

President's Day

The London Times said American policy now "may well be to extend the conflict between Russia and the United States to other parts of the globe x x x."

The Communist press of Europe, although concentrating on eulogies to Soviet Communism on the 25th anniversary of Lenin's death, made room for angry answers.

"For the first time, President Truman laying aside sentimental generalities, has attacked Communism as a doctrine," said the Communist L'Humanité in Paris. It said the President "publicly takes a place at the head of a crusade—political, military, economic and even religious" to oppose Communism.

The independent Rome paper, Momento, hailed the address as "open and absolute condemnation of Communism" but suggested it might "have been opportune, before making the speech, to send a dozen divisions and a hundred or so air squadrons to Europe."

The speech was largely ignored by the Russian press, which usually waits a day or so after such an event before it presents a report to Russian readers. Pravda and Izvestia in Moscow devoted their space to hailing Lenin and his works.

In Prague the official organ of the Communist Party also skipped a report on the speech, but the rest of the press in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia condemned it as advocating a United States of fort to rule the world.

"La Libre Belgique," Roman Catholic Brussels daily said the President's words show he does not intend to bargain with Communism nor with the men who represent it.

"Tägliche Rundschau," the official Soviet paper in Berlin, called for a Communist ideological offensive to speed up "the inevitable downfall of capitalism." The victory, it said, "must be gained by fighting."

On an inside page, however, the paper recalled Stalin's statement to Harold Stassen two years ago that Communism and capitalism can live together in the same world.

Berlin praised the speech as a "fine anti-Communist paper in programs for peace and reconstruction of Europe."

Federal Judge Rules Against Merger Of FEC

Ruling Represents Victory Over ACL For Du Pont And St. Joe Paper Co.

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 24—(AP)—Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley today ruled against a proposed merger of the bankrupt Florida East Coast Railroad with the Atlantic Coast Line and returned the merger plan to the interstate Commerce Commission.

The ruling represented a victory for the Dupont-owned St. Joe Paper Company which owns a majority of $45,000,000 worth of FEC stock and refunding bonds and is also seeking control of the line which has been under reorganization since 1931.

A hearing was held in federal court here several weeks ago at which time opponents and proponents were heard as to the ICC reorganization plan which in 1947 granted the ACL's request to turn over the FEC and run it.

Judge Sibley's opinion said in part "I conclude the plan is not fair and equitable and does not afford due recognition to the rights of the refunding bondholders."

Judge Sibley also denied a petition by the S. A. Lynch interests of Miami, owners of a block of FEC bonds, that $12,000,000 first mortgage bonds against the road be paid off.

Payment of these bonds before their due date can be done only in conjunction with a plan of reorganization, he said.

Ed Ball, spokesman for the DuPont interests, said the decision was "just as we felt it would be all along."

Giles Patterson, Jacksonville attorney, and former Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes represented the paper company which was unjust.

Judge Sibley rejected the ICC plan on these principal grounds:

1. That, in his opinion, Congress

ACCUSED OF LIES

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 24—(AP)—A Hungarian foreign office spokesman accused the western press today of manufacturing lies about Hungary in connection with the case of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, now under arrest on treason charges.

The spokesman was particularly angry about a "statement by a police officer who allegedly escaped to Austria. This statement, he said was "a gross lie and a glaring example of the imperialist press against Hungarian democracy."

Plans Outlined To Decrease Big Crops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—The administration outlined plans today to discourage "extra large" cotton and wheat crops this year. Senators who heard Secretary of Agriculture Brannan discuss the project said it would involve ignoring 1949 production from any future acreage allotments that may be put into effect. These allotments normally are based on past planting performance.

Brannan was said to have voiced fear that large surpluses of wheat and cotton may be produced this year because of current high support prices. These guarantees growers a specific price regardless of what happens to the market. Brannan testified at a closed meeting of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Chairman Elmer Thomas (Okla.) told reporters Brannan simply had intended to put farmers on notice through a public announcement of the new plan.

Caraway Brings Greetings From Joseph Blythe

Mayor, Wife Return From Inauguration Events In Capital

Mayor Andrew Caraway, who with his wife attended the inauguration ceremonies in Washington, today brought greetings to Sanford friends of Joseph L. Blythe, state senator from North Carolina and treasurer of the National Democratic Committee, who died unexpectedly yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage at the age of 58.

Senator Blythe at his Mayflower Hotel Headquarters, talked with Mayor Caraway about people he had known in Sanford where he had visited several times and sent his regards to John and W. S. Brumley, L. I. Frazier, Roy Hollister, K. W. Fife, Wallace Bell and others.

The Caraways returned last night. They reported that they had greatly enjoyed the inaugural parade and had excellent seats only about 50 feet from President Truman in the presidential stand.

The only delay in their trip, they revealed, was when their big 60 passenger EAL Constellation plane on the return trip, circled vainly over Atlanta airport and was unable to land due to

U.S. To Return Air Field To French

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 24—(AP)—The U. S. Armed Forces said today Rochambeau Field in French Guiana will be turned over to French representatives tomorrow.

The field, near Cayenne, capital of French Guiana, was built by the U. S. Army in 1943 and operated during the war as a U. S. military air base. The Air Force said the seacoast field was important because of its strategic location in relation to the northern coast of South America.

Sanford Gets White Deer From Allen

A white deer, a very rare specimen of the albinistic type, was presented Friday by Ross Allen to the Sanford Zoo and has been placed with other small deer in the large bird enclosure.

The animal, a buck is about two years old and was secured at Ponca City, Okla., said Park Superintendent Richard this morning.

Efforts are being made to secure also a fawn of this type, an oddity of which is the pearl color of hoofs and nose and the visible blood vessels in the ears.

First discovered in 1912 in the Lake Superior region of northern Michigan, specimens of white deer were captured by government agents and placed for safe propagation on Grand Island, as described in the August, 1931 issue of the National Geographic Magazine. Mr. Richard pointed out.

The young white deer appeared very contented this morning near the peacock, who strutted about trying to impress him. He appears to be larger and sturdier than the other deer in the enclosure.

Chiang's Men Follow Leader To South China

Li Is Reported To Be Sending Troops To Nanking Front From Hankow Area

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24—(AP)—Thousands of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's "personal troops" were following their "retired" leader south today, abandoning the Shanghai-Nanking defense area.

Immediately after news of the unexplained movement came, President Li Tsung-jei established a reported 30,000-strong, personally loyal to him, in the Nanking sector from the Hankow front farther west.

The Communists, whom the disintegrating Chinese government has been suing vandy for peace on almost any terms, meanwhile reported their unopposed advance southward has reached points only 30 miles north of Nanking by noon day.

The Reds presumably were still nearer today.

The telephone operator at Pao-ning, Nanking's railway station on the north bank of the Yangtze River, said "Everyone is gone from here."

This apparently meant there were no government troops left on the north bank to oppose the Communist march.

Dispatches from Nanking said the 80,000 troops the Red President Li was bringing up were intended either to defend Nanking from the Reds or to prevent other government troops from violating any cease fire order.

(This strongly suggested the possibility of government factions fighting among themselves, if nothing else, to gain the favor of the Nationalist Chinese who was rapidly deteriorating in the old days of rival warlords with personal armies.

(The movement of Chiang's "personal troops" south could have several meanings, none of course. They might be intended for his personal defense, for a last-ditch stand somewhere in the

Harold Eide To Address Sanford Executives Club

Talks about adventure and current facts about Alaska will be the keynote of an address by Harold Eide before the members of the Sanford Executives Club tomorrow night at The Mayfair Inn, President Floyd Palmer announced today.

A veteran of the Gold Rush Days, who knew Jack London in his prime, Mr. Eide will relate his experiences as a prospector and Eskimo trader. He knows the thrill of striking it rich after long years of months of hardship and severe starvation. Mr. Palmer said his story of peril, triumph, courage and resourcefulness is told with highlights of humor and dramatic skill.

This adventurer was born in northern Norway where he had become so accustomed to cold and snow before going to Alaska, Mr. Palmer revealed. At the age of 18 years he already was a sailor on a sealing schooner. Later he joined an expedition to Spitsbergen Island where he took part in building Longyear City, the northern-most habitation in the world. After a

2,100,000 Sheep And Cattle Are Threatened By Snow In Mid-West

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weather threw another solid punch today at the western livestock industry.

An estimated 2,100,000 sheep and cattle were snowbound in the Rocky Mountain area. Sheepmen, who have hampered and blocked efforts to get feed to the starving animals, pose a major threat to the industry. Cattlemen expected a heavy toll.

Seveneen flying boxcars were to load hay at Fallon, Nev., to carry it 210 miles east to the Utah border. The animals will be dropped to the animals, but planes, from the 2nd Troop Carrier Command, Tacoma, Wash., were not expected to take off at Fallon before after noon.

This was the picture by sections: West the U. S. Weather Bureau reported snow flurries in Pasadena, Altadena, and other foothill towns, but at Glendale and Wilshire near Los Angeles, snow in the mountains heavy enough to require the chains, and moderate snow elsewhere.

In the Pacific Northwest prolonged cold began catching up with the lastest cold supply of Oregon. Seattle, another normally mild area, expected a record low of 15° above zero.

Midwest-freezing rain and fog extended northward from Milwaukee through Illinois, Southern Wisconsin and Lower Michigan. Freezing rain in Kansas, continued with previous thaws, to glaze highways.

East coast again traveled North from Baltimore to New England, with snow freezing expected to make travel hazardous. The southern snow storm, reported quite warmly with temperatures in the sixties ranging from Texas to the Atlantic.

Eighteen additional inches of snow at Flagstaff, Ariz., boosted the two-week total to 44 inches. Twelve more inches fell at Casper, Wyo. Early morning temperatures at Casper and Butte, Mont., were 34° below zero reading were "Nearly incredible" waste in government defense budgets is disclosed by Henry J. Taylor in an exclusive article in the Reader's Digest for February. Reporting on findings of the Committee on Organization of the Executive Branch, Taylor states: "With our other vast expenditures at home and abroad, our military budgets could in time crack our economy wide open."

Though the three armed services are supposedly unified, each estimates its own budget separately, "with the left hand hardly knowing what the right is doing." The initial combined budgets of Army, Navy and Air Force, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, totaled nearly $30,000,000,000—more than double the entire national budget before Pearl Harbor. Illustrating the services' "prodigal approach to the whole subject of costs," Taylor cites the fact that $6,000,000,000 was knocked off the total, in a "preliminary sifting of the figures" by Defense Secretary Forrestal and his Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reduction equals a year's cost of the Marshall Plan.

Requests for housing funds totaled over $2,000,000,000—about half the amount spent for all residential housing in the U.S. last year. One item: 910 family houses at $58,350 each.

The cost of 69 heavy howitzers, at about $130,000 each, was first shown as $39,000,000 instead of $9,000,000. "The first 3 had drifted in by clerical error, and stayed there."

A request for 1,516 tanks showed an average cost of $387,500 a tank. Investigation disclosed that this included the cost of tools to make the tanks—an item already in the budget of another bureau. According to Army statistics, 25,045 tanks were still on hand from wartime. But the Army could locate only 15,960. "What happened to the other nine thousand?"

The Commission has recommended to Congress that a central Office of Controller be established with authority over all three services, and that no independent requests for funds, by any of the three services, be forwarded to Congress without prior approval of the Defense Secretary.

Office Boys

The late Harry L. Hopkins had something to say about office boys. It was this:

"If you want to get ahead in Washington, make friends with the office boy. They're the real Big Shots. If you want to get something done in some department, concentrate on the office boy. If he likes you, he will put you through straight to the one man who can do what you want. If he doesn't like you, he will shoo you off on to somebody who will give you a note to somebody else and so on down the line until you've forgotten what it was you wanted in the first place."

This is true not only of Washington, but of many an office and business house. The office boy, or his more modern counterpart, the receptionist, is the key to the establishment. Remembered in literature and drama usually only during the baseball season when his grandmother succumbs to some unspecified disease, he is late in having justice done him. What would we do without him?

Basis Of Health

The National Research Council has concluded, on the basis of a study in nine countries, that government medical service has little to do with the level of health in a country. It studied three countries with compulsory health plans, three with state-subsidized plans, and three with no government plans.

The council said it found no differences in infant mortality rates or life expectancy for males, the two items compared, which could be traced to differences in medical service plan. Principal factors in health, it said, are an adequate number of doctors, nurses and hospitals, adequate nutrition and high living standards.

This is an opinion which bears on proposals for some kind of socialized medicine in this country. If the opinion is accurate, national energy might better be spent in increasing medical facilities by more direct methods, and by giving attention to physical living conditions, which in some areas surely need improvement.

Teen Talk

By VIVIAN BROWN

You've got to have a heart to be a baby sitter," says Marion Lowndes, author of "A Manual for Baby Sitters" (Little Brown). Her advice to the thousands of girls, boys, grandmothers and ex-girls who make spare money on sitters is to be the kind of a baby sitter they would want to employ for their own children. She talked with said that what they would like under those circumstances is a kind, patient, understanding person who likes children.

Today, the author estimates some 200,000,000 children are too young to be left alone day or night. She finds them thoroughly dependent upon the sitter, whose duty is to "keep them happy, keep them safe."

Some of the essentials of the art of baby sitting suggested by Miss Lowndes are:

Get the facts as to the number of children in the household before accepting the sitting.

Be prompt and dependable. Bring your own sweater, wash, food if you think you'll need it.

Get all the details on where to get help if a crisis arises. Know (1) the number where the parent can be reached; (2) the doctor's number; (3) how to call the police; (4) how to call the fire department.

Use burglar tactics in getting a layout of the house—you should know where light switches, telephone, clothes for the baby are located before the mother leaves.

Keep constant watch to guard against accidents. Do not administer medicines or take care of anything but superficial cuts or injuries.

You don't have to worry about letting a baby cry, says Mrs. Lowndes. However, listen for a few minutes to discover whether it's a complaining cry or one some thing more serious.

Play games with the young children keeping in mind that they are fascinated by everyday things such as clothespins, magazines, newspapers, seed catalogues, buttons, soda straws, lumps of sugar, comb, knitting yarn, short ends of line, scratch pads, pencils, rubber bands, etc.

You've probably had attacks of insomnia so the idea of lying awake in bed doesn't appeal to you. Put yourself in the child's place who was put to bed before he was sleepy, and must lie awake in a dark room. Naturally, he'll find excuses to get up occasionally—he will call for water, ask to go to the bathroom, and dream up excuses at fifteen or twenty minute intervals. Mrs. Lowndes advises that he doesn't want to be a pest, he just can't sleep.

Besides having all telephone numbers for emergencies, the sitter should learn how the stove works, how to regulate the heat, where diapers are kept, baby's feeding schedule, sleeping preferences, whether family pets are friendly.

And, in case of fire, kids, Mrs. Lowndes reminds you that your first duty is to the baby—never mind anything else until you have him safe. A house can be replaced, but you can't replace a baby.

MONDAY
Miss Martha Hall Brown became the bride of Lieut. (JG) Allan Newton Glennon, United States Navy, a beautiful ceremony marked with full military pageant.

board members of the Order of Rainbow for Girls will be held at Key West. Officiating at the doublet ceremony was Rev. James H. McConnell Saturday at 8:00 o'clock.

Decorations in the church were white cladiettes and green palms with tall white tapers which formed an attractive setting for the ceremony. Sprays of white flowers and white satin ribbons adorned the family pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Richard Bentley Brown, wore an exquisite bridal gown of white marquise with batiste lace neckline, long sleeves, molded bodice and a full gathered skirt with lace panels extending to the hemline. The dress was finished with a long court train and her full length veil was of white illusion attached to a bouquet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and candytuft from which fell white satin streamers.

Mrs. Alice Burden Steed of Orlando, cousin of the bride, set aside no maid of honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Gay Connell of this city. The gowns worn by the two attendants were of light yellow taffeta, featuring bouffant bodices, portrait necklines and extremely full skirts gathered into bustles in the back. They wore picture hats of according plaited light yellow tulles trimmed with ruffles of orchid tulles and bows of orchid blues and heathens from which fell long streamers of orchid ribbons. They carried daffodil and lavender tulips with matching ribbons.

Lieut. Glennon had as his groomsman a fellow Naval officer, Lieut. A. J. Whittle. The groom, a bearded man and the ushers, Lieut. R. L. Merrill, J. E. Heg, J. T. Dennerster and C. H. Blair, were all dressed in winter blues, full dress Naval uniforms.

The mother of the bride, Mrs. Jeannette Mosley, wore a dress of lace-blue chiffon with a matching lace yoke trimmed with silver sequins. Her hat was of blue plumes caught with blue tulles and she wore long blue gloves. Her corsage was a lovely arrangement of pink carnations. Mrs. John R. Glennon, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a gown of aqua chiffon with which she wore a matching hat of tulles with sprays of spring flowers. She wore aqua gloves and a corsage of pink carnations.

The grandmother of the bride, Mrs. J. G. Ball of Jacksonville, wore a gray gown with a hat of soft blue and dusty rose tulles and carried pink roses. Mrs. W. I. Steed of Orlando, aunt of the bride, was gowned in aqua chiffon and wore a matching hat of tulles. Yellow tulips formed her corsage.

Upon leaving the altar the bride and groom passed under the arch of swords, a traditional part of a military wedding. A reception was held at the Officers' Club at Ft. Taylor. Forming a background for the receiving line were palms, baskets of white gladiolus and lighted white candles. The bride's table held garlands of white flowers with ferns, and silver candelabra. The wedding cake was cut, according to Naval tradition, by the bride with her husband's sword.

Greeting the guests at the reception was Mrs. James H. Stockdale, following which Lieut. James H. Stockdale introduced them to the bride's mother, the mother and father of the bridegroom, and the bride's grandmother. Composing the greeting line were the bridal couple, the maid of honor and the bridesmaid.

Mrs. Stephen W. Douglass and Miss Eliza Patterson served the bride's cake and the wives of the groomsmen and ushers served and presided at the punch bowl. Also serving were Miss Willis Steed, Miss Alice Steed and Joseph Ball Steed, Orlando; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steed, Tampa; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bentley Brown and Richard Bentley Brown, Jr., and Miss Anna Cartrell all of Miami.

An especially delicious dressing for hearts of lettuce is one made of French dressing to which hard-cooked egg, finely diced, beet, green pepper, celery and olives are added. If desired, these ingredients may be added to mayonnaise along with a few tablespoons of chili sauce.

Fresh pork tenderloin or veal cutlet may be used in making this salad. If pork is chosen be sure to cook it thoroughly before adding the vegetables.

Add finely diced red apple, peeled to cabbage and celery sautéed for flavor and color. Toast with French dressing and a little crumbled blue or Roquefort cheese. Beaten with salt, freshly-ground pepper and paprika.

Clothes Cheaper In Rome Than France

By R. BRUSINI
AP Newsfeature

ROME—Rome's appeal to the clothes-seeking tourist lies partly in the prices.

They are steep for the average Italian woman, whose husband's wages normally suffices only for the bare necessities of existence.

A European woman with money to travel abroad, finds them quite comfortable.

Painful though it may be to Parisian couturiers, foreign patrons of Rome salons air frequently head to comment that they find the same models in Rome for less money—plus better weather.

At Fontanara, new Fancy Vin Veneto, one of the score or more Ateliers where endless fashion shows go on, Anglo-American attendees predominated, so much that announcements were made in English.

Everybody spoke English with a potpourri of accents from the grim-like French to the heavy Austrian, German and Swiss brasses, with some British, some American and Italian overtones.

A feature of most shows here is the use of expensive materials for cocktail and evening dresses. Average cost of fabrics used is, according to Italian prices, from $8,000 lire ($10) a meter, upwards. Some gowns require from 10 to 15 meters of cloth. Expensive hand-made embroideries are applied to many dresses, adding the cost of feminine labor.

Adriana, sister of Tyrone Power's fiancee Linda Christian, model at Fontanara's. An evening dress she presented was of white blouse, one of few seen with shoulder-straps. It had a full skirt in two different kinds of brocade: stripes of plain shining white and opaque white, with light green vine leaves.

After time spent on the set lets fly with language you would not use in Sunday School, she added. Every time I heard a curse word it would jar me, I decided I would do something about it.

She has kept a paper cushion handy on her recent pictures. Every time someone on the set lets fly with language you would not use in Sunday School, she collects. On some pictures, she has made a heavy haul. She complained mildly that her current "Come To The Stable" is too genteel to be profitable for St. Anne's.

The curse fund gets to be a game on her sets. Director Lloyd Bacon once handed her a dollar and said, "That entitles me to 10 dollars."

An above-the-set electrician once let a curse word slip, and Loretta quickly looked up, provokingly. The floor twinkled with a rain of pennies.

Some actors are unprofitable for the fund. She said she never heard Robert Mitchum swear. Van Johnson was equally blameless.

Collection was not always easy. Rudy Vallee, a man not noted for his liberality, was slow about forking over 75 cents until Loretta threatened to collect interest.

Danny Kaye is a current favorite. Hearing about the fund, he said, "It's a curse word, I'm afraid."

He paid up. I think St. Anne's can count a contribution from Mr. Kaye.

Russia And 5 Nations Form 'Aid' Program

Council Of Economic Mutual Assistance Is Soviet Answer To Marshall Plan

MOSCOW, Jan. 25—(AP)—Russia and five other Eastern European nations have organized a "Council of Economic Mutual Assistance"—obviously as an answer to the Marshall Plan.

A communiqué issued today announcing the plan said the United States and Britain are "boycotting" the six nations economically because they do not belong to the Marshall Plan.

There is no indication that the Soviet Union, through the Economic Council intends to pump billions into the economy of her satellite nations, in the manner that the United States has sent dollars into Western Europe with the hope of restoring the economy there. There is, indeed, no indication that the Soviet union will be on the short end of trading with the five other "ICMA" nations—Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

The ECMA setup is being headed by perhaps the ablest trade official in the Soviet Union—A. I. Mikoyan, minister of trade and a member of the politburo. Western business men who have dealt with him say they never met anyone sharper. He is a shrewd Armenian who has seen most of the trade delegations that have flock to Moscow since the war.

Some of the ECMA countries notably Czechoslovakia with her industrial know-how, produce things that the Soviet Union very much wants. ECMA thus will be far from a one-way street leading from the Soviet Union into the satellite countries. But two-way trade is of course an essential to a real Marshall Plan, and the associated nations make the plan encompass the exchange of goods, which will strengthen the linkups of the Eastern bloc of nations.

It is believed that Albania, the poorest nation economically of countries in the Soviet bloc, is not included in the ECMA setup. Most observers, however, say she may be invited later. There is little news from Albania—foreign corre-

TAMPA, Jan. 25—(UPI)—An unidentified man was held as a suspect today in the killing of Jimmy Velasco, Tampa gambler-politician. Detective Inspector D. S. Stephens, who has directed the probe of Velasco's murder, would say only that a man was in custody. He declined to identify him or say where he was.

TAMPA, Jan. 25—(UPI)—The widow of a slain Tampa gambler-politician appeared today before Hillsborough County grand jury investigating her husband's murder.

Mrs. Jimmy Velasco walked into the grand jury room shortly after she viewed a lineup of suspects at the police station.

No announcement of any arrests were made nor were the results of the lineup review disclosed.

State Attorney Rex Farrior said "we have some additional evidence to present to the grand jury as soon as possible and until we present it and they set on it we feel it is not fitting to discuss the case in greater detail."

L. Grady Burton of Wauchula, assistant state attorney of the judicial circuit, was sworn in as special assistant to Farrior.

New Snow Hits South California And Nevada Area

Threat To Thousands Of Cattle On Desert Is Increasing

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25—(AP)—New snow swept into southern California and Nevada today, heightening the threat to thousands of snowlocked cattle on desert and mountain ranges.

It was snowing in the western reaches of nearby San Fernando Valley, out over the Pacific on Santa Catalina Island, and the hills were reported from other Los Angeles communities. The snow even extended into Southern Arizona, where Tucson reported nearly an inch in an hour.

Two inches of new snow fell at Las Vegas, Nev., making a total of 15 inches for the month in that resort town which keys its advertising to winter "fun in the sun."

High winds raked mountain passes from a high pressure area over Nevada, which plunged the temperature at Elko to 38 degrees below zero. It also was 38 below at 20,000 feet over Los Angeles and forecaster A. K. Showalter said conditions were similar to those which earlier this month put up to a foot of snow on the ground in foothill communities east of here.

Five to seven thousand head of cattle are reported starving on the Mojave Desert in the Needles area, where drifts are six to eight feet deep. More than 200 carcasses have been found, Hay-laden trucks are attempting to reach the big Nevada cattle ranch of radio comedian Art Lauck, 30 miles of the "N" Air team, who returned to Las Vegas yesterday from President Truman's inauguration. Snow has buried scores of hogs in the same zone.

The Russian-controlled news agency ADN said eight persons, including two children had been killed in the crash. The agency said one of the dead was a British crew member. The number of injured was not reported by ADN.

Unofficial reports from Germany in the sea and seven or eight more were killed and 10 or 15 injured.

It was believed to be the worst crash in the history of the seven-year-old Berlin airfield.

The 21 passengers were being flown from Berlin to Western Germany to escape the hardships of the Russian-blockaded city. A British crew of three was aboard.

British authorities, with only partial details from Russian and German rescue teams, awaited permission from the Russians in Neukirchen to investigate.

Bevin Urges Support Of U.S. Plan To Develop World's Backward Areas

LONDON, Jan. 25—(AP)—British Labor Secretary Ernest Bevin urged the non-Communist nations of the world today to join with the United States in President Truman's plan to develop the backward areas of the world.

The foreign secretary compared the President's unusual speech in which the proposal was made to the address of former Secretary of State George C. Marshall at Harvard in 1947 when the Marshall Plan was born.

Truman's 'Bold New Deal' May Give Help To Depleted Defense Stockpile

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(AP)—President Truman's "bold new deal" may add a few vitamins to the diet of the badly stunted defense stockpile. We might need it over molt of some nation gets trigger-happy.

If the plan works, it will popularize two administration ideas: indifference to critical guaranteed work.

Under the Marshall Plan Americans could have invested $300 million of their private capital in Western Europe. Only about $1 million in guarantees was sought for industrial purposes.

One reason was that the government guarantee provided for the convertibility of European currencies into dollars only up to the amount of the original investment.

When you had taken that amount out, the guarantee was used up.

There was no provision for getting any profit above that amount, in the form of usable dollars.

And businessmen don't invest,
