Remembrance service planned

A Candlelight Service of Remembrance will be held at Oaklawn Park Cemetery and Funeral Home, 600 County Road 46A, Lake Mary, on Sunday, Dec. 19, from 7-8:30 p.m. in honor of loved ones who have died.

Refreshments and fellowship following the service. Please RSVP with Carol, 322-4263.

The program, sponsored by Baldwin-Fairchid Cemeteries and Funeral Home, is free and open to the public.

Ethics board clears Harling

SANFORD - Politically-active Orlando engineer Hugh Harling was cleared Thursday on a 1990 complaint brought against him by Seminole County commisssioner Larry Furlong. The Florida Commission on Ethics ruled Harling had no conflicts when he voted in 1987 on land use changes for two properties owned by future clients, said commission spokesman Helen

The commission agreed with a hearing officer's finding that Harling was unaware of the Clayton family interest in the property when he yoted in favor of changing the use of the southeast Seminole County land as a member of he South Central Citizens Advisory and Policy Steering Committee. Harling was subsequently retained by the Claytons.

Deputy receives award

SANFORD - Seminole County deputy Karen Mills was selected Friday to receive the Dianna Turner Memorial Award, presented by the Central Florida Association of Women Police for 1993's outstanding female law enforcement officer. A deputy since 1986, Mills has served as an agent with the City County Investigative Bureau for four years. In an undercover role, Mills recently traveled to a foreign country to infiltrate a major drug trafficking operation and take delivery of more than nine kilograms of cocaine, a $200,000 deal. The sting involved the cooperation of the U.S. State Department. federal Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs Service and a foreign government.

The award is named for an Orlando police sergeant killed in an auto accident while on her way to work.

Christmas in Olde Longwood

Return to the Victorian heydays of old Longwood when the city's historic district celebrates Christmas in Olde Longwood.

The annual event will take place Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 6, 7 and 8, beginning at 7 p.m.

The evening will begin with a ceremony of lessons and carols at Christ Episcopal Church, 151 W. Church Avenue, Following that, dinner will be served at the Bradlee-McIntyre House.

Dinner is $16 per person and will be a full meal of turkey, ham and all the trimmings, plus dessert.

Tickets for the dinner are available at the Enchanted Cottage, 228 W. Warren; the Culinary Cottage, 141 W. Church Avenue and at the Apple Basket, 219 W. Church Avenue. The event at the church is free.

NEWS DIGEST Third mall in county?

Oviedo may join Altamonte, Sanford as regional center

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

OVIEDO - Seminole County may be poised for a third mall smaller than Seminole Towne Center but nearly the size of Altamonte Mall.

Oviedo Crossings, west of Oviedo city limits, is being viewed as the latest potential site of a new regional shopping center. A spokesman for land owner A. Duda and Sons confirmed a Maryland mall developer has expressed interest in the 500-acre office park west of Seminole County Expressway.

A Target discount store is already under construction at Oviedo Crossings. Developers Vierra Co. have plans to announce two restaurants and a medical center for the development.

For now, Oviedo and Vierra officials won't confirm specifics of a rumored mall proposal said to be a 1 million square-foot center on 80 acres. The project is even said to have a name, "Oviedo

Attorneys rank local judges

'Satisfactory to good'

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Attorneys who practice criminal law in Seminole County courts ranked local judges in the satisfactory to good range during a recent poll.

The three circuit court judges presiding in criminal cases, Judges Alan Dickey, Vernon Mize, Jr. and O.H. Eaton, Jr. all received a "good" rating in the poll. Circuit Court Judge Leonard Wood who presides in juvenile cases was inadvertently not included in the poll.

County Court Judge Marlene Alva was ranked in the "good" category while county judges Frederick Hitt. John Sloop and Donald Marblestone got "satisfactory" rankings

The attorneys were asked to rank each judge in the seven categories on a scale from 1 (very poor) to 5 (excellent). The number under the individual category ranking is the number of attorney responses for the category. For example, 62 attorneys commented on Judge Alan Dickey in the legal category, 60 for Judge O.H. Eaton, Jr. and 55 for Judge Vernon Mize, Jr.

Response to poll

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole County court judge who received some of the most biting comments in a recent attorneys' poll attributed them to some of the less experienced defense attorneys "venting."

Seminole County Court Judge John Sloop said he always is interested in polls because the attorneys sometimes offer constructive criticism of a judge's performance.

Some of the attorneys commented the judge has a pro-state blas and should not be on the bench. The judge has also begun to strictly enforce the payment of fines and court costs. If the money is not paid by the date the defendants agree to See Response, Page 5A

Evolution of Baptist church and congregation

Some of you Sunday only subscribers may not realize the Herald publishes a "Way Back When" photo usually every Monday. Couple weeks ago we featured a picture of an old church building on the northeast corner of Ninth and Laurel. It produced an avalanche of

The sign on the front of the building read "Sanford Gospel Tabernacle." It did house that congregation at one time. It might have been the home of another denomination's church before it became a mission of the First Baptist Church of Sanford. Later the mission evolved into the Southside (now Central) Baptist Church, the city's largest Baptist congregation.

First Baptist of Sanford has "mothered" five churches in the Sanford area. They are Central, Elder Springs Victory, Pinecrest and Ravenna Park.

Our principal callers were first Mrs. E.R. "Dick" Bogart, nee Grace Marie Dugger. She, her sister, Mary Ellen Peacock of Orlando, and her brother Joe Duggar of Sanford, were the three children of Atlantic Coast Line conductor Nathaniel J Duggar and his wife, Thelma. The Duggars resided at 1010 Myrtle Avenue where the Bogarts now live. The second informative call ' came from Jack Benton Jr. whose family resides at 1807 Adams.

We learned the original congregation to occupy the building may have resulted from a tent revival held on the southwest corner of Ninth and Laurel where the Southern Bell bullding now stands.

Then a congregation became the Sanford Gospel Tabernacle. it might have housed another group before it became the home of a mission of First Baptist and later the Southside Baptist Church which subsequently became known as Central

When we ran the photo of the building we said the church did not have a floor. That was confirmed by young Benton, son of the late Jack Benton Sr., who sold Fords for years upon years for the local dealership. Young Benton at one time had to go to the church building on Saturdays and rake the sawdust floor and then dust the benches used for pews. When a youngster, young Benton recalls one Saturday he decided to dust the benches first and then rake the sawdust. The following Sunday morning he had quite a time convincing his mother he'd cleaned the benches because they were covered with dust. Young Jack had reversed his usual order and the dust was generated by raking the sawdust. He was trying, he said. to eliminate footprints.

Subsequently the Duggars doinated to the church the southcast quadrant of a city block at 14th and Oak. There the church constructed a building (with a Moor, by the way) to handle Sunday school and worship services. The church changed its name from Southside to Central. In 1964 the congregation ac-quired the northeast quadrant of the same block at 13th and Oak and built a single purpose sanctuary for worship.

Central Baptist also acquired a couple residences on the eastern half of the block. One was the Avenue and the other was the Minarik home on the corner of 14th and Park! The latter served a number of years as the pareonage

Joe Duggar is the bushand of Jeller the former Margaret Hunt. The two own and operate Duggars General Store at Second and Sanford. It was once operated by Margaret's dad and known as Hunt's Feed and Seed. Mrs. Bogart's husband Dick has been with Gold Cup Coffee Serice out of Orlando for upteen years. Once a route man, he now works out of the firm's home location in Orlando. This old boy leaves Sanford every morning at 5 o'clock and goes to work.

Next, Central Baptist got title to property on the northwest corner of 13th and Oak. It was donated to the congregation by Ollis G. Owen, one of the members. Ollis' brothers, Jack and Blanton, were also members of Central. They owned and operated a Volkswagen dealership on U.S. 17-92 just south of "Death Valley."

"Death Valley" is that stretch of U.S. Hwy. 17-92 between Five Points and Shephard Road.

Even we've got a question about the photo we ran. Maybe one of you can help. If you still have a copy look closely at the sixth person pictured in the front row from the left. He has an accordian. Know who he is? If you do, call us.

Back to Central, most everybody knows the congregation bought acreage on the southside of SR 48W between the S.O. Chase Jr. overpass at Rands Siding and Interstate 4. An edifice has been built there with both adequate recreation and education facilities plus a large sanctuary. The church has come a long way.

Like they say, a picture is worth a thousand words. We recently ran a "Way Back When" photo in a Monday edi-tion that prompted a letter from old timer Bob Daehn. It was a picture taken in 1808 of the southwest corner of First and Park where the First National Bank had just constructed its new building. In the photo was shown what we called a trolley. Bob wrote:

"As a transplanted Yankee I should not comment on your "Way Back When" picture. But I couldn't resist." We're glad he did, by the way).

"The streetear pictured was not a trolley. It was not electric and did not have an overhead trolley. It was a self-propelled rail car. It had a gasoline engine. And it wasn't 'plural' - there was just one car. Why don't you find out where it is and offer it to the museum?"

To our friend, Bob: If Alicia Clark, curator of the General Sanford Library and Museum could have found that streetcar it would be in Fort Mellon Park right now. By the way, folks, we've known Dachn for a long. long time. He ought to know that a small town kid like us (we're a youngster compared to him) wouldn't know the difference between a streetcar, a trolley, or a tram. But regardless of his age town. No. we're just kidding, Robert. Really, He's a "treasure" to this town.

Sanford appreciates Bob Dachn and we appreciate his Remember in all our writings about Katie Spurling we once mentioned that Matilda Nelson, mother of Ernest, Edward and Miss Annie Nelson, lived across the street from the old M.M. Smith home on the southeast corner of Eighth and Elm?

We also told you we learned Mrs. Nelson was somewhat of a nurse and midwife.

We heard from Mrs. Jean Manning McLain of 708 South Elm in Sanford. Seems she knew Matilda. Said she was a little old lady with white hair done up in a ball on top of her head.

Mrs. McLain, in case you didn't know (and we didn't), is the mother of Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain.

Have a nice Sunday! We'll be back, God willing, next week.

Lickteig said Rouse has developed a total of 47 million square feet of properties at 80 sites throughout the country. In Florida, the company has developed Bayside, an upscale mall in downtown Miami; Jacksonville Landing: Kendall Mall and Tampa Bay Center.

One mail developer is skeptical about the prospects of a regional mall near Oviedo. Tom Schnelder, property development director for Melvin Simon and Associates of Indianapolis. said he didn't see Oviedo as a site for a mall of the calibre of Simon's Seminole Towne Center in Sanford, a 1.5 million square foot center.

"We looked at that area and passed on it," said Senelder. We passed on it and chose the Sanford site because of its location and position next to the interstate and short drive distance from DeLand to say, State Road 434, and Lake County to this side of Lake Jesup."

Oviedo officials and businessmen are hopeful a mall is developed inside city limits. That's probably why he's a officials have had several prelimmember of every civic club in inary discussions with Duda representatives about annexing Towne Center property after

ST. PAUL, Minn. - The first thing the police officer saw when he stepped into the townhouse the night of July 21 was Debra Jackson, a young woman in a bloodstained Garfield-the-cat nightshirt, rushing downstairs. There was blood on her feet, blood on the entryway floor beneath the glass officers had broken to unlock the front door. Jackson's neck and wrist were cut. When the officer asked her what had happened, she stared at him.

So he walked upstairs.

There was blood on each step of the stairway, a trail of blood down the hallway and continuing into each room. Jackson's children, 5-year-old Shanae Jackson and 2-year-old Jason Mann Jr:, were in the master bedroom, swaddled in bedsheets, covered in blood. They had been stabbed to death hours or perhaps days before.

On a hallway wall between two bedrooms was scrawled, "I love my child."

Five weeks later, in a St. Paul courtroom, Judge Lawrence Cohen dropped his glasses down the bridge of his nose and looked at Jackson as she stood mutely before him. Her arms were folded over her chest; her braided hair hung askew.

County shines new light on Midway

Once again, Seminole County is taking a step to rejuvenate Midway. This time, responding to residents, the county is paying to install street lights throughout the community. Residents will pick up the tab beginning next year at a modest annual cost.

Street lighting can improve a community three ways, two obvious, and one not so apparent. Lighting first enhances street safety for mothrists and pedestrians. Second lights deter crime by removing the darkness which comforts burglars and drug dealers, but few others. Have you ever turned the light on in the kitchen late at night and seen a bug scurry? Midway's pests will soon crawl for cover.

But third, as Sheriff Don Eslinger aptly observes, street lights also enhance the sense of pride law-abiding citizens have in their community. Residents are no longer afraid to walk down the street, uncertain of the shadows. Lights illuminate maintained homes and landscaping and promote, the cleanup of the not-so-well-kept. Midway has examples of both.

Many Midway residents often criticize the county for its spending priorities, but it has responded to the call of the citizens by initiating improvements to drainage, streets and the water system. Decrepit homes are removed and replaced with new houses. Many of these improvements are financed with federal and state grants and not local taxes, true, but they are being done and the county deserves a hand for shining a new light on Midway.

Impact of state Legislature decisions

Floridians were well aware of the fact that our state Legislature convened from Nov. 1, 1993 through Nov. 10, 1993 to consider salient issues. Representative Marvin Couch from the 33rd legislative district discussed what had transpired in Tallahassee.

Agenda items for the session were: Reinvesting Defense Dollars, Home Insurance, Workman's Compensation and Juvenile Justice.

Defense cutbacks impact will be felt in Florida as in other states. McDonnell Douglas in Melbourne is one of two plants in the country that produce Tomahawk missiles. There is a government contract that will be awarded to one of the manufacturers. The Arizona Legislature, where the other plant is located, met and voted a tax break for the company in its state. In order to make McDonnell Douglas more competitive a $5,000 tax credit for each employer was given until April 4, 1994.

The aftermath of Hurricane Andrew forced the state Legislature to place a moratorium on insurance companies. This was to prevent their mass exodus from the state. The moratorium was expiring. This necessitated action being taken. A Florida Hurricane Catastrophe Trust Fund was created. The trust fund will be the responsibility of the State Board of Administration. The insurance companies will pool their monies by paying into this fund.

The Workman's Compensation bill reduced rates by 25 percent and is the best in the nation.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

Essentially, savings will be realized through a managed health care system. Instead of an injured person physician shopping, he/she will go to one designated doctor. This doctor will decide what medical procedures are appropriate.

Representative Couch is a member of the Criminal Justice Committee. They had been given a criminal justice bill to consider five minutes before the session convened. Nevertheless, the committee met for about four hours and the focus was on juvenile crime. There are only 1,200 beds statewide for juvenile offenders, therefore, generally there is no place to send youth committing crimes. They are placed on a waiting list. Couch proposed the following: youth apprehended carrying a firearm would have their license revoked and complete 50 hours of community service: if the juvenile is using the firearm to commit a felony, he would be prosecuted as an adult; if a youth was arrested three times for possession of a firearm, he would be treated as an adult. Parental responsibility was also an aspect of Couch's proposal. A parent who knowingly and willingly allows a youth to carry a firearm will be required to attend parenting classes; after the first such incident, the parent would be required to engage in community service. The proposed bill would also permit the judge to decide whether a youth was a clear and present danger to himself and society. If the judge decided affirmatively the youth could be held up to 21 days or until trial whichever came first.

The chairman of the committee, Rep. Elvin Martinez, fought against Couch's proposals and they did not come out of committee. However, on the floor, Rep. Couch had the opportunty to bring his amendment on "Direct File." When the Legislature reconvened the next day Rep. Couch had 30 co-sponsors and his amendment passed unanimously. The next step in the legislative process was for the state senate and state representatives to merge their two bills in conference committee. The final outcome of the bill was that after four felonics with a weapon a juvenile can be prosecuted as an adult. The parental responsibility and the judge's decision-making option relative to "clear and present danger" survived. For additional information you may contact Rep. Marvin Couch, P.O. Box 2027, Oviedo, FL 32765.

Date changes election dynamic

LOS ANGELES — While no one outside of professional politics was paying much attention, the California legislature voted to conduct an experiment in the 1996 primary season.

Instead of California holding the last of the primaries, it will have one of the first. This might be the most significant change in presidential primary politics in the past 40 years, and could well have a major effect on who receives the GOP nomination in 1996 and both Democratic and GOP nominations in the future.

California is the biggest state in the union, but because it has always held its presidential primary near the very end of the primary cycle. California voters have had virtually no say in who has been nominated by either party.

The last time California Democrats played a pivotal role in a presidential primary selection was in 1972, when they the deciding votes for Sen. George McGovern over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. It has been even longer for the California GOP; all the way back to 1964 when Republicans here put Barry Goldwater over the top in his nip-and-tuck battle with Nelson Rockefeller.

In 1996 the California primary will be moved from the first Tuesday in June to March 26. Using the 1992 primary calendar as a guide, this would mean that the California contest will be six weeks after New Hampshire, two weeks after Super Tuesday, one week after Illinois and Michigan, and two weeks before New York.

The significance of the move, especially to Democrats generally, and to the GOP in 1996, cannot be overstated.

The last three Democratic nominees have been Jimmy Carter, Michael Dukakis and Bill Clinton. What the three share in common is that they were governors without a great deal of name recognition or campaign funding when they started their quests for the Democratic nomination. But each followed what has become the Democratic norm for winning the nomination.

The two first Democratic contests — the New Hampshire primary and the Iowa caucuses — have been the key.

For a candidate with little money and low name recognition — in other words a governor from a state like Georgia or Arkansas! — it is possible, almost literally, to personally meet every Democratic voter in New Hampshire if a candidate spends enough days there. Both Carter and Clinton d!d this. [Dukakia was a neighbor from Massachusetts with high name recognition aiready.)

recognition aiready.) In Iowa, with its unique caucus system, a candidate can win by signing up the right activists. Get enough committed, put together the right volunteer organization, and you win without spending much money.

So, in past years, the winners have come out of New Hampshire and Iowa with enough "bounce" to start raising the kind of money necessary for the rest of the campaign. New Hampshire and Iowa gave candidates the ability to generate low cost momentum. But all that will change.

California is the nation's largest and most expensive state in which to campaign. Can didates will have to start early and already have millions in the bank to make media buys from San Diego to San Francisco. Not only will the candidate need millions of dollars on hand, but he or she must also have reasonably high name recognition — or else millions more to develop that name recognition in the year before the primary.

The guessing is that it will become difficult. If not impossible, for the relatively unknown candidate to win the candidate to win the nomination. From now on the likely nominees will be established, national political figures.

Already GOP insiders are saying that the earlier primary gives a big boost to a Jack Kemp, who is well known to California Republicans and who will likely have money in the bank by late 1995 to spend millions in there. Favorite son, Gov. Pete Wilson, also should have a leg up if he can win re-election next year.

The earlier primary will probably help the Democratic nominee overall. Without doubt, after California, New York, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania, the Democratic nominee will be known. This means that the Democrats will have from April on to patch up their differences and unite behind the nominee. This could make for much more peaceful Democratic Conventions in the future. The 1996 March primary ballot will also contain other contests that are usually on the June ballot, including both congressional races and propositions.

This will be a major change. The new law calls for a one-time-only change. But if successful, few doubt the move to March will not become permanent.

JOSEPH SPEAR
It's time for a

It's time for a multiparty system

Prepare to gat thy words, all you Washington bashers who claim nothing good ever happens in the capital of the nation.

An idea has just been born here that makes such astounding good sense that it ought to be adopted forthwith. Actually, I'm not sure if it's an idea or just a rumor, but here it is: Jesse Jackson and Ralph Nader are reportedly considering the creation of a "fourth party" to challenge Democrats, Republicans and Perotistas for the reins of power. This was first reported by the New York Post, whose sources said Jackson would be residentia candidate and Nader the veep running mate. There must be some truth in it. because right after the big North Amerian Free-Trade Agreement vote in mid-November, this pairwaxed apoplectic.

Said Jackson:
President Clinton
leads the Reagan
Bush Limbaugh
lacocca Kissinger Rostenkowski major publishers Wall Street Republicans victory team."

Said Nader: "Clinton turned on the Americans who elected him "the bedrock Democratic constituencies of working American families "and threw his lot in with (Rep. Newt) Gingrich Republicanism and the big business lobbies of General Motors."

People who talk like that must be running for something.

I do not raise this incident merely to examine the prospects for 1996, however. I bring it up to point out there is the germ of a truly sensational idea here. Why don't we restore common sense and moderation to the Democratic and Republican parties by purging them of all the gadfles, eccentrics, fools and assorted kooks who now populate them?

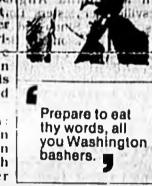

and assorted kooks who now populate them?
Thanks to Jackson-Nader, we now have a mechanism: Third, fourth, fifth parties. How would we get the oddballs to defect to them? I suspect it would work like Ray Kinsella's field of dreams: If we build them, they will come, or go, whatever.

Let's start with the Yesteryear Party. This would be the Jackson-Nader group, the knee-jerk liberals and special interests who have turned the Democratic Party into a ragtag confederation of perennial losers. They live in the past, when many believed our resources were limitless and we could spend our way out of any dilemma. If the moolah was not immediately available, hell, no problem, just tax the rich or borrow it.

Labor's legions would be a big part of this party. They would be easy to lure away from Democratic ranks. given their fury over Clinton's support for NAFTA and his denunciation of union bosses for their "roughshod, muscle-bound tactics" against NAFTA advocates.

William H. Bywater, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, was furious. "I tell any Democrat (favoring NAFTA), I am not going to support any of them, period," he told a Washington Post reporter. "That is it. I will try to get a candidate to run against them in the primary." AFL-ClO president Lane Kirkland accused Clinton of "clearly abdicating his role" as leader of the Democratic Party. His Secretary-Treasurer, Thomas Donahue, said there is "always the possibility" that labor could back third-party candidates.

See what I mean? These people are ripe for secession. If the Democrats had any sense, they would give them a shove. They would also give an elbow to House Majority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., who was brazen in his opposition to NAFTA, and Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., who was only a little less so.

Response^{*}

they are falled. "I had a couple of thoughts on this thing." Judge Sloop said. "When I went through all of the numerical responses then all these comments. It just seems like the written comments of a couple of these criminal defense attorneys aren't supported by the numerical responses."

"The other one is, I'm trying to put justice back in the eriminal justice system." Judge Sloop said. "And I'm not surprised that this would offend some of the less experienced defense attorneys. With all polls, I do pay close attention to them because, if the attorneys respond honestly, it's the only real opportunity to get feedback. I do try to respond to their observations, the valid ones. There are always some who are upset at the moment.'

Out of a potential 350 reponses, you get three or four negative comments, that's not so bad. he added.

The judge also noted the natural tendency is to compare how the judges mied against the other judges.

"I don't think that's the tenor in which they rate these folks." Judge Sloop said. "I think, they try to look at each judge individually. But of course the natural tendency is to try to compare what everybody else is doing."

The three circuit court judges who comprise the criminal division in Seminole County, Judges Alan Dickey, O.H. Eaton, Jr. and Vernon Mize. Jr. scored well in the poll. Judge Leonard Wood, who presides in juvenile cases, was inadvertently omitted from

Judge Dickey received the highest overall average score

(4.47) of all the judges in the three county poll, except two. Only two U.S. District Court Judges in the Middle District of Orlando, David A. Baker and Anne Conway received higher overall average scores than Dickey. Baker received 4.64 and Conway 4.62 overall averages. Judge Mize scored 4.44 and Judge Eaton 4.17.

"I look forward to the judicial polls," Judge Dickey said. "because they give me good feedback and helps me be a better Judge."

"The Central Florida Criminal Defense Attorneys Association poll is valuable because it includes a broader base of participants than the Seminole County Bar Association poll." Judge Eaton said. "Many of the attorneys who work for the state attorney and public defender are not members of the Seminole County Bar Association. That is also true of most of the defense attorneys because their offices are in Orlando.'

"I am pleased that all three of the criminal division Judges received "A" ratings. We have all worked hard during the last two years to improve our operations and I think the poll reflects that effort," Judge Eaton said. "I'm pleased from my stand-point where I rated," Judge Mize commented. "I hope everybody who did it, answered the poll objectively. I feel that it gives the Judges an opportunity from the comments to evaluate their situation and see if they can improve themselves in areas where it's needed."

County court Judge Donald Marblestone was out of the office at the end of the week and was not available for comment.

County court Judges Marlene Alva and Frederick Hitt did not comment on the poll.

Attorneys Association. The group consists of about 175 attorneys who practice criminal law in Orange, Osceola and Seminole countles. About 350 ballots were sent to attorneys who either prosecute or defend individuals in state or federal criminal cases in the three countles. Of the 151 poll ballots returned, 33 individuals also made comments about some of the judges.

The judges were rated in seven categories: legal knowledge and analytical ability; impartiality; freedom from bias: demeanor: diligence; integrity and overall. In formulating the overall average*, the overall category was omitted. The attorneys ranked each category on a numerical scale: 5, excellent: 4, good: 3, satisfactory: 2, poor or 1, very poor. In tabulating the results, the nearest whole number was used. If the rating was 3.49 or less, the number was counted as 3. A score of 3.5 or higher, was counted as 4.

Speaking in general terms, one of the attorneys responding to the poll wrote:

'Judges need to view attorneys as part of the solution rather than part of the problem. Judges are role models for the rest of the legal community. They need to

- clients, witnesses, court personnel, attorneys - with respect and dignity. Judges especially those who have never been in private practice - must also be more acomodating (slc) to conflicts of attorneys and their vacations and family schedule. We + judges and attorneys must work together rather than at odds - to make the system work and to make our children and grandchildren proud of it and to respect it.

The following comments were made about criminal court Judges in Seminole County:

Judge Dickey: Always his own person. Accessible, reasonable and fair. Exercises the rare quality of courage to make the right ruling and not necessarily the most popular.

 Is an exceptionally fair jurist who tries hard to fashion the appropriate remedy in each case. Judge Dickey is intelligent and fully understands the field of criminal law.

• Judge Dickey received a 2 under diligence because he takes far too many eigarette breaks. It appears more important to him cattle rushed to the slaughter. to smoke than to diligently move his caseload aong (sic). Attorneys have schedules also and it's extremely rude to counsel to examples of what we need on the

"There are still some un-treat all who appear before them more during court so he can smoke. He needs a break every 1/2 hour to 45 minutes to smoke and then he's on break for 20 minutes or more. It's a needless waste of time.

Judge Eaton: Solld, competent, and endured (sic) with common sense.

Judge Mize: An excellent judge who has always been fair. even-handed and accessible. A pleasure to practice before him.

I gave Judge Mize a 2 under demeanor because whenever he has a caseload that he thinks is heavy he rushes counsel through cases too quickly. It is especially noticable when he has a jury trial about to get started. He rushes everyone through as if there's no tomorrow. He appears distracted without giving his undivided attention to the case before him. He becomes (sic) very short with counsel. During trial he makes remarks to counsel that makes them feel like they have to rush through the presentation of their case. He's very impatient which is the bottom line and I for one do not appreciate being treated like Dickey, Mise, Alva: It is always a pleasure to appear before them. They are truly make them wait 1/2 hour or bench and I am confident Justice prevails before them.

> Judge Alva: Thoughtful, intelligent, fair. Sometimes inex-

Alva and Hitt: An asset to the bench, fair to both sides, knowledgable, astute and professional. A view shared by the state, defense bar, and clients. Alva could improve by not showing hostility to lawyers from the PD's (public defender) office and Hitt by being less concerned with how quickly things are moving along.

Judge Hitt: Practical, sensible, efficient. Sometimes overly concerned about efficiency.

In Seminole (County), Hitt is the one judge that has some of the demeanor that typified the Seminole Judges when Johnson and Hall did criminal work, but he still needs to practice.

Judge Marbleatone: Very smart, very hardworking, and conscientious, tries to be very fair, not afraid to be precedent setting. But very slow and sometimes demeaning to attorneys.

 Has all the tools to be right there w/Alva and Hitt however his treatment of ASA's lassistant state attorneys) is inexcusable-openly hostile, rude and discourteous. This behavior is periously undermining his orad. ibility and is without apparent justification. Also, he can be excruciatingly slow, e.g. docket sounding.

 Sometimes exhibits impatience and is downright rude to litigants and counsel.

 Has a great deal of difficulty  forgetting that he is no longer a presecutor (sic). Very sarcastic and at times rude to defendants appearing before him. Refuses to rule with the law on minor issues but rules from his "gut". Almost always sides with law enforcement.

 Overnil possesses or exhibits a demeaning attitude. Seems to favor certain attorneys over others. Inconsistent and predisposed quite often.

 Donald Marblestone is a prosecutor on the bench. If the State cannot prove its case, the Judge will! He should have stayed at the State Attorney's. office.

 Doesn't go along with plea! agreements in criminal cases. Judge Marblestone has the ability to become a top notch judge but must put his ego aside. He must learn patience. He must learn to alt back and listen to both sides of an argument. (He is now too quick to impose his hastily obtained ruling or opinion.)

Judge Bloop: Not fit to be a judge. Palpable pro-state bias, and ofter openly hoattle and vindictive to defendants. Poor legal knowledge.

 Has no business being on the bench. Palpable pro-state. bias evident even to jurars coupled with a woefully inept understanding of the law make it a displeasure to be in his courtroom under any circumstances.

 It seems that Judge Sloop takes great delight in setting up probationers to go (to) jail. I see: no logical reason for imposing excessive fines, court costs and . other fees on indigent defendants that cannot satisfy such $ conditions of probation.

 The only time that Judge Sloop grants defense motions is if the government's witnesses do! not show up.

In Seminole County - Hitt and Alva both need to be reminded that overyone else' appears in court at the scheduled time, and they should at? least make a token effort to do the same. Marblestone and Alva should both be familiarized with the common practice of wearing a black robe when taking the bench. Both Sloop and Marblestone could stand a bit of sensitivity training. I believe both are unnecessarily harsh in some of their sentencings as well as in the management of their dogkatan Sloop . certainly bas improved some since he first took the bench, but Marblestone more than compensates for any improvement on Sloop's part.

children near but wouldn't let other people get close. One says Jackson was "a fragile person ... scared of her own shadow."

"Paranold schizophrenia is the only dangerous type of schizophrenia and it can be very dangerous," says Mary Latham of the Minnesota Bio Brain Association, which helps families cope with the filness. "But they're only violent because they're so frightened."

Debra did serve on the complex's committees for children and security, says neighbor Rita Carroll: "She used to bring her children to my house because she didn't have anyone else to watch them during the committee meetings, and she treated them kids real good ... She's real protective of her kids."

But there were odd beltefs, bizarre behaviors.

Jackson often wouldn't answer a knock on her door. She kept the window blinds pulled, and the glass open just a crack in the summer. She was reluctant to let her children out to

In the dead of winter, says a neighbor who spoke on condition of anonymity, Jackson would carefully bundle her two small children in winter clothes, load them into her car along with her trash, then drive 100 feet to the garbage bin and unload the trash before driving back to her apartment.

"Debbie didn't let people get close to her," says the neighbor. "She thought people were going to take her food. She thought people were taking items from her house.

"Just before she went in the hospital (in November 1992), she kept all her groceries in the car. You could tell when she was cooking because she would come out to the car and get her groceries."

That was the second time she was hospitalized; she was first committed in June 1989 to St. Joseph's Hospital in St. Paul.

Four decades ago, that might have been the end of it: Jackson would simply have been institutionalized, warehoused beyond hope with hundreds of others. With the advent of effective medication, hospitalization lost favor.

Jackson stayed at St. Joseph's about five weeks and received injections of the neuroleptic drug Prolixin. She was assigned a social worker from a county agency that works with the mentally ill, and was released.

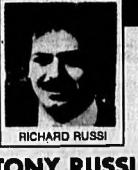

Her mother, Connie Jackson, called police again in November 1992 because her daughter again was acting strangely. The medication Jackson took after her commitment had helped, her mother said, but she'd quit taking it.

She was taken to University of Minnesota Hospitals, where she was said to be "obsessed with fears of brutal death and-or sexual abuse" of her children. She believed hospital workers would shoot her or cut off her

In the days leading up to the killings. Jackson grew increasingly reclusive and confused. She began barricading the front door of her apartment with an exercise bicycle. She talked with neighbors about an incident that had occurred a year carlier, apparently believing it had just happened.

Police files show Jackson went with her social worker July 16 to see her doctor, who prescribed a higher dosage of Haldol to control returning "signs of thought disorder." Connie Jackson later told police her daughter had been off her medication and probably never picked up the new prescription.

"I could tell by the pain and the ache in her heart that something horrible had happened," a neighbor recalls. "She said, 'I knew I should have taken those bables home with me. I just knew I should have taken those bables home with me." "

By 2 a.m., Jackson had been treated at a St. Paul hospital and was being questioned at police headquarters. Investigators asked if she knew how her children died.

"I can't remember." she said. "Whose blood is that in the bathroom?"

"That is all my blood," "Then the children's blood is on their bed?"

Jackson nodded. She told the investigators she wished people would stop picking on her and her children. She said, over and over, that she was a good mother, that she loved

Schools hopeful about Silent Witness

Have you ever heard about something bad that was going to happen but you didn't know how to stop it?

Well, Semninole County's school board has tried to solve that problem by creating the Silent Witness Program.

The program is designed to provide parents or students an opportinuity to call and report possible incidents that might occur in their schools.

"It's intended to be an avenue to report whatever could be or is a problem. It's a toll-free 800 number that runs 24 hours a day seven days a week," John Reichert explained.

Reichert serves as the school boards' ombudsman, (someone who acts as an investigator of ethical behavior) and the EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunity Coodinater).

"All schools in Seminole County are participating in the program. The Wakenhutt Agency takes calls with unbiased opinions and then reports them to an officer or myself who then investigates the situation. I believe we're the only county in Florida using an outside agency, and we're looking forward to a successful start," he added.

The program is on a 12-month contract with Wackenhutt. The cost of implementation, including the toll free number, is $5,000 annually.

And, if it proves to be useful it's up to the School Board to decide to renew the contract.

Reichert said that, so far, most of the calls recieved have ranged from reports of vandalism, of fights, and of weapons on campus. Opinions of the program varied.

'It will help in some areas, like if there's gonna be a burglury. but as far as life-threatening situations I don't think there's much they can do," said Seminole High senior Heather Feldman.

"It looks like a good idea to me. People who might be shy about telling something they know will be able to tell someone with out feeling like a snitch." assisstant principal Verna Jackson said.

Students at Seminole High were informed about how the system works in their Contact class on Wednesday and were use the number. But the incidents must relate to students, any other business should be taken up with either the school's principal or the county office.

The appeal of annimosity is one aspect that the students and teachers seem to like.

"Since the kids don't have to tell their names they won't feel threatened and that will allow them to report things they normally wouldn't,"Ann Young, a teacher at Seminole, said.

Reichert summed up the county's goal by saying, "If we have safer schools, we have better schools."

Americans cost nation $100 billion by missing their medicine

By LAURAN NEERGAARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - People who don't take their medicine properly cost the nation $100 billion a year in medical bills and lost productivity, according to a drug industry study.

Half the time, Americans skip doses, abandon their medicine early or don't get prescriptions filled — habits that keep them sick and have caused a surge in drug-resistant diseases.

The problem is an old one, but the drug industry on Monday put the first price tag on it. A study by the Task Force for Compliance, a consortium of 22 pharmaceutical companies. found missing medicine caused:

• At least 10 percent of hospital admissions, costing $25 billion.

•$50 billion in lost productivity.

• 10 percent of nursing home admissions, costing $5 billion.

•$20 billion due to premature death and treatment for ambulatory patients.

"The patient has a responsibil-ity for how he or she takes drugs that enhances not only their health, but the health of the nation," said Dr. Hazle Shorter, who chairs the task force.

The task force says doctors and pharmacists don't explain how to take medicine or stress the importance of finishing all those pills, and wants them to communicate better.

Study: Boys turn into sprinters in young teens

speciated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - All healthy children are otential aerobic athletes — at least until they mature enough to be something else, a researcher

Some could grow into distance runners while others become sprinters or weightlifters; howevr. the difference doesn't start to emerge until early puberty, said Dr. Oded Bar-Or.

Before puberty, children are more capable of extended runs and other aerobic exercise, Bar-Or said. Kids at play tend not to run for more than seconds, but studies show they can handle longer efforts if they want, he said.

The change appears as boys develop more of what are termed fast-twitch muscle fibers that generate bursts of power, the Canadian researcher said. As girls grow into women, their fast-twitch fibers develop as well, but to a lesser Puberty thus leads to what's termed specializa-tion, as some athletes develop an ability to compete in sports that favor fast-twitch muscle Abers and others compete in aerobic activities based on what are termed slow-twitch fibers.

This means there's little value in trying to focus children's exercise programs toward developing adult power-sport champions before children develop fast-twitch fibers, sald Bar-Or, professor pediatrics and director of the Children's Exercise and Nutrition Centre at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario.

Children can benefit from weight training, but it seems that the exercise mostly trains nerves to recruit more muscle fiber to respond, rather than making muscle grow, Bar-Or said. Young athletes do well in explosive-power sports such as gymnastics because the events rely on coordina-

"Relatively speaking, we feel their lungs and heart are more developed than their muscles and lungs and heart is really what we mean by aerobic fitness," Bar-Or said.

Bar-Or and Israeli colleague Bareket Falk attempted to find the time in a young athlete's life at which specialization starts. Their study was published in Pediatric Exercise Science, the journal of the North American Society of Pediatric Exercise Medicine.

The study followed 31 young people ages approximately 11-18 over 18 months. The subjects were classified by stage - pre-, middleor late-puberty. They were tested at least four times on their aerobic and anaerobic abilities.

Early and middle pubescents had the greatest differences in ability, the study said. This means anaerobic development in these younger pubescents was coming along faster than the increase in aerobic development, Bar-Or said. The increase in late puberty was minor by comparison.

Bar-Or and Falk found wide variations in anaerobic development from individual to individual. Sprinting and weight-lifting, for example, are considered anaerobic activity.

And when they tried to track the development as the younger subjects grew older, they found they didn't have enough cases to draw statistically valid conclusions.

However, when the paper is placed in the context of similar projects, a pattern of anaerobic development in early puberty emerges, Bar-Or

The study gives strong evidence that prepubescents have not begun the specialization process, said Dr. Lyle J. Michell, director of the division of sports medicine at Children's Hospital

CHICAGO - In Joseph Scheidler's world, there are times when it's his moral duty to break the law. To trespass, if he must, or be a vandal. It's his way of following his conscience - and stopping abortion.

"People don't like to hear this, but there's a higher law: Thou shalt not kill," he declares, "I'm doing what I have to do. So what? I've got some misde-meanors. ... I don't consider myself a criminal."

Scheidler says he isn't violent. He says blockading abortion clinics or painting over abortion ads serves a greater good. "Abortion isn't an individual decision." he says. "It's a community decision. It's a family decision. ... The bottom line is we're trying to save lives."

To some, Scheidler and other abortion foes are social activists in the mold of Gandhi. To others, they're thugs in a league with a mobster like Gotti.

It's now up to the U.S.

Supreme Court to judge.
On Wednesday, the justices face one of the most divisive issues in America as they consider whether the Racketeer Influence and Corrupt Organizations Act - a law aimed at organized crime - can be used to sue protesters who block access to abortion clinics.

The case pits the National Organization for Women and abortion clinic owners - supported by the Clinton administration - against abortion foes, including Operation Rescue and its founder Randall Terry and Scheidler, head of the Chicago-based Pro-Life Action Abortion has been legal nearly 21 years, but the passions and conflict it stirs remain strong: Just last month, the House and Senate passed measures to crack down on abortion violence. And on Feb. 21, trial is set to begin for a man accused of killing a Florida abortion doctor.

The Supreme Court has weighed in too: In January, it ruled federal judges may not invoking an 1871 civil rights

This case — NOW et al. vs.
Scheidler et. al — is considered important because a victory for NOW and its allies could open the door for damage suits against protesters who shut down or vandalize abortion

"If they have to pay the price for terrorism, they might think twice about it," says Fay Clayton, a lawyer representing NOW and the abortion clinics.

"It's using nuclear bombs against the pro-life movement," responds Walter Weber, a lawyer for Operation Rescue and Terry. "There's not that much to win.

but a whole lot to lose."

RICO is a potent litigation weapon that could "dry up a pool of money in the pro-life movement." Weber said. "There would be no incentive to have a budget because it would just be a target of lawsuits." RICO, the anti-racketeering law enacted in 1970, was designed to combat organized and white-collar crime, but increasingly has been used in business disputes and cases ranging from commodities traders to gang members.

in a series of decisions, the Supreme Court has refused to narrow the scope for using the Wednesday's debate will feature RICO's author, G. Robert Blakey, a Notre Dame University law professor, arguing for the anti-abortion side.

The 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago ruled RICO didn't apply here because even though anti-abortion groups may engage in "reprehensible criminal ... conduct," they did not have the economic motive the anti-racketeering law re-

Abortion rights advocates say RICO doesn't specify such a motive.

Supporting them are the American Medical Association, attorneys general of seven states, several women's groups and the Clinton administration.

Government lawyers say groups may engage in illegal acts largely for political reasons but still gain financially, such as getting increased contributions.

RICO requires a racketeering pattern of two or more "predicate acts" from a list of crimes, is non-civil violent disobedi-

NOW and its allies contend that abortion foes target clinics for criminal acts and that, be-tween 1980 and 1990, those acts included 311 physical "Everything they've done constitutes extortion," Clayton argues, contending that antiblockades, 33 attempted or actual firebombings, 25 burglaries or thefts and 73 clinic invasions. abortion activists are engaged in a criminal network determined to drive abortion clinics out of

Though activists such as Scheidler are not accused of these acts, Clayton says they're still responsible. "They don't always dirty their own hands by pulling the trigger or lighting the match," she said.

"I don't get rich on their loss," Scheidler said.

"To call a 65-year-old grandmother saying the rosary a racketeer is to spit in the face of common sense," said Terry, of Operation Rescue.

The anti-abortion activists contend their protests are pro-tected by the First Amendment. "Civil disobedience and social or political pressure tactics are as 'American as apple pie," they say in court papers.

Weber, who works at the American Center for Law and Justice, founded by religious broadcaster Pat Robertson, says NOW is trying to indiscriminately throw a net over all "The essential theory of this case is the entire pro-life movement is one giant conspiracy. everyone is liable for everything that happens," he said. "That's not the way the system works."

A loss here could paralyze other protest movements, Weber

"If the abortion business can sue Randall Terry, a munitions factory can sue the peace activists or whalers can sue Greenpeace," he said. "Anytime they cross over the line, they can characterize it as extortion and racketeering."

In fact, activist groups in-cluding People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals and two chapters of Earth First! are supporting the abortion oppo-

The American Civil Liberties Union, which has been critical of RICO, is supporting neither side, but filed a brief saying if this case goes to trial, rules should be established to ensure liability will be tied to illegal conduct.

Both sides are optimistic that time is on their side.

"There's a new Justice Department, a new attorney general." said NOW's Ireland. "With a new political climate, that always has an impact on the court."

"We're going to win no matter how dark things look," Scheidler countered, "because the truth wins out in the end."

Heart disease does not discriminate. In fact, it's the biggest killer of American women today.

That's why it's so important to recognize chest pain as a major warning sign of a heart attack. And to know that while a man's chest pain tends to occur shortly, if not immediately, before a heart attack, a woman's can come and go for weeks, even months.

But don't think this means you have time to ignore the warnings. paramount to catch a heart attack before it happens. See your doctor, especially if you're past menopause. And if you feel any discomfort or pressure in and around the chest area, don't risk it. We can give you immediate attention, quick and accurate diagnosis, and all the technology and expertise of The Heart Center at HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital, 24 hours a day.

Gators advance to Sugar

BIRMINGHAM — Terry Dean threw for two touchdowns and run for another as No. 9 Florida [10-2] won its second SEC title in three years, defeating the 16th-ranked Crimson Tide 28-13 in the Southeastern Conference championship game, locking up a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

Dean completed 20 of 37 passes for 256 yards and ran for a 2-yard touchdown late in the first half which put the Gators ahead to stay, 14-10.

Alabama (8-3-1) got to 14-13 with 2:14 left in the third period when Florida punter Shayne

Edge came up with the key play of the game.
On fourth-and-8 at his own 37, Edge took off along the right sideline for a 30-yard gain. On the next play, Dean hit Jack Jackson in stride

the next play. Dean hit Jack Jackson in stride over the middle for a 43-yard touchdown.

Errict Rhett sealed the victory with a 2-yard TD run early in the fourth period.

Although they're just sophomores, Dee Brown (No. 7) and Brian Whitman played large roles in Lake Brantley's Class 5A state quarterfinal contest with the defending state champion Bradenton-Manatee Hurricanes Friday night. Brown rushed for 69 yards on 10 carries while Whitman scored the Patriots' first touchdown on a 15-yard pass from Jeff Shaw, finishing with a team-leading 46 yards on two receptions.

Unranked Patriots take Hurricanes to tiebreakers

By RYAN ANDERSON Herald Correspondent

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Were it not for two-point conversions following touchdowns, the Lake Brantley Patriots and the defending state champion Bradenton-Manatee Hurricanes might still be be playing their Class 5A quarterfinal contest at Tom Storey Field.

As it turns out, the Hurricanes advanced to the semifinals of the state playoffs with a 37-36 double overtime victory over the Patriots, thanks in large part to a two-point conversion.

"We knew that if we scored in the second overtime, we were going to to give the ball to our strongest back and let him go for two." Manatce coach Joe Kinnan said.

The strategy paid off Kinnan and his 'Canes.

The strategy paid off Kinnan and his 'Canes.

After ending regulation with the score knotted at 21-21, the game was sent into the first of two Kansas tiebreakers.

Lake Brantley won the coin toss and decided to go on the defensive first. The Hurricanes scored on a 5-yard run by Chris Hill. Shevin Wiggins gave Manatee a 29-21 edge with a two-point conversion run.

The Patriots scored on their possession, Jeff Butler going over from 3 yards out. Butler then ran for the two-point conversion, tying the game at 29-29 and forcing a second overtime.

This time it was the Patriots who started things off, scoring on a 5-yard run by Ricky Hamilton.

Tim LeCroix's kick gave the Patriots a 36-29 lead.
The Hurricanes answered with a 2-yard run by

Hill, Kinnan then gave Wiggins the ball again and he responded with another two-point conversion run, giving Manate a 37-36 victory.

Manatec (11-2) advances to play Apopka (which eliminated Niceville 23-21 Friday night) in the Class 5A semifinals next week at Apopka High School. The other semifinal game pits Vero Beach against Miami-Southridge.

The Class 5A state championship game will be played on Saturday, Dec. 18, at Daytona Beach Municipal Stadium.

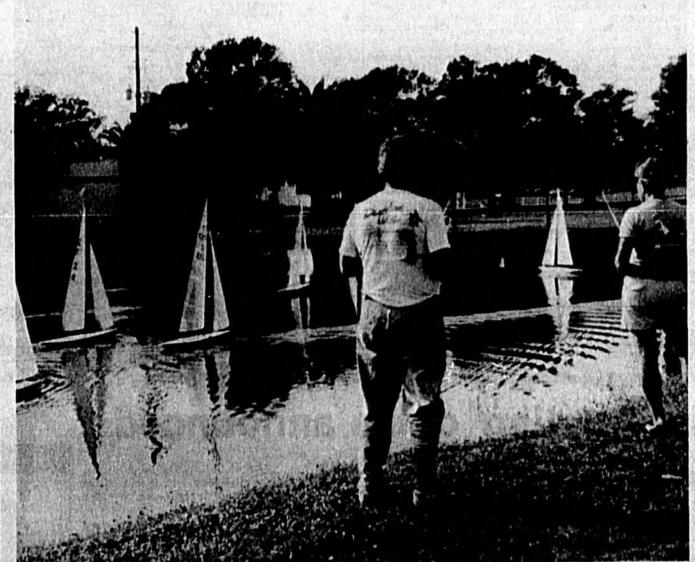

Lake Brantley, which was never ranked in the Florida Sports Writers Association's state poll this season, ended its season 10-3.

"I'm hurt Inside for the players," Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon said. "I'm hurt but I am also so overwhelmed and overjoyed with the way they played all year. We just played the game the way it was supposed to be played all year long and never gave up.

"I wouldn't change anything. They (Manatee) deserve the win. They called the right plays and made the right decisions at the right time."

SANFORD — They're toy boats is size only; their aesthetic appeal might qualify them as model boats.

But when piloted by competitors in the radiocontrol class of the Seminole County Florida Citrus Sailfest, the EC 12-meter craft — which are fashioned after the old America's Cup yachts — take on a spirit not unlike the 600 other boats entered in the two-day regatta. Editor's note: The Seminole County Florida Citrus Salifest continues today on Lake Monroe. Each class will try to run two more races today while the radio-control class will attempt to get in 12 more heats. Racing is scheduled to resume at 9:30 a.m.

And the competition is just an intense. Pleasant and willing to discuss their sport between races.

Rams, Tribe renew wrestling rivalry

By TONY DeSORMIER Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — It wasn't that long ago that the dual meet pitting Lake Mary against Seminole was the highlight of the Seminole County high school wrestling.
"They were dogfights," recalled

"They were dogfights," recalled Lake Mary coach Doug Peters with a smile. "The Seminole coach and I didn't really get along and I think that carried over to the teams."

But things change, or at least, they did at Seminole, which went through several part-time coaches and ceased being a competitive member of the Seminole Athletic Conference in the sport.

Ultimately, it reached the point where Seminole was dropped from Lake Mary's schedule. The reigning power in Central Florida at the time, wrestling a team like Seminole that couldn't field half a team most nights did the Rams no good.

Again, things change. Peters stepped down as coach of the Rams to concentrate on football. Shortly thereafter, Lake Mary slid from the top of the hill, overtaken by Lyman. Lake Brantley, and Oviedo.

Meanwhile, Seminole was beginning to rebuild its program. Bill Caughell, an assistant of Peters at Lake Mary, was hired as the Tribe's first full-time wrestling coach in several years.

Now, with Peters in his second year back at the helm of the Rams and Caughell in his second season with the Seminoles, the fortunes of both programs are on the upswing. On Friday night, their pathes crossed again.

The anipe is perhaps the most challenging of all game birds in Florids. This bird, about the size of a dove, has more moves than the best of running backs. The trick is to shoot just as the bird rises from the marsh, and before it gathers momentum for its twisting and darting flying mo-FISHING FORECAST

Dec. 11-Jan. 24. Daily bag limit — 3; possession limit — 6. SHUPE'S SCOOP

The predicted cold front this weekend could put a windy damper on weekend flahing. If it is windy, stick to sntall bodies of water such as local lakes or the Wekiya River.

Shiner fishing for bass will be good in lakes and in the river south of Pussie Lake to Lake Winder near Cocoa. If the temperature drops, fish floating mate of water hyacinthe and other heavy cover.

Sebastian Inlet is providing good action with big winter flounder, bluefish, and a few trout. Live shrimp or finger mullet are the top balts. The best action is taking place halfway through the outgoing or incoming tides. Some good trout action is also taking place back in the river around the grass beds.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that high seas have kept all boats in Port. inside the Port, sheepshead and flounder are biting on a regular basis. Back in the Banana and Indian rivers, trout and redfish are rated as good. The fish will be on the flats until the first cold anap. Ponce Inlet has been the place to be for steady fishing action from sheepshead. bluefish, drum, redfish, and flounder. Live or fresh dead shrimp is the balt of choice. The best action is taking place around the morth jetties. Sheepshead are also hitting good around channel markers and bridge pilings back in the river

Bottensek, sporting a Jacksonville Jaguar shirt. was the early leader, winning four of the first seven heats Saturday. In all, 24 heats were scheduled to be run yesterday with 12 more scheduled for today.

Like all the other classes in the Sailfest, the radio-control class - under the supervision of the Orlando Radio Control Model Yacht Club follows strict guidelines for the type of craft and sail displacement.

'This is a one-design class," said Bruce McDaniel, race director for the ORCMYC. "There haven't been any changes to the basic design, so all the boats are equal.'

McDaniel said that one of the rules of the class is that skippers may only control the boat's rudder and sails via radio control. This weekend, all 10 competitors are using two-channel radios to navigate the pond located in Fort Mellon Park behind Henry Shelton Sanford Museum.

Inventors of new designs and programs will again be competing for awards on a statewide level. Entry forms are now available for the 1994 Governor's New Product Award Program.

The program is sponsored by the Florida Professional Engineers in Industry, a division of the Florida Engineering Society and the Florida Department of Commerce. Selection of the winners are based on five areas: improved function, ease and savings in use; safety; ingenuity; appearance, packaging and marketing; and economic contribution. Entries are divided into categories for small, medium and large, based on the number of employees. For 1993, Kin Arthur's Tools of Tallahassee won first place honors in the small-firm category for Lancelot, a multipurpose woodworking power tool accessory.

Any new product, machine, process or material that has been developed totally or in part in Florida, is eligible to be entered in the competition. The product must have been introduced on the market at least one year and not more than five years, prior to July 1, 1994. Deadline for entries is February

The chorus, believed to be the only one of its nature in the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, has won numerous awards during its 8-year existence.

But this day marked the grand finale or swan song for the popular and talented singers as they decided to disband much to the dismay of most of the chorus. The director and planist. Mayor Bettye Smith, expressed her sadness, also. She has been available for rehearsal nearly every Wednesday during the eight years.

Members of this year's chorus are: Irene Brown, Phyllis Conklin, Viola Frank, Kay Hall, Tina Joseph, Alice Magro, Frances Mithcell, Eve Rogero, Jane Saxon and Lisa Sillaway.

The singing clubwomen shall be sorely missed.

Picturesque with sparkling decorations in pinks, mauves, silver and white, the clubhouse also featured a huge Christmas tree, compliments of Ted Williams. The lovely tree was decorated in a Victorian motif with elaborate hand-made pink, white and silver ornaments.

This weekend, the club is headquarters for the Fifth Annual Sanford Historic Trust Holiday Tour of Homes. Hours today are from 1 to 5 p.m., and tickets to tour the eight homes and a

SANFORD - A former school teacher became a personal assistant to a U.S. Senator through a bold move she would not have normally

Mary Dale Jones, of Sanford, never believed that she would eventually become a personal assistant to Paula Hawkins, one of the first female United States senators representing the state of Florida. What a start she recalls. "I read this article in the Florida magazine, maybe three months after she took office," Jones said. "A former Sunday school pupil of hers wrote this article about her. In this article she was saying because of the stress and workload of her office, it was very hard to keep everything running as smoothly as she was used to."

Jones continued, "At that time she had four offices to keep constantly in touch with. An office each in Miami, Tallahassee and Winter Park and her senatorial office in Washington. Besides that she had her family to take care of, along with the daily dealings with the U.S. Government and its agencies."

Jones put the article to the back of her mind until the following summer. Her daughter was headed off to graduate school and Jones could envision the times when she would have to send money to help with her daughter's education. She was in a quandary because she had just finished a career as an elementary school teacher and had not planned to go back to work.

She explained, "I did the only nervy thing I have ever ☐ See Aide, Page 6B

Art provokes her emotions

Mothers with children artist's favorite subjects

By SUSAN WENNER Herald Correspondent

Webster's Dictionary defines art as, "the activity of creating things that arouse the emotions through one or more seitses."
Kimberly Polk agrees with that definition thoroughly, "Most of what I enjoy is work that has meaning and provokes emotion," she said. "In fact, Van Gogh, the artist, once stated, I'd rether people hate my work than rather people hate my work than have no response at all."

Polk has lived in Sanford off and on for 22 years. Born in Nebraska, her family moved here when she was young. Her husband, Sylvester, and four children, Ty, Jacob, Joel and Caleb, enjoy their comfortable home in Sanora. She homeschools her childen so her art has provided outlets, for education as well as relaxation.

Polk graduated from Seminole Community College in April 1992 with an associate of arts degree. She began studies at the University of Centrel Florida in August of 1992 in the graphics design program. Polk spoke of her education. "It's long, hard work, but my children and husband come first; they're number one, especially their spiritual well-being."

Irene Brown now a published author

Kudos to Irene Brown. The Sanford activist and civic leader has added another accomplishment to her long list of talents. Irene is now a paid published author. She has had several articles published, but this crafty idea is the only one to bring her some easy bucks. Last year, Irene won a blue ribbon in the Sanford Woman's Club Arts Festival for an heirloom vest she made for her one of her granddaughters. So, she wrote a "how to" article and submitted it to the House of White Birches craft magazine along with colored photos of her prized creation. The editor requested that Irene send the vest, which she did. Her work was accepted and the story, "A Vested Interest" will appear in the February, 1994 edition of "Wearable Crafts,"

Not bad for a retiree who has never had any writing instruction. However, writing has been a longtime interest of Irene who also aspired to test her art aptitudes someday. Last year, her husband, Roy, made her an easel and presented her with a Susie has since died and Al set of beginner paints for my life. I didn't tell a soul. I sat down and I wrote Paula a letter because I didn't want to go back to school and I didn't need that Jane with, So I wrote Paula this things I could do for her. I told her about myself and what I had done. I mailed it and never said a word to anyone abut what I did because it is so unlike me to do Everything was so unreal. Later on Jones found out that all Hawkins' mail was routed through her office and she received almost 2000 pieces of mail each day. Somewhere along the line someone noticed Jones's letter and passed it along until it got to Hawkins' administrative assistant, John Mica. He called Hawkins, who was laid up in the hospital, and read the letter to her. Hawkins remarked to her alde, "It sounds like this may be" the answer to all my problems." Jones was then brought in for an Interview and was hired as Paula Hawkins' personal assistant.

Jones moved into the senator's office which was localed in Hawkins' Winter Park Jones said, "She was very kind the next five years as she became the bridge between U.S. Senator Hawkins and the many people who would seek the advice and help of such a powerful person.

"I did everything," commuch money either. I wanted mented Jones. "When I first some extra money I could help moved into the office I organized, collected and sorted boxes letter and I told her that she and boxes of papers and needed me and I told her all the memorabilia. It took me months of my spare time to do all this and to store and mark it so it could be filed away. I even made a trip to Washington to complete that particular work that I was doing. There was so much stuff that you would never believe. I thought I wuld never get it all done." Her trip to Washington was a memorable occasion. Jones was treated well by all the senator's friends and colleagues. If Hawkins could not make the lunch hour then her Washing. ton-based personal secretary would go to lunch with Jones in the Senate dining room. Many times she would sit in the family section of the Senate watching the senators at work. Hawkins would come up and all next to her as they chatted about the many things that had to be done while Jones was in Washington.

home. This became her office for to me. I am quite sure I drove her up the wall sometimes, but she never said an unkind word to me. Not ever, and she could. She could zap people if she wanted to."

Many times Jones never saw the senator because she would come home on the weekends and that was the off time for Jones. But there was always work that had to be done. Many times they would either talk on the phone when she was in Washington, but when she was home there wuld be lists and lists left in the office of things that Hawkins needed completed by her assistant. She recalled the endless numbers of phone calls that she screened during her employment. "Many times I put the White House on hold. Never President Reagan, but his staff members who were calling to talk to the senator. I talked to admirals, movie stars, senators, congressmen, White House staffers and some very influential people. There was so many who wanted to get in contact with Hawkins even while she was at her home. It was just unbelievable. I could never convince you of the number of important people I screened for Hawkins.'

Even while Hawkins was in the hospital, after that accident at the TV station, the two women communicated daily. She would again pick up the lists of things that had to be done and complete them reporting back to Hawkins who was still in the hospital. Several months before the senator left office Jones resigned. She felt that the five years was a thrilling experience but the stress that she had endured had taken a toll on her. Her daughter was also graduating from school and would no longer need the financial assistance that Jones had provided.

Mary Dale married Ralph "Bob" Jones two years ago next February and they make their home in the Sanford historic district. Each lost their spouses In 1987, Bob is a retired lieutenant commander in the Navy where he was assigned to the Officers' Corps of Scabces. He was stationed at the Sanford Naval Air Station, liked duty here and returned in 1969,

Keeping up with the Joneses may be a bit difficult. They like to travel and during the past year, have been to Alaska, California, British Columbia and Missouri, Mary Dale's home

She is a member of the Sanford Woman's Club and the First United Methodist Church. An environmentalist, Mrs. Jones has also adopted a road, which she cares for weekly.

DEAR ABBY: As the holiday season approaches, may I speak for all of us who work at agencies that serve the needy? We are glad that people wish to donate gifts of toys and clothing - and I don't mean to be ungrateful - but I wish your readers would keep these suggestions in mind:

(1) If it's too worn, or stained, or out of style for your child to wear, our kids won't want to wear it either. Self-esteem is as important for these children as it is for others.

(2) If a toy is broken, or part of it is missing, our children can't play with it either. You'd be suprised at the number of people who simply empty the entire contents of a toy box containing broken emyons and stray game pieces into a plastic bag, and drop it off as a donation.

(3) Older children, especially teen agers, are often overlooked this time of year. Agencies that are swamped with gifts for younger children often have a hard time finding anything for

Each class had been working on projects for the festival during the week and one of the highlights was the creative quilts made by each class. Each child made an individual square. First they made their drawing on paper and then copied it onto muslin and used markers to color in their pictures. Each student stitched their own panel around the edges. In Mrs. Thomas' class one of the mom's. Paulette Litton, took the panels home and put the batting in and sewed the quilt on her machine. Each class had a mom or two do the same. During the morning of the featival, there were rotating centers for the students to participate in. There was the apple center where students pecled apples and put them in an electric skillet to make fried apples; at the relish center, they made cranberry-orange relish; at the doll center, they made yarn dolls and then made clothes for them; at the toy center they made "cup-catch-ball" toys; at the gobble goodies center they made neat little turkeys out of Oreo cookies, Rice Krispie treats, candy corn and chocolate frosting. In Mrs. Thomas' class there was face painting by one of the mom helpers, Mrs. DeVan, and in another center the students made Indian headdress replicas.

PTSA meets

One of the main discussions at the Lake Mary High School PTSA meeting held Nov. 16 was a review of the absentee policy.

"To receive credit for a class the student may be absent no more than eight days per semester. Students with nine or more absences will receive their grade and can be credited with that class for promotion purposes but would be denied the credit for graduation purposes."

An information sheet on the attendance policy went home at the beginning of the school year. However, there were several concerns and questions, so it

Continued from Page 6B do all my school work quickly so I could sit in the classroom and abstract art." Polk recalls the of colors," she said. draw." she said. "I'd transfer response some fellow classmates and copy valentines I got from grade when a teacher called her thing, because I tend to draw mother and complained. "The mothers with children a lot." In teacher sald my grades were fine but in my spare time all I did was draw cats. A few teachers would let me get my work done, then allow me to do art projects like sprinkling rice or other things," she said. "I'd rush to amid a larger charcoal of a get it done so I could enjoy what I could create."

She also recalled at 12 and 13 years of age working on bulletin boards at church. "When I was younger I expecially loved writing stortes and illustrating them," she said. "In first grade I wrote a story about two dogs that met, fell in love and danced all night. I drew little hearts above their heads. I never took an art course in high school; I always took music." Saxophone was Polk's instrument of choice.

She spoke of trying a nursing program about a year before her marriage. "I didn't like it," she said. "In fact, I said no more school, ever again. I just wanted to be a wife and mother."

When Polk was first married, she and her husband moved to Pensacola for his employment. "We had no television or radio and money was tight." she said, "so while he was at work I'd copy on paper, pictures out of magazines, then paint or draw anything I could."

Her husband sensed her talent and suggested she take art courses. Originally, she felt she wouldn't be able to do that because she had no previous courses, training or background. Polk stated, "One day in a moment of Intense boredom I went to a local college." A counselor talked to her and showed her the art department. "I got so excited, she said, "but then I had to wait two months before I could start and it was hard waiting. I took drawing and design and art history," said Polk. "That was in 1983, then I've continued my education little by little ever since."

She bore her first son in the spring of 1984 so she put school on hold for awhile. Her family moved back to Sanford soon after. She completed a semester of classes after each of the other three children were born. Her education was kind of hit-andmiss until 1990. At that time she began to take two or three classes each semester and has been enrolled without a break in her present schedule.

'I love fine arts and drawings," she said. "Most of my work is charcoal drawings." Polk spoke of some of the people with whom she attends class.

"Some students of art tend to do did them as drawings. Cassat' had to her earlier works, "They fact, one charcoal drawing in particular Polk pointed out became somewhat controversial. During election year she drew a picture with inserts of the candidates Perot, Bush and Clinton mother and child. "The election seemed to center around family issues and the whole picture seemed to hit the nail on the head," said Polk. "Relationships want my art to show together-awarded to Polk from Seminole My mom bought me a desk. It's Community College for one of her paintings. "Every year I would put things in the student lance work, but of course, at jury art show," she said. "They pick one piece of art to keep in their permanent collection and mine was one of them. It was a still life."

A favorite artist of Polk is Mary Cassat. "She was a painter in the late 1800s and one of the first women impressionists." Cassat painted a lot of mothers with children and their relationships. Although Cassat had no children of her own she would paint her sister's children. I took some of her paintings and

Like Cassat, Polk also tends to others onto paper." Polk re- asked if I was trying to push the frequently. "My work really membered a time in the fifth fact that I'm profile or some, speaks of who I wu like the charcoal drawings of my own childen on the wall." She said, "It's a strength to be a mom, and through my drawing I'd like to evoke any emotion I can of moms going back into the home. and nurturing relatonships with their children. Mothers shouldn't have to justify staying home with their children."

She told of her own emotion when drawing and spoke of how! she can feel the face and arms, when drawing a baby as if she is are pushed aside nowadays and I right there caressing it. "The mom's face feels too and how. she's caring so much for this Two hundred dollars was child," she said, "contentment." In my corner, for my work. Eventually I'd like to do freehome."

Polk concluded by saying, "I want my children and even my great grandchildren to really know me and who I was, and I think through my art work, they telescope aboard shuttle

Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston -After thousands of hours in rehearsal, the real task of fixing the Hubble Space Telescope was finally at hand. The telescope was bent like a bow. was safely aboard the shuttle Endeavour on Saturday, bent array should interfere with the spacewalk, scheduled for the wee hours of Sunday, NASA confronted a problem. One of two blanketlike solar arrays on the Hubble was twisted out of shape and its supporting slem

Nothing about the misshapen wing and all, ready for overhaul. first of the mission's five spacewalks, however,

In their six hours in the open cargo bay, astronauts Story Musgrave and Jeffrey Hoffman intend to replace two pairs of gyroscopes and two electronic control units. The repair involved removing some bolts and loosening others, opening access doors, disconnecting electrical plugs, installing new units, and buttoning it all back up.

The gyroscopes, called rate sensing units, are required to point and track the telescope. One of each pair have failed, probably because of bad electronics. The electronic units, located elsewhere, serve as the gyros' brains and they, too, have two bad units.

The first day's EVAs - the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's traditional shorthund for extravehicular activity, or spacewalks - were the prelude to other work: swapping out the solar arrays Monday, installing a new planetary camera Tuesday, installing corrective optics for other instruments Wednesday, and substituting more electronics Thursday.

Alternate pairs of spacewalkers will go into the cargo bay on successive days. Their tasks are eased by the fact that Hubble was intended to be serviced every three years.

Hubble was launched in April 1990, touted as being able to see to the edge of the universe. But two months later, an embarrassed NASA had to admit that the 94-inch primary-mirror was ground too shallow at the edges, making the instrument nearsighted.

Although the telescope has been enormously productive, it developed other flaws, all of which are due for correction on the Endeavour flight. The solar panels developed an annoying jitter 16 times a day — whenever the telescope left daylight for darkness and vice versa. Computers were programmed to work around the problem.

Experts believe that a jam in the mechanism to compensate for shrinkage and expansion because of drastle temperature changes caused a kink in the stem and the resulting twist of the solar blankets.

The European Space Agency. which made both old and new arrays, said the replacements use springs that can't bind.

Because of the misground mirror, Hubble pictures tended to lump fields of stars into bright clusters. Again, a computer program was developed to filter out the halos. The gyroscopes failed and officials worried that the backups might, too.

"I've been on the tours like this all over the state and I really believe this is the nicest one I've seed." she said.

Donald Kibbins and his wife Marie drove from Kissimmee to walk along Sanford streets and visit the historic homes.

"Two or three years ago I had to drag her kicking and screaming to this, now she tells me about it a month in advance," he said. The route along the tour was cheerful and brightly decorated for Christmas. Even homes not on the tour were festooned with colored lights and red ribbons.

Some enterprising realtors made sure the homes they are trying to sell were neatly scrubbed and polished and that the "Open House" signs were prominently displayed.

'I went into that house over there by accident," James Wolfe of Orlando said, pointing at a house that was not one of the designated homes on the tour. "It was lovely. I'm thinking about bringing my wife back to look at it tomorrow. Who knows...maybe we'll be on the tour next year."

Many on the tour said they planned to take their time and be around as night fell over the historic district.

"I want to see all these beautiful homes all lit up for the holidays," said Jill Kennedy of Lake Mary, "Christmas is such a special time of the year and it necus to be seen an incorp at night to be truly appreciated."

Neighbors on the tour took brief breaks from showing guests through their homes to take a peek at some of their neighbors' houses.

"it's a lot of fun to see what other people are doing with their houses." said Dottle Mings whose Palmetto Avenue home is on the tour. Loren Minetta of Deltona said
