For Rusted Saws.

When the saw becomes rusted it may be removed with emery dust mixed with sweet oil.

LIST OF QUEER VOWS

SOME AMUSING AND SOME BODERLING ON THE TRAGIC.

Bachelor Who Swore he Never Would Look Upon a Woman Again Kept His Oath, Though It Cost Him Much Money.

There is no limit to human folly or perverseness, and many of the vows that rash people make are foolish as well as perverse.

Eighteen years ago a California man lost his sight during an illness, and there was danger of total blindness.

It was surely nothing but folly and obstinacy that inspired the vow of an old bachelor that he would never look on a woman's face again.

The most recent of these foolish makers of vows is a native of Brussels, who has sworn that he will make a tour of the world walking backward.

There was "mothed in the madness" of the great French painter Zelm, who vowed that he would never leave his studio until a certain important picture was finished.

Another French artist, Gericaud, was equally determined to allow no distraction to interfere with the painting of his great picture, "The Wreck of the Medusa."

It was for a very curious reason that an old lady who died a few years ago condemned herself to more than 30 years' confinement to her home.

Bank-Notes Made of Silk. Bank-notes made of silk of a particular shade that will baffle the bank-note forger are now possible.

Discovered by a woman, this invention is a new process for waterproofing fabrics without rubber and dyeing them in the same operation.

The Electoral College.

Hamilton says: "It was desirable that the immediate election of the president should be made by men most capable of analyzing the qualities adapted to the station."

Smile Right. When in doubt—smile. It is a safe play at almost any stage of life's game. But be sure it's the right kind of a smile—not the fawning smile, not the smile of fear which is better described as a grin, but the smile which says that the world is a pretty good sort of a place if you don't take it too seriously—the smile that says: "Come on in. The joke's a good one."—Pictorial Review.

They Don't Know. Men talk about what they would do if they had $1,000,000, but nine out of ten lie about it.

For the Children

Smart Little Girl Just Past Two Years.

Not every day can you meet such a sturdy and self confident young lady as the one here pictured. She is Miss Ernestine Lindauer, and she lives in the Bronx, which is one of the five boroughs that make up the great city of New York. Ernestine was wheeling a baby carriage (her own) when the camera man came along and she cheerfully posed for her photograph. Most ladies like to have their pictures taken, and Ernestine is no exception. She volunteered the information that she was just past two years of age and that she was very accomplished. Early to bed goes Ernestine, but she is also an early riser. When morning breaks she is quickly awake, and then she runs to her papa's room and tells him to get up at once or he will be late for work. So you see Ernestine is useful as well as highly ornamental.

Chinese Boy's Recitation.

There was a rich merchant who became interested in a bright little Chinese boy and told his father that he would take him into his employ when he could speak good English. "Not pidgin English," warned the merchant. "By the way, pidgin English" is what is known as "business English" and is pronounced pidgin by the colonial as the nearest he can come to saying "business."

One day the father brought the little boy to the merchant, telling him that he now could speak most elegant English. The merchant did not believe it from the short time he had been at it, but to give him a chance said "All right. Say 'Little Jack Horner' for me. Do you know it?" The little Chinese boy smiled delightedly proud to be able to show off his knowledge and this is what the merchant heard:

Here Johnny Horner
Hiding inside corner,
Makes chocolate one Christmas pie.
He put inside him
Cakes big pieces plum—
Hi yah! What one good chilo my!
—Chicago News.

The Candy Stick.

A Connecticut family just after a snow, gave an old fashioned candy pull to their friends. When the sirup had been boiled sufficiently the dish was placed on the snow just outside the door, the quicker to cool off and be ready for pulling. Suddenly there was a great racket outside. A pig had entered the yard and chanced to come upon the dish. The surface was cool enough to be comfortable, so the pig, according to its nature, plunged his snout away down to the bottom of the vessel. Then he drew back—the candy stuck to him and then he fled. The people came out in time to see pigs going through the fence. They gave chase and when they caught the porker the candy had cooled off so that it had to be knocked off with a hammer.

Samuel G. Goodrich (Peter Parley).
Joel Chandler Harris (Uncle Remus).
Mary A. Dodge (Gull Hamilton).

My Grandmother's Cat.

The player says "My grandmother's cat" is one that begins with A" (like Angora). The next player would say "My grandmother's cat is one that begins with B" (like black). Thus the game proceeds until the whole alphabet is used.

Cubbyholes.

I'd like a house built all upstairs.
With boxes and the floor for chairs.
And full of cubbyholes, just right
For me to live in out of sight.

In nooks and corners I would stay,
And I would always live that way.
And all my cubbyholes should be
Just right for one or two or three.

Like homes of lords and high born dames,
My cubbyholes should all have names—
"The Castle" and "The Witch's Glen,"
"The Secret Cave" and "Robber's Den."

And, like the buccannereers of old,
I'd bury tons and tons of gold
And sometimes play I had with me
A princess in captivity.

And could I be a monarch grand
I'd have no rooms in all the land.
For, though there were a million souls,
They all should live in cubbyholes.

Horse in a New Class.
Miss Sanborn's cook, hearing of the immense grain bills, advised, "If I were you, miss, I wouldn't keep any cows this winter, except the horse."

Tolstol's Library.
Count Tolstol's secretary says that the great writer's library numbered 10,000 volumes in 22 languages. There were almost as many books in English as in any other language.

Remarkable Promenade.
At a New York hotel a man who had suddenly become wealthy from an oil well venture had left his family, which had accompanied him to the city, in their rooms so long that they had become uneasy about him. At last he returned to the rooms, and to the anxious inquiry of his wife, "Where in the world have you been so long?" he responded calmly, "I've just been in the business walking promenade."

The Actor's Mistake.
Toole, the English actor, used to get off a good thing occasionally. At dinner at a country hotel he was sitting next to a gentleman who had helped himself to an extravagantly large piece of bread. Toole took it up and began to cut a slice from it. "Sir," said the indignant gentleman, "that is my bread." "I beg a thousand pardons, sir," replied the actor, "I mistook it for the loaf."

New Market for Ivory.
Although in recent years the Ivory imported into London has decreased, the falling off has been caused by a new market having been created by the opening up of the Congo free state. The ivory coming from that region is now sold in Antwerp, so that when the quantities sent to both markets are put together the total imports actually show an increase.

NUISANCES

Of the things in life that torment or annoy us, some are merely disagreeable, some are dangerous. We call them nuisances.

Common nuisances are here distinguished from those which are caused by the fact that they are merely annoying, perhaps offensive, to the senses...

A dead animal in the public highway is offensive to the sight, and if not promptly removed it may offend the nostrils, but it is not dangerous to health in either condition.

The odors from a glue factory are spread far and wide by the breezes; the escape of hissing steam from a high pressure boiler, the noises permitted by many reckless chauffeurs...

An open sewer, an unscreened earth closet, a pool of stagnant water, the sale of impure milk, of tainted meat or of decaying fruit and vegetables...

The law provides for cooperation between the police and health officials to abate many of these annoyances and dangers...

It is a matter of frequent occurrence that the health authorities of many Florida cities and the offices of the State Board of Health, are notified of existing irregularities which should be reported to the police or the sheriff.

It appears difficult to impress sufficiently the idea that diseases are not communicated through the senses. Sight, smell, hearing, taste and feeling are given us as sentinels to warn of danger...

A BETTER PLAN For the past three months the several men in this state who were determined to have an exhibition at the California fair have been declaring that the press stood with them, and that the exhibit would be of such a nature as to bring out a great deal of good advertising for Florida.

Thousands of letters have been sent to the press each week and every possible means have been taken to coerce the newspapers into supporting the measure; yet the crop of respondents was very poor.

Unless the Honorable Albert Gilchrist can get married The Herald will not support him for any office.

hibit by furnishing them a comfortable berth for several months. The state committee has now abandoned its project of making an exhibit, and probably the small sum received from the sale of the silly souvenirs at one dollar per sou will be devoted to paying the first cost of the rare objects.

The Post has advocated the erection of a suitable and permanent building at Jacksonville, by the various counties, where at certain seasons of the year there might be made handsome showings from each district to those who were coming through the big city with the intention of seeking some location within the state where they would be pleased to which they desired.

Each county in the state could subscribe for five shares (at $100 a share) in the corporation not for profit, and the articles could be so arranged that the chairman of the commissioners would ever be a member of the corporation. Such a subscription would produce more than $25,000 to purchase a site at some convenient point to Jacksonville, and there erect a permanent building.

The plan could be admirably worked out—and then Florida could boast of something which no other state possesses.—Palm Beach Post.

WELLS POWELL AT HIS BEST

Come all you folks from Illinois, Ohio and New York; from London town and Paris too, and those who hail from Cork; let's sing a song of live oak trees, of mocking birds and honey bees, and scent the perfume in the breeze in Sunny Florida.

Who wants to live in Iowa, Wisconsin or Kentucky? Where old Jack Frost nips flowers and men and roads are rough and mucky; let's sing a song of sun and sky, where fleecy clouds go floating by, and have our fill of berry pie, in sunny Florida.

Who stays in towns like Kalamazoo, and either melt or shiver; or hug the fire in Davenport, beside a frozen river? Come down and try the land that's best, and make your home where every test will prove that we have got the best in sunny Florida.

So pack your duds, where'er you live from Washington to Maine, and grab your grip and check your trunk and get aboard the train; for though you come in summer time, you'll find our climate most sublime, and vow to live back east a crime, compared with sunny Florida.

HORRORS!

Now watch Clarence Woods splutter and call a few others, not so sweet scented as he, liars. The county commissioners of Hillsboro county made a business trip to Eustis to look upon that Wonder Road, and they return and are reported by the Tampa Tribune as follows:

Regarding the sand oil road at Eustis, members of the board declared that they did not know whether the material would last under heavy traffic conditions. They declared the cost of building such roads is greater than has been represented for the reason that the Eustis road is laid on a marl foundation: It is soft enough to cut with a knife.—Clearwater Sun.

UXEREE! UXEREE!

The following dispatch via carrier to Pzylrmij, Russia, thence by boat down the Qxmgy river; thence by wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., and thence by Western Union to Billy Buck at Chicago, who had it relayed to the Evening Sun. It has not been censored:

"The Germans have taken Pilsener and are now surrounding Delicatessen, where the wurst is expected. The Belgian Hares have had a falling out with the Welsh Rarebits and the Swiss Cheese, is shot full of holes. This will make the Irish Stew and the English Mustard hot, and if the Prussian cavier sees the French Pastry, it may start a Swiss movement.—WATCH!

"The Spanish Onions are strong for a mix-up, and if the Home Preserves are called out and spread over the German Noodles, they may Ketchup with the Navy Beans, thereby causing an uprising of the Brussel Sprouts.—Clearwater Sun.

Any man of Gilchrist's opportunities who has delayed the game as long should not attempt to again go before the people for an office. A bachelor Governor was had enough but a bachelor U. S. Senator would be the limit and would cause the bafance of the Senators to think that girls were scarce in Florida, when in fact they are just about the sweetest and finest in the land and there are thousands of them waiting at the church. The ladies of Florida should take up this matter and taboo Gilchrist from the list of candidates for political honors.

If Governor Trammell really wants to appoint a newspaper man for U. S. Senator he cannot make a mistake if he just shuts his eyes and shoots, for all the newspaper men of Florida are able to hold the job. The only exception is the editor of The Herald who expects to be postmaster of Sanford during the second year of his term, and does not want to be hampered with a small position, like that of U. S. Senator.

The fishing in Florida is the finest in the United States and the people who have been going to other places are finding it out. It is not infrequent now to find northern people here in the summer, taking advantage of our cool weather and fine fishing in rivers, lakes and the ocean and gulf. The fishing on the East Coast at present is all that could be desired and the sea bass are in their prime.

The merchants of Sanford should wake up and advertise in The Herald. The fall business is opening and the people should be induced to come to Sanford and buy their goods. We have the stores and the stocks, but people living outside of Sanford will never know it unless the merchants take liberal space to tell them about it. In this enlightened age the merchant who does not advertise is a dead one.

Cupid has come to Sanford to stay for the winter and the ministers are working over time tying the matrimonial knot. There have been several weddings each week for the months of August and September and from all reports the good work will be continued during the winter months and this is not Leap Year either.

Now is the time to clean up the yards, paint the house, fix up your spare rooms and prepare for the Yankee invasion. There will be more tourists in Sanford this year than ever before and we must get ready for them.

Rube Alyn takes up eight pages of his Sarasota Sun to tell of his joy ride to see the Wonder Road at Eustis, and not a word about the road, or the material of which it is constructed.—Clearwater Sun.

Rube couldn't see anything after he left Orlando.

Perry, Wall of Tampa has suggested a celebration in Tampa for the prosperity of South Florida and the suggestion is a good one. Since Sanford is in Tampa's ballwick our city should join in the idea and have a representation at the celebration.

Stoppage of supplies from Europe makes us search for similar supplies in the United States. We have gone abroad for them chiefly because labor cost was lower than at home and hence the foreigner could undersell us on account of good American wages.

Sand-Oil Roads The following Arcadia correspondence is clipped from the Tampa Tribune and is self explanatory.

Having gone to Eustis for the purpose of studying good roads the delegates at once began the inspection of those on exhibition of oil-sand. The demonstration and careful examination resulted in convincing the visitors that the Lake county roads are very superior in many respects. The Eustis road that was examined is three inches thick, eight feet wide and after constant use for two years, appears to be in better condition than when first built. It appears to improve through use, certainly for a period at least.

Samples were also shown from the roads built in Massachusetts by the state highway association and through state aid. It was considered a great success there, where the sand that is used for the purpose is much inferior to the sand in Florida. A better road can, therefore, be built for the same money in Florida than can be built further north where the conditions are different.

A careful estimate by committees of inspection and engineers when applied to conditions in Florida, show that a road 3 1/2 inches thick and 8 feet wide can be built for $2,500 per mile almost anywhere in the state.

The visitors are high in their praise of what they saw and are not slow to recommend that kind of a road for Florida. The fact that, after thorough trial in some of the northern states it found successful and is built by state highway associations, with the state appropriations, is proof that the road is all that is claimed for it. And if the same road can be built in Florida at less expense, there is good reason for road builders with us to give the matter consideration.

PANAMA CANAL IS OPENED TO THE MARINE TRAFFIC OF THE WORLD

Liner Ancon of the War Department Makes Trip Through Waterway That Marked Official Opening of Canal for Traffic—Big Ditch Is Completed After 400 Years of Effort by Leading Nations.

Panama.—The United States war department steamship Ancon made the passage through the Panama canal, and transit through the waterway was officially open to the traffic of the world.

The Ancon left its berth at Cristobal at seven o'clock in the morning and made its way to the end of the deep water channel from the Atlantic to the Gatun locks. It went through these locks, which have a lift of 85 feet, in 70 minutes. It continued through the waterway, from deep water on the Atlantic to deep water on the Pacific side, without incident.

Leaving Cristobal, the Ancon passed several vessels at anchor in the harbor, waiting to follow it through the canal and thus make the first commercial use of the waterway.

The decks of the Ancon were crowded with guests of the government and officials of the canal administration and the republic of Panama. The party included Colonel Goethals, U. S. A., builder of the canal and governor of the zone; President Porras of Panama, and Capt. Hugh Rodman, U. S. N., superintendent of transportation.

In conformity with a promise made by Colonel Goethals, the peace flag of the American Peace society fluttered from the foremast of the Ancon.

Beneath its decks, however, were two huge pieces of artillery which are destined to form an important part in the defenses of the waterway.

The great waterway now becomes "free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations on terms of entire equality," in accordance to the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Vessels drawing not more than thirty feet of water and up to 10,000 tons register may now make the passage. It would be possible to put some of the big American dreadnaughts through at any time.

The passage of the Ancon and its company of ships opens the canal to shipping, although the formal opening of the waterway will not take place until next spring. Tickets have been sold at the isthmus to all vessels waiting to make the trip. The charge is $1.25 a ton, which is purely nominal in view of the fact that it cuts about 10,000 miles and two months of almost continuous steaming from the time required for the ordinary freighter to go around South America to a position in the Pacific opposite the canal. American ships will receive no concessions in fare.

The charge made is expected to return $12,500,000 to the canal treasury in the first year of operation, which will cover the $4,000,000 a year cost of operation, and almost cover the additional $11,000,000 interest on the money required to build the waterway. Judging by the experiences of the Suez canal, the Panama waterway will be carrying 20,000,000 tons of freight in a few years, and on that basis a reduction of the tolls would be possible.

The canal has been completed after almost four centuries of effort by the leading nations of the world. Balboa first saw the possibility of the waterway, which he named the "Maritime Highway." The Pacific ocean, which was next year built and so named, and two small ships across the isthmus, intending to use them in the Pacific, and three years later the city of Panama was founded to become, in a short time, the richest city in the world and the terminus of the route by means of which Spanish adventurers transported the plunder of the Indies from Peru and other South American countries to Spain. Highways were paved with brick across the isthmus to provide route for the pack animals.

The first definite plans for a canal were proposed by Savadera, a Spanish engineer among Balboa's followers, who was about to forward his project to King Charles V. of Spain when the king died. Surveys of the proposed canal route first were made in 1581 by Spanish engineers, who reported the project impossible of accomplishment. In 1620 King Phillip II decided against building the canal after referring the question to the Dominican friars, who suggested the project was sacrilegious because "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

England became interested in the possibilities of a canal in the latter part of the seventeenth century when William Paterson, founder of the Bank of England, tried to found a community on the isthmus of Darien, south of the present Panama, with the ultimate intention of establishing a transisthmian route. Although that project proved an utter failure, other British surveys were made from time to time for 60 years.

In the first part of the last century the German poet, Goethe, said: "It is absolutely indispensable that the United States effect a passage from the Mexican gulf to the Pacific ocean, and I am certain they will do it."

In 1814 the Spanish government, by decree entered upon the construction of an isthmian canal, but the successful revolt of the South American colonies stopped the work. In 1825 President Bolivar of the republic of New Granada gave a franchise for a canal at Panama to a Frenchman, Baron Thierry, who failed to raise the capital required to carry out the project.

The first appearance of the United States in the history of the Panama canal idea was in 1835, when Henry Clay introduced a resolution in the senate which resulted in Charles Biddle being sent by President Jackson to visit the various canal routes proposed and report on their relative feasibility. Biddle reported in the following year that he had been so struck by the feasibility of the Panama route that he had not visited the other proposed routes—the Nicaragua, Darien and Tehuantepec projects.

Ferdinand de Lesseps, the builder of the Suez canal, formed the Inter-oceanic Canal company in Paris in 1877 and actual work on the canal was started in the next year. On January 20, 1889, the de Lesseps company, in the presence of a distinguished gathering, fired the first blast for the tearing away of the Isthmus. De Lesseps withdrew from the project in 1887 when the impossibility of building a sea level canal within the estimated 12 years became apparent.

At the same time it was indicated the project could not be completed for the estimated cost of $240,000,000, as $200,000,000 already had been spent. The company went into bankruptcy. In 1894 the New Panama Canal com-

Baggs and Jaggs met, and Baggs and Jaggs got yarning.

"That's nothing, my dear fellow," retorted Jaggs. "I used to board at a place where the landlady was so nervous that whenever the wind blew she had to go out and grease the corners of the house, so that the wind wouldn't creak when it went round them."

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU, AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH.
"HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

From all over the land comes a mighty protest against the high price of foodstuffs.

The national government, state authorities and municipalities are seeking the cause, but without appreciable result.

The government says it is not the fault of the retailer, and unquestionably the government is right. But there the government rests.

And when the federal government, with all the power and resources at its command, cannot solve the problem or check the robbery it is time for the humble citizen to pause and think. The time may even come when it will become necessary for him to act.

And that action should take the course of devising some method whereby the foodstuffs may travel from the producer to the consumer without passing through too many hands. Under the present system many hands handle them and many mouths are fed from the profits before they travel the distance from field to consumer, or even to the retailer.

And the consumer pays the bills. There is no question but that the fault lies with the middlemen, wholesalers, cold storage men and speculators, each one of whom must extract the largest possible margin of profit before he passes it on to the next leech.

And with half a dozen human vultures fastening their talons upon every article of diet, it is not to be wondered at that the public finds itself plucked to the bones.

The retailer and the producer should join hands in a determined effort to eradicate the vultures, and reduce the cost of living to something within the bounds of reason.

The fact that a wave of prosperity seems to be ahead of us is no reason why the consuming public should calmly submit to being gouged in the matter of its foodstuffs.

Can anyone in this community suggest a reasonable solution to this problem?

These are days of more or less worry for the newspaper makers. In the news room there is the gigantic task of handling the war news and whipping it into shape for the readers, the stress is also felt in every other department. In the business office there is also ever-present apprehension in regard to the supply of print paper which is available for use. Of course in cities of this size this feature is not a source of great worry, but with the metropolitan dailies with their numerous editions and vast number of pages it is a different matter. The visible supply of paper now on hand would supply the newspapers just ten days, and if any of the large mills should be destroyed at this time it would mean increased prices and smaller papers. Already some of the metropolitan papers have been compelled to advance prices outside of their own cities and a straight rate of twelve cents a week and seven cents for Sunday papers is among the possibilities of the near future. In fact those prices are already being charged in some instances. In some of the beleaguered cities of the continent, Paris, for example, daily newspapers are confined to one edition every twenty-four hours consisting of a single sheet which carries no advertising whatever.

A terrific effort is being made to awaken America to the fact that the war in Europe has opened the gates to golden opportunities for extending our commerce in many parts of the world. With this purpose in view editorials are being penned, advertisements are being printed and neighbor Jones is talking it to neighbor Brown. While as a nation and as individuals we regret the calamity which has enveloped all Europe there is no reason why we should not avail ourselves of the opportunity to supply the world with goods bearing the label "Made in America."

The situation has been well summed up in a confidence ad by F. K. Anderson of Chicago, and it is reproduced here because it is worth reading. "The present European conflict fairly staggers the imagination. The tremendous armies and navies involved, the great loss of life, the stupendous destruction of property, all are so great as to nearly defy our comprehension. And there is still another side. The little French girl who mourns a lover at the front finds herself jobless through the closing of the glove factory which has given her employment. The German business is troubled because of having Russian Cossacks are making of the wheat and barley intended for Prussian bread. Young Sandy McIntosh can't go to war, because he is crippled, but sits on the doorstep. The mill in which he worked is now closed. The mill hands are giving their attention to the business of war.

"Meanwhile, the world's work must go on. Who will shoulder the burden of commerce while these neighbors make war on each other? Who, indeed, can, unless it be the people of these United States?"

"Will it be worth while? Shall we get adequate compensation if we put aside our doubts and fears and vacillations and buckle down to work? Read what the great Englishman wrote about it a short time ago:

"A great war in Europe will enable the United States to sell its crops, in places which will give a much greater income than if there was no war. Almost every industry will derive more or less advantage. Should the American people take advantage of the golden opportunity afforded them by the outbreak of the war, it will mean not diminished, but increased prosperity for the United States."—Sir George Paish, editor of the London "Statist."

"Well, let's go to work."

The schools are mobilizing. All over the land there is a mustering of the infant population for enlistment in the cause of education. To the primitive district school there is flocking small groups of little men and women to take up the work of preparation for future control of affairs. And the movement is general and concerted throughout the land, district school, high school and college each being the active scene of an enlistment that is repeated year after year and the glorious part of it is that there is never any apparent lack of reservists to fill the ranks when the trained hosts of yesterday have taken their diplomas and marched away to conquer the world, each in his individual way.

The public school system of America is a glorious institution. It offers equal opportunity for the high and the low, the rich and the poor, nor class, nor creed, nor sect is barred from participation which results in individual advantage and redounds to the glory of the nation as a whole. In war shattered Europe with its boast of power and wealth and antiquity, kings are born to rule and the man is born to a life of toil, a unit whose efforts are chiefly directed to satisfying the demands of the tithe-taker. Small wonder then that each passing year witnesses a wonderful immigration to a land where every man's success depends upon his individual efforts and no matter how lowly his station in life his children share equally the opportunity to rule and sit in the high places.

The front yard of a town may be defined as that part of it in which visitors first land, as for instance, the railroad station or the water front. The front yard of every Florida town should be kept in a clean and orderly condition throughout the entire year, but the writer knows a number of cases where this is not done. The river front or lake front towns have a decided advantage over the others in the way of an opportunity to create a very attractive park. Where this opportunity has been made most of the visitor, approaching by boat, is bound to get a decidedly favorable impression of the place that will be lasting.

It is not such a terribly difficult or expensive matter in many cases to construct a concrete seawall along the water front. The price of a block of brick paving will build a pretty good seawall which in many ways is more valuable than the paving. With the ground leveled off back of the wall and a space of varying width set out to shade trees, cabbage palms, planted in grass and provided with seats we have an attractive water front that reflects the enterprise of the citizens of the town. Besides this it is more apt to be kept in a clean and sanitary condition under such circumstances.

With such a water front it is not likely that the authorities of any town would permit old and dilapidated docks and dirty ill smelling fish houses to remain in the fore ground. The water front would not be a repository for all of the garbage that accumulates in the town as is now unfortunately the case in some instances. Such a condition is bound to be more or less unhealthy. It is a feeding place for flies and often a breeding place for mosquitoes, both of which are a serious menace to the health of any community.

All wet and swampy places in any town should be drained. If it is not feasible to reach an outlet with a ditch, the old plan of putting down a cesspool will usually answer the purpose. All scrub palmetto and undergrowth on lots in any town should be rigidly legislated against by town council. They are unhealthy in wet seasons and a fire menace in dry seasons.

These suggestions are especially timely because the season when Florida is host to thousands of critical northerners is almost at hand. Every town should take pride in showing its regular winter visitors what a big improvement it has made during their absence. Special attention might be given to most railway stations to great advantage. Neat, clean station grounds and the vicinity thereabouts speak well for the town. A clean and attractive place is generally healthful, while a healthful place is invariably clean and attractive.

What with one thing and another, the past few weeks have disclosed enough to discredit men who are by circumstance made rulers. We, who live obscurely, within a small compass, watch things through our bifocal lenses and turn away without understanding from the spectacle of the kings of the world intriguing, under handing and passing the hats of nations like a medicine ball from one to another. At such times as men turn, if they can turn handsly, to Dr. Beecher's lectures—not our regular literary diet but a work marked by an occasional worthy thing they will find partial enlightenment. In this for example:

"As men they mean to be veracious and honest and moral; as politicians they are deceitful, cunning and unscrupulous; as men they abhor the slimy demagogue; as politicians they employ him as a scavenger. They abhor virtue and reward intrigue. If this style of character were not wicked it would be supremely ridiculous. But it is both."

"Have you ever heard?" Laura Jean Libbey is asking in the Chicago Tribune. "That railroad men's lives are dull and monotonous and pitted are the handsome, sturdy fellows to whom home is but a name and courtships are but the roughest fancies?" Bunk! As a matter of fact the average railroad man meets as many girls as he does semaphores and goes through life "out of the block" as far as feminine society is concerned. We have known sailors to blush when railroad men have related their conquests.

President Buys Ford

Detroit.—If President Wilson shows as sound judgment in making all his future appointments as he did recently, we see no imminent danger of the ship of state foundering. Miller Bros., our Washington, D. C., representatives, notified us that they delivered a Ford to the White House for the President, to be used at his summer home. This announcement from our Washington agents coming so closely upon the heels of Mr. Ford's visit to the national capital and conference with the President as to the state of business did not surprise us much.

We thoroughly believed that Mr. Ford would himself make the sale, but in his characteristic kindly way he stepped aside so that Miller Bros. would get the credit of selling a Ford to the first citizen of the land.

The addition of the President to the Ford family is very gratifying to the company.

He is perhaps the most famous Ford owner, though Fords are owned by hundreds of leaders of the world's activities.

For instance, there were nineteen princes and two grand dukes driving Fords of their own in Russia, according to the last report from the Russian representative, Mr. M. S. Friede.

Several members of the English peerage drive Fords, as do also many titled persons in the other countries of Europe.

Even the Tasha Lama of Urga has a Ford town car, which was delivered to him under its own power across the Gobi desert of Mongolia, being the first pleasure car to negotiate the hazardous trip.

And in Washington the President will find himself among a distinguished company of Ford owners. But a few days after reporting the sale of a Ford to the President, Miller Bros. announced they had sold a car to the Hon. Frank B. Brandegee, U. S. Senator from Connecticut.—Ford Times.

Moved to Town

Mr and Mrs. J. A. Harrold and daughters have moved back to Sanford after spending the past two years on their fine place in the suburbs on Mellonville avenue.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS

The election in Seminole county for members of the local school boards occurred on Tuesday and were comparatively quiet, although more interest was manifested than ever before and this interest made several changes. The results were as follows:

ed battle, with masses of troops throwing themselves at each other, and every available piece of artillery concentrated in the determined effort of the armies to break the other's left.

The Germans, who a fortnight ago had to abandon their first swift endeavor to destroy the armies of France and Great Britain and capture Paris, have fortified themselves on the mountains north of the River Aisne, through the plains of Champagne and in the Argonne Mountains, through which the Meuse flows.

According to English and French official reports, these attacks have been repulsed and the Germans compelled to give way at certain points, but the German general staff claims the opposite.

Landis Will Not Resign

The DeLand News in its issue of Wednesday says:

A canard is going the rounds of the state press to the effect—that Hon. Cary D. Landis of DeLand will resign the office of state attorney for the Seventh Judicial Circuit, and that Hon. George DeCottes of Sanford is to be appointed in his stead.

The News heard the rumor last week and interviewed Mr. Landis about the matter. He stated at that time that he had no intention of resigning. Since the story has been running in the state papers, the News reporter again called upon Mr. Landis yesterday, and he reiterated his statement of last week, to the effect that he had no idea whatever of resigning.

Attorney Murray Sams of DeLand was also mentioned as possible successor; when there is to be any change, Volusia county people ought to get behind Mr. Sams and urge his appointment.

SANFORD WON GAME

Were Too Much For the Team That Came Over From DeLand

The Sanford basket ball team met the DeLand team on the home court last Friday night. The game was hard fought by both teams, time being called several times by different players.

The ball was in DeLand territory most of the time but the efficient work of our guards kept the ball out of the basket.

The features of the game were two long throws for field goals by Routh, Captain of the home team, and Hogden, Capt. of the DeLand team, both were good shots and counted, the other was the whirlwind finish of the game by Gilbert.

DeLand had a jolly crowd with them and when their boys pulled a good play, the cheers of the Sanford and DeLand crowd were together.

The managing of the team by Capt. Routh was without fault. The first half he gave his Subs. a try out and found them in good shape and then substituted Gilbert and Herring in their regular places.

A good crowd witnessed the game, and all seemed to be well satisfied, and all seemed to be well satisfied. We hope to see them back again, thanking them for their hearty support and the interest they showed.

The line up was as follows: Sanford Herring, R. F. Cruse, Pearson, L. F. Albin, Gilbert, C. Miller, Routh (Capt), L. G. Hogden (capt), Raynor, R. G. Keown.

Subs, Washburn and Routh. Referees, Ned Chittenden; time keeper, Mr. Chittenden.

We play DeLand a game on their floor Sept. 22nd, and would like to have a good Sanford delegation.

LETTER FROM MR. JENKINS

ON THE REGISTRATION AND PAYMENT OF POLL TAXES

To vote at the general election, which will be held November 3rd, electors must be registered and have their poll taxes paid for 1912 and 1913, unless exempt from poll tax.

A qualified voter, as defined by the law of this state is every male person of the age of 21 and upwards, that at the time of his registration is a citizen of the United States, and shall have resided in Florida for one year, and in this county for six months, and shall have paid on or before the second Saturday of the month preceding the month in which the election is held, his poll taxes for the two years next preceding the year in which the election is held, unless exempt from paying such poll tax by reason of his not having been of age or having been over 65 years of age or who has lost a limb in battle.
