Murder trial begins

No body nor weapon found after Lake Mary teen's disappearance

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — She disappeared without a trace seven years ago. An outgoing 14-year-old, Kathy Engles left her grandparents' Lake Mary home to visit a friend May 24, 1987. She has not been seen since.

Today, jury selection begins for the trial of Anton Daryl Meyers, 33, who is accused of her death. Meyers is charged with first degree murder after a Seminole County grand jury indicted him in the case.

Testimony from three inmates concerning statements they claim Meyers made about Engles death was presented to the grand jury. One man claims while the two were jailed in Brevard County, Meyers described killing the girl. Meyers was in jail on an unrelated charge.

Meyers' attorney has challenged the reliability of the prison witnesses against his client.

Engles' body was never found, much of the evidence in the case was circumstantial and after a few years, the investigation into her disappearance stalled. A 1991 Florida Supreme Court decision enabled the state to use certain circumstantial evidence to prove an individual is dead when a body has not been found.

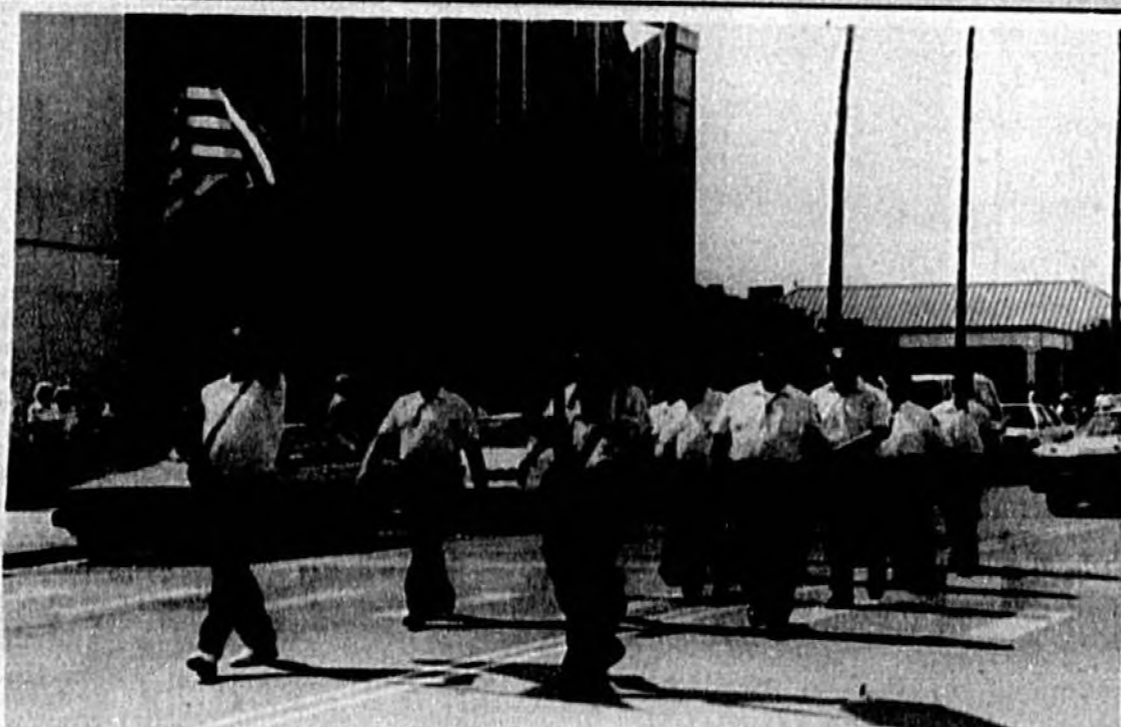

Kathy disappeared after she left a friend's home in the Carriage Cove mobile home park in Sanford. She reportedly asked Meyers, who lived nearby, for a ride home. They stopped at a convenience store so Engles would make a telephone call. Meyers told police. He claims Engles disappeared while he talked to two women at the store. Police later discovered the store was closed at the time Meyers claimed it was open.

SANFORD — As Sanford's annual Memorial Day Parade wound its way from the Chamber of Commerce building on E. First Street, to Veteran's Park on the Sanford lakefront yesterday, some participants reflected that few young people were involved.

The weather was perfect for the event, although storm clouds were beginning to make their appearance along the horizon.

The parade consisted mostly of marching units representing the various veterans organizations and their auxiliaries in the north Seminole County area. Music for the parade

Red Cross seeks help

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

The American Red Cross is seeking help in case of a hurricane disaster. Needed are locations to be designated as shelters, and volunteer workers, especially those with certain health care skills.

Last year, the National Red Cross gave a three year grant to three areas in Florida including the Central Florida Chapter, which includes Seminole County.

The money is being used to fund a professional planner, Anita Gonzalez, to prepare an emergency shelter and staff building plan. She will be working with an Advisory Committee and volunteers to meet the requirements of the grant.

Gonzalez has estimated that the shelter capacity must be increased by 100,000 spaces, and at least 800 new shelter managers and 800 new shelter nurses will have to be obtained.

The American Red Cross is presently contacting governments, businesses, civic groups, and others in a massive attempt to obtain volunteers and shelter space.

The following is an overview of what is required.

Shelters

The drive for emergency shelter locations is underway throughout Central Florida, including here in Seminole County. Central Florida Chapter Emergency Services Director Ted Williams has compiled a list of requirements for shelters. "We hope people will consider sharing their building," he said.

Buildings can be churches, businesses or other structures. The most desirable are those which follow a certain criteria: located near major roads; not subject to flooding; not accessed by roadways which flood; built with a large open interior area; equipped with adequate restrooms; built with few large glass windows; and equipped with kitchen facilities.

Other desirable features include a parking lot, secured storage area and separate rooms for nursing See Hurricane, Page 5A

Families can prepare for safety

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

"Nobody in Central Florida wants to experience what another Hurricane Andrew could do, but it's all too possible, said Ted Williams, director of Emergency Preparedness for the Central Florida American Red Cross.

Hurricane season officially begins June 1st, and many people have not even begun to take steps to prepare their families.

"What would you do if basic services such as water, gas, electricity or telephones were cut off," Williams asked. "Local officials and relief workers will be on the scene after a disaster, but they can't possibly reach everyone right away."

"Your family can cope by preparing in advance and working together as a team," he suggested.

"Knowing what to do is your best protection and your responsibility."

Having worked as a disaster relief volunteer, Williams says he has learned four basic steps to safety.

● Find out what could happen to you. This includes consideration of pets, family needs, elderly, disabled, children's school or daycare, and where the individual family members may be if a hurricane strikes.

● Create a disaster plan. Meet with family members and discuss preparation. Explain the dangers of fire, severe weather and earthquakes to children. Pick two places to meet in an emergency and give everyone phone numbers of others to contact. Also ask an out-of-state friend to be a family contact should members become separated.

● Get ready. Post emergency phone numbers, teach children how and when to call 9-1-1, how to turn off the water, gas and electricity, and use a fire extinguisher. Also stock up with needed supplies such as a three day supply of water, first aid kit, emergency tools and batteries, and other items which may be needed for special situations.

● Practice and maintain the plan. Quiz the children every few months See Prepare, Page 5A

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Russians coming to the Cape

CAPE CANAVERAL — The Russian Space Agency is to open up an office in December to help prepare the shuttle Atlantis for a series of missions to dock with the Mir space station.

About a half dozen RSA officials will staff the office, officials say.

"They'll probably get here when their hardware gets here," said Conrad Nagel, the NASA manager in charge of preparing Atlantis for launch and landing.

The Russian engineers are to provide technical assistance as NASA contractor technicians install a Russian docking device in the $2 billion shuttle.

Dubbed the Orbiter Docking System, the device will enable Atlantis to link up with Russia's Mir space station about 250 miles above Earth.

The shuttle missions to Mir are part of a $400 million deal hammered out between the U.S. and Russia late last year.

The sweeping agreement also calls for the two nations to band together and build an international space station near the end of the decade along with the European Space Agency, Japan and Canada.

Skating may be banned in parks

ORLANDO — In-line skating in city parks could soon go the same way as skateboarding, shooting arrows and sitting in trash cans.

The City Council is expected to ban it next week.

If the prohibition is adopted, skaters could be fined up to $500 and spend as many as 60 days in jail, the same penalties now applied to killing birds and other activities that are illegal in the city's parks.

The proposal upsets in-line skating enthusiasts, who argue Orlando's 2,422 acres of parks are among the area's few safe recreational havens.

"This is a very popular sport," said Steve Heller, a 29-year-old skater. "You'll find people doing their best to find places to do this where they won't get run over by cars."

Mayor, Glenda Hood, who supports the ban, said she understands Heller's sentiments but is more concerned with ensuring the safety of the majority of people who use parks for things like walking or playing with children.

U.S. equipment unloaded in Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas — A bargeload of U.S. military vehicles was unloaded near here Monday, but U.S. officials insisted the action was not a precursor to an invasion of Haiti.

At least 29 pieces of equipment, including jeeps, light transport trucks, at least one fuel trailer, excavation equipment and two ambulances, were brought ashore on Arawak Cay, a manmade island near the Bahamian capital, the Nassau Tribune reported.

"Let me make it very, very clear," said Maj. Matthew Smith of the U.S. Atlantic Command in Washington. "This is not a pre-staging point for an invasion of Haiti. We are carrying no weapons. This was planned well over a year ago."

Lt. Commander Douglas Bird, naval liaison officer at the U.S. Embassy in Nassau, said the vehicles will be used in a two-month training exercise for members of the U.S. Marine Corps' Eighth Engineer Support Battalion based at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Reached by telephone, base spokesman Capt. Todd Taylor said he wasn't certain about the unit's activities.

"I can't say you this, it's probably not directly related to Haiti. The only reason I say that is that most of the training exercises that take place that far from Camp Lejeune would have been scheduled months in advance."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Voices of Florida

Citizens in north, south have mostly similar political concerns

By Associated Press

The concerns of North Florida voters traditionally have differed in large measure from those of voters in the more liberal south. But 1994 may be different, according to a poll conducted for six Florida newspapers.

With the exception of casino gambling and gun control, there were no statistically significant differences on a variety of issues such as drug abuse, taxes, abortion, prison building and elderly care.

When asked about whether "tougher gun-control laws" are vital to Florida's future, 56 percent of South Floridians rated it as critical, compared to 32 percent of voters in North Florida, where hunting is a favored pastime. Forty-four percent of all Floridians favored stricter gun control.

"We need to lobby for the guns to be off the street and out of kids' hands, period," said Frankie Ingram of Cutler Ridge.

The poll was conducted earlier this month for The Miami Herald, The St. Petersburg Times, Bradenton Herald, Tallahassee Democrat, The News of Boca Raton and Florida Times-Union. It is part of the Voices of Florida project, an effort at the six papers to allow voters to decide coverage of the 1994 gubernatorial race.

A 54 percent majority of South Florida voters favored casino gambling, saying it would create more jobs and lure more tourists and money to the state. In contrast, 53 percent of Floridians elsewhere were opposed to casinos, saying they would spawn crime and prostitution.

In general, South Florida voters seemed more concerned than their counterparts elsewhere about the need to control immigration — by a 67 to a 62 percent level. But South Floridians were less inclined to forcibly repatriate Haitians caught trying to escape their troubled Caribbean nation.

That could be because most South Floridians are immigrants themselves, says University of Florida political scientist Richard Scher.

"People always seem to be more afraid of the mob coming from the highway than they are about the mob that lives among them," he said.

Regent: Eliminate tenure, eradicate complacency

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — If the newest member of Florida's Board of Regents has his way, professors at the state's 10th university will not be able to secure tenure.

"If it works, I think we'd be foolish not to do it at our other universities," says Steve Uhlfelder. "I want Florida to be out in front on this."

Uhlfelder will make his first move Wednesday — the regents are holding a day-long tenure workshop in Orlando to review the practice and whether it is needed.

Uhlfelder's plan calls for elimination of tenure first at the 10th university, being built in Fort Myers, and then spread the concept to the other nine schools.

Florida university professors normally get tenure — in essence, job security — after five years of working on yearly contracts. Tenure ensures that professors cannot be fired except for extreme circumstances and ensures academic freedom, allowing professors to debate ideas or conduct research without fear of reprisal.

"The provost at one of the major universities in Florida told me that the biggest problem he has is the non-productivity of tenured faculty," Uhlfelder said. "If your colleagues were promised lifetime employment, don't you think their performance might change?"

Educators, however, say it's unlikely tenure — practiced at virtually all universities nationwide — will be eliminated. One nationwide survey showed that 23 states are considering modifying to dismantling the tenure system.

Uhlfelder has few fans among professors.

Five drown in undercurrents in Nassau County

By Associated Press

AMERICAN BEACH — Holiday swimmers were trapped by a sudden ocean rip tide that drowned five people and dragged six others underwater.

Frenzied beachgoers raced to the beach about 5:40 p.m. on Memorial Day to save victims as bodies began washing ashore, witnesses said.

"I've never seen that many bodies wash up at one time," said Deridre Logan of Jacksonville. "I'll never forget this day. I don't believe this is happening."

Three women, a man and an 11-year-old boy drowned, authorities said.

"We think one boy got in trouble and they all tried to help," said Chief Michael Green, head of Nassau County Fire and Rescue.

The dead were identified as Johnny Brown Hills Jr., 11, Phillip Jerome McWhite, 23 and Lydia Sapp, 40, all of Jacksonville. Names of two of the dead women were not being released pending notification of next of kin, said Geiger.

A 41-year-old woman was in serious condition at University Hospital and a man was in stable condition at Nassau General Hospital, Geiger said. Four other swimmers were treated and released.

The drownings provoked beachgoers, most of whom had come to attend an African-American cultural festival, to question why no lifeguards were present at the Nassau County beach.

Sheriff Ray Geiger said he planned to meet with commissioners this week to discuss the lifeguard situation.

Murder

The teen's grandparents said they had a loving and close relationship with her, but she never contacted them after she disappeared. She did not take any clothing or belongings or try to withdraw any money from her bank account, helping negate the theory she was a runaway.

Police also have photographs of scratches on Meyers' arms and the imprint of what appeared to be a tennis shoe on his abdomen.

Earlier this year at a hearing to prevent the photos from being used at trial, Meyers claimed the photographs were the product of a warrantless search at his home. Further, he testified the photographs were forcibly taken by Lake Mary Police while he was at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on an unrelated matter. He also claimed he requested an attorney at the time but did not get one before the photographs were taken.

Meyers rejected an offer from the state attorney allowing him to plead guilty to a charge of second degree murder and serve 25 years in prison if he would reveal the location of Engle's body. Meyers maintains he is innocent. The penalty for conviction of first degree murder is either death or life in prison without the possibility of parole for 25 years. The state is now seeking the death penalty.

Drug charges

Lotta Troutman, 40, 4510 Richard Allen Rd., Lake Monroe, was charged with possession of a controlled substance by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Sunday.

Deputies responded to a call that someone was illegally dumping trash. When they arrived, they found Troutman fishing.

They also report finding a quantity of marijuana in front of his car. They also smelled a strong odor of marijuana burning, they reported.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. Bond had not yet been set.

'Crack' cocaine possession

Kelly Arlene Armstrong, 18, 1819 Summerlin Ave., Sanford, was charged with possession of crack cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia by Sanford Police on Friday.

Police said they had had complaints of people smoking crack cocaine in an alley between 4th and 5th Streets near Sanford Avenue.

When they arrived, they reported found Armstrong in the area. When she agreed to a search, they found a piece of crack cocaine and a smoking device in her shoe. She told officers that they were not hers.

She was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $5,000 bond.

Drug sale charged

Jerry Keith Parker, 26, 5 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was charged with the sale and delivery of crack cocaine by Sanford Police on Friday.

Police said he sold an undercover agent $10 worth of crack near 11th Street and Maple.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $5,000 bond.

Burglary attempt

Ralph W. Pelham, 25, 566 Seminole Ave., Longwood, was charged with attempted unarmed burglary by Longwood Police on Saturday.

Police said witnesses saw him trying to pry open a sliding glass door at a home in the 500 block of Seminole Avenue in Longwood with a screwdriver.

He was detained by neighbors until police arrived.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Eagle Scout project

John Matchett, manager of Boat World in Longwood, hands Alan Montgomery the keys to a 1994 18-foot Robalo fishing boat with 150 hp Mercury outboard. The company is donating the boat to the youth's golf tournament June 6. As a project to complete his requirements for Eagle Scout, the 13-year old member of Boy Scout Troop 854, Lake Mary, has organized an 18-hole charity scramble at Timacuan Golf Club to benefit Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women. The boat, along with a wide assortment of other prizes, including several items autographed by Palmer, will be awarded to participating golfers. Players can reserve a spot in the tournament by calling 333-3500. The fee for an individual is $125 or $400 for a foursome.

Parents take turns with tough words

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Pity the contestants in this spelling bee. Not only did they have to spell brain busters like "xyloglyphy," "coccygeal" and "ichneumon," but they had to do it under the gaze of the best spellers in the land — their children.

The parents of the kids in this year's National Spelling Bee battled into the wee hours of the morning in an orthographic showdown of their own.

It ended at 1 a.m. when a trio of parents snored the crown — and $750 each in cash and other prizes — by spelling "xyloglyphy."

"Is it from the Greek, 'glyphen,' to carve?" Dr. Steve Urban, an internist from Amarillo, Texas, asked the judges in the 13th and climactic round.

Assured that it was, the doctor rattled off the correct spelling of the abstruse word for an artistic wood carving. His partners were Runi Niyogi of Willingboro, N.J., and Dorothy Leung of Littleton, Colo.

Most of the 238 children who will compete this Wednesday and Thursday had long since retreated upstairs to their hotel room beds when the inaugural "Parents of Champions" contest drew to a close.

The children must compete alone, but the 192 parents willing to brave their first spelling bee in decades vied in threesomes. It took six hours and 241 words to sort out the winners.

The very first team bombed out on beriness, meaning full of emotion.

"We had lots of different ideas, none of which were correct," said Jan Van Oort of New Prague, Minn.

With money at stake, the adults gave it their all, badgering the official pronouncer to repeat words, read them in sentences and give the language of origin.

Most of the parents breezed through opening rounds with such easy words as reluctant, precipitately, convalesce and rhetorical.

One team got tripped up by "bureaucracy."

"I can't believe you got it wrong," Suyun Hong, 13, of Primos, Pa., upbraided her mother, Chris Hong.

"I really did not want to do this," laughed Ellen Friedman of Teaneck, N.J., after bowing out on "saboteur."

"I love you anyway," consoled her 13-year-old daughter, Leyna. A.M. Faizullah of Midland, Texas, was disconsolate when he flubbed "enunciator" by leaving out the second "n." "That word should be right," he apologized to his teammates.

"You freeze. Your mind goes blank," said Deborah L. Huston of Marion, Ind.

"The kids got a laugh. That's what's important," said Pamela J. Ford of Jackson, Tenn.

"It's kind of scary. You appreciate what your kids are going through," Johnny Waters, a geologist from Carrollton, Ga., who blew synonymy, a list of synonyms or scientific nomenclature that means the same.

Three women were bounced in Round Two for spelling capucino with one p — only to be summoned back an hour later when the judges decided their alternate spelling was kosher.

"Who protested?" grumbled Katherine Dittoe of Martins Ferry, Ohio, who had to be roused from bed to return to the ballroom. She and her family had risen at 2:30 a.m. Monday to make the trek to Washington.

They made it through the third round by spelling campanology, but washed out on round four on laudanum.

"What a hummer," Linda Ulrich of Toledo, Ohio, remarked aloud after her team booted maelstrom in the second round.

The winners breezed through such words as esquisse (a rough sketch), corymb (a cluster of flowers), luteovirescent (greenish-yellow), ichneumon (a mungoos), terreplein (a level space behind a rampart) and rhyparography (the painting of sordid subjects) before being matched against three other finalists.

They nailed lettichous — straight, smooth hair — while their rivals missed ophelimity, a word for economic satisfaction. Zyglophy sealed their triumph.

The runners up were D.K. Sharma of Alexandria, La., Ruth Ann Crites of Romney, W.Va., and Linda Loeffler of Merced, Calif., who each received $250 worth of dictionaries and other prizes.

Are you ready for hurricane season?

Don't you just hate it? You have a problem because you failed to take preventative action, and someone says, "I told you so."
 We hope this doesn't happen because of a hurricane. Wednesday, June 1 marks the start of the hurricane season. Not many have occurred in the first months of the season. Most have struck during August and September.

Local governments have already formulated plans in case of such a disaster. They have determined who will be in charge of specific operations under almost any circumstance. In case a hurricane hits on a non-work day, chains of command and alternate operations persons have been listed.

People know where the communications center will be, and where emergency housing will be set up in case homes are destroyed.

The question remains, how well-prepared will our business leaders and home owners be.

Since the last hurricane caused damage in the Sanford and Lake Mary area, we have had thousands of new residents move in. A large percentage of our population has never experienced winds of over 75 miles per hour.

Possibly the closest many have come to realizing the disaster which can occur, are familiar with the devastation of Hurricane Andrew which struck the Homestead area.

People become complacent. Because we live in an interior county, many believe we would not be subject to high winds. Most hurricanes lose their speed once they begin to cross land.

Yet Hurricane Donna, one of the most severe to strike Sanford back in 1960, had winds of up to 93 miles per hour. It drove the waters of Lake Monroe up to First Street, and flooded many downtown businesses.

Donna, Cleo, Dora, and other hurricanes have proven that this mid-state county isn't immune.

The American Red Cross has a number of pamphlets with suggestions for plans to follow in protecting your family, home and business. Others give information on how to prepare an emergency supply kit.

On death penalty

We are a far cry from sending the Christians to the lions. The death penalty in its modern form and throughout history, has been an ever-present factor in society. Today the ritual is less sacrificial, but the end result is the taking of a life.

Capital punishment is society's way of distinguishing between killings. Jurors must render an unbiased judgment based on the facts.

Richard Nixon stated, "I am convinced that the death penalty can be an effective deterrent against specific crimes." Nixon's statement was directed at that part of society with a conscience.

Take the average Joe on the street with his struggle for survival. Is it at all conceivable that he walks around thinking about the death penalty?

Then there are the people of the street, those who, on a day-to-day basis, deal with death. For these people death is nothing to be feared. The hardest thing these people will ever do is live.

The death penalty is in direct violation of man's spiritual being. The very thing that he holds dear, life itself, can be terminated with the flip of a switch. Is the lesson to be learned for the living?

We must be concerned about the messages we are sending our children. How do we distinguish between killings? How do we tell a child that capital punishment is a right way to take a life? How do we tell them that it is for the good of mankind that we do this?

We do not. Instead, we leave them to their own thoughts concerning a matter of this magnitude. For the most part, it is accepted, overlooked or tolerated.

The time to criticize ourselves and our neighbors is now. Question people and their beliefs, and do not let them back down from the uncertainty of the future. Give them the knowledge that they can shape the future by facing the issues of today.

There is a feeling of hopelessness when people get caught up in this type of situation. They find themselves having to make a stand for something they may not believe in.

There are those who refuse to walk either side of the issue. This sort of passive behavior has left society dormant where such matters are concerned. As a result of these attitudes, we have become emotional cripples; we merely coexist.

Is it possible that society condones this behavior, or is it easier to take on the attitude of if it does not touch us, then it does not affect us? We go on living our lives, avoiding the issue and overlooking a moral decay in society.

U.S. heads toward a state of futility

If Frederic-Auguste Bartholdi were alive today, he might be commissioned to erect a statue to complement his famous Lady Liberty. Perhaps the new sculpture would be called the Statue of Futility.

While Liberty stands, torch aloft, in New York Harbor welcoming legal immigrants to America, Lady Futility would be placed somewhere along the U.S.-Mexico border here in San Diego. She would greet the hundreds of thousands of illegal immigrants who spirit themselves into this country year by year.

Almost everyone agrees that for much of the past two centuries, immigration has been a boon to the United States. Not just the first wave of immigration, from the 1890s to 1920s, when millions of mostly European expatriates arrived on these shores. And not just the second wave, which occurred following World War II.

But also the third wave, which took place over the past two decades, and which brought millions of new immigrants to the United States from the Pacific Rim, the Middle East and Latin America.

But there is a big difference between those three major waves of immigration and the latest wave that the nation is experiencing. The earlier immigrants were mostly legal. The latest arriving immigrants, who disproportionately hail from south of the border, are increasingly illegal.

Indeed, during the 1980s, up to 700,000 people a year legally immigrated to this country. In 1992, roughly 1.1 million people were arrested for illegally entering the United States, more than half of whom were intercepted along the San Diego border.

While most legal immigrants to the United States tend to be industrious, tend to enhance the nation's gross domestic product, the same cannot be said of the growing legion of illegals. Many do work on this side of the border. But their output is insufficient to offset the costs of those who come here and draw upon government services.

They represent a net economic loss to California and other border states. They are a burden on public resources.

In a recent year, for instance, 63 percent of babies born in Los Angeles County public hospitals were the offspring of illegal immigrants. An estimated 20 percent of Orange County's welfare caseload were children born to illegals.

Some 22 percent of felony arrests in San Diego County were illegal aliens. And, statewide, 17 percent of the total public school population were the children of illegal immigrants.

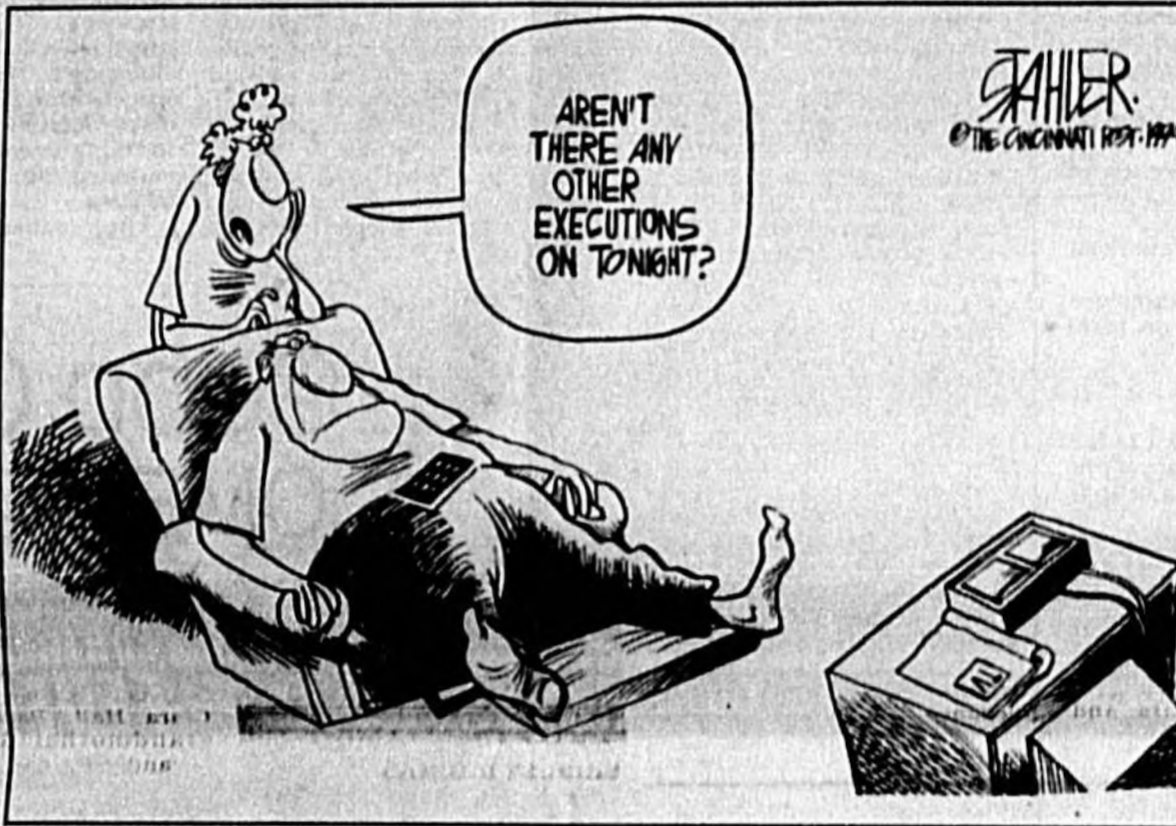

Even factoring in the taxes paid by illegal aliens, California officials figure that they drain a net $5 billion a year from state and local coffers. The cost of providing various and sundry government services to illegals adds at least $400 a year to each California family's tax burden.

During the go-go days of the 1980s, when the California economy was growing by leaps and bounds, the state could absorb the expense of the illegal immigrant influx without posing a real hardship on the state's legal residents.

But times have changed. California has endured four years of recession. State revenues have fallen off precipitously. California residents have been hit with both state and federal tax hikes.

Perhaps the new sculpture would be called the Statue of Futility.

Church: A good place to start

WASHINGTON — "Women's Day."

Once, I assumed that an all-female church service — actually, women taking almost any central role in church — would be a bit of a drag. Why?

Memories. Of being 8 and trying to avoid deep-cleaved women in aggressively flowered hats. They'd pounce on you at church, crease you into their perfumed embrace and exclaim, "Haven't you grown!" Of earnest ladies droning about the "sick and shut-ins." Of sermons about women being somebody's "helpmate."

All a kid could think was, "Isn't church bad enough without this?"

All an adult with such memories could do on a recent Sunday was to pray she'd had enough coffee to stay awake through Women's Day at the Rev. Zan Holmes' St. Luke Community United Methodist Church in Dallas, where I was in town for a wedding. Two steps into St. Luke's new sanctuary and caffeine was moot.

One look at the all-female choir — on Women's Day male members sit with the congregation — provided more than enough jolt.

Every woman, from a velvet-black singer in gold to a bespectacled white sister in silver, wore a unique, traditional African dress. And every woman — from the turbaned matron whose ivory taftan was traced by a slim river of sequins to the 20-ish sister in an orange-draped print whose headwrap was knotted in a fanciful bow — looked good. "Let the Holy Ghost," they all sang, "move you."

After years of choirs in sedate, matched robes, it was amazing, like stumbling onto four rows of tropical birds, singing, swaying, syncopating for the Lord.

When the choir was seated, a large, rosy woman in a blue caftan moved to the lectern. "Who am I?" asked the Rev. Yolande Herron-Palmore, her voice imposing. "I am a woman, fearfully and wonderfully made..."

For some, that isn't enough. Herron-Palmore, visiting from Houston's Windsor Village United Methodist Church, described her minister father's reaction to her announcement that she'd been called to preach.

He said that she had better go talk to Him again to verify the quote. Hearing her, I thought of the women, fearfully and wonderfully made, who've provided the backbone, and the bulk of membership, for nearly every church I've attended. I thought of the myriad women who gather, weekly, at churches, temples and synagogues everywhere — holding things together bolstering the mostly male leadership, putting on picnics, socials and testimonials to keep the church, and the Spirit, alive.

I thought of the women who never set foot in church — material girls who see it as useless in a material world, career women who dismiss religion as just another sexist institution for having denied women a voice in its pulpits and its decisions. Women like my ex-Catholic friend, who described my wedding as "perfect — except that there was an awful lot of God in it."

I can't feign superiority — I too avoided church when it seemed that the Lord demanded that I give up far more than He, or She, was giving.

Though God "endowed" women a particular power to influence men, children and each other, said Herron-Palmore, "it isn't the gift, but how you use it."

How do women use it? In fearful, wonderful — and unique — ways. Herron-Palmore, whose style is more cozy than confrontational, says she once tried preaching like the fellas, developing "a whoop and a moan until I realized God gave the gift of femininity."

And as much as women focus on men's perfidy — the male-perpetrated violence practiced publicly on inner-city streets and privately in suburban homes; the blindness in a government that lets one in four of our children live in poverty — we often play down our influence.

I realize this when I visit schools and hear young women speak, in these freest of times, about all they can't do. When I get letters from self-denigrating women who sing my praises but fail to acknowledge what they accomplish, and could yet accomplish, in their own homes and workplaces.

When I think of how the traditionally female province of restraint — in a world where women emulate the guys in everything from sexual casualness to work hours to cuss words per minutes — became a lost art just when it was needed most, "Every woman must realize," Herron-Palmore preached, "that she has somebody watching her. Wanting to be like her." Or wanting to be liked by her.

When she said, "We must begin where we are," I was glad to be in church. It's where traditionally black folks have gathered — in silence and making a joyful noise — to create solutions to our problems.

Once, I assumed that an all-female church service would be a bit of a drag.

Assisted suicide: Whose choice is it?

The words are elegant and eloquent in their simplicity: "...the decision of a terminally ill person to end his or her life involves the most intimate and personal choices a person can make in a lifetime, and constitutes a choice central to personal dignity and autonomy..."

They are from the opinion handed down by U.S. District Court Judge Barbara Rothstein, affirming that the Constitution guarantees terminally ill persons the right to end their own lives. The quotes she uses are from the Supreme Court's 1992 ruling in the Planned Parenthood v. Casey case, which reaffirmed a woman's fundamental right to an abortion.

Her ruling struck down a 140-year-old Washington state law barring assisted suicide. The decision allows two terminally ill plaintiffs in the suit to enlist the help of physicians to end their lives if they choose, without forcing the doctors to choose between following their hearts or becoming criminals.

"...the most intimate and personal choice a person can make," Rothstein quoted the 1992 ruling. What could be more basic to the 14th Amendment, our guarantee against state infringement of our individual liberty, than the right to end our own interminable suffering? So help me, I have never understood how one can reconcile the ideal of liberty with resistance to letting a terminally ill person choose assisted suicide.

Who is more qualified to make that decision than the person suffering from such a disease? Unfortunately, the people who have been making that decision in the 30 U.S. states which prohibit assisted suicide are the people who have the least personal contact with, or interest in, the suffering victim. Their interest is strictly in their own philosophy and making sure everyone else follows it.

I respect religious beliefs that direct believers to oppose any form of suicide, while I still believe that in no way should religious beliefs affect constitutional rights. I also respect non-religious philosophies which oppose suicide even in the cases of the terminally ill, while I don't understand the opposition. However, my tolerance ends exactly where the fiat of one person hits the nose of another, where one person would overrule the rights of another to determine the actions appropriate for the other's life.

An earlier column I wrote on physician-assisted suicide brought a letter from a reader who opposed the practice and wished I'd turn my attention to championing better pain control in cases of terminal illnesses. Certainly, inadequate pain control due to physician fear or ignorance is reprehensible, and the medical community should do everything it can to end it.

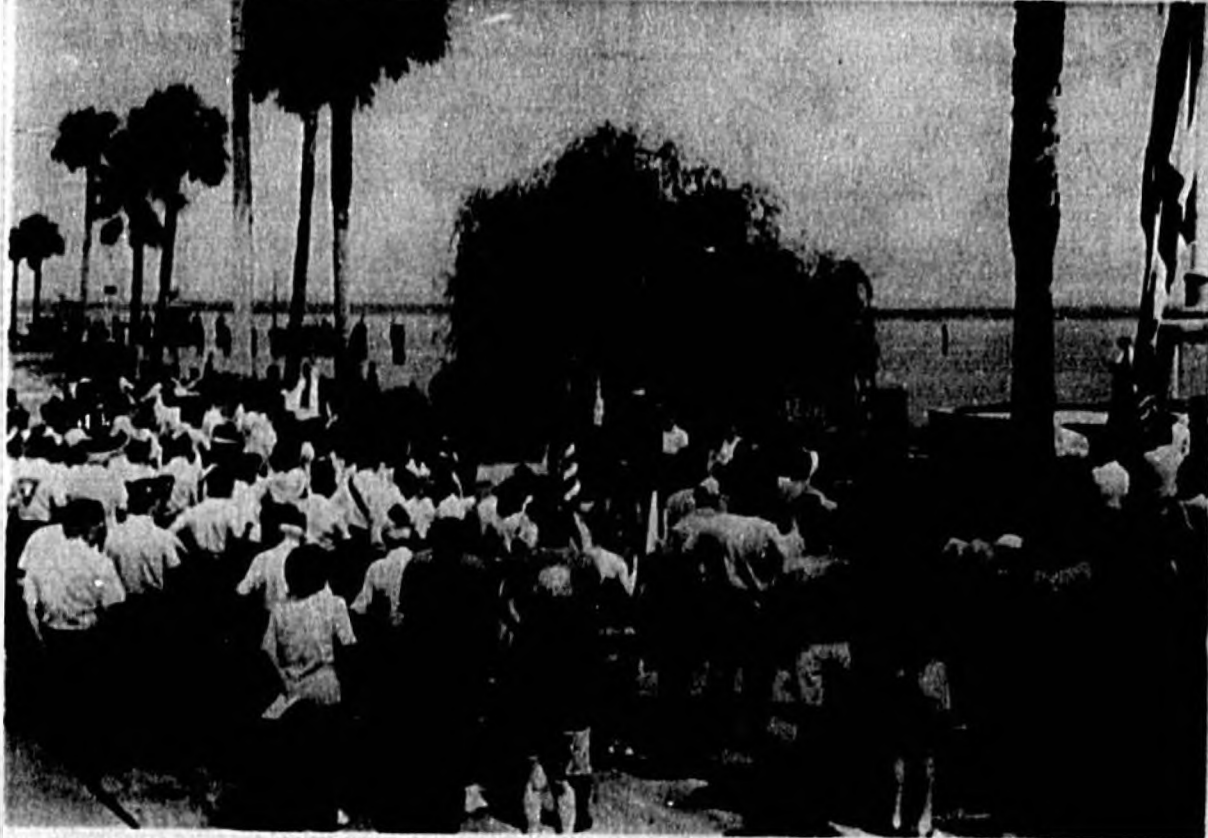

But where did it leave Joy Bol, who died of breast cancer and was allergic to painkillers? And just where was I or anyone else who wanted to take away Bol's right of self-determination when her suffering became more than she could bear? Safely out of cyberspace or earshot of Bol and her family, that's where we were. We want the right to dictate decisions about other people's lives without suffering the consequences that they do.

Not even proponents of doctor-assisted suicide believe our laws shouldn't try to prevent suicide among people "with a significant natural life ahead of them," as Rothstein put it. However, our energies should be put into developing safeguards to protect the vulnerable from others who don't have their best interests at heart, not in forcing our wills on those whose pain we will never feel.

Their interest is strictly in their own philosophy and making sure everyone else follows it.

A crowd gathers to remember veterans and war dead at the lakefront yesterday.

was supplied by the Dixieland Rascals on a flatbed truck following the marchers. The group is from American Legion Post 53, and has been a familiar sight at similar parades for many years.

Several prominent city leaders were dressed in full uniform. Sanford City Commissioner A.A. "Mac" MacClanahan and Joe Dennison, a member of the city's Planning and Zoning Board, snapped to attention and saluted each time flags carried by the marchers passed them.

MacClanahan, a lieutenant commander in the Navy, served from Feb. 1943 until 1953, and again from 1955 to 1970. Dennison, an Army lieutenant colonel, served from 1946 to 1970, except for a ten-year period from 1954 to 1964 when he was in the Army Reserve.

Both men expressed concern about the turnout. "Memorial Day seems to have a waning interest," MacClanahan said. "Judging from the people waiting for the parade along First Street, it's an indication to me that the parade seems to be for the dying of World War II generation."

"The participants seem to be purely those from that war," he observed. "Yet everybody in all wars lost friends and comrades, and it should be for everyone."

"I believe in what Mac said," Dennison commented. "There is a lack of interest. I served in World War II, the Korean and Vietnam wars, and it's those from World War II who seem to be turning out for this observance."

At the lakefront, Sanford Mayor Betty Smith gave the welcoming address. She commented, "I hope the people who are off enjoying the beach or riding in their pleasure boats don't have to learn the hard way about the seriousness of this day."

Even as the mayor spoke, two large cruisers filled with people enjoying the day, pulled out of port at the Lake Monroe Marina.

Bill Hickman, Senior Vice Commander of the Disabled American Veterans, State of Florida, gave the keynote address. He also spoke of the need to continue remembrances of men and women who gave their lives in all wars and conflicts for the safety of our nation.

He also cautioned the estimated 25 million veterans to be aware of the actions being taken by the federal government regarding veterans benefits, especially hospitalization.

He concluded his remarks by urging all people to "...do whatever they can to preserve the American ideals and the feeling of patriotism not only in themselves, but in their families as well."

The solemnness of the occasion culminated with the 21 gun salute, followed by the playing of Taps.

Meanwhile, the city hall and county courthouse parking lots, filled with veteran's vehicles, told their own story of patriotism.

Scores of vehicles bore license plates saying "Combat Wounded Veteran," "Florida Salutes Veterans," and "DAV."

In addition to the license plates, veterans' vehicles were also featured with bumper stickers aimed at furthering patriotism and our nation's freedom.

services, the elderly, and families with babies.

In order for buildings to become designated as an official Red Cross shelter, the owner or manager of the building must first contact the local Red Cross chapter, and arrange to have a volunteer visit the establishment to determine if it fills the requirements.

From that point on, there is a training period, and the business owner establishes a liaison person.

In case of an emergency, the Red Cross contacts the liaison person, and the building is put into service to help those who may need assistance during the critical time periods during and after the storm.

For information on donating a building to possibly be used as an emergency American Red Cross shelter, phone the Seminole County Red Cross office at 332-8200.

Volunteers

In keeping with what may be an increasing need for shelter areas, the American Red Cross is also seeking volunteers. People are needed to help provide a refuge, somewhere safe to stay, and nourishing food to eat.

According to Central Florida Chapter Director Ted Williams, people are needed to hold down many important jobs during the emergency.

Included in specific duties are shelter managers, and people to maintain operation records and reports; obtain resources; organize the staff as a team; organize the shelter's physical facility and resources; and solving shelter issues.

People with specialized skills are also being sought including registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, EMTs, paramedics, and others.

Emergency first aid providers who will be assigned to a specific shelter must have current Florida licenses, and have completed the same three Red Cross classes required for RNs and LPNs.

All volunteers are required to take four classes, which are free of charge.

The Red Cross offers a number of courses dealing with handling disaster situations such as hurricanes.

To offer services as a volunteer, or for additional information, phone Anita Gonzalez at the Central Florida Chapter headquarters in Orlando at 894-4141.

months ago, after two years of intensive work in designing specific areas. The resolution deals with the way conflicts are to be resolved between cities or governmental bodies in Seminole County.

The document is intended to provide a mechanism for resolving internal disputes when informal negotiations have failed.

According to a letter from Longwood City Commissioner Iris Benson, that city's CALNO representative, all cities have approved the resolution as presented by CALNO except Longwood.

None of the cities reportedly recommended any changes to the wording.

In discussion of the resolution during a recent Longwood City Commission meeting, the commissioners and city attorney made several recommended changes. Minutes from that meeting reflect that Mayor Paul Lovstrand passed the gavel in order to make a motion to have Commissioner Benson take the papers back to CALNO and ask that organization to adjust their wording.

Benson said that if Longwood didn't accept the agreement as presented, it would not be a valid interlocal agreement.

The matter is scheduled for discussion at tomorrow's CALNO meeting.

Grant

Other items for discussion include proposals dealing with gambling.

Members are expected to report on what various cities have done in approving an ordinance suggested by CALNO opposing gambling. Most cities including Sanford and Lake Mary, have adopted the proposal with unanimous votes, at previous commission meetings.

One additional item for discussion is a report on student transportation by Seminole County Schools Transportation and LYNX.

This will be the last CALNO meeting for several months, as no meetings are held in July and August.

The next meeting after tomorrow's has been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 7, in Altamonte Springs.

to determine if they remember what to do. Conduct fire and emergency evacuation drills. Replace stored water every three months, and keep a close watch on stored food for replacement. Also test smoke detectors and their batteries.

Williams says a family who follows these four steps will stand a good chance of surviving any disaster such as a hurricane.

tion secretary Ben Watts approve the grant. Watts will sign letters of approval today, said Henry.

County urban forester Mike Martin said the grant will pay for plantings in the two medians through Spring Hammock, the county's oldest nature preserve located south of Lake Mary. The project extends from County Road 419 to Shepard Road. The county will provide labor and maintenance and irrigation as needed. Labor for the project will come from county jail trustees, provided by Sheriff Don Estlinger, Martin said.

According to the county's grant application, only native or hybrid native vegetation will be used. Wildflowers will be germinated by a local elementary school before installation.

A focus of the project will be on recycling. Recycled wastewater will be used for irrigation and mulched yard debris collected from residents will be used for ground cover.

Farther south, work is expected to begin this week on landscaping three U.S. 17-92 medians in Fern Park. Vegetation for the project was provided by a $12,000 grant by Distributed Processing Technology, a Maitland company. Labor will be provided by trustees, said Sharon Goode-Lalsure, deputy county manager.

SHIRLEY R. SIMAS

Shirley R. Simas, 74, South Elm Avenue, Sanford, died Saturday, May 28, 1994, at her residence. Born Dec. 2, 1919, in Astoria, Ore., she moved to Central Florida in 1952. Mrs. Simas was a member of the Church of the Nativity, Lake Mary, the Sanford Garden Club, Wildflower Circle, the Bridge Club of Casselberry, Contract Bridge League, and the Bowling Association.

The American Dream Is Alive And Well

If honesty is the best policy, then American Dream Sales & Service is on the road to success. With more than 22 years of experience in the automobile industry, owner James Young opened the doors of his Sanford auto sales and service business on November 1 of last year with one goal in mind - complete customer satisfaction.

"We want to be the good guys," Jim says. "We want to be the mechanic and sales lot that Sanford residents brag about."

American Dream Sales & Service offers complete sales and service on a wide selection of quality pre-owned vehicles including 1970 to 1990 models cars, trucks, and vans. Jim says that what makes his business unique is that all American Dream Sales & Service vehicles are sold under full warranty.

"The car is under warranty from the day it's bought 'til the day it's paid off," he says. "Not 30 days or 60 days, but until the car is paid off."

Jim and his staff of 4 are fully trained and A.S.C. certified and offer complete vehicle service on everything from changing a tail light to rebuilding engines. Jim, a native of Central Florida, has worked for new and used auto dealerships in the past and says he got tired of the way other people did things.

"I started my own lot believing we could run an honest business and still make a living," he says. In the seven months since opening, Jim and his crew have already sold more than 120 vehicles and Jim says his auto repair service is growing so rapidly, that he plans to open a second lot in the Longwood-Casselberry area this summer.

"Thank you, Sanford. We knew that with honesty, we could achieve our goal!"

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Miami eliminates Gators

CORAL GABLES — The College World Series begins Friday and Miami will be there, thanks in large measure to Alex Miranda.

Miranda, relegated to reserve status this season, saved his best for last. He led the Hurricanes to a 10-6 victory over cross-state rival Florida on Monday, earning his team a berth in the World Series in Omaha, Neb.

The first baseman lost his starting role during the regular season and batted just .224 with two home runs and seven RBI.

But he nearly doubled those stats during Miami's (48-12) four Atlantic I Regional wins.

In the win over the Gators (40-21), Miranda hit a disputed home run that tied the game 4-4 in the seventh inning and turned the momentum Miami's way. He ended the tournament 7-of-13 with six RBI, and was named the MVP.

Florida coach Joe Arnold, his players, fans and reporters all felt Miranda's homer was at least two feet wide of the foul pole.

The Hurricanes rendered the debate moot when Michael Torti tagged a three-run homer in the eighth and a 7-4 lead.

FSU advances

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State has never won a College World Series, but then again it's never had the pitching it'll take to Omaha, Neb.

The Seminoles (52-20) won the NCAA Atlantic II Regional tournament Monday 7-1 over Brigham Young as lefthander Mike Bell pitched his team's third straight complete game.

FSU gave up just nine runs in the tournament, and only one in each of the last three games as Paul Wilson and Charlie Cruz joined Bell in complete game performances.

Tournament MVP Mike Martin Jr. slammed a 3-run homer in the fifth inning that gave the Seminoles a 5-1 cushion.

Martin, son of Florida State coach Mike Martin, hit .400 in the tournament, homered twice and drove in six runs while catching every inning. He was a unanimous pick for the award.

AROUND THE NATION

Marlins blow win

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros beat the Florida Marlins in a contest of blown opportunities. The Marlins blew more, and it was Craig Biggio who came up the elusive key hit.

Biggio's bases-loaded two-out single in the bottom of the ninth broke a tie and gave Houston a 4-3 victory. Up to that point, the Marlins had left 11 runners on base, 10 in the first six innings. The Astros left nine.

'Wild Thing' may be gone

NEW YORK — Mitch Williams, who predicted he would be released, will be put on waivers today by the Houston Astros.

Williams, 29, met with Astros' management and was told of the decision, sources told the AP. Philadelphia traded Williams to Houston for pitchers Doug Jones and Jeff Juden on Dec. 2, slightly more than a month after he gave up a game-ending homer to Joe Carter that won the World Series for Toronto.

Williams is 1-4 with a 7.65 ERA and six saves this season after going 3-7 with a 3.34 ERA and a Philadelphia record 43 saves last season.

Price wins playoff

FORT WORTH, Texas — Nick Price birdied the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with Scott Simpson to win the rain-delayed Southwestern Bell Colonial and become this year's first two-time winner on the PGA Tour.

Price, who earned $252,000, completed a 6-under-par 64 and Simpson finished off a 71 for 14-under 266 totals on the Colonial Country Club course. Hale Irwin was one back after a 65.

Krzyzewski to reveal plans

DURHAM, N.C. — Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski was expected to reveal whether he would act on overtures from the NBA during a news conference today.

The Herald-Sun of Durham reported today that two Duke sources said Krzyzewski would remain at the school, which he led to consecutive NCAA titles in 1991 and 1992. The News & Observer of Raleigh said Krzyzewski told team members that he was staying.

Arizona wins softball crown

OKLAHOMA CITY — Susie Parra threw a one-hitter for her 20th straight victory as Arizona beat Cal State-Northridge 4-0 for its second straight NCAA title and third since 1991. Parra (33-1) allowed only a two-out double in the first inning and a two-out walk in the seventh to finish her career 101-9. Arizona finished the season 64-3 and Northridge was 52-10.

Colleges ink 28 Lake Brantley High School grads

Special to the Herald

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — To advance to the higher level of state tournament play in what is generally considered the top three sports it takes athletes with division one potential and normally attracts the division one scouts.

That was evident at Lake Brantley High School this year as six players from the football (state quarterfinals), baseball (state semifinals) and girls' basketball (regionals) teams have inked NCAA Div. I scholarships for next season.

The group is led by fullback/outfielder Jeff Butler, who led Florida in rushing with 273 carries, 2,125 yards, 7.8 yards per carry and 22 touchdowns while on the football team that lost to national power Bradenton-Manatee and was the leading hitter with a .419 average on a squad that fell two runs short of making the Class 5A state finals.

The 6-foot, 2-inch, 220-pound Butler will attend Atlantic Coast Conference power North Carolina State on a football grant, but will also play on the powerful Wolfpack baseball team in the spring. Among the teams he chose NC State over were Florida and Alabama.

Also attempting to be a two-sport college athlete will be Jeff Shaw. The field general for the Patriot football team, finishing second to Butler in Seminole County in rushing with 1,022 yards, Shaw will probably be a defensive back when he gets to Southeast Missouri. He also hopes to play baseball after batting .402 and hitting two home runs in the regional championship game.

Two other young men from the baseball team will also be playing at the Div. I level, but they will be strictly baseball players.

Pitchers Mitch Schardt and Brian Krot will join Oviatt's Mark Bellhorn at Auburn University, which advanced to this weekend's College World Series after claiming a regional title Monday.

Schardt, a 6-foot, 5-inch righthander, may be the second best pitcher in the state behind Sarasota All-American Doug Millon. The lean 200-pounder was 10-2 this

No changes in Lake Mary adult softball

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — If you like close competition, this was not a good week to watch the action in the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks & Recreation Spring Adult Softball League at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

But if you like a lot of offense, it was a good week.

Only one of the six games played last Thursday and Friday evening's was closer than five runs, and that game had Cheers scoring two runs in the top of the seventh inning to edge Thirsty Whale Too, 12-11, in the Thursday Night League.

In other Thursday night action, All State doubled up 12 after 5, 10-5, and Suncrest Title hammered Thirsty Whale Pub, 19-7.

Undefeated Suncrest Title (4-0) holds onto the top spot in the Thursday League, but All State and Cheers are breathing down their necks with 3-1 marks. Trailing the leaders are Thirsty Whale Too (2-2) and 12 after 5 and Thirsty Whale Pub (both 0-4).

This week, Suncrest Title plays Thirsty Whale Too at 6:30 p.m.; Thirsty Whale Pub takes on 12 after 5 at 7:30 p.m.; and All State battles Cheers at 8:30 p.m.

Friday night saw nothing but blow outs, with none of the three games going past the fifth inning.

Griffin Construction clubbed Cumberland Farms, 14-1; Florida Manor crushed the Braves, 17-3; and PRISM whitewashed Sanford Paint & Body, 20-0.

The Friday standings is similar to the Thursday rankings as undefeated Florida Manor (4-0) leads PRISM (3-1) by a game. But Griffin Construction (2-2) stands third and the other three teams, Cumberland Farms, the Braves and Sanford Paint & Body are all 1-3.

This week, PRISM faces the Braves at 6:30 p.m.; Sanford Paint & Body challenges Griffin Construction at 7:30 p.m.; and Cumberland Farms looks to derail Florida Manor at 8:30 p.m.

The hitters in the Thursday League were:

All State — Leduc (four hits), Knipfling (two singles, triple), Smith (two singles, double), Weston, Phillips, Smart (three singles), Jakubowski (single, double), Johannes (two singles).

Daring last lap move gives Cox win on VCS dirt

By BILL SIEBERT
 Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Tuck Trentham of Orange City and Mike Cox of St. Augustine battled for 21 of the 30 laps in Friday night's Late Model feature on the dirt track at Volusia County Speedway, Cox nosing to an inside move out of turn four on the last lap to slip by Trentham for the win.

Trentham took the lead from John Rankin on lap seven, then started getting a strong challenge from Cox on lap nine as pole sitter Rankin ended up slipping back to 11th in the 14-car field.

"Tuck kept getting looser and looser and I touched him a little bit," Cox said of the incident on the final lap when he cut inside on Trentham, then coming high and caught a little sheet metal on Trentham's Kar House Chevrolet Lumina. "There's a lot of happy people in the pits. There's a lot of happy people all over the place."

Cox and Trentham ran away from the rest of the pack as Mike Hainey, Wayne Shugart and Mike Anderson finished out the top five.

Stratton started on the pole but had to slip into the pits after running into the wall on the first lap. But by the end of the third lap, Stratton was on Ken Scott's tail and remained there until taking the lead on lap nine and holding the top spot until the end of the 15-lapper.

Stratton and Scott were followed across the stripe by Davy Cline, Charlie Staats and Todd Ponce.

Mathen was on the outside pole at the start of the Pro Stocks, but was able to get around Richard Adams before the completion of the first lap, and stayed there until the end of the race.

"My car is running looser than it should," Mathen told track announcer Tom Tipton in the Sportsolution Winners Circle after the race. "Adams raced me real clean. I have to thank him in the pits for that."

Mathen took the checkered flag ahead of the strong running Adams, Brian Bales, Tom Lowe and Randy Hecker.

Gaine started on the inside of the second row of the Hobby Stock feature, but ran to the front as Lonnie Register and Howard Keitham started slipping to the back on the first lap. Gaine never looked back, but Keitham returned to be a late challenger, getting on Gaine's bumper for the final five laps.

"I just do what it feels like at the time," Gaine said after the race. "If (the car) runs low, I go low. If it runs high, I go high."

Gaine and Keitham led the way as Mike Buckles, Lawrence Ednie and Toby Sims rounded out the top five.

Volusia County Speedway returns to dirt racing Friday night, June 4, with the four regular divisions racing along with a showing by the Florida Legends. Gates open at 6 p.m. with the heat races starting at 8:30 p.m.

'Big Sister' rewarding to volunteer

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

CASELBERRY — Linda LaVardera moved to Florida 11 years ago from Ohio. She wanted to become more involved in a volunteer program in some capacity. She looked into different organizations and decided upon the Big Brother/Big Sister Program of Central Florida, which she has been with now for five-and-a-half years. "I've always been involved in volunteer work in some way like the missing children work and nursing home work," she said. "I wanted to do something that was making a difference on a one-to-one basis. I like working with kids."

Being employed as a marketing sales representative at Rogers Benefit Group has kept LaVardera busy, but not enough that she doesn't make time for the Little Sister she was assigned. LaVardera has been married for two years to her husband, Doug. They are members of the St. Stephens Catholic Church in Winter Springs. She stated they have no children but "just a dog." She said that the program also may have filled a need from childhood, because she always wanted a little sister after growing up with two big brothers. Admitting that she wanted a "little sister" with a father-having-custody situation, and that is how it worked out. "I was a afraid if it was a mother-having-custody situation, she might feel it was a competition for the girl's affections," she said. "I didn't want it to turn into a situation where I would be doing all the fun things with her and the mom would get stuck with the discipline." LaVardera elaborated on how placement is handled and her experiences with her little sister. "When a person calls the organization they are asked to fill out a questionnaire. They should give two references. They then interview you in your home and see what you really want to get out of this and what your expectations are. They discuss situations that can arise and how you would deal with it. Religious preference and custody factors are also talked about."

LaVardera received her little sister when the child was 10 years old. "She was just a little girl when I met her," she said. "I watched her grow through her pre-teen years and now a teenager. Her grades were poor at first. I've seen the changes in her and the positive influence. She knows she can come and talk to me about anything. I try to open up her mind to helping other people and what she wants to do with her life. She's helping her own little sister now and she's learning to be a big sister too. It's really kind of a role cross at times. I'm a big sister and a mother with her."

LaVardera spoke fondly of her little sister's involvement in her wedding. LaVardera and her little sister also went on a Bahamas cruise together. "She was in our wedding," she said. "That was so special for me and for her. I got to teach her proper etiquette. When she went on the cruise with me, I was the parent. It doesn't mean you have to spend a lot of money. The time has been so special. We've done homework together too." Getting more out of the program than she bargained for was how LaVardera felt. "When I signed up for the program I never realized what I would get out of it too. She's given so much back to me. There's so many things that I've learned. I love the flexibility of the program. You commit to getting with them at least once a month for a year. I've been lucky, she's really a good kid. She just got a job. I'm really proud of her."

Making a difference with the kids of today for a better world tomorrow was exactly what LaVardera has done. Her care and concern was so admirable. For more information about the Big Brother/Big Sister program call (407) 897-3434.

The Greater Seminole LaSertoma Club (Ladies in Service to Mankind) held its final meeting of 1993-94 at the Timacuan Country Club.

The meeting opened with introductions and welcome by the president, Marilyn Armstrong. Joyce Cable, LaSertoma governor of mid-Florida, recognized the 53 sponsors and contributors. Pat Stone, club chaplain, conducted the invocation.

Fashion Show Chairman Patricia Moore Smith presented charming spring and fall fashions from Gayfers. The lovely models displayed both casual and formal attire.

In addition to the brunch and fashion show, there were door prizes, entertainment and a silent auction. Members and guests browsed the many desirable items displayed by Terri Gunter, event chairman.

The yearly prized Youth Service Award was given to Stephanie Linamen in recognition of service to the community.

Fashion show/brunch chairwomen were Cynthia Miller, Terri Gunter, Mary Scuito, Margaret Hannah, Maggee Harper and Marilyn Armstrong.

Proceeds of $5,000 funds raised by the silent auction and brunch will benefit speech and hearing impaired children through Camp Endeavor and the Marie Taylor Needy Children Fund. "Service to Mankind" is the LaSertoma motto.

Nestling is overdue for the boot

DEAR ABBY: Count me among those who "never thought they would be writing to Dear Abby"... but alas, here I am.

My concern is my 25-year-old son, "John," who still lives at home. My husband and I are very compatible and happy, and we would really like to experience the "empty nest syndrome," but John continues to live with us. He's knee-deep in debt, with a credit rating that would scare you to death. He did not complete college but has a job where he is respected and well-liked. And it pays well.

ADVICE

My problem: How to get our son out of the nest. I must mention that his buddies are the bar crowd, and he spends his after-hours time in his favorite bar.

I've tried to get him out of our house. I gave him a deadline, but when the time came, the transmission was out in his car, his taxes were due, etc., and he couldn't afford to move.

I don't want to see him out on the street, but I wish he would start being a man, live on his own and build some kind of future for himself.

OMAHA MOM

DEAR MOM: You and I both know the answer: Kick this spineless bird out of the nest and he will be forced to fly. John developed some bad habits because he knew that you would be his safety net.

Mom, please write again and explain how John can spend his after-hours time in his favorite bar, have a poor credit rating, can't pay his taxes, can't keep his car in a decent condition, or live on his own — and be respected, well-liked, and hold down a job that pays well.

DEAR ABBY: Do you or any of your readers know the most polite and least offensive way of asking someone to please extinguish a cigarette in your presence? I know there is a great deal of publicity these days about the rights of non-smokers, but somehow, I always feel either a bit timid or somewhat impolite when I make this request — knowing full well that I am in the right and it is not only inconsiderate on the part of the smoker, but dangerous to me as well.

DON'T WANT TO OFFEND IN L.A.

DEAR DON'T: Say to the offender, "I would very much appreciate it if you would not smoke in my presence." (That's the truth.) And stick to your convictions, because a report this year by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency categorizes secondhand smoke as a Class A carcinogen — on a par with asbestos and radon gas.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Bone spur may be a calcium deposit

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes spurs to develop on the bottoms of my heels and how can I get rid of them?

DEAR READER: Bone spurs on the heels are often really calcium deposits that form in tendons and other tissues, not outgrowths from the heel bones themselves. These calcium deposits may result from chronic irritation stemming from improper footwear, tendon injuries or activities such as long-distance running. Regardless of cause, bone spurs can be painful.

I've found that podiatrists can usually help people with this condition, by prescribing orthotics (special foot inserts) or by injecting the painful deposits with cortisone. Large spurs that do not respond to this therapy may have to be surgically removed, although this is rarely necessary.

In my opinion, such operations should be performed by orthopedic surgeons. As a start, see a podiatrist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband thinks he had yellow jaundice when he was 6 years old. Will this keep him from donating blood now? Is there a way to determine if it is safe to donate blood after having had jaundice?

DEAR READER: Jaundice (yellowing of the skin and eyes because of a buildup of bile in the tissues) has many causes. Hepatitis is one.

If your husband had such a liver inflammation, he will probably be prevented from donating blood, because the hepatitis virus can remain dormant in the system, yet cause infection in a new host.

It's easy enough to diagnose the state of your husband's liver. His physician can order blood tests ("hepatitis screening") that will prove (or disprove) whether he ever had hepatitis, which type he had, and whether he is still potentially infectious to others. If the blood tests show no evidence of past hepatitis infection, your husband can safely donate blood.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood -- Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Bridge is a wonderful game, because we can play it throughout our lives. We don't have to suffer expressions like that used by General Motors for its early-retirement plan: special accelerated attrition program.

Today's deal was played by someone who has been collecting Social Security for more years than he will divulge. But he still made mincemeat of his youthful opponents.

West leads the heart 10 against three no-trump. How should you, sitting South, plan the play?

You have eight top tricks. You can try to maneuver a ninth in diamonds, but there are two snags. First, it will need a lucky lie of the cards (or a misdefense, if you lead dummy's jack and East doesn't cover). Secondly, when you lose a diamond trick, surely the defenders will work out that they should attack spades, which will probably kill your contract. Is there a way to deflect destiny?

South won the first trick with the heart queen, played a club to dummy's jack and called for the spade jack.

This ran to West's queen, and he paused to assess the situation. South seemed marked with the A-K-Q of hearts, the club king and the spade king. That was 15 points. South had to be weak in diamonds. So West switched to the diamond queen! East tried to signal discouragement with the six. But after South dropped the five, can you blame West for continuing with his ninth trick?

Maybe West should have been suspicious when South was so helpful in clarifying the heart position at trick one. But South remembered that the opponents couldn't see his cards.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 1, 1994

Several important new friends might enter your life in the year ahead. The ones that'll have the most impact on you are likely to be more experienced or older than you are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, if you are pressed into a position in which you have to mastermind a joint venture, you might do remarkably well. Ways and means obvious to you may not be obvious to others. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Negotiate from strength if you're striving to work out an agreement today. However, also try to be compassionate and fair. Collectively these ingredients spell success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your chances of getting appropriate help pertaining to a difficult task you've been avoiding look good today. Seek assistance.

VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't keep your feelings to yourself today regarding someone to whom you're attracted but have been reticent to approach. The aspects show the interest could be mutual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This could turn out to be a very productive day for you, even though you might perform your tasks in ways that baffle people who are trying to understand your techniques.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When you express your opinions today, everyone within earshot may sit up and take notice. They'll sense you're not making idle comments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your instincts and imagination in commercial matters could be rather extraordinary today. All it will take to get your engine running will be the scent of profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A slight air of mystery will make your personality a bit more appealing to members of the opposite gender today. Your performance will be natural, not role-playing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Appealing to the nobler emotions and instincts of others could work to your benefit in your social or financial affairs today, especially if dealing with persons you've helped.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might be able to bind stronger bonds with an acquaintance you felt had little to offer. When common interests are established, a real friendship may take root.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll feel impelled to conduct yourself graciously in situations where you have authority over others today. This will do much to enhance your image and produce favorable impressions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today if you put your mind to it, you might have the ability to accurately perceive the outcome of events. Judiciously focus on significant matters.
