After a 1-3 start, L.A. Raiders managing general partner Al Davis gave head coach Mike Shanahan his walking papers Tuesday.

Shanahan's replacement is a man from the old Raider school of rough and tumble, intimidation, pride and poise and 'just win baby' days.

Watch for blocked streets

SANFORD — Construction blocking off Third Street this week is part of a storm wastewater installation project that may take two to three years to complete, utility director Paul Moore said.

The first phase of installation of a vacuum system to separate storm waters from household wastewater in the downtown area may take about one year, Moore said. The current system combining waste waters causes overflowing during heavy rains, he said.

The new system will use a vacuum to draw wastewater in to the system, where it will be pumped to the wastewater treatment plant.

Construction crews are working between Park and Oak Avenues this week. Work will continue east on Third Street to Sanford Avenue, then north on the alley between Sanford and Palmetto Avenues to 16th Street.

SANFORD — The Sanford Christian Sharing Center, which provides food and clothing for nearly 300 northern Seminole County families every month, is running out of resources to carry out its mission, director Irene Brown said.

The center has $1,049 in its checking account as of yesterday, Brown said, but food distributed by the center costs more than $1,350 a month.

"There are a lot more hungry people in Sanford than Sanford either realizes or cares to accept," Brown said.

The agency fed and clothed 286 households in August, spending $1,356 on food, according to Sharing Center financial records. Churches, individuals and local clubs donated the agency's only August income of $1,098.84.

Brown said the Sharing Center has never received financial help from local businesses.

The number of families served by the agency is expected to rise 50 percent between now and the end of the year, Brown said. If the Sharing Center does not receive additional financial help, she said, many families may have to be turned away as the Thanksgiving and

Shuttle computer replaced

NASA says next week's launch won't be delayed

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA managers decided to replace a faulty rocket computer with a spare already on hand, keeping the shuttle Atlantis on track for blastoff around Oct. 12 to fire a nuclear-powered probe to Jupiter, officials said.

A traditional two-day "flight readiness review," chaired by shuttle chief William Lenoir, began Monday at the Kennedy Space Center to make sure Atlantis and the $1.4 billion Galileo Jupiter probe are ready for blastoff Oct. 12 at 1:29 p.m. EDT.

But during routine testing at the launch pad Tuesday, one of two computers aboard Galileo's "inertial upper stage" — IUS — booster, built by Boeing Co., made unexpected errors, prompting NASA managers to put off announcing a formal launch date until the issue could be resolved.

Galileo's IUS is equipped with two older-model computers, and NASA has one such unit in stock at the Kennedy Space Center, along with a newer model. Late in the day, managers decided to replace the faulty unit with the newer computer, minimizing the impact to the launch schedule.

"We're going to replace that computer," NASA

Beautification task force to tackle historic district

By SANDRA DOUGHANNE
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A task force of 10 citizens and business owners have been charged with developing a plan to beautify the County Road 427-State Road 434 corridor within Longwood. The group has targeted the downtown historic district for the first beautification efforts.

Bonnie Jean Julian, president of the task force, said the group will meet for the first time Friday. She said they are considering putting a historic park in front of the Longwood Hotel off County Road 427.

Julian said a proposal for an area with park benches, a water fountain and a gazebo has been drafted. "It would just be very, very beautiful," Julian said. The group has already approached the Hunt family, who owns the property, about the possibility of placing the historic park there. It expects an answer sometime this week.

Meanwhile, the task force is rounding up others in the community to undertake beautification projects and Julian said the response has been "positive." The post office has agreed to make improvements at that site and will discuss it at an Oct. 20 employee meeting, according to Julian. Landscaping at the police station on West Church Avenue has been undertaken.

Longwood report defines specific historic locations

By SANDRA DOUGHANNE

LONGWOOD — Yelding & Provost, an Orlando architectural firm, has presented to the city their new boundary for a potential National Register Historic District in Longwood.

About 40 structures built 50 years ago or more are included in the company's projected historic district. The district lies within a boundary including State Road 434, County Road 427 extending east to Palmetto Ave. on the north, becoming irregular on the west side and jogging east of Milwee Street.

"The idea being within the boundary (we) want to have the highest ratio of contributing buildings," Engineer Steven C. Provost said Tuesday. He said that ratio is about 85 percent.

Among the buildings within the boundary are existing historic landmarks such as the Nemeyer House (Hopkins Home) across from city hall, the Clouser Cottage on Wilma Street, the Clouser House (now the Family Birth Center Inc.), the Bradlee-McIntyre House and the Longwood Hotel.

The nomination document to be sent to the Bureau of Historic Preservation within the Department of State in Tallahassee will include the boundary marked off by Yelding and Provost. After the state's National Register Review Committee looks at it in March, it will be sent off to the federal government's National Park Service for review. An answer from the federal government as to whether Longwood qualifies for the National Register Historic District should be ready by early next summer, Provost said.

Local drug plan could help stop abuse before it grows

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — Offering drug treatment programs in the vicinity of Sanford's public housing and child care for addicted women could improve drug counseling programs where they are now most likely to fail, the director of a local treatment facility said.

Larry Visser of The Grove Counseling Center has designed a plan for drug treatment and education programs for Sanford Housing Authority tenants and residents of Georgetown and Goldboro. The plan would offer drug treatment programs within only blocks of Sanford's six public housing projects, child care for mothers involved in treatment and rallies among non-drug using SHA tenants.

The plan was part of a $100,000 grant proposal Visser submitted to Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. His proposal ranked seventh among 19 proposals, of which five received money. He said he will resubmit the proposal to the Governor's Task Force on Drug Abuse, although the group has not designated money for such a project.

"We are not very successful in public housing," Visser said about treatment programs. He said the low success rate is due to a large percentage of low-income families in the area with econom-

Mayoral election ends in runoff

KEY WEST — Key West's four-candidate mayoral election Wednesday ended in a runoff between two longtime political foes.

Former Mayor Tom Sawyer and Tony "Capt. Tony" Tarracino won enough votes to force the runoff, scheduled for Nov. 7.

Sawyer got 2,242 votes, while Tarracino got 1,890, Marsha Gordon 1,418 and David Monroe Gentile 106.

Sawyer and Tarracino squared off four years ago and Sawyer won the election by 52 votes.

He chose not to run for mayor in 1986, when current Mayor Richard Heyman won.

Teen charged with murder

HAMPTON, Va. — A Florida teenager was in custody Tuesday at an area jail awaiting extradition on murder charges, after being arrested over the weekend in a stolen car belonging to his alleged victim, police said.

Hampton police on Saturday arrested Shawn David Jackson, 17, who is wanted by Florida authorities in the strangling death of an Alachua County woman killed last week, about 20 miles northwest of Gainesville.

Also arrested was Kevin Paul Martin, 18, who is charged with possessing a stolen vehicle.

The two were arrested Saturday night near Langley Air Force Base after apparently getting lost on the interstate and making a wrong turn, said Lt. Eddie Waits of the Hampton Police Department.

The car in which the two were found belonged to 27-year-old Wendy Knowles, who was strangled to death in a mobile home in Florida last Friday. Knowles was killed while babysitting a 15-month-old child, said Lt. Spencer Mann of the Alachua Sheriff's Department.

Tropical depression dissolves

MIAMI — Hurricane forecasters said the tropical depression they had been monitoring in the central Atlantic Ocean disintegrated Tuesday and was no longer a threat.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said Monday that tropical depression No. 13 could develop into a tropical storm about 800 miles east of the Leeward Islands.

But its circulating winds sheared off Tuesday and the system dissipated into a harmless bunch of clouds. The center discontinued its advisories late Tuesday.

Lawmaker sells liquor license

INVERNESS — A state lawmaker whose winning of a liquor license touched off a debate about legislative ethics has sold the license for $90,000 without ever opening a bar or restaurant.

Rep. Dick Locke, D-Inverness, closed the sale to ABC Liquors Inc. last week. The Tampa Tribune reported Tuesday. But because he transferred the license within three years, Locke had to pay a penalty of $28,250.

He would have had another two months to open an establishment if he wanted to keep the license, which was good only in Palm Beach County, and would have had to operate the establishment at least 120 days per year, according to state beverage officials.

Locke said he never intended to open a bar or liquor store in Palm Beach County and probably will not enter the next state liquor license lottery. The deadline for the next lottery is Dec. 12, but no date has been set for the drawing yet.

200 tons of debris cleared from beaches

ST. PETERSBURG — Volunteers collected almost 200 tons of debris from Florida beaches during the state's third coastal cleanup, with Palm Beach County tagged as the dirtiest county.

Heidi Lovett of the Center for Marine Conservation in St. Petersburg, the organization that tabulated the results of the cleanup, said 38 tons of debris were collected along shorelines in Palm Beach County Sept. 23.

In Hillsborough County, volunteers picked up 27 tons of debris, while another 21.5 tons were picked up in Pinellas County.

Edward Proffit, Florida regional director for the organization, said the state's cleanup total was the largest in U.S. history, with volunteers turning out in record numbers.

Similar cleanups were staged from the Bay of Fundy in Canada, to Cozumel in Mexico. She said 27 states in this country had been scheduled to participate, but efforts in North and South Carolina were postponed because of Hurricane Hugo.

Nassau County, Florida's northernmost county on the Atlantic Coast, postponed its cleanup operation until Oct. 14 because of the hurricane, and Dixie County will have its cleanup this Saturday.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Children witness janitor kill co-worker

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — While nearly 100 schoolchildren looked on, a janitor shot and killed another janitor in an elementary school lunchroom Tuesday morning, shortly after he handed in his resignation.

Sylvester Ronald Mitchell, 24, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Harley J. Colvin, 35, and was being held without bond at the Leon County Jail, said Maj. Larry Campbell of the Leon County Sheriff's Department. None of the students or teachers were injured.

"Things like this happen so quickly, I don't think the children understood what happened at that time," Campbell said.

Mitchell had been employed at the Killcare Lakes Elementary School since January 1988. He had missed two days of work before coming to work Tuesday, when he walked into the office of principal Doris Jones to tell her and the head custodian he was quitting.

"They accepted his resignation and he was calm during that period, but suddenly became mad and said somebody was going to get hurt," Campbell said.

Mitchell left the building and officials thought he had left the premises, but it turned out that he had driven around to the rear of the school, adjacent to the cafeteria where he normally parked his car.

He pulled a .22 caliber rifle from his car, held it down by his leg and walked through the back door into the cafeteria, Campbell said.

Colvin was sitting on the stage waiting for about 100 second- and third-graders to finish eating lunch so he could clean up. Mitchell raised the rifle, leveled it at Colvin and shot him once in the head from about 44 feet.

"Death was instantaneous," Campbell said.

No children were directly between the two men but one of the four teachers in the lunchroom-auditorium was next to the victim.

The teacher cried out, "He killed somebody. Call the office." Mitchell leveled the rifle at her and said, "If you call the office you're next," Campbell said.

Mitchell then walked out the door, where he ran into the head custodian. His former boss, who tried to get him to put the gun down, Mitchell then pointed the gun and fired two rounds in the direction of about 56 students and teachers on a playground. No one was hit.

Mitchell got into his car and drove away, but deputies blocked the roadway about five miles from the school.

The suspect attempted to get out of the car with the rifle, as though he was going to lay it across the door, but the two deputies each fired a shot, one hitting the hood and the other hitting the door frame, shattering the glass, Campbell said.

Settlement reached in drowning suit

United Press International

CLEARWATER — The parents of a 4-year-old girl who drowned not more than two feet from her swimming instructor have reached an out-of-court settlement for nearly $1 million with a Pinellas County resort.

Amber Nichole Myers drowned in August 1987 while taking swimming lessons at the Tides Hotel and Bath Club Resort in North Redington Beach.

Her parents, Stephen W. and Patricia Myers, sued two swimming instructors and the club, alleging negligence.

They claimed the instructors should have been better trained to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation and should have known the child had stopped breathing even though she still was going through swimming motions and was on top of the water. The defendants contended they did everything correctly and that the child was on some type of medication.

The suit was to go to trial this week, but the out-of-court settlement of $950,000 was announced Monday.

Robert J. Carrull, attorney for the parents, said they decided to settle the suit rather than go to trial because of the stress testimony would have caused them.

In the settlement, both sides agreed Amber was not on any medication and was not suffering from any known illness or disease.

Brian Harrington, attorney for the defendants, said he agrees there may be a need for legislation requiring certification of swimming instructors, but said he doubted that would have saved Amber's life.

1,000 protest street drainage

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — About 1,000 residents took to the streets to demand drainage and sewerage for a predominantly black neighborhood and to protest the city council's treatment last week of three black council members.

Speaking to a crowd through a bullhorn Monday, the Rev. Henry Green, pastor of the New Bethel AME Church, told a throng of people gathered at City Hall that the mayor and city council should stop ignoring the needs of the predominantly black Northwest Quadrant of Jacksonville.

"We've had the same drainage problems on the Northside for 40 and 50 years," he said. "We aren't going to be satisfied until we receive our fair share."

Two dozen black ministers organized the protest in response to the treatment of the council's three black members after they walked out of a council meeting last week.

Council President Tillie Fowler ordered police to forcibly return the officials to the meeting.

Clinic bomber released, co-conspirator may be free soon

United Press International

PENSACOLA — A man convicted of the 1984 Christmas Day bombings of three abortion clinics is already free and a co-conspirator may be released soon to a federal halfway house, prison officials said Tuesday.

James Simmons, 25, one of four people convicted in the bombings, was transferred in July from a federal prison in Tallahassee to a Salvation Army halfway house in Pensacola. He was released from the halfway house last week.

"September 25 was his parole date," said Tom Kowalski, regional administrator for the federal Bureau of Prisons in Atlanta.

Simmons is scheduled to remain on parole until Jan. 23, 1995.

A co-conspirator, Matthew Goldsby, 25, remains in the Federal Correctional Institution and is scheduled for parole Nov. 21. But Kowalski said he may not remain in the Tallahassee prison much longer.

"He may be ready pretty soon to get out to a halfway house," said Kowalski, who said Goldsby will have no further parole hearings.

The pre-dawn pipe bombings hurled Pensacola into the spotlight of the abortion controversy. The arrests came within days of the blasts, and the subsequent nine-day trial in 1985 attracted widespread news coverage.

Expansion of museum reviewed

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum board met yesterday to review architect proposals for planned expansion of the museum.

The city commission has granted the museum board $10,000 this fiscal year to pay for an architectural drawing to depict expansion of the 2,500-square-foot facility at Fort Mellon Park along East First Street.

Alicia Clarke, museum curator, said the museum needs to expand by 2,500 square feet of gallery and storage space to broaden the focus of its collection from the life of General Henry Sanford to the history of the city of Sanford.

About 59,000 documents stored in 149 boxes make up the collection of General Sanford's papers, Clarke said. Because the museum is cramped for space, she said, those boxes are stored in a bank vault. Microfilm copies of the document are kept at the museum.

Board members have compiled a wish list for expansion, including gallery and storage space, public restrooms and water fountains.

The board reviewed proposals from 11 architectural firms from Sanford, Daytona Beach, Orlando, Winter Park and Gainesville at yesterday's meeting. A committee will meet this month to begin selection of a firm.

The museum board will seek grants to help pay for expansion once architectural plans are drawn, Clarke said.

But since she moved to Howell Place, she has everything she needs. Safety, security and delicious meals. Sure, the apartments are spacious and the staff is caring and helps her when she needs that little bit of assistance, but I've noticed her lovely smile again and she has noticed mine. The worries are gone — thanks to Howell Place. She is still active and I think sometimes even more independent."

Cleaning up HUD

When Jack Kemp was selected to head the Department of Housing and Urban Development, he promised to make it a high-profile agency. But the unexpected notoriety arising from Washington's most scandal-plagued department is not what Mr. Kemp had in mind.

HUD has been rocked by a rapid succession of disclosures of political favoritism, fraud, waste and theft during the eight-year tenure of former Secretary Samuel Pierce. After Mr. Pierce was compelled by subpoena to appear before a House subcommittee investigating abuses at the agency, he refused to answer lawmakers' questions, citing his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. The following day, one of his former top aids, Lance Wilson, did likewise.

Instead of implementing a string of innovative proposals to supply low-cost housing for the poor, as he had planned, Secretary Kemp has spent most of his time trying to deal with the mess left by "Silent Sam." The magnitude of the mess is underscored by the stunning disclosure that the Federal Housing Administration lost a record $4.2 billion last year on unsecured mortgages. Yet, despite his many problems, the new secretary nonetheless shows every sign of transforming HUD from a public trough to a public trust.

For starters, Mr. Kemp is preparing a proposal to end the awarding of housing funds based on personal discretion instead of need. Under the new policy, funding decisions would be made on the basis of competition, merit and need rather than political connections. This reform would go a long way toward sanitizing a process that has been abused in varying degrees since 1981.

In the past, many HUD programs routinely included millions of dollars in kickbacks at the secretary's discretion. This, in turn, prompted members of Congress to seek a percentage of those funds for projects in their district or states, while well-connected consultants did the same for their wealthy clients. Such influence-peddling has resulted in federal financing of golf courses in Miami Beach and swimming pools in Beverly Hills. And former government officials with connections, such as former Interior Secretary James Watt, could clear hundreds of thousands of dollars by simply making a couple of phone calls.

Apart from overhauling the way the funding decisions are made, Secretary Kemp wants to open the entire process to greater public scrutiny.

Under the Kemp plan, all housing grants would be published in the Federal Register and consultants would be required to disclose the fees they receive on HUD projects. All waivers of departmental regulations would have to be approved by an assistant secretary. Moreover, Mr. Kemp would appoint a chief financial officer to monitor all HUD expenditures. He would hire additional auditors to replace those eliminated by his predecessor in a cost-cutting gesture. And he would greatly expand the inspector general's powers of investigation.

All of these proposed changes must first be cleared by the President's Office of Management and Budget before being sent to Congress for comment, and, in many cases, for action.

After only eight months on the job, Jack Kemp has devised a comprehensive plan for cleaning up the mess at HUD and deterring future abuses in awarding federal housing funds. Now Congress should give him the authority to proceed.

Fighting words vs. fighting symbols

The uncanny ability of liberals to come to diametrically opposite conclusions in essentially similar situations was on display again in a recent ruling by the president of the University of California, David Gardner.

Gardner announced that the code of student conduct has been changed to prohibit students from using certain so-called "fighting words," intended to harass a person because of race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, sex, religion or disability. According to Gardner, the policy recognizes "that words can be used in such a way that they no longer express an idea, but rather are used to injure and intimidate, thus undermining the ability of individuals to participate in the university community."

Following the reasoning of a 1942 Supreme Court decision which exempted certain epithets from free-speech guarantees because they were likely to evoke a violent response, Gardner declared that the banned words are "those personally abusive epithets which, when directly addressed to any ordinary person, are... likely to provoke a violent reaction whether or not they actually do so." Such words (not specified, by the way) are banned on university property, at official university functions and at university-sponsored events. Penalties range from a reprimand to outright dismissal from school.

What I would like some liberal to do is tell me why this is permissible, and indeed desirable, while any nut on the street can burn an American flag in full view of hundreds of patriotic Americans and deserve the full protection of the Constitution.

Don't be confused by various irrelevant differences between the two situations. Burning a flag is an act, not "speech"; but it has been accepted by the courts as a form of "symbolic speech" — indeed, that's the excuse for its protection under the First Amendment.

Nor is it relevant that the court was protecting flag-burning only in public contexts, and that officials of a university might well be entitled to draw up stricter rules of behavior for students on its campuses. The liberals are precisely the ones who have argued most loudly that college campuses must be free of all intellectual fetters and open to all sorts of offensive contentions and conduct.

Where the liberals will try hardest to insist on a distinction is in the intrinsic nature of the offenses. The "personally abusive epithets" that President Gardner has banned are, for most practical purposes, those aimed at people whom liberals have sought to incorporate in their endless list of "accredited victims" — blacks, Jews, homosexuals, women, etc. The American flag is not a person, let alone a group, and not by a long shot an "accredited victim." But why should that exclude it from protection against abuse?

"Fighting words"? (Or, in this case, fighting symbolic speech?) Few acts are better calculated "to provoke a violent reaction whether or not they actually do so" than setting fire to an American flag in public. It offends some of the deepest feelings of many citizens. Yet liberals were delighted when the Supreme Court narrowly struck down a Texas statute barring this, and the Democrats in Congress have been busy sidetracking President Bush's call for a constitutional amendment to reverse the ruling.

Don't be confused by various irrelevant differences

The reality of teen abortions

BOSTON — I do not know how long it's been since Father knew best and Mother knew everything going on in the lives of her children. Maybe that was never more than an image we carried around in our heads about our own parents' self-confidence as adults, as heads of households, as moms and dads.

But if anything has changed in the last generation it is the erosion of this confidence. As parents today, we are openly uncertain about how we are doing. How would we rank on a national pass/fail system? How often, for that matter, are we marked absent?

Our anxiety peaks as our kids enter their teens, the corridor to adulthood that's often marked by their closed doors. Suddenly the most sophisticated find ourselves uttering old clichés: It's 4 p.m. or 1 a.m.; do you know where the children are and what they are doing?

The worry that kids are out of control, at least out of our control, runs deep. And parents are increasingly attracted to anything that holds out the promise that it can strengthen our authority and the bonds between us and our teen-agers.

Today, one of these promises comes wrapped in the spate of "parental-consent laws." Such laws offer us a shred of knowledge and control over our daughters' lives. They seem to promise that at least these girls, whether 14 or 17, won't go through an unwanted pregnancy and abortion without us.

This is why parental-consent laws have become popular in recent years. Nearly three-quarters of adults support them, pro-choice as well as pro-life Americans. They have listened to the supporters of those laws argue that no minor can have her ears pierced without parental consent. Why then can she have an abortion without permission?

Politicians, in turn, who read the polls and seek some elusive "compromise" on the hot issue of abortion, often pick this one restriction on minors to prove they are "pro-family." Even the Bush administration, shying away from anti-abortion activism, will enter a Supreme Court brief this term on the Minnesota law requiring parental notification. It is considered a politically safe move.

But the issue isn't as simple as it first appears or appeals to us. In real life, minors do not need permission slips to have sex. Once pregnant, 15-year-olds do not need to notify their parents in order to deliver a baby. Indeed, once a teen-ager becomes a mother, she is legally an adult. We don't retain control over child and grandchild.

Most parents who are attracted to consent laws like to assume that every family is like theirs. They assume that girls are exaggerating when they say, "My parents would kill me." They assume the best.

For the most part, girls do tell parents. But not all of them can. As Harrison Hickman who does polling for pro-choice groups says, "When people hear the phrase 'parental consent,' they need to think, not about loving families sitting around making decisions. They need to think about young women, abandoned and abused." To give an abusive parent more power over a child is more punitive than caring.

So the question behind the political and psychological support for parental consent has been whether we can provide support to "good" families without punishing the daughters of "bad" families?

There may, just may, be a compromise in the offing. On Sept. 30, a new law went into effect in Maine. It is labeled parental consent. But it might more accurately be called an adult-involvement law.

The state has cut a wider legislative pathway that may ensure adult presence in the lives of pregnant teen-age girls, but without putting up barriers to force them into motherhood. A girl in Maine can get permission for an abortion from any family member of her choice — parent, sister, aunt, grandparent. As a second resort she can choose another adult — a minister, counselor, nurse, judge, physician — to accompany her through a counseling and informed-consent procedure.

In the politics of abortion, such a bill is certainly a compromise. It's a pro-choice, pro-family bill, supportive of "good" families without being punitive to pregnant girls. It is one way to separate out the anti-abortion crowd from the majority who worry about girls going through a crisis alone.

For families it is also a compromise. A compromise with reality. Adolescence is indeed a corridor. During this time, our children are neither full-grown adults to be treated as independent individuals, nor are they dependents with no say over their own lives. Gradually the law may be scratching out a middle ground that reflects the truth about adolescence.

In real life, minors do not need permission slips to have sex.

Prescription drugs safety is in doubt

WASHINGTON — Top officials of the Food and Drug Administration are trying to forestall a panic over the safety of prescription drugs that millions of Americans rely on for good health — if not life itself.

Confidence in the nation's drug supply began eroding after revelations that generic drug companies had bribed and deceived their way into the public's medicine chest. Now, almost by accident, agency inspectors have identified critical problems with brand-name drugs, too.

A well-placed source told our associate Jim Lynch that FDA inspectors have recently identified manufacturing violations in at least five brand-name drug plants. The FDA was alarmed to find that some of the drugs contained different formulas than the agency originally approved. FDA fears are stirred by the specter of the country losing faith in the entire drug industry.

In recent weeks the FDA has examined manufacturing and bookkeeping procedures of the generic drug industry's top 20 companies and 30 top drugs. Some of these firms also make brand-name drugs — leading inspectors to broaden their scope.

In several cases, inspectors discovered that the chemical composition of brand-name drugs had been altered since their approval. When documentation was demanded, the government received such shoddy records that some officials doubt the firms would know how to recall drugs if forced to.

FDA inspections routinely determine whether firms meet the agency's "Current Good Manufacturing Practices." Inspectors ensure that workers are wearing proper clothing and that the drugs and raw materials are safely stored. Inspectors rarely examine the actual product.

After two generic drug company executives and three FDA chemists pleaded guilty to bribery-related charges, FDA inspectors descended on manufacturing plants last summer. They found evidence that at least two generic drug firms substituted brand-name drugs for their own product during tests required by the FDA. Then, after receiving FDA approval, the firms marketed their own generic formula, which had never been analyzed by the agency.

Until now, brand-name drug firms have not by and profited from the public's growing distrust of generics. We informed a congressional investigator of the scandal's latest development with brand-name drugs. He told us that the FDA may be "heading toward a nightmare, where we find out that almost everyone is cheating." Meanwhile, the FDA is stonewalling. An official in the inspections office said he could not discuss the findings of an ongoing investigation. An agency spokesperson replied, "I really don't know what you're talking about."

FDA Commissioner Frank Young does. He recently confided to a personal adviser that the FDA's problems with unethical behavior stretch beyond the generic and into the brand-name drug manufacturers. Earlier this summer, an FDA investigation resulted in Eli Lilly and Co. recalling 18 lots of its brand-name drugs. The FDA reported that it found "objectionable practices in the facility's standard operating procedures for making tablets and capsules in the plant's record-keeping system."

The chemical composition of brand-name drugs had been altered since their approval.

Law may prevent rebuilding

United Press International

COLUMBIA, S.C. — South Carolina's new beach management law may prevent the rebuilding of up to 213 buildings heavily damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Hugo, a state Coastal Council official says.

The buildings damaged beyond repair by the hurricane that swept inland on Sept. 22 lie within a non-construction zone and were at least two-thirds destroyed by Hugo. Coastal Council executive director Wayne Beam said Tuesday.

"What this means is in a few days we're only going to be dealing with 200 people on the whole coast that are going to be affected by this beach bill,"

Beam said. "I think that's pretty significant."

"That 213 will be the absolute maximum, and I can assure you that it's going to come down significantly from that," he said.

Owners of some of the buildings may be able to rebuild by moving the structure out of the so-called dead zone. Beam said at a meeting of the council's executive committee.

"Just because the structure is damaged beyond repair and the dead zone may touch a corner of that building, it certainly does not mean that the property cannot be rebuilt on the lot."

The total number of buildings — homes and businesses — affected by the law designed to preserve the state's beaches will not be known until next week.

Beam said he expects the number of structures that cannot be rebuilt will drop significantly, but he would not pin down the number.

"For a class 4 hurricane hitting almost at high tide in the state of South Carolina, that's a reasonable figure to say damaged beyond repair in a zone closest to the ocean," he said.

"I can assure you, this number will go down in history. This is the most coveted number since the lottery ticket came out."

Beam said some of the buildings are in a "gray area" and may escape being labeled as more than two-thirds destroyed. The Coastal Council will continue reviewing these cases, he said.

Computer

spokeswoman Lisa Malone said. "We're going to take the old computer out tonight and put a new one in and start the retest tomorrow. We still are going to try to make the 12th, but that's not the official launch decision yet."

The replacement work will use up the remaining "contingency time" available to handle unexpected problems but if all goes well, Malone said Atlantis's construction could begin on time at 8 a.m. Monday.

Regardless of when Atlantis is cleared for launch, the space agency will still face a final hurdle: a hearing in U.S. District Court in Washington next Tuesday.

Three public interest groups — the Foundation on Economic Trends, the Christie Institute and the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice — filed a lawsuit last Thursday to block the launch because of concern about the release of radiation in the event of a catastrophe.

Judge Oliver Gasch ordered the activists to submit legal documentation to him on Wednesday and gave the government until Friday to follow suit. A hearing is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Galileo is powered by a pair of 124-pound radioisotope thermoelectric generators — RTGs — that convert the heat produced by the decay of plutonium 238 dioxide into electricity.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration contends a $50 million test program shows the compact generators would easily withstand a Challenger-class disaster and that even in a more severe accident, any radiation release would be minimal.

The activists disagree, arguing NASA underestimated the risk and withheld critical safety data compiled by a government panel, a violation of the National Environmental Policy Act.

If the legal challenge fails, members of the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice have vowed to trespass at the Kennedy Space Center to disrupt the countdown and delay the launch.

With the stage set for confrontation, Atlantis's crew — commander Donald Williams, 47, co-pilot Michael McCulley, 46, flight engineer Franklin Chang-Diaz, 39, Shannon Lucid, 46, and Ellen Baker, 36 — plans to fly to the Florida spaceport next Monday for final flight preparations.

Assuming the booster problem is resolved and Atlantis is cleared for launch Oct. 12 as planned, the countdown likely would begin on time Monday.

Sources said in the absence of word to the contrary from Gasch, the countdown would continue to the point where engineers normally would begin preparing to pump rocket fuel into the shuttle's giant external tank.

Farms face water rationing

United Press International

WEST PALM BEACH — Water will be rationed to south Florida farmers as early as next week with forced cutbacks of 30 percent to 40 percent, water managers said.

Homeowners on the southeast coast are next for mandatory cutbacks, said Tom MacVicar, deputy executive director of the South Florida Water Management District.

Current voluntary guidelines ask residents to limit outside water use to three days a week.

Those probably will become mandatory in November, he said Tuesday.

With south Florida's water supply at its lowest point ever going into the dry season, the water district will ration water sent to the farms from Lake Okeechobee, MacVicar said.

The lake was down to 12.23 feet above sea level, 3.27 feet below normal. If it drops 2 more feet during the dry season, which is a norm, then it will be nearing the 10-foot mark at which it is almost impossible to send water to the southern counties, MacVicar said.

The rationing will affect only the Everglades Agricultural Area, which covers much of western Palm Beach County and parts of Hendry and Glades counties.

MacVicar said the district's board will skip the first two levels of water restrictions next week and impose on farmers "Phase 3" cutbacks, the second-most severe available, unless conditions change.

"If we had to sustain that kind of cutback for any number of months, there would be some crop losses," MacVicar said.

Plan

ic stresses, limited education and employment perceptions of drug addiction.

"We have a lot to overcome in these situations," he said. Linda Williams, SHA interim executive director, told Visser in a letter last month. "The vast majority of our residents are black, largely single-parent households, living far below the median family income for the Central Florida area. Most unemployed or underemployed find themselves and household family members engulfed in the toxicity of substance abuse."

Williams said Visser's SHA has lacked money to address the problem. "We operate on federal subsidies and rental income which is insufficient to provide services beyond decent shelter. However, decent shelter becomes obscured when social blight runs rampant," she said.

Visser said his proposed program could work as a complement to programs put in place recently in the housing authority. Last month the authority hired a tenant counselor, adding to services provided by community resource police officers assigned to the housing projects this spring.

Child care is a major obstacle in the treatment of low-income women, Visser said. Many treatment programs require clients to stay at halfway houses or program facilities, he said, leaving women with no one to care for their children. His plan would offer about four hours of treatment daily, and care for children while mothers take part in group therapy and individual counseling.

Treatment would be based on the concept of Anonymous, where group therapy and peer support is central to success, Visser said.

Visser's plan would also establish a task force of residents in the area to lead and promote a drug- and alcohol-free environment. He said he has already drawn support from community leaders in Georgetown and Goldboro.

Clients would be recruited through family awareness groups, Visser said. Counselors would educate non-using families about treatment and intervention, then family members would refer clients to the treatment facilities, he said.

Seminole Community College, Seminole Housing Authority, the health department, area hospitals and drug treatment centers have offered support of the proposal, Visser said. Each could contribute to education and treatment components of his plan, he said.

The Grove has been in operation in Seminole County since 1971. The center operates a facility at Third Street and Oak Avenue and has a residential facility for adolescents in Winter Springs and treatment for inmates at the Seminole County jail. The Grove serves about 400 clients through residential and out-patient treatment, Visser said.

HRS provides the Grove about $600,000 annually, or about 55 percent of funds for the facility. Another 20 percent of its funding is generated through United Way, county government and the Seminole County school board. Client fees make up the remaining 25 percent of funds.

"In spite of all we hear about new drug funding coming down from the federal government, it's still a very competitive process to get it into our own community," Visser said.

The Grove will present its annual report to the community Nov. 2. Visser invites anyone interested in attending to contact him at The Grove, 321-2248.

Cities sued for toxic dumping

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government, citing federal Clean Water Act requirements, sued four cities today for failing to stop local industrial plants from dumping toxic waste water into municipal sewer systems.

The Justice Department, acting on behalf of the Environmental Protection Agency, filed suit against Detroit, Phoenix, San Antonio and El Paso, Texas, charging city officials have not enforced federal rules requiring industry to remove toxic pollutants from waste water before discharging it into sewers.

EPA officials said those four cities represent only a tiny fraction of the problem nationwide and that the suits are intended to pressure other cities to enforce the industrial "pretreatment" rules.

Pretreatment of industrial waste water is required under the Clean Water Act to ensure toxic pollution is not flushed into rivers and lakes from sewage systems, which are not designed to filter out hazardous chemicals.

City officials are supposed to enforce the pretreatment requirements by setting limits on toxic discharges by industry and then monitoring factories to assure waste water does not contain pollution levels above those standards.

"Local officials have a legal and moral responsibility ... to make sure local industries abide by the rules," said Attorney General Dick Thornburgh in announcing the lawsuits against the four cities. "Otherwise, they in effect become polluters themselves by permitting the very discharge they are supposed to police.

"We simply cannot allow harmful pollutants to reach our rivers and streams untreated," Thornburgh said.

EPA Administrator William Reilly, appearing with Thornburgh at a news conference, said the lawsuits against the four cities were part of a continuing EPA crackdown on toxic discharges by industry.

All told, the EPA estimates one-third of the nation's 1,500 sewage systems may be violating at least one essential requirement of the pretreatment program.

The violations have the most serious environmental consequences around big cities, which pump hundreds of millions of gallons of raw sewage into waterways each day. In addition to fouling waterways, EPA officials said toxic discharges from industry may cause explosions in sewer systems, such as a blast that took place in Louisville, Ky., in 1981.

They also said toxic discharges can damage sewage treatment plant equipment and expose municipal workers to harmful gases.

Among other allegations in the lawsuits filed Wednesday, the government charged the city officials failed to identify all major industrial plants discharging wastewater into municipal sewage systems and, in some cases, failed to take effective enforcement actions when violators were discovered.

The EPA said San Antonio already has agreed to pay a $225,000 fine for past violations and has agreed to limit its discharges to 100,000 gallons of toxic waste each day.

The EPA said a lawsuit was filed against San Antonio so the courts can monitor the city's progress.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Senate considers anti-drug measure

WASHINGTON — The Senate prepared to act today on a wide-ranging anti-drug bill that would send 1,350 more federal agents into the streets to fight the drug war and provide free treatment to poor addicts seeking to kick the habit.

The Senate adopted numerous provisions to the bill Tuesday but delayed final action until today.

The provisions approved ranged from prevention and treatment programs for teenagers and "latchkey" children to a study on the effectiveness of one-shot syringes that could curb drug use and reduce the risk of AIDS.

The bill also would provide help for pregnant women addicted to drugs, children abused by addicted parents, and policies to establish "drug-free" schools.

The legislation would deny bail, with rare exceptions, to drug traffickers, make it easier to evict drug dealers from public housing and send "sniffer dogs" to hunt for drugs in postal packages.

A major provision, adopted by voice vote, would authorize an additional 1,000 FBI agents and 350 drug agents, plus other law enforcement personnel such as judges, prosecutors and probation officers, at a cost of $156.5 million.

Kemp unveils major HUD reforms

WASHINGTON — Housing Secretary Jack Kemp announced a broad package of reforms for his agency that he said amounted to a "fundamental redirection of our programs" away from high-paid consultants "back to the poor."

At his first formal news conference as head of the troubled Housing and Urban Development Department, Kemp presented more than 50 ethical and financial changes Tuesday designed to increase accountability, to decrease political influence peddling and to ensure that scarce HUD funds go to worthy projects.

During the eight-year tenure of Secretary Samuel Pierce under President Ronald Reagan, major HUD programs were rife with fraud, theft, mismanagement and influence peddling by high-ranking Republicans or former agency officials.

Just last week it was revealed the Federal Housing Administration has lost about $4.2 billion. Kemp said other aspects of the HUD scandal are estimated to have cost taxpayers about $2 billion. The abuses are being investigated by Congress and by the Justice Department.

Drug testing sought in Catholic schools

CHICAGO — Two anti-drug crusading priests — under police protection because of their activities — have called for the drug testing of all students, teachers and administrators in the Roman Catholic school system in the nation's third largest city.

The Rev. George Clements and the Rev. Michael Pfleger issued the call Tuesday to Joseph Cardinal Bernardin as the cardinal attended a news conference at which 143 priests from across the archdiocese pledged to help rid neighborhood stores of drug paraphernalia.

Clements and Pfleger have actively campaigned since last April to halt the selling of drug accessories such as pipes used to smoke marijuana and crack cocaine, with Clements even being arrested for kicking down the door of one South Side business.

Such paraphernalia was outlawed recently by the Illinois Legislature, and Clements and Pfleger have been visiting stores and reporting violators to the police.

Boeing workers walk out

SEATTLE — Boeing workers, who have not had an increase in their base pay for seven years, walked off their jobs today, saying they are entitled to share in the profits of the No. 1 company in the aerospace industry.

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers said about 85 percent of its 57,000 members in the Seattle area, Wichita, Kan., Portland, Ore., and scattered sites across the country voted to reject Boeing's contract offer and strike at midnight local time.

Nine missing in boat explosion

Fishing boat hit natural gas line

United Press International

SAHINE, Texas — Coast Guard vessels searched today for nine crewmen missing in the wreckage of their fishing boat that apparently hit a gas line and exploded, killing at least two and injuring three.

Coast Guard officials said they were investigating reports the Northumberland, a 160-foot commercial fishing boat carrying a crew of 14, may have hit a natural gas pipeline before it blew up about 6 p.m. Tuesday. Flames from the natural gas pipeline and the boat leapt 200 feet above the water.

Lt. Pat Philbin, spokesman for the Coast Guard station in New Orleans that was handling the rescue effort, said two patrol boats, two helicopters and smaller vessels were participating in the search for either survivors or more victims of the explosion.

The Northumberland had been fishing in shallow water about one-half mile from shore and about 6 miles west of Sabine on the Texas-Louisiana border when the explosion occurred, officials said.

"The boat is sunk to 10 feet of water," Philbin said. "A boat that big ... that means it's probably half in and half out of the water. The major fire is out but there apparently were flareups through the night. At the moment, we are planning on continuing the search through the day."

Two bodies were brought ashore early Wednesday and officials attempted to identify them.

The Coast Guard could not confirm reports the ship struck a natural gas pipeline, said Lt. Steve Koska in New Orleans, but the ship and the pipeline continued to burn several hours after the explosion.

"There's an investigation into the circumstances. The survivors that are able to speak simply say, 'We don't know. The thing just exploded,'" Koska said. "Everything's burning out there. The vessel's burning, the pipeline's burning," he said Tuesday night.

All four valves leading to the pipeline eventually were shut off and the fire slowly died down early today, Koska said. The boat sank but the pipeline and oil spilled by the boat continued to burn.

Of the 14 crewmen aboard the Northumberland, Coast Guard officials said at least two had been killed in the explosion, three had been injured and there was no sign of the remaining nine.

The three rescued crew members were taken to Baptist Hospital in Beaumont, Texas, where one man was in critical condition, one was in stable condition and one in good condition, a hospital spokeswoman said. Hospital officials said all three men were from Louisiana.

The ship is a "pogy boat" that catches small fish to be processed into cattle feed, White said.

Bush defends Panama decision

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he is disappointed that Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega is still in power in Panama, but defended his decision not to intervene militarily, saying he knows things his critics do not.

The president was quizzed briefly during a state dinner honoring visiting Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari Tuesday evening. Asked if he was disappointed that Noriega had not been ousted in a coup attempt earlier in the day, Bush said, "Yes, I am, very."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, questioned Bush's decision "not to do anything" and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said the United States should have intervened after the intelligence panel was briefed on the developments in Panama.

But Bush defended his decision not to intervene militarily, telling reporters, "I know the facts and some of the critics don't."

Bush reflected the widespread sentiment in his administration that while officials were disappointed that the coup d'etat failed, they took heart in the fact that there is disension in the ranks of the Panamanian Defense Forces.

Vice President Dan Quayle also expressed his disappointment, but added, "But, I think the cement around him (Noriega) is cracking."

Secretary of State James Baker told reporters, "The people of Panama would be better off if he (Noriega) was out of there."

Atlanta, Cleveland elect black mayors

United Press International

Voters in Cleveland, the first major U.S. city to have a black mayor, made sure another black will lead the city come November, and Maynard Jackson, the first black mayor of Atlanta, easily won back his old job.

The race to succeed Andrew Young as Atlanta's chief executive turned out not to resemble a race at all, as Jackson held an unshakable lead from the outset.

The 51-year-old Jackson, who served as mayor of Georgia's largest city from 1973 to 1981, faced six other candidates for the job, held since 1981 by Young, who served the maximum two consecutive terms and has launched an unannounced effort to become the state's first black governor.

Jackson's main opposition was Hosea Williams, a bombastic veteran of the civil rights movement who had hoped to combine with other candidates to deny Jackson 50 percent of the vote and force a runoff.

In Cleveland, two veteran black politicians, City Council President George Forbes and state Sen. Michael White, defeated three white candidates to win the top two spots in a mayoral primary and a chance to face each other in November.

The primary was designed to narrow to two the field of candidates seeking to replace Republican George Voinovich, who served 10 years — the longest tenure in city history.

Seminole County goes to the polls

Casselberry, Altamonte Springs voters offered variety at polls

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

Casselberry and Altamonte Springs voters will have a variety of choices before them when they go to the polls in municipal elections Nov. 7.

Casselberry has 10 candidates vying for three city council and the mayor's seat. Altamonte Springs has one council incumbent facing no opponent and two new candidates running for the other council seat.

In Casselberry, Mayor Owen Sheppard is being challenged for re-election by Andrea Dennison.

Three people are vying to succeed Dennison and represent Ward 3 on the council. They are Earl McMullen; Phyllis Sheppard, who previously served on the council from Ward 1; and Tony Tizzio.

Don Brannen and Dave Henson are vying to succeed Al Harmon, who declined to run for re-election from Ward 4.

Mary Lou Miller, councilwoman representing Ward 5, is being challenged for re-election by Tom Embree and Thomas Murphy.

In Altamonte Springs, Russell Eric Hauck, chairman of the city's planning board and William McCorkle, a mortgage broker, are competing to fill the District 3 seat being vacated by Eddie Tien, who is moving out of the city.

Pat Fernandez is seeking her second term on the council representing District 1 and has no opposition in the November election.

Three incumbents compete for Lake Mary commission seats

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Four candidates, three of them incumbents, will vie for two commission seats in the Nov. 7 election.

The qualification period ended at noon Friday. Nobody filed for election on the final day, according to City Clerk Carol Edwards.

Commissioner Bill Greene, an independent investment advisor, will challenge Commissioner George Duryea, a self-employed certified public accountant, for seat 3. Kenneth King, a Seminole Community College biology professor, will run against incumbent Commissioner Thomas Mahoney, a financial advisor, for seat 5.

King was the final person to qualify last week. Last year, Greene defeated King for a one-year term on seat 1 which was vacated by Randall C. Morris when he decided to run against Dick Fess for the mayoral seat.

In December, seat 1 will be abolished as a result of a charter amendment voted for in the last election which eliminated the seat and gave the mayor voting privileges.

Survey to help district decide about new calendar

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — County school district officials hope the results of a survey on the proposed year-round school calendar will help them decide if such a calendar would be appropriate for Seminole County.

William Dailey, the district's director of planning, research and evaluation, mailed the survey Sept. 28 to 1,700 randomly selected citizens. The survey asks them about the modified school calendar, more commonly known as "year-round school."

The proposed calendar would be used only at elementary schools. With the proposed calendar, students would still attend classes 180 days a year but the time would be distributed to allow more students to use the same amount of school space.

"Year-round school is really a misnomer," Dailey said. "People think their children will be in school more than the 180 days they attend now, but they won't be."

An example of one modified calendar is the "90-30" plan. In that scenario there are two 90-day semesters separated by a thirty day vacation period. Schools would be closed during the traditional winter and spring vacation times.

Under the modified plan, students would be divided into four groups with only three of the groups occupying the school at one time. The schools could then accommodate more students.

In the past, parents have expressed concerns about how an altered calendar would effect their day care situations or their vacation schedules. They have raised concerns about the problems which might arise when one sibling was under the modified calendar while another was not. And, often, they have asked how the transition would be made.

Dailey explained that, for the recently-mailed survey, he chose citizens from the Seminole County voter registration rolls, parents and district employees from the district computer files and business leaders from membership lists of local chambers of commerce. His methods of getting a random sample ranged from letting the computer choose numbers assigned to each person on the list, to closing his eyes and running his finger down a list of possible candidates, stopping occasionally and writing the name at his fingertip.

"The survey," Dailey explained, "was issued as a means of investigating alternative methods for dealing with explosive growth in Seminole County."

The results of the survey will be presented to the school board in December.

Commission probes GTE's spending on races, skybox

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The state Public Service Commission is considering forcing GTE Florida Inc. to return to rate payers approximately $200,000 spent to promote two automobile races and rent a skybox at Tampa Stadium.

The Tampa Tribune reported Tuesday that the PSC had earlier warned the communications utility serving 1.3 million customers in the Tampa Bay area not to try to bill such expenditures to the ratepayers.

"Ratepayers shouldn't have to pay for certain kinds of expenses. The stockholders should," said Michael Wilson, chairman of the commission that regulates Florida's major utilities.

Records filed with the PSC show that in 1988, GTE spent $119,000 on the GTE St. Petersburg Grand Prix, including a $33,573 food tab paid by GTE and four of its unregulated sister companies. The company spent $57,000 for the GTE World Challenge of Tampa.

The records show the company spent an unknown amount during both races on salaries for managers, executives and administrators who spent about 600 hours at the races. Clerks and service workers spent about 360 hours working the races.

GTE employees spent 1,000 hours helping to put together the GTE Suncoast Classic golf tournament. And the company spent $25,696 in rent for a skybox at Tampa Stadium and $6,711 for tickets to Tampa Bay Buccaneers games for executives to entertain clients, the records show.

"This comes right out of the ratepayers' pocket," said Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents consumers in PSC hearings.

Drivers say traffic blues no better now

United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Nine out of 10 drivers think traffic is as bad or worse than it was last year and most of them are changing their travel plans to avoid it, the American Automobile Association said Tuesday.

The AAA's second annual Hassle Index found Americans more pessimistic about traffic tie-ups than a year ago, the organization said.

The AAA said its national survey found that 92 percent think traffic is no better or worse than it was last year. Last year, 86 percent felt that way.

Nearly half (48 percent) said roads are more congested, 44 percent said it is unchanged, 5 percent said traffic has improved and 3 percent had no opinion, the AAA said.

The survey also found that traffic concerns transcend regional boundaries, but appear most serious in the West and Northeast, where 96 percent and 95 percent, respectively, said roads are worse or no better than a year ago.

Ninety-two percent felt that way in the Midwest, 91 percent in the Great Lakes region and 86 percent in the Southeast, the AAA said.

"Motorists' freedom of mobility is being restricted by congested roads in all sections of this country and the problem is not just limited to major urban areas. Many suburban roads also are becoming more congested," said J. Kay Aldous, the AAA's vice president of public and governmental affairs.

Aldous was to speak Tuesday to a gathering of travel industry officials north of Miami.

The survey, based on telephone interviews with 1,743 adults by the U.S. Travel Data Center, also found that most Americans have altered their behavior because of traffic delays.

The AAA said 67 percent reported they leave earlier to avoid traffic tie-ups, up from 59 percent a year ago.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Coleman, Bosox part company

BOSTON — Veteran major league broadcaster Ken Coleman, familiar to a generation of New Englanders as the voice of the Boston Red Sox, Tuesday retired rather than seek a contract with the team's new flagship radio station.

Coleman announced his retirement at a meeting in Boston with officials of WRKO-AM, whose owner, Atlantic Ventures, has bought the broadcast rights to Red Sox games for four years beginning next season.

Coleman, 64, who has been broadcasting major league baseball for 34 years, had said before the meeting he realized he might not receive an offer from WRKO because of his age and stated desire to slow down and work under one-year contracts.

Atlantic Ventures Vice President Joe Winn said he could not predict whether officials actually would have made a contact offer to Coleman, but admitted they were concerned about how Coleman's personal desires would conflict with their plans to build a growing identity between their station and the Red Sox.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Miami's Torretta to get 'serious'

MIAMI — Things are changing for Gino Torretta in a number of ways as the second-year freshman takes over the starting quarterback duties for the second-ranked Miami Hurricanes.

For one thing, he is going to have to get serious.

The Miami Hurricanes' new starting quarterback said Tuesday he likes to have fun playing football. He is a little laid back, he said.

Things change for him Saturday when the Hurricanes play Cincinnati for real.

"I'll have to get more serious now that I'm a starter," said Torretta, younger brother of former Hurricane Geoff Torretta, another reserve quarterback. "Just because I was a backup I liked joking on the field."

Gino Torretta was thrown onto the field during the Michigan State game Saturday when junior Craig Erickson broke the big knuckle on the index finger of his throwing hand.

Rangers to let Dionne go

NEW YORK — The New York Rangers announced Tuesday the club would not retain center Marcel Dionne, the second-leading scorer in NHL history.

The announcement was made late Tuesday night by Rangers General Manager Neil Smith at the completion of the team's preseason training camp in Rye, N.Y.

"It was mutually agreed upon by the Rangers coaching staff and myself that Marcel Dionne, judging by the just completed training camp, will not be a member of the New York Rangers this season," Smith said in a statement released by the club. "At Marcel's request, we will continue to explore the possibility of him joining another team."

Dionne, an 18-year veteran who trails only Gordie Howe with 731 career goals and 1,771 points, saw limited action with the Rangers last season.

Mets release Hernandez, Carter

NEW YORK — Gary Carter and Keith Hernandez, aging symbols of the New York Mets' championship teams, Tuesday were told by management they are no longer needed.

The 35-year-old co-captain met separately with General Manager Frank Cashen, who thanked the two for their contributions but informed them the team would try to build around youth in the 1990s.

Carter and Hernandez were injured most of the season. Carter had knee surgery at the end of May and batted .183 with 2 homers and 15 RBI in 155 at-bats. Hernandez fractured a kneecap in May and hit .223 with 4 homers and 19 RBI in 215 at-bats.

One option the Mets had was to re-sign both players at a 20 percent reduction in salary, but Cashen said that was impractical given the players' high salaries. Carter made nearly $2.2 million this season and Hernandez $3 million.

Carter said he definitely will play somewhere next year. Hernandez said he has productive baseball left, but he will consider his future over the next month.

Boys' volleyball heats up

Loss to 'Hounds drops Pats into tie for first with Rams

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — The Seminole Athletic Conference boys' volleyball race became a logjam at the top Tuesday night when Lyman knocked off Lake Brantley 15-9, 4-15, 15-12, handing the Patriots' their first SAC loss of the season.

Lyman improved to 7-5 overall and 4-3 in the conference and will return to action Thursday at Seminole. Lake Brantley dropped to 11-2 and 6-1 in the conference and will return to action Thursday at home against Lake Howell.

Joining Lake Brantley at the top of the SAC standings is Lake Mary (6-1, 13-2 overall). Oviedo (5-2, 11-2) is just one game back.

"We played really well," Lyman assistant coach Jerri Kelly said. "I feel the team learned a lot in the tournament we played at Oviedo over the weekend."

The Greyhounds went away from their usual subbing game and stuck with seven players to guide them past the Patriots. Todd Schraw, David Haines and Marcus Dewberry all came up with strong performances to pace the Lyman attack.

Schraw had the best match off the three, playing consistently throughout and finishing with 12 spikes, four kills and three blocks. Haines did a nice job setting and serving with Dewberry coming up with a strong service performance in the final game.

"We had good all-around play," Kelly said. "Our defense was much better. We didn't depend on our offense. We played good defense and didn't get in the trouble that we have in the past."

Now fourth in the SAC, Lyman will look to evolve from its spoiler role to one of contender. The Greyhounds have earned respect around the county and other coaches know if they get on a roll, they can be very tough to beat.

"We're just one step away from being real good," Kelly said. "We just have something little missing right now."

LAKE MARY-LAKE HOWELL
LAKE MARY — Lake Mary moved back into a tie for first place in the SAC with a 15-0, 15-13 conference win over Lake Howell Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School.

The Rams improved to 13-2 overall and 6-1 in the conference and will return to action Thursday at DeLand. The Silver Hawks dropped to 3-8 and 2-5 in the conference.

"We came into the match and played a great first game," Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen said. "We covered the floor well and played a good game at the net."

Leckie helps Lake Mary in tight spot

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Lori Leckie came up with a stellar performance to lead Lake Mary past Lake Howell 14-16, 15-10, 15-12 in an action-packed match Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School.

The Rams, who improved to 14-5 overall and 6-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference, will return to action Thursday at DeLand. Lake Howell dropped to 9-8 overall and 4-3 in the conference.

Leckie, a senior setter, came up with 10 kills and several dinks to show her versatility. Leckie had to show her other talents as Lake Mary was without the services of usual outside hitter Tara Calvin.

"I feel great about the win since we were experimenting all night," Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said. "Tara Calvin went out with a knee injury on Friday and we don't know when or if she'll be back. We had to play people out of position tonight."

The mixup showed early as Lake Howell came out and stormed to an 11-0 lead. Missy Martinez, Diann Lowe and Heather Brann were all on as they helped the Silver Hawks to their early lead.

The Rams though, came right back with a rally of their own, and tied the score at 12 and extended the game. But Lake Howell came up with a big hit to take the opening game.

"We should of had the first game," Henry said. "We had the momentum. I think that momentum helped us in the second and third games."

Henry also pointed out the play of Marti Citarella and Tammy Scott, who both came up with strong efforts.

"Marti (Citarella) played great defense and Tammy (Scott) hit the ball," Henry said. "They also did things you don't get credit for, passing the ball and real strong defense."

OVIEDO-DELAND

OVIEDO — Oviedo shook off a sluggish start to put away DeLand in two games 15-12, 15-2 Tuesday night in prep girls SAC volleyball action at Oviedo High School.

The Lions improved to 13-2 overall and 7-0 in the conference and will return to action tonight at Daytona Beach Mainland. DeLand dropped to 3-9

With teammate Tara Calvin sidelined with a knee injury, Lori Leckie (No. 18, above) had to do a little bit of everything in Lake Mary's three-game win over Lake Howell on Tuesday night.

Lake Mary swimmers pull out close wins

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's boys and girls swimming teams both took narrow victories over Mount Dora Tuesday in prep swimming action at the Seminole YMCA complex.

Lake Mary's boys, now 4-0 overall, won 86-78 and will return to action Wednesday against Lyman. Mount Dora fell to 2-2 for the season with the loss.

The Rams won the 200 medley relay with Brad Bridgewater, Marc Russell, Chris Cambridge, and Chris Snively teaming up on a 1:53.78 effort.

Bridgewater also won the 300 individual medley at 1:59.60 and the 500 free style at 5:21.96. Snively won the 800 free style at 23:31 and the 100 free at 57.40. Russell won the 100 breast stroke in 1:09.57.

Other winners for the Rams were Lee Calvert in the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:10.14 and Milton "Wings" Olen in the diving competition with a score of 95.75.

Mount Dora came up with a win in the 400 free style relay but Lake Mary was able to hold on for the win on the points it had built up before the final event.

The girls meet was close also as the Rams claimed a tough 89-82 victory over the Hurricanes.

Lake Mary's girls improved to 3-1 on the season and will return to action next Wednesday at Lyman. Mount Dora fell to 2-1 on the season with the loss.

Lake Mary won the meet on the final event, the 400 free style relay, on the tandem of Christy Dobbmeyer, Ellen Cook, Jenae Polito, and Helen Page-Wilkes combined for a time of 4:24.39.

A's use mental game to down Jays

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Three seasons of 30-win baseball has taught Oakland's Dave Stewart the mathematics of baseball.

"You play nine innings, anything can happen, you never quit," said Stewart, who yielded a fourth-inning homer to Ernie Whitt and then shut down Toronto in the Athletics' 7-3 victory over the Blue Jays. "Before I won 30 games, I had not started enough to know how to hang tough when my stuff wasn't there."

Stewart, who was 21-9 in the regular season, took advantage of game's late afternoon starting time to easily retire the first three hitters. But in the second, his recall of what works came up zero.

"What I try to do in every ball game is to accomplish three things," the right-hander said. "I try to control the inside part of the plate. I try to throw fastballs and I throw an occasional breaking ball. None of those things worked early."

"Then I started getting the fastball over and getting ahead of the hitters. That made them more vulnerable to the breaking ball."

It wasn't the first time this season Stewart has struggled, but he usually has pulled through.

"I pitched in 37 ballgames this year and got into the seventh innings in all but four of them," he said. "It usually comes."

Stewart, 35, pitched against the Blue Jays, dazed the Toronto lineup after Whitt's homer. He went eight innings, yielding five hits, three earned runs, three walks and six strikeouts. It was his second ALCS career victory.

"Slow is tough mentally," Toronto's Fred McGriff said. "He turned it around after struggling early. He doesn't pull any punches. He comes right at you."

The mental toughness also encouraged Stewart's teammates.

"When you got a guy on the mound like Dave Stewart, you know it's going to be close," Rickey Henderson said. "That's a good feeling."

Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said he never doubted that Stewart was in control.

"I thought early he was throwing the ball well," La Russa said. "A lot of the game is location when you are going against great hitters."

LA Raiders replace Shanahan with Shell

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Hall of Fame lineman Art Shell became the NFL's first black head coach in more than 60 years Tuesday, replacing Mike Shanahan of the Los Angeles Raiders after the team lost three of its first four games.

"It is a historic event and I understand the significance of it," Shell said at a news conference. "The main thing is I know who I am and I'm proud of it."

"But I'm also a Raider. I don't believe the color of my skin entered into this decision. If you know Al Davis or this organization, you'll understand that."

Shell, who was offensive line coach since 1983, made the Pro Bowl eight times as a Raider offensive tackle. He joined the team's coaching staff after retiring seven seasons ago and was thought to be among those considered before Shanahan was given the job.

Sanford's Ripley sets 'B' Bomber record at New Smyrna Speedway

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Sanford's John Ripley, a veteran race driver who put his teeth on the dirt bull rings of the northeast, set a new record in the "B" Bomber division this past weekend.

On Friday night at Orlando Speedworld, where the "B" Bomber division is the most popular with the fans and the most competitive, Ripley kept the field behind his "Eight Ball" - numbered "Two-Ten", as he led every lap for the win.

At New Smyrna Speedway the following night, John accomplished the same feat.

"I finally got everything dialed in," Ripley said after the race. "It took a long time to get there, but I finally figured out what it took to make the car run good enough to dominate."

Unforeseen problems, like a fire going flat after he ran over debris, did not keep him out of the winners circle.

"I have from plans to field an open-wheel Florida Modified race car next season," Ripley said. "And prospective sponsors will definitely get their money's worth in advertising."

Warming up for this coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday's Florida Late Model Triple Crown, Dick Anderson concluded a very successful weekend by scoring his second 50-lap Late Model feature win in as many nights.

On Saturday at New Smyrna Speedway, Anderson, the defending Florida state champion, won the 50-lap feature event. The previous evening, Anderson was victorious at Orlando Speedworld. Both speedways are under the FASCAR sanction.

Finishing second in a new Hamke car with power by Boyd's Racing engines, was early leader David Russell, Ed Meredith, driving another entry out of Russell's Racing Stable, was third. Finishing fourth and fifth were Bill Kinley of Osteen in a Ford and Richard Cornwell, back in action at New Smyrna after several months of traveling to compete in major events all over the southeast.

The FASCAR-sanctioned $30,000 Florida Late Model Triple Crown Series has been scheduled for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Oct. 6-8 at Orlando and New Smyrna Speedways.

Led by Anderson and 1988 Triple Crown champion LeRoy Porter, large fields of cars are expected for all three events. This year's total of cars expected to run should be in excess of last year, when 39 automobiles attempted to qualify.

The first leg of the Triple Crown will take place on Friday in Orlando. The regular supporting divisions, including the open-wheeled Florida Modifieds, the Sportman, "A" and "B" Bombers and Figure Eight racers are also scheduled.

On Saturday, at New Smyrna, the 100-lap Late Model race that forms the second leg of the Triple Crown, will highlight the full racing program, featuring six classes of racing.

The third leg of the series will take place on Sunday on the high-banked, half-mile paved oval at New Smyrna.

At the conclusion of Sunday's program, the overall high-point Late Model Champion of the Triple Crown will be awarded a $500 bonus, along with a special custom-built trophy, courtesy of Skips Shoes and Boots.

For more information, please contact the speedway at (800) 427-4129.

Zimmer, Craig will put 34-year friendship aside

United Press International

CHICAGO — Don Zimmer and Roger Craig began a friendship while playing for the 1955 world champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

Thirty-four years later they are meeting in a situation where only one can emerge as champion.

Zimmer is the manager of the Chicago Cubs and Craig manages the San Francisco Giants. Once they exchange lineup cards Wednesday night before Game 1 of the National League Championship Series, friendship is put aside and the only issue becomes winning and advancing to the World Series.

"We were at a restaurant last night doing a TV show and we didn't get a great chance to talk," Zimmer said. "But every five minutes, he whispered to me. 'One of us is going to the World Series.'"

Whichever makes it to the Fall Classic, it will mark his first trip as a manager. Both have made it as coaches. Zimmer, in 1974, with Boston and Craig in 1984 with Detroit.

Both love to pitch out and hit and run. Zimmer, however, can be more unorthodox.

This season he intentionally walked a man with runners on first and second and then his pitcher walked home the winning run.

He also sends his runners at the most unlikely times. Once this season, he put on the hit-and-run with the bases loaded. People called him crazy, but he says it's worked four of the five times he's tried it in his career.

"What's so goofy about it?" Zimmer said. "Nobody says anything when there's a 3-2 count, one out and first and second. That's done every day. If a guy strikes out, the other guy's tagged out at the plate. If he hits the ball, they can't turn the double play."

That's Zimmer, he's always done things his own way. It hasn't always worked, but he lives with it.

"He manages exactly the way he wants to and he sleeps very well at night," Cubs coach Joe Altobelli said.

That's remarkable for a man who will forever be associated with managing the Red Sox team that blew a 14 1/2 game lead to the Yankees in 1978.

Now maybe Zimmer can make people forget about that and remember him for what he has done with the Cubs, who finished eight games under .500 last year but posted the NL's best record this season.

Unlike Zimmer, Craig hasn't had to contend with the magnified failures his friend has. Sure, he lost 24 games for the 1982 Mets and 22 more the next season, but that team was a laughingstock. As Zimmer says, "He had to be a pretty good pitcher to lose all those games."

As a manager Craig has been successful. He's had a winning record in each of his four full seasons with the Giants and he's won two divisional titles. His team probably should have won the pennant in 1987, but there's no shame losing to a team Whitey Herzog manages.

Managing isn't even Craig's true love. His passion is working with pitchers.

"I didn't pursue being a manager," said Craig.

I thought he started hitting his spots better (in the late innings)."

Stewart had complained of a sore pitching shoulder late in the season, but said Tuesday night it "felt fine. I had no problem."

In fact, Stewart had it working so well late in the game that he felt he could have gone the distance. However, La Russa opted to go with relief ace Dennis Eckersley in the ninth.

"I felt the last three innings were my best," Stewart said. I had velocity and control, (but) Tony wanted to get Eck in the game."

Shell

By hiring Shell, 42, the Raiders remove a stigma that has long blemished the NFL. For years, the league has trailed baseball and basketball in minority hiring and been repeatedly criticized by civil rights groups for its failure to name a black head coach from its ranks of qualified assistants.

The last black head coach in the NFL was Fritz Pollard, who coached the Hammond (Ind.) Pros in the mid-1920s.

Baseball has had four black managers since Jackie Robinson broke the sport's racial barrier in 1947. Two of them — Frank Robinson of Baltimore and Cito Gaston of Toronto — had their teams contending for the American League East title on the final weekend.

The most prominent black in baseball's executive suite is Bill White, president of the National League.

Minority hiring is no longer an issue in the NBA, where six blacks were head coaches last year and two black businessmen recently bought the Denver Nuggets.

Shell said he has not discussed contract with Davis.

"I have no problem with that," he said. "When I was a player, I'd go into his office and we'd talk, contract for five minutes about other things for 30 minutes."

Shanahan, who refused comment before leaving the Raiders' facility in El Segundo in early afternoon, guided the Raiders to an 7-9 record last year in his first season as an NFL head coach. He had a three-year contract.

The Raiders have blown two fourth-quarter leads and fell behind 28-0 to Denver in another game. Los Angeles is last in both rushing yards allowed (853) and penalty yards commd (307). The team has also been called for 11 holding penalties in the last two games.

Los Angeles, which has made nine moves at linebacker since the season began, plays the New York Jets next Monday night at the Meadowlands. A Raider loss would give the franchise its worst start since 1984.

Shanahan, 37, was the offensive coordinator of the AFC West rival Denver Broncos when Davis hired him in February of 1988.

"I wouldn't admit a mistake even if I made one," Davis said when asked if he erred in hiring Shanahan. "This is not done in anyway to downgrade anyone else. When I hired Michael, I thought our organization needed a fresh implementation of ideas to go along with what we were doing. I felt what was happening was we were going out in the direction of addition, but of total change."

Wanted: Army to feed army

By TERRI ANN
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — When an expected 2,000 volunteers converge on Sanford's Park on Park over the course of five days next month, keeping their stomachs full so their bodies can work may provide a major dilemma. Our Cooks of the Week are heading up the Herculean task of ensuring there is ample food, cooks and servers to feed these volunteer workers.

Beverly Huffman, chairman of the Park on Park food committee, and co-chairs Nancy Brackett and Kathy Howard, all of Sanford, commenced active planning for the event on the first of August. The overall details were set: Construction week for the children's playground, which is to be built entirely with volunteer labor and materials, would be Nov. 1-5. Breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks would be provided each day for all volunteers and for their children staying in the on-site day camp. With three months to go, and thousands of details to iron out, the women went to work.

The telephone was their lifeline, and initial contacts created a chain reaction. People agreed to donate time, money and food, and give their names of other potential helpers. Organizations such as church and civic groups, the Brownies and Girl Scouts, various PTAs and garden clubs volunteered, and passed the word on. Area businesses were contacted, with satisfying results.

"Most of the local food merchants have helped either with food, materials or money," Brackett said. In general, the Sanford community has rallied around the effort.

"It's really been a major feat of coordination here," Huffman said. "But it amazes you—very few people say no."

Huffman likens the affair to an "old-fashioned barn-raising" and hopes a spirit of fun and fellowship will pervade each meal. The days will begin with a continental breakfast (juice, pastries) at 7:30 a.m., before work commences at 8 a.m. Lunch at noon will be homemade soup and sandwiches or various fast foods donated by Sanford merchants. All the dinners will be homecooked meals, with the food to be prepared by a host of volunteer cooks.

Recipes have been distributed, but the committee is open to suggestions. "We give people these recipes and told them these were the types of things we wanted, but if they have something 'tried and true,' we'll take that!" Huffman said.

With Sunday set as the last day of construction, workers will be treated to a fully homecooked lunch. Then all Park on Park volunteers (whether they are working Sunday or not) will be invited to a grand finale barbecue of chicken, ribs and hot dogs. After a ribbon-cutting ceremony, the park will open for the kids to try out.

As is evident from their involvement in this community project, the three food committee leaders consider Sanford home, and a home to be proud of. Originally, however, they came from diverse parts of the country.

Howard was born in Monterey, Calif., but lived in Sanford twice while she was growing up, when her father was stationed here in the military. She married a Sanford native and the couple has two children. Trained as a dental hygienist, she substitutes in various offices for hygienists on vacation, sick or maternity leave.

Brackett has lived in Florida most of her life, but was born in Minnesota. She has lived in Sanford four and one half years, and in Seminole County for at least 10. Her husband is an Orlando native and the Bracketts have two children. She operates the Dairy branch of Heritage Supply, her husband's ceramic tile company based in Orlando.

Born and raised in Pikeville, Ky., Huffman moved to Sanford with her husband 11 years ago to be closer to her family, who had relocated here. The couple have two children. Huffman works as a dental hygienist at Family Dentistry, and the name is truly appropriate—her brother is the dentist and her mother works there as well.

Although the three women have chaired the food committee, Huffman was quick to point out that many others have donated equal time and energy to organizing the food for Park on Park. Many tasks were delegated out, and without the help of numerous volunteers, the project could not have been accomplished.

With several weeks to spare, their perseverance has paid off. "Everything is pretty much in place now," Howard said. "We're just waiting on confirmations and finalizing plans."

It is not too late to volunteer, however. Helpers are still needed to prepare raw vegetables for snacks, make individual snack bags of popcorn and party mix, pick up donated food from local businesses, and serve food during construction week. The committee also needs peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. To donate items or computers, please call Howard at 323-8809, Brackett at 321-1662 or Huffman at 323-2921, preferably before Oct. 18.

We will no doubt hear a collective sigh of relief, and a well-deserved one, from the Park on Park food committee late on Sunday night, Nov. 5, when the last rib is served and the last hot dog eaten.

But these ladies have no regrets about their involvement. Brackett summed it up when she said: "Something like this really pulls a community together. It makes you feel like you're part of something." Which is what it is all about.

Some of the recipes distributed by the food committee follow. If you would like to make one of these or one of your own for the Park on Park construction week, please call a committee chairman.

Squash tastes better than it sounds

What would fall be without decorative and tasty gourds such as squash and pumpkins? The number of varieties, shapes, sizes and colors make for endless eating pleasure.

Winter squash should be solid without soft spots and of the proper color for the type. The best in quality are heavy for their size and can be stored for several months in a dry, well-ventilated place.

Dress up a winter squash with sour cream and chive.

WINTER SQUASH
4 cups cubed winter squash (Butternut or Acorn)
2 tablespoons margarine
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon chopped chives
1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine squash and margarine in 1 1/2-quart casserole dish. Cover with casserole dish lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 10-12 minutes or until just about tender, stirring once or twice. Let stand a few minutes. Stir in sour cream and chive and salt; cover. Microwave on 100 percent 1-1 1/2 minutes or until heated through.

The shape of the acorn squash lends itself to filling. Other fillings to try are cranberries, sausage and apple sauce.

APPLE-MALLOW SQUASH
2 medium acorn squash

MICROWAVE MAGIC
MIDGE MYCOFF

Salt
1-2 medium apples, peeled, cored and sliced
4 tablespoons raisins
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup miniature marshmallows

Microwave on 100 percent power whole squash 8-10 minutes or until just about tender, turning squash over once or twice. Let stand 10 minutes. Cut squash in half; scoop out seeds. Place cut side up on glass plate. Sprinkle with salt.

Divide apple slices and raisins among squash halves. Top each half with 1/2 tablespoon each brown sugar and butter. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 6-7 minutes or until apples are tender. Sprinkle with marshmallows. Microwave on 100 percent, uncovered, 1 1/2-2 minutes or until marshmallows are melted.

A simple glaze will enhance the flavor of squash. This recipe calls for serving the squash in slices, which makes an attractive presentation.

GLAZED ACORN SQUASH

2 acorn squash
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup honey

Place whole squash on paper towels in microwave; cook 8-10 minutes or until soft. Let stand 5 minutes. Slice crosswise into 10-inch slices; scoop out seeds. Combine remaining ingredients. Place squash in 7 1/2-by-12-inch baking dish. Spoon sauce over. Cover and heat in microwave for 2 minutes; turning dish and spoon sauce over squash at least once. Makes 4 servings.

A favorite fall soup is the one that combines squash and apples.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND APPLE SOUP

1 small butternut squash (about 1 pound)
3 tart green apples
1 medium onion
1/2 teaspoon dried rosemary or 1 sprig fresh rosemary
1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram or 1 sprig fresh marjoram

3 cups chicken broth
2 cups water
2 slices white bread
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup heavy cream
Chopped fresh parsley

Cut the butternut squash in half and scoop out seeds. Cut the squash into chunks. Peel, core and chop the apples. Chop the onions. In a 3-quart casserole dish, combine all the ingredients except cream and parsley. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 10-12 minutes, stirring several times. Reduce power to 50 percent and microwave for 6-8 minutes, until squash is tender.

Remove butternut squash and scoop out the pulp from the peel, discarding the peel. Add pulp back to mixture and puree in blender until smooth. Do this in several batches. Return the mixture to casserole dish and microwave on 100 percent power 6-8 minutes or until it comes to a boil. Just before serving, mix in the cream. Serve hot and garnish each serving with chopped fresh parsley.

Marinades soak beef in everything from yogurt to soy sauce

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Twenty-five years ago, the basic marinade for flank steak was red wine and vegetable oil with some spices. Today, marinades for the leaner beef can include such touches as fresh ginger, hoisin or soy sauce, yogurt and fruit juices.

Marinades can tenderize or add flavor to meats. They are especially effective when used to prepare beef for dry heat methods, such as broiling, grilling or roasting. They may be cooked or uncooked, but cooked marinades add the most flavor, and are best used for meat that needs to marinate for more than 12 hours. If the beef cut is marinated longer than 24 hours, it is best to reduce the acidic ingredient slightly. Marinades usually penetrate about a 1/4 inch deep into the cut surface of the meat, regardless how long the meat is steeped.

At one time, the general rule was to marinate at room temperature. But now, home economists for the U.S. Department of Agriculture advise Marinades help stretch a food budget by tenderizing or flavoring cuts of beef for broiling, grilling or roasting.

refrigerating the meat and marinating in a securely closed plastic bag or covered glass dish to avoid food poisoning.

If you plan to use leftover marinade as sauce, cook it thoroughly before serving.

Marinades containing ingredients that burn easily, such as tomato sauce or sugar, should not be brushed on the meat until the last 20 minutes of broiling or grilling.

If the beef cut is already tender, or if it is a high-quality cut 1/4 to 3/4 inch thick, then it will only need to marinate for a few minutes to two hours.

Flavored marinades, such as a seasoned oil-base marinade, a dry marinade or a paste of herbs and spices, work best because they can be rubbed into the meat.

Acidic liquids, such as wine, vinegar, fruit juices, yogurt and buttermilk, help tenderize meat fibers. Use these for less tender cuts, chuck, round steaks or roasts. Marinate them in the refrigerator for six to eight hours or overnight.

LEMON-PEPPER MARINADE

1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/2 teaspoon fresh dill weed
1/2 teaspoon tarragon or thyme
Cracked black pepper and salt to taste

Combine lemon juice, water, oil and seasonings. This kitchentested recipe makes about 1/2 cup. Use as a marinade for smaller cuts of beef such as a flank steak, shoulder steaks or eye round steaks.

CITRUS AND SHERRY MARINADE

1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1/4 cup low-sodium soy sauce
2 tablespoons dry sherry
1 tablespoon vegetable oil (optional)
1 clove garlic, minced
1 green onion, finely minced
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
Combine orange juice, soy sauce, sherry, oil, garlic, green onion and ginger. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 cup. Use as a flavor marinade on tenderloin steaks and cube or strip kabobs.

YOGURT-CURRY MARINADE

1 cup plain low fat yogurt
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons hot pepper sauce
2 teaspoons cracked white pepper

Combine yogurt, curry powder, olive oil, garlic, sugar, hot pepper sauce and pepper. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 cup. Use as a marinade on steaks or roasts. Remove meat from marinade before cooking.

RED WINE MARINADE

1 cup dry red wine
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons coarse grain mustard
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon cracked black pepper

Combine red wine, vinegar, mustard, oil, garlic, sugar and pepper in 2-cup microwave-safe glass measure. Cover with plastic wrap, venting one corner. Microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool thoroughly before using. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 1/4 cups. Use as a marinade on larger cuts of beef such as an eye round roast, 1 1/2-inch thick top round, chuck steaks or larger cube kabobs.

Instant spuds add to ease

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you want to add more vegetable dishes to your daily menus, a filling soufflé-type entree is just the answer. This combo includes asparagus and instant mashed potatoes to save on preparation time. The rich flavor is enhanced by Parmesan cheese, Dijon-style mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Serve this tasty dish with a fresh green salad or chilled fresh fruit salad.

A more unconventional use for potatoes is in a special chocolate torte. This cake has a velvety texture because no flour is used, and sweet strawberry preserves and creamy whipped filling make this a dessert few will refuse.

ASPARAGUS AND POTATO PUFF

Instant mashed potatoes for 8 servings

4 cups separated 1 1/2 cups chopped, cooked asparagus (wash or frozen and drained)

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1/4 cup sliced green onions

1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 teaspoon pepper

4 egg whites, at room temperature

Preheat oven to 375°F. Grease a 2-quart casserole or soufflé dish. Prepare instant mashed potatoes according to package directions for 8 servings, reducing water to 2 cups. Lightly beat egg yolks.

In a large bowl, stir together potatoes, egg yolks, asparagus, cheese, green onions, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper until well mixed. In a large bowl with mixer at high speed, beat egg whites (make sure they are at room temperature) until stiff peaks form. Gently fold about a third of the potato mixture into egg whites until well blended. Fold into remaining potato mixture until well blended. Turn into prepared dish.

Bake for 45 minutes, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

CHOCOLATE-POTATO TORTS

1 184-ounce package devil's-food-cake mix

1/2 cup instant potato granules

3 eggs

1 1/2 cups water

1/2 cup vegetable oil

1 12-ounce jar seedless raspberry preserves, divided

4 cups thawed whipped topping, divided

Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease and flour two 9-by-1 1/4-inch round cake pans. In a large bowl with mixer at low speed, blend cake mix, potato granules, eggs, water and oil until moistened. With mixer at medium speed, beat 2 minutes (batter will be very thick). Spread into prepared pans.

Bake layers for 25 to 30 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pans for 15 minutes. Remove and cool completely on wire racks. Split each layer in half. Place one layer on serving plate, crust side down.

Spread with 1/2 cup of raspberry preserves and 1 cup of whipped topping. Repeat with remaining cake layers, preserves and topping, ending with a cake layer (crust side up) frosted with topping only. Refrigerate until ready to serve. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 to 12 servings.

Tabloids, mags can tell lies about celebrities with no fear

DEAR ABBY: I've seen some of the most outrageous headlines in the tabloids and magazines that are sold at the checkout stands in supermarkets. They always feature famous people (usually movie stars), and later you find out that most of the stories aren't even true! I'm talking about flat-out, bald-faced lies.

Now I hear that they actually put the head of one famous person on the body of another—showing them "together" when they have never even met each other!

How can they get away with stuff like that? I would think some of those famous people would sue those publications for every dime they had. Or is it true that celebrities don't care what people say about them as long as they spell their names right?

APPALLED IN KANSAS

DEAR APPALLED: It's not true that celebrities don't care what people say about them—they do care. But what's the alternative? Filing a lawsuit is not only expensive, it calls attention to the lie and serves to perpetuate it. (And there are those who will say, "Where there's smoke, there must be fire.") Most celebrities wisely choose to ignore the lies—libelous as they may be.

And as for the people who buy those publications—they don't care whether the gossip is true or not, as long as it makes good reading.

DEAR ABBY: Congress passed a bill naming October as National Down Syndrome Awareness Month. As the parent of a 2-year-old daughter with Down syndrome, I'm excited about the opportunity that awaits us to better educate people about children and adults with this condition.

The most common clinical cause of mental retardation, Down syndrome occurs in approximately one in 800 births. It is the "fault" of neither parent. It

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EATING HIM IN TORONTO":
 H a t i n g him as you do will hurt you more than it will hurt him. Please consider these wise words of Dale Carnegie in his book "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living" (1948):

"When we hate our enemies, we give them power over us—power over our sleep, our appetites and our happiness. They would dance with joy if they knew how much they were upsetting us. Our hate is not hurting them at all, but it is turning our own days and nights into a hellish turmoil."

Dietary fiber has various sources

Newspaper Entertains Area.

It's not difficult to cavendrop on someone's diet these days. Bombarded by recommendations about what and what not to eat by faddists and professionals alike, we're all food-obsessed.

But with all this advice and information, sorting the chaff from the wheat is a real problem for dieters. Take dietary fiber, for example. A food server in New York City was overheard complaining that she was getting tired of carting all those bowls of cereal. "Was there something else she could eat to get her fiber?" she asked after serving her customer.

Katy Raneri, a registered dietician who works for General Foods in White Plains, N.Y., has something to say on that subject. "Most people think they should be eating more fiber, but they're not certain how much, where they can find the best sources, and why fiber is necessary."

"For a healthful, balanced diet," Raneri continues, "we should eat 20 to 30 grams of fiber each day, or about six servings from a variety of fiber-containing foods. These include whole-grain cereals and breads, peas, beans, vegetables, fruits and nuts."

Dietary fiber is a type of plant carbohydrate that is indigestible. Insoluble (non-water-soluble) fiber aids digestion, promotes regularity and may reduce the risk of colon cancer. Soluble (water-soluble) fiber may help lower elevated blood cholesterol and improve control of blood sugar.

It's easy to get the equivalent of six servings of fiber each day because of the varied selection of foods in these two broad categories. For example, soluble fiber is contained in oats, legumes, fruits and vegetables. Insoluble fiber can be found in whole-grain wheat cereals and breads, and the skins of fruits and vegetables.

A person can get two of the six recommended servings, says Raneri, by eating bran flakes, skim milk, a cup of strawberries and a glass of orange juice for breakfast. For lunch or dinner, a salad with skinless white-meat chicken, fresh fruit and a yogurt dressing with a crunchy nut-like cereal topping satisfies another one of the six servings. So, Ms. Food Server, things are looking up. Aside from cereal, there are plentiful, tasty sources of fiber around.

 1 to 2 tablespoons honey

To make dressing: In a small bowl, combine yogurt, honey and remaining 3 tablespoons orange juice. Drizzle over fruit mixture; sprinkle with cereal. Serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings, or 6 cups.

Who's cooking?

The Sanford Herald welcomes suggestions for cooks of the week. Do you know someone whose food is always the highlight of company picnics, church potlucks, receptions or covered-dish luncheons? It might be an acquaintance who has won a cooking contest or invented a new twist to the peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwich.

Novice cooks and ethnic cooks, as well as experienced cooks and master chefs, add a different dimension to dining.

Who is your choice? Maybe it's your mother, father, brother, sister, son, daughter, spouse, friend or boss.
