Lotto reaches high total

TALLAHASSEE - After several months of smaller jackpots, the Florida Lotto has reached its highest total in more than six months.

Lottery officials Wednesday increased their estimate of Saturday's prize to $24 million the most since Miami watch repairman Eduardo Gonzales and a 67-year-old Texas grandmother. Luisa Marin, shared a $28.3 million jackpot drawing Jan. 12.

"It's great to have Lotto grand prize winners. but it's also fun for our players when the Jackpot climbs." said Marcia Mann, lottery secretary.

When no one won last week's drawing, it marked the first time in 27 weeks Lotto rolled over two consecutive weeks - its longest span since the game began in 1988.

Man arrested for stealing skulls

NEW YORK - A homeless man was charged with stealing skulls from a Brooklyn cemetery and selling them, some for use in religious ceremonies, police said.

The skulls had been buried in mausoleums more than 100 years ago and were stolen during a series of sporadic grave robberies at the Cypress Hill Cemetery beginning in June, said Capt. John Finn. a Brooklyn detective.

A human skull can bring more than $4,000 "and the only way you're going to get one is to take it off someone," the captain said.

Matias Frias, 21, who was described as homeless, was charged Wednesday with stealing at least five skulls.

One of the arresting officers, Detective Sgt. Michael Race, said the skulls were sold for use "in the performance of religious ceremonies."

Race said at least one was meant for a woman who practices Santeria, a Caribbean-based religion that combines ancient African beliefs and Catholicism.

New York Newsday, however, said the skulls were used by another religious group, most likely a cult to which Frias belonged.

Radio fake investigated

LOS ANGELES - Federal regulators are investigating a radio station whose disc jockeys broadcast a phony murder confession.

Doug Roberts, then an Arizona disc jockey. called a KROQ show last year featuring Kevin Ryder and Gene "Bean" Baxter and confessed beating his girlfriend to death.

The act prompted a 10-month search for a murderer that ended when a newspaper disclosed the call was a hoax to boost ratings.

Mel Karmazin, president of Infinity Broadeasting Corp., which owns the station, said KROQ didn't know the confession was a hoax until it was exposed last April.

The station aired an apology, suspended the two without pay for six days and told them to reimburse local sheriff's officials $12,170 for their investigation.

Lake Mary trims trimming of trees

By NICK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Excessive trimming of trees in Lake Mary shopping areas may come to a halt after tonight. Lake Mary is expected to enact an ordinance preventing such trimming in the future. The ordinance does not affect single family lots however.

During several previous city commission meetings, both commissioners Paul Tremel and Tom-Mahoney had expressed concern over the number of trees that were being drastically trimmed on commercial lots and shopping centers. It was reported that several business owners, not all in the city, were pruning trees to the extreme, most of the time to provide improved visibility for shopping centers and advertising signs.

LAKE MARY - Late last month. the City of Lake Mary and the consulting firm of Herbert/Halback. Inc., held a day-long meeting to gather citizen input on the possible development of the downtown area. The results will be presented to the City Commission during tonight's session.

The meeting was called a charette, a grouping together of a number of ideas and concepts with the purpose of organizing them intoone main purpose.

While only an estimated 40 Lake Mary citizens turned out for the charette, several hundred submitted written responses to a questionnaire mailed out prior to the inceting.

Many ideas for the types, size and cussed and consolidated. The specific elements that were found acceptable by a majority of the people all dealt with what was considered the primary downtown core. They included matters dealing with a gateway area, rennovation of a shopping center, building height restrictions, the use of office spaces, mass rafi transit, parks, and neighborhood development.

The gateway proposal was centered on the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road. The shopping center, on the northeast corner, was said to need more appropriate character. It was suggested that possibly a second building be added behind the current convenience store, in connection with that, it was determined that a commercial strip be contimued for one to three blocks north on both sides of Country Club road.

As for buildings, citizens suggested those along Country Club Drive be a maximum of 2 stories high, with retail on the lower level and office space or housing above.

FORT LAUDERDALE — A newborn dolphin calf at Ocean World was born with complications and died soon after its birth, a park veterinarian said.

A necropsy showed aberrant behavior from the mother, Splash, and metabolic complications were the cause of the calf's death, Dr. Scott Gearhart said Wednesday. In addition the calf was weak and may have been premature, he said.

Gearhart strongly denied allegations that the baby dolphin was killed by two aggressive males.

More bicyclists killed in Florida

WEST PALM BEACH — More bicyclists were killed in Florida in 1990 than in any other state, and only California and New York had more pedestrian deaths, an official from the state Department of Transportation said.

"The two biggest contributing factors are people riding at night and riding without helmets," said Pat Pieratte, the DOT's assistant coordinator of bicycle and pedestrian planning.

Pieratte also said Wednesday Florida's inviting climate, abundance of cars and lack of room for readside bikers and pedestrians has put the state abond in traffic fatalities.

Last year, 143 cyclists and 807 pedestrians were killed in traffic accidents. The DOT also found that of the 360 people killed last year in Florida in 1990 while trying to cross a road, 78 were crossing at an intersection. The rest were jaywalking.

Former state lawmaker enters no contest plea

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Former state Rep. Frank Messersmith of Lake Worth is the latest lawmaker who will enter a no-contest plea to criminal charges of failing to report trips provided by lobbyists.'

Attorney William Corry said Messersmith has withdrawn an innocent plea because the prospect of lengthy court proceedings and a trial is interfering with his effort to find a job.

"He's had some outstanding (job) interviews," Corry said. But the employers are just not willing to extend him a firm offer until such time that this is resolved."

A no-contest plea means the individual charged does not dispute the accusation, but also does not acknowledge guilt.

Messersmith is charged with failing to report lobbyist-paid trips to Georgia, Mexico and Texas in 1987 and 1988. He was among 24 current and former Messersmith did not return two messages left Tuesday on his home answering machine.

Pentagon can't find satellites, part of rocket By LEE SIEGEL

AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES - Part of a rocket and the seven communications satellites it was supposed to launch got lost on the way to space, leaving the Pentagon scanning the heavens for signs of the $18 million experiment gone wrong.

"We are using all available space tracking assets" to regain contact with the Microsat satellites and the fourth stage of the Pegasus booster. Army Maj. Robert Bonometti said Wednesday after the launched rocket vanished.

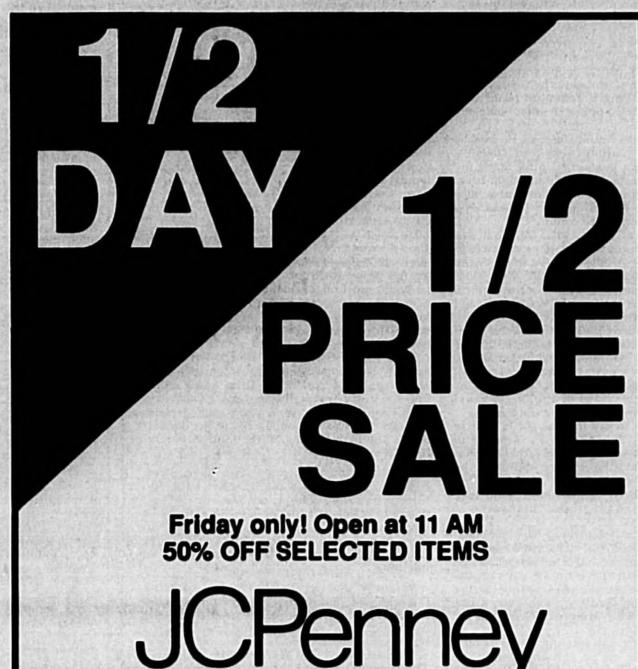

We do not have data on the final outcome of this mission." said Bonometti, mission director for the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, speaking from Edwards Air Force inches wide. The Pegasus-Microsat mission cost $9 million for the rocket and launch and another $9 million for the satellites, said Perri-Anne Stiffler of Space Applications Corp., the Sunnyvale company that was aiding the mission.

The 49-pound Microsats are just 71/2 inches high and 19

If the mission flops, it would be the second failure in a month of a rocket built by Orbital Sciences Corp., also of Virginia.

Uniquely suited

In the America in which Clarence Thomas grew up, people of color routinely were denied equal protection under the law. Now Thomas, nominated by President Bush to the Supreme Court, faces the challenge of safeguarding the principle of equal protection and all the other rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

He brings to the task the singular perspective of a man who grew up poor and black in segregated rural! Georgia, the grandson of a sharecropper. He overclime more hurdles than most Americans can imagine to reach the pinnacle of his profession at age 43.

Thomas' life's experience has helped him develop a temperament that is uniquely suited to a jurist. "When I hear a case, I know damn well that something is going to happen as a result of what I decide," he told an interviewer recently. "That's not a responsibility I take lightly, no way."

For the past 16 months, Thomas has served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. That bench is widely regarded as the second-highest court in the land. During his short tenure on the appellate court, Thomas has written or joined in 18 decisions.

Although those opinions do not reveal his posture on some of the most contentious issues expected to come before the court next term — privacy rights, abortion, free speech — they nonetheless offer insight into his scholarship and judicial outlook.

In one case, Thomas demonstrated a strong inclination toward judicial restraint. "When federal jurisdiction does not exist," he wrote, "federal judges have no authority to exercise it, even if everyone — judges, parties, members of the public — wants the dispute

In another case, involving a man convicted of a weapons charge in connection with a drug offense, Thomas wrote on behalf of the appellate majority that "we simply cannot accept the proposition that an individual can be convicted for 'using' a gun that he neither actually, nor constructively, possessed." This opinion suggests Thomas will be sensitive to the constitutional rights of criminal defendants.

The issue that may cause Thomas the biggest challenge when he appears before the Senate Judiciary Committee for confirmation hearings is civil rights and affirmative action. As chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for eight years prior to joining the federal bench, Thomas repeatedly expressed his opposition to racial preferences.

"You can't orchestrate society along racial lines or different lines by saying there should be 10 percent blacks, 15 percent Hispanics." Thomas once declared. Over the years, he has stressed the importance of individual rights rather than group rights.

Thomas' opposition to racial quotas has provoked considerable opposition to his nomination from some Democratic senators and leaders of civil rights groups. But the irony is that, by questioning the liberal orthodoxy on affirmative action, Thomas had demonstrated the very intellectual independence that most senators claim to want in the next Supreme Court justice.

In assessing Thomas' fitness for the court, the Senate must look well beyond the contentious issues of today and examine his broad constitutional philosophy. After all, if he is confirmed, Thomas can be expected to be handing down decisions for decades to come.

Put sanctions on Clarence Thomas

SOWETO, South Africa — Countee Cullen's quintessential lament about the paradox of the black experience — "Yet do I marvel at this curious thing, to paint a poet black and bid him sing" — has been replaced by the fatuous hypocrisy of the NAACP's executive director, Rev. Renjamin Hooks.

Rev. Benjamin Hooks.

Hooks' angry hyperbole that it would be "criminally irresponsible" to lift sanctions for South Africa is understandable. Most black Americans agree with Nelson Mandela that sanctions should be retained. But the NAACP's unwillingness to take a similarly strong stand on the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court depreciates its moral credibility. Naturally. African-Americans react with knee-jerk pride when a brother or sister is nominated for any high position. Irish-, Italian-, Jewish- and Polish-Americans do the same when Everywhere I visited — from black townships and squalid squatters camps to corporate offices and elegant suburban homes — both black and white South Africans conceded that sanctions worked. Now that South Africa, under the leadership of President F.W. de Klerk, has complied with the five conditions spelled out in the 1986 Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act (PL 99-440), President Bush was legally justified

TOM TIEDE

When you try to sue a nation

WASHINGTON — Scott J. Nelson says his long ordeal can be summarized like this: He was hired to monitor the safety facilities at a major medical center, yet when he did just that — monitor safety — he was arrested and hustled off to a terrible room where he was sadistically tortured and permanently disabled.

Naturally, he decided to sue for damages. But he soon found out that he had to get judicial permission to take judicial action. And when he finally got that permission, the U.S. government stepped in to entreat the court to reconsider the permission and to, in fact, prevent him from obtaining legal redress.

Nutty? Not in the realm of international affairs. Nelson was employed by a Saudi Arabian hospital in Riyadh. The Saudi government says U.S. courts do not have the right to meddle in Arab affairs, and the George Bush administration, trying to maintain peace with an important petro-political ally, officially agrees.

The victim thinks it's outrageous. He says he feels like David battling a pair of Goliaths: "First one of them busts me up for doing my job. Then the other says I shouldn't fight back. We just had a war to protect Saudi Arabia, now we try to protect them this way: I guess we'll do anything to keep the oil coming."

Nelson says it all began in 1983. That was the year he was hired as a systems engineer at the King Faisal Specialist Hospital in the Saudi capital. He was told initially to keep close watch on the security functions of the medical equipment, or, in other words, to insure a high level of safety at the institution.

He says he noticed multiple problems from the outset. One concern was with the grease valves on oxygen and nitrous oxide containers. He says the valves were not well maintained, they did not work properly, therefore he believes they constituted a fire hazard and other threats to "every patient in the hospital."

Nelson goes on to say that he got in trouble when he reported the defects. He was told to shut up and forget it. He feels the hospital officials were afraid that if they had to fix the irregularities, it would be an admission that safeguards had been compromised, and they would be blamed for poor management procedures.

Nelson says he continued to complain, however. And on Sept. 27, 1984, he was summoned by agents of the government's Central Investigation Division. He says he was taken to an isolated cell where, without either warning or explanation ("no one even spoke English"), he was stripped, handcuffed, shackled — and tortured:

"One thing they did was put a bar behind my legs and beat me on the knees until the joints separated. I could hear them snap, like sticks of wood. They also hit me for a long time on the bottoms of my feet; that is an ancient form of torment. I'm told, and it damaged nerve endings all the way up to my waist.

"I have no idea how long it lasted. I only remember that it hurt. And I remember it was almost like a movie, it was almost as if I was sitting in a corner and watching somebody else get hit. They call that an 'out of body experience.' Some experience. Some prisoners of war have had the same thing. It's one way to cope

Nelson says he was kept for 39 days. When he was released, he says, Saudi authorities apologized. He says they said that the arrest was a mistake, and "they wanted me to go right back to work, for God's sake." He instead flew home with his family, and set out to try to sue the kingdom and its se-me to go right back to work, for God's sake." He instead flew home with his family, and set out to try to sue the kingdom and its security apparatus.

He's still trying almost seven years later. It's not easy for Americans to take foreign powers to trial. Nelson maintains that he could not find a Saudi attorney who would deal with the matter in the Riyadh judiciary; beyond that, U.S. law and diplomatic sensitivities discouraged him from seeking any restitution here.

Nelson persisted anyway. He challenged the Foreign Sovereign Immunity Act, which generally prohibits Americans from suing other nations, and he won the point. Last February, a three-judge panel in Atlanta gave Nelson permission to haul Saudi Arabia to the docket: it was the first decision of the kind in federal history.

Still, the decision may not have been enough. The Bush administration says the Immunity Act should not be so lightly dismissed. Nelson's lawyer says Saudi officers have asked the White House to intercede on their behalf, and the Department of Justice has, in turn, asked the Atlanta panel to reverse its ruling.

Nelson's lawyer is Professor Anthony D'Amato of Northwestern University Law School. He says the U.S. interference is unusual: "They say that if Americans can sue other governments, people in other nations will be able to sue us. But that's not the real issue. The issue is the need to keep cozy with Saudi Arabia."

Jet crash may be Saddam's doing

WASHINGTON — Terrorism experts and some Central Intelligence Agency analysts believe that the fingerprints of Saddam Hussein may be all over the explosion that brought down an Austrian airliner in Thailand on May 28.

All 223 passengers and crew members were killed, among them three Americans, including the pilot, on the Lauda Air flight between Bangkok and Vienna. Thai authorities have put a lid on the investigation, and the CIA has classified its opinion on the subject as higher than "top secret."

But our sources say that some CIA analysts believe it is "likely" that an Iraqi-sponsored terrorist group — either the Abu Nidal Organization or the "May 15 Group" — blew up the plane.

At first, Thai officials suggested weather may have downed the plane, but then dismissed that theory. Within 48 hours, Austrian, U.S. and Thai investigators were focusing on the likelihood that a bomb plane blew up at 20,000 feet.

A That police officer, among others, witnessed a fireball in the sky and a booming sound before the plane crashed. The scattering of the debris and the size of the pieces also suggested a bomb. The plane was only 18 months old and had a routine maintenance check these days before the crash nance check three days before the crash.

A former top American counter-terrorism official, Noel Koch, who now runs his own company, International Security Management, says the Saddam theory is a "reasonable" hypothesis. Airplane bombings are the modus operandi of the Abu Nidal Organization and the May 15 Group, both renegade Palestinian groups. The May 15 Group was founded by the best bomb-maker in the terrorism business. Abu Ibrahim, who lives in Baghdad.

Baghdad.

Both groups have safe houses and men in Bangkok, where many in the Muslim community strongly supported fraq during the Persian Gulf War. The terrorist threat was so real during the war that in January several thousand Thai soldiers were deployed to protect more than 80 buildings in Bangkok, including airline offices and American diplomatic facilities. The police were deployed after Thai officials got a tip that Iraq was smuggling arms and explosives to its sympathical in Bangkok.

thizers in Bangkok.

Terrorist experts consider the Bangkok airport to be an easy target because of lax security. Lauda Air did not screen the bags that it took on in Bangkok that day. The flight had originated in Hong Kong and was headed for Vienna with a brief stopover in Bangkok.

The two terrorist groups had the means and the motive. Although Austria is officially neutral. Palestinian terrorists are angry at its decision to offer help to Israel, and to give tacit opposition to Iraq during the war. Vienna has also long been a way station for Soviet Jews headed for Israel where many of them will settle in occupied territories. Two members of the Abu Nidal Organization are in jail in Austria in connection with the bombing of the Vienna airport in December 1985.

After means and motive, terrorist groups need a sponsor — a country to give them safe haven and funding. Experts agree there is no terrorism without state sponsorship, and Saddam has been a sponsor for both groups in the past.

U.S. officials didn't protest when Thai officials clamped a lid of secrecy on the investigation. The last thing the Bush administration needs is to have word leak out that Saddam, who was so easily beaten on the battlefield, was not at all cowed.

WASHINGTON - The Bush administration and Democratic leaders are cooperating to dodge recorded votes on abortion as Congress and the president inch toward a veto showdown that each fears it could lose.

Summitry aids Soviet leader to restore rule

By THOMAS GINSBERG Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW - Call It Mikhail S. Gorbachev's Summer of The Summit. Using three summits foreign and domestic - he has moved strongly to restore his credibility at home.

First he reached a truce with restive republics at a "dacha summit" in April. Then he won Western plaudits and promises of aid at the London economic summit this week.

Now the Soviet president will try to capitalize on U.S.-Soviet detente in a summit with President Bush in Moscow at the end of July.

The high-powered sessions have helped repair Gorbachev's standing after a long winter of hard-line resurgence that had raised doubts about his authority in the Kremlin and across the country.

His meeting with Bush should seal those achievements and give Gorbachev a chance to push for more U.S. ald for the hobbling Soviet economy.

At the same time, he will be reinforcing the idea - to the outside world, and to leaders of restive Soviet republies - that he is the man the world deals with on Soviet matters that count.

The string of summit successes for Gorbachev goes back to a meeting April 23 between Gorbachev and leaders of nine of 15 Soviet republics, including Russian republic President Boris N. Yeltsin, his sometime-rival.

Gorbachev agreed to give republics control over most industries and natural resources on their territory in return for their long-sought support for his proposed Union Treaty to hold the country together.

The agreement - dubbed "Nine-Plus-One" and "the dacha agreement" for the country home where it was reached stemmed an assault from Communist hard-liners and gave Gorbachev a mechanism to deal with republics.

Gorbachev got strong backing from Yeltsin for his position going into the Group of Seven meeting, where he won promises of technical assistance and associate membership in the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

Gorbachev also met Bush in London and concluded the START treaty to cut infercontinental nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines by 30 percent.

Agreement cleared the way to set the date for a Moscow summit, which had been delayed at least one time before.

The Moscow summit tentatively is scheduled to take place five days after Gorbachev faces Communist Party leaders on July 25.

Communists will debate a new reformist party platform and grapple with a possible split that could extipple the ruling organization that Gorbachev heads.

With G-7 success behind him and a promising meeting with Bush ahead, Gorbachev will be in a good position to bend Communists to his will and eliminate a major block on Ultimately, his diplomatic view tories with foreigners will be meaningless without political support at home to put them into effect.

FANTASY BASEBALL

Commissioner to go on trial

FORT LAUDERDALE — The commissioner of a fantasy baseball league is to go on trial Aug. 19 on a misdemeanor gambling charge.
If convicted. Randy Bramos would face up to six months in Jall and a $500 fine. The case has drawn national attention because of the popularity of fantasy leagues, in which participants choose players from real baseball teams and compete against each other by keeping track of the players' statistics.

"I had even checked with a vice policeman if this was legal." Bramos said. "He said it was. He was even at our draft.* Bramos, who is married and has two children, lost his job as a firefighter in North Lauderdale after he was arrested last September. Bramos said he never tried to hide his participation in the fantasy league. Prosecutors allege the pot totaled at least $3.000. 'This is definitely beyond the scope of a friendly office football pool," said state attorney Scott Raft. "In Randy's case, this league went from hobby to obsession."

Jackson turns down Heat

MIAMI - Former New York Knicks coach Stu Jackson has discontinued negotiations to join the Miami Heat as an assistant coach. Jackson decided to remain in New York as the NBA's director of basketball operations. Heat managing partner Billy Cunningham said. "Stu has a very young family, and at this point in their lives he felt it important that he

Hurricanes lose a seven-footer

CORAL GABLES - The Miami Hurricanes' basketball team will have just one seven-foot newcomer next season. William Davis, a 7-0 recruit from New York City, failed to score 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and lost his eligibility for 1991-92. Davis, who played at Brooklyn's Boys and Girls High, had been pegged to help shore up a weak center position as the Hurricanes join the Big East Conference. Miami coach Leonard Hamilton declined to comment. He has recruited one other center, 7-3 Constantin Popa of Romania.

Davis is planning to enroll at Fort Union (Va.) Military Academy for a year, retake the SAT and join the Hurricanes in 1992. He would have four years of eligibility remaining.

PREP SPORTS

'Pay to play' put on hold

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. - A central Pennsylvania school district will try to raise money for high school and middle school sports through corporate fund-raising and booster clubs rather than have students pay to participate.

The controversial "pay to play" plan was put on the back burner at a meeting Tuesday night of the Williamsport Area School District. In a 5-2 vote, the board decided to set up a trust fund to cover nearly $39,000, or 10 percent, of the sports budget, officials said. The money would come from local companies and booster clubs of the individual sports.

If the fund falls short, the board agreed to take money from a contingency fund to make up the difference.

The board had considered having students pay fees ranging from $5 to $130 to participate in sports.

minicamp ends Thursday.

Anno, a linebacker who's led the Bucs in kick coverage tackles the past two seasons, was one of five unsigned veterans. He and offensive lineman John Bruhin have been participating in vol-untary minicamp drills, but linebacker Ervin Randle, cor-nerback Wayne Haddix and wide receiver Willie Drewrey have stayed away because of their contract attuations.

Thin Dolphin defense suffers another setback

MIAMI - The Miami Dolphins, missing two starters on defense because of contract disputes, lost nother one to an injury Weanesday.

"It is discouraging because we were hoping to get a good solid veteran player in at that position." coach Don Shula said.

Tests indicated major ligament damage that is going to require surgery, and Grimsley will "in all probability ... be lost for the year," according to a release issued by the Dolphins

Wednesday evening. Grimsley's position was already thin. Veterans Barry Krauss and Cliff Odom, starters in the past, and Plan B acquisi-tion Ned Bolcar are trying to come back from serious injuries.

"We have quite a few question marks there," Shula said. One week into training camp. the defense is thin elsewhere. too. Cornerback J.B. Brown is unsigned, and safety Jarvis Williams is holding out while he seeks a new contract.

Williams ripped into management Tuesday, calling its negotiating tactics unfair.

What do you have to do to get the money you deserve around here?" Williams said in his first interview since the holdout

Speaking from his home in Palatka, Fla., Williams said he didn't plan to report to camp until significant progress was made on a new contract...

"I'm working out and wait-ing," he said. "I can wait a long Team officials say that since

Williams is already under contract, he must report before they will negotiate. Williams is being fined $1,500 for each day he's absence: the total fine reached $10,500 Wednesday. The Dolphins used the same approach two seasons ago with linebacker John Offerdahl, who ended his holdout six games into the season. He received a big raise, but not until the following year. Williams is scheduled to make $240,000 in the final season of the four-year contract, which he signed coming out of the University of Florida as a second-round pick in 1988. He's reportedly is seeking $500,000 this season.

Williams points out that he has been voted the team's most valuable defensive back in each of his three seasons.

"I thought I had a hell of a season last year," he said. "I did my part on the field, and now the Dolphins need to do theirs."

One player did report Wednesday. Veteran receiver Fred Banks signed a contract, leaving 13 players unsigned.

NFL to begin accepting applications for expansion

Accordated Press

NEW YORK - The NFL will begin accepting applications for expansion teams and set Sept. 16 as the deadline to apply for a franchisc. The application process was set by the recently appointed NFL Expansion Committee. which held its first meeting Wednesday. "We will begin accepting written requests for expansion applications from all candidate communities immediately," said NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue, chairman of the committee. "The committee members are enthusiastic about moving ahead with the expansion evaluation process."

Among the cities mentioned as candidates are Baltimore, St. Louis and Oakland, which each had NFL teams move elsewhere. as well as Charlotte. N.C., Memphis. Tenn.. Jacksonville. Sacramento, Calif., and San Antonio.

No price has been set for new franchises. Miami and Denver will pay $95 million each to join baseball's National League for the 1993 season.

The NFL application form asks candidates to submit information on stadium facilities, demographics, public and private support and possible ownership groups. Ownership groups must complete a separate application by Oct. 1. NFL clubs voted on May 22 to add two teams for the 1994 season, unless Tagliabue and the expansion committee determine that labor-management issues would hinder the timetable. With the new franchises, the league would operate with six divisions of five teams each.

Other members of the expansion committee are Norman Braman of the Philadelphia Eagles . Hugh Culverhouse of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Ed DeBartolo, Jr., of the San Francisco 49ers. Art Modell of the Cleveland Browns. Rankin Smith of the Atlanta Falcons and Alex Spanos of the San Diego Chargers.

Continued from 1B true test of the summer n as each had through through its respective --area tourney.

In the end, the experience of Oviedo's players, many of whom were on the Junior League team which went to the Southeastern Regional Tournament last year, prevailed over the spirit and heart of Altamonte.

Brion King came home with the game-winning run on a bases-loaded line drive by Mike Rugienius. Rugienius's shot was caught by center fielder Jimmy Newbury, who then rifled the ball to the infield. But when the Altamonte shortstop wheeled to gun down King, he lost his balance and King scored.

"My kids took it to them from the first inning," said Altamonte head coach Dan Antonelli. "It doesn't get any better than this. Nobody loses a game like this."

Early on, it looked like Antonelli's group might upset highly-touted Oviedo. Terry Koller cracked a double to drive in Rene Perez and Eric Leisten. giving the Altamonte Americans a 2-0 first-inning lead.

Oviedo climbed back into the game with uncarned runs in the third and fourth innings.

In the third, Kevin Stephenson reached on base on an error by Altamonte Springs pitcher Chuck Little. After Tim Slavik hit into a fielder's choice. Stephenson being forced at second, Rugienius singled Slavik to third. He then scored on a wild pitch.

Down the stretch, each squad had golden opportunities to win the game, but somehow managed to come up empty. In the bottom of the seventh. King faced every baseball player's dream: bases loaded. two outs, tie score. But his line drive to left field that was caught by Jason Perry. Two innings later, Altamonte had a chance to go ahead. reaching fatigued Oviedo starter Todd Bellhorn and releiver Stephenson to load the bases with two out. But Slavik came in to get the third out on a strike out, then struck out the side in the 10th to earn the win.

Bellhorn finished the contest with 10 strikeouts in eight-plus innings pitched.

"We needed to play some defense." said Oviedo coach Tom Ferguson, who was happy to see his team in a tight game. "We both (teams) played good baseball.

"We couldn't execute on our hitting. We were uptight." Slavik finished the game 2-for-4 and reaching base four times to help keep the Oviedo attack afloat. Newbury was 2-for-4 for Altamonte Springs.

Local man finds Heart Park good for health, well-being SANFORD — Never before has Americans been so stimulated into being health conscious, not only by changing their enting habits, but also their physical activities.

There are numerous routes for a person to take when they decide that it's time to shape up. Often they would like to go to a fitness club, but for some reason or another they do not. The economical situation is one factor that keeps people away from health clubs, although most of them offer easy installment payments. Some people, women especially, don't like to leave the children, or may not be able to afford a sitter. They often share the living room floor with junior and perform their with junior and perform their daily exercise. It's not only stimulating to the body, but to mom and child's relationship.

Seek help for control of angina's painful cramps DRAR DR. GOTT: I'm a retired senior citizen with angina for which my doctor has prescribed Procardia and digoxin. During the hot, humid months in Florida my condition is ag-gravated and something as simple as dusting a table causes the chest pains to begin, limiting me to a minimum of physical exertion. Do I have to live with this debilitating situation, or is there some help for me? DEAR READER: Angina is pain caused by cramping of the heart muscle due to inadequate oxygen supply. The symptom almost always reflects arteriosclerotic narrowing of the coronary arteries.

Because the oxygen demands of the heart vary according to activity, angina typically appears during stress, exertion or exposure to cold. The pain is usually relieved by rest and medicine, such as nitrates. which reduce cardiac work.

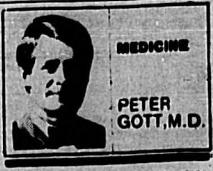

Today doctors have an astounding array of drugs to treat angina: nitrates, beta-blockers and calcium-channel blockers, to mention a few.

Your physician has prescribed Procardia (nifedipine, a calci-um-channel blocker) and digoxin (a heart stimulant). In many instances, this combination is an appropriate antidote for angina. However, in your case, the drugs do not control your pain satisfactorily: you still have symptoms during routine activi-ty. Therefore, I believe a change is in order.

You may need more Procardia to do the job — but not more digoxin, because this medicine can cause dangerous toxicity. Or, other drugs might be more useful. For example, I'd try Tenormin (atenolol, a longacting beta-blocker) in conjunction with nitrates (in patch. cream or pill form).

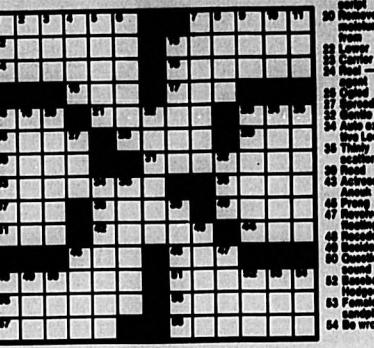

In the event drug therapy is ineffective — or if your angina worsens despite it — you should have testing to determine if you are a candidate for coronary artery bypass grafting (surgery to bypass the narrowed coronary arteries), balloon angioplasty (to correct the narrowing without surgery) or one of the newer techniques (such as laser therapy) to open clogged arteries.

There are times when the opponents could be armed with a Scud but you will still make your contract - it is missileproof. At other times, a paper airplane is enough to shoot you down. In between, there are the occasions when the opponents have darts that can pierce your armor — unless you work out how to blunt them. Look at the North-South cards. (The deal is from Bill Root's book "How to Play a Bridge Hand.") You are in four spades and West has led the heart two. What is your line of when playing in a suit con-tract, always count your potential losers. Here you have two club losers for sure, and potential losers in both red suits. At first glance, from the lowheart lead, it looks as though the finesse will win, leaving the contract safe. And even if the heart finesse loses, you can still establish a club trick to discard your diamond loser.

But it isn't as easy as that. Consider the sequence of plays. If the heart finesse loses, East (if | WEST he is in mid-season form) will switch to a diamond. Then you won't have the time to set up a club trick. The defense will defeat you, establishing a diamond trick before you establish a club trick.

However, suppose you put up the heart ace at trick one, draw trumps using the spade honors in your hand, and lead the club jack. How can they hurt you? They can't; you have time on your side. They will get one heart and two club tricks, but you will discard your diamond loser on dummy's club queen.
