pay and provided penalties only for those miners who start wildcat strikes and set up pichet lines; miners who observe those picket lines would not be fined.

"The membership is going to have to decide, and being out so long I think they are going to look at it pretty close," said Michael Bunton, of Du Quoin, III., a subdistrict board member of District 12.

The ending of the weeks o negotiation surrounding Ameri-ca's longest coal strike was a dramatic one. The president had gone to a reception for old friends from New Hampshire while his speechwriters were putting the finishing touches on a television address invoking the Taft-Hartley Act requiring miners to go back to work and asking Congress for a law seizing the coal mines.

As the reception line began to form, Carter's press secretary

Jody Powell came up and spoke quietly, "Excuse me," he said, and as he left: "It looks like

'We certainly

we've got an agreement."

"There's no way we can live with this three years," said Bob Bess as he and his fellow ramshackle tavern in Dry Branch, W.Va. "We just made a furious attempt to live with a similar contract for three years. I don't know why people think we can live with this one." None of the miners walking their picket lines for the 82nd day today have seen the new contract in detail, but they know it is loosely based on a similar pact negotiated earlier in the week with the Pittsburgh and Midway Coal Co. - a non-BCOA independent - and many of them didn't like that one.

James Kelly, a Uniontown Pa., union local president, gave the new pact only a "50-50 chance" of ratification. But not all the miners were so "You can't please everybody — especially coal miners," said John Guzek, an Ohio union local president, "but this contract

Dr. Vann Parker, Senford pediatrician, warned a group of professionals and nonprofessionals who are tackling what he terms "the most devastating disease in our community ... now in an epidemic stage" there is no easy solution to the problem of pregnancy in unmarried girls.
Parker spoke to the newly organized Seminole County
Chapter of the Florida Alliance

Responsible Adolescent Parenting, meeting in the Utamonte Springs Civic Center. It was a concerned letter from Parker to Elmer Wortenay, Seminole County Su-pervisor for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services' family and children program, that sparked the formation of an alliance of area social workers, county health personnel, representatives of HRS and other interested persons.
"This problem belongs to the community," Parker said.

"Every child that grows up without love or a sense of belonging becomes a burden to society for the rest of his life. They can't be legislated away or swept under the rug." "The average age of new mothers is dropping and the number of unmarried mothers it that far," he added is increasing rapidly," Parker said. As a pediatrician, he is two small infants recently about the charge made by Chief Justice Warren Burger, to wit: "the incompetence of many trial lawyers greatly contributes to the national backlog

As might be expected, the great majority of trial lawyers in Seminole County asked their views, dissented. "Inaccurate. Offbase," were some of the words used. But they agreed there probably is a need for more training of attorneys in trial prac-

We see nothing unreasonable in Mr. Burger's suggestion that trying cases before a judge should be considered an area of special competency in law in the same respect that performing surgery is considered a special competency in medicine.

This is more than an issue for lawyers along to

As Mr. Burger points out, there is a "consumer in the picture - a citizen who is concerned both with the quality of justice and what it costs, if not as a potential litigant, at least as a taxpayer supporting our court system. Pursuing the medical analogy, even if incompetence by doctors doesn't cost us our lives or damage our health, it can subject us to unnecessary or prolonged medical treatment that is painful and costs too much.

So it is if lawyers lacking in expertise in the courtroom prolong trials and litigation beyond what a case ordinarily would demand. This adds to legal fees and the public cost of maintaining and

We trust the ABA, in turning down a resolution critical of Mr. Burger's diagnosis, is not just avoiding an embarrassing encounter with the head of the nation's highest court.

Mr. Burger offers concrete suggestions for expanding programs the ABA already has un-dertaken to offer lawyers special training in trial skills on a voluntary basis.

How such training might be implemented is a question attorneys in Seminole and elsewhere must report co-authored with Ohio Sen. John Glenn, warning of the possible consequences of a heaty withdrawal of U.S. troops from

The withdrawals proposed by the Carter administration must be undertaken "most contiously," according to the Minnesota Democrat, who died of cancer just one week prior to release of the report.

The thrust — and the timing — of the report are appropriate. The South Korean government is under fire in Congress for perceived illegal efforts to influence American actions. Tongsun Park, South Korean businessman and former Washington social figure accused of passing money to friendly congressmen, has arrived in the U.S. to provide the Justice rtment with information on his dealings with members of

But the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct will be denied the testimony of Park in its own investigation of allegations of wrongdoing which already is one year old.

And there is an inclination in Congress to blame South Korea for the suspected misbehavior of its own members. Any move to cut off military or financial aid to South Korea probably would be seized upon happily by sensitive lawmakers anxious to prove their own non-involvement in the Park affair. The Humphrey report notes, however, that continued support of the Seoul regime is essential to avoid any chance of a North Korean "miscalculation." The former vice president's recommendation to mount a ornatic offensive to get stalled talks between North and South Kores resumed is sound advice. In the meantime, the governments in Seoul and in Washington should cooperate fully on the influence-peddling probe to reduce the potential justifications for terminating American aid to South Korea.

The invitation to renewed conflict is something neither South Korea nor the United States can afford.

Seminole, Seven Others Seek JuCo Crown

DELAND—The Florida JuCo state basketball tournament gets underway at Stetson University Thursday and there are a few surprises in this 18th renewal of one of the south's premiere roundball events of the year. While Seminole and Florida JC of Jacksonville were battling it out for first and second place seedings this weekend, the rest of the field was intact.

Okalona Walton and Palm Beach are

Otaloosa Walton and Palm Beach are surprise participants, and Brevard will be conspicuous by its absence, the first in 15

Pensacola, Florida College and Indian River protected their standing in the late stretch of the season and round out the field. Basketball will be wall-to-wall from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday as the women's state tournament will also be held at Stetson. The men's tournament will slate two afternoon games Thursday and two more Thursday night, with the semis following Friday night and the finale Saturday night following the annual all-star game of sophomores from non-participating teams.
Ticket prices are $3.50 for adults per session, students $2.50. Tournament tickets are $10, and VIP tourney tickets are $15.

The Seminole-Florida JC winner will meet Polk in Thursday's opening round while the winner is up against tougher Indian River. Other first-round pairings see Florida College meeting Okaloosa-Walton and Pensacola facing Palm Beach.

A recent piece of interesting information appeared in an issue of Tennis Magazine. Written by linguist Michael Mikos, the very origins of most of our tennis lings is traced back to as early as ancient Greece and Rome. Take the word "tennis" for example. The game, or its ancestor, probably started in the Near East and was peaced from there to the ancient Greeks, then to the Romans, before eventually finding its way to France. It was here that a game called "jeu de poume" (literally, play of palm) developed into a racquet sport.

But it was not until the 14th century that the name appeared in Lyman Advances recognisable form in Western writing, when an Italian wrote of an invading army of French heights playing "lenes." Interestingly enough, there are two schools of thought on the origin of the word "love." A popular theropy traces the team back to the early Franch, who in marking up a zero, wrote the figure in elliptical Keith Barnhart and Marcus

French, who is marking up a sare, wrote to figure appearance of an egg and so the French called it "l'oeuf" — the egg. It was then thought that when the English first encountered tennis, they heard the French calling out "l'ouef" for "no-acore," thought it was "love" they heard, and so have called nothing "love" ever since.

A more believable explanation of the origin of "love" was the time. The origin of scoring has best been explained by British turn-of-the-century tennis expert A.E. Crawley, who wrote that tennis scoring is a sexagosimal system...in which the round total is 60 points, divisable into groups of 15, as on a clock.

During this time there was a series of standard coins, variously styled, divisable into 60, with quarters of this standard unit with a value of 15. It is well documented that in those days the game was always played for money.

Naturally the commonest big silver piece would be chosen as a convenient unit for the game; being worth 60 sous, each of its four early tennis scoring was simply abbreviated to "40." TENNIS TIP. An overhead is often called a "kill" or "smash," primarily because it implies a power shot that relies on force or pace for its effect. Logically, it is unwise to hit hard for a small target. The aiming of an overhead should always be toward to largest unoccupied area of the court. If exception to this rule is take by more advanced players, there is another "rule" they should observe - and this one should not be broken even by advanced players: never angle your smash to the small area, always play the ball straight. ### Deposits Can Be A Legal Problem

Q. Several years ago we had a great deal of difficulty in got-ting our deposit returned by a real estate broker. The sale felt through because the VA ap-praisal was below our contracted sale price.

To avoid this problem, we recently made the deposit the property be placed in the check out directly to the seller when we signed a contract to buy a home. This new sale also has fallen through and the deposit. How can we get our sure in the future that our deposit money will be safe?

A. What you should do is to consult an attorney im-mediately. Your attorney will and by curtain standards of review the contract and the conduct. "I started with $4 and it looks like I'm ending up the same way."

The one-time symbol of Southern segregation says he is broke. deeply in debt, and he fears the pressures of the predicament may very well send him to an early grave. Maddox says his problem is rooted to his past political efforts.

"I would have been a lot better off if I'd never been governor." As it is, he says, he still owes $182,000 from his political campaigns of 1966 through 1974. "I can't possibly pay it off," he adds, "all I got to my name right now is $642." Technically, Maddus believes he may be responsible for only a portion of the campaign debt. Much of the $182,000 obligation was

"But I cosigned all of the loans, and I feel I have an obligation to pay them off; the thing is, I just can't raise the money."

Since spending four years as Georgia governor, and another four as lieutenant governor, he has failed in several business enterprises, including food service, real estate and even a songand-dance comedy act. At present his income is "unreliable." He receives no retirement benefits for his public service. He says he has some remaining business connections, "but not enough to count on." As for his statues as an ex-governor, Maddox says the banks are

"God worked a miracle on me. But it could happen again. You never know. My doctors tell me I must live quietly for now." Friends say Maddox's heart attack has changed him.

In particular, Maddox has mellowed regarding Jimmy Carter. The pair have feuded since Maddox served as Carter's lieutenant governor in 1970-74. When Carter announced his presidential candidacy in 1976, Maddox entered the race "so that I can show America what a phoney and a hypocrite Carter is."

Now that is over, Maddox says. When he was hospitalized, Carter was among the first to send good wishes.

Maddox is grateful: "I think he's a good man, I think he really wants to do what's right for the country. I support him. He's my president and I include him in my prayers almost every day." Maddox says he prays many times a day. But though he feels
