BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

SAVE FROM ALL EVIL:—The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul.—Psalm 121:7.

After all, there doesn't seem to be much difference between honey and Huey!

Is there something to this self-liquidating currency or have the people of Hawarden gone haywire?

All the world's a stage, and of late most of the productions seem to have been farces.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

We have a feeling that the North Dakota senator wasn't thinking nearly so much about recession as he was about publicity.

The House has decided not to try to balance the budget in this session. The Lane Duck, session has proved to be not only lame but also completely incapacitated.

"Phrenology renewing its popularity."—Headline. Well, we ought to have quite a lot of new bumps on our heads after the last two years.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Efforts are being made to secure greater lending powers for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Evidently the country is trying to borrow its way out of debt.

The Spaniards are catching onto the idea of republican government. The Spanish cabinet has decided to spend $500,000 for a garage for its members' fourteen automobiles.—Louisville Herald.

Wouldn't it be interesting to know just how much this Long filibuster has cost the people of the United States, not only in wasted time among Senators, but also in the defeat of banking legislation.

President-Elect Roosevelt must be careful to select a secretary of agriculture who will know how to take care of that big crop of grass that is to start growing in the streets after Mar. 4.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

The city of Fort Pierce is considering the issuance of stamp scrip for the purpose of defraying expenses during a shortage in the treasury due to the slow payment of taxes. The idea seems to be spreading throughout the whole country.

With both parties pledged to a balanced budget before the recent campaign, neither party in Congress makes any noticeable effort to carry out its promise. Congress is trying to balance the budget like a baby elephant trying to walk a tight wire.

Arthur Brisbane objects to our government spending millions of dollars to Europe to maintain the peace, for representatives who are nothing more than messenger boys. Fortunately our government sees the wisdom of maintaining pleasant diplomatic relations with foreign nations who buy between four and five millions dollars worth of American products annually. If we have to spend a little money over there, may be it is worth it.

Typical of the lies at Congress is what Ruth Bryan Owen says in this, by Arthur Brisbane. The big dinosaur of a senator has developed a second brain and is now talking in the case of the long filibuster.

The national congress at Washington, D. C., and its representatives are being elected.

What Huey Wanted?

For eight long days the country has been treated to the revolting spectacle of an impotent Congress which delays important legislation devised to relieve the depression while one of its members talks himself hoarse placing a virtual veto upon every bill pending in the Senate. Undoubtedly realizing the merits of the Glass bill and anticipating its passage in the event of a vote upon it, Senator Long deliberately frustrates the will of the majority by refusing to give up the floor until he is allowed to have his own way.

From such obstinacy one would think the Louisiana senator had been aroused to righteous indignation against a measure which threatened the very foundations of the country. To thus belabor fellow senators, tax his own strength to the point of exhaustion, and arbitrarily block the passage of other important measures pending in Congress, he would seem to have the most conscientious convictions against the merits of the banking bill.

And yet we doubt if such is really the case. There can scarcely be any reasonable argument against branch banking. It has been said that the system tends to centralize the control of banking deposits, and yet everyone knows that nothing could centralize them more than they are now. Whether local banks are independent or affiliated the major portion of their deposits flow naturally to city banks and national securities, while branch banks in small communities have all the strength and facilities for accommodation which the enormous resources of the big city banks make available.

In all probability Senator Long has some other deep-seated reason for his opposition to the banking bill. Perhaps he has not been accorded as cordial a reception in Congress as a man of his unique influence deserves. Perhaps the older men in the Senate like Glass of Virginia and Fletcher of Florida, who were creating the federal reserve system when Huey Long was peddling patent medicines, had not fully appreciated the tremendous vocal powers of this Louisiana "Kingfish."

Or perhaps it was President-elect Roosevelt he has been trying to impress. It is getting along about time for cabinet selections and it has been rumored, not that Senator Long wanted a post for himself (the Senate could not spare his services), but that he would dictate the appointment of some henchman who would look after the Long interests in the administrative branch of our government. Or may be it was a postoffice he wanted.

At any rate, time will tell.

Selfishness

Ignorance of the laws of human relationships is the greatest cause of economic disturbances, according to Dr. Arthur F. Sheldon, president emeritus of the Sheldon School, Chicago, speaking in Bayfront Park, in Miami, in the first of a series of 11 open forum lectures scheduled for the winter season under the auspices of Temple Israel.

"The basic economic law is service in sense of usefulness," said Dr. Sheldon. "The opposite of this is selfishness which is undue regard for the rights of self and corresponding disregard of the rights of others. Selfishness takes many forms. For example the World War, which cost the world more than $200,000,000,000 and the end is not yet. It is destined to break the backs of generations to come. Its motives were pure selfishness, greed, not service.

"Unethical competition is another form of selfishness. Competition is the life of trade up to a certain point, beyond which it becomes the death of profits to both employer and employee. Possibly the Brandeis suggestion of a 'certificate of necessity' whereby one seeking to enter business must get a certificate showing that the business is needed, is one of the answers.

"Supercredit is another form of selfishness. Many causes have entered into the world depression, but they could all be bundled together and labeled 'selfishness and ignorance of natural laws.'

"There are three kinds of potential human energy—physical, mental and ethical. The trouble of the world all down through the ages has been the leaving out of the third element, which is essential for permanent power. Temporary power, including economic gain, can be had through physical fitness plus mental energy. But permanent power of government, economic systems, institutions or individuals can be realized only by adding ethical fitness.

"Selfishness is not the law of survival in the lower animal kingdom. This is because animals cannot produce food: When we come to the kingdom of man this law changes. Man can produce food or its equivalent, money earned by service rendered. This carries with it a corresponding duty of society to furnish the citizen a chance to serve. If this is denied man will revert to his animal characteristics. The same degree of scientific thought that has been directed toward mass production, when once centered on ways and means of mass consumption could solve the problem, and will, let us hope before it is too late."

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

House Rejects Hoover's Plan For Regrouping

international affairs and finance there is every indication Roosevelt has in mind early action on foreign problems. He told newspapermen whom he received early last night he did not know what would be taken up today with President Hoover. He added that it was up to the President to lead the conversation.

Reminded that he had suggested the meeting with Hoover he replied with a smile: "I might have something to say."

In view of Roosevelt's pronouncement earlier in the week that he would continue the present administration's policy of insisting upon the sanctity of treaties, it was assumed in many quarters that this would form a minor part of the discussion with the President.

Congressional leaders, including Speaker Garner and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, party pipe, were received during the busy session of the House. There was no indication, however, that the President-elect was putting in a hand in the present Congress which the leaders have agreed cannot enact the Democratic program before adjournment on Mar. 4.

Roosevelt said he was not participating in the details of congressional legislation. He reiterated his stand for the general principles of balancing the budget, farm relief and straight out prohibition repeal at this session.

Asked when he would call an extra session of the new Congress, which is admittedly inevitable now, he replied that there are still six weeks to go in this Congress and he was unwilling to call an extra session until he had seen what this session accomplishes.

Asked about his views on the pending resolution in the Senate for prohibition repeal with federal protection for dry states, Roosevelt said that in his talk with congressional leaders he had suggested that the Democratic platform be followed. That platform calls for outright repeal.

Long Satisfied Over His Parley With Roosevelt

"He said to me 'I think you have a fair chance of getting it if you are right.' Well I'm always right."

"Then I said, 'I want an ambassadorship.'"

"He asked me then 'How much money has your candidate got?'"

"I told him he hasn't got any money; that's the reason he wants a job" and he said, 'Well, he can't have it' and that is the reason he ain't arguing to get it."

"We discussed everything from international to national and local subjects."

Asked if they had discussed the war debt situation, Long replied, "We did, and Mr. Roosevelt referred to the Scriptures, which, he said, says that interest is usury."

"He knows more about the Bible than I do," Long continued. "You know the Bible, says that interest is usury. It deals very strong with usury."

Questioned as to whether Mr. Roosevelt was "going to crack down" on him, Long raised his voice and shouted:

"Crack down on me? He don't want to crack down on me. I come out of his room happy and satisfied. He told me, 'Huey, you're going to do just as I tell you,' and that is just what I'm going to do."

"He's a great President."

On the subject of whether he would continue his filibuster on the Glass banking bill, Long said: "I am not going to change my position," and added he was for "speeding legislation, the proper legislation."

"I am going to speed legislation to quick defeat," he emphasized in referring to the banking bill.

Asked whether Mr. Roosevelt approved of his tactics, the Louisiana said: "He has approved everything except he is in favor of county branch banking but not state branch banking."

Efforts to get Long to say that Mr. Roosevelt was outrightly opposed to the Glass bill failed. To such a question he said:

"That is an unfair question, but you just watch my movements from now on."

"You can take from me that President Roosevelt is not going to disappoint the American people. He is now what he stood for in the campaign. I'm an ignorant man and I can't explain it just right but the American people are going to be pleasantly surprised with him. He is about the most consistent man I ever knew."

Much Progress Is Being Made Upon Lake Shore Road

much land some of which is covered with water and hydrants, all of it destined to be covered with the white sand that is being sucked from the bottom of the lake nearby to be used as roadbed.

Immediately in front of the observer is a tract of filled in land nearly a block square and level with the bulkhead. This land has been filled in since last Monday when the dredge first went into operation after a long stay near the bridge site. As fast as the land is filled-in, just so fast will the dredge be moved along the lakefront until it arrives at the bridge again and its work is complete.

Some 300 feet now separate road department excavating crews who began to work east from the old wooden bridge some months ago, and the end of the City bulkhead or City limits on the west. Within a few weeks, the proposed roadbed will have been excavated of the muck land that has covered it since dredges were here some years ago. A solid foundation must be reached along the entire road site so that sand pumped in will pack quickly and smoothly.

As the observer turns away from this scene he will notice dozens of finished concrete piling, most of it 50 feet in length, that will be used at the new bridge. These piling are carried to the bridge site by lighters. Also noticeable are several large wooden frames which will be placed in position over Mill Creek outlet for the reception of the concrete that will go to make up a strong bridge over that point.

More than 50 men are engaged in various kinds of work that can be seen. Another large crew is busy excavating nearer Lake Monte, while at the bridge itself more workers are employed. For the next few months at least these men will be employed in what promises to be one of the show places of Central Florida, what with various agencies already planning suitable typical shrubs, flowers, and palms to be set out along the entire boulevard.

Pinellas County's Fee Officers Hand In '32 Excess Fees

CLEARWATER, Jan. 20.—Four Pinellas county fee officers submitted to the county commission Monday a total of $8734 in excess fees for the 1932 calendar year.

A report from the sheriff, the fifth fee officer was not received. Roy Booth, who retired as sheriff Jan. 3, submitted a letter asking the commission for additional time in which to prepare his report. The credit basis on which it is necessary to operate the office caused delay in making up a financial summary, he said.

The tax assessor, H. H. Stierling, who retired at the end of the year, made the largest turnover, $3661. Sums turned into the county general fund by the other fee officers were: Clerk, Karl B. O'Quinn, $2414; county judge, Harry R. Hewitt, $1452; tax collector, D. C. Wilkerson, $1205.

Judge Hewitt also submitted, in addition to the amount of excess fees, $720 which he said was a voluntary reduction in his salary.

Fort Myers Company Will Cut Loan Rate

FORT MYERS, Jan. 20.—Shareholders of the Fort Myers Building and Loan Association have authorized immediate reduction of the interest charge on loans by two percent, bringing the new rate to seven percent interest and one percent premium. The association is believed to be one of the first in the state to scale down its rates. The action was approved at the annual meeting of shareholders as the company's concession to disturbed economic times.

Nearly 50 shareholders attended the session. Resolutions were adopted readjusting the capital structure of the association to permit membership in the federal home loan bank which will be sought as soon as Florida laws have been amended to permit entrance of building and loan groups. The legislature is expected to make the necessary amendments.

Western Film To Be At Milane Saturday

A strip of desert territory on the border line between Utah and Arizona, penetrated by hardly a score of persons in the past 20 years, came to life again when the movie troupe filming Zan Grey's "Heritage of the Desert," action romance of the West which comes to the Milane Theater Saturday with a cast headed by Randolph Scott, Sally Blane and J. Farrell McDonald, chose it as the locale for outdoor sequences.

The nearest railroad station was at Cedar City, Utah, but many miles of mountain and desert separated this city from the location. A crew of workers solved the problem by constructing temporary roads through mountains, and building wooden roadways across the desert sands, to make possible the transportation of cameras, sound equipment, and props by auto and trucks.

The picture made there follows the original Zan Grey novel closely. It tells the story of a young surveyor who becomes involved in the battle between a group of unprincipled cattle rustlers, and so distinguishes himself that he wins himself a prominent spot in the hearts of the ranchmen in general and the daughter of the ranch in particular.

Among those from here attending the Bill Tibben tennis match in Orlando last night were: Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Harper, the Misses been as it should be. Alex R. Johnson spoke on spraying colery. He advised growers who use an arsenic in their sprays to stop this practice at once although he reported that he knew of only a few growers using sprays containing arsenic. Several farmers stated that they are not using the poison at the present time while others stated that they have cut down the quantity to a few figures.

Members of the club endorsed the aims of a new statewide organization that is being formed to bring about a regulation of prices for colery. The club voted to cooperate with this new group as long as it promises to work with and for the grower.

Before concluding its session, P. R. Bach was made a member of the Board of Directors; Wm. Toll of the United Lumber Co. made a cash donation to the club's equipment fund, and a report of the Fair Exhibit Committee was read and all bills contracted were ordered paid.

Pacific Seaboard To Be "Attacked" In Fleet Maneuvers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. The Pacific seaboard will be "attacked" in the eleven-day winter maneuvers of the United States fleet. Beginning at midnight February 5, the scouting force, based at Hawaii, will lead the attack from a point halfway between the California coast and the Hawaiian Islands.

The battle fleet will defend the Pacific coast from the "invaders." In the general plan of the maneuvers, Vice Admiral Frank B. Clark, commander of the scouting force, will command the "blue" command and the heavy cruiser Augusta a flagship, two divisions of heavy cruisers, two aircraft carriers Saratoga and Lexington, one squadron of destroyers, and two tankers.

Admiral Luke McNamee, commander of the battle force will defend the "blue force" which will defend the Pacific coast. This will be made up of three divisions of battleships, six divisions of submarines, one plane carrier and a number of supply ships and tenders.

Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Fleet, will act as chief umpire. During the operations high fives will simulate actual war conditions.

"Dry" Aves There Is Still Time To Give People Truth

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—There is still time before it would be possible to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment for dry nations to give the people "the truth and nothing but the truth" about the cause of prohibition and defeat the wet men, declares Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, prominent dry, in a message to the American Businessmen's Foundation, which entered a new year of activity following its annual meeting.

"It is an irony," Professor Fisher said, "to abandon the ship as that does the flag. By the time it would be possible to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, the question will be largely over, in all probability. During that breathing spell we may be able, by being to the attention of the public educational material that will cause sober after thought.

"The present movement against prohibition is very largely the propaganda of the depression. It is not all of everything which might be expected on the cause of wet troubles. When the depression is over this propaganda will pass and it will be possible to point out the real cause of the trouble. It has been undermining prohibition and to show how honest with rate and honest morality from prohibition as well as a great many other products of prohibition are worth keeping despite the fact that we must admit that prohibition has been difficult to enforce and has not been enforced well enough to prevent prohibition.

Things You Never Know That Soap Would Do

Prevent Clothing from Becoming Soiled
To prevent clothing from becoming soiled, wash them in Ivory soap and let them dry without wringing. Do not use any other soap. The soap will soften the fibers and will not harm them. It will also prevent the clothes from becoming soiled after being so treated.

Remove Fatty Films from Windows
Take a cup of rich Ivory soap, add hot water, stirring constantly until a thick emulsion is formed. Spread liberally on the window pane, and let it stand for about half an hour. This will soften the fatty film so that it can readily be scraped off with a thin-bladed knife. A single soap-scraper blade is particularly useful for this purpose.

Prevent Candles from Dripping
Wet the hands and rub them on a cake of Ivory soap until a thick dry lather is formed; then roll can-

Lubricate in the House
A little Ivory soap rubbed along the edges of a door prevents it from sticking. Likewise, the sliding doors of book cases and cabinets, and the drawers of cabinets and kitchen cabinets can be kept in good working order by rubbing Ivory soap along the edges and in the grooves.

Wettable ropes will run up and down with more ease if rubbed with a piece of Ivory soap. If the window sashes are tight, rub well with Ivory soap where they work up and down.

Long-Term Debts Of Railroads Have Had Slow Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The long-term debt of the steam railroads of the United States increased from 1913 to 1923 only $1,012,000,000 or 15 percent. The comparison is as follows:

1913	$30,542,000,000
1923	31,554,000,000
Increase	1,012,000,000

Whatever other mistake the roads may have made, they did not indulge in a course of new borrowing during the new era, wave of general speculation. Their debt burden today is not mainly due to prior over-expansion during the boom. In the aggregate, they avoided the reckless new borrowing to which nearly every other phase of American business fell a willing prey. This is true in the aggregate, but there were certain individual roads which suffered unfortunate exceptions.

When railroad debt was rising only 15 percent from 1913 to 1923, farm mortgage debt was increasing nearly 100 percent, urban real estate debt more than 200 percent, public utility debt

...and political corruption.

"All the facts, the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth ought to be put before the public with pitiless publicity."

Shot-Gun Blast Fired Into Home Of J. H. Truluck

Who-less, next door. You have been acting as a special game warden and I understand there's been some trouble between him and some of the fishermen.

Mr. Truluck told authorities that he is at loss to name any person who would fire on him or any member of his family, saying "I don't know that I've an enemy in the world."

Deputy Stridge today said that there isn't anything new to report on the case. I don't think that anyone was trying to get Mr. Truluck, but he's been working in full cooperation and accord with every fisherman that I know of. If there's been trouble I haven't heard of it. It seems to have been a shot fired accidentally."

HOUSE REJECTS HOOVER'S PLAN FOR REGROUPING

Writes "Void" Across Proposal To Eliminate Departments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—House Democrats yesterday wrote "void" across President Hoover's plan to regroup 53 governmental agencies and prepared to give their President sweeping powers to reorganize the government when he takes office.

By a strictly party vote, the Democratic majority was sufficient to force through the House the Cochran resolution to block the President's orders for the necessary transfers. Just before this party alignment defeated 203 to 176 a Republican motion to send the resolution back to the expenditure committee.

But Hoover was not shorn of all his authority to transfer or reorganize. He may transfer the public health service from the treasury to the interior department. He was specifically authorized last session to do that. And he still has the power to make transfers or changes within departments. It was the proposed transfer of the public health service that led to the bitterest criticism of Hoover's proposal. Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, went to the well of the House and said:

"The department of commerce is a Hoover organization, loaded from top to bottom with Hoover men. The interior department is a Wilson organization, loaded from top to bottom with Hoover men."

He added that the President, after he leaves office Mar. 4, is "not going back to England where his interests are" but is "going to stay here, having built up * * * at least two departments, if this thing goes through, devoted to him and his interests, the nucleus of a campaign for his re-election to the presidency four years from now."

Republicans retorted that Hoover's regrouping plan was the result of experience, and the Republican leader, Snell, of New York, said:

"Do you mean to tell me that Roosevelt, being a new man in office and with new men under him, will be as qualified to reorganize as a man who is experienced and who is going out of office and has no political irons in the fire?"

Physical Condition Of Hoover Better Than Ever Before

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President Hoover will return to private life Mar. 4 in better physical condition than when he entered the White House four years ago because he has made work his hobby. The President's friends say that the pleasure he finds in work apparently has saved him from the fatigue and crushing strain of his high office, which have broken the health of other chief executives.

A glance at the inaugural photograph of Mr. Hoover reveals many physical changes, most of which, according to Captain Joel T. Boone, White House physician, have been for the better. Four years ago the President was overweight; he had traces of a double chin. Today he is a trim, hard-muscled man of fifty-eight. His tanned face is deeply lined. His movements are quick. His smile is quick. He weighs 167 pounds. He has been regularly vaccinated against the numerous minor ailments which ordinarily afflict a man of his age.

Inherently a strong man, Mr. Hoover exercises daily with the medicine ball. He balances his diet carefully. During the summer he sought relaxation at his Rapidan camp.

Drastic Economies In Government Is Merchant Request

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Merchants' Association of New York, in a report issued recently calls for drastic economies in the federal government, a $400,000,000 cut in veterans' relief instead of the $127,000,000 suggested by President Hoover, supports the President's recommendation for a further $55,000,000 cut in pay of federal employees and further administrative reorganization.

Dismissing all suggestions of additional taxation at this time, the report states: "The association does not believe that the economies made or planned in the federal service are as searching or as drastic as have been instituted in private employment generally, and until economies effected more nearly correspond with the standard set by private business it will not be reasonable to ask the public to consent to further taxation."

The report declares that in continuing relief to unemployed veterans on grounds of past service, "is not only a severe financial burden, but class legislation, which most unjustly discriminates against millions of women of all ages and millions of men who were too young to be eligible for military service and who are now equally as deserving of relief as veterans without disabilities incurred in line of duty during active service."

Independence Of Philippines To Be Island Handicap

MANILA, Jan. 20.—An early grant of independence to the Philippines, with the resultant cessation of free trade relations between the United States and these islands, will work to the great disadvantage of both countries, according to facts and figures recently compiled by American business men in Manila. American interests here, because of their vast investments in commercial and industrial projects throughout the islands, have followed the recent developments in the independence agitation as closely as the most interested Filipino and have kept abreast of the debates in the Senate.

Figures recently made public through the American Chamber of Commerce of Manila demonstrate that United States trade can not compete with that of other countries, a free Philippines and that Philippine products cannot compete with those of other countries in the markets abroad. Cessation of free trade relations between the islands and the United States, the figures show, will result in a big drop in the foreign trade of both countries.
