Businessman tapped for state Main Street award

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford Main Street President Robert Parsell Jr. received a state award Wednesday in Daytona Beach.

During the annual Florida Main Street and Florida Redevelopment Conference, Parsell was named an Outstanding Program Supporter.

This is the second award for Main Street, which was recognized in 1995 as an Outstanding Economic Restructuring Program, according to Jennifer Singelsen, program manager.

Official: Ex-chief didn't want female cops

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

In the midst of the evaluation and reconstruction of the Sanford Police Department, some disturbing facts are pouring out of a discrimination suit filed a year ago by four women who served on the SPD force.

Sanford City personnel director Tim McCauley testified in U.S. District Court that former SPD chief Ralph Russell once said, "I'll be honest with you, Tim, and if you say anything about this, I'll deny it publicly. I don't believe women have any place in police work."

Russell retired in January, and was succeeded by Deputy Chief Joe Dillard.

Only two of the women - Terri Murray and Claudia Webber - who filed the suit remain with the SPD. Robin Ber-nosky, who was dismissed, is now with the Winter Springs Police Department. Cpl. Claudia Shearer died earlier this year.

On Tuesday, Murray complimented Dillard for recently initiating positive changes in the department during a work session by the city's Law Enforcement Options Committee, which will make a recommendation to the city commission that will help decide the future of the department.

Their jobs on the line - the majority of the SPD force has rallied behind Dillard. Option C in the study by an independent police consult study is to disband the SPD and contract the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for all law enforcement duties. The sheriff would hire perhaps 30 percent of the SPD according to insiders' scuttlebutt.

The civil case against the City of Sanford, a municipal corporation operating the SPD, obviously adds fodder to the folly.

McCauley's deposition contains volatile background.

Asked if at any point prior to June, 1994, when Russell terminated the services of two female reserve officers, he considered a problem area at the SPD with the number of females, or the number of fe-

Stolen vehicles

It could happen to you, police say, and when it does...

BY DAVID FRAZIER
Herald Staff Writer

In the past week, nearly a dozen vehicles have been stolen in the Sanford area. Some have been returned, however, the majority of vehicles reported missing are still at large. "We had three incident reports [on car thefts] today," said Tom Skiba, police information officer for the Sanford Police Department.

"The majority of the cars stolen are joyrides," said Ed McDonough, public information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. McDonough said that the perpetrators are mostly teenagers going for a "joyride," and that they do not realize that they are committing a major crime. "They are not out to take what is in the vehicle," said Skiba. "They are out to take the vehicle."

Skiba said that vehicle theft comes at random. "Some weeks, we are bombarded," he said.

After a report is given to police, the officer inputs the information in the communications system so that other law enforcement agencies can be on the lookout (the jargon used is B.O.L.O. or Be On the Look-out). When the vehicles are found, they have usually been abandoned. Skiba said that the cars the department finds are mostly from Orlando or Altamonte Springs.

According to Skiba, thieves gain entrance to vehicles through a window and, once inside, they "punch" the ignition column to gain access to start the vehicle.

"The number one key is to check your surroundings," Skiba said, referring to safety from auto theft and carjacking. In the case of carjackings, he advised for people to keep their windows up, doors locked and, if someone comes towards the car, accelerate. Car thieves have been known to take vehicles from home driveways as well. "Place it in a garage," he said. And in shopping centers and malls where Skiba said car thefts are more prevalent, he advised people should try to find a lighted area. Martha Mannarino, marketing director for Seminole Towne Centre, said that the mall has 24-hour security and patrols on both buses and cars. "The steps for people to take are common sense type things," said Mannarino, "like keeping doors

The old Kmart building in Sanford is the new home of a paint ball business.

Paint ball is coming, and the object is to win

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

Paint ball is coming to Sanford. War Games, an entertainment company, will open an indoor paint ball arena in November at the Kmart building on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

Owner Les Kaltenecker has converted the long-vacant retail building into a simulated war zone complete with props and 15 individual field scenarios. With about 113,000 square feet of play area, the two-story set-up includes actual wreckage from dune buggies, helicopters and other military vehicles.

The floor surface is layered with 12 to 18 inches of sawdust and safety nets surround the entire perimeter. Wooden props are painted to look like sandbags.

The object of the game, which is similar to a military operation, is to win. Participants have the option of bringing in their own equipment or they may purchase a package at War Games. Package prices start at

As the city of Lake Mary continues paving miles of dirt roads that wind through neighborhoods on the eastern side of the city, once again there is controversy, where asphalt meets sand.

A resident of Humphrey Road has asked the city commission for help in alleviating what she feels is a potentially dangerous situation at the corner of Wood Street and Humphrey.

Amy Munizzi sent a letter to the mayor and the city commissioners about an incident that occurred on Sept. 18.

"I was traveling east on Humphrey Road, heading home after picking my sons up from Lake Mary Elementary," Munizzi wrote. "As I approached the stop sign at the corner of Humphrey Road and Wood Street (a dirt street to the left with a stop sign) a car came sliding around the corner from Wood Street and just missed hitting us head on. Thank God, we were wearing safety belts and we had not yet reached the stop sign or we could have been badly injured."

Wood Street is currently closed as a culvert is being installed between Washington Avenue and Humphrey. Munizzi feels Wood, from Washington, will continue to be used as a short cut, to and from Lake Mary High School, in the mornings and afternoons, when the road reopens.

While cutting through the back roads saves no time over taking Lake Mary Boulevard to Longwood-Lake Mary, "I think it is the excitement of flying down the dirt roads where you can't get caught," Munizzi says.

Munizzi also wrote in her letter, "This is an extremely attractive corner to those individuals who like to slide their vehicles and spin circles (doughnuts) in the dirt."

Mayor is sensitive to the environment

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale armed with charts and a good idea, pitched this week to Audubon officials a bald eagles' habitat on the shores of Lake Jesup. The proposal was made to mitigate damages done when an eagles' habitat was cut down at the Orlando Sanford Airport. The Florida Audubon had filed a complaint saying the airport did not have permits to cut down the trees.

Mayor Dale is a busy man, but he took the time to find a solution to what many think is probably not a big deal. But it is. A mistake was made. And when the environment suffers, in even an infinitesimal way, we all suffer. Dale deserves praise for his proactive approach to the matter. He proposed an 1,800-acre site east on the Lake Jesup waterfront off State Road 46, which currently houses four eagles' nests. The site is owned by the city and serves as a spray irrigation area. Dale said staff will look into the legal aspects of setting the land aside as a conservation area and habitat protection zone.

Charles Lee, senior vice president of the Audubon, said a settlement could be reached with the city and the airport if there is compensation for the lost eagles' nest, and if the airport admits it needed a permit to cut down the tree. (Airport officials say the tree had to go; an emergency measure as a hazard to safe flight.) Lee wants officials to agree to not cut any more trees without the proper permit. By the end of the meeting, Mayor Dale's proposal looked interesting and that the matter may be resolved.

More endangered American eagles live in Seminole County than in any other county in Florida. A total disregard for their welfare in deference to development would surely impact their fragile numbers. And Dale knows that. His problem-solving ability has left everyone a winner, the citizens of Seminole County, the Audubon and the eagles.

Tupac Shakur just won't let me forget

WASHINGTON--It's been more than a year since an unknown assailant pumped four bullets into Tupac Shakur. What usually happens when a young person dies is this: Everyone recoils, then reflects--and then forgets.

Tupac won't let me forget. Wednesday, I saw him in "Gang Related," the new movie in which he posthumously stars. The day before, I saw him in a horrific photo in a recent book, laid out on a coroner's slab, torn and helpless after his autopsy.

Tupac flashed in my mind when I read about a bicyclist, 26, whom police say shot to death a young woman whose car apparently bumped him by accident. They say the cyclist shot her after she'd pulled over to check on him.

I saw Tupac the last time my hopelessly middle-class son, 12, mimicked a music video's tough hoodlum pose. And when I recently glanced at a magazine photo of rapper Redman, sporting a sneer cold enough to freeze lava.

Seeing Tupac everywhere doesn't make me like those folks who think the rapper faked his death and lives on, chilling on some secluded gangsta-free beach. I believe he died--tragically, unnecessarily--last September, on Somehow, partly because his idol died, he changed.

Friday the 13th.

So does Jay, 17, the person I most see Tupac in. A student at Montgomery Blair High School in Maryland, Jay is a lot like Tupac: bright, cute, a street-smart blend of innocent and hip. He's also, he says, "as big a fan of Tupac's as there could be. I have all his albums. ...I wish sometimes that I could be Tupac." He pauses.

"But without the 'thug-life' image." The last words mean a lot coming from Jay, a friend of my son's whom I've known for years. He nearly flunked out of school last year. Somehow, partly because his idol died, he changed.

I took Jay to see "Gang Related," a better-than-average police drama that showcases Tupac's "fragile but powerful screen charisma," as described by Washington Post film critic Stephen Hunter. Seeing Tupac so electric, so alive, was at times excruciating. A scene in which a nut case threatens to blow the head off Tupac's character made some viewers wince. Said Jay: "It was like, Gpd, he's going to die again?"

Jay still admires Tupac but doesn't pity him. "He liked the lifestyle; he chose it," he says. "Though he won't call his former idol stupid, he'll say this:

"The lifestyle he chose was stupid. The thug-life image was stupid. He had enough talent to make millions and be alive today. I want money and power, too. ...But I want to pass it on."

If only a million others in whom I see Tupac could see that.

But maybe I should be patient. Maybe the best way for me to remember the lesson of Tupac's death is to help the few I can.

Maybe one day it will be Jay--alive and successful--who won't let me forget.

The super-secret use of dolphins as military delivery vehicles began at the Central Intelligence Agency.

Dolphins have been demilitarized

The dolphins have been demilitarized. (That's the word, not of the U.S. Navy, and Russia, which have each operated a military dolphin program since the 1960s.)

Our intelligence sources cannot affirm that all the American and Russian dolphins have been retired from military service, but they confirm that at least the majority of them have. The programs rank as one of the most unusual parts of the Cold War arms race since the United States and the Soviet Union.

The super-secret use of dolphins as military delivery vehicles began at the Central Intelligence Agency. CIA officials found that the dolphins' high intelligence and advanced sonar enabled them to detect enemy targets under water and deliver lethal and nonlethal "payloads" directly to them. By the early 1960s, the CIA decided to turn the whole program over to the U.S. Navy.

The Soviets' interest was piqued in 1965, when they learned about the U.S. Navy's secret project involving Tuffy, a bottlenose dolphin who carried tools and messages to Sea Lab II aquanauts 200 feet underwater off the coast of LaJolla, Calif.

The Soviets were quick to detect a weapons gap, and began intensive research on dolphin technology.

According to an early Reagan-era CIA report still classified "Top Secret," the Soviet Navy trained dolphins "to perform various military and intelligence tasks (including) attaching intelligence-collection packages and other devices to enemy submarines, and helping divers recover equipment from the ocean floor."

Both Soviet and U.S. scientists spent a lot of research dollars and time also trying to learn more about the way dolphins are able to use echoes to locate objects underwater.

"The Soviets hope to use the results of this research in developing sonar systems, more efficient hull designs for submarines and surface ships, and improved shapes for torpedoes," the 1980s report read. None of this proved successful, CIA sources told our associate Dale Van Atta.

When we first broke the story about American and Soviet dolphin research, which we dubbed the "Fighting Flipper Forces," each country's intelligence service was alarmed about the "leak."

The U.S. Navy was concerned because it appears they may have successfully used the dolphins during the Vietnam War. Stationed at Cam Ranh Bay, the dolphins were sent out to immobilize enemy frogmen with a hypodermic needle attached to their nose. Over a 15-month period, one still-secret U.S. report indicates about 60 North Vietnamese demolition divers were located and "disarmed" by the dolphins.

The Soviets were particularly concerned because they didn't know until reading our report that the CIA was aware they were feverishly trying to close the "dolphin gap" by developing "acoustical jamming countermeasures" designed to confuse American dolphins sent against them.

In those reports about the Soviet Blubber Brigade, we also identified where the dolphin work was done -- at Black Sea research stations, including small bio-acoustics laboratories and a dolphinarium.

A world rapt with cigars

Were he alive today, Baltimore's most famous sourpuss would surely swear off his lifelong habit of cigar smoking.

I am convinced of it. No way would H.L. Mencken continue a practice that a gazillion people, give or take a few, have suddenly commenced. Curmudgeons are perverse in that way. When stogies got to be, like, cool, he would have given them up.

More than that, he would have done it with a flourish. At least he had gotten hooked on the noxious weed honestly, he would thunder, unlike the youthful knaves who see pictures of a pneumatic Claudia Schiffer fondling a panatela or a long-legged Elle Macpherson chomping a corona and rush right out to buy some.

"No one ever went broke underestimating the taste of the American public," he would say. Something like that.

The demigod of curmudgeonry would do it; so, by thunder, can I. Notice: I hereby denounce cigars. The dumb things stink and impart an odor to my suits that dry-cleaning chemicals cannot extract. Not to mention that I have a heart condition and breathing stogie smoke is not likely to help matters any.

Wait a minute, let me edit that: I hereby denounce publicly smoked cigars. I don't give a hoot how much puffing people do in the privacy of their homes, or in those trendy cigar bars, or at cigar parties or on cigar cruises. Just quit enveloping me in your noisome fogs, that's all -- especially on the golf course. At a tournament this summer, I was attempting to analyze the swing of Justin Leonard when I lost sight of him in clouds of cigar smoke emitted by several lord paramounts barely out of their Huggies sucking on stogies roughly the size of baseball bats.

Actually, coming out against cigars is an easy thing for me to do, as I don't smoke them and never have, unless you count the occasional White Owl and the twisted things rolled in rum that my buddies and I used to puff as teen-agers. "Crooks," I think they were called. I'm pretty sure it was the rum part that tempted us.

How did it come to this? How did one of the most disgusting habits on God's green planet get to be so very chic? A few years ago, smokers of any kind were being banished to the furnace room. Then along came a slender little magazine called Cigar Aficionado and the next thing you know, people are talking about tobacco in terms previously reserved for fine wines and suddenly the size is the size of a Sears catalogue and featuring covers of such celebrity smokers as Demi Moore and Tom Selleck and Linda Evangelista, and before you know it, 4.6 billion cigars a year are being sold, a goody portion to impressionable youth.

It is probably an act of rebellion, the trend specialists tell us. It is Generation X's way of saying up yours.

Think about this. Our rebellious grandparents drank bathtub gin; our depression-era parents knickered back applejack; we sipped Schlitz out of quart cans. Boomers smoked dope. Gen Xers light up stogies.

There is a message in there somewhere.

I'm telling you, this cigar thing is a lesson in marketing that ought to be featured in business school textbooks. If you can sell cigars with celebrity pictures, then you could sell dog-doo the same way. Cigars and dog-doo are roughly similar, aren't they? They look the same, smell the same, probably taste the same. So you start up a glossy magazine called Dog-Doo Aficionado and you feature a cover of Claudia on decollete holding a stick of something that looks like dog-doo and before you know it, you'll have twenty-somethings clamoring for dog-doo and lining up to get in dog-doo bars and whatnot.

The cigar craze might even have compelled Mencken to alter his epitaph: "If, after I depart this vale, you ever remember me and have a thought to please my ghost," he once wrote, "forgive some sinner and wink your eye at some homely girl."

But not one, he might now add, with cigar breath.

Carroll is accused of physically abusing three children on Tuesday, October 14. The children are boys aged 5 and 9 and a girl aged 1. Carroll is accused of twisting the five year old boy's arms behind his back and hitting him in the back with karate chops. Carroll also allegedly hit the other children with a fly swatter and kicked them.

The victims' mother claims Carroll would put beer in the one-year old girl's bottle to quiet her down. When the mother told Carroll to stop giving the child beer, Carroll would say it was cute and began cursing. He's also accused of throwing the three year old boy into a pond near their house even though the boy cannot swim.

When Seminole County deputy sheriffs tried to arrest Carroll, he became combative and began kicking the rear window in the Sheriff's Office patrol car. Carroll had to be restrained with leg shackles as well as handcuffs.

Carroll is being held without bond in the Seminole County jail. Child abuse is a third degree felony. The maximum penalty is five years in prison.

$24.95, which includes admission, a semi-automatic weapon, 100 rounds of premium paint balls, goggles, a full face mask, and unlimited "gas" for the guns. Gas is actually carbon dioxide, Kaltenecker said.

Prices adjust depending on the type of gun. An upgrade package includes a Spider with an assault pack and a camouflage belt. Boots and uniforms are also available.

"For people who want to be really macho, we're bringing in 30 fog machines," he said. Also in the plans are booby traps, land mines, and paint grenades.

In converting the building, Kaltenecker said he added a stairwell, bunkers and several doorways throughout to add to the authenticity of the war scenes. The scenarios feature hostage situations, atackade, POW rescues, building sweeps, Capture the Flag, and the Battle of Khehau. More scenarios will be added in the future, he said.

Kaltenecker said his clients age range between 5 and 65. The recreational sport is most popular among the 20 to 48 age group.

"They really get actively involved and they have the money to spend on some of the more sophisticated weapons," he said.

According to Kaltenecker some of the most vicious players are women.

"We've already booked some banking groups," he said.

By playing indoors, Kaltenecker said participants don't have to worry about weather, insects, lighting or safety conditions. Since paint balls are made of biodegradable gel caps, they are susceptible to rain and heat.

Kaltenecker, who started similar arenas in California, said he based his business in Sanford because the location was ideal. He plans to open two more arenas in near the Disney area. Once the craze in the 1980s, paint ball is making a comeback, he said.

"There are more fields and now there are national and world competitions," he said.

"It fun and it's a stress reliever. By the time you're done there is no more stress. You get home and sleep like a baby."

ner of Wood. All of Wood and the rest of Humphrey, east of Wood, is dirt. The wall of the Eagle Crossing neighborhood is on the southern side of the intersection. Muntz lives on the east side of Humphrey, which is a dead end.

There are more than 50 homes in the area, according to Muntz, most of those have children who attend Lake Mary Elementary, either walking or riding their bicycles along Wood Street. "It is only a matter of time until one of us is gravely injured," Muntz said in her letter.

City Manager John Litton directed police Capt. Sam Belfiore to visit the site and evaluate the best solutions. Belfiore met with Robin Gleason, a Seminole County traffic engineer.

While Muntz had asked for speed bumps or rumble strips and Commissioner Thom Greene, who also met with Muntz, suggested a three-way stop. Gleason recommended the intersection be paved and the pavement extend north on Wood Street for approximately 30 to 40 feet. This would keep the intersection clean of dirt and sand and reduce the vehicle's ability to slide. Belfiore's recommendation stated.

Muntz would at least like to see the northwest corner improved, so that the stop sign would be more visible to drivers approaching the intersection from the north, on Wood. Muntz asked Litton about the removal of overhanging branches and shrubs that run along the property line on the west side of the road.

Litton has asked the commissioners to delay making a decision until Wood Street re-opens and the situation can be evaluated under "real conditions." He said the city's Public Works department is currently working on estimates for the paving.

"We nominated Bob for this award because he has contributed tremendously," Singelsen said. "He is dedicated and a true businessman, he evaluated where we were and where we needed to go and he helped cement the board and the organization. We are truly on solid ground."

Among his noted accomplishments during his two year tenure as president are establishing a five year business plan, organization of the accounting system, and revising board member requirements.

Included in the letter of nomination were letters of support from Sanford Mayor Larry Dale, former Mayor Betty Smith, and City Commissioner Kerry Lyons.

"Bob Parsell has proactively secured several major events to enhance Sanford's image and promote downtown redevelopment. Bob, a highly respected businessman, tempers idealism with a pragmatic and astute business acumen, and has endeavored successfully to define the goals of Sanford Main Street and refine its organizational structure for increased efficiency and productivity," writes Dale.

Singelsen credited Parsell for being instrumental in bringing recognition to downtown Sanford throughout the Fourth of July and Great Fall Expo events.

"He always makes the time and he knows the importance of the revitalization of downtown," she said.

Parsell, a longtime Sanford resident, owns Ace Hardware on 25th Street and currently serves on a joint city and county community redevelopment agency. Parsell, who has also served with the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Waterfront steering Committee, was not available for comment.

locked and valuables out of plain sight." McDonough said that the county has an extensive program for the awareness of car theft and car safety. He said that there are videos on the subject that circulate through the school system and civic organizations. The Sheriff's Office also has posted signs in the major shopping centers and malls throughout the county for citizens. "We have a very active program," he said. "But it really lies with the citizens."

There are 1,300 car thefts a year in Seminole County, and Sanford averages five to 10 in a given week. However, the rate of return for the county is 70% - three out of four according to McDonough - and 85% in Sanford. The charge of grand theft auto is a third degree felony and is punishable by imprisonment up to five years.

males in command positions. McCauley answered, "yes."

McCauley said he discussed the problem with Russell and "I believe his predecessor (Marriott) also."

McCauley, who's been at his job 10 years, said he was concerned in 1994 that the city "needed to put more women in every department."

He recalled a particular meeting with Russell that concerned a promotion (to corporal) bid filed by Shearer. "I was bothered by the fact that she appeared to be an eligible as anybody else was at the time," McCauley said. "and it bothered me that she wasn't given the job."

(After she filed an Equal Employment Opportunity complaint, Shearer eventually gained the promotion.)

"Sharon Shearer was not promoted to corporal until after she filed an EEO charge, correct?" McCauley was asked. "Correct," he answered.

McCauley's deposition included an incident concerning officer Terri Murray when Parsell advocated bringing her into the department at a lower pay level than an officer with less experience was given.

"He had just brought someone else in, and I don't recall the name, as I recall it, had less experience than Terri did and brought that person in at a higher rate," McCauley said. "That bothered me."

Another question to McCauley: "Did it concern you that the female officers hired by Chief Russell prior to Terri Murray were all hired into temporary contract related positions?"

"I'm not sure I knew that," McCauley said.

McCauley this morning confirmed his deposition took place in September, but had no further comment.

In her discrimination fight in 1995 to get hired, Murray claimed she had met the qualifications for each of the vacant police officer positions but was "passed over for male officers." Murray applied for 12 positions at the SPD from Aug. 15, 1994 to Jan. 15, 1995.

She contended that Russell did not want to hire female officers.

An attorney representing the city said her charge was "abuse."

Abuse or not, Murray became an SPD officer.

Still is. She is one of four women now on the force.

Arts academy celebrates 10th anniversary

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

Officials hosting an open house and 10th anniversary celebration of Tajiri Arts, Inc. School of Performing Arts Academy, welcomed over 200 guests, including former students and 1997 term students to the gala celebration.

Academy director, Patricia M. Whatley, honored the supporters of Tajiri Arts for their dedication and also her students, parents, friends, and staff. Special guests of the 10th anniversary on Saturday, Oct. 11, were recording and movie artists Jessie and Evelyn McGee Stone. This noted husband and wife team known as writers, arrangers, and producers, have given the music world such great classics as "Shake, Rattle and Roll", and "It's My Time" recorded with George and Michael Atwell. The Stones appear live in the Central Florida area and can be seen at many of Tajiri Arts activities.

Also making a surprise visit to the 10th anniversary celebration was Congressman Alcee Hastings of the Broward County District. Hastings, a great supporter of the arts and academics, made a brief stop over at the 10th anniversary Open House to give support to the program that is very dear to his heart and life's work.

While in the area, Congressman Hastings will visit with family and old friends as he is a graduate of Crooms Academy's class of 1953.

The 10th anniversary celebration will continue throughout with special planned activities, says director, Whatley. Call 277-5558 for more information about Tajiri Arts.

Tribe swimmers win Tri-Meet

ORLANDO - On October 1, over the high school fall break, the fighting Seminoles swimming team had a Tri-Meet with Mainland and Winter Springs at the University of Central Florida Swimming Complex.

The 'Noles came home with another dual meet victory which leaves the team with just one loss this season. The Seminole girls had a team total of 147, Winter Springs, 105, and Mainland, 78 while the Tribe boys finished with 149, Winter Springs, 112, and Mainland, 19.

"The team is right where I want it to be and doing very well," said Seminole coach Tony Ackerson.

Getting the job done

Seminole's younger girls; Lyman's boy setters pace victories

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - The Seminole High School girls' volleyball team defeated the east division number one ranked Spruce Creek Hawks, 15-9, 15-9, in a Class 5A-District 6 matchup at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Wednesday night.

"The younger girls stepped up and played well," said Seminole head coach Beth Corso. "Before each game we spend about an hour-and-a-half doing mental preparation. We tried some new things tonight and we got the job done."

Key players for the Fighting Seminoles were Lindsay Keeler (eight spikes, three digs, six kills, 10 blocks), Kim Corso (three aces, one dig, two assists), Kim Nelson (five aces, six digs, 11 assists, 21 good sets), Sarah Luke (two kills, two spikes), Amanda Cook (two kills, two blocks), Sonya Watson (four digs, six kills, five points for team), Marika Delzonos (two digs) and Melissa Witte (four points for team, eight digs).

Seminole has a pair of road Seminole Athletic Conference games coming up at Lake Howell tonight and Oviedo next Tuesday (action starts with the freshman match at 5 p.m., junior varsity at 6 p.m. and the varsity at 7 p.m.) before returning to Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium next Wednesday for its last home game of the season against district foe Pine Ridge (junior varsity 5 p.m.; varsity 6:30 p.m.). It will also be senior night. The Tribe will then conclude the regular season with an SAC road game at Lake Brantley next Thursday (Oct. 23). The Patriots match begins with freshmen at 4:30 p.m.; junior varsity at 5:30 p.m. and the varsity at 6:30 p.m.

HOUNDS HOWL IN DeLAND

DeLAND - Wednesday night the Lyman Greyhounds traveled to DeLand High School and brought home another victory, 15-8, 15-6, in boys' varsity volleyball match.

"We did a good job of blocking and hitting tonight," said Lyman head coach Norman Ready. "It took a team effort at the net to win the game. We played well and it was a nice match. Last year we struggled when we played them. This year it wasn't like that."

The Greyhounds decided on using three setters, Ricky Pyne, Josh Hollis and Evan Lotacono, and each did an excellent job. This was Hollis' first match setting, but Ready had nothing but praise for his performance.

Facing Lyman's attack were Kevin Graves (nine kills), Mike Carolan (eight kills), Stuart Crager (eight digs, six kills), Keith Liles (six digs), Lotacono (14 assists), Pyne (15 assists) and Hollis (six assists).

Next Wednesday is the Greyhounds' last game of the season against Apopka. Lyman will host the Blue Raiders and honor its senior players. The varsity boys' match begins at 6 p.m. with the varsity girls taking the court at 7 p.m.

Runners prepare for J-ville

From Staff Reports

DELTONA - The Lake Mary and Oviedo boys' and girls' teams and the Lake Howell girls' team tuned up for tomorrow's Pre-State Meet in Jacksonville with impressive runs in the Pine Ridge Invitational last Saturday at Pine Ridge High School in Deltona.

The Lake Mary boys' team under coach Mike Gibson tied host Pine Ridge with 42 points, but finished second because a Panthers runner finished third, just ahead of the Rams' top finisher, Jeremy Olson. Oviedo came home in sixth place.

Lake Mary was runners high because Chris Stuart (fifth), Chris Ingalls (sixth) and Nick Stuart (seventh), Phil Shearer (20th) and Michael Delgado (30th) also ran for the Rams.

The boys' junior varsity squad also finished second, this time to Bishop Moore, with Tema Kudakwashe second, Pat Dunn fifth and Dustin Weber seventh. Again Oviedo was sixth.

In the girls' race, Claudia Beitel finished third to pace Lake Mary to a third place finish behind host Pine Ridge and Bishop Moore. Lake Howell finished fifth, while Oviedo did not record a team score.

Friday, the Rams will take part in the Wolfson Invitational at Florida Community College's North Campus in Jacksonville. The race is run on the same course as the state championship and this meet is now called, the Pre-State Meet. JV girls run at 4 p.m. and JV boys at 4:30 p.m., varsity girls run at 5 p.m. and the varsity boys at 5:30 p.m.

Lake Mary will then return to Seminole County to take part in the Seminole Invitational at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium on Wednesday, October 22, and then run in the Seminole Athletic Conference meet at Central Winda Park in Winter Springs on Thursday, October 30th.

BACK TO WORK

After taking a week off for the Fall break, five of the six varsity football teams in Seminole County will return to action tonight and Friday. Tonight, Seminole will host Orlando-Oak Ridge at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium and Lake Mary welcomes Lake Brantley to Don T. Reynolds Stadium for important district contests starting at 7:30 p.m., while Lyman and Oviedo will play interesting non-conference games on Friday. The Greyhounds will host undefeated Apopka, while the Lions travel to Daytona Beach Municipal Stadium to take on undefeated Mainland. Those games will also begin at 7:30 p.m. Lake Howell is idle this week after playing DeLand last week.

Pebble Junction helps leaders

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - While helping itself Wednesday night, Pebble Junction inadvertently helped Little Quinn DDS take the league lead in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Fall Wednesday Night Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Pebble Junction scored a run in the top of the first inning on an RBI single by Brett Mollie, but Wells Contracting came back to score four runs in the bottom of the first inning on the strength of doubles by Keith Denton and Troy Hickson and a

Merrick working hard to get back to basketball court

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

(PART TWO OF A THREE-PART SERIES)

SANFORD — Dana Merrick has been working toward the same goal since she was in the sixth grade. Not many girls have the desire, the talent or the discipline that she had at such a young age. However, ever since she stepped onto her first basketball court, Merrick has worked toward her goal of earning a college scholarship through basketball.

"My dad was a great runner. In fact, he was a member of the Olympic team the year that we boycotted the Olympics," Merrick explained. "So when I was little I mostly ran with him. In the sixth grade I joined a club basketball team and fell in love. I took to the game pretty quickly and decided that basketball was the game for me."

Merrick not only took to the game, she had a real talent for it. She became the star of every team she played on. She began working hard, both with her teams and on her own in an effort to improve her game. She knew what she had to do to get into college and play on a successful basketball team, and she wasn't afraid to do any of it.

Then, on a winter night much like any other at the beginning of the year, Merrick suited up and prepared to go onto the court. Her goal for the evening was to again lead her team, Seminole High School, to victory against cross-town rival, Lake Brantley, and add a few more good numbers to her already impressive totals.

Colleagues were interested in her... big colleges, South Carolina, Georgia Southern and Florida A & M had already seen Merrick play and thought she would make a nice addition to their rosters.

Without any indication, something happened. Something that had never happened before.

"A girl from the other team bumped into me," Merrick explained. "And I twisted my knee. I knew it was hurt but I shot my free throws and then made it to the sidelines. My knee was taped and I jogged on it up and down the sideline. There wasn't anymore pain at all. After I rested for a moment I went back into the game and was playing fine. Honestly, I had never hurt my knee before so I didn't know what to expect. But it felt fine."

Everything seemed fine also as Merrick again had the ball and was making her way down court to the basket.

There wasn't a player near enough to touch her. No fouls were made. All the crowd knew was that the very talented athlete went down again.

This time, however, she didn't get up.

"I was dribbling up court when I heard a snap and immediately felt extreme pain in my knee," Merrick recalled. "I couldn't straighten it and I had never been in so much pain. The trainer from the opposing team must have heard it because he was the first one to get to me, but it seemed like an eternity before he did. I just lay there, crying mostly from the pain but partly because I knew something had to be wrong."

Something was definitely wrong.

Merrick tore her ACL ligament, the main ligament that holds the knee together. She now faced two choices...rehabilitation or surgery.

Taking the advice of her doctors, parents and coaches, Merrick opted for rehab. Many people can recover from an ACL tear without surgery and Merrick wanted to take that chance.

She attacked therapy much the way she attacked everything else, by diving in 110 percent. The days spent working in the rehab center gave Merrick the will to go. She said she knew that every time an exercise hurt her or she felt exhausted, she was getting work done and was coming one step closer to getting back to the game she loved.

She did return to basketball, only after everyone involved, including Merrick, felt she was ready.

She played the last five minutes of the last game of the season and it felt great to be back out on the court, Merrick said she was a little sore but that was to be expected after all she had been through.

The next game was the first game of district competition. Merrick was back with her team, back on the court and back in front of recruiters.

She stepped onto the court and played the first two minutes of the game and then her coach, Sylvester Wynn, pulled her out so she could rest.

When she went back in, it would be the last time Merrick would play for her high school team.

Again, without warning, Merrick's knee snapped. This time, when she was carried off of the court, she knew as well as everyone else that surgery was inevitable.

"I couldn't believe that it happened again," Merrick said. "I knew at that point that everything I had worked for was slipping away and I couldn't do a thing about it. I suppose if I had undergone surgery right away, things might have been different. But in my family, doctors, Coach Wynn and I made a decision that everyone thought was best for me. It's too late to second guess that now."

It's not too late for Merrick to get back to the game she loves, however.

In April, Merrick underwent the knee surgery she needed and began the tedious and painful task of rehabilitating the ligament that was now held together with screws.

Her goal of attending college and playing the next level of basketball can still be achieved. They just had to be modified a little.

Merrick received a scholarship to Valencia Community College and both she and her new coach are anxiously awaiting her progress report from the doctor. By the end of the month Merrick should know if she can begin working out with her team. She will be behind, having missed summer conditioning, but she's very ready to get back to work.

"It killed me when all of the summer basketball information started coming in," Merrick said. "I had to throw it all in the garbage and concentrate on getting stronger and working through the pain so that I wouldn't have to miss anymore time. I feel like if I can get back to the court and continue to work really hard at Valencia, maybe I can work my way back up to the college level and get a second chance to play at a four year school."

Looking back, what could have been done to prevent this from happening?

"Absolutely nothing," Merrick said without hesitation. "If I had it to do all over again, I still would have gone back into the game. There was no indication that I had sustained a serious injury and Coach Wynn asked me repeatedly how it felt. I felt good and I was in good shape. The team always stretched well before practice and games and conditioned well also. This was just one of those things. No one is to blame or could have stopped it from happening."

Merrick left for college last week to begin attending classes. If all goes well and she gets the approval of her doctor, she will begin practicing with her team immediately.

She will always need to wear a brace when she practices or plays now, but if that's the only price Merrick has to pay, she'll do it gladly, she said.

drove in one as Ron's Tire and Muffler Center evened its record and moved into sole possession of second place with a 19-12 victory over Collage Corporation.

Julian was two-for-three with a walk and also reached on an error and scored three runs as Rich Plan won its sixth straight game 11-9 over Celeste Industries.

Rich Plan (8-0) is leading Ron's Tire and Muffler Center (3-3), Celeste Industries (2-4) and Collage Corporation (1-5).

Next week, Ron's Tire and Muffler Center takes on Celeste Industries at 7 p.m. and Collage Corporation challenges Rich Plan at 8:15 p.m.

Ron's Tire and Muffler Center took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning on an RBI single by Danny Gracey and a two-run home run by W.L. Gracey, and eventually built a 14-1 lead heading into the bottom of the third inning.

Collage Corporation started to mount a comeback in the bottom of the third inning, scoring two runs, then adding two more runs in the fourth inning, a single run in the fifth inning and four runs in the sixth inning to cut the lead to 14-10. Collage Corporation had an opportunity to cut into the lead even further as it left the bases loaded in the second and sixth innings.

Ron's Tire and Muffler Center added some insurance in the top of the seventh inning as Smith, W.L. Gracey and Duane Smith drove in single runs and David Goldstick tripled in two.

Goldstick then helped preserve the victory for Ron's Tire and Muffler Center as he made a diving catch with two out and runners on first and second after Collage Corporation had already plated two runs.

Powering Ron's Tire and Muffler Center were W. L. Gracey (one home run, one double, two singles, three runs scored, five RBIs), David Goldstick (one triple, two singles, two runs scored, three RBIs), Danny Gracey (one double, two singles, four runs scored, five RBIs), Robert Smith (three singles, four runs scored, one RBI) and Billy Gracey (two singles, one run scored, one RBI).

Also contributing were Duane Smith (one double, one RBI), Tony Blaine (one double, one run scored), Kelly Munson (one single, two runs scored, one RBI) and James Joyce and Mike Senecek (one single and one run scored each).

Doing the damage for Collage Corporation were John Keeland (one home run, two singles, one run scored, two RBIs), Chuck Suidak (one home run, two singles, two runs scored, one RBI), Ari Beach (one double, two singles, two runs scored, two RBIs), Rafael Rafael (one triple, one single, four RBIs) and Brett Moran (two singles, two runs scored).

Also hitting were Bob Palaganone (one double, one run scored, one RBI), Mike Harbal (one double, two runs scored), Mike Smith (one single, one run scored), Mel Golnga and Gene Tyle (one single and one RBI each) and Mike Frairik (one run scored).

Celeste Industries took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but Rich Plan came back with five runs in the first inning and four runs in the second inning to build a 9-3 advantage after two innings.

Celeste Industries got two runs in the fifth inning, but Rich Plan answered with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Celeste Industries made things interesting in the top of the seventh inning as consecutive singles by William Wynn, Jeff Hood and David Rape loaded the bases ahead of a grand slam by Kiley Calapa that cut the lead to 11-9, but that was as close as it would get as the next three hitters were all retired to end the game.

Leading the way for Rich Plan were Danny Hewitt (one double, one single, two runs scored, three RBIs), Dave Johnson (one double, one single, two runs scored, two RBIs), Bobby Shaw (one double, one single, one run scored, two RBIs), Manny Silva (one double, one single, three runs scored) and Kevin Julian (two singles, three runs scored).

Other hitters were Tom Malna (one single, one RBI), Brian Jones and Steve Boong (one single each) and Paul Leno (one RBI).

Providing the offense for Celeste Industries were Trey Brascur (one triple, one single, three RBIs), Chris Radcliffe (two doubles, two runs scored), Ryan Bouley (one double, one single, one run scored, one RBI), Tony Duncan (one double, one single, two runs scored), Jeff Hood (two singles, one run scored, one RBI), Frankie Phillips and William Wynn (two singles and one run scored each), Kiley Calapa (one grand slam, one run scored, four RBIs) and David Rape (one single, one run scored).

breathing room as it plated five runs in the top of the seventh inning with Jerry Camus singling in a run and Dave Cosa, Duke Ferrato both doubling in a run and Wells Contracting helping out with a couple of errors as the game ended with the score 10-4 Pebble Junction.

With Pebble Junction knocking off the co-leaders, Lillie Quinn DDS then grabbed sole possession of first place as Invacare Reacue failed to make an appearance and handed both Lillie Quinn DDS and Jernigan Properties 7-0 forfeit victories.

Lillie Quinn DDS is 6-1, while Wells Contracting and Pebble Junction are both 5-2 and tied for second. Completing the standings are Jernigan Properties at 2-5 and Invacare Reacue at 0-8.

Next week, Pebble Junction plays the doubleheader against Invacare Reacue at 6:30 p.m. and Jernigan Properties at 7:30 p.m. Wells Contracting will challenge Lillie Quinn DDS at 8:30 p.m. in what amounts to a must-win situation for Wells Contracting.

Contributing for Pebble Junction were Dave Cosa (one double, one single, one run scored, one RBI), Duke Ferrato (one double, one single, two RBIs), Brett Molla (two singles, two runs scored, one RBI), Jerry Camus (two singles, one run scored, one RBI), Kyle Brubaker (two singles, two runs scored) and winning pitcher Blake Murray (two singles, one run scored).

Also contributing were Dave Kaerberlein (one single, one run scored, one RBI), Mike Miller (one single, one run scored) and Jim Reid (one run scored).

Providing the offense for Wells Contracting were George Porzig (one triple, one single, one run scored, one RBI), Keith Denton (one double, one single, one run scored), Troy Hickson (one double, one run scored, one RBI), Mike McLonon, Jody Cooper and Matt Kalanik (one single each), Rick Wells Sr. (one run scored) and Ken Brown (one RBI).

The best used cars come with a puppy

A recent study has determined that many women would rather go through the misery of a root canal than try to purchase a used car. More than likely, most men feel the same way. Fortunately, I've been blessed in this regard since in my whole life I've bought only one used car. The year was 1957, and my dad helped me buy a 1949 Ford for $335. I still have the canceled check.

RUSS WHITE
Staff Writer

I was 17, and the nifty blue Ford was my first car.

A few years ago I met a rather neat chap who worked at a used-car lot on U.S. Highway 17-92. He told me a wonderful story about how he brought a litter of puppies to his dealer-ship.

I have no idea how well we were treated by the used-car dealer. Can't remember any hassles. The car turned out to be a good deal. It was running nicely four years later when I returned from a hitch in the Navy.

"Gave a puppy away with every car I sold until there were no more puppies," he said. "Well, this woman came back several months after she brought a car and said it was the best deal she ever made in her life."

It sort of died the day I purchased my first new car - a Studebaker - in 1961. Can't say this was much a bonanza. What was I thinking?

"Like the car?" I asked her.

Through the years, I've heard plenty of stories about used-car dealers whose reputations aren't much better than that of attorneys or journalists. Most people picture them as flim-flam artists.

"No, the puppy," she said.

Most women aren't as pleased with the deals they made at used-car lots or impressed with the salesmen, says Courtney Caldwell, an avid motorparts enthusiast, consumer advocate and publisher of American Woman Motorscene Magazine.

"Women are often treated like we don't know what we're talking about or we're quoted prices that are higher than our male counterparts," Caldwell says.

Determined to help women take the horror, haggling and hassle out of buying or selling a pre-owned vehicle, Caldwell has designed a 12-step program for empowering women buying used cars. For a free copy you can write her at: "12 Steps," 500 West 43rd St., Suite 811, New York, N.Y., 10036.

Step 1, Caldwell says, is getting beyond the stereotype.

"Stored in the back of most women's minds is the image of a wife who accompanies her husband to the dealership so she can choose the color of the car and vanity mirrors, while he handles the 'important' matters.

"Let that image go," Caldwell says. "You can do it yourself."

Another piece of advice Caldwell renders is for women to "be as picky about a used car as you would with a new relationship. Don't rush into anything - even if you think you've found the one," she said.

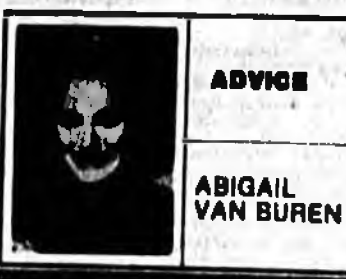

She tells women to use the power brakes they were born with - "if you don't like the way a salesperson is treating you, say so. Command respect."

The fact is that 73 percent of the 55 million cars sold this year in America will be pre-owned and more than half the buyers are women.

Wonder how many got a puppy in the deal.

Frollicsome father-in-law puts frown on family faces

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law (I'll call her Nora) died after a long battle with cancer. After the funeral, everyone came back to the house, and it turned into the party of the year.

Five months later, my father-in-law began dating Nora's best friend, "Zelda." One month later, they were engaged. Two months later, Zelda moved in. They plan to marry in March.

groups concentrate on the positive aspects, choosing to celebrate life and the fact that the deceased is no longer suffering.

that stopped. We have been married for four years. Now I eat breakfast alone while he sleeps until noon. I grocery-shop alone, attend church alone (too early for him) and go to the senior center alone - he is 70 years old and says the people there are "too old" for him. Oh, by the way, I also go to bed alone. He's decided we're too old for sex. All he does is eat, sleep and sit! I feel like I'm only a housekeeper.

My father-in-law acts like he's 18 years old. Dad and Zelda are an embarrassment in public. Since Nora passed away, Dad seems relieved that he can get on with his life.

It's not unusual for a grieving spouse to find solace with a close friend of the deceased, nor is it unheard of to want to live life to its fullest after witnessing the death of a loved one.

DEAR FED UP: You and your husband are overdue for a heart-to-heart talk. The topic of conversation should be "What has happened to the charming, helpful, loving companion I married - because I don't know or particularly like the person you've become." His response will tell you whether your marriage can be revived through counseling and mutual effort - or whether you'd be better off without him.

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: Not everyone reacts to death in the same way. Some people are depressed, some are barely fuction without medical assistance. Emotions, which are very close to the surface, sometimes become confused. Laughing jags occur when one might expect tears. Some religious

Is there help for muscle twitches?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband, who is an overweight diabetic, suffers from muscle twitching in his arms and legs when he is asleep. This doesn't bother him, but it ruins my sleep because he awakens me several times a night. His doctor put him on Sinemet for restless legs syndrome. The medication hasn't helped. What do you think?

DEAR READER: I think that he doesn't have restless legs syndrome, a common affliction of unknown cause that results in uncontrollable sensations of restlessness in the legs at night, requiring that its victims get out of bed and move about. Permax (and similar drugs) is the treatment of choice.

It's more likely that your husband suffers from "periodic limb movements" of sleep. Although this condition can coexist with restless legs syndrome, it is a separate entity marked by limb jerks, recurring extension of the toes, and ankle flexion every minute or so during sleep. Although periodic limb movements may affect up to 44 percent of adults over the age of 65, it is considered to be a sleep disorder, not a muscular or neurological disease. The affliction is common in diabetics and in patients with anemia, kidney failure, rheumatoid arthritis and other diseases. Treatment includes sleeping pills and, in severe cases, opiates.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You are wrong to condemn magnetic therapy. I distribute the product and have many testimonials about its effectiveness.

DEAR READER: Of course you favor magnetic therapy. You're selling this junk to an unsophisticated public. Talk about conflict of interest!

There has never been a valid scientific study showing any health benefits whatsoever from sleeping on mattresses that contain magnets.

In fact, in his book "The Health Robbers" (Frometheus Books, 1983), Dr. Stephen Barrett classifies such equipment as "gadgets and devices... glorified by quacks for years."

by patients with pulmonary disorders can affect the pulse. So, if you have been generous in using an inhaler, the medicine may cause heart irregularities. Your doctor can advise you, based on the results of your Holter monitor.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 64-year-old woman with emphysema. For the past two months, I've noticed periods of irregular heartbeat. My family doctor says not to worry, the heart is just skipping, but I am concerned that it could reflect a problem.

DEAR READER: You won't know until you are tested. In my opinion, you need a Holter monitor—a test to check your heartbeat for 24 hours. If you have palpitations, the monitor will show the cause, and your doctor can advise appropriate therapy. If treatment is necessary. Skipped beats are common to all of us. They are usually harmless and can be ignored, because they are the result of anxiety, caffeine, smoking and other factors. Nonetheless, sometimes these palpitations may reflect a problem, as you suspect. The Holter monitor will resolve the issue.

Five European teams times two

By Phillip Alder

Many nations compete in the European Championships (this year, 35 in the open series, and 24 in the women's), so 10 teams are permitted to move on to the world championships in Tunisia, five each for the Bermuda Bowl and Venice Cup. In the former, the qualifiers (in finishing order) were Italy, Poland, Norway, Denmark and France; in the latter, Great Britain, France, Israel, Germany and the Netherlands.

Here is a thoughtful play by Liz McGowan, a Scot on the British team, in the match against Israel. What is your line in four spades after West starts with two top hearts?

In the other room, where East didn't realize her hand was worth an overall, the Israeli North-South pair cruised into the best contract of five clubs.

South's two doubles were for take-out. Perhaps South was hoping her partner would have enough in hearts to pass and collect a juicy penalty. However, I think rebidding three clubs on the second round is more sensible. Also, West's bidding drives me crazy. If she is willing to go to three hearts (hardly unreasonable), why not bid it immediately?

If McGowan had ruffed the second heart, she would have failed. East would have ducked the first round of trumps, won the second, and forced declarer again in hearts. Out of control, the contract would have finished two down.

However, McGowan calmly discarded a club at trick two. Then, when West played a third heart, declarer ruffed in the dummy. Now came a spade to the jack, followed by the spade king to East's ace. McGowan ruffed the fourth heart, drew trumps, and claimed.

In the year ahead your most impressive successes could be in areas where you previously failed. The lesson this will teach you is that it always pays to try and try again.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be logical where your self-interests are concerned today. If you let your heart rule your head, a conniving individual might take advantage of you. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Be careful today that your cash outlays do not exceed your intake. You will be better off if you salt away your surpluses instead of waste them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even if friends treat you in a generous fashion today, it's best not to request help from them for things you can manage better by yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If your goals are not clearly focused today, it could lessen your incentive and cause you to lay back when you should be proceeding full speed ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chart shows you might read more into a situation than was intended today if a member of the opposite gender is extra friendly toward you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take care of your responsibilities first today before devoting attention to frivolous involvements. Catching up will be hard if you fall behind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, your decisions are likely to be brilliantly evaluated and have constructive potential, but they won't count for much if you do nothing about them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually when you undertake an endeavor, you have the tenacity to see it through to conclusion, but today you may be tempted to settle for the semi-completed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When dealing with youngsters today, you're not likely to get your message across if it's too sugar-coated. Be gentle and kind, but firm.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might be inclined to add more frills to your handiwork than is necessary. Do not let your artistic zeal exceed your good taste.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Speculative enterprises could be more appealing than usual today. Do not dilute your self-discipline to the degree that you take an unsound risk.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make the most of your opportunities today, even the relatively small ones. Remember it was the little acorn that sired the mighty oak tree.
