Utility fee passes

LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary officially approved a Stormwater Utility Fee ordinance last night. The measure, which becomes effective immediately, passed unanimously on second reading, with no public or commission comments.

The fee enacted by the ordinance is expected to generate approximately $232,000 per year.

Charges will be made to homes and businesses based on the Equivalent Drainage Unit (EDU), determined by averaging stormwater runoff and the impervious areas on the actual property.

Each single family residence will be classed as having one EDU, and be charged a total of $4 per month, which includes a base fee and a contribution fee. Non-residential property with site mitigation facilities will not pay the contribution fee.

Commercial property will be considered on an individual basis, determined by the amount of surface area on the building, and paved parking areas.

Even trees pass on

SANFORD — The Fort Mellon Park area will soon be losing two familiar fixtures. Two large oak trees are turning brown and dying. Grounds Maintenance Coordinator for the City of Sanford, Howard Jeffries, said the trees will be removed within two or three weeks.

"They aren't posing any threat at the present time," he said, "but we wouldn't want to leave them up too long."

Jeffries said the city has had the trees checked by the urban forestry department, which has determined the trees were apparently killed by lightning. "They weren't directly hit," he said, "but apparently the lightning struck the ground under the roots area, and killed both of them."

"They are 40 to 50 years old," Jeffries commented, "and I'm sure they will be missed in the park area. They have provided excellent shade near the picnic table areas for the people who visit the park, and I'm sorry they will have to go."

Within the next few weeks, the city is planning on planting some new trees in the area, considerably smaller.

Clarification

An article in Thursday's Sanford Herald about county commission candidate Randy Morris stated he chaired a committee that had a $5.4 million proposal to landscape and beautify Lake Mary Boulevard, a proposal that was subsequently whittled down to $750,000.

Morris, who could not be reached prior to the publication of the article, said Thursday the $5.4 million figure represented the total cost of a preliminary list of beautification options between Markham Woods Road and U.S. Highway 17-92. The list included the cost of burial of powerlines and other options not included in the Lake Mary Boulevard Study Committee's final recommendation, which totaled $750,000.

Jury: Life in prison

Man who killed in-law with silver bullet sentenced

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A man convicted of killing his sister-in-law in her Wekiwa home last year was sentenced to life in prison late Thursday afternoon by Seminole Circuit Judge Alan Dickey.

The twelve-member jury, which in March convicted Al Wardeh, 48, of first-degree murder in the shooting death of Carol Wardeh, recommended the penalty. He must serve 25 years in prison without parole, according to state sentencing guidelines. Wardeh was also convicted of two counts of aggravated assault for shooting at Michael and Bethany Wardeh, his nephew and niece. He was also convicted of shooting in an occupied building. The jury returned to court Thursday to hear testimony and recommend a sentence in the penalty phase of the case. Assistant State Attorney Stewart Stone argued Wardeh should be given the death penalty for the suffering caused by the murder. He called a number of witnesses, including the victim's husband, Sarah, their children, Michael, Bethany and Daniel, and a sister who testified about the impact of Carol's death.

In turn, defense attorneys Arthur Hall and George Russell called two psychiatrists and former neighbors who testified Wardeh was a friendly, helpful, hard-working man who became depressed and withdrawn after losing his job.

The relationship between Wardeh and his sister-in-law became strained when the two argued over money, his gambling and the behavior of Bethany, Wardeh's Syrian immigrant wife, who became a

Suspicious fire probe continues

Burglar may have set fire

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A person is still suspected in the fire that destroyed the interior of a Sanford night club early Thursday morning. Police say it may have been connected to a burglary.

Police and fire investigators are checking on the connection between a rear door that was broken open at the Party Machine and a burglary report made at approximately the same time as the fire report.

Investigators are still classifying the blaze as highly suspicious, but have not as of this morning officially declared it arson. Meanwhile, the search for clues continued at 2411 Park Drive today.

Ferry Murray, in charge of the fire investigation, said she hoped to conclude her investigation by yesterday, but was unable to do so. "The roof started collapsing down on us," she said, "so we figured it's time to get out for our own safety."

Murray said she plans to continue the investigation.

LAKE MARY — The larger lakes in Lake Mary are in relatively good condition. That's the word of the latest Lake Watch Program report.

Brian Loe, who heads the program for the City of Lake Mary, made a presentation on the first 18-month study during Thursday night's city commission meeting. Volunteers, led by Loe, have been obtaining lake water samples from each of the lakes within or partially in the city limits.

For at least the four largest lakes, Loe said, "we have enough data with which to form an initial conclusion. The other lakes still need more study."

Loe explained the watch's findings on each of the lakes, which have been researched at the University of Florida. They were based on the first 12 to 18 months of data obtained from water samples. He

Aircraft company moves to expand

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport Authority met in a special workshop meeting Thursday to discuss the future of one tenant with expansion plans.

As a result of the meeting, Jett Aire will be moving from the south to north side of the airport area.

Jett Aire has been operating at the airport for the past three years. It handles aircraft sales, maintenance and brokering, as well as an corporate pilot club.

In the authority meeting, earlier this month, discussion started on a building expansion at the present site. The St. Johns Water Management District, however, filed a number of new site development conditions on any change.

They included a requirement for a separate general permit for building development, a large retention pond to be constructed near the development, relocation of an existing drainage pipe, relocation of utilities, and demolition of Building 1 (the Airport Authority offices) in order to complement the project.

"Rather than get involved in all of this," said Aviation Director Steve Cooke, "we started looking at relocating Jett Aire to the northern

21st-century women explore tech careers

SANFORD — Young women still don't have many professional role models when it comes to technical and other non-traditional high-paying jobs.

Seminole Community College has been trying to address that need.

Ninth and tenth grade girls who attend both Seminole and Lyman high school have spent the past week at the college preparing for success in college and the job market.

"Twenty-first Century Woman" is a free week-long workshop that has helped to educate the students about non-traditional, high-paying technical careers.

Fifty young women participated in the workshop that was designed to supplement the many "Tech Prep" opportunities that are offered at their high schools in cooperation with SCC.

Organizers said the participants in the

Tropical depression forms in Gulf

MIAMI — A tropical depression formed in the southwestern Gulf of Mexico and forecasters expect it to become this year's first tropical storm.

A reconnaissance plane is scheduled to fly into the season's second depression this morning, said Ed Rappaport, a hurricane specialist at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

"At this point, it is still a depression," Rappaport said today. "The organization has been increasing slowly over the last several hours."

The depression was carrying heavy thunderstorms across the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico as it moved toward the northwest at about seven miles per hour, the hurricane center reported.

It was expected to hit land at the northern Mexico coast or southeastern Texas.

At 4 a.m. EDT, the depression's center was located near latitude 21 degrees north and longitude 92.4 degrees west, or about 465 miles southeast of Brownsville, Texas. Its top winds were near 35 mph.

If the system's maximum winds reach 39 mph, it would become a tropical storm and be named Arlene.

The six-month Atlantic hurricane season began June 1.

Man charged with elderly neglect

POMPANO BEACH — The son of a 97-year-old woman was arrested after police said he kept her sealed in the bathroom and forced to sleep there.

Edgar Awin, 60, apparently only freed his mother, Irma Awin Eisenstadter, when he would stop by daily to visit and feed her, police and neighbors said.

"He said he would confine her to the bathroom for her own well-being so she wouldn't hurt herself," police spokeswoman Sandra King said Thursday. "In other words, he caged his mother in the bathroom for her own good."

Firefighters had to break into the stench-filled apartment, where they found a frail Irma Awin Eisenstadter locked inside the bathroom.

She was lying on what appeared to be a lawn chair covered with soiled bedding.

Police charged the son with elderly neglect.

Customs donates jeans to farm laborers

HOMESTEAD — The U.S. Customs Service donated 26,000 pairs of fake designer jeans to several hundred farm laborers in south Dade County.

The jeans, which bore counterfeit "Pepe" labels, were confiscated by Customs agents at Port Everglades in November. The shipment's worth was estimated at a half-million dollars.

Hoteliers ask for a break

DAYTONA BEACH — Hoteliers want the spring break mecca to stop spending tax dollars for promotions.

Members of the Hotel Motel Association of the Daytona Resort Area voted overwhelmingly Thursday to stop the spring break promotions paid by the city's resort tax. The majority of operators said spring break and Black College Reunion weekend tarnished the city's image, causing vacationers to avoid Daytona at other times of the year.

"Is this the end of spring break? I don't think so," said Gary Brown, president of the hotel association. "I do think, though, that this sends a clear message that we have an image problem and that we need to redirect some marketing and advertising dollars."

Brown expects individual hotels to continue promoting spring break, however, he wants Destination Daytona, the city's visitors bureau, to stop spending tax dollars for the promotions.

Destination Daytona spent about $270,000 promoting spring break and Black College Reunion weekend this year.

Spring break attracted about 250,000 college students this year, according to local estimates.

Gas prices up slightly

HEATHROW — Gas prices were up slightly in June, but AAA Clubs of Florida reported the trend of higher prices appeared to be stabilizing across the state.

The average cost per gallon of self-serve unleaded rose .6 cent to $1.141, AAA said on Thursday. This month's increase is significantly smaller than last month's rise of more than 2 cents per gallon.

Mid-grade unleaded rose 1.3 cents per gallon to $1.27, while premium unleaded was up 1 cent to $1.35 per gallon.

Full-serve gasoline also was up. Regular unleaded rose 1 cent per gallon to $1.51, mid-grade increased 1.1 cent to $1.60 per gallon and premium unleaded increased .9 cent to $1.68 per gallon.

The highest reported price for self-serve regular unleaded was $1.21 in Palm Beach and the lowest reported price was $1.09 in Port Richey.

Governors meet with first lady

Health care flexibility might avoid '50-state failure'

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

WOODSTOCK, Vt. — Governors pushing the White House for some autonomy on health care reform are calling for a trial-by-fire experiment: Let states go their own way and see what works. That way, if President Clinton's plan is flawed, not everyone suffers.

"If 50 states have to go off and do things the same way and you have something that fails, you'll have a 50-state failure," said Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida.

"Let Hawaii do one thing, Florida another and Vermont try something else. See what works," said Chiles, one of a dozen Democratic governors meeting in this New England town for a weekend retreat on health care reform, the economy and education.

"There's not a single right answer to medical care in America; there are a number of right answers," said Gov. Barbara Roberts of Oregon. "Different states have chosen different paths. Out of that we will probably get an incredible amount of learning ... and in the end, devise a better national plan."

The Democratic governors said they're looking for reassurance on states' flexibility from Hillary Rodham Clinton during her scheduled talk to them today. Mrs. Clinton is leading the White House task force on health care reform.

In the past, the White House has pledged state flexibility under the developing health care reform package Clinton will propose later this year.

The governors said they're all for the federal government setting a minimum package of benefits for everyone. That way some states won't have anything better than others, they said.

And Gov. Howard Dean of Vermont urged the federal government to mandate whatever financing mechanism will pay for it, whether it's premiums or payroll taxes or something else.

"So the states don't compete with each other on taxes, one having cigarette taxes and another income taxes," Dean said.

Each state has different circumstances to deal with, the governors said.

"Don't tell me I have to do what Oregon does," Chiles said, "because it won't necessarily work for Florida."

Jeb Bush leaves firm to concentrate on gubernatorial race

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Undeclared gubernatorial candidate Jeb Bush has cut all ties to his real estate development company to spend more time preparing for his campaign bid.

"While I have not officially announced, I believe my candidacy requires full-time attention from now to Election Day," said the 40-year-old Republican.

Bush, a son of former President George Bush, refused to divulge the size of his financial settlement with Codina Bush Group — one of Miami's most active firms of its kind.

But his partner of 14 years, Armando Codina, told The Miami Herald for today's editions that it was in the "seven figures."

"He won't have to worry about putting bread on the table while devoting his time to the campaign," Codina said.

Bush will be required to file a personal financial disclosure statement when he becomes an official candidate. While he said he and his partner had nothing to hide, he hopes Codina Bush will not come under scrutiny during the campaign.

"It wouldn't be fair to Armando or the company," he said.

Bush was appointed as Florida secretary of commerce from 1987-88 by former Gov. Bob Martinez. He is running for public office for the first time, but he ran the Bush-Quayle presidential campaign in Flor-

Local family wins lottery drawing

SUNRISE — Laura Demitt was the grand prize winner in the Florida Lottery's 24th $1 million grand prize drawing.

Demitt, 38, of Lauderhill was one of seven scratch-off finalists competing Thursday for prizes of between $10,000 to the $1 million top prize.

The other winners and their prizes were Jack and Cheryl Smith, 54, of DeLand, $50,000; Smith, a salesman at Scotty's, said he plans to "just take it easy." He enjoys bowling and fishing. Mrs. Smith has been an employee of the Sanford Herald for 10 years. They have one teenage daughter, Cindy, Wanda Taylor, 38, of Valdosta, Ga., $15,000; Tammy Black, 29, of Georgiana, Ala., $15,000; Robert Holloway, 63, of Cocoa Beach, $15,000; Susan Miller, 30, of Winter Haven, $10,000; and Gladys Adkins, 78, of St. Petersburg, $10,000.

Gallagher bars conflicts on boards

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Members of boards operating insurance companies, including one for people who can't find homeowners' coverage, are barred from financial gains from the posts, state Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher said.

Gallagher said Thursday he adopted ethics rules as a result of hearings on a joint underwriting association set up to assess all insurance carriers to provide coverage for people unable to get homeowners policies on the open market after Hurricane Andrew.

Such boards hire insurance companies as "servicing carriers" to operate their funds, said Gallagher, who is also state treasurer.

"At the recent public hearings we have held, citizens expressed deep concern that some insurers are being paid to be JUA servicing carriers while those same insurers have representatives on the board who selected these servicing carriers," he said.

The new rule says members of such a board can't act as servicing carriers for the board, use the post for financial gain, or accept gifts or gratuities other than meals.

The boards also must put limits on travel and expenses that will be reviewed and approved by the Department of Insurance, Gallagher said.

The rules apply to the Florida Residential Property & Casualty Joint Underwriting Association that provides the homeowners' coverage and to other state-created boards that act as "insurers of last resort."

They include the Florida Property & Casualty Joint Underwriting Association, a commercial insurance pool; Florida Medical Malpractice Joint Underwriting Association; Florida Joint Underwriting Association, a high-risk auto insurance pool; Florida Patients Compensation Fund; Florida Comprehensive Health Association, and Florida Windstorm Underwriting Association.

Domestic violence charged

Patrick Lynn Steele, 27, 785 Minerva Lane, Lake Mary, was arrested on a domestic violence aggravated assault charge at his home early Thursday morning.

Steele's estranged wife reported she locked him out of the home during an argument about their impending divorce. She reported Steele got into their car and drove it into a wall of their home several times.

William G. Brewer, 36, 181 Oak St., Sanford, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge Wednesday night.

The son of Brewer's girlfriend reported Brewer struck him several times.

Vince Edward Howard, 26, 2580 Ridgewood Ave., Apt. 205, Sanford, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge by Sanford police Wednesday evening.

Howard's girlfriend reported he pushed her during an argument.

Michael A. Parton, 34, 1510 Sparrow St., Longwood, was arrested early Wednesday morning on a domestic violence battery charge following a scuffle with a family member.

Shoplifting charged

Kattie C. Fatuzzo, 75, 378 Bahia Circle, Longwood, was arrested on a shoplifting charge at the Pic N Save in State Road 434 in Longwood Wednesday afternoon.

A store employee reported Fatuzzo attempted to leave without paying for $8.62 in merchandise.

Traffic stop leads to arrest

Jow Stephen Smith Jr., 20, 1210 W. 15th St., Sanford, was arrested early Wednesday morning following a traffic stop by Sanford police.

Police report stopping Smith after noticing the tag light was out on his car at 3:55 a.m. When asked for his identification, Smith opened his glove compartment, revealing a .22-caliber handgun, police report. Smith was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed firearm, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, and driving with a suspended license.

Several names given

Walter Dennis Schuler, 42, 1108 County Road 427 South, Longwood, was arrested early Wednesday morning following a traffic stop by a Seminole County deputy.

The deputy reported stopping Schuler on Dunbar Avenue near Altamonte Springs after watching him drive slowly with no headlights. When asked for his name, Schuler gave him several identities, the deputy reported. Schuler was held on charges of obstruction of an investigation and driving with a suspended license.

Suspended license, wrong tag

Angel Timmy Ocasio, 24, 304 Fourth St., Sanford, was arrested following a traffic stop Wednesday afternoon.

Seminole County deputies took Ocasio into custody on charges of driving with a suspended license and having a tag on his vehicle which was assigned to another vehicle.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:

Shona Lynn Thongamut, 22, 110 Sugar Maple Court, Sanford, was arrested at her home Wednesday afternoon. Thongamut was wanted on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a suspended license charge.

Manuel Vincent Medina, 25, 157 Morning Glory Drive, Lake Mary, was arrested Wednesday in Altamonte Springs on an Orange County warrant charge of issuance of worthless check.

Charles Wilson Redman, 29, 1300 Park Ave., Sanford, was served with a warrant Wednesday in the Seminole County jail, where he was being held on a prior arrest. Redman was charged with failure to appear in court to answer to a suspended license charge.

Crimes reported to authorities

The following crimes were reported to Seminole County deputies and Sanford police:

The owner of Ellis and Associates Computer Center, 2200 S. French Ave., Sanford, reported the business was burglarized sometime Wednesday between 8:10 p.m. and 9:27 p.m. The same business was burglarized June 8.

More than $2,000 worth of jewelry and other items were reported taken from a Goldsboro residence in the 1700 block of Strickland Avenue sometime Wednesday between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon.

More than $3,200 in stereo equipment and other items were reported taken from a vehicle parked at a residence in the 100 block of Cumberland Circle East near Longwood sometime between 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

A $400 speaker was reported taken from a residence in the 200 block of Palm Place, Sanford, sometime between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 5:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Pepsi tampering scare

Federal investigators find no proof of foreign objects

By RICHARD L. VERNAZI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Federal investigators are finding no proof that foreign objects were deliberately sealed into Pepsi cans and are arresting people for lying about finding such things in the soft drinks.

"It is well-known that even one report of possible tampering can — and will — lead to unfounded reports," said Food and Drug Administration Commissioner David Kessler. "It is a vicious cycle."

"On the basis of the information we have so far, the notion that there has been a nationwide tampering of Diet Pepsi is unfounded," Kessler said at a news conference Thursday.

He said the conclusion was based on investigators' judgment, logic and forensic analyses.

Kessler said there had been a handful of federal arrests of people who claimed to have found syringes, nails or other objects in Pepsi cans and that other people who had made such claims are recanting.

"I would not be surprised if there were other additional arrests," Kessler said.

He said that in addition to an arrest earlier this week in Pennsylvania, federal authorities arrested three people Thursday in Covina, Calif.; Albion, Mich., and Ohio. Officials on Thursday also arrested a woman in Colorado and a man in South Carolina after store security cameras captured them putting objects in Pepsi containers.

Kelly Jo Fitzwater, 29, of Beach City, Ohio, was arrested on a federal charge of knowingly communicating false information that a product had been tainted, said FBI spokesman Bob Hawk.

Ms. Fitzwater, who said she found a sewing needle in a can of Diet Pepsi, appeared before U.S. Magistrate James Gallas in Akron and was released on $10,000 bond, Hawk said.

Federal authorities arrested Maria Luz Martinez, 62, of Covina, on charges of making false and fictitious statements to the FDA, said Carole Levitsky, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles. Covina police said Ms. Martinez confessed that she had fabricated her story about finding a syringe in a Pepsi.

"Let me stress one point, and I am serious about this: We will prosecute false reports of tampering," Kessler said.

Working day and night since the reports of possible tampering began, "we have been unable to confirm even one case of tampering," Kessler said.

Kessler at first said he did not want to speculate on motives, but asked later why anyone would make a false report, he said: "They may have thought there's something in it for them."

The first report came June 9, when an 82-year-old man in Tacoma, Wash., said he peered into a can of Diet Pepsi to find out if he'd won a prize and found a syringe. Soon after, similar reports came pouring in.

The FDA and Pepsi-Cola would not release numbers, but local media accounts compiled by The Associated Press indicate more than 50 reports of tampering in at least 23 states had been made by Wednesday night.

Most complaints involved hypodermic needles or syringes, but other items were reported as well, including a crack cocaine vial, a bullet and a glob of dark brown goo.

Charges: Wendy's test asked about sex fantasies

By The Associated Press

PENSACOLA — A Wendy's franchise owner says he didn't realize a test being given to job applicants included a question about sexual fantasies and says he stopped using it when a prospective employee complained.

But Jacqueline Lopez said the letter of apology she received was insufficient and Wednesday she filed a formal complaint with the Pensacola-Escambia County Human Relations Commission.

It accuses Wendco Corp., owner of 12 Wendy's restaurants in the Florida Panhandle, of sexual harassment.

"This test offended me. It was outrageous," the Pensacola woman said. "I want it stopped now. I want to make sure no one else is ever humiliated this way during a job interview."

Wendco owner Roger Webb said the test was used only four times and intended only to get applicants to speak freely about their backgrounds. He said company officials don't even look at the answers and didn't know the test, actually a computer game, contained an offensive question.

"We are as shocked as anybody because we didn't know what it said," Webb said Thursday.

Ms. Lopez said Wendco controller Charles Coder tried to goad her into sharing her sexual fantasies by saying, "Well, the girl before you secretly wanted to be in a nudist camp."

Coder was unavailable for comment, but Webb denied the accusation.

The test is a lifestyle computer game for adults that was given to job applicants during their third interview.

Pitch in and help make celebration a success

The 217th anniversary of our nation's Declaration of Independence is almost upon us. July 4th is a day to commemorate the initial signing of the document in 1776 which is aimed at preserving and protecting our freedom.

In Sanford, the celebration appears to be growing larger than ever. The Sanford-Seminole Jaycees have been walking the streets seeking donations for the People's Fireworks fund. In addition to the display that night on the lakefront, other events are planned. They include a car show, fun events for children, food, entertainment and various day-long family activities.

A special salute is also being planned for the Sanford National Guard, Company B, 124th Infantry Regiment. The event will be held by the "Friends of the National Guard" at the east end of Fort Mellon Park from noon until 4 p.m.

Last year, because of problems connected with launching of fireworks, the display got underway late. Many people became very irritated over the delay.

This year, fireworks organizer Steve Alford said other arrangements have been made, and everything is expected to take place as scheduled.

The main ingredient in producing an outstanding July 4th observance is cooperation. Whether it is the National Guard salute, events at the park or fireworks, success is going to depend on the people who are involved.

Some will be working on setting up booths or displays. Others have already been raising funds with which to pay for the fireworks. Additional people will be required as the day draws nearer to give other assistance.

No one can do it alone. Everyone should be involved in one way or another.

It's individuals who will be celebrating independence. The day is not being financed by government or industry. It is being put on by people.

During these remaining days before the big event, we urge the people of Central Florida to help in any way possible. Working together can make this a great event for everyone.

It will be a day in which each of us will know that although we are united in one nation, we are individually independent, a right guaranteed by the constitution we are celebrating.

Help police widows, orphans

The next time you get a call from a representative of the Central Florida Police Benevolent Association asking you for a donation to help widows and orphans of local police, I suggest you send a check. If you wish, to the Sanford Police Benevolent Association. The local police department doesn't belong to the Central Florida Police Benevolent Association and to the best of my knowledge never has.

The Central Florida Association hires professional solicitors and a considerable amount of money raised never reaches a point where it helps anybody. On the other hand, when the Sanford association puts on a fund-raiser, just about every penny collected goes for the purpose intended.

Class reunion sparks fond memories

MIDDLETOWN, CONN. — Arkansas may have produced Bill Clinton, but it took a law school in New England to hone his cognitive skills for the presidency.

I could have predicted his success because I grew up in Hartford, Conn., undergirded by two self-evident truths: New England is the birthplace of America and the intellectual fountainhead for the nation's most superior universities (even George Will owes his collegiate beginnings to New England).

A few days ago, in this bucolic Connecticut valley, I attended my class's 45th class reunion at Wesleyan University.

Every time I visit Wesleyan, I marvel at its distinguished uniqueness — a synthesis of academic excellence with a firm commitment to multiculturalism. This year's freshman class will be comprised of 33 percent minorities (Asians, blacks and Hispanics). Over 200 blacks are already in the student body.

With apologies to the well-known cigarette advertisement, Wesleyan has come a long way, baby. Women are now a majority of the formerly all-male student body.

Forty-five years ago, I was sitting on the dorm steps with my blonde roommate, Howie Williams, on a muggy summer day. "Next year, Wesleyan plans to cut its quota on Negroes in half," Howie intoned.

I was stunned. How can they do that? I'm the only Negro in the student body. "Easy," deadpanned Howie. "they plan to admit a half of a Negro next year."

That same irreverent humor was present at our 45th reunion of a class that produced a congressman, a White House correspondent, one of the nation's top legal scholars, a prize-winning medical researcher, a cardiologist, a private school headmaster, several corporate CEOs, bank presidents, theologians, university deans, chaired professors, high-school teachers, small-business owners, advertising copywriters, commercial artists and your newspaper's syndicated column-

New England is the intellectual fountainhead for the nation's most superior universities.

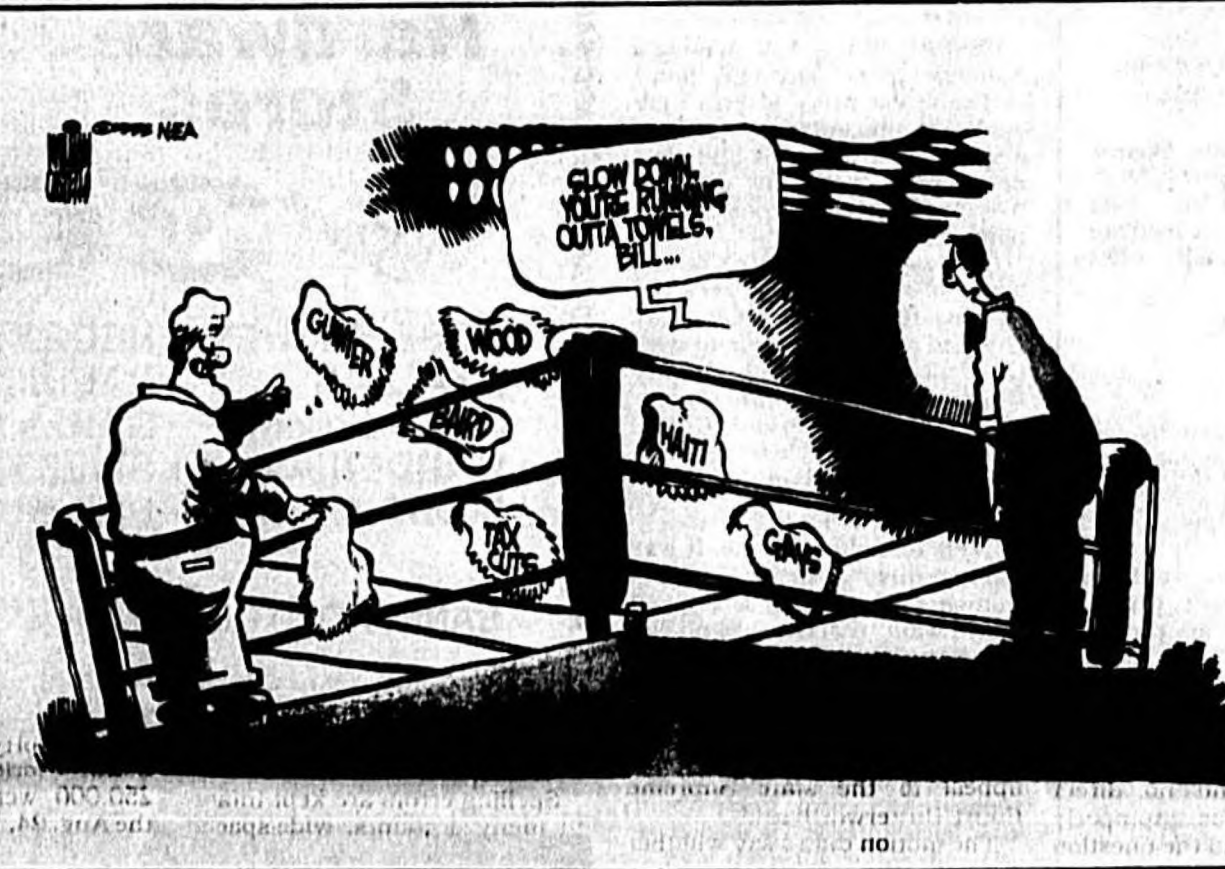

ist. But the genial and handsome Ted Etherington outdid all of us. Having been president of the American Stock Exchange, the scholarly lawyer returned to his alma mater to become president, only one of two men in American history to serve as a stock-exchange president and a university president. (I told you we were unique.)

As class reunions go, however, ours was not that unique. Maybe we'll do better on our 50th. But my reunion with America was far more inspiring. I visited with my three younger sisters, all retirees. "Why is your brother still working?" inquired one of their fellow retirees who lives in nearby Manchester. "Charlieboy always was a slow learner," quipped Irene.

Two sisters, Irene and Anne, live in the suburbs. Madalene, the most courageous of the three, has remained in Hartford, a synonym for urban disaster.

With its majority of low-income blacks and Puerto Ricans and an insurance industry that still hasn't figured out how to coexist with poor people, Hartford typifies many major metropolises.

But the America where I lovingly thrive today is still vastly superior to the America where I began my commencement 45 years ago.

BEN WATTENBERG

An interview with Bill Clinton

There is one question I have wanted to ask Bill Clinton for a long time. I got my chance, unexpectedly, on Tuesday afternoon, June 15, when I was at a White House ceremony announcing a solid new policy for American international broadcasting. Suddenly, I was invited, along with one other commentator, to interview the president in the Oval Office.

My question to the president was: "If you were forced to give a one-word answer, would you describe yourself as a 'liberal' or a 'moderate'?"

In the conversation that followed, the president said he believed he has been unfairly typecast as governing from the left side of the political spectrum. Moreover, he disclosed that he expects to produce further evidence of his centrist economic tendencies later this year.

In answer to my question, Clinton paused momentarily, and said, "moderate." He quickly added that, of course, it was complex, because he was liberal on civil rights and conservative on crime.

Clinton thinks he has been mistakenly portrayed as a liberal largely because of the issue of gays in the military, although he has spent little time on the issue since taking office. He does not regard the issue as liberal or conservative. "To me," he said, "it's an issue of civil liberties."

He noted that Sen. Charles Robb, a Marine hero and "one of the most conservative Democrats," shared his view. He said he was very pleased that conservative Barry Goldwater had also finally gone public in support of gays in military service.

I asked Clinton why, if he saw himself as a moderate, there were so few moderates on the White House staff. I said I believed that his originally tough-minded education program had been transformed and diluted by liberals in Congress. I suggested that the same fate would befall his other most important social programs, crime and welfare, unless he had more of his own ideological White House shock troops to fight for them.

Clinton said he thought that he would end up with solid crime and welfare legislation. He indicated that he was concerned about what was happening to his education proposal. He had read a critical New York Times op-ed article by Diane Ravitch (former assistant secretary of Education in the Bush administration), and had directed policy adviser Bill Galton to find out the state of play.

The president said he had asked Al From, head of the moderate Democratic Leadership Council, to work at the White House, but that From had turned him down. (From confirms the invitation, noting that it had been extended late last year, during the transition.)

Clinton then elaborated, turning to his recently appointed counselor David Gergen (present at this interview, along with Fred Barnes of The New Republic and Senior Adviser George Stephanopoulos). He says that everyone is agreed that the current round of tax increases is as much as the economy can afford.

Moreover, Clinton revealed that he is expecting important budget results from the report of Vice President Albert Gore's "National Performance Review" task force, whose recommendations to streamline and slenderize government are expected by fall.

Clinton emphasized that the Gore report can trigger "a big round of spending cuts." The president is now trying to determine what legislative vehicle would best get the Gore-generated spending cuts into the congressional budget cycle for Fiscal Year '94, which begins Oct. 1, '93.

Clinton also cites conservative congressional leader Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, who says the House of Representatives made a massive but little-noticed cut in the current budget proposal, zeroing out any domestic discretionary spending increases for the next five years.

In response to Barnes' question regarding the process by which he chose Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg for the Supreme Court, Clinton said he had started with a pool of about 40 potential candidates. He narrowed the list down to seven, and then to two fully qualified finalists, Judge Stephen Breyer and Ginsburg, stressing that "both are moderates." (Clinton said he chose Ginsburg because, in a personal interview, he was profoundly impressed by her inner strength and deep conviction: "As we say down home, her waters run deep.")

So, the president has plenty of answers for his moderate and conservative critics. What he says, and alludes to, makes sense: more moderates to fight his fight, more spending cuts, leaner and meaner government, careful attention to keep the tough integrity of the original domestic agenda he campaigned on. I'm impressed. All he has to do to win me over is deliver.

In answer to my question, Clinton paused momentarily, and said, 'moderate.'

JACK ANDERSON

Out with one defense system, in with another

WASHINGTON — Consider this a tale of two defense systems.

Last month, Defense Secretary Les Aspin scoffed at the threat of nuclear war as something that has "receded to the vanishing point," when he announced the cancellation of the "Star Wars" missile defense program.

Two weeks later, Aspin gave the green light to complete an $11 billion defense system that smacks of "Dr. Strangelove." It's the Ground Wave Emergency Network, which would allow military leaders to communicate after a nuclear doomsday.

If the country needs GWEN, why doesn't it also need "Star Wars," which was designed to protect civilian populations from a nuclear war with the former Soviet Union? Air Force officials maintain that GWEN is an essential component of America's nuclear deterrence efforts. Yet, Aspin declares the end of the nuclear threat, but then signs off on GWEN.

GWEN is a throwback to the Cold War when Pentagon officials talked about "survivability" in the same sentence as nuclear war. GWEN, a ground-based network of 500 communications towers from coast to coast, was part of this military mind-set. Officials would be able to send messages across the country at a speed 80 times slower than a fax machine. A leading Air Force official once compared GWEN to the "Pony Express."

Only 54 of the 500 GWEN towers are currently in operation at a cost of $235 million. The Pentagon wants another 29 installations. But communities are chafing at the prospect of having their landscapes blighted by 299-foot military communications towers, despite an aggressive Pentagon sales job.

In Livingston, Mont., one of the world's premier fishing locations, local activists are opposing GWEN on the grounds that it's an eyesore. Since the Air Force proposed installing one of its towers there, the local citizens started firing back, but it's nothing personal against the Pentagon. They're also resisting efforts by McDonald's to install a 95-foot tall sign in the vicinity of the tower.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., is siding with Montana who fall to see the practicality of erecting a Cold War monument in Livingston's serene surroundings. In a recent letter to Aspin, obtained by our associate Andrew Conte, Baucus explained his opposition: "I do not foresee the imminent danger of a high-altitude nuclear explosion over the next several years that would require senior commanders to operate the Ground Wave Emergency Network."

GWEN isn't galvanizing much other congressional opposition. The price tag for its completion represents $11 million in a $300 billion Pentagon budget — or what one private defense analyst calls "peanuts." Others see it almost as a parable.

"GWEN is a satire on military planning — there wasn't anything to justify it (in the early '80s, when it originated) and there's nothing to justify it now," said retired Adm. Eugene Carroll of the Center for Defense Information. "The fact that this program is still surviving is absolute proof that once a program gets funded, it's impossible to stop."

UNDER THE DOME — Rep. Floyd Flake, D-N.Y., was not among the group of six black Secret Service agents who were allegedly denied service at a Denny's restaurant.

But Flake and other African-American members of Congress have their own version of that story: After a tough day legislating, they have trouble hailing a taxi.

Two weeks later, Aspin gave the green light to complete a defense system that smacks of 'Dr. Strangelove.'

Memorial Stadium lease to be studied

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Monday night, the Sanford City Commission discussed whether or not a lease had been violated on the Memorial Stadium. The decision was to have the City Attorney investigate the matter and report back on his findings.

Wes Rinker, doing business as Florida Baseball School, has not paid the 1992 taxes on the stadium. As of May 17, the amount due was $3,157.86.

The commission is questioning whether the lack of payment and a problem with the level of insurance Rinker has on the facility violates the lease agreement.

Rinker is currently traveling, and was not at the commission meeting. "I intend to pay the full amount," he said Tuesday by phone. "I told them that I planned to pay before I left town two or three weeks ago."

He added, "Let's face it, I'm a business man and business hasn't been that great for many of us working class people. I was late in making my tax payment last year, and I'm late again this year, but I will pay it."

Rinker indicated he plans to be back in the Central Florida area during the last week of this month, and hopes to be able to attend the next City Commission meeting, scheduled for June 28, at which time he hopes the matter will be brought back for further discussion.

The commission agreed that they felt the lease had been breached. The city attorney was instructed to investigate the entire situation and report back at the June 28 meeting.

Finance Director Carolyn Small told the commissioners that Rinker had been notified over a year ago that he had not met the requirements of his contract regarding insurance. "He was required to have an A-rated policy," she said, "but he had a B-plus. We notified him of this about 15 months ago, but haven't heard that the A-policy had been obtained."

Commissioner Whitey Ecks-tein suggested the insurance problem should have been brought before the commission when it was first noticed.

Regarding the insurance question, Rinker commented yesterday that he was in the process of looking into obtaining a new level of coverage.

"This is a difficult situation," Small said. "If someone's personal property becomes delinquent in taxes or the lease is broken, it is sold on the courthouse steps. But this particular property is owned by the city, and it has to be approached differently."

Small said punishment could result with the county revoking Rinker's license, or the city revoking the occupational license.

Rinker said he hoped the entire matter could be resolved during the next commission meeting. "I've been leasing the facility for 17 years now," he said, "and I'm already making plans for the 18th year, so I intend to do whatever it takes to continue using the stadium."

Attorney general asks Beard's removal from Southern Bell cases

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's attorney general and Southern Bell agreed a state Public Service Commission member should stop mixing regulation and romance, by removing himself from cases involving the state's largest telephone company.

Gov. Lawton Chiles agreed Thursday that Commissioner Tom Beard, who dates a Southern Bell administrative assistant in Miami, should bow out of Southern Bell cases, spokesman Ron Sachs said.

"When you're sitting there literally in judgment over billions of dollars of rate increases for the public of the state of Florida, the public has a right to have each and every commissioner voting without any appearance of conflict," said Attorney General Bob Butterworth.

Beard wasn't in his office, and didn't return calls to his office and home for comment. He and Southern Bell employee Alma Paruolo have said they don't discuss business and keep their professional and private lives separate.

PSC attorneys will review the attorney general's motion and Beard will have 12 days to respond, PSC spokeswoman Bev DeMello said.

In addition, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement is continuing an investigation of Beard's telephone and travel records to see if public funds were spent on personal calls or trips, Sachs said.

Chiles has said he will await the outcome of the probes before deciding whether he should act.

Meanwhile, Sachs said, "The governor concurs that to maintain public trust in the regulatory process, it would be most appropriate for Commissioner Beard to recuse himself from any votes having to do with Southern Bell."

Butterworth's office looked into Beard's relationships with Paruolo and earlier with Mary Daudell, a staff manager for BellSouth, Southern Bell's parent company, in Atlanta. Daudell told investigators she and Beard dated in 1991 and 1992.

Butterworth's investigation found no direct evidence Beard was improperly influenced, but said the question "is whether or not there has been the appearance of impropriety."

"Mr. Beard has been saying all along that he has not been influenced at all; in his own mind he has not. But that's not the test. The test is not what he believes. The test is what the public believes," Butterworth said.

Beard, 43, told Southern Bell officials, but not PSC officials, about his relationship with Paruolo, 37, six months after they began dating in June 1992, Paruolo said in a deposition. She said a Southern Bell attorney advised her not to discuss business with him.

The company previously said it was confident Beard could act impartially, but decided to join Butterworth's motion because of concern about public confidence, spokeswoman Wendie Feinberg said.

"Even though there has been no wrongdoing, there is the appearance factor to consider," Feinberg said. "The continuation of any illusion of controversy just can't be allowed."

If Beard doesn't remove himself from Southern Bell votes and the rest of the five-member PSC doesn't remove him, the Attorney General's Office can appeal to the state Supreme Court, Butterworth said.

The motion didn't say whether Beard should leave his $90,000-a-year post on the panel altogether. He said he won't seek reappointment by Chiles when his term expires in January.

"The immediate issue is his recusal from voting on Southern Bell matters," Butterworth said. "His resignation is something he would have to consider himself."

listed them according to quality standards, reporting on the best lake first.

●Lake Mary — Loe said it is probably in the best condition of all. There are a few minor spots with algae blooms, but generally it was in surprisingly good condition. There is not a tremendous number of fish, but those that are there are of good size.

●Little Lake Mary — Loe said it contained very little phosphorus, and had some algae. He considered the water cloudy, but there is better fishing in the lake than in any other.

●West Crystal Lake — When the test first started, the lake was clear, but through the months, it became less clear.

●East Crystal Lake — Similar to the rest of Crystal Lake but with no major problems at the present time.

●Lake Emma — Loe said it was not in as good shape as expected. It is more shallow, and more in a natural state.

●Lake Bingham — He declared this between medium and low in quality standards. The lake is not as deep nor clear as it should be.

●Lake Dawson and Lake Come — Loe said there was not enough data at this time with which to reach a conclusion.

"One of the best findings we made," he said, "is that none of the lakes were rated at the lowest levels of contamination. Some were below the middle range, but overall, they are probably better than most lakes in the area."

"We will be needing more volunteers to continue checking on these lakes," Loe said. "We would like to have people who have property on a particular lake or access to one, and a boat."

He announced the University of Florida would give training in coliform bacteria testing to anyone interested in becoming involved in the project.

"Our objective is to have adequate lake management," he said, "especially at the four largest lakes."

He recommended the city obtain assistance from a U of F specialist in establishing the program.

Mayor Lowry Rockett suggested charts or graphs be compiled on the various lakes within the city, and displayed at the city hall, so that the citizens would be able to learn of the condition of each of the lakes. "This could be the forerunner of getting more people in the total community involved," he said, "and I believe a visual display will help generate interest."

Loe suggested persons interested in joining the Lakewater Program in Lake Mary, contact him at 323-8128. "We have to get data on a regular monthly basis," he said. "I know it hasn't been easy, but we have a great group of people who are concerned enough to become involved, and we could use the assistance of others."

S.C. children tell story of hurricane Hugo to children

By ROBERT TANNER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Three years after Hurricane Hugo, South Carolina's schoolchildren are providing a helping hand to students in South Florida who lived through Hurricane Andrew.

In crayon and careful, pencil-drawn letters, they recount the night of Sept. 21, 1989, when Hugo roared into Charleston and across the state.

"Hugo. He got my house. He got my car. He got my tree but he den git me," wrote Trey Smith, a Moncks Corner second-grader.

His town lies 40 miles inland, directly in the path of the storm that took the lives of 29 South Carolinians and destroyed $4 billion in property.

Trey's account, like scores of others made in the days and weeks after the hurricane struck, is collected in "Hugo Blue." It's an 80-page, professionally printed book with a black and blue, Hugo-inspired painting by third-grader Ryan Smith on its cover.

Spelling errors are kept intact. In many accounts, wide-spaced notebook sheets with pictures of fallen trees and floating houses are reproduced to accompany the words.

"Hugo made us cry," wrote third-grader Stephanie Simmons of Ladson. "Hugo, Hugo go, go, goody."

A high school student from Hartsville said the storm brought "a few precious moments of togetherness to a fairly distraught family."

Two-thousand copies of the book will be in public schools next fall in Florida's Dade County, hit hard by Hurricane Andrew last August, said Joanne Kasper in Miami.

Some students still live in tents, and a small thunderstorm can bring back Andrew's terror, she said.

"The students of South Carolina understand that. The rest of the people in the world don't understand that. They think it's over," Ms. Kasper said.

She hopes the book will help Florida's students write and paint their way past the catastrophe. Forty-one people died in South Florida, and more than 250,000 were left homeless in the Aug. 24, 1992, storm.

"When a child sees another's art work, it seems more understandable," said Barrie Hinson in Goose Creek, who teaches art to the children of Charleston Naval Base personnel.

"Little children see things so vividly," she said. The storm destroyed her classroom trailer and she had to teach classes in the cafeteria for the rest of the year.

The Hugo Blue project began as an idea from Clemson University English teacher Dixie Goswami. The Rural Education Alliance for Collaborative Humanities put the different works together, said Jim Andreas, head of the university's English Department where the book was produced.

The works in the book grew from homework assignments, the What-I-Did-Over-My-Vacation type, Andreas said. Except the days after the storm were no vacation — tens of thousands were left without power, water, roads and worse.

"Literature gives us what Henry Miller calls an 'inoculation against suffering,'" Andreas said. "It's cathartic."

workshop had the opportunity to talk to women already employed in high tech careers and to learn some of the advantages and the pitfalls for a young woman entering such careers.

The young women learned what the highest paying technological careers will be in the future; they were taught some strategies for success and given tips on money management.

One of the most important features of the seminars was the training in leadership skills.

"We want to prepare these young women for the work force and prepare them to take charge," said Pamela Pelacz, who organized the workshop.

Career and educational planning that will help the girls after they graduate from high school was an integral part of the training as well.

The training was not limited to the classroom, Pelacz said. Students also went to local manufacturing facilities and had hands-on experience in the various types of technical training offered at the college.

U.S. citizen, disliked the girl's friends and behavior, warning Carol that his niece was promiscuous. She disagreed and would not talk to Wardch on the telephone or welcome him into her home. Wardch gambled heavily on the lottery.

Wardch went to his brother's home the night of the April 28 shooting to talk. Haft told the jury. The attorney said Wardch always carried a gun for his own protection. After being largely ignored by Carol and her children, Wardch's anger exploded and he began shooting into the home to scare them, the attorney said.

He was arrested later that night at his Kissimmee apartment and claimed he did not know bullets had struck his sister-in-law. When he was interviewed by police he said the silver-tipped bullets he used could not kill anyone. They were only meant to scare them, Wardch told interviewers. The bullets in the gun and extra clips he carried were hollow-points. In arguing against imposing the death penalty, Haft described Wardch as a good man who fell apart. He lost control, and although he was responsible for his actions, he should face life in prison, not death in the electric chair. Haft contended.

side of the field, off S.R. 46." He added, "At the present time, that area is not developed, and would probably be an ideal location for Jett Aire."

Cooke said a number of factors make the northside location favorable. The Master Drainage Permit has been issued, the aircraft ramp is in place and in good condition, utility services are in place, and the location is central to the airfield.

He also told the authority of the disadvantages. They included the logistical duplication of fuel and other services between the north and south sides of the field, the under-utilization of a ramp designed for large transport aircraft, some potential operational conflicts with transport aircraft, and the limited access to the new Eastern Beltway, presently under construction.

Access to the new facility will be from S.R. 46. "The actual entrance will be from an extension to Brisson Avenue," Cooke said.

As for the beltway, he commented, "They will just have to tell people coming in the beltway to get off at the Silver Lake exit, and take Sanford Avenue north to S.R. 46, then turn right to get to Jett Aire."

Cooke said Jett Aire has excellent plans for the new facility including beautiful landscaping and other improvements.

Jett Aire has also applied to be a "Fixed Base Operator," which will allow them to sell aviation fuel at their new site.

Cooke said he could not immediately estimate when work would actually be able to get underway for the new operation,

Bishops establish panel on clergy sexual abuse

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — A panel report calling for urgent action by the nation's Roman Catholic bishops to stop priests from molesting youngsters was met by the formation of another committee to study the problem some more.

"We are met again with a barrage of wonderful sounding platitudes," said David Clohessy, national director of Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests. "It's long past time for action."

The bishops formed the new Ad Hoc Committee on Sexual Abuse on Thursday after hearing a report from a church-sponsored panel recommending, among other things, independent review boards to oversee the church's handling of abuse allegations and a ban on abusive priests working with youngsters again.

The report by a group of more than 30 experts on clergy sexual abuse also recommended establishing a national task force on child abuse and a national day of prayer and penance for victims.

"We must be pro-victim," the Rev. Cantele Connors, the panel chairman, told the nation's bishops at their annual spring meeting.

Bishop John F. Kinney of Bismarck, N.D., chairman of the new committee, vowed to come up with more recommendations for "decisive action."

"I want to make sure that all of us bishops understand the depth and the seriousness, the pain and the agony of this problem and why it strikes at the very heart of the church's trust level and credibility level," he said.

The report and the new committee come against a backdrop of increasing allegations of clergy sex abuse around the country.

There has been no systematic study of clergy sex abuse, but author Jason Berry says more than 400 Catholic priests in North America have been reported for molesting children since 1984. Connors said from 2 percent to 4 percent of Catholic priests over the past 30 years may have been guilty of abuse.

Experts in child sexual abuse say the problem crosses religious and vocational lines, but the Catholic Church has come under criticism for not addressing the problem openly in the past. Several lawsuits brought by alleged victims accuse the church of quietly reassigning offenders to other parishes.

"We can only ask the patience of God's people," Archbishop William H. Keeler, president of the bishops' conference, said in announcing the formation of the new committee.

He said the committee would be charged with advising the bishops on how they can deal with abusive priests and help victims and their families.

Clinton's news conference was a fact-filled tutorial

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — With grace and good humor, President Clinton used an East Room news conference to give Americans a fact-filled tutorial on his budget plan — complete with Ross Perot-style charts — and to declare a victory of sorts in Somalia.

He was, at turns, charming and disarming Thursday night. He stopped one reporter in mid-question to compliment him on his Mickey Mouse tie.

To another reporter's question about strained relations with New Zealand, Clinton confessed with a smile, "I've given absolutely no thought to that question."

He also paused to accept a glass of water from a tuxedoed waiter and then cracked, "I hope his mother's watching."

The performance was a distinct change for a president plagued recently by missteps on everything from gays in the military to trouble with appointments.

The only drawback for Clinton was that many television viewers likely didn't see it.

ABC and CBS refused to carry the 8 p.m. news conference live and NBC cut Clinton off after 25 minutes. CNN carried it all.

The White House was angry, recalling that Ronald Reagan and George Bush didn't have much trouble getting prime-time coverage.

"We're really disappointed," Clinton adviser George Stephanopoulos said.

But not with Clinton's performance. "We are putting our economic house in order," the president said as his $500 billion deficit-reduction plan advanced in the Senate.

Pointing to a multicolored chart tracking the surging budget deficit that he inherited, Clinton said: "I may have a lot to learn but I didn't create the red line."

Explaining his plan in detail and pronouncing it fair and balanced, Clinton promised: "If this plan passes you will see a continuation of what's happened already in the last five months: low interest rates, increasing housing sales, more jobs coming into the economy."

Clinton opened his news conference by saying U.S.-led military strikes had "crippled the forces" of Somali warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

He said the operation "is over and ... it was a success" in punishing Aidid for killing U.N. peacekeepers. "We could not let it go unpunished," the president said. Aidid, however, continued to elude U.N. forces trying to arrest him.

On other matters, Clinton: — Said he would have preferred preserving a multi-ethnic state in Bosnia, rather than carving it up into three ethnic zones as proposed by international mediators. However, he said the United States would have to look at the proposal very seriously if it accepted by all the parties. However, Clinton said that "Serbian aggression has been rewarded" to some extent.

— Said he remains optimistic that a health-care reform plan can pass the Congress this year. "We cannot get the deficit down to zero, which is where it ought to be, until we do something about health care costs," he said.

— Said that enacting a reform bill this year depends largely "on how warmly embraced it is by Congress."

The central message of Clinton's news conference was that he is making progress on issues important to Americans after a string of victories in Congress.

He cited action on his deficit-reduction plan, Senate approval of a campaign-finance reform bill and endorsement by congressional committees of his plan to offer college loans in return for community service.

Clinton called the economic plan, which includes hundreds of billions in new taxes, "the most progressive tax plan this country has seen in decades," with two-thirds of the increases to be paid by people with incomes above $200,000.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., grudgingly gave Clinton good marks for the news conference even while insisting that his deficit-reduction numbers didn't add up.

"I thought it was a good performance, but he didn't have his facts right," Dole said. "He's a nice person, he looks good. It's the product that ought to be traded in."

Clinton, Republicans joust over deficit-cutting bill

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats readied President Clinton's giant deficit-reduction bill for Senate debate, backed by a White House campaign to show that the measure isn't the heaviest burden on the poor.

Majority Democrats planned to whip the bill through the Senate Finance Committee today, and take it to the Senate floor next week.

The package would pave the way for lowering federal deficits by a record $508 billion over the next five years, largely by taxing the wealthy, businesses and motorists and by slowing the growth of Medicare.

As committee members prepared for what was expected to be a straight party-line vote, Clinton engaged his Republican foes in a public-relations war over whether the legislation was a sensible mix of tax boosts and spending cuts, or a doomed attempt to trim rampant budget deficits with unneeded new levies.

"Seventy percent of the economic gains of the last decade went to about 1 percent of the American people" — the richest, Clinton said at his news conference Thursday night. "They are in a position now to pay more to help make this economy move again and they will."

Eighty percent of the $249 billion tax increase would be paid by those with incomes over $100,000 a year. The typical family earning less than $20,000 would get a tax cut through an expanded earned-income credit.

The only new levy hitting practically all middle-class Americans would be the new 4.3 percent tax on each gallon of gasoline and other fuels — estimated to cost the average family $29 yearly.

During committee debate Thursday, Republicans argued that the measure's new taxes would do the opposite of what Clinton most wants to do — spark robust economic growth.

"That makes no sense when recovery has just begun," said Sen. William Roth, R-Del. They also complained that nearly $170 billion of the bill's envisioned savings would have to come from future spending bills or from less federal borrowing. That leaves big tax increases now, with no guarantees that spending cuts will be made later, they said.

"If the Reagan-Bush packages were called voodoo, this package ought to be called deja-voodoo," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa.

The House passed a similar version of the bill in May. After Senate passage, Senate-House negotiators will have to craft a compromise that both chambers will consider.

Like the House, the Senate bill is dominated by higher taxes on the rich and corporate America.

The current top income-tax rate of 31 percent would increase July 1 to 36 percent and 39.6 percent for the wealthiest people. For the first time, the rich would have to pay the 1.45 percent Medicare tax on annual income exceeding $135,000.

Allison returns to track that claimed his younger brother

From a mental standpoint, Allison said it was good to test at the track before racing there again. He realized that when he passed the place where Clifford, who was 27, crashed.

"Then it dawned on me, that (it's) a good thing that I'm doing this today instead of when we get back here in June," he said.

"I feel good about coming here. I feel good about the way we've been racing.

"There's only one thing bad that's happened at MIS, and that's the death of my brother. I've got a lot of friends up there," he said. "I don't have any mixed emotions at all."

The 2-mile, high-banked oval where the 32-year-old NASCAR star will race in Sunday's Miller Genuine Draft 400 is also the place where his younger brother, Clifford, was fatally injured last August in a crash during practice.

Last weekend at Pocono, Allison was bombarded with questions about his horrifying accident last July at the Pennsylvania speedplant.

Allison went into last Sunday's race fourth in the Winston Cup standings, 245 points behind leader Dale Earnhardt and also trailing Rusty Wallace and Dale Jarrett. His solid finish vaulted him to second, 225 points behind Earnhardt.

Even before taking over second place in the season standings after 13 of the 30 races, Allison was remaining optimistic about his title hopes. He noted Alan Kulwicki came from further back to win the title last year, "so it's possible."

"We're not looking at the points. We're looking at performance," Allison said.

Allison said he was at Michigan for testing a few weeks ago.

"As I first drove through the third and fourth turns I had to take a look over at the wall where he crashed," he said.

The second-generation driver — son of longtime star Bobby Allison — was able to put the memories of his own pain into the background and finish a respectable sixth in that event.

This week, the painful memories of Clifford's death are on his mind.

"I can't say that I haven't been thinking about what took place up there last year because I have and I think about my brother every day," Allison said.

"I miss him tremendously," he added. "... Life still has to go on and I know he would want us to remember the good times."

At 9:10 a.m. at Pinehurst Park, R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. will face Foskett Sporting Goods with Signature Homes getting the bye unless an eighth team can be found today (Friday).

"We still have hopes of getting an eighth team," said LaFollette. "It makes scheduling much easier and the teams get to play more."

Games then will continue at one hour and 10-minute intervals throughout the afternoon. The championship game is scheduled for a 4:30 p.m. start at Chase Park with 'if necessary game' being set for 5:40 p.m. at Chase Park.

The top three teams in the tournament will receive sponsorship trophies, with the individual members from the championship winning teams getting bat bags.

The Most Valuable Player for the tournament will be awarded a Steele Sports softball bat worth around $100. The bat was donated by Pete Kinsey, owner of Sportmart, located in the Rosegarden Mini Shoppes on South Orlando Drive in Sanford.

Tom Holland Sr. and the R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. squad will play Foskett Sporting Goods in the first round of the Sanford Officiating Service tournament.

Florida Sport Wear continued its torrid hitting, rapping 31 hits and scoring at least one run in every inning, including six in the first, four in each of the sixth and seventh innings and three runs in each of the second and fourth innings. Eight different Florida Sport Wear batters had at least three hits.

Despite its hot hitting, and taking 10-0 lead in the top of the third inning, Florida Sport Wear was still in a fight for the win as the score was just 13-8 after four innings.

But Florida Sport Wear outscored Myers Tree Service 9-1 the rest of the way.

Contributing to the Florida Sport Wear attack were Mitch Burke (triple, double, two singles, three runs, four RBI), Doug Braswell (single, run, RBI), Bobby Kreinbring (single, run, RBI), Paul Pratt (double, single, run, two RBI), Lee Hood (double, run) and Wes Tankley and Joel Kean (one RBI each).

Providing the offense for Myers Tree Service were Robert Carter (double, single, run), Denny Miller (two singles, run, RBI), Steve Thiebauth (two singles, two runs), Randy Smathers (double, run, two RBI), Bobby Kreinbring (single, run, RBI), Doug Braswell (single, two runs), Tom Stiffey (single, run), Sonny Eubanks (single, RBI) and Sam Romaldo (RBI).

He needs his space to roam around."

The Philadelphia 76ers, who draft second, have interviewed Mashburn, who also intends to visit with the Golden State Warriors (No. 3) and Dallas Mavericks (No. 4). Being No. 1 would mean more money, but going second or third wouldn't be that bad.

"I just want to play in the NBA. It doesn't matter which team," Mashburn said. "If you go in the top three, you can't be disappointed. That says a lot about your game and that people really believe in you."

Hurricane preparedness

Making a game plan means being ready when disaster strikes

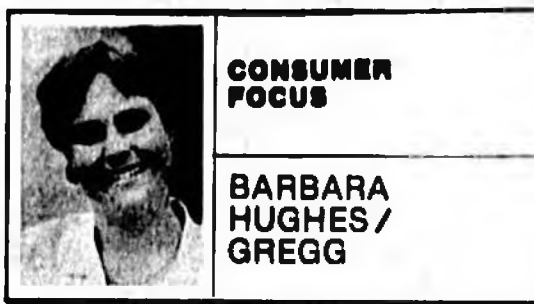

Hurricane preparedness means more than storing emergency supplies! June 1 marked the beginning of hurricane season, and Florida residents shouldn't overlook the importance of preparing mentally for a disaster.

People need to ask themselves several "What will I do if" questions. For example, what will you do if you must evacuate? Where will you go and what will you bring with you?

It all boils down to having a game plan! Everyone in the family should discuss and know how the emergency will be handled. Some might even find it helpful to write down their plan.

For those who live alone, coordinating a plan with neighbors and friends is recommended because being alone during a crisis can be very stressful.

Consider the following questions:

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

• How much can you carry if you must go to a public shelter?

• How much food and other supplies will you need to last a week or more without water or electricity?

• What can you get by without?

• Does someone in your family have specific health care needs?

• Do you have a means of heating foods and boiling water without electricity — a camp stove, grill or fireplace, for example?

• Do you know how to sanitize your utensils, pots, pans or any item that is contaminated by flood water?

• Do you have a safety box to protect jewelry, photos and valuables?

Don't forget the importance of including children in the plan. Children should be treated and respected as people too! Since children often are less informed than adults, they experience a great deal of fear. Parents can help children prepare by explaining what a hurricane is and what may happen if one occurs. Let them plan which of their favorite toys and books they will pack if you must evacuate. Giving children some small responsibility may help reduce the amount of anxiety they're likely to experience.

Poor taste in contest sets woman on edge

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended our annual mothers and daughters banquet at church I've belonged to for more than 20 years. (I am 52 years old.)

First, they asked all the women who were mothers to stand up. Then they asked all the mothers who wore dentures to sit down. Then they kept eliminating mothers according to their age ("All mothers under 30, 40, 50 years old, ect.") The last woman left standing got the prize for being the oldest mother present with her own teeth.

Abby, I have had dentures for a long time, but it was not something I cared to advertise. I spoke with several women who agreed that the teeth contest was very poor taste.

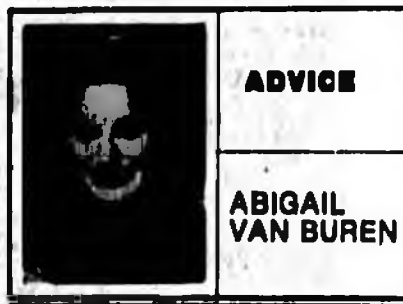

I told the program chairman that I was offended by the teeth business, and she laughed and said, "Oh, everyone knew it was just a joke. Don't be so sensitive."

I will leave it to you and your readers if you want to print this. How do you feel about such a "joke"?

DEAR NO TOWN, PLEASE: I agree with you. It wasn't a very good joke. It was insensitive, unkind, and an invasion of privacy.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to ask how to obtain a passport or visa. What is the difference between them? I am planning a trip to the Philippines this summer and need this information, and I'm too embarrassed to ask anybody else.

JUST PLAIN BILL: A passport is proof of your citizenship and allows you to leave and re-enter your country. It also offers identification protection while you are in foreign countries. Your U.S. passport will allow you to leave the United States and travel, with the guarantee that you can re-enter the U.S.

ADVICE

According to the State Department's Office of Passports Services, Washington, D.C.: To obtain a passport, contact your local post office, courthouse or U.S. passport office. (A U.S. passport is valid for 10 years for adults.) You must fill out an application, provide proof of birth, pay a fee, and have passport photo taken. Allow four weeks to obtain a first-time passport.

A visa is stamped in your passport and allows you entry into a specific country. In your case, the Philippines does not require a visa for trips under 21 days. To obtain a visa, contact a travel agent or the local consulate of the country you wish to visit. To simplify the process, contact a travel agent for information about both the passport and visa.

DEAR MARY: I know you take the position that parents shouldn't let kids share a little beer or wine at home with friends or at family get-togethers. Why don't you people just lighten up. My dad lets me have a little beer when we had friends over from the time I was about 14. I'm telling you right now, I don't see anything wrong with it and when my brother's family comes over for a July 4th cook-out, the teenagers will be allowed to have a little beer if they want it.

Who do you think you're kidding? If they don't drink in front of their parents, they'll sure do it behind their backs, in cars, who knows where. I'd rather just be open about the whole thing.

UP-FRONT DAD: There are a lot of parents who feel the way you do about this issue, but for another point of view, I'd like to share an editorial by Tom Bintliff, Communications Coordinator, from the February 1993 Prevention Review, entitled, "Why Adolescents Should Not Use Alcohol At All."

"If this sounds like a headline approach, it is! And there are good reasons for it! • Adolescents become addicted to alcohol more quickly than do adults. It's because they are still developing physiologically and psychologically. This maturation

Weekend dance extravaganza set

SANFORD — Dancers at Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts are "reving up" for this weekend's five show series of Showcase '93 Performances.

All three studio locations, Sanford, Lake Mary and Orange City, will combine to create the dance excitement.

This evening's performance is already sold out, however, the opening night will be followed by a Saturday matinee at 2 p.m. and an evening performance at 7 p.m. The show will continue on Sunday with a 2 and 7 p.m. performance.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $5 at the Lake Mary High School auditorium. Each show is different, so find out when your favorite is on "tap" for the weekend dance extravaganza.

Teens should not be served alcohol

DEAR MARY: I know you take the position that parents shouldn't let kids share a little beer or wine at home with friends or at family get-togethers. Why don't you people just lighten up. My dad lets me have a little beer when we had friends over from the time I was about 14. I'm telling you right now, I don't see anything wrong with it and when my brother's family comes over for a July 4th cook-out, the teenagers will be allowed to have a little beer if they want it.

Who do you think you're kidding? If they don't drink in front of their parents, they'll sure do it behind their backs, in cars, who knows where. I'd rather just be open about the whole thing.

"If this sounds like a headline approach, it is! And there are good reasons for it! • Adolescents become addicted to alcohol more quickly than do adults. It's because they are still developing physiologically and psychologically. This maturation process continues until approximately 21-24 years of age. An adult may become addicted to alcohol in 5 to 15 years. An adolescent can become addicted in 6 months to two years.

• Youngsters do not drink — "socially" — they usually drink to get "bombed" or drunk. (Kids themselves admit this, so we better listen!) A pattern of drinking to get buzzed or drunk is one of the early signs of an impending drinking problem.

Are fathers as tough as they seem? Maybe not ... Yes, most fathers seem brave and strong, but they may not always feel that way. Sometimes, the world is not kind to fathers. They try to hide the hurt, but there are signs and symptoms. They may appear droopy, even in their best clothes. Half smiles and wrinkled brows are sure signs. Sometimes fathers are grouchy, like bears ... or unusually talkative ... or strangely quiet ... they just aren't themselves. How can we soothe a hurt father? We can ask him how he feels, but he may not answer. We can tell him we love him, that he is the best father in the world. (That's better than a bandaid.) Always smile. It's contagious. Most importantly, remind him that his Heavenly Father loves him unceasingly and receives visitors in His house each Sabbath. Finally, give him a big hug. Fathers need loving too.

Hormone pills treat cancer of breast

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss hormone therapy for breast cancer. I've started this regimen, yet I can't find very much information about it.

DEAR READER: Many types of breast cancer appear to be stimulated by the female hormone estrogen, much as grass grows more abundantly on a lawn that has been fertilized. Thus, for decades doctors have attempted to treat breast cancer with hormones that compete with estrogen.

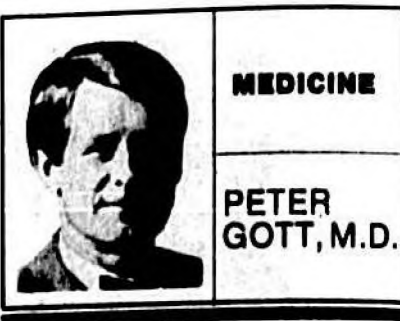

Originally, the male hormone testosterone was used effectively; however, its side effects were unacceptable (facial hair, deepening voice, acne and other masculinizing signs).

In the past few years, after the discovery of tamoxifen (an anti-estrogen hormone with few side effects), the treatment of breast cancer has been revolutionized. Tamoxifen is now standard therapy for women who have (or have had) breast malignancies. The drug is administered in pill form twice daily.

Side effects, which are mild, include hot flashes, nausea and vomiting. This is not surprising because, as an anti-estrogen, tamoxifen produces early menopause.

Inasmuch as you have started therapy, you are entitled to information about the drug. Ask your gynecologist about this or -- better yet -- request a package insert from your pharmacist. The manufacturer of tamoxifen includes with each package a detailed summary of the chemistry, indications, effects, and complications. Your doctor can translate the technical terms for you that might appear in the insert.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you describe what polyneuritis is and what medications are available? DEAR READER: Polyneuritis (also known as polyneuropathy) is inflammation of nerves. It can result from trauma, infection, malnutrition, diabetes, kidney

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Stephen Leacock wrote, "Anybody who has heard certain kinds of performances on the concertina will admit that even suicide has its brighter aspects."

In bridge, there is a concertina play. It is featured in today's deal.

Against four hearts, West led the diamond jack. Things looked like plain sailing to South. He won trick one in hand with the diamond king and played a trump to dummy's ace. However, West's discard was a rude shock. Suddenly there appeared to be four inescapable losers: one spade, two hearts and one diamond.

Hearing the strains of a concertina being played in the street outside, South had a clever idea. He led a spade off the dummy. East won and returned the heart queen (a diamond is no better). Declarer won with the king, crossed to dummy with a club to the jack, ruffed a spade, played a club to dummy's queen and ruffed another spade. Now came the diamond king and the club king to dummy's ace.

South had won nine tricks: two spade ruffs in hand, the A-K of hearts, the A-K of diamonds and three top clubs. Left in his hand were the 9-8 of hearts and the diamond four. East had the J-10 of hearts and the diamond seven.

Declarer called for dummy's spade jack. How could East defend? If he discarded, South would ruff low for his 10th trick. But when East ruffed, declarer discarded his diamond loser. He had a trump trick to come.

South was pleased he had been able to concertina two of the defenders' tricks. However, neither East nor West felt sufficiently pained to commit suicide.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Oool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 19, 1993

Significant developments could be in the offing for you in the year ahead where your career is concerned. The type of promotion for which you've always hoped may become a reality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your two most promising areas today are career and finances, yet there may not be any direct relationship. Independently you should do well in both. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker Instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and along, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might have to handle a situation very similar to one you recently handled successfully. If you do what you did previously, all should come out well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There could be a spill over today from things or situations you competently managed for others. If they come out well, you'll do okay yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a very good negotiator today because you're able to see things from the other guy's perspective. The good things you'll want for yourself, you'll also want for them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for fulfilling two important, ambitious objectives look very good today. Once one is nalled down, the others should quickly follow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A little apple polishing or priming of the pump might be necessary today in order to win over someone special who is pertinent to your present plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Double check your budget and resources today, because you might be able to find a way to do or get something you've been wanting but felt you couldn't afford.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be prepared to face issues squarely today and deal with life on realistic terms. This constructive attitude will enable you to make very sound decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Properly handled this could be a red letter day for you financially. Focus your efforts on situations that can offer favorable returns over an extended period of time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Being the person in charge is a role you should play in your involvements with others today. Don't leave important matters up to ineffective peers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something might be going on behind the scenes today regarding a matter about which you've been concerned. It looks like it may be handled better than you could yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Plaudits may be awarded today for the way you conduct yourself with your peers in sticky developments. Your tactics will be appreciated and admired by all.
