Man charged in hit-and-run

LONGWOOD — Ronald James Tutton, 24, 5323 Hermosa St., Orlando, has been arrested by Seminole County sheriffs deputies after allegedly fleeing a hit-and-run accident involving an injury.

At about 7:15 p.m. Friday, Tutton left an accident at State Road 434 and Tarrytown Trail, where another driver had been injured. Police pursued him and arrested him at Palm Springs Road.

Tutton is charged with one count of leaving the scene of an accident involving injury and one count of driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $1,000.

King will run in Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — Kenneth King will challenge Commissioner Thomas Mahoney for commission seat 5 in the Nov. 7 election.

King, who teaches ecology and biology at Seminole Community College, qualified to run in the election last week, according to City Clerk Carol Edwards.

Mahoney filed for re-election during the first week of the qualification period which will end Friday, Sept. 29.

An 11-year resident of Lake Mary, King has been city commissioner during various terms. He last held office between 1985-1987. Last year, he ran for seat 1 and was defeated by Commissioner Bill Greene, who this year will challenge Commissioner George Duryea for seat 3.

Seat 1 is being eliminated in December because last year a charter change was voted for which give the mayor voting privileges and abolished seat 1.

Edwards said this morning no others have "picked up papers" to qualify.

Soviet boy recovering here

NEW YORK — A 20-month-old Soviet boy who was rushed to the United States with an orange-sized brain tumor is gaining weight, able to eat solid food and well enough to be released a month after surgery, his doctors said.

Kirill Podorozhansky, hailed by American doctors as a "tough little fighter," was released to his mother this morning from the Bronx's Montefiore Medical Center, a spokesman said.

The blond-haired Muscovite has been recovering at Montefiore since undergoing neurosurgery on Aug. 17. He will stay in New York for at least another week to undergo follow-up chemotherapy treatments, his doctors said.

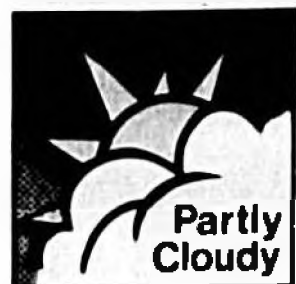

About 85 percent of the child's tumor was removed by a team of five doctors, led by Montefiore pediatric neurosurgery chairman Dr. James Goodrich, during 10 hours of surgery. The operation left a large head cavity.

Lake Mary may make old building a museum

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — This city's "old" and soon-to-be-replaced city hall is a prime candidate for a state grant for the rehabilitation of historic structures, according to Mark Reggentin, associate city planner.

Groundbreaking for the new Lake Mary City Hall has signaled the end for the existing building on North Country Club Road. Commission meetings currently are held in the old building, but soon the new city hall will usurp that duty.

Groundbreaking for the $957,000 building took place Friday and is expected to be complete within nine months, according to a representative of General Constructors of Altamonte Springs, the building's contractors.

Reggentin told the commissioners last week the state Division of Historical Resources is offering grants for the rehabilitation of historic structures and the Lake Mary commission chambers, which until last summer housed city hall employees, is a prime candidate. Buildings which serve a public community purpose and have historical significance are most eligible for this type of funding.

Reggentin called the building the "only historic structure remaining in the city" and suggested it could be used as a museum containing a film room with historical photos and display cases to chronicle the Lake Mary's history. Historical data and photographs compiled by Lake Mary native Margaret Green Wesley, author of "Lake Mary's Beginnings" could be used. If the building were converted to such a museum, civic organizations like the Chamber of Commerce or church groups could still use it for community functions.

Under the grant, the state recommends renovations undertaken be greater than $50,000 but not more than $250,000. Renovations for the Lake Mary City Hall amount to $75,500 for such things as $15,000 to replace the wiring in the building, $7,500 to improve the stage area, $2,000 to refinish the wood floors and $18,000 to provide 80 seats for better seating arrangements.

Wesley, who grew up in Lake Mary, said, "It would be very nice to have that building designated as a historical building." She said the building used to be called the Chamber of Commerce building and was built in the 1920s, but is not the only historic building remaining. Others within a block of it were also built around the same time.

In her book, Wesley refers to a man by the name of Frank Evans, a circus showman and businessman who developed Lake Mary's west shore and named it Evansdale Park which was part of his subdivision of the same name. At least three of the houses of that subdivision remain.

One of the building built by Evans is still in use today. It is a brick building on the southeast corner of Country Club Road and Crystal Lake Avenue and a church uses

Martinez dinner raises $3 million

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez collected a record $3 million in a high-profile fund-raising dinner Saturday, but questions remain about the depth of business' commitment to the Republican chief executive.

The contributions at the dinner held in Orlando were the largest ever at a single political gathering in Florida. Aides said the point was to demonstrate Martinez is not destined to join the ranks of one-term Republicans such as former Gov. Claude Kirk and Sen. Paula Hawkins.

Youth leaders meet

By VICKI DeBONNIE
Herald staff writer

ORLANDO — Forty-four Central Florida public and private high school juniors, including 10 from Seminole County, met last week to set an agenda for the first year of Youth Leadership Central Florida, a new group sponsored by Junior Achievement.

The organization is modeled after the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Orlando course. Students will meet monthly to tour local industries and agencies to learn about the present and discuss possibilities for the future.

"We really feel like these kids are the leaders of tomorrow," Allene Scarce, Junior Achievement vice president for operations, said.

There are no eligibility requirements for students wishing to apply to the program other than they be 11th graders and they maintain a B average in their school work.

Twenty-two schools from Seminole, Osceola and Orange counties had at least one representative on the council.

Junior Achievement hopes to expose the students to local issues and community needs in order to prepare them to be effective community leaders.

"By presenting the advantages of the area along with the assets, needs, potential and promise, we hope to encourage these young people, who are potential leaders, to stay here in Central Florida after school," Scarce said.

Big rush for liquor licenses

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's liquor-licensing officials are braced for what they expect will be an all-time record rush of applications for 269 valuable "quota-liquor" permits, including 12 in Seminole County.

A "quota-liquor" license is one of several types of liquor permits issued by the state, but it is widely regarded as the most coveted one — because it is the one that allows the holder to operate a bar or lounge, and because they are in very scarce supply.

Of the 12 licenses designated for Seminole County, three will be issued only to Seminole County applicants who are not current license holders so that "some of those people who don't have licenses have a chance to get one," according to P.J. Goings, service clerk at the Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco in Orlando.

Anyone wishing to obtain a liquor permit may come into the Orlando office during the enrollment period which started last Thursday and will continue for three months. Fill out an application and send it off to Tallahassee with a $100 fee, Goings said.

The state issues the quota licenses according to a strict formula — one license per county for every 2,500 people — and they are offered only once a year, when an increase in population warrants the issuance of additional licenses.

Only 33 of Florida's 60 "wet" counties are affected by this year's licensing offer, and officials of the Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco expect more than 30,000 applications to be filed with their offices.

And it's not just because the licenses are so valuable, said L.B. Schoenfeld, bureau chief of the division. The turnout is expected to hit a record high, he said, because the Legislature changed the law this year to allow a person who wins one of the licenses to sell it to the highest bidder.

"It used to be that the person who got one of the licenses had to keep it for three years and

Prison overcrowding seen worsening

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's prison overcrowding will worsen despite the construction of another 9,000 beds this year, corrections officials predicted.

Their projections show the number of new inmates admitted to the prison system will grow from over 39,000 this fiscal year to more than 101,000 in the 1994-1995 fiscal year. Drug crimes are blamed for most of the increase.

Corrections officials said that puts more emphasis on alternative prison programs, but so far there is little agreement on how to handle the problem. Four different panels are studying the problem.

Hispanic leaders knock English teachers

KISSIMMEE — Hispanic leaders charged that Florida public schools are not doing enough to teach English to non-English speaking children, and said they may file a lawsuit.

Leaders of the League of United Latin American Citizens said the problem exists statewide. Currently, 48 of Florida's 67 county school districts have special programs designed to teach English to students who do not have a reasonable mastery of the language. Other counties have remedial programs designed to augment limited English skills.

LULAC said it is concerned that Hispanic students may not understand enough English to keep up in class, increasing the chances that they will drop out of school.

Measels feared on rise in Florida

GAINESVILLE — State health officials said 135 cases of measles had been confirmed in the state, and another 47 possible cases are under investigation.

The record number of measles cases reported in Florida was 400, set during an outbreak in Miami in 1986. But some officials think this year's outbreak could be worse.

There have been over 9,200 confirmed measles cases reported nationwide in the past year, causing 29 deaths. The outbreak nationwide is the worst since 1980.

So far, Dade County has been hardest hit with 53 cases reported. There have been another 49 confirmed in Orange and Seminole counties, and 40 in Duval County.

Convenience stores laundering money?

Federal authorities have implicated officials at an Indianapolis real estate development company in connection with a plan to launder drug money through Florida convenience stores and overseas banks.

The IRS and the U.S. Customs Service are investigating Vancorp Chairman Jerry W. Slusser. Slusser built Vancorp by developing hospitals and medical complexes.

Last month, federal agents searched Vancorp's offices and seized records involving Slusser and Vancorp's financing officers, Charles W. Howell and Hans-Juergen Brinks.

Federal investigators suspect Slusser approved a failed plan by an employee to acquire and invest drug money from a New Orleans dealer. Investigators want to know if Vancorp officials approved any similar plans that succeeded.

Howell, 63, has already been indicted by a New Orleans federal grand jury in the alleged money laundering scheme.

As for the investigation of Slusser and Brinks, Slusser said it was a "misunderstanding."

"I don't think Brinks and I are implicated by any means. We have no idea what's going on. There are no charges against us, just against Charlie Howell," Slusser said.

Bumper peanut crop predicted

GAINESVILLE — Florida peanut growers are expecting their best crop in five years, topping last year's $81 million crop with more than 92,000 acres of peanuts under harvest.

The crop is not expected to be a record, but increased moisture in northwest Florida has considerably improved the outlook for the peanut crop, which was ruined by drought in the mid-1980s.

Georgia is the nation's largest peanut state, producing 690,000 acres worth over $500 million last year. Most of Florida's peanut crop is grown near the Georgia line.

Yeltsin favors autonomy for republics

MIAMI — Outspoken Soviet politician Boris Yeltsin wrapped up an eight-day trip to the United States Sunday by calling on the Soviet Union to grant political and economic freedom to its member republics.

"We have to adopt laws granting genuine political sovereignty and independence to the union republics of the country, so that the inhabitants will be able to decide on their own at a later date if they want to stay in the U.S.S.R.," the white-haired politician said.

People in the Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia have held demonstrations recently to protest their homelands' forced inclusion in the Soviet Union in 1940.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Jacksonville covers toplessness

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — Topless dancers have been deserting Duval County for more accommodating climes since an ordinance banning liquor sales at nude bars reformed or closed all but two of the establishments.

There were 18 such businesses in Jacksonville when the city council adopted the ordinance in October 1987. Some tried to skirt the law by offering drinks and dancing at different times, but a crackdown put an end to that.

The two remaining topless bars, the Doll House and Gypsy's, now serve non-alcoholic drinks. Ten still serve alcohol but the dancers are quite covered. Three have stopped using dancers and two others have closed. The Florida Times-Union reported Sunday.

"You can't survive without alcohol," said Fred Bedran, owner of the SOS Lounge. "I don't know how the nude bars are doing it."

Councilman Clarence Suggs, a co-sponsor of the ordinance, agreed with Bedran's assessment.

"I think it makes for a better city," Suggs said. "I've never cared for those types of places."

Employees and owners of bars that have put bathing suits and similar clothes on dancers say the move has cut business in half. It's difficult to find dancers in the area now because so many have moved to cities such as Orlando, which still permit topless dancing.

Dancers who dispense with clothing get bigger tips.

"No one wants to come in anymore, said a dancer at the Green Door who asked that her name not be used. "You can't blame them."

The bar owners filed a flurry of lawsuits in state and federal court seeking to overturn the ordinance, but lost virtually every challenge and have about run out of legal options, the newspaper said.

Numerous citations were issued in the first few months after the ordinance was approved. But violations decreased from month to month, said Sgt. David Kilcrease of the vice squad. Nowadays, violations tend to involve costumes deemed too revealing or dancers who expose themselves.

"Sometimes you get a dancer who may have had too much to drink. But most owners are trying to follow the law," Kilcrease said.

State officials say drug arrests at the establishments have also declined since the ordinance was approved. "It's like someone turned a light switch on," said Capt. Mark Willingham of the Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco in the state Department of Business Regulation.

Customers interviewed by the newspaper were none too happy about the turn in events, saying the bars did not hurt anybody. "Nobody has to come in here unless they want to," said a customer who identified himself only as John.

Now cities including Fort Lauderdale have contacted Jacksonville officials and are considering their own tougher new laws modeled on the one there.

Police wanted arrest to aid pregnant addict

United Press International

WINTER GARDEN — Police say they arrested a pregnant cocaine addict for her own good, but are worried now because she was released on bond before space could be found for her in a rehabilitation program.

Julie Handley, 23, faces 20 years in prison following her arrest Aug. 10 on charges of buying and possessing cocaine. She was eight months pregnant and informants said she was using food stamps to buy cocaine.

The informants were people close to Handley who were worried about her, the unborn baby and her other children, aged 2, 3 and 7.

"This was a desperate attempt to get this woman off the street," said Detective John Gardner.

Handley, whose baby is due this week, told The Orlando Sentinel for Sunday editions she bears no grudges and is trying to straighten out her life.

"I know I don't have a craving for drugs," she said. "After I about had my kids taken away and got put in jail — no way.

"I didn't want to have to go to jail," she added. "I hope to God I don't have to go again."

Some health officials have questioned the wisdom of arresting pregnant addicts, saying they need more treatment programs than the state currently provides. The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services plans to spend $5 million next year to reach and educate pregnant addicts.

"If we put them in jail, we're just putting a Band-Aid on it," said Tommy Herman, a recovering alcoholic and cocaine addict and founder of Snowbabies, which helps care for children of cocaine addicts. "They're sick and they need love, too."

Family members say they are trying to care for Handley, but police had hoped she would get treatment in jail. She did get religious counseling, but the day a room opened up for her in the rehabilitation program was the same day Handley was released on bond.

Babies exposed to drugs harmed, study confirms

United Press International

MIAMI — Babies who are exposed to drugs in their mothers' wombs before birth develop concentration difficulties that eventually could affect their school and job performance, according to a study released Sunday.

"Cognitively, intellectually, these babies are OK, but they can't perform," said Dr. Ira Chasnoff, a Chicago pediatrician who released the results of his study at a National Association of Perinatal Addiction Research and Education meeting.

The mothers of more than 375,000 children nationwide have used drugs during pregnancy, the association estimates.

These children are "going to have behavioral and developmental issues that are going to impinge on their abilities to enter the workforce," Chasnoff said.

Chasnoff's findings are based on his two-year study of 228 babies born to women who used drugs during pregnancy and 49 born to women who did not use drugs.

It found that by age 2, the drug-exposed babies showed significant physical and behavioral differences from those not exposed to drugs.

Drug-exposed babies were about the same height and weight as the others, but their head circumferences were smaller.

Because a child's head grows as the brain pressures it to do so, "this has a lot of implications for long-term development," said Chasnoff, president of the association and professor of pediatrics at Northwestern University.

The study also found that the babies exposed to drugs performed as well as the others on cognitive and motor skills tests.

Small town's opposition surprises, stymies Texaco

LOYD — Texaco Trading and Transportation Inc. has been trying for nearly a year to get approval to build a 6.5-million-gallon petroleum-storage terminal in this rural north Florida community, but it has had to fight public opposition every step of the way.

And that's a big surprise to Texaco, because it thought it was offering the sleepy little community a deal that it couldn't refuse — a few jobs for locals, an additional $55,000 to the Jefferson County tax roll and a fire truck to Lloyd's volunteer Fire Department.

Lloyd is a speck of a town off I-10, an unincorporated village in economic slumber. Its main drag is a dirt road. All but one of its stores has closed down. Several stately pre-Civil War homes — and many of the mobile variety — dot the landscape.

It's an unlikely battleground for one of the largest corporations in the world, but that's as soon as Texaco goes away."

The opponents' three lawsuits are against the planning commission for violating Florida government-in-the-sunshine laws, the county commission for illegally giving the planning commission power to decide zoning matters and the state Department of Community Affairs for failing to designate the proposed terminal — and the 45-mile pipeline that will supply it fuel — a "development of regional impact."

They've also run newspaper ads in the bi-weekly Monticello News citing Texaco's ties to South American corporations and claiming the terminal would be a potential environmental hazard.

Texaco has run newspaper ads of its own proclaiming the high-tech safety features of the tanks, the impermeable barrier that will keep petroleum from seeping into the groundwater, and the economic boon the terminal would bring.

Lloyd is a speck of a town off I-10, an unincorporated village in economic slumber where the main drag is a dirt road and all but one of its stores has closed.

what it's become. And the battle over the $5-million project has divided the community, causing bitter feelings on both sides.

"We were invited into the county by the economic development corporation," said Joe Kelly, public and government affairs manager for Texaco USA. "We were surprised by the opposition."

Public opposition has kept the company off-schedule by six months so far. And by the time the legal suits filed by a group calling itself the Friends of Lloyd are wrangled out in federal court, Texaco may not be able to break ground until next spring — if ever.

Leading the opposition is Bob Rackleff, an independent corporate consultant and former speech-writer for Jimmy Carter. He and the Friends of Lloyd say the terminal would present environmental risks and would devalue the already depressed land values around Lloyd, ruining any long-term chances for economic development.

Using his own money and legal help from a lobbying group for environmental and shipping interests, Rackleff has sacrificed about $20,000 in personal income to devote his time to keeping the oil giant at bay.

"I'm trying to battle Texaco and make a living at the same time," said Rackleff, who lives in a house built in 1847 that he and his wife are renovating. "I can get back to being a human being

County criticizes charter critic

By J. MARK BARFIELD
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Attorney Bob McMillan has accused charter critic Bob Webster of wasting the county's and the circuit court's time by failing to respond to a July order by Judge Kenneth M. Leffler.

"They're wasting time," McMillan said. "They're wasting the court's time by having me continually file these motions."

"I think I've complied," said Webster's attorney, Johnnie McLeod. "(The county) is ignoring the issues and playing word games."

McMillan filed a request to dismiss Webster's case against the county Sept. 13, charging Webster failed to file documents in a timely manner.

"(Webster) appears to want, for some unknown reason, to drag it out as long as he can," McMillan wrote in his motion to Leffler.

Since Webster, a member of the Seminole County Charter Advisory Committee, filed suit against the county a little more than a year ago to prevent the Nov. 8 charter referendum, no hearings have been held to consider the merits of the case, only procedural matters.

This past Oct. 20, Leffler denied Webster's request to prevent the referendum without hearing arguments on the issues in Webster's complaint, but allowed him to continue the case if the charter was approved.

Webster challenged the legality of the charter, saying a copy of the charter was not included in county records for an adequate time for the public to view them prior to the county commission's adoption Sept. 20, 1988.

Webster also said the charter violated constitutional mandates for separation between county administration and legislation by shifting responsibilities to the county manager's position.

Voters were unswayed by publicity of Webster's arguments and voted to approve the charter by a 58 percent margin. The charter is a document that defines Seminole County's form of government and how it is to function. The charter took effect on Jan. 1.

On June 22, 1989, Leffler allowed Webster a delay in pursuing the Seminole County case until 10 days after the Florida Supreme Court ruled on a similar case involving the Orange County Charter. McLeod said the Supreme Court's decision might apply to the Seminole County case.

The Supreme Court ruled June 15 that Orange County's charter was legal, but sent the case back to the Fifth District Court of Appeals to overturn its earlier decision in favor of Webster. McLeod said the Orange County decision of June 15 did not address issues in the Seminole County case. "I wish it did," McLeod said.

McLeod asked for a rehearing, but was denied on Aug. 18, according to the county's court documents. McMillan said the Supreme Court's decision became final on Aug. 18 when it refused to reconsider its decision and at that time, Webster had 10 days to file additional information as ordered by Leffler.

McLeod said the case wasn't final until the appeals court changed its earlier position as ordered by the Supreme Court. The Fifth District Court of Appeals overturned its earlier position Sept. 6. That appeals decision ended the Orange County case, McLeod said. But the Sept. 6 date became the start of Leffler's 10-day clock to continue the Seminole County case, McLeod said.

"We have until Monday (today) to file something because the 16th is on a Saturday," McLeod said. "But I already did, you see."

McLeod did file documents to the court Aug. 28 — 10 days after the Supreme Court's final decision, but McMillan said they did not comply with Leffler's order because they were new pleadings. McLeod said the documents were intended to comply with Leffler's order and did not enter new pleadings.

McLeod said he is willing to allow Leffler to decide the applicability of the documents.

1 ticket wins Lotto prize

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The $6 million jackpot in Saturday night's Lotto drawing will be paid to a single person for a ticket bought in Ft. Lauderdale.

Besides the grand prize winner, 354 Lotto players won $2,237 by matching five of six of the numbers drawn: 19, 479 numbers matched four to win $59.50 and 317,182 players matched three to win $3.50.

The six winning numbers for Saturday were 3, 5, 13, 19, 30 and 34, Paul said.

Southern governors at 3-day meeting

United Press International

WILMINGTON, Del. — The annual Southern Governors Association meeting began Sunday in what was called "a good working atmosphere" to deal with issues such as education, drug abuse and economic development.

Governors from 13 Southern states planned to take part in the conference.

"There's a really good working atmosphere here," said Susan Williams, spokeswoman for Republican Delaware Gov. Mike Castle, association chairman. "We've got a really strong agenda."

The arriving chief executives were greeted with a report on ways to modernize economic development to meet a changing global economy. The report said the era of luring businesses and manufacturers with promises of lower taxes, lower wages and lower energy costs is over.

"The emphasis is on taking this region into the global economy, rather than continuing to steal from each other," Williams said, noting that many Southern states compete against each other rather than foreign competitors.

Williams noted that the Southern states have changed dramatically since World War II, evolving from a low-wage and low-skill region to a region with a sophisticated workforce with technological capability.

Global competition will get much attention during the conference, with a luncheon planned to discuss economic opportunities in Europe for the Southern states. Michael Mansfield, former U.S. ambassador to Japan, will speak to the governors about Pacific Rim opportunities and developments.

President Bush's chief economic adviser, Michael Boskin, will address the governors Monday, pushing back a session on drug issues featuring speeches by the governors of Florida and Maryland.

Also on Monday's agenda is a conference on infant mortality.

More fiber, less cancer

It sounds almost too good to be true; a simple change of diet could save tens of thousands of lives in America alone each year. But that is the finding implicit in the results of a study conducted by Dr. Jerome J. DeCossé, a New York surgeon and researcher.

Details of the study published by The Journal of the National Cancer Institute show that adding fiber to the diet can greatly reduce the risk of colon-rectal cancer, the most frequent form of deadly cancer found in the United States. It affects more than 150,000 Americans every year and causes more than 80,000 deaths.

The study is significant because it is the first to show that an ordinary foodstuff can halt and even reverse the formation of growths that eventually turn cancerous.

Over a period of four years, Dr. DeCossé examined 58 people with a very high risk of developing colon-rectal cancer. Among those who ate two servings every day of a cereal very high in bran, the potentially lethal growths were much more likely to have shrunk in size and number than to have grown.

Understandably, the National Cancer Institute is treating the findings with professional caution. Dr. Peter Greenwald, director of the institute's Division of Cancer Prevention and Control, calls the results "encouraging" and warns that further research is needed to refine and extend the findings.

At the same time, however, he is optimistic enough to recommend that the public be informed immediately about the benefits of a fiber-rich diet. He says fiber is particularly important to those with family histories of colon-rectal cancer because they are three times more likely to develop the disease than the average American.

Bran of the kind used in the study is an insoluble wheat fiber, but Dr. Greenwald said other types of fiber might also be beneficial, including vegetables, fruits, whole grains and dried peas and beans.

As yet, scientists have no idea why fiber has such a beneficial effect. Not that it matters. The main thing is that it is harmless in reasonable amounts and it seems to work.

Tennis' first lady

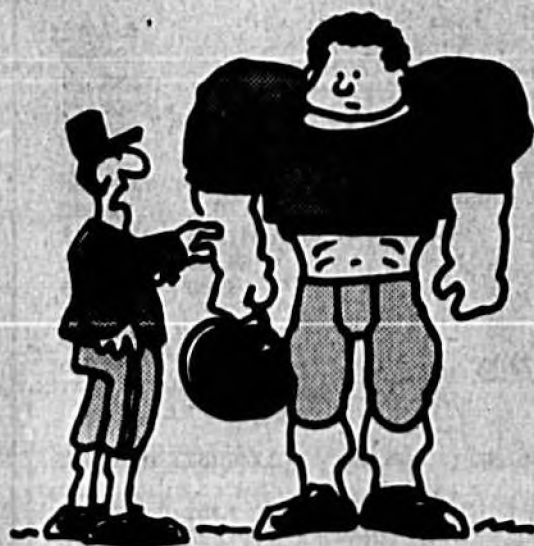

Chris Evert suffered some tough beatings during the twilight of her distinguished tennis career. But win or lose on the court — and over the years she won far more often than she lost — Evert has earned the heartfelt applause of the tennis world for the manner in which, in Kiplinger's phrase, she treated triumph and disaster just the same. She rarely, if ever, lost her temper, and never her dignity.

From her professional debut as a 15-year-old, Evert always came to win and usually did: She won three Wimbledon, seven French, two Australian and six U.S. Open titles, and won more matches overall than any player in tennis history. At Wimbledon, she reached the semifinals 17 times in 18 years, including this year when, at 34, she lost in the semifinals to the superior speed and power of 20-year-old Steffi Graf, perhaps the best woman player ever.

Evert's unsmiling determination and a cool facade led critics during her early years to dub her the "ice princess." But she matured gracefully, always behaved graciously toward her own foibles, and unfailingly gave generous credit to those who beat her. Indeed, judging by her behavior after Zina Garrison eliminated her from this year's U.S. Open, one might have thought it was Evert who had won.

Badly as she wanted to win, she recognized and accepted, as many do not, that there is a life beyond the limelight. As she retires from major competition, Chris Evert leaves behind a record, on and off the court, that few can hope to match.

Yo, Lord, it's me and I be miserable

News Item: On Aug. 23, Yusuf Hawkins, a black Brooklyn teen-ager, was shot and killed when he went into the all-white neighborhood of Bensonhurst to look at a used car.

News Item: On Sept. 5, President Bush declared war on drugs.

With America caught in a deadly vise of drugs and racism, I knew my Harlem friend, Booker Leroy Jackson, would be pondering this national breakdown.

Sure enough, he had written a prayer. For reasons you'll soon see, Booker didn't want me to read this prayer. But I sneaked a peek when he left his Harlem apartment to play his daily number:

Yo, Lord — It's me again, and I be miserable. I knelt down to pray this morning, but felt right lonely. Like we sing in church, "Way down yonder by myself, I couldn't hear nobody pray." Somebody may be prayin', but either you ain't hearin' us or we ain't prayin' loud enough. If we did, we wouldn't be lettin' drugs and racism crucify us.

White folks be lucky. All they got to worry 'bout is drugs messin' up their lives. Black peop'les got to fight drugs and racism just to stay alive. But when I be kneelin' down, Lord, do I ask you to deliver us from drugs first or from racism?

Yusuf Hawkins is dead, and I pray for his soul. An honor student, Lord. And he don't be sharin' no cocaine in his neighborhood. He jes' be wearin' his black skin in Bensonhurst. Some white stud shot him only cus he be black.

That's a heavy cross to bear, Lord. But white America done decided we got to carry this cross we thought we laid down 20 years ago. So, we be gettin' gunned down on white streets, beating ourselves down on black streets, knocked down in the Supreme Court and bring down in the White House.

President Bush be part of our problem, Lord, cus he so jive. Now, I know Chuck Stone like this man and believe that "kinder, gentler" spouse to include black folks. But Chuck Stone be buyin' a pig in the poke in a minute. He see a picture of President Bush or Mrs. Bush holding a little colored baby, and he think that be right nice. But Lord, Mr. Bush don't be speakin' out on how bad white racism is today. He don't think it be wrong that a Ku Klux Klan man be servin' in public office. He think that when he pick up that little black baby sufferin' from cocaine and say, "suffer little children, come unto me," he be makin' up for all of the other little black babies who be growin' up to suffer from white folks sayin' affirmative action has got to go.

I pray, Lord, that you deliver this country from racism and help us put drug dealers away forever. And, please help drug addicts to kick their habit. But, Lord, President Bush don't be doin' his part. He be fightin' drugs like he fight racism. By pickin' up little black babies. His li'l ol' $7.8 billion to fight drugs ain't doody squat.

Them savings and loan associations ain't fightin' no crime waves, Lord, but President Bush done gave $150 billion to keep them in business — and dig, Lord — so some of them can launder drug dealers' money! We done spent $22 billion just to build one Steal-Away bomber, and it don't even be stealin' away to nowhere.

But, Lord, maybe you touched President Bush's heart when he say that neighbors workin' with neighbors can get rid of drugs.

White America decided we got to carry this cross.

It isn't possible to make nature

BOSTON — We are watching nature on television. This time the central characters are chimpanzees, though they could as easily be lions or ants or whales. All sorts of creatures come into our home enlarged or diminished to the same 21-inch size.

We are loyal members of nature's audience, armchair naturalists who have the jungle and desert brought to us by electronic room service. We have taken any number of two-sense specials to the Arctic or Outback, using our eyes and ears.

But it occurs to me this night that we are not alone in this posture. Most of us are observers or, at the most, visitors to nature these days. It isn't just true for those who live in concrete cities. It's true in the so-called country as well. The world we live in now is one of people and the environment as it has been altered by people.

There is hardly a spot on Earth now untouched by our species, hardly a place left where humans are part of nature rather than its masters and manipulators. There is hardly a spot untouched by human hand or plow or, for the matter, camera.

The settings for my nature shows, vast African preserves, are less "wild" than I would like to believe and more like the reproduced nature of San Diego's man-made seas: artificially flavored. Untilled land, virgin prairie, is so rare that in North Dakota patches of it are marked for tourists as a kind of prairie museum. Come and see real live soil.

However different the experiences of watching nature on television or visiting it in clearly marked paths in national parks, it is rare that we experience what our ancestors knew as a truly natural world. A world in which they felt awe and humility. Now, by altering the atmosphere, the very weather, there is in fact nothing untouched by humans.

This is the why Bill McKibben's stunning piece of global warning in the Sept. 11 New Yorker is called "The End of Nature." It is not a doomsday diatribe, although his reflections have the conceptual power of Jonathan Schell's "Fate of the Earth." But from his home in the Adirondacks, McKibben doesn't chart the end of the world, but of the natural order.

"An idea can become extinct, just like an animal or a plant," he writes. "The idea in this case is 'nature' — the wild province, the world apart from man, under whose rules he was born and died."

By changing the temperature, we have changed those rules. They are ours and not nature's. The greenhouse effect is not just a metaphor about heat and light. The central reality of a greenhouse is that it is manufactured by people. "We have built a greenhouse — a human creation — where once there bloomed a sweet and wild garden."

Weather reports even now include smog levels, pollution counts. But the whole sense of the world changes when there's August heat on a September day and October rain in January. When, as McKibben writes, "out in the wild, the sunshine on one's shoulders is a reminder that man has cracked the ozone."

McKibben makes clear, as few scientific tracks could, that doing nothing about the fossil fuels blanketing the Earth "will lead us, if not straight to hell, then straight to a place with a comparable temperature." But he is more than skeptical about hi-tech solutions. Though it might be possible to survive in the greenhouse we are building by ever more technological measures, just as it is possible to save a condor or to replicate human reproduction in a petri dish, it isn't possible to make nature. You can only let nature be.

In some ways that has been the moral message of the ecology movement. Limits. Restraints. We learned to stop using DDT and we are learning to do without chlorofluorocarbons, and must stop releasing carbon dioxide. More profoundly, as McKibben writes, "Deep ecology suggests that instead of just giving better orders we learn to give fewer and fewer orders — to sink back into the natural world..."

Americans, perhaps our whole human species, are better at building dikes to ward off the rising waters, and dams for power, at dealing with crises as if they were independent emergencies. But the problem here is much more radical: "The problem is that nature, the independent force that has surrounded us since our earliest days, cannot coexist with our numbers and our habits." How will we muster the will to see ourselves as the problem to solve?

Nature is already pushed back to prairie museums, zoos, national parks, protected endangered species. Now, in McKibben's work, there is another late reminder that if we don't limit our numbers and our habits, all we'll have of nature will be the videotapes.

You can only let nature be.

Worthy addendum to Bush drug plan

WASHINGTON — President Bush's strategy to win the war against drugs overlooked the most effective weapon of all. The surest way to put drug traffickers out of business, in our opinion, is to go after their profits.

We urge Congress to create a "National Finance Guard" to track, intercept and seize drug profits. This should be an elite force of the nation's sharpest financial experts, empowered by Congress to monitor banking transactions, subpoena financial records and confiscate assets that are illegally acquired.

The National Security Agency already has the resources to eavesdrop on the drug rings, intercept their communications and trace their banking transactions electronically. Since the Medellín cocaine cartel of Colombia is a subterranean superpower that threatens U.S. security, the National Security Agency should focus its all-seeing and all-hearing devices on the drug traffickers.

Washington should then call upon all nations to adopt emergency laws and treaties that would authorize the confiscation of drug money, with severe penalties against banks that knowingly launder dirty dollars. Nations that refuse to cooperate, such as Panama, should be barred from access to the international monetary system.

These moves would permit the "Finance Guard" to intercept drug profits before they can be laundered and strip the drug dealers of their assets. Billions of dollars should be confiscated, enough to finance the continuing war on drugs.

Congress should also empower the "Finance Guard" to trace laundered money that is invested in legitimate enterprises. Underworld investments contaminate legitimate businesses, undermine their independence and obstruct free competition. Any holdings knowingly purchased with drug money should be subject to penalties or confiscation.

While these measures are drying up drug profits, stronger measures could also be taken to dry up the drug market. By their purchases, drug users have brought a plague upon America. Recreational users and hard-line addicts alike are accomplices to the murder and misery that the drug gangs have spread.

We should declare drug users to be Public Enemy No. 1 and treat them as such. We should call for the prosecution of every user who is caught and a stiff fine against everyone who is convicted. The fines should be in line with the user's ability to pay, so the penalty hits the rich as hard as the poor. The money should be spent confining the addicts to drug treatment centers until they are cured.

To stimulate enforcement, Congress should authorize a reward for informers. If their information leads to convictions and confiscations, they should receive 10 percent of the confiscated assets. This would unleash a horde of modern bounty hunters upon the pushers and their customers.

Many of our suggestions could be implemented under existing laws, but it will take tough new laws to win the war against drugs. We remind our political leaders that nothing troubles Americans more deeply than the horror of drugs with the terrible toll in violent crimes and ruined lives. An overwhelming 92 percent of American adults, according to a Gallup poll, want tougher laws and stronger action.

There are nayayers who claim that the anti-drug fervor among Americans could lead to a trampling of constitutional rights. Let's not stand by and watch our nation destroyed because we do not trust the strength of the Constitution or our public commitment to it.

Declare drug users to be Public Enemy No. 1.

Exile community greets Chamorro

United Press International

MIAMI — Nicaraguan presidential candidate Violeta Chamorro was greeted Sunday by a crowd of exuberant exiles on her first visit to the United States since being chosen as the opposition leader in the upcoming election.

Not everyone in Miami's Nicaraguan community backs her candidacy, however, and some say she is not the best choice to defeat the Sandinistas, who have held power in Nicaragua since the Somoza regime was toppled in 1979.

Chamorro, whose family publishes the influential newspaper La Prensa, spoke only briefly at a celebration of Nicaraguan independence in Bayfront Park before wading into the crowd.

She is running for the presidency under the banner of a 14-party coalition called the National Opposition Union. Chamorro is the widow of newspaper publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, whose murder helped spark the overthrow of Anastasio Somoza.

The Sandinista Party is expected to nominate President Daniel Ortega as its candidate in the February election.

While in Miami, Chamorro is expected to attend a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner Monday sponsored by the Cuban American National Foundation and the Nicaraguan Civic Task Force.

Although some Nicaraguan exiles tout Chamorro as the candidate who can oust the Sandinista government, others disagree.

"Everyone is saying the election is beautiful and she dresses well, but that is not going to solve the problems of our country or give us democracy and liberty," Mario Bonilla, president of the American Association of Nicaraguan Doctors in Exile, told The Miami Herald.

"She's not the best person to beat the Sandinista monsters," Jose Antonio Alvarado, leader of the group hosting Chamorro, said. "Let us for a moment forget our political orientations and support her; let us beat the Sandinistas."

Cristobal Mendosa, who was expected to be among a group of protesters opposing Chamorro at the Sunday celebration, said recent immigrants and refugees from his country are concerned Chamorro's victory could give Americans a false impression of democracy in Nicaragua.

That, he said, could make the United States less favorable to those who petition for asylum.

"Everyone who doesn't have a green card fears they will have to return to Nicaragua if she wins the election," said Henry Benavides, leader of the Union for Nicaraguan Solidarity in Exile.

Nationwide seafood inspections urged

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A mandatory inspection program is needed to ensure that seafood is free of potentially deadly contaminants, consumer and industry groups told Congress.

Seafood is the only "fresh" food not subject to mandatory federal inspection.

Under the proposed Fish and Fish Products Safety Act of 1989, all fish and shellfish sold in the United States would be regularly monitored for contaminants.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., co-author of the legislation, said, "Many consumers are wary about the safety of fish. There is good reason for their lack of confidence. They have heard many stories about contamination."

America's annual seafood consumption increased more than 20 percent between 1980 and 1987, but dropped last year. Imported fish, which makes up about two-thirds of U.S. consumption, would be covered by the proposed law.

At a House subcommittee hearing Friday, Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Frank Young estimated that seafood is 1 1/2 times more likely to cause illness than poultry and three times more risky than beef.

From 1983 to 1987, seafood accounted for 5 percent of all cases of foodborne illness reported to the Centers for Disease Control, but Young said, "We believe seafood is basically safe and dramatic fixes are not needed."

Source of seafood-related illness are bacteria, viruses, natural toxins, parasites, chemicals, decomposition and mishandling. Some illnesses can be life-threatening, especially in older people and those with poor immune systems.

Ellen Haas, of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, said her group supports the House legislation. But Haas questioned the FDA's ability "to carry out the kind of rigorous, comprehensive inspection required to prevent contaminated fish and shellfish from reaching the American consumer."

In January, Public Voice reported that nine of 23 states in the FDA's voluntary shellfish sanitation program in 1987 had "major program deficiencies of public health significance." Those states produced half of the U.S. shellfish harvest.

Currently, the FDA inspects about 25 percent of seafood processing plants annually. It does not check fishing vessels.

Young said he feels mandatory seafood inspection is a good idea. The Bush administration has taken no position on the bill, due mainly to battles over which agency would head the effort and financing questions.

The proposed law would put the FDA in charge of seafood inspection and allow it to enlist help from other agencies, like the National Marine Fisheries Service.

The students will try to build relationships with local business leaders. In October, they will visit Orlando International Airport to study the transportation industry and discuss growth management in the area, Scarce said.

In future meetings, the students will discuss strategies with representatives of law enforcement, human services, education, business and government.

According to Scarce, Junior Achievement wanted to present the students with leadership skills so they can become effective leaders.

"We want these children to be equipped to help us have a successful future," Scarce said.

use it for the specified period of time," Schoenfeld said. "That person can now sell his right to the license or the license itself."

Which means that the number of applicants is expected to expand to include speculators — in other words, people who have no intention of ever using the license themselves.

"It's not a bad deal, if you think about it," Schoenfeld said. "All someone has to do is gamble the $100 filing fee to participate in the drawing, and they could end up with a license that is worth up to maybe $100,000 in some cases."

The value of each license varies according to the county of applicability. A permit for Dade or Broward counties, for instance, which will have 37 and 34 new quota licenses respectively, is deemed more valuable than a license in low-population counties like Okechobee, Walton, Jackson and Leon, which will have one each this year. Applications for the licenses are being accepted at division field offices throughout the state until Dec. 12. Winners will be selected through a Lottery-like double random computer drawing and will be required to pay a one-time $5,000 fee for the right to the license and $1,785 for the license itself.

Someone who wants to transfer his license to another person will have to pay a transfer equal to 15 times the annual license fee in the appropriate county, and Schoenfeld said a savvy speculator would probably include the transfer fee as part of his price for selling the license.

Florida has roughly 4,000 quota licenses in circulation, and that is about half of the total for licenses that permit on-premise consumption of alcohol. The other half is composed of licenses for businesses such as restaurants and hotels that offer liquor sales in addition to other services.

So hard-to-get are the quota

Shevardnadze arrives for talks

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The U.S.-Soviet dialogue, which slowed in the early months of the Bush administration, moves into high gear this week with a visit by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze that is certain to shape the outlook for a superpower summit.

Although the president's advisers profess they are not thinking in terms of a superpower summit, the prospect of a formal meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will be very much in the background when President Bush meets Thursday with Shevardnadze at the White House.

The Soviets have told U.S. officials that Shevardnadze will deliver an important letter from Gorbachev, fueling speculation of new proposals on arms control or a possible summit.

The U.S. side, however, is not expected to offer any surprise initiatives of its own in the talks with Shevardnadze that will begin with a White House meeting with Bush, then continue with Secretary of State James Baker in the scenic and isolated setting of Jackson Hole, Wyo.

A delegation of Soviet officials arrived over the weekend to lay the final groundwork for the talks, which U.S. officials expect to cover a full range of issues — quite possibly without dramatic results.

For their part, the Soviets appear more eager for a summit than the Americans and have faulted Washington both for a lack of tangible progress at the strategic arms reduction talks in Geneva and for the still-contentious situation in Afghanistan.

The United States wants to press its appeal for Moscow to help bring about a peaceful settlement in Nicaragua, where the U.S.-backed Contra rebels have been at war against a Marxist-led regime armed and financed by the Soviet Union and Cuba.

While Baker and Shevardnadze may be able to wrap up accords on monitoring nuclear tests and sizing up stockpiles of chemical weapons, the complex details of cuts in strategic and conventional forces remain the work of negotiators in Geneva and Vienna.

From the day after he was elected, Bush has taken pains not to rush into a summit with Gorbachev. In recent months, the root of that caution has shifted from doubts about Gorbachev's intentions to concern about the political and economic implications his policies hold for the United States and Europe.

"We've got to be a little cautious on what happens in all these different troubled areas that Gorbachev has," Senate GOP leader Robert Dole of Kansas said Sunday on the NBC News program "Meet the Press," "but we want him to succeed."

At a time when Gorbachev has his hands full, battling nationalist uprisings, labor unrest and entrenched economic problems, the White House had no intention of giving a high-profile welcome to Yeltsin.

Quayle heads to Far East

WASHINGTON — Vice President Dan Quayle's fourth foreign mission began today with a flight to Alaska. The 11-day trip is to the Pacific Rim nations of South Korea, Japan, the Philippines and Malaysia.

Quayle's primary mission will be to head the American delegation to the International Democratic Union Conference in Tokyo, a gathering of conservative party leaders from Western democracies.

But his itinerary also will include high-level meetings with key officials in each country, as well as his first session with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher while in Tokyo.

On his way to the strategic Pacific Rim nations, Quayle first will tackle a touchy domestic issue when he stops in Anchorage, Alaska, for a refueling stop.

There, accompanied by Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, Quayle was scheduled to meet today with federal, state and local officials, as well as fishermen, to review the clean-up efforts of the massive oil spill at Valdez, Alaska. Exxon ended a six-month salvage effort on Friday.

Quayle's press secretary, David Beckwith, said the vice president will spend three hours on the oil spill before heading next to Seoul, South Korea, for the first stop of his foreign swing.

Dole may support more limits on guns

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he would like to see Congress draft a bill limiting the use of semi-automatic weapons and suggested that the lawmakers "might go further than the president" in setting such limits.

The nationwide debate over limiting the use of semi-automatic weapons intensified once again this week with a 30-minute killing spree in Louisville, Ky., by Joseph Weisbecker, who killed seven people and wounded 13 with an Ak-47 assault rifle before turning another gun on himself.

Dole, in an interview Sunday with NBC News's "Meet the Press," noted the difficulty in limiting the sale of assault weapons.

"We've looked at ways we could ban some of the guns, and some of the domestic manufacture of some of the weapons like the AK-47, but it's hard to get, hard to describe," the Senate minority leader said.

"Will we do it?" Dole said of suggestions that Congress should take action to limit assault weapons. "We need to find out. Let's get a bill on the Senate floor. Let's find out what happens. There's a chance we might go further than the president has gone."

More money for developing nations

WASHINGTON — The World Bank said it will increase its lending to developing nations to between $20 billion and $25 billion in its fiscal year 1990, compared with $21.3 billion the year before.

The bank's annual report Sunday covered the lending of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the World Bank's official name, and its International Development Association affiliate, which lends to the poorest countries under concessionary terms.

IBRD lending is expected to range from $15 billion to $19 billion in fiscal 1990, up from $16.4 billion in the year that ended June 30. Loans from IDA are expected to reach $5.7 billion in fiscal 1990, up from $4.9 billion in 1989.

Lending by both the IBRD and IDA exceeded in 1989 the previous fiscal year's levels, which were $14.8 billion and $4.5 billion, respectively.

The IBRD and IDA provide loans for projects and rapid disbursement loans to support economic policy changes in countries reforming their economies, primarily in Latin America. The latter are called adjustment loans.

Since the outbreak of the developing countries' debt crisis in 1982, the World Bank group's rapid disbursement loans have steadily increased their share of total operations as private lending to indebted nations dried up.

Miss America begins reign

NEW YORK — Miss America 1990 Debbye Turner says the downfall of Vanessa Williams, the first black to win the pageant and the first woman to be dethroned, was an "unfortunate story" that had nothing to do with skin color.

Turner, the second black to win the rhinestone tiara, prepared to make the traditional post-victory journey to New York today for television appearances and a news conference.

The former Miss Missouri also was scheduled to select her wardrobe for the year, which was donated by sponsors of the pageant.

Environment topic of Bush talks

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush hit the road today for a succession of state centennial celebrations across the plains and northwest, planting trees along the way to highlight his commitment to preservation of the environment.

Bush, who seems destined to be the nation's most frequent-flying president, headed to South Dakota, Montana and Washington to round out a series of 100-year state anniversaries that began with a visit to North Dakota in July.

And while stewardship of the environment was at the fore of his swing through Big Sky country, Bush also hoped to strengthen his claim on the title "education president" before next week's summit with the nation's governors.

The emphasis on domestic policy came at the start of a week that will end on a far different note as Bush and his national security advisers focus on superpower relations in talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

With Congress working on his proposed revision of the Clean Air Act, Bush hoped to score points with environmentalists during his overnight centennial tour by planting trees in states well-acquainted with timber loss.

The issue is one that has pitted conservationists against developers and has set off alarms most recently in the Amazon jungle, where the clearing of rain forests for commercial and agricultural use could speed global warming.

Plants and trees convert carbon dioxide, a key cause of the warming that could alter weather patterns and lifeforms, back into oxygen. Bush has expressed concern in the past about deforestation, but is said by aides to not yet be prepared to offer concrete proposals on how that potential environmental time bomb should be defused.

For the time being, he has chosen to attack the problem symbolically by planting trees.

Emmys

a comedy, beating Ted Danson of "Cheers," last year's winner Michael J. Fox of "Family Ties," "Roseanne's" John Goodman and child actor Fred Savage of "The Wonder Years."

"I do thank the Academy for this very rare gift," said Mulligan, who won an Emmy in 1980 for "Soap."

Carroll O'Connor was named best actor in a drama for "In the Heat of the Night," becoming one of the few to earn Emmys for both drama and comedy work. He won four comedy awards in the 1970s for "All in the Family."

O'Connor won the award over Michael Tucker of "L.A. Law," Ron Periman of "Beauty and the Beast," Edward Woodward of "The Equalizer" and Ken Wahl of "Wiseguy."

"I am pleased to have won four Emmy Awards in the comedy field, and now to win one in the dramatic field is a great delight," O'Connor said from Covington, Ga., where he is filming the series. "I am very surprised."

Dana Delany, who plays an army nurse in ABC's "China Beach," was named best actress in a drama over "L.A. Law" co-stars Susan Dey and Jill Eikenberry, "Beauty and the Beast's" Linda Hamilton, and

"Murder She Wrote" star Angela Lansbury.

"I'd like to thank the women who served in Vietnam ... for sharing your experiences with me and allowing me to pay you the tribute you so greatly deserve," Delany said.

ABC's "The Wonder Years," 1988's top comedy and the recipient of 14 nominations this year, picked up only one award for best director of a comedy series, Peter Baldwin.

Best actor in a mini-series or special went to James Woods, who portrayed the founder of Alcoholics Anonymous in ABC's "My Name is Bill W." Woods was a surprise winner over Robert Duvall, the odds-on favorite for "Lonesome Dove" and John Gielgud, nominated for ABC's "War and Remembrance."

Holly Hunter, who played Ellen Russell in NBC's abortion rights drama "Roe vs. Wade," earned best actress in a mini-series or special.

Colleen Dewhurst earned a rare double win with awards for best supporting actress in a mini-series for NBC's "Those She Left Behind" and guest actress in a comedy series, announced at the non-televized awards Saturday night.

Melanie Mayron of "thirtysomething," last year's top drama series and nominated for 13 awards this year, won for best supporting actress in a drama. The show also won for writing, costuming and single-camera editing.

Derek Jacobi was named outstanding supporting actor in a mini-series for "The Tenth Man," a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special.

Linda Ronstadt won for best performance, variety or music program for "Canciones De Mi Padre" (PBS).

Writing awards went to "thirtysomething," "Murphy Brown" and "Saturday Night Live."

The 41st Annual Primetime Emmy Awards were televised from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium by Fox Broadcasting Co. in the United States and on a live or taped basis to 21 other countries.

The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences took time out to honor the contributions of comedian Lucille Ball, who died this year. Bob Hope presented the prestigious Governor's Award to Lucy's husband, Gary Morton.

"The Tracey Ullman Show" picked up all of Fox's awards, winning best variety show and three other craft awards: makeup, art direction and choreography.

WORLD BRIEFS

Rabin to visit Egypt

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Cabinet approved plans for Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin to visit Egypt in the latest round of diplomatic activity on the Middle East peace process. Government sources Sunday confirmed the expected visit but declined to specify when Rabin would travel to Cairo. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak conveyed an invitation to Rabin last week through Cairo's ambassador to Israel. The invitation is the latest in Mubarak's attempts to advance the stalled Middle East peace process, including calls for Israeli and Palestinian delegations to meet in Cairo. Egyptian Ambassador Mohammed Bassiouny said the proposed meeting of delegations was "a golden chance" to get the peace process moving again as early as next month.

Ukrainians demonstrate for church

LVOV, U.S.S.R. — More than 150,000 Ukrainians marched through the historic city of Lvov on the 50th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of the Western Ukraine to demand an end to the ban on the Ukrainian Catholic Church. The demonstration Sunday was the biggest in favor of the church since the invasion in 1939, church officials said. On the anniversary of the Red Army's seizure of the Western Ukraine from Poland, Ukrainian Catholic faithful, who have no church buildings of their own, held a two-hour outdoor mass led by 15 white-robed priests beneath a canopy of trees. They offered communion to worshippers who knelt on grass. "All the world can see this church lives," said one priest who said he served 25 years in a Siberian camp after Josef Stalin banned the Uniate, or Greek Catholic Church, in 1946. The legalization of the church was expected to be raised by Pope John Paul II when he meets with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Rome in November.

Iran warns it may resume Gulf war

ATHENS, Greece — Iranian President Akbar Rafsanjani said that his country eventually would use force to recover 800 square miles of occupied territory if Iraq does not withdraw its troops to the nations' 1978 borders. Tehran radio, monitored Sunday in Athens, quoted the president as saying Iran was prepared to continue peace talks with Baghdad — for 10 years if necessary — but would not tolerate the permanent occupation of its territory. Rafsanjani is believed to have been responsible for Iran's acceptance of the August 1988 cease-fire ending hostilities in the eight-year Persian Gulf war with Iraq. His remarks were the first indication Iran was prepared to resume the war if the peace talks eventually fail. "If they do not withdraw, we shall push them out by force," Rafsanjani told a gathering of commanders of the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps. "We have achieved what we wanted from the war and do not need to resume the war. We have good will and shall allow time to pass so that the world comes to recognize who the aggressor is, and who is in the right."

Mother Teresa still 'serious'

CALCUTTA, India — Doctors have nearly tamed Mother Teresa's fever but remained anxious today about her "battered old heart," the cause of severe chest pains that have debilitated the world-renowned humanitarian. Doctors reported the 79-year-old Nobel laureate lay in serious condition in Calcutta's Woodlands Nursing Home, where she was admitted two weeks ago after suffering complications linked to a six-year heart problem. "Mother's temperature is well on its way to being controlled, but her continuing episodes of chest pain remain a cause of anxiety," said a medical bulletin issued by the facility.

From United Press International reports

Soviet invasion anniversary noted

WARSAW, Poland — Shouting "Soviets go home" and "Down with communism," Poles staged legal rallies and demonstrations in several major cities marking the 50th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Poland. In the capital, some 1,000 people attended a ceremony Sunday at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at which speakers and veterans of World War II hailed the bravery of Polish fighters against the Soviets. The demonstrations marked the first time Polish citizens have been allowed to publicly commemorate the World War II invasion by Moscow. In the northwestern seaport of Szczecin, 13,000 people congregated in two peaceful rallies. Elsewhere, flowers were laid on the tombs of victims executed for their political views and on the symbolic tomb of Polish officers in Powazki Cemetery in Warsaw. Some 15,000 Polish officers disappeared and are believed to have been executed in the Soviet Union during the war.

As part of a non-aggression pact between Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin, the Soviet Union attacked Poland from the East with more than 1 million troops on Sept. 17, 1939, 17 days after Hitler unleashed World War II with Germany's attack on Poland. In June 1941, Germany turned on Moscow, and the Soviet Union eventually teamed up with the victorious allies. Previously, the events had been ignored or the details falsified because the communist leadership in both countries denied historical fact and refused to admit that one "fraternal ally" had attacked another. Instead, the communist media justified the attack. In the central city of Cracow, some 400,000 pilgrims — the biggest crowd ever — attended an annual outdoor mass for workers.

Hugo approaches Puerto Rico

United Press International
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — The fringe of Hurricane Hugo began lashing Puerto Rico with 100-mph winds Monday after the storm pounded the Virgin Islands and Leeward Islands, causing at least six deaths and 40 injuries and leaving thousands homeless. Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon told island residents just after midnight that Hugo, with maximum winds of 140 mph, had slowed, and at 6 a.m. the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the center of the storm would hit the island sometime before noon. "The hurricane will be affecting us until the night hours," Hernandez Colon warned in a message broadcast on radio and television. He urged people in low-lying areas to move to shelters on higher ground. Unconfirmed reports pushed Hugo's Caribbean death count to 12. According to amateur radio reports, winds estimated at 100 mph struck the city of Caguas, about 20 miles south of San Juan, at about 7 a.m. EDT but lighter winds were reported in the southwestern part of the island. Residents were reported to be taking precautions. "We're battening down the hatches like it'll hit us in the head," an amateur radio operator reported. Another amateur radio operator on a boat off Puerto Rico described Hugo's eye as it passed at 6 a.m. EDT. "We were just hanging on for all we can when the eye hit us," the radio operator reported. "I guess we'll just keep hanging on." "It became very quiet. No wind. No rain and water rising rapidly. It is ungodly quiet right now." The Hurricane Center said that at 6 a.m. EDT, Hugo was about 75 miles east-southeast of San Juan, at latitude 17.9 degrees north and longitude 65.1 degrees west. Hugo was moving toward the west-northwest at 8 mph and was expected to continue on that path, bringing Hugo's eye over eastern Puerto Rico by noon. Hurricane-force winds extended outward up to 60 miles from the center and tropical storm force winds extended outward up to 200 miles from the center. At daybreak, Hugo's powerful winds continued to pound St. Thomas, with some gusts measured near 90 mph. Trees were stripped of their leaves and power lines were down. "I'd estimate that the wind is blowing about 120 knots and the visibility is nil," sailor Margaret Utman told Cable News Network by ship-to-shore telephone from her 44-foot sailboat, Random Star, anchored in the Virgin Islands. "All of the boats around me have dragged anchor and most of the people have abandoned ship," Utman said. "We're not safe but we're OK."

Homemade rocket hits U.S. embassy

United Press International
BOGOTA, Colombia — Assassins fired a noisy "homemade rocket" at the U.S. Embassy in Bogota, but more powerful bombs rocked the capital and the city of Cali, killing a security guard and damaging a score of businesses. A journalist also was reported murdered in the Pacific coast city of Buenaventura, officials said Sunday. The attacks were the latest in the relentless wave of violence attributed to Colombia's Medellin and Cali cocaine cartels, which have declared war against the government. No one was hurt when what a U.S. Embassy official called "a homemade rocket" exploded minutes before 9 p.m. at the embassy's Bogota compound. "It hit the Embassy but it didn't cause any damage or injuries," the officials said, asking that he not be identified. The noisy blast "discolored the cement" in a small area at the compound, he said. The rocket apparently was fired from the street, but it was not known who fired it, the official said. About 40 minutes before the Embassy attack, two bombs exploded just moments apart in a business district of northern Bogota, wounding one person and badly damaging about 20 businesses, police said. One bomb apparently had been placed in the 24-hour electronic teller section of a bank. In Cali, 180 miles southwest of Bogota, a bomb ripped through a restaurant district early Sunday as people celebrated "The Day of Love and Friendship" — Colombia's Valentine's Day. Security guard Jesus Maria Rio was killed in the blast. About five minutes after the first blast, two more bombs exploded in the nearby savings and loan institutions Conavi and Corpavi, police said.

Artillery exchanges continue in Lebanon

United Press International
BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery bombardment today destroyed part of a building just yards from the home of the Hezbollah extremist group's spiritual leader, killing two people and trapping six, sources and witnesses said. The renewed violence took place despite the presence in Beirut of Arab League special envoy Lakhdar Al Ibrahim, who arrived from Syria late Sunday on a mission aimed at formulating the draft of a peace plan. Relief workers sifted through the rubble of the wrecked building adjacent to the house of Moslem Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, a leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, in the Shiite suburb of Haret Hreik, the witnesses said.

Two bodies were recovered and at least six other people were believed trapped under the wreckage of the building, Moslem security sources said. Fadlallah later was seen flanked by armed bodyguards inspecting the damage. The top four floors of the seven-story building still stood above three gutted floors, leading analysts to speculate the destruction was caused by a bomb in the lobby or basement. But a Hezbollah spokesman reached by telephone said the building was hit during night bombardment, and accused the forces of Christian military leader Gen. Michel Aoun of aiming for Fadlallah's home. Christian gunners engaged in fierce overnight artillery and rocket exchanges with Syrian and Moslem forces in and around Beirut, police said.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.
Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight
U.S. Gov't Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill. The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry. You Can "Eat Normally" Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising." Flushes Fat Out of Body The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed. Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated. "Automatically" Lose Fat According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug." The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again. Now Available to the Public If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9036 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W244, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. McGriff converts on Indian gift

The Cleveland Indians conceded left field to Fred McGriff and he used the advantage to bring the Toronto Blue Jays another game closer to clinching the AL East pennant.

McGriff lofted a bases-loaded RBI single to an empty left field, vacated to give the Indians a fifth infielder, with one out in the 10th inning Sunday to lift Toronto to a sweep of the three-game series.

The Toronto victory was the fourth extra-inning decision in their last five games against the Indians, and extended the Blue Jays lead to 2 1/2 games over Baltimore, who were shut out 7-0 by the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston trimmed Oakland 7-6, Seattle silenced New York 3-0, Toronto edged Cleveland 2-1 in 10 innings, Detroit pummeled Minnesota 9-2, California clipped Chicago 6-3 and Texas dropped Milwaukee 4-2.

Gwynn, of Miami, claimed his second consecutive national event victory after a mid-season slump with a win over defending Winston Top Fuel champion Joe Amato.

Gwynn, the defending Keystone Nationals champion, came into the event as the national elapsed time record holder at 4.961. Shirley Muidowney, the No. 1 qualifier at 4.974, Dick LaHale and Amato eclipsed the mark before Gwynn reclaimed the record with a 4.961 in his win over LaHale.

Lake Mary ends drought

Ram harriers pick up first win in three years

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Lake Mary's D.J. Lewis

ORLANDO — Lake Mary's boys cross country team came up with a brilliant performance and Lake Howell's girls demonstrated its strength as both captured the Class 4A championship Saturday in the Edgewater Invitational at the University of Central Florida.

Lake Mary came up with a surprising performance as it upended two strong teams in Lyman and Lake Howell. Lake Howell continues to improve and will again be a force in girls competition this year.

"This is the first trophy for a boys' cross country team here in three years," Lake Mary coach Willie Calloway said. "It's nice to win because it ends a very long drought."

Lake Mary won with a total of 64 team points, just ahead of Lake Brantley (68). Winter Park was third with 84 and Lyman had 125 while Lake Howell rounded out the top five with a score of 176.

The Rams were led by D.J. Lewis, who finished third with a time of 16:29. Bob Robertson took fifth with a 16:39 clocking. Steve Heldt finished 17th for Lake Mary with David Yurick steps behind in 18th as the two ran 17:51 and 17:52 respectively. Charles Elberry rounded out the top five with an 18:06 clocking.

"We've been working real hard and I'm real proud of what we accomplished," Calloway said. "We've been trying real hard to go out and compete with Lake Brantley and Lyman and to finish in the top five."

Lake Mary went a step further by taking the championship and surpassing everyone's expectations. Calloway, though, didn't feel it was that big a surprise.

"It wasn't like a fluke," Calloway said. "We have a good team and they ran a good race. They deserve the credit for the victory."

Lake Brantley was led by individual champion Matt Jewell, who posted a time of 16:18, and Darrin Tugman, who placed sixth at 16:46. John Feola was 12th with a 17:40 clocking with Craig Streetman taking 16th at 17:49.

Lyman was led by Kevin Padgett, who finished as the runner-up in the race with a 16:23 clocking. The Greyhounds ran a split squad with defending state champion Teddy Mitchell taking the day off. Juan Tannon finished 19th for Lyman at 17:54.

Lake Howell's girls won in easier fashion, finishing with 56 points well ahead of second place Lake Brantley's 78. Winter Park was third at 80, Lake Mary took fourth with 84 while Lyman's 132 was good for fifth.

"It's hard to plan from week to week what a team will do," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "So far, I've been really pleased with our team. From the cards they were dealt, they've overcome quite a bit and I'm real happy for them."

Miki Palumbo led the Silver Hawks with a sixth place finish and a 13:06 clocking. Natalie Newberry, who ran on the junior varsity last week, made a vast improvement and placed eighth at 13:17 with Nichole Compton taking 12th at 13:44. Shery Palumbo was 13th at 14:00 with Kristen Stuart finishing 17th at 14:10.

Lake Brantley was led by Amy Ginnette, who won the race by posting a time of 12:52. Ginnette was the state's top-ranked runner going into the race. Beth Schaeffer was 10th for the Patriots at 13:39 followed by Carrie DiSalvatore in 11th place at 13:42.

Lake Mary was led by Allison Snell, who ran her first race of the year and took fourth at 12:59. Christina Olson was next for the Rams in 14th place at 14:01, with Bekah Booth and Haydee Rohlebr a few steps back in 15th and 16th place with times of 14:05 and 14:06. Kim Blackadar rounded out the top five with a time of 15:16, good for 35th place.

Lyman was led by Janet Greenberg, who finished second in the race with a time of 12:57.

The next race for all Seminole County teams will be the Lake Mary Invitational this Saturday behind Lake Mary High School.

Marino makes history as Miami wins

United Press International

FOXBORO, Mass. — Dan Marino made history in a hurry Sunday.

The Miami quarterback completed three scoring passes in the opening 22:45 to reach 300 career touchdowns on a record pace and lead the Dolphins to a 24-10 victory over the New England Patriots.

Marino ended its seven-game losing streak against the Patriots and its 10-game losing string against AFC East opponents.

Marino needed only 89 games to reach the 300-TD mark. Johnny Unitas held the previous record in 121 games.

"It's something special," said the usually low-key Marino, who after the milestone touchdown grabbed the ball out of receiver Jim Jensen's arms, saying, "Give me that ball."

The Patriots, 1-1, gave up 10 points in the first quarter as the result of a failed faked punt and a bad snap on another punt.

Miami, 1-1, which lost to Buffalo last week on the last play of the game, came into the contest "sick and hungry, shocked and stunned," according to Dolphins' defensive end Jeff Cross, who had three of Miami's seven sacks.

"We work too hard not to have days like this," Miami lineman Louis Checks said.

Marino, who completed 17 of 28 passes for 236 yards, hooked up with Mark Clayton on a 15-yard touchdown pass and hit Jensen on scoring tosses of 16 and 10 yards.

"I don't know how he does it," said New England quarterback Tony Eason, who admires Marino's quick release. "Everytime someone is near him, it's gone."

Pete Stoyanovich's 31-yard field goal accounted for Miami's other score.

The Dolphins led 17-0 after the first quarter and 24-0 at halftime.

"It couldn't have been any better for us in the first half — offensively," Miami Coach Don Shula said.

New England scored on Greg Davis' 28-yard field goal in the third quarter and Hart Lee Dykes' 10-yard touchdown reception from Eason on the final play of the game.

Eason finished with 341 yards passing, completing 25 of 49 attempts, but the seven sacks cost New England 59 yards.

"Defensively, we were pretty stubborn and this is the result," Cross said. "We couldn't wait to play again (after the season-opener). I guess we had to take it out on somebody."

The Dolphins took a 7-0 lead 3:29 into the game when Marino completed a 71-yard, eight-play drive with a 15-yard pass over the middle to Clayton, playing in his 10th game.

Bucs give 49ers all they can handle

United Press International

TAMPA — When Joe Montana and Jerry Rice are comfortably enshrined in the NFL Hall of Fame, they'll recall games like the one in Tampa Stadium Sunday.

Then they'll smile.

San Francisco's defense kept the 49ers close until the game's most feared passing combination got untracked. Rice caught eight passes for 123 yards, including a 2-yard touchdown, and Montana provided the winning score on a 4-yard run with 40 seconds left in a 30-16 comeback triumph against the Buccaneers.

"Montana's the greatest of all time in coming from behind," said rookie San Francisco coach George Seifert, who has opened with two road victories. "We were impressed with Tampa Bay's defense going in and we're more impressed with them right now. They've got something going here."

Montana, who completed 25 of 39 passes for 306 yards, capitalized on a defensive holding penalty that gave San Francisco new life. After the Buccaneers had gone ahead 16-13 on Mark Carrier's 18-yard touchdown catch with 3:25 left, the 49ers began the winning drive at their own 30.

Montana opened with consecutive 15-yard passes to John Taylor and Tom Rathman. Rice added an 11-yard reception and Taylor's 12-yard catch gave San Francisco a first down at the 8-yard line. Roger Craig lost a yard and when Montana threw his second straight incompletion, it appeared the 49ers would have to settle for Mike Cofer's tying field goal attempt.

But reserve defensive back Donnie Elder was flagged for holding on the third-down pass, giving the 49ers a first down on the 4-yard line. Montana then rolled right and kept going untouched into the end zone to frustrate a crowd of 64,087 in the Buccaneers home opener.

"Yes, we've come a long way, but since we've come this far, why not take it that extra step and come away with the win?" asked Vinny Testaverde, who hit on just 14 of 35 passes for 148 yards. "Today, we were able to watch first-hand how to get it done."

The NFL champions have defeated the Buccaneers eight times in nine encounters and have been beaten only 12 times in their last 80 road games. Cofer kicked first-half field goals of 47 and 33 yards to stake the 49ers to a 6-3 advantage and Tampa Bay was limited to 317 yards of total offense.

Florida teams win big with good defense

United Press International

Despite a career performance by quarterback Peter Tom Willis, Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden says it was defense, not offense, that won the Seminoles their first game in three tries Saturday night.

"You know that old saying where 'you win with your defense and you sell tickets with your offense?'" Bowden said. "Well, we'd been selling too many tickets before tonight."

Florida State's season 31-21 win at Louisiana State was one of three wins for Florida's major colleges Saturday. Florida (1-1) defeated Louisiana Tech 34-7 and the second-ranked Miami (2-0) Hurricanes defeated California 31-3.

Next Saturday, Florida State is home to Tulane, Florida is at Memphis State (0-3) and Miami travels to Missouri (1-1).

In Division I-AA football Saturday, Bethune-Cookman (2-1) outlasted Howard 10-3 at Daytona Beach, Central Florida (1-2) lost 20-6 at Troy State in Alabama, and Georgia Southern flogged Florida A&M (1-1) 28-0 at Jacksonville.

A home game with Newberry is next for Central Florida and Florida A&M plays Tennessee State at Atlanta Saturday. Bethune-Cookman is idle.

Florida State's Willis completed 25 of 35 passes for 301 yards and a 33-yard touchdown to Terry Anthony. Willis also scored on a 7-yard bootleg that put the Seminoles ahead for good at 24-21.

U.S. boosts World Cup hope with shutout of El Salvador

United Press International

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Hugo Perez scored 16 minutes into the second half Sunday to boost the United States to a 1-0 victory over El Salvador in a qualifying match for the 1990 World Cup.

Perez is an American citizen but, ironically, was born in El Salvador.

The triumph improved to U.S. to 3-1-1 in the eight-game, round-robin qualifying tournament. With seven points in five games — two for a win and one for a tie — the U.S. is in third place in its region, four points behind Costa Rica and two behind Trinidad and Tobago. The top two teams in the region advance to the World Cup in Italy.

Two teams from the soccer group of North and Central America and the Caribbean will advance to Italy. Costa Rica has completed play at 5-3-1 with 11 points and has virtually secured a berth.

Trinidad-Tobago (3-1-3, nine points) recently assumed second place in the five-team group. The United States plays two of its last three games on the road, including Nov. 19 at Trinidad-Tobago. Guatemala (1-4-0) and El Salvador (0-4-1) are out of contention.

Earnhardt fends off Martin in Peak Performance 500

United Press International

DOVER, Del. — Dale Earnhardt held off Mark Martin by two car lengths to win the Peak Performance 500 Sunday and lengthen his lead in the Winston Cup points race.

Earnhardt's Chevy Lumina crossed the finish line a tenth of a second ahead of Martin after a 30-lap battle for first on the one-mile, high-banked oval Dover Downs International Speedway for his 4th Winston Cup victory of 1989.

Ken Schrader came in a close third, followed by Bill Elliott, who was one lap down, and Ricky Rudd, who was two laps down. Rounding out the top ten were Michael Waltrip, Rusty Wallace, Derrile Cope, Brett Bodine and Jimmy Spencer.

Earnhardt leads the championship battle with 3,397, 102 points ahead of second-place Rusty Wallace.

The series now moves to Martinsville, Va., for the Goody's 500, the 24th race of the 29-race series. The championship winner will take home $1 million, Winston's biggest prize ever.

Earnhardt's victory gained him $50,950, with an average speed of 122.943 mph. before a crowd of 64,000.

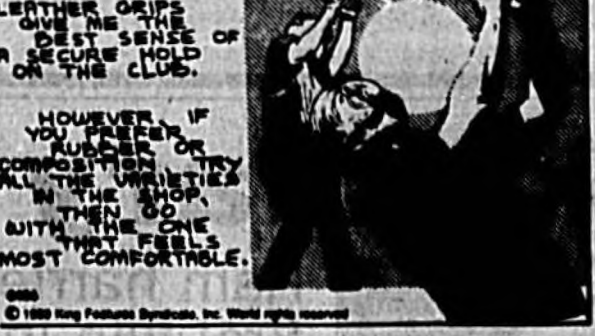

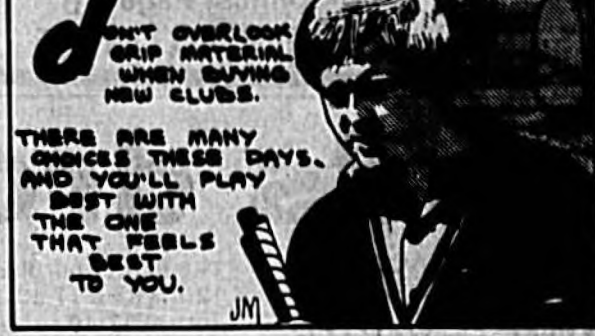

"Mark ran me hard at the end, I was worried about him," Earnhardt said. "He ran me good, he didn't get rough."

Communication can be heavy-handed in sports

By MIKE TOLLY
UPI Baseball Columnist

NEW YORK — No wonder so many players wind up in broadcasting. They love communication. Give them dialogue or give them death. An exchange of views will make their day. Nothing stirs that adrenaline the way a tete a tete can. To batters, there's no sound like an adverb borne on a summer breeze.

"We never talk anymore," they'll protest, making baseball sound like a love gone bad. Just the other day, Mets catcher Gary Carter complained that manager Davey Johnson hadn't communicated with him. So, rather than let a .169 batting average come between comrades, the two of them met.

One hour later, Carter still owned a .169 average, but at least he and his boss were communicating .300. We're not sure if that's with men in scoring position or not. Then you have the Expos. They celebrated their year's pennant race by hitting .225 in August, lowest in the league. No one in the NL hit fewer homers that month. If you're Manager Buck Rodgers, how do you communicate with that?

Well, some skippers respond by communicating with their office furniture. They get their message across so well, they wind up needing new tables and chairs. Carter used to communicate with line drives. The pitcher would throw, and Carter would hit the ball over the fence. Roughly translated, this meant, "My grandmother could hit that stuff."

Ty Cobb once told the story of getting tagged so hard, his face nearly became part of the infield. This was the opponent's way of saying, "So you're Mr. Cobb."

Defense

While Willis was having his big day, LSU's Heisman candidate Tommy Hodson had his day ruined by the Seminole touchdowns.

He completed only 14 of 30 passes and threw one interception and was unable to get anything going in the fourth quarter when LSU was falling behind.

Florida also relied on defense and the passing game for the victory over Louisiana Tech. Gator defenders limited Tech to only 187 total yards while the offense was amassing 515, 281 first game of the season due to a contract holdout. On New England's next possession, the Patriots attempted a fake punt on fourth and 16 from their own 30, but punter Jeff Feagles overthrew Sammy Martin.

Dolphins

New England coach Raymond Berry said the fake-punt gamble was his decision, made the night before.

"I told the team about it before the game," he explained. "Jeff is a pretty good thrower, I made a decision to go for (keeping) the ball and we just didn't execute."

Miami needed just 1:30 and three plays to score, Marino hitting Jensen over the middle from 16 yards at 7:15 for a 14-0 lead.

Bucs

"Tampa Bay has turned the corner," said Montana, who saw Roger Craig held to 36 yards rushing in 18 carries. "They played us much better than we've seen them play us before. We don't like to show that kind of drive at the end of the game if we can help it."

Lovebugs an unlovely nuisance

Most of us are familiar with lovebugs, those small black flies with a red thorax. We consider them a nuisance because they congregate in unbelievably large numbers along highways and splatter on windshields and grills of our automobiles and trucks.

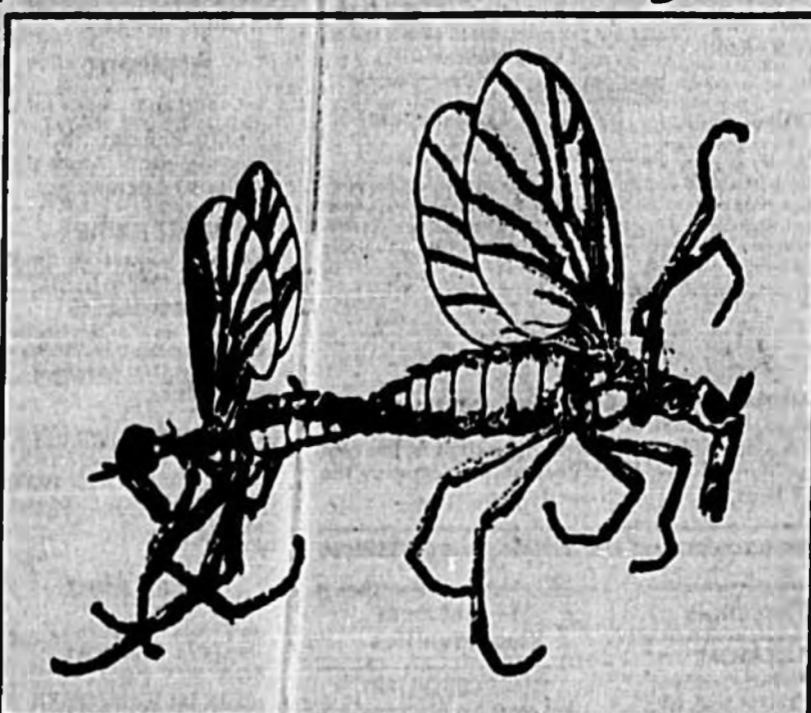

Our windshields can become so covered with the fatty remains of lovebugs that vision can be obscured. The flies can also clog radiator fins and sometimes cause our cars to overheat. The fatty tissue can cause pitting in the finish of our cars if it is not removed in a few days.

Lovebugs also enter cars and can soil the clothing of passengers if not on mistakingly. In addition, lovebugs can enter our homes and be a special nuisance to fresh paint.

Adult lovebugs are harmless, though, as they do not sting or bite. They feed on the nectar of various plants, especially sweet clover, goldenrod and Brazilian pepper. At night, lovebugs nest on low-growing vegetation.

Two flights of lovebugs occur each year in Central Florida. The spring flight occurs during late April and May. A second flight occurs in fall around late August and September. Flight periods generally last 4-5 weeks. Mating takes place almost immediately after emergence of the females. Adult females live only 2-3 days.

There are several insecticides that are proven effective in lovebug control, but spraying

A male and female lovebug as they look 'hitched' can be impractical because infestations occur over such a vast area and for a short period of time. You can control lovebugs in confined areas like porches around your home with aerosol sprays available for other household insects.

During the past several years, predators have substantially reduced the population of lovebugs in Central Florida, even though the insects seem worse this year. Lovebug larvae are in extremely high populations in pasture areas, so this is an ideal environment for certain bird predators like robins and quails. Armadillos are thought to be predators as well, but scientific data has yet to back this up. Lovebugs are predators as well, feeding on certain beetle larvae, earwigs and centipedes.

Many types of screens are available that can be placed in front of the grill of your car to protect the finish and prevent the radiator fins from becoming clogged. If a large screen can't be used on the front of the car, a smaller screen can be put behind the grill but in front of the radiator.

Splattered lovebugs should be washed off the car as soon as possible. The lovebugs are easier to remove at that time and there is less of the chance of damage to the car's finish. Cars that have been waxed recently are better protected from damage by lovebug residue. Soaking the area with water for several minutes will aid in removal, too.

When lovebugs are numerous, or you know you will be traveling at the peak flight times, you can spread a light film of baby oil or use an aerosol oil spray over the front of the hood, above the windshield, on the grill and on the bumper. This practice will make lovebug removal easier.

Police banner a must for car

DEAR ABBY: How can we get another "Please Call Police" banner? A few years ago you printed an address in your column for those banners for motorists to put on their cars in case they had car trouble and needed help on the road. We recently sold our car, forgetting that the banner was in the glove compartment, so now it's gone.

We are a couple of senior citizens, and last year we were on the freeway in Salt Lake City when our car suddenly broke down, so we attached the "Please Call Police" banner to the inside of our rear window and within 15 minutes the police were there to help us. When they arrived, one of them said, "We have had over 30 calls about you!" So you see, Abby, those banners really work.

How do we get a replacement? Maybe other people would like to order one, so if you want to print this, it's OK to use my name.

BOROTHY KNOSS, PARASOUT, CALIF.

DEAR MRS. KNOSS: Write to WCIL-Banners, P.O. Box 60065, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066.

The cost is $4 per banner, postage and handling included. (Many people buy two banners—one for the front window and another for the rear.) Make your tax-deductible check or money order payable to WCIL-Banner. The Westside Center for Independent Living exists to help disabled people live independently.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Mom in Cocoa, Fla.," which read, "If you suspect you have an alcohol problem, you have one," was applauded by all of us who work at the Mercer Council on Alcoholism and Drug Addiction in Trenton, N.J.

However, you omitted an important fact: the danger associated with drinking alcohol while pregnant or nursing. Alcohol can cause irreversible birth defects, known as fetal alcohol syndrome. In 1981, the surgeon general recommended that pregnant women and nursing mothers drink no alcohol—beer, wine or liquor.

Since fetal alcohol syndrome is totally preventable, we encourage women who are considering pregnancy to abstain from alcohol. There is no known safe amount of alcohol that can be absorbed by the fetus. "Mom in Cocoa, Fla.," said she began to drink after her first child was born, and increased the amount through a second pregnancy. She should count her blessings that her second child shows no visible birth defects.

We would like to remind your readers that "A Pregnant Woman Never Drinks Alone—Alcohol Can Cause Birth Defects."

NANCY FAHERTY, TRENTON, N.J.

DEAR NANCY: Thank you for the valuable input. A better motto might be, "A Pregnant Woman Never Drinks." Period.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son-in-law has made it a habit to bring a six-pack of beer along when he and our daughter come to our house for dinner, which is often.

Until last time, he has always gone out on the patio to drink his beer because we do not drink in the house. I have never said anything about his drinking although I do not approve of it.

When my wife called "dinner is ready," he started to bring his unfinished can of beer to the table, and I asked him not to.

My wife thinks I was wrong. Do you think I was?

A RECOVERING ALCOHOLIC

DEAR RECOVERING: You were not wrong. It's your home, and if you didn't want beer brought to the table, that's your privilege. However, there are many unanswered questions here: How did you ask him not to? Were you polite and non-judgmental? Or sharp and demanding?

Also, does your being a recovering alcoholic have anything to do with your objecting to having beer at your table? (Most recovering alcoholics are tolerant of others who drink socially.) Or is your son-in-law objectionable when he drinks?

Do you think he has a drinking problem? Anyone who brings a six-pack to someone else's home for dinner must "need" it.

Please try to improve your relationship with your son-in-law in order to help him. The signs are obvious. He needs help.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69444, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066. All correspondence is confidential.)

Postnasal drip often causes throat clearing

DEAR DR. GOTT: What makes people constantly clear their throats? My husband has this annoying habit and won't see a doctor about it. He was recently in the hospital for a possible lung infiltrate, but he never discussed the throat. Could there be a connection?

DEAR READER: Our resistance to diseases, such as cancer and heart ailments, is most likely genetically determined.

In a sense, each of us has a genetic time clock that sets our age limit. Although we will not exceed that age, we can definitely shorten our life spans by living imprudently and not taking care of ourselves.

DEAR READER: Certainly. Lung inflammation or irritation can produce small amounts of mucus, which make a person feel that something is stuck in the throat. Constant throat clearing and/or a dry, hacking cough can indicate a lung problem, such as a "smoker's cough" in people who use cigarettes.

However, throat-clearing is most commonly caused by a postnasal drip, mucus produced in the upper nose or sinuses that drains down the back of the throat, causing a "frog-in-the-throat" sensation. Postnasal drip results from upper-airway irritation, such as that caused by allergies or air pollution.

Some people develop throat-clearing as a nervous habit. From the information you give, I cannot say with certainty what is causing your husband's problem. He should describe his symptoms to his doctor, who can then determine if the "possible lung infiltrate," a shadow on the X-ray, is to blame. If your husband's lungs are free of irritations or growths, he may wish to be examined by an ear-nose-and-throat specialist to see if he has a postnasal drip. The otolaryngologist can suggest therapy, if appropriate.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My stepfather is 88 years old and in perfect health. Is there some correlation between geographic location and longevity and health? He was born in Newfoundland and ate salted fish and salted meats exclusively. He worked in paint shops, around potentially unhealthy environments, for 22 years and presently lives in New Orleans, which has one of the highest cancer rates in the nation. Is he an exception to the rule?

WEST

By James Jacoby
An unusual event took place April 1-15 in New York and Paris — a marathon bridge match between men and women. One table was at the Cavendish Club in New York; the other was at Le Club de Bridgeur in Paris. Participants were asked to make charitable donations, and a respectable sum was raised. The men won the competition, but by a very slight margin considering the 2,532 deals played. For the women, Dorothy Truscott found the right play in three no-trump in today's deal, even though it was played at 6 a.m. On the opening club lead, she played low from both hands and then won the club continuation with her king. To protect against West holding the king of diamonds and East the spade ace, she went to dummy with the heart ace and finessed the jack of diamonds. That was the winning play. West took his king but now could not gain by playing another round of clubs, since he would never regain the lead. So he played a heart. Dorothy won the king and played the king of spades. East took the ace but could only cash one heart trick, so the contract made. Had declarer carelessly attacked spades originally, the defenders would establish their clubs, and West would set the contract when he won a trick with the king of diamonds.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're still on a favorable roll where your financial and commercial interests are concerned. Keep looking for opportunities and if you don't find any you like, engineer some.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You and your mate could be extremely lucky at this time in achieving goals that are of equal importance to each. The key to success is to strive for harmony of purpose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to treat those with whom you have business dealings today as friends instead of merely commercial contacts. You'll be amazed as to the benefits your warmth will generate.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something beneficial that a friend presently has going may be revised in a way that will allow you to participate. It's an opportunity of which you will definitely want to take advantage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Focus your energies and efforts today on things that are meaningful to you in material ways. You're in a good cycle for financial growth and it's up to you to take advantage of it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although the channel might not be particularly visible to you at this time, important benefits are coming your way. They could be sponsored by a person with whom you have strong emotional bonds.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be quite lucky today in your partnership arrangements, especially those that are not structured for commercial purposes. These alliances could contribute something of lasting value.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Developments that have political overtones should work out to your ultimate benefit today without you having to exert too much effort toward their outcome.
