Churchill deplored Britain's decision, announced Wednesday, to accept a battleship, a battle cruiser, seven other cruisers and a number of smaller craft. "I have no doubt this unwise and imprudent step will have its effect upon our influence and authority in international discussions," he told the House.

But the NAM witness contended that European recovery has a better chance for success "without disturbing the peace if it operates as cold economics rather than as cold war."

He also bought 100,000 bushels of oats futures on the same day, Sept. 23, and sold it Nov. 12 at a profit of $3,475.

Stassen asked the senators to note the profit of $86,260 he said Pauley made on fats and oils trading last year. He said some purchases were made after Pauley became an assistant to Secretary of the Army Royal.

On Sept. 11 the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Production and Marketing Administration, announced that they had delivered to foreign countries 37,000,000 lbs of fats and oils in July, which constituted a record quantity of fats and oils for export in a single month.

On Nov. 14, and 15, in two items, Mr. Pauley sold the 300,000 lbs. of cottonseed oil for $78,885 and obtained a profit of $27,885 on this one transaction.

Foreign Secretary Bevin's proposal for a consolidation of Western European countries to stem Communist expansion also found quick and warm support in the French and Italian governments.

France had joined Great Britain in approaching the Benelux customs combine of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. French officials said they "naturally" approved Bevin's statement.

Senate GOP Votes In Favor Of Tax Cut

Amount Left Blank And National Debt Will Be Reduced By $2,600,000,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Senate Republicans voted today to cut taxes but left the amount blank. They decided, however, that any cut should leave $2,600,000,000 to pay on the national debt next fiscal year, Chairman Millikin (R-Col.) of the Senate Republican Conference told reporters.

At the same time, the conference made up of all majority party members in the chamber talked of whittling President Truman's $39,700,000,000 budget but failed to set a target. Reductions of $2,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 were mentioned, Millikin said.

A decision on the amount to reduce taxes cannot be reached until "there is more information on the budget" and the amount of surplus is determined, he added.

In the House, the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee agreed to vote tomorrow on the Knutson tax cutting bill estimated to chop $6,300,000,000 off income tax revenues. Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) predicted it will be passed by the House next Monday, then it would go to the Senate.

Millikin said the Republican senators decided Congress should "do the best it can" toward setting a figure on how much to cut the President's budget. The amount must await the office of the Budget Committee, he explained.

Knutson, author of the tax bill in the House, said reporters: "They will approve my bill tomorrow. The House will begin (Continued on Page Five)

Krug Proposes 9 Billion Outlay For Production Of Synthetic Oil

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—An immediate ban on all exports of petroleum products was recommended today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee. The action is necessary, the committee reported to the House, because of optimistic estimates of supplies, the weather, and "the gravity of the outlook in oil supplies in the event of a war emergency."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—A $9,000,000,000 outlay over the next five to ten years to produce synthetic oil and gasoline on a commercial basis was proposed to Congress today by Secretary of the Interior Krug.

With winter-accentuated petroleum shortages sharpening his words, Krug said in a formal report: "It is clear now that the United States cannot rely exclusively on petroleum to supply all future requirements for liquid fuels and related products."

The nation, he commented, already "is squeezed between increasing demand and decreasing productive capacity." And if the international trend toward mechanized economies continues "the proportion of the world's oil available to the United States may diminish markedly," he said.

But setting up a synthetic fuel industry, Krug said, "is far too large an operation and requires too much time to be undertaken under emergency or war conditions."

The cabinet officials' report said that to produce roughly 2,000,000 barrels of oil a day, which is less than 40 percent of the country's present daily consumption, "would require about 16,000,000 tons of steel and the expenditure of around 19,000,000,000."

Visualizing the program as ten times the magnitude of the synthetic rubber program developed during the war, Krug added: "It should be undertaken now when the country is at peace and completed over a period of five to ten years."

Krug made his proposal on the basis of a lengthy report outlining what already has been accomplished in the field of synthetic fuel research.

Besides the work already done with oil shale and coal, Krug said (Continued on Page Eight)

Britain Will Not Devalue English Pound

Cripps Sees Nothing To Be Gained By Following French Act With Franc

PARIS, Jan. 26 (AP)—Premier Robert Schuman declared today that without devaluation of the franc France faced economic ruin and widespread unemployment.

More and more definitely, meanwhile, expressed disapproval of the monetary operations and dismay that they were carried out despite strong opposition from Great Britain and the International Monetary Fund.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps declared today Britain does not contemplate devaluing the pound despite French action in cutting the value of the franc.

"We do not believe that this will be rendered necessary or advisable," the Chancellor of the Exchequer advised the House of Commons. Earlier government securities had dipped on the stock exchange, reflecting investors' fears that France's action will damage the pound sterling.

France had overridden objections of both Britain and the International Monetary Fund in revaluing her money. The devaluation gave French manufacturers a chance to cut their prices as much as one-half in world markets and consequently threatened British markets abroad.

The devaluation amounts to about 44 percent for French exporters. They now will get many more francs for their dollars than they have been getting.

Up to midnight, the franc was officially quoted at 119 to $1. The new rate is 214 to $1, but exporters will be able to realize even more than that. They will trade half their dollars at the (Continued on Page Eight)

Bridges Declares Truman Submitted "Phoney Budget"

Stassen Demands Exhibition Of Plane Gets Sanford Restrictions On Grain Speculation

MONTEPIELIER, Vt., Jan. 26 (AP)—Hubert F. Stassen called today for a complete revision of governmental purchasing policies with sharp restrictions on speculation in scarce commodities.

Stassen outlined a four-point program under which government officials would be banned from speculating in commodities affected by government purchases or decisions.

He told a roomful of Montpelier service clubs that "in wise governmental purchasing" directly contributed to the sharp rise in food prices in the latter part of 1947.

His program called specifically for:

- 1—The establishment of a new excess inventory control policy in the government as a weapon against hoarding, profiteering and semi-monopoly. Such a law would provide for powers of control over inventory accumulation in excess of 120 percent of a five-year average and automatically end when price levels declined 15 percent.
- 2—Government should have a new power to limit credit, especially consumer installment credit, to reduce the upward pressure upon prices.
- 3—Limit speculation in scarce commodities "with a temporary maximum for any individual speculating in the sum of $100."
- 4—Revise governmental purchasing policy to put them under continuous supervision of a (Continued on Page Eight)

Exhibition Of Plane Gets Sanford Airline Week Off To Flying Start

Sanford Airline Week, proclaimed by Mayor Robert A. Williams, got off to a flying start yesterday at the Municipal Airport. The Mayor headed a delegation of prominent citizens representing the County, City, civic, commercial and service organizations who greeted Oscar Berestom, vice president of Florida Airways, and other officials of the airline upon their arrival in one of the company's post war design, twin engine Beechcraft-airliner.

The airliner was placed on exhibition and was open for inspection from several hours. Several flights were made to the coast to demonstrate the speed and comfort of this type aircraft, which is used by Florida Airways in their air scheduled flights per day through Sanford.

Among those making these flights were the following: Mrs. Joel Fields and Miss Maud Ramsey of the Pilot's Club, Miss Edna Chittenden, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, E. G. Kilpatrick, president of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, Carl A. Present of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, A. F. Ramsey and S. G. Harrison of the Kiwanis Club, Cliff Abel and J. B. McNeill of the Lions Club, R. E. Truitt and R. L. Cornell, Jr., of the Rotary Club, City Manager J. N. Sayer, and Postmaster Joel Fields.

Mr. Kilpatrick stated that the Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring Sanford Airline Week, in order to acquaint the citizens of Seminole County with the aviation facilities and airline services of passenger, mail and air express to all parts of the world that are available at the Sanford Municipal Airport.

Letters were sent to all members asking them to cooperate in the observance of airline week by using air mail, air express and the passenger service available locally. "Our local scheduled airline service, which puts us on the airline map of the world, exists because the Federal Government has authorized it," Mr. Kilpatrick said. "A great deal of hard work, money and argument was necessary to establish this service to our community. In order to retain airline service, we must patronize it and support it. If we do not and the service should be discontinued, then the reestablishment of airline service in our trade area would be extremely doubtful and certainly would take a long long time."

Senate Insists Marshall Plan Figures Cover Up Sum Of Over Two Billion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Senator Bridges (R-NH) declared today that President Truman sent Congress a "phoney budget" covering the foreign aid program.

The New Hampshire lawmaker told reporters the presidential budget "covers up" $2,300,000,000. He talked with them immediately after a meeting of the conference of all Republican Senators. He said he had called attention of the conference "to the phoney budget set up as far as foreign aid is concerned."

Bridges is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee which will pass on actual appropriations for the so-called Marshall European Recovery Program if Congress votes for the United States to undertake the huge aid program.

Gladioli Cargoes Brightest Spot In Florida Produce

Vegetable Prices Good, However, In Spite Of Weather

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 26 (Special)—Despite the continuing effects of the recent cold wave, and excessive rainfall which added to the growers' troubles, in some areas this week, considerable shipments of vegetables have moved from Florida points, and prices in several instances have been exceptionally good, said William L. Wilson, Director of State Markets, today.

Perhaps the brightest individual spot in the Florida production picture during the latter part of the week, has been provided by the sales of gladioli blossoms, through the Fort Myers State Farmers' Market, said Director Wilson. ## Mrs. Cowan's Home Destroyed By Fire At Ginderville

Alcoholics Spread Anonymous Doctrine

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the one-story frame home of Mrs. Sarah Cowan at Ginderville Saturday evening.

Mrs. Cowan had left her home at 8:15 o'clock to visit her son, Charles, who lives about one half mile away. M. C. Ginder, storekeeper, saw her leave and about 10 minutes later he saw the house in flames, said Hardy Patterson, who with his wife has been living with his mother.

Mr. Ginder was able to salvage an outdoor motor and a small trailer from the garage attached to the house. Hardy Patterson, an employee of the Table Supply Store on Sanford Avenue, declared that he and his wife had been intending to move today from his mother's home to his home across the street. He reported that his mother had left no fire burning in the stove in her house when she left. It was not covered by insurance. Neighbors aided in supplying essential things needed by the family.

The Sanford Fire Department received a call concerning the fire until 7:00 P. M. and by that time the house, burned to the ground. (Continued on Page Eight)

Philippine Crisis Oyer, Roxas Says

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 26 (AP)—Striking at what is termed the basic cause of most crime, criminals in two Florida prisons are spreading the doctrine of Alcoholics Anonymous in their own rehabilitation programs.

Active AA chapters are functioning at the State Prison at Raiford and at the Federal Correctional Institution here, and prison officials are high in their praise of the program.

The Raiford chapter was organized in 1946 with 20 members. There are now 30 members who are said to be "very seriously interested and clearly profiting from the AA doctrine."

Chaplain Leslie A. Shephard of the Raiford Prison said "it is possible for any member to attain the new attitudes necessary for an inner defense against drinking, and to go on from there to a completely poised spiritual life, and an intelligently creative religious life."

Eisenhower, who withdrew last week from a possible presidential race, is to take over the presidency of Columbia University after a rest.

Third Cold Wave Opens; 60 Dead Following Second

Alcoholics Spread Anonymous Doctrine

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
The third cold wave within a week moved into the north central part of the nation today as the death toll of the second, still gripping the South and East, reached 60.

A Weather Bureau forecaster said the new sub-zero air mass, which moved southward from Canada into the great plains—farther west than the first two—would keep the Midwest and upper Atlantic coastal region frigid at least till midweek.

The new wave's effect was not expected to be felt in the south-eastern part of the country, however, and probably will not bring lower temperatures than already have been experienced in the cold wave series.

Modest rises of temperatures in the still chilly South was reported with Mobile, Ala., which recorded 22 above Sunday having a 24-degree minimum today. Mild weather was expected to reach the south Atlantic coast by Tuesday night.

Modest California farmlands, suffering from 26 days of dry weather, may receive rain from a disturbance moving eastward in the Pacific near the Aleutians.

In Brooklyn, more than 1,300 homes were without gas heat today, as low temperatures raised gas consumption of one company 25 per cent above its capacity.

Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin had arrived Thursday for a visit for several months with Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Cox of Enterprise. This morning, Dr. Baldwin while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Cox at the Essex Studio, complained that he had indigestion, and then went to the street and was stricken with the attack. ## Parental Misunderstanding May Cause Late Speech In Children

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26 (AP)—If junior's nearly four and still doesn't talk, lack of parental understanding and mishandling very likely may be the reason, a study of 16 pre-school-age youngsters at the Cleveland Hearing and Speech Center nursery school has disclosed.

Last year 16 tots averaging 3.9 years old were brought to the Nursery School by worried parents, who thought the children might be feeble-minded.

Within five months 12 of these "abnormal" children achieved normal speech. Today all 16 are talking and playing happily with their neighbor kids.

These youngsters were not abnormal, as their parents believed, but merely speech inhibited, explains Mrs. Marny Bishop Chapin, assistant chief of hearing and speech therapy at the Nursery Center, affiliated with Western Reserve University.

"Gaining the confidence of the parents is often far more difficult than getting Billy or Jane to forget his or her tantrums and join in with the group," Mrs. Chapin said.

If your little boy doesn't speak as soon as you well as the lad next door, don't apologize for him, don't correct every mispronunciation and let the child know you have confidence and pride in him, the nursery teachers say.

The nursery gets the youngsters talking by dividing them into play groups, according to their stages of development rather than age. Two live rabbits have inspired speech for many of the little graduates. Now there are some guinea pigs, too.

When the child overcomes his fear of the friendly pets, his eagerness toward his playmates disappears and he develops aggressiveness and confidence and wants to talk.

Oklahoma Rejects Negro Law Student

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 25 (AP)—Adm. Louis Fisher, 23-year-old Negro woman seeking to enroll in the University of Oklahoma Law School, was denied admission to the school today.

The girl, who asked admission on the basis of a United States Supreme Court decision requiring Oklahoma to give her equal and immediate educational facilities with whites, was told by Dr. J. E. Fellows, dean of admissions, he was not able to take any action on her application made last Monday.

Oklahoma rejects for higher education have set up a law school for negroes at Oklahoma City and enrollment was set for today but at 11 A. M. no negro had appeared.

When Mrs. Fisher was trying to enroll here, a petition was filed in the Supreme Court at Washington asking the high court to order the University of Oklahoma to admit her.

Oklahoma's constitution provides separate schools for whites and negroes.

Deadline Nears For Home Tax Exemption

Those who are filing for the first time are advised to bring deeds to property to the Assessor's office in the Court House, and they will be assisted in making them out.

Tangible and intangible personal property returns should be filled out at the same time that homestead exemption is applied for, said Mr. Doudney, and blanks for this purpose have been mailed to home owners.

Japanese Will Sing In Buddhist Temple

AP Newsfeatures
TOKYO—It never could have happened in the old days, but Yoshiko Sato, popular Japanese soprano, is going to sing the love songs of Bizet's Carmen in an austere Buddhist temple shortly.

It isn't an impulse by a diva giddy from this new freedom in Japan. The Buddhist monks themselves invited her to sing.

The unheard-of event will take place in famous Tokuji Hongan temple, whose sober confines never before have echoed to any thing gayer than the toneless chants of the monks.

The state of Nevada ranks sixth in size with an area of 110,690 square miles.

Wheat Carryover Has Its Effect On Every Housewife

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON—News stories about food shortages abroad and the amount of aid being supplied by this country often quote some authority about the danger of reducing the "wheat carryover" to too low a level.

The phrase "wheat carryover" has a definite meaning to the farmer, the grain merchant, the miller, the food manufacturer and the exporter.

But the city housewife and family breadwinner may feel that it is something that doesn't affect them. If they do, they're wrong.

The wheat carryover might be likened to the amount of money the family lays away out of each year's income for a rainy day. No prudent government will permit its supply of bread-grain to dwindle if it can help it.

Experience has shown that production of wheat and other crops is at best a hazardous thing, beset by fickle weather and attacks of insect pests and plant diseases.

So the government, in sharing this country's wheat supplies with hungry areas abroad must be careful lest it empty wheat bins and leave its consumers at the mercy of a wheat crop failure next year.

The result might well be rigid bread rationing and there's where the city housewife and breadwinner is affected by the carryover or reserve of wheat.

How much wheat should the nation carry over from one crop year to another as insurance against a bread and flour shortage? There is no officially or unofficially set figure.

In the five years before the war the wheat crop averaged about 850,000,000 bushels. At the beginning of each harvest in these years the country had an average carryover of about 250,000,000 bushels.

This average carryover was equivalent to about 34 per cent of the amount of grain used annually for food, livestock feed, seed and industrial uses. In normal times a carryover of this size is generally considered to be adequate.

The carryover reached a record of 630,000,000 bushels in 1942. Normally, a reserve of this size would have been considered a burden upon the economy because of its price-depressing effects, the cost of storage, etc.

But, coming when it did, when the nation was striving to expand food production for the war, this large carryover was put to good use. It long since has been used up.

Since the war ended, carryovers have been reduced to levels considered by officials to be dangerously low. The 60-year-old at the end of the 1946 crop year was down to 83,000,000 bushels—or only about 10 per cent of the nation's annual needs.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has said he does not want it to drop below 100,000,000 bushels this crop year. He would like it to be at least 200,000,000 bushels.

The Government can govern the size of the carryover by reducing or increasing exports. The final figure for this crop year will be determined largely by output for next year's wheat crop. In the spring, if the crop outlook is dark, exports will be reduced so that a larger carryover could be kept than if the crop outlook is favorable.

In normal times farmers do not like to have too large a carryover, because of its price-depressing effects. They can keep it from going too high by resorting to crop control programs.

Telephone Folks really did a job in '47

In spite of the continued scarcity of materials and equipment and in the face of rising costs all along the line, Southern Bell went right ahead in 1947 improving and expanding your telephone service. It was a year of humming activity as telephone folks went all out to bring you better telephone service.

There's still a tremendous job to be done. More buildings and vast quantities of equipment are needed to further improve and expand the service. If telephone earnings are such as will attract the necessary new capital to pay for continued construction, you can look forward to further progress in meeting your telephone needs in '48.

1947 ACHIEVEMENTS

GOD DOES NOT STOP WITH FOOD FOR THE BODY. HE PROVIDES FOOD FOR THE MIND AND SPIRIT, BUT SOME OF US HAVE ONLY PHYSICAL HUNGER. — Pa. 138:25: Who giveth food to all flesh.

We see where American taxpayers are going to be asked to spend $350,000,000 for the purpose of assisting Japan to recover from the ill effects of Pearl Harbor's aftermath. Say, who in the hell won this war anyway??

There may not be as many tourists in Florida this winter as usual, but this weather they've been having in the north lately would lead one to believe there are plenty of people up there who would like to be tourists.

Congratulations to the Orlando Sentinel-Star on the installation of its new presses. Those people who think that the newspaper business doesn't cost anything and that advertising should be given away should be interested to know that this press cost the Sentinel $175,000.

Senator Buck of Delaware plans a bill which will give relief to landlords experiencing hardships under rent controls. We do not ordinarily think of "landlords" ever experiencing hardships of any kind, but when prices go up .100 or 200 percent and rents are frozen by government decree the experience can be pretty tough on any landlord dependent upon rents for his sole means of support. And incidentally, we happen to know of a number of widows too old to work who are in that predicament.

The danger of taking sedatives or sleeping pills is again illustrated by Kay Francis, well-known movie actress who took an overdose the other night and almost died. We who read all the news, even that which is never printed, know something of how often this happens to inconspicuous people. Only the celebrities who are knocked out in this manner ever make the headlines, but thousands of others suffer the same ill effects. No one should ever take sedatives except on a doctor's orders, and then not if he has been drinking.

With virtually the same number of units of vegetables sold at the Sanford Farmers' Market last December as during the December of the year before, the amount of money realized from these sales was 30 percent higher, indicating a substantial rise in prices all along the food line. But even the most optimistic farmer must know that this cannot go on forever. As the old saying goes, "Everything that goes up, comes down." And it is about time for prices to begin to come down. The wise farmer is the one who pays his bills now, saves his money, and prepares for the rainy day.

The American Council Against Conscription deplores the number of military men in our government and insists that they are ruining the country, mentioning particularly General Marshall, Admiral Leahy, General MacArthur, General Clay, and General Marshall's assistant General Carter. This is not an awful lot of military to have in the government after a great war when many of the government's biggest problems concern military occupation and restoration of war-devastated nations. But on the whole we think the record of our military men in government stands up pretty well with some of the professional politicians from civilian life we might mention.

Ragbag Amendment

They believe in doing things thoroughly in California. A constitutional amendment whose sponsors are collecting signatures to put it on the ballot, ostensibly provides for old age pensions. Actually it covers almost every subject on earth.

It proposes to finance the pension plan by legalizing and taxing gambling. It provides for a 2 per cent sales tax. Then it wanders afield to license naturopath practitioners, require candidates in primaries to file in their own party, require gold dredgers to replace the soil, provide various disability and burial benefits, forbid vivisection and pollution of streams.

Presumably the idea is that every cause included has its own ardent followers who will turn to and help put the whole miscellaneous amendment over. In fact just the opposite may happen. More than one state constitution has been beaten because it was voted down as a unit, instead of by separate clauses, and the opponents of some one noxious provision dragged down the whole constitution with it.

This happened once before in California when the indefatigable campaigners for old age pensions a few years ago submitted another ragbag amendment like this one.

Marital Discord
George Gallup has been asking questions again, this time about disagreements between husbands and wives.

A poll covering the country shows that the chief cause of bickering between mates is money. This breaks down into extravagant buying, "keeping up with the Joneses, and money spent on liquor. Near the top come personal habits, bringing up the children, and unpunctuality. Choice of amusements is a common cause of disagreement, and sharing the housework brings about many arguments. Contrary to common belief, relatives are near the bottom of the list as bones of contention.

Robert Louis Stevenson, speaking in one of his early essays about the choice of a marriage partner, says that the ideal person to choose as a companion on life's journey is one "born with the faculty of willing compromise." That word "willing" is important. Too many marriages are wrecked because neither partner will take the trouble to look at the other's viewpoint. At home, as between nations, equality or near-equality of give-and-take is essential for peace.

Favored Log Cabins
Whoever the coming presidential candidates may be, clearly not one will have risen from the city poor. Youthful rural poverty in the Lincoln-Garfield tradition is a vote-getting asset, but urban youth is not.

President Truman and Mr. Wallace come from moderate-sized communities. Senator Taft comes from a large city, Cincinnati, where his family has been well-to-do for at least three generations. Gov. Dewey, born in Owosso, Mich., was district attorney in New York City, but no one would think of him as typifying the humble stock from which Al Smith sprang.

Al Smith, in fact, graduate of the Fulton Fish Market, as he loved to say, is the only candidate ever nominated who had such an origin. His candidacy in 1928 was thought to herald a new political era. His overwhelming defeat showed that the time had not yet come for his type.

The 1948 line-up proves again that 20 years later the time has not yet come. The city equivalent of the log-cabin birthplace is still not a political advantage.

Polio After-Care Places Financial Burden On Group

After-care of polio patients in post-epidemic periods places a growing financial burden on the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and its chapters. Rev. Mark Carpenter, 1948 March of Dimes chairman for Seminole County, disclosed today, citing figures prepared by the National Foundation in support of the organization's annual fund-raising appeal.

Continued care of polio patients can be much more expensive than helping patients during the height of an epidemic, Rev. Carpenter warned. He pointed particularly to the experience of St. Louis, Missouri, and the State of Minnesota, each of which suffered severe epidemics in 1946 followed by a relatively low incidence in 1947.

"These figures," he asserted, "lend weight to the warning by the National Foundation that continued care represents a major part of the cost of infantile paralysis."

In St. Louis and St. Louis County, Missouri, 286 cases were reported from Jan. 1, 1946, to Sept. 23, 1946, by the U. S. Public Health Service. For the same period in 1947, cases totaled only 23. However, reports on expenses by the St. Louis and St. Louis County Chapter of the National Foundation tell a different story.

"During the first nine months of 1946 the amount expended reached $128,051.89, which included a $50,000 advance from National Foundation headquarters. In 1947 during the same period the chapter spent $23,269.90, which included advances amounting to $220,000, despite the sharp decline in the case load."

"Statewide figures from Minnesota bear out this trend—as do other data from former epidemic centers throughout the nation. In the period Jan. 1-Sept. 23, 1946, Minnesota's polio cases were reported at 2,430, against 186 in the like period of 1947. However, advances to chapters and emergency committees in Minnesota from the National Foundation were as follows: January—$15,000; February, 1946, $250,558; same nine months during 1947, $42,335."

Rev. Carpenter pointed out that the same conclusion is indicated by comparing advances in chapters from the Epidemic Aid Reserve Fund in 1947 and 1946.

"Advances for the first nine months of 1947, when 7,287 cases were reported," he said, "totalled $2,038,842, as against $2,205,540 for the same period in 1946, during which more than 18,000 cases had been reported."

Thus we see that infantile

When you take the cold after winter it may be a sign that your resistance is low, or that in your body there is a spot very susceptible to this germ.

Colds are so annoying and take so much needed energy from the body that they should be checked as soon as possible. A doctor's advice and his prescription will put you in a spot very susceptible to this germ.

Have your prescription compounded by a druggist who uses quality drugs that are potent and thus effective.

Beef Production Seen Operating With Efficiency
By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON—Cattle experts say America's beef production "factor" is operating at its greatest efficiency.

These experts of the Department of Agriculture say the number of beef cows and heifer calves—the producer of beef—is at a peak ratio compared with the total of all cattle on farms and ranches.

But beef production isn't meeting the demand because the cattle industry is in a declining cycle of production. This cycle of high and low production has existed for more than 40 years. The present declining cycle will last several years longer if it follows the pattern of those of the past.

R. H. Roberts of the Livestock Branch of the department, says two things primarily govern the marketing of beef:

1. The amount of available feed. If feed is plentiful a farmer may keep more of his cattle at home. If feed is scarce he is forced to market more of them.
2. The demand for beef. Increasing demand causes a farmer to sell his cattle as soon as possible. If the farmer has feed available he will market more than if the price were lower.

Here's how the cycle of marketing has operated:

Starting from a low point in 1912, the number of cattle on farm ranches reached a peak of 74,000,000 animals in 1918—a six-year upswing.

Ten years later there was a 10-year downswing. In 1928 there were 57,322,000 animals. But it took only six years to reach another high. In 1934 there were 74,360,000 animals. Then in four years, the cycle swung down to another low of 65,249,000.

The next upswing lasted seven years. On Jan. 1, 1945, the nation's herds were at the greatest peak in history, 87,572,000 head.

A low was reached again in, and by Jan. 1, 1947, there were 81,050,000 head. Statisticians predicted the total will be between 76,000,000 and 77,000,000 head when the 1948 count is completed.

Roberts says the two peaks that came during the last year of each of the two world wars were created because war builds a big demand for beef.

Cattlemen raised more cattle to meet this demand. Meanwhile prices rose and more cattle were marketed. Thus herds are reduced.

After World War I cattle prices went from an average of $21 a hundredweight to $7 in 12 months during 1920-21.

Roberts says the cattle industry then was on a "beer production" basis.

Between one and three fourths of the herd were steers, male animals good or beef production only. Steers generally have to be sold within two months of birth, and are sold to cattle feeders, who then sell them with grain and sell them to the livestock markets.

After the first world war the cattlemen had to market their steers regardless of lot prices.

Now, says Roberts, the cattle industry is now a "cow and calf" basis.

On Jan. 1, 1945, there were 18,468,000 beef cows in American herds, greatest number in history.

While the total number of cattle declined 4,253,000 from 1945 to 1947, the number of cows remained almost unchanged.

Farmers and ranchers aren't compelled to market these cows and their calves as promptly as they do steers. They may be held several years and used on farms and ranches to increase the size of herds.

"Thus the cattle industry now is more flexible," says Roberts. "The periods between the highs and lows can be shortened and the spread between peaks and valleys reduced."

The marketing of beef cattle last year reached an all-time high of 38,000,000 head.

The experts predict about 38,000,000 head will be slaughtered this year.

Meat production in 1947 was sufficient to provide every American with 70 pounds of beef. In 1948 it is expected 65 pounds will be available. This is less than was available during the war years but more than for any year between 1918 and 1942.

The earliest costs of mull in the days of chivalry were leather coats upon which rings of steel were sewn.

THE NATION TODAY
By JAMES FARLOW

WASHINGTON—Jan. 26 (AP)—This will bring you to date on the Marshall Plan and the arguments about it are making you foggy.

The arguments will go on for months while Congress works on the plan.

The Marshall Plan—put together by thousands of government experts here and abroad—called for this:

1. Sixteen European nations agreed to help themselves and one another try to recover. It would give them the extra help they need.
2. The cost to us? Billions of dollars: in loans, and gifts like food, fertilizer, machinery, fuel.
3. The reason: to help those countries and to stop the spread of Communism in Europe.
4. The Democrats, and most of the top Republicans, seem agreed we'll have to help Europe, with the Marshall Plan or some form of it.
5. Any such plan, and the money to be spent on it, will have to be okayed by Congress.
6. President Truman, backed by Secretary of State Marshall, gave the plan to Congress early this month and asked quick and full approval for it.
7. But the Republicans are boss in Congress. Any plan they approve probably will be a bit different from the Marshall Plan as it stands. They, the Republicans, want to cut income taxes. That means a cut in the amount of money the government can collect and spend. So they'll try to cut help for Europe as much as possible.
8. You've been hearing a lot of arguments about the plan, but the main ones so far center around these three points:
  1. How much do we spend on the help we give Europe?
  2. How long will it take to help Europe?
  3. Who's going to be in charge of the plan approved by Congress?
9. The Marshall Plan calls for giving about $17,000,000,000 dollars over four years, with $4,800,000,000 to be spent in the first 15 months.
10. The Republicans questioned that total of $17,000,000,000. Some of the top ones—included former President Hoover—said that Senator Taft of Ohio—also think that $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months should be cut down.
11. How long for how many years—do we give that help?
12. As noted, the Marshall Plan calls for helping Europe for four years. It's based on long-range planning by us and the Europeans.
13. But a lot of Republicans think we should not get tied by promises of four years of help.
14. A number of them are talking of giving help for only one year at a time.
15. Who's going to be in charge of the plan approved by Congress?
16. The Marshall Plan calls for an administrator who'll handle the plan. It's called the Secretary of State.
17. The reason given: the Marshall Plan, although its purpose is to help Europe, involves this country's foreign policy. And—since the State Department handles our foreign policy, the best way to handle it should be tied in closely with the State Department. Otherwise, the State Department's reasoning goes, we'd have two secretaries of state.
18. But Republicans are talking of making the Marshall Plan boss independent of the Secretary of State or putting the plan under some kind of joint board of Democrats and Republicans.
19. Why are you getting hit with so many arguments about the plan now? This is the reason: Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs—are holding hearings on it.
20. They're listening to prominent men, like Hoover, and the representatives of big organizations who are for or against the plan. Most have been for it, or at least, for giving Europe some help.
21. When the committees finish hearing witnesses they'll decide whether they think the Marshall Plan, or some form of it, should be okayed.
22. Then they'll tell the full House and Senate. Then those two Houses will debate and vote on a plan and the money to be spent on it.
23. All that will take months. Mr. Truman wanted the Marshall Plan okayed and working by April 1. Congress probably will take a lot longer.

TEEN TALK

AP Newsfeatures

Dear Judy,

New York is just one of the cities facing the problem of the out-of-control teenager, who roams the streets looking for excitement. So one city councilman, Samuel Di Falco, decided to grasp the problem by its pigtails and open warfare against some of the kids "who make it bad for the others."

Out of the blue came his resolution, proposed to the City Council, to impose a curfew on all teenagers found unaccompanied in the Broadway theatrical district after 10 P. M. By teenagers, Mr. Di Falco says he means those 16 years of age and younger.

However, Mr. Di Falco wants all teenagers in the country to know that he is not against kids having fun -- what he is doing, he says, "is something they will appreciate when they are grown up and are parents of children who may prove a constant source of concern to them." He adds: "Youngsters have no business roaming the streets after 10 o'clock. They should be home in bed reading and studying for school the next day. If they knew the dangers involved in strolling on a busy thoroughfare like Broadway, or bright-light districts in other cities, they would be glad to accept the advice."

Father of two children aged 9 and 9, Mr. Di Falco says he was aroused to action by unpleasant happenings to unwary youngsters in search of excitement. He says: "In one instance groups of teenagers were found in a room smoking marijuana, and often are induced, with little persuasion, to go to night clubs with strangers. Naturally, says Mr. Di Falco, a kid who has never been to a night club will be a willing victim and accept the invitation."

Mr. Di Falco believes that if parents will take their children in places of amusement occasionally, their curiosity will be appeased. He says every teenager should be taken to a night club by parents, at least once, just to hurdle the problem. . . . but the parents should censor the type of shows the club offers before inviting their offspring to see it. He adds:

"There are plenty of decent shows on Broadway, or on Main Street in other cities and towns, to satisfy youngsters. Kids aren't bad when parents show the right attitude. Some of them just grow up before their mothers and fathers realize it. They want to see what is going on in the world they read so much about."

Mr. Di Falco expects that when his proposal is passed, and he doesn't see "how the City Affairs Committee could object to it," the police department will enforce the curfew by questioning unaccompanied youngsters.

A little fossil 200 million years old may have led Americans to oil deposits which could help swing the scales to victory in case of war.

The world is running short of cheap oil--vital to modern warfare and industry--and the great powers are on a constant hunt for it. Marie Newell, wife of oil hunter Norman Newell, curator at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and professor of geology at Columbia University, she climbed the chilly Peruvian Andes with the expedition headed in search of fossils last summer, superintending supplies, boxed and shipped specimens and now, back at the museum, she is grinding the thin sections of fossils for microscopic study.

The Newells were married 20 years ago when they were students at the University of Kansas and soon afterward embarked on research. Dr. Newell's love was paleontology, the study of animal and plant fossils preserved in the various strata of the earth as its surface cooled and solidified for millions of years.

The fossils help identify the strata which encircle the earth, layer on layer. Each strata is as distinctive as a layer of cake which has chocolate, vanilla and strawberry layers and is generally found in the same relative position to other layers. Thus, when geologists find the "strawberry" geological layer they know (barring earthquakes) they can hope to find the "vanilla" above and the "chocolate" one below, and not the other way around. When they definitely establish the existence of a certain geological layer at a certain place, they have learned something of vital use in digging tunnels, mining building foundations or drilling for oil. (Engineers are able to gauge where they will find hard rock or softer structure.)

Dr. Newell was interested in the Permian layer (formed about 200 million years ago). While he was a university professor, he and his wife dug up Permian fossils in Oklahoma and Russia and, while he was oil consultant to the Peruvian government during World War II, he saw signs which made him think he could find Permian fossils in the Peruvian Andes. Last summer he headed a searching expedition there, assisted by Mrs. Newell. It was financed by the Museum of Natural History, Columbia University and four American oil companies.

The oil companies faced with a possible threat to Arabian oil supplies, sought new fields. Drilling all wells, however, is expensive and careful surveying of rocks must be made in determining favorable regions before a hole is sunk. Even then the financial risk is great. Nobody knows just what produces oil, but it is just what has been found in Permian strata.

So when the Newell expedition discovered Permian fossils it was good news to the oil backers.

However, they have no intention of asking for all the towering Andes. The significance of the Newell's Andean fossil finding to them is this: Millions of years

Ackerman Predicts Shorter Skirts

SAGO LAKE CITY, Jan. 26 (AP) - A forecast that American women will wear narrower skirts reaching to 11 to 14 inches from the floor came today from F. Eugene Ackerman of New York, wool textile consultant, as the National Wool Growers Association opened its convention.

And that was enough to guarantee Ackerman attention from nearly 1,000 ranchers - men who count their sheep by the tens of thousands.

Padded hips and "padded fronts" became part of the "new look," Ackerman said, because American designers fell for French designers' "high pressure." As a result, "new look" styles used a yard to a yard and a half more fabric per garment and created a disproportionate consumption of women's textiles.

This Is Time When Men Begin Their Annual Madness Buying

By HAL BOYLE.
NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—This is the month when an annual madness comes upon men.
This is the month the lady of the house greets me with a sigh of relief each night I come home without a bundle under my arms.
This is the month of January sales in gents' furnishings.
In thousands of men's stores across the land about now the prop. (shop, or proprietor) goes up to his head salesman and says, "Well, Joe, it's time to get ready for the crazy ones."
"What, already again it's time?" groans Joe. He knows what lies ahead.
So he goes into the basement with the stock boys and they begin to haul out merchandise. They bring out pre-civil war shirts and the pearl button shoes popular when people wore "Vote for McKinley" buttons. They fetch up two pairs suits with five-button coats, and the lovely old dust-covered neckties illustrated with daring pictures of the Eiffel Tower.
They pile up this wonderful historical men's wear walt deep on the counters. They put ads in the papers and hang big signs in the windows.
Big annual sale in gents' wear. One-third to one-half off. Bargains, bargains, bargains!
By now the "crazy ones" are milling around outside, eyes popping, hands full of dollar bills, waiting for the door to open. In this town Joe is likely to not turn to the proprietor and sigh: "These look who's out there again—that fat guy who needs his skull reforested."
He means me. Because the only thing that has kept me away from January sales in the last 11 years was the Second World War. When I bulldozed through a milling mob of bargain-hunters to a counter now, the salesman usually just shoves a stack of shirts my size off on the floor and says:
"Go ahead, and select the ones you want, pal. You always end up by knocking them off on the floor anyway. This way I'll only have to stoop over once—when you're through."
And I end up an hour later by staggering out with a Santa Claus size sweater, a pair of rainbow-hued shirts, Tibetan socks with individual toe spaces like gloves, and a dozen neckties resembling the starboard side of a battleship.
Through the years I have learned to hide the goodies into the house unnoted and hide them. If Frances detects them she will return them to the store the next day and get credit toward the purchase of a sensible suit.
This custom began after Frances burrowed into my closet one summer and came out with strange fancy garment with long tails. She held it up with that mute query wives get in their eyes just before the verbal disbandment pours out.
"It's an English style sport shirt I got half price. You poor things, you," she said. "This is a night shirt. You don't wear night shirts."
Now clerks at the stores where men do not refuse to take the price tags of sales lunatics.
"What's the use?" they say. "The stuff'll all be back here tomorrow."
Anyway once a year we guys get the fun of buying it and carrying it home. Women shoppers exercise that delicious shop-audle all year round.

Pointing out that the Florida Airways is a pioneer in its field, he said he would like to see it first certified "feeder line." It has regular scheduled stops and is certified by the federal government and feeds the major air lines of this country. It is operated by Florida people and some of its stockholders live in Sanford.
Through the local office of the Florida Airways, he continued, a person can get in his reservations and begin his flight to any part of the world. Most important to people here, he said, is the fact that anyone can fly to Jacksonville in an hour and 15 minutes in the morning, spend the day, and return home in the evening. Similarly he can fly to almost any other city in Florida.
Speaking of the importance of air mail, he said that if it is worth writing, it is worth a ticket. He explained that air mail as well as air express is an "expedited service" and that whenever planes are grounded mail and express move by the next fastest service.
Roy Foster presided over the meeting in the absence of Gordon Brisson. Visitors included Herbert Sheets of Indianapolis, Ind., A. D. Lampton of Jefferson, Ohio, C. G. Marlin of Lakewood, N. H., H. H. Chamness of Jacksonville, Harold Nabell of Orlando and the Rev. Douglas Charles of Sanford.
Shredded cabbage may be purchased for good advantage since this method of shredding gives it a very crisp texture and it is very easy to digest. The finely cut vegetable should be placed in a heavy skillet in which three tablespoons of fortified margarine or butter to every quart of the vegetable has been added. The shredded cabbage should be cooked in a heavy pan until the heat should be lowered and the vegetable cooked a few minutes.

Red Ambassador Raps Allies' Job In Defeated Japan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin is critical of the job the Allies are doing to prevent a rebirth of militarism in defeated Japan.
The new Russian envoy told a reporter in his first formal interview here that he wants to draw serious attention to the record of the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission in promoting democracy in Japan.
"In this regard the situation cannot be considered as satisfactory," he said.
In addition to his duties as ambassador, Panyushkin also serves as Russian representative on the commission which supervises allied occupation policy toward Japan.
His criticism was interpreted by diplomatic officials as the possible prelude to a full-fledged Russian attack within the commission against the policies carried out by General Douglas MacArthur.
Replying in person to a series of questions submitted in writing by this reporter 24 days earlier, Panyushkin also struck out at what he considers discrimination by the United States government against Soviet-American trade. He said this is something "certain circles in the United States are trying to develop."
"As far as the Soviet is concerned," he asserted, "it has never refused the development of trade with the United States on conditions of normal business practice."

English Pound

214-1 rate, and then the other half at a newly-created free market, currently around 337 francs to the dollar.
This free market also will be open to tourists. France hopes this solution and the benefits of exports will bring her more dollars for purchase of essential goods abroad. The object is to attain French recovery before prices rise too much at home, as they are bound to do.
The Paris stock market as a whole was calm today. French government bonds, gold and free currencies showed declines. Many French industrial and international stocks were higher.
In London Cripps said the Anglo-French differences on currency devaluation would not endanger Western European cooperation, called for last week by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.
"This difference of view," he declared, "will not have any effect whatsoever on our sincere and earnest desire to cooperate with the government of France to the fullest extent in the economic as well as in the political field."
To the average Frenchman it was said in Paris devaluation of the franc brought fear today of another spurt in prices.
The conservative newspaper Le Figaro said:
"Many Frenchmen reason this way. The franc is devalued, therefore prices are going up." The Figaro said that was inaccurate reasoning but added: "It is a state of mind that can cause exactly the consequences it fears."
The Socialist organ, Le Populaire, was uneasy too. It said "all dams raised to hold back the rising tide of prices seem very fragile at the moment."
L'Humanite, the Communist paper, said devaluation "means we will pay twice as much for our purchases from America, which on the other hand will buy twice as much in France."
In Washington "it was said Americans should find more and cheaper French wines, brandy, perfumes and leeks as a result of France's currency devaluation move."
Government trade experts declared that some prices may be down 50 percent or more. But they cautioned against expecting a quick flood of French imports—a popularly held "new look" dresses with Paris labels—because:
1. France's supply of goods which can be shipped to this country is still limited.
2. The French, contrary to popular impression, never did have on a large scale. They sold a lot in France to tourists, but the big export item in that line involved only the style rights to American clothing makers.
France's total exports to this country last year amounted to about $48,000,000, far below prewar and even below 1945.
Among French shipments during the first nine months of 1947, when the total value was $38,000,000, big items included wines $3,200,000; brandy $2,100,000; textile fibers and manufacturers—with fabrics and lace—making up the bulk of this category—$3,600,000. Perfumes and perfume materials accounted for $2,200,000, antiques and art work $1,500,000, and furs—mostly rabbit furs—about $300,000.
Dried beans should be picked over before using, then washed. They may then be soaked overnight in water that is four times the volume of the beans. The water in which the beans are soaked should be used to cook them. When cooked they should be brought to a boil over moderate heat then simmered over lower heat until they are just tender.

Merchants Group

rines as a captain in World War I. Mr. Morrison is a member of the American Legion. He is also vice president of the Sanford Kiwanis Club. His wife, Dorothy M. Morrison, was born in Greenville, S. C., and is a graduate of Furman University and the Curry School of Expression in Boston, Mass. Prior to her marriage she was a teacher at Beattie Tift College. They have two children, Dorothy, now attending Agnes Scott College, and Margaret, who is at Sanford Junior High School.
E. C. (Ned) Smith, retiring president of the Merchants Association, who presided over the meeting, appointed a nominating committee composed of John J. Pope, H. H. Coleman and H. D. Pope. The following directors were nominated by them and unanimously elected: Joe Saunders, I. C. Batten, George Austin, W. V. Blitting, A. Wilkins, W. A. Morrison, Ed Willink, Jack Hall, B. L. Perkins, Jr., Dick Estaberry, R. T. Hunt, Dorothy Powell, W. E. Kelder, Al Lyons, Rev. Douglas Charles, E. C. Smith and C. L. Redding.
The secretary, C. L. Redding, read the minutes of the last meeting and reported on activities of the Association during the past six months.
Opposition to a state sales tax was voiced by Dallas L. Hostetter, secretary of the Florida State Retailers Association, who delivered the principal speech of the evening and who was introduced by A. C. Stine, program chairman. Mr. Hostetter said that the sales tax was narrowly defeated in the last session of the legislature, largely through the efforts of the Retailers Association and predicted that it would be an issue in the present gubernatorial campaign and would be fought out again in the legislative session next year.
Mr. Hostetter bases his opposition to the sales tax on experience gained in ten years of living in a state where a sales tax was in force, and on studies made during the past 18 months while secretary of the Retailers Association, which he explained was organized two years ago. The association deals with many problems concerning the local merchant, he said, including consumer education, labor relations, and legislation.
Declaring that the tax spenders are always on the march, Mr. Hostetter said he was convinced that Florida needs no new taxes at all, that there are many places where increased efficiencies and economies could be effected, and that there are also many sources of revenue which could be tapped without resorting to a sales tax which he said falls heaviest on the people who can least afford to pay.
"Let us not forget," he said "that half of Florida's families have less than $1,800 a year, before paying taxes, to spend, and that 75 percent of our families live on less than $340 per month. How much discretionary purchasing power, if any, do these families have after they meet their fixed expenses for food, clothing and shelter?"
Mr. Hostetter also said that "Passage of a sales tax measure would by no means provide and to any problem. It would merely add one more tax to the many under which we now struggle. Don't let anyone tell you that it would replace for long any present, existing tax. It is not the history of taxes that this additional drain would relieve us of any other taxes."
There was considerable discussion of changing laws for merchants with business returns made on the Wednesday half holiday. No decision was reached and the matter was referred to the board of directors.
At the suggestion of Mr. Stine high as $1.50 per dozen for fancy and special grades. Gladioli shipped on consignment have returned as much as $2.50 per dozen. The Florida Gladioli Association's representatives have set up their assembly packing house on our platform.

Shipments are moving from Fort Myers to all parts of the country, and Market Manager Nohrling reports "Business in picking up." Cold and rainy weather have combined to damage, and retard vegetable production in the Fort Myers section however, as in other affected areas. Light offerings of good quality tomatoes are bringing top prices but movement has been about completed, and poorer quality offerings have found little demand. Pepper offerings have been light, partly it seems because growers believe their fields as clean as possible just preceding the recent cold threat. Combination grade pepper sold up to $6.50 per bushel at this last week. Eggplant offerings have been light, with prices up to $5.95.
"The Florida City State Farmers' Market has handled a light volume of tomatoes during the past week—4,500 field boxes in one three-day period—with a price average of $5.57. Peak price of the week was $6, ranging down to a low of $1. Market Manager C. E. Phillips of the Florida City State Farmers' Market reported fair quality squash selling from $5.50 to $6 and light offerings of beans at $4 to $5.
"Manager J. L. Warren of the Pompano State Farmers' Market, in a week-end report noted that damage from the recent cold in that area "... was a lot greater than we first thought." His latest information indicates damage to beans and squash at least 75 per cent, cucumbers 80 to 90 per cent, lima beans 75 to 80 per cent, peppers 40 to 50 per cent loss of bloom and young fruit. Most bean and squash acreage will be replanted by next Friday, though farmers now face an apparent shortage of bean seed.
"Strawberry offerings on the Plant City State Farmers' Market during the last weekly report period were one-third below the preceding 6-day period, due to cold and rain. Market Manager J. C. Johnson has reported offerings totaled 44,784 plants, with daily price averages ranging from 30% cents to 33% cents per plant. Growers received a total revenue of $14,484.78 during this report period.
"The Fort Pierce section, where the tomato harvest was at its seasonal peak when the cold weather of January 16 struck, experienced an additional setback from heavy rainfall, this midweek. This delayed salvaging of tomatoes left after the cold. Light offerings of tomatoes handled during this week brought prices ranging from $1 to $2. Manager E. W. Williams of the Fort Pierce State Farmers' Market reported that the week end that the cold damage to mid-winter tomatoes has approached 80 per cent, and 90 to 95 per cent of spring tomato plantings that were up and growing, were killed or damaged so severely as to require replanting. Hope was held that seed in the ground would come through undamaged.
"The Fort Pierce Market had handled 1,200 crates of lima beans during the last week."

Will Some Colored Race Replace Caucasian In Evolution Process?

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—A question whether evolution will give world dominance to some colored race to replace the Caucasians may exterminate themselves is raised by R. Reggid Gates, emeritus professor of botany in the University of London, in a new book, "Human Ancestry."
The volume is the first complete history of man's evolution, comprising all the discoveries made since Darwin set up the doctrine of evolution. Gates is a research fellow in biology at Harvard.
The book offers evidence for a new idea about human origin. Man has been considered a single species coming from one origin. Instead, Prof. Gates' evidence shows several different species of man from different origins. He traces three or four.
Not true also, he says, on the face of the present records, is a widespread scientific dictum that different species can not, or do not, cross-breed. He says these human species did cross-breed.
The human species are, he says, were as different as lions and tigers, or as gorillas and orangutans, and evolved into three or four distinct groups.
He finds three main species of man originating from a half million to a million years ago. One is Sinanthropus, or Peking man. From him the fossil bones records the present Australian Bushman and the American Indians, both North and South American and possibly the Eskimos.
Second, in Java, was Pithecanthropus, from whom came the Australoid peoples. They developed into many races, including the present Australian Bushman and possibly the Pacific Ocean Melaneans and Polynesians.
Third, in South Africa, was Africanthropus. From this species came a big-brained race of men, that divided. One offshoot appears to be the African negro, who adapted to tropical climate. Heitlenis and Bushman of Africa seem to be present descendants. Their brains are not so large.
Another possible descendant was Cro-Magnon man who originated in the Sahara when that desert was fertile and rich in animals.
Cro-Magnon migrated to Europe and came into conflict with Neanderthal man, and possibly wiped out that race after it had flourished for about 100,000 years.
There was a fourth species, Dawn Man, of southern England. This human had a smoother skull than Sinanthropus and Pithecanthropus which had heavy ledges of bone across the front and the rear.
Cro-Magnon and Neanderthal men had brains as large as present humans. Prof. Gates says ancient man could make little use of his brain capacity due to the conditions under which he lived.
Probably he says no increase in the size of human brains could take place without some reason.

ducer of rain for parched California farmers, which in the rich San Joaquin valley have gone rainless 86 days.
Southern California received its first—just a trace—precipitation since Dec. 23 and the Weather Bureau forecast scattered showers.
In Northern California the forecast is for continued dry through Tuesday. But the storm near the Aleutians may bring rain to the west, the Weather Bureau said.
Rain which has been forming in the Pacific, it explained, has been carried north and east, resulting in a drought which in some parts of the state is the worst in 70 years.
The San Joaquin valley fears a major crop loss if the dry weather continues.
Lock of heavy snowfall in the Sierra Nevada watersheds also points to a shortage of irrigation water next summer.

At 1:45 A. M. the Fire Department answered a call to Cameron City where the private garage of R. V. Buehler, burned to the ground. The cause is unknown. An automobile, a washing machine and canned goods were in the fire. The same garage was caught on fire about three years ago, said Chief Cleveland, and the Naval Air Station fire department answered the call.
Seminole County makes no provision for fire protection, said Chief Cleveland today, and he advised that outlying residents keep fire extinguishers or pails of water handy in readiness for fires.

ported that the ingredient found in corn cobs can be converted into a type of sugar and subsequently fermented into liquid fuel.
Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has asked Congress for authority to utilize a war-plant at Muscatine, Iowa, for commercial-scale experiments in using agricultural products for fuel.
Krug said the Bureau of Mines oil shale pilot plant at Rifle, Colo., has been producing about 50 barrels of crude shale oil a day since last May. Cost records indicate, he said, shale oil could be produced on a commercial scale at about $2 to $2.20 a barrel.
The quality, he said, would not compare favorably with natural petroleum now selling at those prices but would be "easily competitive" in the recent trend toward price increases.
It was voted to hold a barbecue for the merchants and their families at some time in the near future.
Mr. Smith as the retiring president, thanked the directors and the merchants for their cooperation throughout the past year. He thanked the directors and the members of the association for their support of the new year. He also thanked the committee charge of last night's meeting which consisted of George Austin, chairman and George Touhy, Al Wilson and E. I. Hoy.

Other Republican leaders agreed that Knutson's schedule is what to look for. They said the bill will pass the House with only two or three Republican votes against it from the Democratic side. But they said they do not expect the measure to get the two to one margin which would be necessary to pass it over President Truman's disapproval. Mr. Truman has left little doubt he will veto the bill if it reaches him in its present form.
After House action, the measure will be in the Senate where it may be revised.

Stassen, too, came out for a "prompt extension of rent control."
The former Minnesota governor, launching a week-long tour of New England for support of his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, told the former business and professional men:
"If these major measures are coupled with economy in civilian activities of government, with only a small cut in taxes and the resulting monetary productivity of the country, the natural buyer resistance will bring us through this critical period successfully without the tragic mistake of adopting overall centralized controls to the economy."

months of a proposed four-year aid plan.
Bridges said Mr. Truman in his budget for the 12 months starting July 1 had asked $6,800,000,000, but had cited planned expenditures totaling $4,000,000,000 for foreign aid.
The Senator said that in addition the President has asked for a supplementary foreign aid expenditure of $600,000,000 before July 1.
If that $6,000,000,000 and the $500,000,000 are added, the total subtracted from the $6,800,000,000, Bridges said, "a discrepancy" of $2,300,000,000 remains.
"Where is that $2,300,000,000 evaporating to?" Bridges asked.
Then Senate Foreign Relations Committee, continuing its hearings on the program, heard five witnesses.
1. Roy W. Gifford, Detroit industrialist, and H. J. Hains II, president of the Heinz Food Company, endorsed it. Gifford, president of a council of top-flight American production men is created to help modernize Europe's industries as part of the plan.
2. James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, and Arthur Schuler, New York representative of the American Labor Party, recommended it. Said he handled through the United Nations. Schuler said the A.I.P. supports Henry Wallace's idea on aids. He called the Marshall Plan a "blueprint for atomic war."
3. Clark M. Eichelberger, director of the American Association for the United Nations, said the program should be passed quickly. He said success for "stability for the nations of Europe, and the United Nations must derive its strength from stable members."
Gifford suggested that a council of top-flight American production men be created to help modernize Europe's industries as part of the European Recovery Plan.
Gifford, chairman of the board of Borg-Warner International Corporation, told the Committee that the "greatest service" that could be rendered the world would be to European nations "to encourage them to industrialize and modernize their plants and methods and processes."

Eccles Ousted As Chairman Of Bank Group

President To Appoint Thomas B. McCabe As Head Of Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—President Truman today shook up the leadership of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, demoting Chairman Marriner S. Eccles and disclosing his decision to name Thomas Bayard McCabe of Philadelphia to the post. An exchange of correspondence released by the White House, showed that Eccles was ousted by the board as vice-chairman. Mr. Truman wrote Eccles that he had decided to appoint a new member to the board and to designate the new member as chairman as soon as the Senate confirms the nomination. McCabe, now chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank at Philadelphia, was nominated to the board yesterday to fill the board vacancy created by the death of Ronald Ransom. The letter to Eccles from the President which was not dated, said: "As I explained to you last week, it is my preference to appoint a new member of the board to fill the vacancy by the death of Vice-Chairman Ransom, and, when confirmed by the Senate, to designate him as chairman."

High School's Safety Driving Course Is Launched At Mayfair

Seminole High School's new course in safety driving under the instruction of C. F. Kettles was officially launched last evening at a dinner given at the Mayfair Inn by the Holler Motor Sales Company for 40 pupils taking the course, and their parents, and attended by officials of the Chevrolet Division of Jacksonville, American Automobile Association, school officials and representatives of law enforcement agencies. Dinner music was provided by the Kenny Kay Orchestra of DeLand. Principal Herman E. Morris, amid much applause, was presented by "Bill" Holler with the keys to the brand new, cream-colored Chevrolet automobile which was "unveiled" at the east end of the ballroom, and which is provided with dual controls for the easy instruction of pupils. Alvin Odham represented the local Holler Sales Company in the presentation. Loaned by the Chevrolet branch of General Motors Corporation as part of the nationwide campaign in cooperation with the AAA to lessen the appalling accident and death rate on the nation's highways by proper instruction of young drivers in high school, the car may be kept either for six months, or until it has been driven 8,000 miles, after which another car will be provided for the next term. Supt. T. W. Lawton, in outlining the purpose of the driving course, stressed the need of practical experience in driving by pupils, also the importance of having respect for the rights of other people. By respecting the rights of other drivers, very few accidents would occur, he pointed out, and emphasized the need of teaching people to have a calm mind, rather than a frantic attitude when behind the steering wheel. He also stressed the need of learning all rules of the road. Principal Morris, who read a telegram from Mayor Robert A. Williams commending the school for starting its new course in safety driving. Benson Barker, branch manager of the AAA, in Orlando, congratulated the City of Sanford on its adoption of the course in driving, and pointed out that more than 10 years ago the AAA had started the movement after

200 Million Asked From Austria To Satisfy Russians

Soviets Claim That Amount Of German Assets In 2 Years Act Jeopardizes Monetary Program Of Premier Schuman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—State Department officials predicted today an early meeting of Big Four representatives to consider the Soviet proposal for an Austrian peace settlement. A statement setting out the Soviet program was reported yesterday by the department from representatives of the Deputy Foreign Ministers' Council in London. Officials began an immediate study of the formula, evidently in hope that it may clear the way to end Austria's occupation and restore the country's independence. LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—A Soviet embassy spokesman said today Russia has asked Austria to pay $200,000,000 in two years as full settlement of Soviet claims to former German assets. He said this was part of an eight-point plan for resolving the four-power deadlock over the Austrian peace treaty. Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin asked for an early meeting of deputy foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France to debate the Russian plan. The proposal was based on views of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, as expressed to the Big Four Foreign Ministers last fall. British sources said they expected a meeting in London.

Proposed Ban On Oil Exports Hit By Foster

Administration Official Opposes Plan Because Of Needs In Foreign Nations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The Administration objected today to a ban on all oil exports, proposed because of the fuel shortage in this country. Undersecretary of Commerce William C. Foster told the House Commerce Committee "in our opinion it would be a very dangerous thing at this time." He conceded that there is an oil shortage in the United States, but argued: 1. The United States imports more oil than it exports and a ban on exports might "adversely affect" imports. 2. This country has "a moral responsibility" to countries depending on it for oil shipments. "To stop could mean complete collapse in these countries." The House committee recommended yesterday that Congress legislate for that purpose was introduced in the Senate and a Senate committee suggested that the states fix new low speed driving limits, similar to the 35-mile-an-hour wartime limitation, to save gasoline. Foster presented statistics on petroleum exports which showed that during the fourth quarter of 1947 the department permitted exports of 12,200,000 barrels. He said this was slightly more than half of what foreign governments said were their minimum essential needs. He said that for the first quarter of 1948 the export quota is 11,850,000 barrels, which compares with 17,000,000 barrels exported in the first quarter of 1947. Foster said the shortage of heating oils in the east was aggravated for a time by exports to Canada, upon which there are no controls. But he said the petroleum industry of Canada would be able to meet its needs to reduce imports of heating oils from the United States to 50 percent or less of the monthly average of imports during the first quarter of 1947. He said that this voluntary limitation would be extended through next April 30.

House Group Votes To Cut Taxes 6 Billions

Hiliter Promised Japanese Third Of World To Launch U. S. Attack

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 9 in a straight party split today for the Republican $6,000,000,000 tax-slashing measure. That sends the bill to the House where a vote is expected next Monday. The House expects to take the measure up Thursday. After it acts, the bill will go to the Senate. Republican leaders forecast the House will pass the bill "as is" but say the Senate may reduce the amount. Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) of the Ways and Means Committee is sponsor of the legislation. The measure would end income taxes for 7,000,000 low-income persons among the 52,000,000 Americans who pay income taxes and would cut the taxes on 30 percent for smaller tax payers to 10 percent for those in the highest brackets.
