotherhood, growth and harmony," according to tribute committee member Shirley Schilke.

Thomas called the choice of Linkletter "asinine" when he learned about it Wednesday. He said he'd received about 20 calls from local citizens, who were also "outraged, incensed" over the selection.

Thomas said the issue was not one of race, but of Linkletter's inability to "identify" with King's ideals and the civil rights movement he spearheaded.

"I would have hoped from a little bit more from Mr. Thomas," Mrs. Schilke said. "He seems to have lost sight of what this is all about, what we're trying to accomplish. The program's message is brotherhood, growth and harmony."

Mrs. Schilke heads the committee that chose Linkletter to appear at the Saturday, Jan. 17 banquet at which local citizens, business and civic leaders will be recognized for demonstrating King's ideals. His appearance as banquet co-host with Fred Humphries, black president of Florida A&M University, had yet to be finalized when tribute planners decided Thursday to change their plans after learning of Thomas' comments.

Humphries will be sole speaker at the banquet, while planners say they hope to secure Linkletter for a yet to be scheduled luncheon the preceding week. Mrs. Schilke said planners should know for sure about

Atlantis Prepares Move As Shuttle Tests End

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Engineers prepared the shuttle Atlantis to be hauled off its launch pad, closing out six weeks of milestone tests that included a practice countdown and "highly successful" emergency escape drills.

Launch director Gene Thomas said Thursday the tests with Atlantis will help NASA improve safety in the wake of the Jan. 28 Challenger disaster and gear up for the shuttle Discovery's launch on the first post-Challenger flight now set for Feb. 18, 1988.

"Basically, I felt that we had a very good visit to the pad. It was highly valuable to us," Thomas said at a news conference after the emergency escape test. "We learned a multitude of lessons and I can assure you none of those lessons that can add to the safety of the operation ... will be overlooked."

Atlantis, mounted atop launch pad 39B — the same pad used by Challenger — was to be hauled back to the Vehicle Assembly Building beginning at 12:01 a.m. Saturday. In January, the shuttle will be towed to its nearby hangar.

Parents Force Thought Control

The forces of censorship were triumphant the other day when a federal district judge ruled that fundamentalist Christians could keep their children out of reading classes in an eastern-Tennessee school system. Unless this disturbing decision is overturned on appeal, it could have a chilling effect on classrooms nationwide.

In rendering his verdict, Judge Thomas Hull conceded there is nothing wrong with the books in question that are used in more than 15,000 school districts around the country. Yet his tortured interpretation of the First Amendment held that the students must not be forcibly exposed to materials that violate their religious beliefs. Thus the children will be permitted to skip class and learn to read at home. Their parents, moreover, are eligible for damages that will be decided in December.

Charges to the contrary notwithstanding, the students in Hawkins County are not being subjected to supposed philosophical works of secular humanism. Rather, the offending selections include such harmless fare as:

Cinderella, Macbeth, The Wizard of Oz, The Diary of Anne Frank, and a fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen. Even so, the parents complained that the comprehensive reading series, published by Holt, Rinehart & Winston, for the first through eighth grades, promotes principles contrary to their religious beliefs.

We believe the issue here is parental censorship, a point that was underscored, albeit unintentionally, by plaintiff Vicki Frost. Objecting to a reading exercise, in which seventh-graders were asked to imagine themselves as part of nature, she snapped: "Our children's imaginations have to be bounded." And what better way to bind their imagination than to prevent them from being exposed to different points of view?

Consider the potential for wholesale thought control if the Tennessee ruling is allowed to stand. Jewish parents could pull their children from any reading program that speaks of Christianity. The same would be true for Moslem and Buddhist parents. Or Christian Scientist students could boycott books extolling the virtues of modern medicine. Before long, public schools would resemble cafeterias where parents of different religious persuasions could select or reject programs that pleased or offended their beliefs.

In one haunting respect, the Hawkins County case recalls the spectacle in Dayton, Tenn., 61 years ago when John Scopes was convicted of teaching the theory of evolution to his students. Then, as now, those who would proscribe knowledge prevailed in the name of the Holy Bible. Fortunately, the Scopes ruling was reversed and state lawmakers subsequently revoked the infamous anti-evolution statute. Would that similar reason prevail and Judge Hull's dangerous ruling be overturned by an appellate court.

Let's Play A Game Of Let's Suppose

Let's play "Suppose."
Suppose the Ayatollah Khomeini died tomorrow. Suppose, further, that there was a power struggle in Iran, and a somewhat more moderate and rational faction won out. Suppose this new government was not unfriendly to the United States, asked us for technical help to open up the oil fields, was wary of the Soviet Union, was willing to negotiate an end to the slaughter of the Iran-Iraq war, and did not intend to topple other governments.

Suppose it then became known that the Reagan administration had engaged in secret contacts with the group that had come to rule Iran. Suppose that we had even shipped some spare parts to Iran and allowed Israel and other nations to ship more. Suppose that this process of contact with Americans had helped the less-radicals come to power.

If all that happened, how would Reagan's secret dealing be regarded? You need not suppose an answer. It would be hailed as an act of diplomatic genius. No one would worry much that the Congress and the departments of State and Defense had been cut out of the action. Iran is one of the great geo-strategic prizes: a large buffer state standing between Russia and the Persian Gulf, from which flows the oil that drives the modern world.

Well all that has not happened. Not yet, although it is not impossible that something like that still may happen.

Suppose now another set of supposes. The ayatollah dies. The faction that takes over is radical. The Iran-Iraq war goes on. Iran starts losing and slips into anarchy. The country splits up among several ethnic groups. Pro-communist factions gain an important role.

What would the reaction then be in America? You don't have to suppose that either. Critics would demand to know why we didn't plan ahead for the post-Khomeini world. Hadn't we learned the lesson in China — when we had no diplomatic contacts with Mao's communists during the civil war? Hadn't we learned the lesson of Iran — when we had no contacts with the ayatollah?

The point here is simple. Should a superpower try to do something, or do nothing? The Iran play has blown up in Reagan's face partly because it leaked out. It sounds like we traded arms for hostages, that we were preaching anti-terrorism but practicing terrorist appeasement. Reagan says that's not so.

But was it a smart plan? It was almost surely flawed in the sense that the players thought it could be kept secret. It hurt our image as a moral leader, which is perhaps our most important asset.

So the critics will have a field day. Is the Reagan foreign policy really amateur night at the opera? Working out unexpected arms-control deals on bathtubs in Iceland? Trading journalists for spies with the Soviets? Memos about "disinforming" the press? Running a not-so-secret contra war in Nicaragua from the White House basement?

The president's men will say that the way the diplomatic game is now played demands both secrecy and flexibility. The defense and diplomatic bureaucracies argue with one another. Congress leaks to the press, the press blows the lid. It is the president who was elected; his men will stress that he can run his part of foreign policy his way. On balance, they will maintain, it was worth a shot.

ROBERT WALTERS

Oil Tax Time Has Arrived

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A new federal tax on all imported crude oil and petroleum products — a concept often debated but never adopted by Congress in recent years — may be an idea whose time has come.

Within the petroleum industry, support for an import tax generally has been limited to independent producers in the Southwest. They would reap a financial bonanza from such a levy because they could increase the price of their domestic oil to match the post-tax price of imports.

When the American Petroleum Institute recently held its annual meeting in Houston, however, API Chairman George M. Keller called for an oil import fee or a similar mechanism to establish a "minimum floor price" that would provide "disaster insurance."

In addition to heading off the industry's main trade association, Keller is chairman of Chevron, the nation's third largest oil company.

Like other integrated, multinational firms with domestic and offshore crude oil reserves, Chevron long has adamantly opposed any government intervention in petroleum pricing.

Keller, speaking for his company but not API, suggested that an oil import tax of $2 to $4 per barrel could revive the financially devastated domestic oil industry.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., has proposed an import tax of $10 per barrel. He would also provide rebates to the low-income consumers who would be most adversely affected by price increases.

(Each $1 increase in the price of a 42-gallon barrel of crude oil is equivalent to 2.3 cents in the cost of a gallon of gasoline.)

After global oil prices collapsed late last year, a barrel of crude oil plunged from $32 to less than $10 before recovering to the current price of about $15.

That has led to what George P. Mitchell, one of the country's leading independent producers, has described as "a severely reduced U.S. production capacity and greater dependence upon foreign producers."

Indeed, petroleum imports during the first nine months of this year averaged 5.94 million barrels per day compared with 4.85 million barrels daily during the same period last year — an increase of 22.5 percent.

Japanese Treasure May Be Buried In Reef

By Jack Anderson
and Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — It sounds like the plot of a paperback thriller: An American entrepreneur excavates an underwater coral reef in search of gold buried by the Japanese more than 40 years ago, while rival treasure seekers lurk nearby, trying to sabotage the operation with various acts of skulduggery.

It's actually happening, though. With the blessings of Philippines President Corason Aquino, American engineer Al Meyers is drilling into a coral reef in Calatagan Bay. It is believed to be the burial site of millions of dollars' worth of gold bullion hidden by Japanese Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, the "Tiger of Malaya" and proconsul of the Philippines during World War II.

Unlike previous gold seekers — many of whom were nothing more than con artists who fleeced gullible investors with bogus maps and glib promises — Meyers has an eyewitness who claims to have seen the gold bars buried in Calatagan Bay.

Respect Heartburn

By Bill Lehmann
UPI Feature Writer

ATLANTA (UPI) — Heartburn is a common malady that seems to evoke more giggles than sympathy no matter how uncomfortable — and potentially dangerous — it might be.

"Plop, plop, fizz, fizz" and other catchy advertising jingles are usually the extent of helpful advice heartburn sufferers can expect, although the ailment regularly leaves nearly half of the U.S. population queasily rummaging through the medicine cabinet for relief.

"I call heartburn the Rodney Dangerfield of medicine because it gets no respect," said Dr. William Orr, a clinical physiologist attending the recent annual convention of the American College of Gastroenterology in Atlanta.

"It's been considered a trivial complaint for a long time," said Orr, who researches peptic diseases and sleep disorders — and the correlation between the two — at Presbyterian Hospital in Oklahoma City, Okla. "Occasional heartburn is probably a trivial problem. But if you have heartburn three or four times a week, it's not trivial anymore."

Defining heartburn is simple. It occurs when stomach acid backwashes — or refluxes — into the esophagus, usually soon after meals when the stomach routinely produces more acid for digestion. The acid typically leads to belching, sour tastes and, most distinguishable, a burning sensation beneath the breastbone.

Sometimes the heartburn is so severe that it mimicks the chest pains of a heart attack. Hospital emergency rooms report a significant number of people who believe they are having a heart attack merely are suffering a bad case of heartburn.

"That can lead to a sort of 'Cry

Wolf' phenomenon, but when you're experiencing a crushing chest pain there's no way of knowing," Orr said.

Orr said a quick trip to the hospital — and perhaps a little embarrassment — is better than a risky incorrect self-diagnosis.

Although describing heartburn is easy, stopping it is another matter. In some cases, it requires a change in lifestyle. In severe cases, which are relatively rare, prescription drugs or even surgery might be required.

For people who experience frequent heartburn, Orr said there are four basic plans of attack:

—Stop smoking. Smoke can interfere with the flap valve, or sphincter, at the base of the esophagus designed to keep acid from backwashing from the stomach up into the food tube.

—Change your diet. Chocolate, peppermint, alcohol, caffeine and heavy carbohydrates often cause heartburn.

—Alter your sleep habits. Do not eat heavy meals right before going to sleep. If heartburn or insomnia persists, elevate the head of the bed about six inches.

—Use antacids. Over-the-counter acid neutralizers generally do the job, Orr said.

Orr said less than 1 percent of the population experiences heartburn severe enough to require prescription drugs that actually suppress acid secretions or surgery to reconstruct the esophagus. Even in those cases, Orr said, prevention is possible if people are alert to warning signs.

"First of all, you become concerned about people who reflux between meals or after every meal," Orr said. "But a real problem can be that people don't think about refluxing during their sleep. I call it one of the dangers in the night."

Japanese Invade Germany

GUMMERSBACH, West Germany (NEA) — A major German industry is confronting a problem that is all too familiar to Americans.

Japanese auto imports. Toyota, Honda and all the rest have been penetrating the German market in the '80s much as they did the American in the '70s. For the first nine months of 1986, they accounted for a share under 15 percent of total sales, up a robust 30 percent over their showing for the same period last year.

A recent tabulation of best-selling imports gave Japanese models eight of the first 12 places, leaving West Germany's two major auto-producing European neighbors — France and Italy — very far behind.

The Japanese are doing so well, in fact, that there is talk of possible import limitations. Just as soon as the idea is raised, however, it is slapped down. Government spokesmen deny that anything of the kind is under consideration, and industry leaders earnestly protest that protectionism is the last thing they want to encourage.

There's a good reason for that, since West Germany itself is a major auto exporter. One of its big customers is the United States, which takes 16 percent of all German auto exports.

Nevertheless, German producers think something has to be done. The head of German Ford recently proposed a self-help arrangement which, if it were tried by General Motors and Ford in the United States, would land both companies in court.

The idea is, roughly, closer cooperation among German automakers, especially in technical research and development, to keep ahead of the Japanese competition. Even better would be a joint effort among all West European producers.

They may easily find takers. Although the Japanese showing is best in Germany, it is impressive in Western Europe as a whole. The Japanese share of the European Economic Community market is better than 13 percent, with volume up 21 percent over the first three quarters of last year.

Since the EEC market as a whole expanded by 8.4 percent during the period, the Japanese are clearly running well ahead of the pack.

True, they did agree informally during the summer to limit their annual sales increases to 10 percent, but that still keeps them ahead of overall market growth and it remains to be seen whether the agreement will hold.

ripped off ships that scraped the reef or simply tossed overboard from passing vessels.

The treasure hunters report that they have found a man-made marker in the form of a huge coral head cemented on the top of a 20-ton granite boulder, as well as a coral "plug" used to cork a tunnel in the reef. They regard these finds as encouraging.

Other treasure seekers obviously believe the Meyers team is onto something. Their boats are hovering nearby, and they're trying to crosscut into the American crew's dig. There has been an attempted kidnapping, and cables on the Meyers barge have been cut. The Philippine coast guard is providing protection to the Americans, and the whole operation is under the supervision of President Aquino's uncle, Assemblyman Francisco Sumulong.

Skeptics may sneer, but over the years there has been persuasive testimony about the so-called "Yamashita treasure." One of the most startling revelations came in 1975, in testimony by then-President Ferdinand Marcos' press spokesman before a House committee in Washington.

"In early January 1970," testified Primitivo Mijares, "when accusations that (Marcos) had become the 'richest man in Asia' were reaching a fever pitch, he called in reporters and admitted that he was really rich. But the source of his wealth, Mr. Marcos said, was the treasure of Yamashita, which he had discovered in Northern Luzon."

You can believe that or not, but alleged participants have told us that they recovered a different load in 13 buried trucks at Teressa, a town about 35 miles south of Manila. They had been following Japanese maps, they said. The truck were loaded with $10 billion worth of gold bars. The authoritative source is unavailable, of course. Yamashita was hanged by the Americans in 1946 as a war criminal.

Winter Best Time For Planting Trees, Shrubs

The warm weather we've been enjoying can't last forever. Another week and Thanksgiving will be here. And, with the coming of winter in central Florida, also comes the best time for planting trees and shrubs. Why is winter a good time to plant? Because most trees and shrubs are not actively growing during this period and are less apt to be injured by the shock of transplanting. The weather and moisture during the winter is very helpful to good plant establishment as well as good working weather for us.

Planting trees and shrubs during the winter allows the plants to become well established in their new locations before the big flush of spring growth, bloom and summer heat. The roots of plants continue to grow and develop during the mild winter days, even though the foliage does not.

This is a good time to visit your favorite nursery or garden center, too. Most have an excellent selection of plants and can give you more time and attention now whereas they can't during the rush of spring planting.

Successful planting will depend greatly on your ability to select those plants which will fit your

Alfred Bosseson
Urban Horticulturist

individual landscape needs. Trees are a must in our Florida landscape whether you plant them for shade, windbreaks, food, or simply to add color and beauty with blooms or unusual foliage. And, they will add esthetic and real value to your property.

Unfortunately, the perfect landscape tree simply does not exist. All trees which have desirable features have those that are undesirable, also. A tree may have beautiful flowers in the spring, followed by undesirable fruit or seed pods in the autumn. If a tree is a fast grower, it may be very brittle, short-lived, and fall in a storm.

You must accept the fact that all trees have advantages and disadvantages, and your selection must be carefully considered. Remember, in most instances, you'll be planting trees for the next generation of family.

When selecting trees, be sure you choose one that will fit your landscape need. For example, fast growing for quick shade, broad and spreading for shade, dense for windbreak or screening, or attractive blooms for color. Know the tree you select and its growth requirements. What's its ultimate size. Does it require special soil? Some species, such as dogwood, required acid soil. If your home is in an old grove area, you can bet the soil pH is high. Consider, too, whether or not the tree you select has any serious insect or disease problems that will require extra maintenance.

Be sure the tree is tolerant of our weather conditions, such as our hot summers or cold winters. Is it evergreen or deciduous? Deciduous shade trees are recommended as they allow the desirable warm rays of the sun to reach our homes in the winter. Or, you may want to choose an evergreen tree for screening purposes.

Be careful, in selecting the exact spot to set your tree. Look for overhead powerlines, underground utilities, septic tanks and drain fields, as well as swimming pools, walks, drives and other paved surfaces which may be damaged by tree roots.

When shopping for plants, purchase yours from a reliable local nurseryman or garden center. Then, plant it in a carefully selected and prepared spot. Use good horticultural practices in preparing your soil, watering, spraying, fertilizing, and staking or guying to support your new tree.

Don't lose your investment in a new tree through carelessness and lack of planning.

The only trees that you should avoid planting at this time of year are the palms. They will get off to a much better start if planted in late spring as the rainy season begins. That doesn't mean you can't plant them at this time of year, but, you'll have to pay much more attention to watering to avoid destroying your turfgrass from too much moisture.

Plan now to make an early visit to your favorite nursery or garden center. This is an excellent time of the year for planting, the supply is good, and you'll find reasonable prices. Happy Gardening!

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen months ago, I took my two children and left my husband of 10 years. For nine years I took an emotional battering from this man until I finally reached the point of "Let me out, or lock me up!"

We live in the same city with my entire family. They have seen how abusive he has been to me and my children, yet they continue to invite him to all family functions — birthdays, anniversaries and holidays — just as though nothing had happened. I have hinted that I'm very uncomfortable with him there, but they continue to invite him.

With the holidays approaching soon, I dread seeing him wined and dined by my family who know how rotten he's been to me and my children. I hate to stay away from family gatherings, but I am miserable when he's around acting extra charming so they will wonder what is wrong with me.

I may have to ask my family to make a choice between him and me. What do you think?

TORN

DEAR TORN: The moment of truth has arrived. Quit hinting and tell your family exactly how you feel. And if they continue to invite him, they will have made a choice.

DEAR ABBY: You had nominated the word "hors d'oeuvre" as the word most frequently misspelled.

After grading tens of thousands of essays in the last 17 years, I have found that the most frequently misspelled commonly used word is "occurrence."

Amazingly, fewer than 10 percent of the students in my classes have spelled it correctly the first time. The most common misspelling of occurrence is "occurence" — but there are several others.

I consider the most difficult word to spell for one who has not heard it before to be "chthonic" (pertaining to the gods of the underworld). Whoever would expect the "ch" to be silent?

MARK GRAHAM, ENGLISH DEPARTMENT, ARVADA SENIOR HIGH, ARVADA, COLO.

DEAR MR. GRAHAM: Thanks for the spelling lesson. Consulting the dictionary is a daily occurrence for me, but I have never heard of chthonic, and my chances for using it are slim.

Dear Abby

However, if I'm ever on a quiz show (or in a spelling bee), the information may come in handy.

DEAR ABBY: Thanksgiving will soon be here, and I want you to know how much your column helped us. Being single can be devastating during the holiday season, so I organized the "First Annual Lonely Hearts Thanksgiving Day Bash" (our second will be even better). Divorced and widowed friends met at a restaurant for an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner. So many people are all alone during the holidays, and they shouldn't be. Eight of us got together, commiserated about life and, before we ate, read aloud the Thanksgiving prayer you run in your newspaper column every year. The queen of our day was an 82-year-old widow who kept everyone entertained with wonderfully witty stories.

Please continue to print that beautiful Thanksgiving prayer every year, and may God bless you this year and always.

Tribe Plan: Catch DeLand With Binoculars On

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

DeLand High, a team looking through binoculars, and Seminole High, a team peering through the rearview mirror, renew one of Central Florida's oldest rivalries tonight in a homecoming football game at Seminole High School.

Kickoff is 8 p.m. Pretty '85 winner Linda Cushing will crown this year's queen at halftime. It will be the regular-season final for both clubs.

DeLand, nevertheless, can't help but look ahead to the Class 5A-3 Region championship next Friday when the Bulldogs host unbeaten and third-ranked Jacksonville Sandalwood. DeLand, 7-2, went unbeaten in the District 5A-5, posting a 4-0 record for the title.

Hiss, playing the role of the eternal pessimist this year, said he knows his boys have the binoculars on, but they better not get too farsighted and overlook the Seminoles.

"First of all, we're not that good," Hiss, who resurrected DeLand's program (24-17) from near collapse the past four years, said. "Coach (Dave) Mosure has a fine football team and we hope he takes it easy on us. We're not ready to play football. We're looking ahead (to Sandalwood) next week."

While it's tough to swallow most of Hiss' pregame oratory, the personable DeLand coach does make one very good point. "We have always played poorly after a big win," he said via telephone Thursday from his "Doghouse" office in DeLand. "Both of our losses came after emotional wins the week before."

After whipping Eau Gallie in its opener, DeLand marched into Lake Mary and dealt the district favorite Rams a 13-6 setback. A week later Hiss said his boys weren't ready to play when they returned to action against Ocala Forest. DeLand dropped a 13-3 decision. Forest was ranked at the time.

Consecutive victories over Lyman, Orange Park, Daytona Beach Mainland and Daytona Beach Seabreeze followed. The 28-7 demolition of highly-regarded Seabreeze sent shockwaves throughout Central Florida and earned the 'Dogs a No. 10 ranking in the state poll.

After a week off, however, DeLand hosted Palatka and dropped an uninspired 20-12 decision. Last week, the Bulldogs wrapped up the district with a big 14-7 victory over Port Orange Spruce Creek. Hiss said he hopes history doesn't repeat itself tonight.

It should be pointed out, nonetheless, DeLand didn't need to beat Ocala Forest and Palatka, both non-district and non-rival encounters. Seminole certainly qualifies as being a non-district game, but it is very much a rivalry.

Rams Battle Lyman

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

LONGWOOD — At the beginning of the high school football season, the Lake Mary Rams and the Lyman Greyhounds were supposed to be the two teams to beat in District 5A-4 and Seminole Athletic Conference.

Both teams envisioned themselves as potential district and SAC champions. The two squads pointed to Nov. 21 on their calendars as the day the two teams would settle the district crown.

But preseason visions can turn into regular season nightmares.

As it turns out, tonight's District 5A-4 and Seminole Athletic Conference football game between Lake Mary and Lyman will have no bearing on the outcome of the district or conference titles.

DeLand is the surprising district champion while the Lake Howell Silver Hawks are the convincing SAC champs.

"I really thought at the start of the season that we had a good chance to win the district," Lyman coach Bill Scott said about his Greyhounds. "But things just haven't gone our way."

Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson was confident about his team's district and SAC hopes, too.

"This has been a very strange year," Nelson said. "It has been disappointing yet rewarding."

Nelson and Scott both grew up in Chicago but Lake Mary and Lyman are headed in opposite directions. Lake Mary (6-5) has won its last five games and is headed for a Nov. 26 Rotary Bowl showdown with Orlando Evans. Lyman (4-5) has lost its last three games and is headed home.

"Our team is happy to be in the bowl," Nelson said. "But right now we are concentrating on Lyman."

Nelson said that Lake Mary quarterback Shane Letterio, who broke his left collarbone on Oct. 17 against Spruce Creek, is "doubtful" for the Lyman game. "Shane really wants to play," Nelson said. "But if he takes one good shot, the thing could pop out again. It just isn't worth the risk."

Letterio's replacement, sophomore Carlos Hartfield, is steadily improving, according to Nelson. "Carlos is learning the position," Nelson said. "He has been put in a tough situation and has handled it very well."

The Greyhounds are having quarterbacking problems of their own. Without Darren Boyesen (neck injury), and John Burton (academic casualty), Lyman is finding out that without an experienced quarterback, it is hard to have much success on offense.

Howell's Trio: 1 Last Quest

Samocki, Fonseca Twins Run For State Championship

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

They've shared the good times, celebrated numerous triumphs and consoled each other in times of pain or defeat.

Lisa Samocki, Martha Fonseca and Mary Fonseca have gone through a lot together the past four years. As freshmen, they helped lay the foundation, and in the ensuing three years helped build the Lake Howell High cross country program to state prominence.

The promising freshmen who ran on the same DeLand Airport course four years ago have matured to become talented and poised seniors. And, Saturday starting at 11 a.m., they hope to complete a quest for the only thing that has eluded them the past three years — the state championship.

"It's rewarding as a coach to watch how they've matured and grown as athletes and as individuals," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said of the senior trio. "It's really been a pleasure coaching them for four years."

Lake Howell goes into the 4A State Meet ranked second behind Largo with defending champion Winter Park also in the thick of it. The Lady Silver Hawks have won all but one meet they've entered this season including Seminole Athletic Conference, district and region titles.

While Samocki and Martha and Mary Fonseca are the senior leaders, the Lady Hawks will also look for solid efforts from sophomore twins Jenny (12:26 season's best) and Tammy Bolt (12:50), junior Bonnie Oliver (12:38) and first-year varsity senior Diane Madison (13:20) or sophomore Michelle Lee (13:08).

As freshmen, Samocki and the Fonseca twins helped Lake Howell establish itself as a power with a third-place state finish. The Lady Hawks finished fourth the following season and took second one year ago.

"I think we can do it as long as we're together and confident," Samocki said. "The team is matured now and has a lot of experience and shouldn't be as nervous."

Samocki's season has been especially rewarding, considering her running future was uncertain after a severe foot injury last track season. Samocki not only rebounded from her injury, but came back stronger than ever and goes into the state meet as the fifth-ranked individual with a season's best time of 11:39.

"I was nervous about running at first," Samocki said. "I had only run a week before we went to cross country camp. But, while I was injured, I had a lot of time to think about how I loved to run. With a positive mental attitude, I was confident I could come back and have the best season possible."

Samocki's strong return meant that Lake Howell would have one of the best one-two combinations in the state. In the cross country jamboree before the season started, Martha Fonseca had already proven that she would be a top-notch competitor in her senior season.

"After three years, I've finally realized my full potential," Martha said. "I figure if I run aggressively Saturday, I can top off my best season in a great way."

Martha Fonseca started off the season with an individual championship in the Lake Mary Opener and she has been among the frontrunners in every race in 1986. Fonseca goes into the state meet with a season's best time of 11:46 which ranks eighth in the state.

If not for achilles tendon and knee injuries that slowed her down for two years, Mary Fonseca might well be right up there with Samocki and twin sister Martha. But the fact that Mary chose to stick with cross country no matter how severe the pain got, is a testament to her desire to help the team and be the best she can be.

"It seems my injury put me two years behind," Mary said. "But I really like where I'm at now. I'd like to break 12 minutes at the state meet and be in the top 10. I want to do as well as I can to help the team."

Mary Fonseca had an outstanding season as a freshman in cross country but injured her achilles tendon the summer before her sophomore year. She received orthotics to help heal the injury but they were improperly fitted. Fonseca said by the time the doctors realized her orthotics were not fitted right, she had badly injured her knees.

"It extended into my junior year in cross country," Mary said. "But I started coming back and doing well that track season. I still have some pain, but it's nowhere near as bad."

Mary Fonseca had a personal best of 12:29 this season but she has come on particularly strong in the championship meets. In last week's region meet, she ran number three on the team behind Samocki and Martha Fonseca.

Like all sisters, the Fonescas have their share of arguments. But being on the team together for four years has been enjoyable for the most part.

"She (Mary) is like another member of the team, but I know she's always there and she'll always do well," Martha Fonseca said. "Sometimes its competitive between us, but it's really nice being together on the team. This year we really want to win. It's our last chance after four years time and we all really want it."

Samocki has also enjoyed the company of the Fonseca twins over the years.

"We've had some disagreements but we really get along well," Samocki said. "And it's good that we get along because it's a team sport and takes a total team effort to be successful."

Although they said it's going to be tough, Samocki and the Fonescas believe this could be the year they take top honors at the state meet.

"If we run aggressively and up to our potential we'll be all right," Mary Fonseca said. "Last week (region) we all ran negative splits but that was after we ran close to seven minutes the first mile. We didn't go out and run the first mile aggressively. We need to do that this week."

Hammontree said the experience of Samocki and Martha and Mary Fonseca is good to have for a number of reasons.

"Four years of maturity is paying off for them," Hammontree said. "They have a way of affecting and motivating the other kids on the team and they are self-motivating. They recognize their own ability, know what they want and have a strong desire to achieve it."

Lions, Hawks Test Defense In SAC Finale

By Mike Andrew
Special to the Herald

One of two Seminole County Athletic Conference finals in Casselberry tonight will feature the top two defensive units in the county. The Lake Howell Silver Hawks, giving up only 6.3 points per game, will host the Oviedo Lions, who have surrendered but 6.6 points per contest. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

The Silver Hawks go into the game with an 8-1 slate, and a number nine ranking among state 5A schools. They have won five consecutive games and will participate in the District 5A-5 playoff with Winter Park and Apopka at Apopka Monday night.

Oviedo comes into tonight's action looking to improve their record to 7-3 with a win. The Lions have won three in a row. Should the Lions win tonight, it would be the best showing the team has had since the conference, district and regional championship team of 1979.

The Lions are a decided underdog going into the game. (Lake Howell is favored by 17 1/2 points in the Dunkel Index rating) but Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said his team will be ready for tonight's battle.

"We're just on top of the world to be playing the number nine-ranked team in the state," Blanton said. "I feel like any time you play any team in Seminole County you have a good chance to win the game."

The Lions are coming off back-to-back shutouts over Cocoa Beach and Titusville, and hope the defense will be able to keep them close to Howell into the fourth quarter.

"Our defense has just been playing fantastic," Blanton said. "They are going to have to continue as well on defense as we have been playing, and not make the mistakes offensively that have hurt us lately. Lake Howell is too good a team for us to play poorly against and have any chance of winning."

The Lion defense has convinced Lake Howell mentor Mike Bisceglia that it is a force with which to be reckoned.

"Oviedo has a really solid defense," Bisceglia said. "In the county stats they are right behind us. Any time you give up seven points or less a game, you have to be doing something right. We are going to have to execute on offense in order to win."

Offensively, the Lions attack features the Run 'N Shoot alignment, with two slot backs, and a lot of motion. Bisceglia, however, isn't too concerned with the Oviedo offense as a whole.

"We've practiced all week for the Run 'N Shoot," Bisceglia said. "Our defensive staff has really done a great job this week."

"The Run 'N Shoot is a good offense," Bisceglia added. "But the philosophy all centers around a quarterback that can pull the trigger, and I don't think Oviedo has that type of player."

Oviedo's offense is run by a pair of junior signal callers in Mike McCurdy and John Pettit. The two have completed only 18 of 60 for 285 yards and just one TD.

"The Run 'N Shoot doesn't concern me too much," Bisceglia said. "It's the (Willie) Gainey kid that is the key. We will have to shut him down."

Gainey is coming off the worst performance of his career a week ago, when a hand injury held him to only 13 yards. The senior leader of the Lions also coughed up the ball on three separate

Connors String Strangles Schultz

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors won six straight points in a first-set tie-breaker to advance to the quarterfinals of the $278,000 WCT Houston Shootout Thursday with a 7-8 (6-6), 6-2 victory over Bud Schultz.

The top-seeded Connors led 5-2 in the first set, but Schultz broke serve in the ninth game and held on to set up the tie-breaker. Schultz, ranked 84th in the world, jumped ahead 6-2, but Connors won the next six points to take the first set. Connors strong ground strokes caused Schultz to commit numerous unforced errors in the second set.

Hana: I Was Cheated Of Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — As plainly as she can say it, Hana Mandlikova insists she was robbed. The tempestuous, talented Czechoslovakian was so certain she was being cheated that she clearly gave away her match against Pam Shriver Thursday night in the $1 million Virginia Slims Championships.

After leading 4-1 and 5-3 in the second set, Mandlikova became so distraught at another call that went against her that she dropped 10 of the last 11 games, managing a mere 13 points.

Berbeck: No Hate Or Dislike, Just Whipping

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Trevor Berbeck says he has no ill feelings for Mike Tyson, the 20-year-old attention grabber he faces Saturday night.

"There's no hate, no dislike," Berbeck said Thursday at the final pre-fight news conference in the Las Vegas Hilton. "He's gonna have to learn his lesson and get a whipping."

Typson, attempting to become the youngest heavyweight boxing champion ever, was brief minutes earlier when called to the podium.

"There are no questions you can ask me because everything is over with," Tyson said. "It's time to fight."

Berbeck, who has spent much of the week dealing with a legal problem involving a previous purse, was more talkative after Tyson sat down.

going to be in the ring that night. "When the fight is over, Mike Tyson is going to be the world heavyweight champion."

Berbeck was obviously affected by Jacobs' assertions. "There's a little more adrenaline flowing because when I see certain people, and their attitude ... I strive on the emotion," Berbeck said. "I intend to put a whipping to Mike."

United Press International Jack Sikma, making his only scheduled appearance in Seattle this season, gave Sonics fans a "solid but spectacular" performance Thursday night.

Off Season Is Critical For Racers

Very Special to the Herald NASCAR's 1986 Winston Cup schedule concluded last Sunday, and the next race isn't until 1987 Speedweeks at Daytona Beach in February. But the next 10 weeks are considered "off season" only because the cars aren't on the tour at scheduled races.

This time of year is critical to NASCAR teams. The time spent now can determine the success or lack of it in the coming season.

In team garages around the southeastern United States, centered in the Carolinas, new cars are being built, old ones are being bought, sold or updated, and the final deals are being cut between drivers, teams and sponsors.

NASCAR is putting together the 1987 schedules for their various series, and preparing to honor '86 champion Dale Earnhardt at their New York City banquet in early December.

Daytona International Speedway will be the site of much activity between now and speedweeks. Top teams have packed the calendar for test dates at the track, preparing to run in stock car racing's most prestigious race, the Daytona 500.

Fans are getting ready for Speedweeks, too. People are drawn to the Central Florida area from across the nation in February, not only for the Daytona events, but at the short tracks, such as New Smyrna Speedway and Volusia County Speedway, both a short drive from Daytona and Seminole County.

On the west coast, plans for special events to draw Speedweeks fans are usual at East Bay Raceway south of Tampa, as well as the State Fairgrounds Speedway in Tampa.

Annually, they attend the RPM Promoter's Workshops held at a Daytona hotel. The event is the largest gathering of the year for short track promoters.

The atmosphere surrounding Speedweeks is circus-like for almost everyone. The NASCAR drivers contend with fans and media while trying to find the edge that will make or break a season for many.

Former Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip, for example, has never won the Daytona 500 in more than a decade of trying. Richard Petty has recorded 200 NASCAR wins, along with seven Daytona 500 titles and seven Winston Cup championships, but he hasn't won a race since his 200th in the Daytona Firecracker 400 a couple of seasons back.

A February Daytona win for either would be rejuvenating. Bobby Allison could attest to that. He had never won a Daytona 500, and was riding a two season winless streak until he won his first 500 in 1978. From that win, NASCAR's oldest race victor, launched a five year campaign that took him to the 1983 Winston Cup title, which could be the highlight of his career.

Who will win the Daytona 500? We'll have to watch Speedweeks unfold, but one thing is certain: The winning team is probably now working seven days a week hoping to be in the right place at the right time on the final lap.

Stasis Dermatitis Will Effect Skin

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been hospitalized with a disease called venostasis, or stasis dermatitis, but do not understand it. Can you help?

DEAR READER — Venostasis is a $64 word that means sluggish bloodflow in the veins, usually of the legs. This can result from varicose veins or any factor that produces an obstruction to the venous blood as it returns to the heart.

You can help the situation by elevating your legs whenever possible, using elastic support stockings to help venous emptying and applying lotion to the dermatitis to prevent the skin from drying, cracking, breaking down and becoming infected.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In my teens, I developed the senseless habit of knuckle-cracking. Now the joints of my fingers are enlarged, which I understand is due to the accumulation of calcium deposits caused by the cracking.

DEAR READER — The swelling around the joints in knuckle-crackers is more likely to be due to tissue swelling than to calcium deposits. Calcium deposits are common in arthritis patients and can be surgically removed if they interfere with normal motion.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
If there is reasonable distribution, you might think that South would be successful in four hearts. Unfortunately the singleton club in West's hand dooms the contract. I was the unlucky declarer at a regional tournament in Columbia, South Carolina, last August. The opponent sitting West found an unusual way to exact his full pound of flesh. After the king of spades, West switched to his singleton club. East won the ace and returned the eight. West ruffed. It's rather natural now for West to play another spade or a diamond. Not this time. West figured out that I might be void of diamonds and missing the ace of trumps. So he led a trump. East gathered in the ace and quickly gave his partner another ruff, so I was down two.

If you want the rest of this hard-luck story — at many of the other tables the bidding went the same way. Many West players led the singleton club initially. What do you suppose happened after they had ruffed the club return? Well, what bridge player worth his salt would not now underlead his spade A-K to get partner in so that he could take the setting trick with another club ruff? Declarer would now swallow his astonishment at winning that spade trick, gratefully ruff a second spade and then pitch three clubs and his remaining spade on the A-K-Q-J of diamonds before coming off dummy with a low heart. Many declarers had that good fortune, but not this writer. Maybe I should dodge the next regional tournament in South Carolina.

Once For War, Now For Food ... Or Fun

Some aim to have fun with a bow and arrow, while others are more serious about this type of target and sharp shooting, which once was an important military skill in ancient and medieval times.

The most famous archer, and the real killer to some is the cherubic Cupid who always aims for the heart.

The bow and arrow was also a stock weapon of the American Indian and continues to be favored by some hunters.

Dick Rodriguez of Longwood, who sometimes hunts deer with bow and arrow, said part of the attraction is the challenge of having to get up close, the primitive way. You seem to see more deer. You have to be quiet and get up close to the animal (within 30 to 35 yards as opposed to 150 yards with a scope equipped firearm). The animals have more of a fighting chance. If you do something wrong, you've lost your chance.

Rodriguez took up archery about 10 years ago as a target shooter and hunting was a natural follow-up. He said he has killed three deer with a bow and arrow. Deer killed with an arrow, Rodriguez said, usually don't go into shock as do those who are knocked down by a gun blast. With an arrow, which usually passes through the kill, an animal may not even realize it has been wounded, but it will bleed to death.

Some say a bow can be more accurate than firearms. But Rodriguez said that isn't true, except in the case of a pistol pitted against a bow. A rifle, he said, is more accurate than the bow.

Some who test their skill at archery are doing just that, testing and practicing a skill in a sport that was revived in 1676 by Charles II of England.

...Archer

The beginning archer, like the 20 or so who each term sign up for archery at Seminole Community College, shoot with a "bare bow," a carry over from ancient days. A bare bow has no sights and is the hardest and most challenging to shoot, Rodriquez said.

However, Tony Begley, who teaches archery at SCC, said that most who take up the sport can master it, with form being 90 percent of the game.

The skill is almost synonymous with the name Robin Hood. The story of William Tell shooting an apple off his son's head lives on. And the images of those olden-days heroes is seldom far from the minds of some sportsmen, even if they are strictly for-fun shooters.

Joe Romo, 67, a participant in the Golden Age Games archery meet asked to be called "Robin Hood," and said, before the Games he hadn't picked up a bow in more than 30 years. The rust on his skills lost him the match, but Romo was on target for fun.

With an investment of about $200 in bow, arrows, arm guards and a quiver to carry the arrows, an archer can be ready to shoot, Rodriquez said. However, once you get beyond the basics, there are many accessories including stabilizers and sights, and specialized bows that can add to the total.

The typical target shooter's bow, he said, has a 35 to 40 pound pull, the force required to draw back the bow for a shoot. A hunter's bow might have a 55-pound pull, but it might also be a "compound bow," meaning it has a pulley that reduces by half the weight required to hold the string back while waiting to shoot.

When a shooter has to hold aim with a non-compound bow his aim may get shaky, Rodriquez said.

Target shooters also may use lighter arrows. Target archers, Begley said, typically aim from 30, 40, and 50 yards from the target, which has a center bullseye which is three-inch circle. Others, he said, shoot at animal-type targets.

In target archery competitions the players are pitted against those in their own skills range, Begley said. And the wind can throw the marksmen off target, if they aren't skilled enough to compensate.

Some archers are so skilled and lucky, Rodriquez said, that they sometimes shoot arrows into those already in the target. And Begley said some hunters aim for birds in flight, while others shoot with their bows for fish.

Archery is an ancient art that lives on with those seek more than the simple shot.

Acting More For Love Than Money

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Over-exposure and avarice are the downfall of many an American star. Canny English performers, by contrast, often act more for love than money.

It's a good thing, too. British stars don't earn a fraction of what their American counterparts make in movies and TV.

Sylvester Stallone probably earned more dollars last year than the top 10 British film stars combined.

When an American star gets hot, i.e. Stallone, Eddie Murphy, or John Travolta, agents and managers rush him into as many projects as possible to capitalize on success. Often the scripts are poor.

Frequently the actor is type-cast or finds himself in a role beyond his depth.

Not the Brits. Especially when they remain on their home turf.

If an English actor does come to Hollywood after gaining extraordinary fame, he too can be over-exposed and his career jeopardized. Dudley Moore is a good example.

Dedicated, highly trained British actors often disappear for months or years after a brilliant starring role. Albert Finney did just that after dazzling moviegoers and critics in "Tom Jones."

Finney took an extended trip around the world before returning to England to work in the theater.

A current example is Jeremy

Irons, who created a minor sensation in 1981 in "The French Lieutenant's Woman" and a year later in the TV mini-series "Brideshead Revisited."

Thereafter Irons went back to the theater to star in Shakespearean plays.

Now Irons is back in the movie limelight in "The Mission," playing an 18th-century Jesuit priest helping to save a South American Indian tribe from exploitation and slavery.

"I've never made a movie for money," Irons said in the indifferent manner some British assume when discussing cash.

"In 1984 when I left Broadway (after starring in "The Real Thing," for which he won the Tony) I deliberately made the decision not to come to Hollywood. It was not my intention to become a 'movie star.'

"I felt the same way after 'The French Lieutenant's Woman.' I followed that picture with 'Moonlighting,' a small jewel of a film. I've only made six films in my career and I hope retrospectively I can be proud of them.

"Most trained British actors don't rush from one film to another to cash in on a big success. Americans take a different approach.

"When Meryl Streep and I completed 'French Lieutenant's Woman' I asked her if she would like to do a play. She said she couldn't because she was hot in pictures and making a great deal of money. Meryl told me she could always do plays later.

"We British don't understand that system. I don't want to be exploited for five or 10 years and then forgotten.

"The British tradition and economy are quite different from the United States. As an actor you make more money than you deserve in movies. It's money that can buy one of two things — things or time. I choose to buy time to work in the theater."

After completing "The Mission," Irons headed for the Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford to play Leontes in "The Winter's Tale," the title role in "Richard II" and in Aphra Behn's 17th century drama, "The Rover."

"The United States doesn't have a theatrical tradition," he went on. "We have two subsidized companies, the National Theater and the Royal Shakespeare Company. They give us an opportunity to go back to basics. American actor friends of mine who visit in England ache to work in those theaters.

"I agreed to the role of Gabriel in 'The Mission' because I liked the script and looked forward to working with (director Roland) Joffe and I wanted to make an action picture, my first.

"I chose not to portray Father Gabriel as a soft-handed cleric. I haven't played physical roles because people think of me as tall, thin and aesthetic, which is the way I may look, but not the way I am. Actually, I am athletic. I play tennis, ride horseback and sail.

"Believe me, if I had had the chance to do 'The Dirty Dozen,' I'd have been in there."

And then back to Shakespeare on stage.

Serious or crazy?

By Frank Sanello
BURBANK, CALIF. (NEA) — Playing interior designer Mary Jo Shively on the new CBS sitcom "Designing Women" keeps actress Annie Potts busy. "I don't know what day it is or if I've had a shower or if I ate last night — that's how busy I am," she says. "It's wild."

Ironically, the 34-year-old actress, who has appeared in films such as "Ghostbusters" and "Pretty in Pink," abandoned her big-screen career and took on a TV series so she would have more time for her 5-year-old son Clay.

Now, two nights a week, Potts doesn't get home until midnight, and when she finally does make it home, there is the next day's script to study.

Still, somehow Potts finds time for her only child.

"I take my son to the studio on Wednesday afternoons," she says. "We have a real picnic over by the phony church in the phony town square next to phony houses and the phony hardware store. Then we ride our bicycles around, looking at what's behind the fake building facades. Clay likes it better than Disneyland."

Potts doesn't believe she has really abandoned her film career for TV. And she feels there wasn't that much to abandon anyway.

"I'm a character actor," she says. "I'm not really recognized from role to role. And my son is in kindergarten. I was really ready to have a steady job that wouldn't take me away from home. And having a successful TV career doesn't really hurt. It doesn't seem to have hurt Shelley Long a bit."

But during hiatus from TV

work, don't look for Potts to star in "Ghostbusters II" or "Pretty in Puce." Like so many other serious actors, the Nashville-born artist wants to return to her roots in the theater. She majored in drama at Stephens College in Missouri and did graduate work at the prestigious California Institute of the Arts.

Trying hard not to put down her current source of bread and butter, Potts says that during hiatus she would like to appear on stage.

"I'd like to do a play," she says. "One of the nicest things about doing TV is that the money is awfully good, and it does allow you the freedom to do things that are more spiritually and creatively nutritious."

In person, Potts speaks with a lilting Southern drawl and a fondness for the telling metaphor that makes her seem like a character out of one of Tennessee Williams' sunnier plays.

When she talks about her alcoholic parents, the story has a happy ending — both mom and dad finally sought treatment. When she explains why she quit drinking, Potts cites statistics that show children whose parents are both alcoholics have an 87 percent chance of becoming alcoholics themselves.

Says Potts: "I used to smoke two packs of cigarettes a day. I used to enjoy all the wine I could possibly consume in an evening. But when I was pregnant, I was real clean and watched everything I put in my body."

Magazine editor, Susan Brown, was unable to fulfill her promise to Lauren that she wouldn't use Paul's nude photo in the centerfold of her magazine. Carol said she'll work for Jack again, even though he won't have a fancy office or a title. Victor told Matt he wants to forget about Ashley forever. Jack confronted Jill, but couldn't get her to admit she has an ulterior motive for wanting him back at Jabot. Brad kept mum to Traci that he's not happy about Jack coming back into the family fold. Kay realized Nina tricked Philip into dating her.

Applying For Citizenship
 A person desiring to become naturalized as a U.S. citizen may obtain the necessary application and detailed information from the nearest office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service or from the clerk of the court handling naturalization cases.

Accidents
 Most accidents occur in homes. National Safety Council figures show that home accidents annually far outstrip those in other locations, such as autos, at work or in public places.

Running Down Actors Who Swang As Tarzan

Dear Debra — Could you run down the different actors who played Tarzan. My family can't agree on the answer. — Mrs. D.R.S., Warsaw, Ind.

There were dozens of "Tarzan" movies, under one name or another and here are some of the leading men: Buster Crabbe, Johnny Weissmuller, Herman Brix, Glenn Morris, Lex Barker, Mike Henry, Gordon Scott, Denny Miller, Jock Mahoney, Ron Ely and Miles O'Keefe.

Dear Debra — Is Meryl Streep ever going to be in a movie made for TV? "Kramer vs. Kramer" was several years ago and she is a great actress. I wish we could see her more often! — M.H., Houston.

Don't count on seeing Meryl Streep in a made for TV role too soon. She's too big a feature film star.

Dear Debra — Can you give me a mailing address for Tony Danza? I want to drop him a note telling him some of the amusing experiences my husband has had with the same name (no relation!). — Mrs. T.D., Port St. Lucie, Fla.

Danza would enjoy reading about those experiences, I'm sure. You can write to him in care of his show, "Who's the Boss?" Embassy Television, 956 Seward St., Los Angeles, CA 90038.

Debra Katz

Dear Debra — Can you recall the name of a movie for me. I was pretty young when I watched it but I have been wondering about it for years. To escape becoming slaves to the Romans, a group of people made a circle by the sea. The Romans surrounded them and shot arrows into them. It sounds gory but it was a dramatic scene for a little kid. Can you find out about it and let me know anything at all? — C.K.C., Houston

Though it wasn't about Rome, "The 300 Spartans" might be the movie you're referring to. It was released in Ralph Richardson, David Farrar, Diane Baker, Barry Coe, Donald Houston, Kieron Moore, John Crawford and Robert Brown. The film, which was filmed in Greece, told the story of a band of soldiers who take on the big Persian army for Greece. Dramatic stuff, indeed.

Dear Debra — Has "227" been canceled? — M.F., Houston.

Keep checking. "227" is alive and well and back on Saturdays on NBC.

Dear Debra — Help! "Stingray" was my favorite show. I thought it was popular and it's gone from NBC's lineup. Please tell me where to write and complain. — C.P.W., Sevierville, Tenn.

"Stingray" is slated to be a mid-season replacement, although NBC has such a strong lineup, that it's having trouble finding a slot for the show. If you want to encourage NBC to bring back "Stingray," write to the network at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10112. Good luck.
