Favors Organized Labor

Editor Herald: Some question has arisen as to my attitude toward organized labor. Being a man who is almost entirely dispossessed, I am unable to see how this idea became afloat, and to show my attitude toward organized labor, I attach hereto a copy of a letter written me by Hon. J. C. Brown, United States Marshal, Southern District of Florida.

Department of Justice, Office of United States Marshal Southern District of Florida, Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 2, 1913. Mr. T. K. Bates, Sanford, Fla.: Dear Sir—Kindly advise me whether or not you could accept appointment as Deputy United States Marshal at salary of $1,000 per annum. Residence in Jacksonville. Yours very truly, J. C. BROWN, United States Marshal, Southern District of Florida.

This opportunity came to me unsolicited and I presume as a reward for the interest I took in assisting Mr. Brown to secure the above appointment which is the only position of any importance that has ever been given a wearer of overalls in Florida. I wrote one hundred and eighty six letters to men of prominence, city councils, boards of trade and boards of county commissioners in the Southern District of Florida in the interest of Mr. Brown, securing many valuable indorsements, and besides I was largely responsible for securing endorsements for Mr. Brown from the Governor's Cabinet. In addition to this I wrote many newspaper articles in behalf of Mr. Brown's candidacy and the fact that Mr. Brown secured the position in the face of the very strongest opposition shows that my work in behalf of organized labor must have contained some potency and virility; and that I am not the capitalistic foe of the man who is making an effort to better his own condition and that of his wife and family by allying himself with a trade organization.

Yours very truly, THOMAS K. BATES, Assessor of Taxes. (adv.) 78-4tc

TRICE'S TRUMPETER (Articles Published under this Heading furnished by M. P. A. Bureau, Jacksonville)

The responsibility of citizenship which we will be called upon to exercise at the polls within a few days should not weigh too lightly upon men. Governmental questions of momentous importance are always involved in general elections, and in this state a primary election to all intents and purposes is equivalent to a general election. Officials are to be chosen upon whose unwavering wisdom and unyielding integrity the prosperity and happiness of the commonwealth is involved, and into whose hands, therefore, the tranquility of the people for a time is entrusted. Hence it follows that the franchise is a privilege that should be exercised with the greatest caution and only after the most serious study of resultant conditions to follow. He who undertakes this study by reading or hearing only one side of the questions involved, is apt to become narrow and prejudiced, and equally as unfit to help shape the destinies of his country as the fellow who accepts his patriotic impulses second hand from the cross roads or street corner politician.

For the privilege we now enjoy, nearly a century and a half ago, our forefathers dyed the Atlantic Seaboard a deep crimson with martyr blood, and dotted the forest thence to the Mississippi with the bleaching bones of those immortal heroes who followed Washington. The justice of their acts has been attested by the blessings of Providence, and their wisdom vouchsafed by the unparalleled stability of our government. The rise and fall of constitutional government in name only has filled to a crowded condition the cemetery of nations, but the government of Washington goes on forever. In the firmament of world achievement it is the Star of Hope to which the eyes of oppressed humanity are turned. Therefore, the responsibility is great, and in the manner of its discharge we would give our very best thought.

Bi-ennially, just preceding our primaries, certain sections of our state are infested with all sorts of clap-trap for the guidance of voters. In most cases the agitators are from other states, and their main object is the corraling of the dimes, quarters and dollars of the people. To do this they have learned the Barnum idea of fooling and humbugging the people. Barnum declared the secret of his great financial success was the glory in being humbugged. So others are emulating him, and this is the harvest season with them. It therefore becomes necessary for the people to be alertly watchful for the snares set for them as well as very careful of the brand of political economy teachings they give up their good money for.

One gentleman who abrogates to himself a divine right to think and act for all the people of his community, wrote me last week that people who entertain the views I express in some of my writings ought to be "tarred and feathered and placed in the national museum as a relic of bygone days." I wrote the fellow I hoped he felt better. And I certainly do. There ought to be some enjoyment coming to him in this life. He may not have time for enjoyment in the next. In the long research of an ordinary lifetime I find no record, in modern or ancient literature, or but one individuality who is utterly devoid of toleration. We know him by various names, but more generally as the controlling head of the infernal regions. In this one particular at least my correspondent is rapidly likening himself unto his preceptor.

But I started out to tell you of the advisability of doing some thinking for yourself. Reformers have been with us almost since the beginning of time. They have been so persistent and so arrogant the people found it easier to yield than to contend, hence it became fashionable to give them anything they asked—including the lion's share—of the weekly stipend. But the millennium seems to be receding from the view instead of dawning, as they promised it would. The fault, therefore, must be in the system, and when a system conclusively proves its failure it is time to discard it and return to the moorings of the tranquil days. The moral is, think, Mr. Voter—think! think! and then think some more. When any one tells you a thing analyze it, dissect it, and find out if it is sound doctrine, then act as your judgment dictates. That is statesmanship. Blind following is paganism, the rotting core at the heart of civilization. (adv.)

THE COUNTRY PRESS

IT IS BEING PLACED UPON A SOLID AND INDEPENDENT FOUNDATION

WAUCHULA ADVOCATE

The organizing of the South Florida Press Association is a movement to place the country newspapers on a higher and better plane. The country newspaper is probably hit harder by the "high cost of living" than any other institution.

Not only has the price of labor, printing material and paper soared skyward, but there has been a wonderful evolution in the country printing office in the past ten years.

In the good old days with the Washington press and the patent inside, the average equipment of a country printing office cost from five hundred to a thousand dollars, and carried a payroll of from nothing to twenty-five dollars per week; today the average equipment of a country office represents an investment of from three to fifteen thousand dollars, and a payroll of from twenty-five to two hundred and fifty dollars per week.

The great change the country press has undergone in the last decade means much to the public.

Instead of a miserably printed four page paper filled with a conglomeration of patent medicine ads, the people are receiving well printed eight, ten, twelve and sixteen page papers.

If the old time country paper was worth one dollar per year the modern country paper is worth five times that much.

But what is of more importance to the public is that the cost of the modern country newspaper is rapidly doing away with the "organ."

In the olden days when a Washington press and an apron full of type constituted the equipment of a country shop and eight or ten dollars a week the pay roll, every little faction, clique or ring could have its "organ."

In those days the initial cost and the cost of upkeep of a country shop was so little that the shrewd politician or leader of a clique or ring could easily raise the cost of a shop and his pull would get enough business to meet the small running expenses, and thus it was a simple matter to maintain an "organ" to twist and distort the news and do the bidding of unscrupulous owners. Some of the big corporations still maintain metropolitan papers, but it is becoming more and more impractical for politicians, ringsters and cliques to maintain country papers.

The successful country newspaper of today is the one that has sufficient legitimate business to maintain it.

The organization of the South Florida Press Association is for the purpose of developing legitimate business methods that the country editor may become more and more independent of politicians, corporations, rings and cliques.

In short, the editors of South Florida are not organizing or combining to hold up the people, but rather to throw off many abuses that have stifled the business and to get on a firmer basis to serve the people.

A half starved editor, worrying over petty bills and wondering where his next payroll is coming from, is in no position to independently serve the people, and any improvement in the business methods will mean a better service to the people; the throwing off the yoke of politicians and corporations and serving the whole people, the ones to whom the service rightly belongs.

MAN SAYS HE CAN TELL WOMAN'S CHARACTER BY IT.

Just as Well, if One Has Propensities She Wishes to Conceal, to Get a Few Pointers From This Article.

The man who sat nearest the window and said he didn't mind the wet weather.

"It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such firm faith in my umbrella deductions that I wouldn't be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

The woman on his left smiled. "I'm glad I'm not out there in the street," she said. "You'd be picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man, "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry your umbrella, when it's furled, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go forging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pedestrians who go before and follow after."

"And what does that signify?" she asked.

"Alertness, activity, selfishness, and inconsiderateness."

"U-m-m, thank you," said the woman.

"But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about her house. I dare say they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of seven. I never yet saw a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could track her by the trail of its tip who was not dilatory and shiftless."

"That other woman who is hustling along, holding to the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the tip down and forward in a kind of south-by-southwesterly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I am not sure that I'd want to be married to her, either. She'd be too energetic. She'd push everything before her, and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have nowhere to lay his head. What she is good for is serving on committees."

"That woman in the gray skirt is a yes-and-no sort of person. She wants to agree with everybody and follows wherever led. Women who carry their umbrellas with the point downward and backward are always unassertive."

"But just look at that girl who spins along, swinging her umbrella around in a circle as if it were a magic wand. I like her. She's jolly and good-natured and gets more pleasure out of life than ten ordinary people.

"But here," he added, "comes the most even tempered woman of the lot. She cuddles her umbrella protectively under her arm as if she doesn't want even it to get hurt in the crowd. That woman is thoughtful and kind."

Coal in Montana.
The presence of coal in the tertiary lake beds of verdant valleys in western Montana has been known locally for many years. Some of these localities have experienced short coal booms, most of which, however, died before the mineral was developed. At the present time, however, systematic mining is being carried on near Missoula.

Coal of the type found in this region has, until recently, been thought worthless, because only such fuel as would coke or stand shipment without slacking was considered of commercial value. In this part of the West where high grade coal is scarce, where the cost of wood has reached $5 or more a cord, and soft coal, imported for domestic use sells for about $3 a ton, the demand for cheaper fuel is great and the development of these heretofore unused low grade coals is becoming profitable.—Coal Age.

Planting Trees by Machinery.
A tree-planting tool has been designed by which the hole is dug, the little tree inserted, and the earth packed around the roots in one operation. The implement consists of a bar with a cross-arm at the top and three blades of spring steel at the bottom somewhat on the principle of the post digger, and having a lever near the lower end. The lever is pressed with the foot, the tree inserted, and the tool is then thrust forcibly into the ground.

A lever at the top of the handle is then twisted to open the blades, and the implement is screwed around in the hole until the soil is pulverized. The planter is then withdrawn, leaving the cultivated earth packed around the roots of the plant. Experiments have shown that one man with this tool can plant 50 small trees in 35 minutes.

Clerical Humor.
Laughter savors life and wit will endure long after many of the old priestly functions have fallen into desuetude; manners and ideas alter, but the basis of humor remains the same. Today Rabelais conceivably could have written the "Ingoldsby Legends," and in the fifteenth century Barham might have been the author of "The Inestimable Life of the Great Gargantua." Today a young cleric, preaching his first sermon, has the naive wit to take for his text, "What hath this blabber to say?"

CAN A YOUNG MAN LOVE TWO GIRLS SIMULTANEOUSLY?

The brilliant black eyes
May in triumph let fly
All its darts without caring who feels 'em;
But the soft eyes of blue
Though it scatter wounds, till
Is much better pleased when it heals 'em.

So much is said about a man's best girl that we cannot help wondering how many girls he is supposed to have. Does each awaken similar sentiments in his breast or is his liking carefully graded? It must be conceded that he pays each one a certain amount of attention or one-fame or the other would die out for lack of sparking. If he is an athletic young fellow, fond of out-of-door sports, he has one girl for the golf links or one who doesn't balk at a five-mile walk on a blustery afternoon. He has his automobile girl, who doesn't quiver an eyelash no matter how near he reaches the danger mark in dashing along. She's the girl, too, he takes toboggan riding and to the races. But she isn't the girl he takes to the theater, or to the restaurant afterward, ordering wine for her exultation over the sensation she creates when she dances the tango with him the length of the spacious dining room. Then there's the pretty stenographer in his uncle's office. She is the girl he presents with books because she refuses bouquets. He waits for her on stormy evenings to take her to a car, and it is she of whom he takes advice on matters relating to her sex—whether a fellow was justified in refusing an invitation to some affair which he did not care to attend, although he half suspected it was arranged for his benefit. He considers the advisability of breaking with two or three of his pleasant companions ere they become sweethearts.

But it is so difficult that he fears he is equally in love with each and every one of them. When his dear old mother asks him to bring his best girl around for some little home gathering, he does a lot of thinking. The dear old soul would not understand the girl who doted on golf, but detested breadmaking and home duties. Nor would the girl mad over tango and cocktails appeal to her.

COMMUNITY HYGIENE

EVERY MAN REALLY HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Every man is his brother's keeper. He can't help it any more than the neighbors can, much as they might like to. He can't evade the responsibility of such relationship unless he lives in the wilderness and never comes into contact with his fellow man. It is a law of society as fixed as any other enacted by the Almighty.

His conduct, good or evil, or careless, must affect others accordingly. Individual responsibility to society cannot be escaped, whether it be in morals or in physical affairs. The criminal lowers the moral tone of the community, disgraces it and exerts a degrading influence. The man who lives in dirty surroundings invites disease and thereby endangers the health and possibly the lives of his neighbors.

The conclusion is inevitable that it is the duty of every man to keep himself and his premises clean and healthful, not only for his own sake but for that of those who by force of circumstances must associate with him.

Community cleanliness, community sanitation, is just as much a duty that every man owes his neighbors as to be decent morally, for physical illness has a strange intimate connection with moral degeneracy.

It is a fact that in the past and to a large degree in the present, law strictly enforced is essential to secure municipal sanitation. This is due partly to ignorance, partly to perversity and indifference. Some otherwise good citizens will persist in allowing their dogs to run at large unmuzzled, and they make a fearful fuss when the police interfere for the actual safety of the community. They howl louder than their worthless curs when anyone presumes to enforce the idea that the rights of society are superior to their own selfishness.

Some of the ablest scientists in the world have demonstrated that typhoid fever is a germ disease, transmitted by flies, yet it requires the services of the police to compel the screening of earth closets. The same investigators have proven the transmission of yellow fever, of malaria and other diseases by mosquitoes; they have pointed out the methods of prevention, yet the pleas and protests of sanitarians and health boards are disregarded by the vast majority of Floridians.

The opening decades of the Twentieth Century have been marked by splendid organization and magnificent effort for the moral uplift of those who need uplifting. There has been a practical recognition of the fact that morals cannot be permanently improved while physical conditions remain unimproved—that the hungry man in ragged clothes is not likely to be or to become a devout Christian. There has been a recognition of the great fact of human brotherhood, but there has been a corresponding organized effort toward increasing the knowledge of proper sanitation or to arouse a sentiment for better healthfulness through cleanliness among the same classes that need the uplift.

Good health is the basis of good morals. You can't deny or dodge that fact, and the great moral uplift of the world won't come so long as you work on any other hypothesis.

It is a plain, hard fact that Florida will not get into its full stride toward its greatest prosperity, until the individual citizen, no matter how exalted or humble, shall realize his personal responsibility in lowering the sick rate through voluntary, and not legally enforced sanitation, through conscientious and intelligent effort to avoid disease; in other words, by doing everything in his power to raise the standard of community hygiene. Anything less than this is not in accord with the highest type of citizenship.

FLETCHER & COMMITTEES

The Senior Senator Has Nothing of Importance
Senator Fletcher in his speech here Monday night emphasized the fact that he held so many committee appointments that it would be a great loss to Florida if he was retired from office.

There are seventy-three standing committees in the senate and every Senator is approximately on the same number of committees. One of the most important committees that Fletcher has served on since he has been in the Senate was, as he told the people himself, the committee on privileges and elections, of which Joe Bailey was ranking Democrat, until his withdrawal from public life after the exposure of his connection with the oil interests.

It is a significant fact that Senator Fletcher is now the only Democrat in the state who was on that committee who voted for Lorimer's retention. It is also of importance that John W. Kern of Indiana, although he took his seat in the Senate two years later than Senator Fletcher, was made chairman of this important committee by a majority leader on the floor of the Senate. Kern came into prominence in the Senate during the investigation of the Lorimer case. He disagreed with Senator Fletcher with regard to Lorimer's corrupt election, although he had not only read the evidence, but, like Fletcher, also saw and hears the witnesses testify. Kern was sustained by his fellow Democrats, while Fletcher's name does not even appear on this committee now that the Democrats are in power! Senator Fletcher's defense of Lorimer is a reflection on the intelligence and integrity of the Senate that expelled him.

Senator Fletcher says that the committee on banking and currency is going to be enlarged to give him a place in order to handle his rural credits bill. The Times-Union quotes him as on that committee. The latest Congressional directory does not include his name in the committee list. Hollis has introduced a new rural credits bill, which means that Senator Fletcher's bill is shelved. With Hollis on the committee handling his bill, what reason would there be to put Senator Fletcher on it to handle a bill that has been superseded?

The chairmanship of the printing committee may be of importance to Senator Fletcher now, but it is of no particular importance to the people of the United States or of Florida. The chairman of this committee may be excused for his trip to Florida to defend his record but unless there is much to do on the printing committee, the presence of the government's chief clerk, Cuthbert, in Florida working in the interest of Senator Fletcher's candidacy is inexcusable. It is a mere routine committee. It initiates no policy and has no vital connection with the people's interests. It is a business institution and does not figure in legislation.

In Washington a half a dozen committees are recognized as very important, such as appropriations, finance, banking and currency, interstate commerce, naval affairs, and postoffices and post roads. Senator Fletcher is on none of these committees, according to Congressional directory corrected to May 11, 1914. Senators Hollis of New Hampshire; Hughes of New Jersey; J. Ham Lewis of Illinois, and Ollie James of Kentucky, all Democrats, although they only took their seats last year, have already as many or more committee appointments than Senator Fletcher. William S. West, who took his seat March 2nd, 1914, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of A. O. Bacon of Georgia is now on the following formidable list of committees: Expenditures in the Postoffice Department, corporations organized in the District of Columbia, industrial expositions, military affairs, Pacific railroads, private land claims, and railroads. And he is a Senator who was appointed and has held office for the past three months.

Tillman in his letter to Wilson printed in his speech before the Senate on March 15th, 1913, says about committees: "I am senior Democrat on three important committees and can select the chairmanship of either one of them; appropriations, interstate commerce, and naval affairs. I want you to tell me frankly on which of these committees you think I can best serve your administration and the country?" Martin and Tillman hold the chairmanships of appropriations and naval affairs respectively, they are the senior ranking Democrats in the Senate. Senator Fletcher is not on either of these committees. Bryan, though two years his junior, is on both. Though seniority may be the general rule, we see that it has exceptions. Fletcher, Kern and Lea are the only Democrats in the Senate now who were on the Senate committees on elections and privileges of the Sixty-second Congress.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

Neglected wounds produce old sores and these in time develop ulcers which eat away the vitality.

Ballard's Snow Liniment

Is a Healing Remedy for All Ailments of the Flesh of Man and Beast.

The speed with which this splendid liniment heals up a bad wound or sore has surprised and pleased those who were accustomed to the slower and uncertain effect of less powerful remedies. It mends the lacerated flesh so quickly that there is but little time lost from work. In relieving rheumatic pains, neuralgia, sciatica, it has done and is doing a wonderful work. Many chronic victims of these diseases have found to their great satisfaction that it cures an attack in a fraction of the time required by the ordinary treatment.

It is equally effective in the flesh ailments of animals. Owners of blooded stock value it highly for two reasons: It heals sores and wounds quickly, and leaves no disfiguring scars. This remedy is needed in every home. If its great power and efficacy was generally known, no family would be without it.

"Generally run down, sir?" queried the druggist; "slightly seedy and want a good toning up?"

"The pale-faced customer nodded.

"Well, I've the very thing for you, Jenkins' Juvicator Three doses a day and more if necessary. Fifty a bottle."

"No, thanks," said the pale patient.

"But, my dear sir, it's the rage of the day. Jenkins' Juvicator is the greatest discovery of modern medicine. It's the rage of the season. Every one is rejuvenating, you might say."

"Yes, but I think I'd rather try something else," replied the customer.

"Nonsense," pressed the druggist. "I tell you Jenkins' Juvicator will have more effect on you in a single day than any other medicine could have in a month. It cures everything from coughs to corns. What is your objection to it?"

"Why, nothing, only I'm Jenkins."

Something in Store for Willie.

"Yes," said Bigsley to his visitor, "I'm going to get a motor this spring, but I haven't quite made up my mind as to the make. So many of them are unreliable. It's no use getting a cheap article. I fancy I'll get a nice little thing for a matter of nine hundred pounds, you know. At all events, I'll not go over the thou."

During the sensation which this evidence of wealth excited, one of the ladies, turning to Bigsley, Jr., and eight, remarked, "I say, Willie, your papa's going to buy a motor car for you to ride in."

"Oh, that'll be jolly," returned the hopeful. "I say, pa, will the funny-looking man come for the money every week, same as he did last year when you got the bicycle?"

Then motor talk suddenly stopped, and Bigsley, Jr., read in the parental eye that there was something warm waiting for him in the sweet by-and-by.—London Tit-Bits.

SUMMER ADVERTISING The most valuable asset in advertising is age. It is something which cannot be rushed or hunched. It has no overnight competition. The new advertiser can't date back. Advertising cannot take a vacation without a loss. The cumulated values of previous months or years immediately begin to shrink or evaporate. It will invariably cost more to make good the shrinkage than to omit the vacation.

CARELESS WRITER, WARNING The Ocala Star, whose editor is a practical printer, as well as one of the best posted men in the state, gives notice of the following rule in reference to "scribbled" manuscript, which rule will hereafter be also more rigidly enforced in the Sun office.

SCHOOL GIRL WINNER Kansas Girl Writes Best Essay on Good Roads In a contest in which nearly five thousand children all over the United States engaged, two girls and a boy, all aged 14, have been awarded prizes by Logan Waller Page, Director of the U. ORGANIZED LABOR In an address last Friday night William Shelley, the well known engineer of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, which the keynote for an advance movement of organized labor when he stated that the way for the union man to get results is for each and every one of them to vote for the men who would do something for organized labor after he was elected. He also stated that the day of strikes was over and past—that nothing could ever be gained by strikes and violence but that arbitration and the ballot box were the weapons for organized labor in the United States in the future. Mr. Shelley is absolutely right and the editor of The Herald endorses his views. There is absolutely nothing for the laboring man to do in this day and age except to stand up for his rights on the day of election and put the best man in office and the best man is always the man who stands for the common people as against the trusts and corporations. Arbitration and the making of laws for the benefit of the laboring man will accomplish more in the years to come than all the strikes that could be pulled off, for after the strike is over the laboring man is worse off both in points gained and in pocket book. The way to block the trusts and money power of this country is by the ballot and by your ballot today you will either perpetrate the power of the corporations or place a man in the U. S. Senate who will be found fighting for you and your interests at all times.

BENEFITS OF THRIFT I have often been asked to define the true secret of success. It is thrift in all its phases, and principally thrift as applied to savings. A young man may have many friends, but he will find none so steadfast, so constant so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather covered book with the name of a bank upon its cover the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy, in fact it brings to him the better part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.—Sir Thomas Lipton.

How to succeed, how to get on in the world—that is the problem that millions of earnest men and women are striving to solve, each in his own way, but all, consciously or unconsciously, observing the same general principles. There is nothing in such an effort at variance with the highest moral standards. In fact the zealous pursuit of such an object has a beneficial reflex action upon the character, as it has upon the physical and mental nature.

Mr. W. W. Fry will continue to act as superintendent and under their able management the plants here will be kept up to the same high standard.

Primary Law Tested The first election under the new state primary law will be held throughout Florida today. It is the intention of the law that all political parties shall nominate their candidates at the state primary, but this year only the Democratic candidates qualified. Under the new system voters vote for first and second choice, thus insuring a nomination in the first primary and making unnecessary a second primary, as was the case under the old system. Candidates are to be nominated Tuesday for United States senator, Congressmen from each of the four districts, Commissioners of Agriculture, two Justices of the Supreme Court, Director Page in order to arouse interest among school children in the subject of improving the public roads of the United States. Mr. Page believed that if such a contest were started the children would ask questions of their parents, and an impetus would be given to the road improvement. Thousands of children in all parts of the country participated in the contest. Many of the essays submitted bore evidence of having been prepared with the assistance of parents of school teachers and these were eliminated. The ablest engineers in the U. S. Office of Public Roads acted as a board in passing on the essays and in making the decisions.

216-GAME SCHEDULE The Pacific league, has started its season. There's some ball league. It cut in on March 31, and doesn't quit until October 25—sometimes later, and its schedule includes about two hundred and sixteen games. Many an athlete goes joyously to the coast, lured by the climate and a guaranty of salary as large as that he got at home. He gets it, too, for the coast magnate's word is as good as gold—but how that old boy does work for his shekels! When he discovers that he has to go a route of 216 games for the coin he made in 154 games back East, he emits a roar like a peevish lion, but it's all too late. Incidentally, the theory of many major league leaders, that a man will go stale and lose his pepper if he plays beyond the usual schedule, gets something of a knock in California. Many and many a star of the coast league is called to the fast company, and if the 216-game stunt ever spoiled any of them for their work the following season it has never been recorded.

Russell Ford. hander was looked upon as a star of the first order, but since then he has failed to live up to his reputation. He has really had but one good year in the American league and on that his fame rests. Chance was not any too well pleased with the showing made by Ford last year and there was a strong possibility that the one-time star was to suffer a cut in salary in 1914.

Bench Managers Scarce. Bench managers will be at a premium in the Southern Michigan league this season, the advent of Topsy Hartel and Ed Smith to the league's managerial forces increasing the number of playing leaders in the circuit. Hartel will hold down a regular berth in the Toledo outfield, while Smith will take his turn in the box for his South Bend club. Both have a number of years of good baseball yet allotted them, although veterans in point of service. Other playing managers in the league this season are McKernan, Battle Creek; Holmes, Saginaw; Jenkins, Bay City; Warner, Kalamazoo; and Cristall, Adrian; Meyers, of Jackson, Burke of Flint and Morrissey of Lansing will pilot their clubs from the bench.

First Election Under the New Bryan Primary Law

Returns Show That Fletcher, McRae, Sears, Clarke and Wilson Were Elected in the State

The County Officials Show Good Form, But There Were a Few Surprises in the Average

Another election is over and one that excited considerable interest on account of the fact that it was not only the first one under the new Bryan primary law but was also the first election held in Seminole county for county officials. From early morning till the closing of the polls at six thirty and from then until early morning—the morning after—the excitement was intense. The country precincts came in early over the telephone but not being official in many instances could only be used by the various candidates in augmenting their votes in connection with the slow trickling in of the two city precincts. No. 1 precinct having the lightest vote started counting early, and gave the result several hours before No. 3 where there were 451 votes polled. The various candidates worked like Trojans all day long and the hot rays of the sun did not lessen their ardor. The candidates and their friends were on the job at all hours and until the polls closed stayed right at the polling places. Along about nine o'clock in the evening some of the candidates were noticed to climb into automobiles or stroll off toward home, either feeling good and satisfied, or sore but satisfied with the result. At that time some of the candidates succeeded but it was only on Wednesday afternoon about 6:30 that the real result in Seminole county was actually known, for at that time the official canvassing board had gone over the returns from every precinct in the county and made up the official returns. The general result was known but the official count as given in today's Herald will make most interesting reading and demonstrates more than anything else the old saying that you can never tell about an election until the votes are counted. The total number of votes cast in Seminole county's first election was 875. In the two precincts of Sanford city there were 626 votes polled which is probably the full voting strength of the city and county although there were some voters that were unable to cast their ballot on account of illness or absence from the county. George G. Herring, candidate for County Judge has the distinction of leading the ticket by the sum total of 553 votes, which is a compliment to any man. Second to him is S. C. Dickson of the County School Board and the third high man is L. P. Hagan, candidate for County Commissioner in District No. 2. In view of the fact that all of these candidates had opposition their large vote is a source of extreme satisfaction to them and their friends.

The election of Tuesday demonstrates that in some particulars the Bryan primary law is all right and if it can be amended to suit the exigencies of several occasions that have arisen it will probably be used hereafter. The only serious objections to the law as used here Tuesday was that the counting of the ballots may have taken more time than usual and the tabulated returns were more tiresome to the clerks but this may have been due to the new law being unfamiliar and many of these things will be straightened out in time. The canvassing board yesterday worked under difficulties on account of the serious illness of Supervisor DuBose but the method of canvassing under the new law is all that could be desired, although the first and second choice votes take up considerable time of the clerks.

Since the readers of The Herald by this time know the names of the lucky candidates there is no need to repeat their names in this issue but the tabulated report will give all the necessary information and should be preserved along with the other bits of history of the new county.

By One Vote

Jacksonville, June 5.—Senator Duncan U. Fletcher carried Duval county, including the city of Jacksonville, by one vote, according to completed returns received last night just before midnight, the official tabulated figures being, Fletcher 3,006, Stockton 3,005.
