Faust's closes its doors

SANFORD — After close to four decades of doing business in downtown Sanford, the doors of Faust's Drug Store were closed and locked for the final time Friday afternoon.

The store, which continued to operate under the name of its founder, Dr. Earl Faust, has been owned and operated for many years by pharmacist David Klingensmith and not only served as a drug store but was also a location where citizens could go to pay their Southern Bell telephone bills.

Southern Bell official Larry Strickler said he had been notified earlier this past week. "We knew Faust's did a good job for us in collecting phone bills, but until we actually got into it, we didn't know how outstanding the job was."

Strickler said it is estimated that Faust's served "between six and seven thousand customers per month." He said he believed it could be the heaviest collection done by any private business in the entire Central Florida area.

Following the closing, Southern Bell will post a sign on the door, informing customers that until a new location is found in the Sanford area, they will be required to mail their payments to the Jacksonville office.

Several locations are currently being considered as new phone bill drop-off points in the Sanford area, but nothing has been made official. Strickler said that announcement will probably be made early during this coming week.

School employees injured

OVIDO — Two Seminole County school district employees were injured Friday as they were repairing the air conditioning system at Tuskawilla Middle School, 1801 Tuskawilla Road, Oviedo.

During the disassembling operation, a copper tube containing hot oil exploded, causing burns to both workers.

Louis Sutton, 37, DeBary, sustained second-degree burns to his hands and first-degree burns to his neck, face and stomach.

Munson Cockayne, 59, Orange City, suffered first-degree burns to his face and hands.

Both were transported by ambulance to Orlando Regional Medical Center for treatment.

Cockayne, who has worked for the school district for 18 years, was treated and released. Sutton, who has been employed by the district for three years, was held overnight for observation.

Running to catch up

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — During the next three weeks, Seminole County commissioners will be grappling with ways to reduce — and pay for — a projected $98 million five-year deficit that will be created by an effort to catch up and match service standards with population growth.

And that $98 million doesn't include inflation, a factor that could send the unfunded per capita for county services to nearly $120 million, an amount that is about half of this year's entire $222.7 million annual county spending package.

The deficit is almost certain to force commissioners to consider higher property taxes, gasoline taxes, sales taxes, utility taxes and new impact fees and user fees to pay for the cost. The cost will be borne by every homeowner and business, but will be shared by out-of-county residents who pay gasoline and sales taxes that are returned to Seminole County's coffers.

The staggering expense could also force residents to accept a lower lifestyle to reduce the cost. That translates to roads that will be congested for longer periods of time, longer waits for library books or other frustrations.

The deficit has been created by state requirements that the county first adopt minimum capacity standards for roads and services, catch up with any shortfalls that may exist within the next five years and then maintain those standards as the population increases. It is a principle called "concurrency."

Concurrency also serves as a scale that indicates how successful county and city commissioners have been in keeping pace with previous population growth according to current standards.

If commissioners fail to meet the requirements, the state can withhold revenue, including gaso-

Longwood leadership shuffles

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The city of Longwood, long embroiled in political battles, is under new elected and appointed leadership, following Friday's election of Hank Hardy as mayor and a commission vote to oust the city administrator and city attorney.

Commissioner Adrienne Perry walked out of the heated Longwood city commission meeting in protest of the removal of City Administrator Mike Abels.

At several times during the meeting, citizens in the audience attempted to speak but were gavelled out of order by Hardy.

The commission met Friday to elect from among its five members a mayor and a deputy mayor. Former Mayor Gene Farach and former Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton were removed from office by voters in the Nov. 6 general election, leaving the city no mayor to sign the city payroll checks that were due to be issued Friday afternoon.

Hank Hardy was nominated by newly-elected Commissioner Paul Lovestrand to be the new mayor, and newcomer Gary Hefter was chosen by lots to serve as deputy mayor. Hardy had initially nominated Hefter for the mayoral post.

The first order of business was a 3-to-2 vote to remove city attorney Frank Kruppenbacher, a move opposed by commissioners Adrienne Perry and Rex Anderson. Hardy then named Longwood attorney Jerry Korman to serve as interim city attorney until a search yields a full-time legal advisor to the city.

Frank Kruppenbacher had been serving on an interim basis for several months following the firing of the previous attorney, Richard Taylor. Tom Lang, an associate of

Baseball was Sanford's rite of spring

It was July 2, 1933. A New York Giant southpaw, Carl Hubbell, set a record when he went 18 innings to shut out the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0. A few days later he set another record at Comiskey Park in Chicago while pitching for the National League in the major league's initial all-star game.

Hubbell, called by writers as the "meal ticket," struck out five batters in a row. That's been done many times but not in an all-star affair. And, this particular feat was emphasized by who he lanned. They were Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, and the playing manager-shortstop of the Boston Red Sox, Joe Cronin — leading the American League in hitting at the time. These were the five heaviest hitters in the junior circuit.

This record still stands. It was tied a couple of years ago during an all-star game in San Diego but the hitters involved couldn't hold a candle to the quintet fanned by Hubbell.

The Hubbell feat was no fluke. In 1936, for example, Carl won 26 games and lost six but ended the season with 16 consecutive wins. In 1937, he won his first 10 starts for a string of 26 straight decisions.

After Hubbell closed out his career he was retained by

Seminole High Homecoming festivities overshadow loss

SANFORD — Despite the 24-21 loss to Lake Mary High School on the football field, there was a festive atmosphere at Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham stadium Saturday morning.

Shannon Latimer, senior class president and editor of the yearbook, was crowned Homecoming queen by Yolanda Baker, the 1989 queen.

"I was excited," Latimer said later, with an ear-to-ear smile. She added that as Homecoming queen her only responsibility will be to crown next year's queen.

Latimer was escorted during the ceremony by her grandfather, Gilbert Taylor of Sanford. She is the daughter of Janice and Clarence Latimer II of Sanford. Her father is an army specialist stationed in California.

Thirty former Homecoming queens from 1940 to 1988 were presented with carnations.

The evening before at 5 p.m., Latimer and the other eight members of the Homecoming court joined in the celebration at the Homecoming Parade and pep rally in downtown Sanford.

Rain early in the day and threatening clouds throughout the afternoon and evening caused some concern that the parade and rally might have to be cancelled.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Hank Hardy and Gary Hoffer take their new seats.

Kruppenbecher, was in attendance at the Friday meeting.

As interim city attorney, Korman's first task was to read a resolution ordering the ouster of Abela. Hardy offered the preliminary resolution, saying the city had lost confidence in the administrator.

The preliminary resolution called for Abela's immediate suspension with pay until a final resolution could be adopted, and pending any appeal Abela might wish to make within a five-day period. The resolution also called for the temporary appointment of City Clerk Donald Terry to act as city administrator until a new one could be hired.

Terry has already served in that capacity twice before in the past four years as other administrators left the city's employ. Before Abela was hired, Terry was removed from the administrative post amid much controversy.

Abela, who holds a doctorate in city administration, told the commission he would waive the notice of appeal and step down immediately if the resolution passed.

In defense of Abela, Anderson produced a petition signed by 106 city staff members expressing concern over the possibility of Abela's firing and urging the city to reconsider. As Anderson concluded reading the petition, there was a standing ovation in the nearly packed chambers.

Perry said, "I see this as another change and another mistake. We deserve the nickname 'Wrongwood.' You commissioners have not worked with Abela for one full day and you've already decided to fire him. This is going to produce very low morale among the city personnel."

Hoffer responded that he had already made his decision against Abela. "I made it on my own, as a result of walking the streets during my campaign," he said.

Lovestrand promised there would be no retribution against the staff members who signed the petition backing Abela, but said he supported the ouster "because the voters are looking for a new direction."

The vote to remove Abela was 3 to 2, with Anderson and Perry voting "no."

During the vote, former Mayor Gene Farach, seated in the front row of the audience, walked out of the meeting, along with eight other citizens.

Abela then agreed to allow the commissioners to proceed with the reading of the final resolution on his firing.

Again it was a 3-to-2 vote on the final resolution, which called for Abela to be out of his office by 5 p.m. that same day. Abela then announced he would meet with his staff later in the day for a de-briefing, comply with the wishes of the majority and leave before the day was over.

During Abela's final comments on the role he had tried to play in the city's progress, Perry left the dais and walked out of the chambers.

Both commissioners Rex Anderson and Adrienne Perry had objected to Korman's appointment as interim legal counsel. Anderson said he had received a number of letters concerning Korman, and believed that he has had problems with the city's building department. "I see an ethical problem here," Anderson said.

Perry opened her remarks by saying, "Although I have a very strong desire to just walk off this dais in protest, I will change my mind and stay, and serve as the loyal opposition." She then accused Korman of having previously supplied candidates with poorly written advice regarding a referendum. She added, "I understand he has even threatened to sue the city."

The commission voted 3 to 2 to seat Korman, with commissioners Anderson and Perry opposing.

Upon taking his seat, Korman told the commissioners, "I have just suffered an indignity and have been slandered. I have served as city attorney before and have never heard such remarks." Regarding the lawsuit, he said, "those remarks were brought up by people who did not know the facts at the time. But as your city attorney, I will try my best to answer city questions and help resolve any problems."

Following the formal approval of Terry as temporary City Administrator, Hardy banged the gavel for adjournment.

As citizens filed out of the room, more than one was heard to comment on the downward direction the city appeared to be taking. One said, "Well, I guess it's time to put my house up for sale and leave Longwood."

Longwood festival continues today

By BOB DEFRANCO

LONGWOOD — The 1990 Longwood Arts and Crafts Festival continues today as thousands of Central Floridians flocked to the city's downtown historical district to tour the displays and exhibits.

Over 400 booths have been set up, spanning a four-block area surrounding the city hall building. Streets throughout the area were blocked off to through traffic.

Although free parking spaces are difficult to find during peak hours of the morning and mid-afternoon, local residents are offering parking on their lawns for a fee, thus spreading the economic impact of the festival throughout the downtown area.

Exhibitors are selling everything from Christmas trees to handkerchiefs. A great many exhibits featured hand-made wooden objects such as bookshelves, outdoor furniture and wall clocks.

Some of the exhibitors traveled many miles to attend the 14th annual Longwood event. Jane Wilshire, of Winter Haven, said she wouldn't miss it. "I came here for several years just to see what they had," she said, "then we got the idea of setting up this booth and we've been coming back ever since." The Wilshires had a display of various hand made items including dolls, doll clothing and wooden doll furniture.

With the Longwood festival held each year on the weekend prior to Thanksgiving, many shoppers said they used the event each year as a kickoff for their Christmas shopping.

The festival will continue through today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in downtown Longwood.

Man convicted of killing a former lover at auditorium

United Press International

MIAMI — A jury found a 52-year-old man guilty of first-degree murder for gunning down his former lover at the Dade County Auditorium.

The jury rejected Gerardo Balmaseda's claim that the March shooting of Celina Montenegro was an accident. Balmaseda was also convicted Friday of attempted second-degree murder in the shooting of a policeman at the auditorium. Montenegro stopped seeing Balmaseda when she found out he was married to someone else. Twice she sought protection from him in the courts and a judge signed a "keep away" order but it did no good.

On March 31, Montenegro went to the Dade County Auditorium with two friends to hear Raphael, a Spanish balladeer.

Balmaseda showed up unexpectedly and shot Montenegro through the heart and head in front of shocked concertgoers. He also exchanged bullets with Metro-Dade Police Officer Phillip Daniel, who was working at the auditorium.

The victim's daughter, Joanne Montenegro, 23, called the verdict a victory for all women who have suffered domestic violence.

"Men get away with everything. But not today. Not today," she said.

In a rambling monologue from the witness stand, Balmaseda said he drove to the auditorium, bumped into Montenegro, decided to commit suicide on the spot but accidentally killed her instead.

His lawyer, Julio Gutierrez, said Balmaseda was obsessed and was so unstable he lacked the ability to commit premeditated murder.

Throughout the seven-day trial before Judge Thomas Carney, the defense lawyer pointed out Balmaseda's idiosyncrasies and his determination to be a bigshot. The great-grandson of a Spanish count, Balmaseda paid $37,000 to obtain the title marquis for himself, dieted constantly and underwent surgery to improve his appearance.

He also had a fixation with death and he spent $6,102.96 to arrange his own funeral four days before the killing, his lawyer said. Balmaseda tried to kill himself three times in the United States and in Spain, on different occasions using pills, a gun and carbon-monoxide poisoning in his white Mercedes, he said.

Prosecutors Sally Weintraub and Jacqueline Scola said Balmaseda carried out a meticulously planned murder. They said he was furious that Montenegro dared to discard him and had taken him to court. He pursued her, harassed her and finally killed her, the prosecutors said.

"The only obsession the defendant had was an obsession with doing things his own way," Weintraub said.

After the murder, Balmaseda fled in his Mercedes, using the car phone to break a date with another girlfriend.

The next day, April Fools, police found him sitting in his car in a friend's driveway with a vacuum cleaner hose running from the exhaust pipe to the door. Balmaseda testified that the suicide attempt might have been successful if he had not interrupted it to take a phone call.

Balmaseda is also a suspect in the 1987 disappearance of an old girlfriend, Rebekah Johnson.

Senators ask for report on Peru murder

UPI reports

TAMPA — Sens. Bob Graham and Connie Mack have asked the FBI to release information the agency gathered about the murder in Peru last year of Tampa Tribune reporter Todd C. Smith.

In a letter sent late Friday, Graham, D-Fla., and Mack, R-Fla., urged FBI Director William Sessions to reconsider his agency's refusal to disclose the file requested by The Tampa Tribune under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

"One year after Todd Smith's death, the nature of his brutal murder following his kidnapping and apparent torture is enveloped in a shroud of mystery. This case deserves to be expedited by the FBI," the letters say.

The FBI was asked by Peruvian officials to investigate the murder shortly after Smith's body was found last Nov. 21 in Uchiza, a small cocaine boom town in a remote area of Peru.

Smith was on a working vacation to research cocaine trafficking and terrorism when he was kidnapped at gunpoint from an airstrip in Peru's Upper Huallaga Valley Nov. 17. His body was found beside a soccer field Nov. 21.

Officials said he had been strangled and beaten, and had been dead about 24 hours.

A sign denouncing Smith as a spy linked to the Pentagon was signed by the Communist Party of Peru, the official name of Shining Path, a Maoist extremist group.

Sham welfare worker sought in kidnapping

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE — Deputies searched Saturday for a woman who posed as a welfare worker to gain the confidence of a teenage single mother and then kidnapped her 3-month-old baby.

Stacey Ayn Smith, 16, said the slick-talking woman drove away from a McDonald's parking lot with her son James Andrew Smith Thursday evening.

Deputies with the Duval County Sheriff's department said they were following a few leads but had no motive for the apparent kidnapping.

"She seemed so professional and could have fooled anybody," said Smith, who lives with her mother, Terri Smith, who was also fooled by the woman.

"I felt comfortable with her," said the young mother. "I didn't think anyone would be that cruel."

"I believed every word she said," said Terri Smith. "It doesn't make any sense for her to come into our house to take that baby, knowing we all got a look at her."

Smith said the woman approached her during a Christmas shopping expedition to a local mall. The woman, wearing stone-washed jeans and a white sweater, gave her name as either Katie or K.D. Thomas. She played with the baby and complimented him. The woman told Smith she was a state welfare counselor who could help her line up baby clothes, welfare assistance and a baby stroller for the child.

Smith said she accepted the woman's story without asking to see any identification. She did say she wanted the woman to meet her mother, so the two drove to the family's home in separate cars.

Smith's mother was suspicious at first but eventually was also won over.

Around 9:30 p.m., the woman persuaded Smith to accompany her to meet some baby sitters. They drove past several houses but did not meet anyone.

Interstate bomb threat sets off traffic snafu

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Interstate 4 and area roads were jammed for hours Saturday as Altamonte Springs police dismantled an explosive device found on the State Road 436 overpass at about 8 a.m.

Police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said the device was dismantled at the scene and sent to the crime laboratory for investigation.

Police received a telephone call reporting what was described as a bomb on the overpass. Police discovered a small red automobile abandoned on the overpass with a white package nearby. The package would contain some kind of explosive device, police were told by the caller.

Hawkins said the city bomb technician told him the call was not a hoax, but did not give him further details of the type of device that was found.

Law enforcement officers from Altamonte Springs, Seminole County Sheriff's Department and Florida Highway Patrol closed I-4 and SR 436 during the investigation.

I-4 was closed from State Road 434 to the Mastland exit, which immediately caused a massive traffic jam on the interstate highway which at times extending as far north as the Lake Mary exit five miles away. Much of the traffic consisted of football fans headed for the Florida State-Memphis State football game played Saturday at the Citrus Bowl in Orlando.

Traffic was re-routed to U.S. Highway 17-92 which quickly became clogged with the large numbers of motorists. Travel in southern Seminole County became almost impossible for many hours yesterday morning.

SR 436 was closed from Douglas Avenue to Northlake Drive.

I-4 was re-opened at 10:30 a.m., although normal traffic flow didn't resume for several hours.

SANFORD — The parks, curbsides and streets of Sanford are a lot cleaner today thanks to the efforts of volunteers who participated in yesterday's Trash Bash II event.

Volunteers from area civic and fraternal clubs as well as local businesses and government bodies were to gather at 8 a.m. yesterday for the kickoff at Sanford City Hall. Many, however, arrived earlier and were busily picking up trash and litter before that time.

Ray Sage, chairman of the city scenic improvement board, was pleased with the turnout of approximately 80 members from organizations which had volunteered to help, as well as a number of additional people who just wanted to become involved.

At City Hall, SBIB members handed out white trash bags and a number of paper sticks to the groups who, in turn, fanned out across the city to pre-assigned areas.

"We ran out of sticks early," Sage said. "When we had the first Trash Bash, many of the people didn't return them and we didn't have enough to go around this time."

While the first event was held in March, Sage said this would become a once a year event from now on.

Areas where concentrated cleanup efforts were made yesterday included Palmetto, French, Sanford, Elm, Oak, Persimmon, Park, Laurel and Myrtle Avenues as well as parts of Seminole Boulevard. Several city parks were also targeted by some of the groups, as were the sidewalks and storefronts on First Street in the downtown area.

The participants in some areas had little difficulty filling their bags, especially on highly traveled streets, while others walked many blocks before their bags were full. The bags were then placed alongside the curbs.

Voting the rascals

For all the speculation about a potential sea change in American politics, the mid-term elections largely followed familiar currents. Ninety-six percent of incumbents seeking re-election to the House of Representatives prevailed. That is only slightly less than the 98 percent incumbent re-election rate of the last two elections. Only 15 House members were beaten, and many of those were guilty of ethical or legal breaches.

In the end, the Democrats increased their majority in the House, which they have controlled for the last 36 years, from 258 to 266 seats.

Only one incumbent senator, Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., was defeated. Consequently, the Democrats boosted their hold over the Senate by one seat, 56 to 44.

Thank goodness, for democracy's sake, that the 36 gubernatorial races were less predictable. Incumbents lost in six of 20 contests, seven times the turnover rate of Congress. Moreover, governorships changed party hands in one of every three races.

Arguably the biggest winner — or at least the biggest nonloser — was George Bush. Many believe the election amounted to a referendum on his presidency. If that is so, on balance he earned a split decision.

Although Democrats came out a net winner, they did not do nearly as well as forecast. They won key gubernatorial contests in Texas and Florida, but failed to capture the largest prize, California, and lost control of the governor's mansions in Ohio and Michigan.

Holding onto the California governorship was crucial to the GOP. With next year's reapportionment, the state will pick up seven additional House seats, for a total of 52. The veto power of Republican Gov.-elect Pete Wilson is the party's only hope of achieving a fair redistricting at the hands of the Democratic-controlled Legislature.

In addition to gaining only one seat in the Senate, Democrats picked up far fewer House seats than is normally the case during an off-year election in which the White House is in GOP hands.

In the weeks leading up to the balloting, some analysts were speculating that Republicans actually might lose so many seats that they could no longer sustain the President's veto in either the House or Senate. But Democrats did not come close to winning the 30 additional seats in the House and 10 in the Senate that they needed to make this happen.

President Bush also had to be encouraged that two of his leading potential rivals in 1992, Democrat Bill Bradley of New Jersey and Mario Cuomo of New York, received less than resounding endorsements from the voters.

Sen. Bradley won a squeaker against an unknown Republican, even though he outperformed her by a 12-to-1 margin. Gov. Cuomo managed to get only 53 percent of the vote against two unknowns. Both Democrats had won 65 percent of the votes when they last stood for re-election.

Republicans can find encouragement in the fact that the Democrats did not do better at the polls, especially in light of Mr. Bush's sagging popularity and the split in the GOP over raising taxes. Nationwide, many incumbents who were re-elected discovered that their margin of victory was much less than anticipated. This suggests that both parties face an enormous task in the struggle for the American electorate in 1992.

Molding child's personality takes time

Psychologists have continually focused upon individual differences and what fosters healthy personality development. However, amid the frenzied pace of this society we often opt for conformity and leave little room for individual difference.

It is an accepted given that children do not develop physically, cognitively and socially at the same rate. Therefore, it is necessary for child rearing practices to accommodate these differences. Each child is uniquely different from every other child. He should be unconditionally loved and accepted by the significant others in his life. A child's personality evolves through the process of interacting with the significant others in his environment. The treatment afforded a child during his formative years crystallizes and becomes his response repertoire to his surroundings.

A child senses in feeling the degree of esteem with which he is held. His self-esteem is derived from the reflection of himself that his parents and caretakers project.

Consequently, parents and other caretakers should be acutely aware of the awesome responsibility they have in shaping a child's personality. There is no substitute for love.

patience and teaching a child to accept limits and take responsibility for his behavior. Limit setting is a function of a child's ability to comprehend.

Individual differences should not be negatively confirmed by making comparisons with a younger or older sibling. This approach will have at least two outcomes: deflate the ego of the child being negatively compared and heighten sibling rivalry. Parental actions that foster "favoritism" do nothing to aid in creating a healthy personality.

The elementary school years represent a critical period for the initiation of extra familial relationships. When a child enters school his realm of significant others is expanded to include teachers and peers. The stress of school entry may be minimized if the child has been led to expect that this is the natural course of events for him. He should be free to learn without being held accountable for a "perfect" performance. If a child is doing his best, this should be recognized as success.

An imperative for fostering healthy personality development is being permitted to progress at one's own developmental rate without being made to feel inadequate or incompetent. Erikson has asserted that the school age child expresses his sense of identity in the following way, "I am what I can learn to make work." Therefore, the danger of the developing ego is acquiring a sense of inferiority for a child who feels unsuccessful.

One of the greatest gifts parents and teachers can bestow upon a child is a feeling of security about his personhood. A child should be helped to feel that he is a delight with all of his pluses and minuses (assets and liabilities). He should feel capable of accomplishing something. He should also feel that he is loved and respected for no other reason than the fact he exists.

Highs and lows of Campaign '90

WASHINGTON — Here are my personal high and low points of Campaign '90.

Best Campaign — The "Two Toms" race in Iowa where incumbent Democrat Sen. Tom Harkin turned back GOP challenger Rep. Tom Tauke. While it was hard-hitting, it was essentially a clean campaign, with both candidates arguing sharp differences on abortion and the budget.

Most Effective Campaign — A California initiative would have significantly increased beer, wine and liquor taxes with much of the money going to fight drunk-driving and alcohol problems. The liquor industry mounted a multimillion dollar "No on 134" campaign, based almost entirely on the anti-incumbent mood. "Don't give them more money to spend" was its message. It worked and the proposition was defeated.

Good Guys Can Win Award — To former Democratic Sen. Lawton Chiles, who defeated first-term GOP Gov. Bob Martinez in Florida. Chiles refused to accept campaign contribution over $100. He ran a positive campaign both in the tough Democratic primary and the general election. It was a contrast to attacks from his opponents based on Chiles' admission that he has long been treated for depression.

Low Point — Third Runner-Up: The bitter Oregon House race between incumbent GOP Rep. Denny Smith and Democratic challenger Mike Kopetski. When Kopetski suggested President Bush should adopt a cautious approach to dislodging Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, Smith came out with a radio spot using the voice of Adolph Hitler to accuse Kopetski of appeasement. Kopetski won.

Second Runner-Up: Democratic Gov. Rudy Perpich of Minnesota handed out copies of his GOP opponent Jon Gruneth's divorce papers in an attempt to show that the Republican was behind in his child-support payments. Gruneth was not; but he later dropped out of the race amid charges of sexual improprieties. Voters expressed their feelings about Perpich's campaigning by electing GOP state auditor Arne Carlson in what amounted to a write-in vote.

Absolute Low Point: A week before the election, GOP Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina found himself trailing his Democratic challenger, Harvey Gantt, who was trying to become the first post-Reconstruction black Southern senator. Helms unleashed a racist television barrage, accusing Gantt of supporting racial job quotas and of personally profiting from special FCC minority broadcasting licenses. It worked. Helms won.

Best Use of Humor (tie) — The Oregon gubernatorial race, where Democrat Barbara Roberts was running neck and neck with Republican Attorney General David Frohnmayer. On the day that Barbara Bush came to the state to campaign for Sen. Mark Hatfield, the Roberts camp put out a press release heralding the startling news: "Barbara Bush Endorses Roberts." Of course, it went on to say the Barbara Bush who was endorsing Roberts was a local librarian.

In Minnesota, underfunded college professor Paul Wellstone challenged Republican Sen. Rudy Boschwitz. Wellstone ran early television commercials where he came on apologizing for not having as much money as Boschwitz to buy TV time. He then speed-talked his way through the 30-second spot.

Both Roberts and Wellstone won.

Worst Political Decision (tie) — The decision by the White House and GOP operatives not to support New Jersey's Christine Todd Whitman in her challenge of Democratic Sen. Bill Bradley; and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee's decision not to support Georgia's David Worley in his attempt to unseat Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

The White House did not support Whitman because they never thought she could win and did not want to anger Bradley, who sits on key Senate committees. The DNCC did not support Worley because he violated an agreement between the parties not to use the congressional pay raise as a campaign issue. Both Whitman and Worley were vastly outspent. Both lost narrowly. With real support, both could have won.

Best Equivocation — When Democratic state Sen. John Garamendi announced his candidacy for California insurance commissioner, he vowed he would accept no campaign contributions from insurance executives. According to the Los Angeles Times, when it was later revealed he had accepted contributions from at least 26 wives of insurance executives, he insisted that the women were unquestionably "acting in their own interests" and attacked the questioner for implying the women were not "individuals in their own right making independent decisions." Garamendi won.

Political Newcomer of the Year — Jesse "The Body" Ventura, 39, retired pro wrestler, actor and sports announcer, who was elected mayor of Brooklyn Park, Minn., on an anti-development platform.

Farmers not all happy about bill

WASHINGTON — The 1990 Farm Bill has some farmers packing their bags and moving to the city. Others are digging their heels into the sod, determined to stay in business. And still others are looking for revenge on the politicians and bureaucrats who dealt them a bad hand.

Farmers didn't get a good look at the bill because the conference committee that shaped the final version met into the wee hours of the morning trying to clean up the business of the 101st Congress. The Capitol was closed to outsiders at that late hour, so by the time farmers knew their fate, it was too late to change the bill.

Now they are not pleased with what they are reading and not happy that Congress tried to balance the budget on their backs.

The bill cuts farm subsidies by $13.6 billion over the next five years. That and other tinkering with existing farm programs is all designed to cut the amount the federal government spends on the farmers nearly in half — from $80 billion over the last five years to about $40.8 billion in the next five years.

Cutting the deficit and reforming the convoluted system of farm subsidies sounds like a good idea, but the farmers question whether it's fair that their program was cut in half while other federal programs were simply nixed. For the farmers, it's a case of survival. Without federal support, they will go under.

Most commodity markets sell farm products for less than it costs the farmers to raise it. Government subsidies pay the farmer the difference. Now cuts in the loan programs and added taxes on farm goods mean farmers will have less money to put back into their operations. Combines, tractors and other expensive gadgetry make the American farmers the most efficient in the world. But without federal help, they can barely afford the gas to keep that machinery running, let alone replace or repair the equipment when it breaks down.

Farmers have good reason to worry. More than 400,000 of them went broke in the last four years, and that was under a more generous deal than the 1990 Farm Bill will give them.

The bill is so devoid of merit that members of Congress resorted to praising its environmental provisions — for example, it will reduce soil erosion. That's nice, but it won't pay the bills.

The farmers are mad and looking for someone to take it out on. Their gaze has landed on Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yetter, who strong-armed the bill through Congress. David Seiler, national director of the American Agriculture Movement, said of the bill, "It's so bad even Clayton Yetter supports it."

Yetter doesn't like farm subsidies, but he does like large corporate-owned farms. After he was confirmed for his Cabinet post, he shed his stock in some of America's largest agri-businesses.

Some farm organizations, including the National Family Farm Coalition, now want Yetter's head. Randolph Nodland, president of the coalition, told our associate Tim Warner that Yetter "symbolizes all of what our folks believe is wrong with U.S. farm policy."

Baseball

Brooklyn Dodgers had held a similar camp in Sanford in early 1946 before settling up Dodgertown at Vero Beach. With the cooperation of Sanford's John Krider, a former minor leaguer in the Dodger organization, the Giants decided to settle in Sanford.

They would bring their top minor league clubs from Minneapolis and Jersey City to Sanford along with 20 others, including Sioux City, Jacksonville and you name it. The Giants also agreed to take over and operate the Sanford Club of the Florida State League. They would train in March and April.

The site chosen for the Spring activities was the deactivated Sanford Naval Air Station. Almost overnight eight baseball diamonds appeared. Players were put in barracks. They were fed in cafeterias formerly used by the Navy. Offices, meeting rooms and the like were established in a BOQ building.

The Giants also needed to look at fresh talent coming out of the high schools and colleges. They prepared elaborate brochures that were sent to those making inquiries as the result of national advertising in sports publications. The plan was to conduct the "Carl Hubbell Baseball School" every February. The first year, 1948, over 800 youngsters from all over the country descended upon Sanford to let Hubbell, the Giants' scout, coaches and managers rate their abilities. Those who "had it" were signed to contracts and assigned to the various farm clubs for spring training.

The whole town was expecting that the success of the farm system operations here would result in the parent club, the Giants, establishing its major league spring training base in Sanford.

One evening Krider read in The Herald that the Mayfair Inn, now the New Tribes Mission, was going to be sold on the courthouse steps. To make a long story short, there was only one bidder — the New York Giants! Not only did they take ownership of the hotel, they also leased the Mayfair Country Club. You see, the other love in Hubbell's life was golf. At least it was on a par with baseball.

Hubbell became a familiar sight around Sanford. He moved into the Mayfair. And I believe the next guest to register was Mrs. John J. McGraw — widow of the famous Giant manager of many years after the turn of the century. She dearly loved baseball and the Giant organization.

I had left The Herald in 1947 and entered Stetson University to get a college education under the GI Bill. Since I could get classes in the mornings I signed on as sports director of Radio Station WTRR. During the spring I would tape interviews with Hubbell, Mrs. McGraw and other well-known Giant managers, players and scouts and send them to radio stations around the country where Giant farm clubs were located. Mrs. McGraw was always gracious.

The year the Dodgers moved to Los Angeles and the Giants to San Francisco, I was in Los Angeles and saw the first game the Dodgers played at home out west. Entering the stadium, I spotted Mrs. McGraw and Stoneham chatting. I couldn't help but apologize, go up and say, "I know you don't remember me but..." She interrupted me by saying, "I can't recall your name but I believe you're the young man from the radio station in Sanford." I was stunned! And, it was the only time I ever met Stoneham. I confess my estimation of him had dropped considerably.

Let me explain. The whole town was expecting the Giants to base their major league club in Sanford. The City built a new ball park, the present Memorial Stadium. But one evening I was at WTRR preparing a late night sportscast when over the news printers came an item saying that Stoneham and the New York Giants were moving their spring training base from Florida to Mesa, Ariz., just outside Phoenix.

I put in a call to Hubbell at the Mayfair and read the item to him. Sorry folks, I simply cannot write what Hubbell said. The Herald wouldn't print it if I did. Hubbell was fit to be tied.

The farm system, however, remained in Sanford at SNAS until 1960 when the Korean War exploded and the local air station was reactivated. Hubbell immediately made arrangements for the dorm now located at Celery and Mellonville, next door to the new ball park, to be built.

red convertible Corvette where Baker waited for him to escort her to the pep rally. "I can't see the rest of the parade."

So Epps watched the parade from the sidelines before taking his place ahead of the Homecoming court and the football team.

"I'm not going to sit back there and miss all this," he said.

About 1,000 Seminole fans and downtown merchants, who couldn't leave the area when First Street was cordoned off for the parade, watched from sidewalks and windows. Some residents of Bram Towers waved from upper floor windows to the teens on the street below.

"We were afraid we wouldn't get to do the parade and the pep rally," Latimer said. "At noon we were ready to call it off, but the rain stopped and we were able to get it all in."

Schools losing money to encephalitis scare

United Press International

ORLANDO — Eleven new cases boosted the tally in Florida's encephalitis outbreak to 115 cases as South and Central Florida high schools said steps taken to curb the epidemic are costing them thousands of dollars.

New cases were reported Friday in Dade, Lee, Martin, Manatee, Orange, Polk, Sarasota, Hillsborough and Pasco counties. Besides the 115 confirmed cases, 50 people are presumed to be suffering from the disease, meaning a second blood test has not yet confirmed encephalitis. Orange County leads the state with 23 confirmed cases.

Six people have died during the current epidemic, the largest for Florida since 1962, when 222 people were infected and 43 died in the St. Petersburg area.

St. Louis encephalitis is spread by the Culex nigripalpus mosquito. The virus multiplies inside human brain cells and in 7 percent to 10 percent of cases can cause brain swelling, coma and death.

Health officials said the chances for infection are significantly lower than one month ago, as the mosquito enters a dormant phase with the arrival of cooler weather.

"We think from an epidemiological point of view, the end is near," said John Mulrennan, chief of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services entomology lab in Jacksonville.

The epidemic has forced residents of south and central Florida to shun the outdoors during evening hours when the mosquitoes are most active. Five counties that moved high school football games to daytime reported significant losses on gate receipts and concession profits that subsidize athletic programs.

Evans High School and Apopka High School in Orange County have each lost around $10,000. Winter Park High has lost $17,000 dollars.

Deficit

line and sales taxes, and can fine the county for failure to comply.

Faced with a downturn in the economy, the additional costs will be a bitter pill, commissioners said.

"The whole thing will be forcing communities to accept a lower level of service that they normally would," said commissioner Fred Streetman. "If it gets to the point where jobs are going to be lost, attitudes are going to change."

Most of the deficit, about $67 million, will go to begin road projects scheduled to begin during a 20-year period by 1996. The state requires the county to catch up with the needs of current residents within five years. The county has a 20-year road impact fee program, partially financed by a $25 million bond program.

But that $210 million road program was designed for a cash flow spread over the 20 years — as money came in it would be spent.

"Imagine if you take out a 30-year mortgage to buy your home and the mortgage company tells you, 'You have to pay that off in 15 years or five years.' That's what we're looking at," said county consultant Roger Nelwender.

Pam Hastings, county capital projects planner, said the county will have about $30.4 million to build roads during the next five years, far short of the nearly $125 million that will be needed to meet the state requirements.

Hastings said the county will generate about $10 million during the next five years from current revenue sources for other county services, including drainage, public safety and libraries. But the county will need closer to $21 million to pay to provide those services at minimum standards for current residents. And those figures don't account for the 1,000 people who move here each month.

County officials cautioned that the deficit was not created by exorbitant demands.

"There is not a lot of fluff in this plan," said county planning director Ton VanDerworp. "This is not a pie-in-the-sky plan. It is a plan that the program review committee believes is needed by the county."

The PRC is a commission-appointed committee of residents and professionals who have reviewed the county's development plan.

Nelwender said the deficit will be created even though most of the services the county will provide will be at a low level. On a scale of "A" to "F" with "A" being the best level of service and "F" being the worst, Nelwender said the five-year road program will produce roads that will be between "D" and "E" in their levels of traffic flow.

"This isn't a level of service 'C' like you had in 1977," Nelwender said. "It will cost you $200 million if you want 'D' across the board. You are going to have to accept some 'E's."

To pay for the needs, commissioners will look to new revenue sources. More than $105.4 million will be needed during the next 20 years to establish and maintain an adequate drainage system throughout the county. Commissioners are considering charging residents an annual fee beginning in 1992 based on construction to pay for the costs.

Commissioners will also have to consider higher parks fees because about $1.5 million of the deficit is for parks improvements. Hastings said the county may have to consider seeking optional one-cent gasoline and sales tax increases and a utility tax that can be charged only by cities and chartered counties.

including Seminole County. Charges for water and sewer service, not included in the deficit, will have to be reviewed during the next five years to assure no deficit is created in those service areas. Hastings said.

Deficit estimate doesn't include beautification

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The price of beauty may be too big for Seminole County commissioners — and ultimately taxpayers — to bear.

"Facing a $100 million deficit during the next five years to meet the current demands of 20 years of population growth does not include the costs to beautify roads as they are widened. An additional $4 million will be needed during the five years if residents tell commissioners they want landscaped, tree-lined roads as they are widened to four and six lanes throughout the county.

The county has to find about $67 million during the next five years to build roads they were prepared to build over a 20-year period. The state is requiring counties to bring roads and other government services up to acceptable standards within five years or to stop new construction.

County capital programs planner Pam Hastings told commissioners Friday landscaping and installation of irrigation lines in a plan similar to those proposed for Lake Mary Boulevard and Red Bug Lake Road costs about 2 1/4 percent of the cost to build the road. Hastings said landscaping also adds about $7,500 per year to the cost to maintain each mile of roadway.

But county planning director Tony VanDerworp did say the 2 1/4 percent figure could be a goal that could be sought over a longer length of time.

"I don't want to bite the maximum," said commissioner Pat Warren. "I don't want to see a 2.8 percent figure on all road projects."

"We don't have to fall for it," said commissioner Fred Streetman.

VanDerworp suggested commissioners might delay including the goals in the county comprehensive development plan until 1992 and study landscaping of each road project as the project is begun.

Bush: Gulf may set stage to forge new world order

By LEE STOKES
United Press International

President Bush told Czechoslovakia in Prague Saturday that the Persian Gulf crisis offered a unique opportunity to forge a new world order, while Iraq insisted it would hold onto Kuwait and defeat the U.S.-led "forces of evil."

Jordan's King Hussein, meanwhile, accused the United Nations of a double standard in dealing with the gulf crisis and the Arab-Israeli conflict. In a speech opening a session of Jordan's parliament, he also accused Israel and the West of "expansionist schemes" in the Middle East.

In other developments:

—Five hundred troops from the African state of Niger arrived in Saudi Arabia to join the U.S.-led multinational force confronting Iraq, becoming the second non-Arab and African state after Senegal to send troops to the kingdom after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. There are 230,000 U.S. troops in the gulf and some 200,000 more are to be deployed after the first of the year.

—Secretary of State James Baker met in Geneva Saturday with the foreign ministers of three non-aligned temporary members of the U.N. Security Council, seeking their support for a possible resolution sanctioning the use of force against Iraq. Approval by Ethiopia, Ivory Coast and Zaire would signal the coalition against Baghdad was firm and united, analysts said.

—In Beijing, visiting Egyptian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Ghali said Cairo would go along with a U.N. resolution on use of force. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak this week asked Washington to delay any military strike for three months to give Saddam time to leave the emirate.

Gorbachev plea to Parliament for more power given support

By JAMES ROSEN
United Press International

MOSCOW — The Soviet Parliament agreed in principle Saturday to give President Mikhail Gorbachev expanded powers after his impassioned plea for them to place the government directly under his control.

The legislature, gathered on the second day of an emergency session, rallied to Gorbachev's support when he sternly rejected Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin's call for decentralized power in a stirring defense of the need to maintain a strong union.

"We see from our own bitter experience, which witnessed people's blood, that we will not be able to dissolve the union," Gorbachev proclaimed to loud applause. "Therefore we cannot and must not embark on that path."

Deputies voted 316-19 to make the central ministries accountable to Gorbachev and to create three law-and-order bodies to be based in the president's office, approving in principle a plan that will significantly consolidate date Gorbachev's power.

Final approval of the plan by the legislature is still necessary, but the overwhelming support Saturday made that step only a formality.

The vote was a defeat for Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, who lost direct control of the Soviet Council of Ministers amid widespread criticism that his resistance to radical economic reform has virtually paralyzed the government.

Gorbachev's fiery speech was in marked contrast to his desultory address Friday, when Yeltsin upstaged him in demanding a vote of no confidence in the central government and transfer of power to an "extraordinary anti-crisis committee" dominated by the republics.

Though Gorbachev did not directly accept the demand for Ryzhkov's removal, his assumption of executive powers and pledge to bring "new resourceful people capable of modern thinking" into the government was a political death sentence for the embattled prime minister.

Orlando Miller with 34 points and Vern Fleming contributed 25. Miller's two foul shots with 2:04 remaining in the third quarter put Indiana ahead 73-72 but the Magic scored the next 12, a spurt which was aided by the Pacers going scoreless over a 5:43 span. The Magic's run included a three-point play by Otis Smith and Vincent's 3-pointer at the third-quarter buzzer. Jerry Reynolds completed the surge at 9:17 of the fourth quarter, his fadeaway providing an 84-72 advantage. Midway through the final quarter, Miller and Fleming let the Pacers on a 10-2 run which pulled them within 86-83 with 3:54 remaining. Catledge, who contributed 21 points and a game-high 11 rebounds, retaliated with a pair of inside baskets and a blocker shot with 1:12 remaining, then Vincent added two foul shots.

Sprinkle, Pagan lead Lake Brantley in 33-9 victory over Lyman

By PAUL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

ALTAMONTE, SPRING — David Sprinkle rushed for 140 yards and two touchdowns and Joe Pagan added 83 yards and a touchdown to lead the Lake Brantley Patriots to a 33-9 victory over the Lyman Greyhounds Saturday morning at Tom Storey Field.

Daryl Bush and Robert Fennewald led an impressive defensive effort for the Patriots that allowed only 124 yards total offense.

Bush, Seminole County's leading tackler, recorded 12 solo tackles and Fennewald intercepted two Greyhound passes.

Pagan scored for the Patriots on their opening possession as he scampered 24 yards for the touchdown to give the Patriots a quick 7-0 lead.

Lake Brantley struck quickly on their next possession, scoring in only two plays.

Sean Thompson burst through the line and ran 48 yards for the touchdown to increase the Patriots lead to 14-0 near the end of the first quarter.

Quick strike seemed to be the pattern for Lake Brantley as they scored on their third consecutive possession.

Sprinkle capped a 2-play, 55-yard drive, as he rambled 47 yards for the touchdown giving the Patriots a 20-0 lead only 13 minutes into the game.

The pattern continued into the third quarter after Eric Chilton recovered a Lyman fumble for the Patriots on the Greyhound 38-yard line.

Robert Seymore connected with Andy Boothe for a 38-yard touchdown strike on the first play to increase the lead to 27-0.

"We had some defensive breakdowns early in the game that killed us," said Lyman Coach Bill Scott. "We just made too many mistakes."

Lake Brantley added their fifth touchdown in seven possessions late in the third quarter on a 6-play 70-yard drive capped by Sprinkle's second scoring run, this time from 35-yards to give the Patriots a 33-0 lead going into the fourth quarter.

The Greyhounds got on the board early in the fourth quarter when Lake Brantley attempted to punt.

The snap sailed over the punter and through the end zone for a safety.

Lyman turned it into a 9-point play when the took the free kick and drove 32 yards in three plays, capped by Bobby Washington's 25-yard scoring run to cut the lead to 33-9.

The Greyhounds could not get any closer because the Lake Brantley defense did not allow a first down for the rest of the game and recorded two sacks to Joe Menello of Lake Mary completed six of 15 passes for 116 yards to out duel Seminole quarterback Kerry Wiggins as the Rams upset the Fighting Seminoles 24-21. Menello's favorite target was Bill Kanaszky who caught four passes for 88-yards.

was ours. That put a lot of pressure on us but the kids responded beautifully."

Lake Mary running back Chris Haney set the tone for the game when he ripped through the Seminole defense for 72 yards on the first play from scrimmage down to the Seminole 6, a face mask penalty advancing the ball to the 3. Haney bowled in on the next play. Norman Henkel's extra point putting Lake Mary up 7-0 with just 1:10 gone.

Kerry Wiggins then started to show the passing ability that has made him one of the best quarterbacks in Seminole County history as he engineered two scoring drives to give Seminole the lead.

The Tribe tied the score late in the first quarter with Wiggins capping a 55-yard drive with a 6-yard touchdown pass to Tony Chavers. Gordie Davison tied the score with the extra point.

Seminole took the lead with a 80-yard drive on its next possession. Again it was the combination of Wiggins to Chavers that accounted for the score on another 6-yard pass play.

The Rams then went on a 14-play, 78-yard drive that ate up the last 7:22 of the half. The drive was capped by Henkel's 19-yard field goal on a fourth and goal from the 2-yard line.

"A lot of people were surprised that we didn't go for the touchdown," said Peters. "But Seminole was giving us some things defensively and I felt we could score in the second half. If they had stuffed the play and we don't score, we probably would have lost all momentum. I felt it was important that we go into the half with a score."

Lake Mary's defense rose to the occasion in the third quarter as they held Seminole to minus-6 yards on seven plays and forced a fumble. Included were three sacks of Wiggins, who was unable to get rid of the ball under intense pressure from the right side of the Ram defensive line.

Lake Mary retook the lead mid-way through the fourth quarter on a 32-yard, seven play drive after a fumble recovery by Paul Clayton. Haney got the last 15 yards on three carries, capped by a 1-yard plunge on which he broke out of the grasp of four Seminole defenders.

Seminole went ahead again a minute later when Henry Williams took a hand off from Wiggins, broke open and juke a Ram defender to his knees while rambling 43 yards for the touchdown.

But the Rams refused to quit and took only two plays to go 68 yards and go back on top. Menello hit Bill Kanaszky on a beautiful post pattern over the middle for 51 yards. Haney then ran around right end for 17 yards and the touchdown to give Lake Mary the win.

"We've been preaching program, program, program to these kids all year," said Peters. "It's hard to be patient, but we are getting there. Today's win was a total team effort. The defense has been getting better and better every week and we feel we have a very good defense now."

Coach Emory Blake of Seminole was disappointed but not downcast after his teams' second straight loss.

"We're at the same point we were last year with a 7-3 record," said Blake as his team headed back onto the field for a post-game workout. "Now we've got to get ready for the district playoffs Monday."

"We just gave up to many long plays today. I don't know what the problem was but our defense kept knocking each other off the tackle. We could have won the game. Kerry played as well for me today as he has in 3-4 weeks. But mistakes hurt us again. At the start of the second half we make a good play and Henry (Williams) fumbles without even getting hit. There wasn't any reason for it. I can't explain it, but I guess it goes with coaching."

Seminole will have to recover in a hurry as it travels to Orlando Monday to play in the Class 4A-District 7 playoff at EE Stadium on the Evans High School campus. Seminole will have to beat both Edgewater and Leesburg in four-play Kansas tiebreakers if it is to return to the state playoffs next Friday. Game time is set for 4 p.m.

was the team champion, edging past Tampa-Leto, 73-70.

Combining with Greenberg, Brenick and Loflin for Lyman's team score were the Davis sisters. Millie finished 31st with a time of 12:45 while Linda came in 63rd at 13:19. Cheryl Baumgartner (83rd, 13:43) and Rita Greenberg (84th, 13:45) also represented Lyman.

"Everyone on the team ran their best times of the year except for one girl, who was sick," said Fink. "That's what they're supposed to do at this time of the year. The other teams ran what they had been running. Our girls just rose to the occasion."

"We didn't go up there with a picnic attitude. The girls were not intimidated. They were focused. And they ran an outstanding race. When you put three girls in front of last week's regional runner-up, you know you had a good meet."

Doing the scoring for Lake Brantley were Amy Ginetie (18th, 12:17), Joyce Tullis (43rd, 12:54), Heather Anderson (44th, 12:56), Jennifer Felderman (48th, 13:00) and Kelly Elmore (56th, 13:10). Other Patriots who competed were Barbara Disalvatore (94th, 14:08) and Karen Boehl (101st, 14:21).

For the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, who participated in the seventh state meet over the last eight years, Natalie Newberry was 19th in 12:17. Combining with her for Lake Howell's team score were Miki Palumbo (34th, 12:48), Tina Reed (81st 13:42), Jennifer McHone (89th, 13:59) and Victoria Dempsey (95th, 14:09).

Other Lake Howell finishers were Charlotte Froehlich (102nd, 14:28) and Linn Hald (106th, 14:41).

The boys' race feature a pair of interesting contests, one between a pair of teams and the other between a pair of individuals. In the team competition, Leonrd just edged out Leto for the championship.

On the personal level, Lake Mary's Lewis finished ahead of Boone's Erick Rasmussen, 15:44 to 15:45. At both the district and regional meets, Rasmussen finished ahead of Lewis.

Combining with Lewis for Lake Mary's team score were Toby Ayers (31st, 16:37), Bob Robertson (40th, 16:46), Tad Burkhardt (62nd, 17:00) and Travis Olson (92nd, 17:44). Brian Benson (96th, 17:50) and Steve Platt (104th, 17:57) also ran for the Rams.

Doing the scoring for Lake Brantley were John Feola (29th, Lake Brantley also won the 200 freestyle relay.

Jennifer Moon and Beth Rosenbluth finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 100 backstroke for the Patriots.

Nicole Freda of Lyman was the only other Seminole County individual to score in the girls' finals, finishing fifth in the 100 freestyle. Lyman also took sixth in the 200 freestyle relay.

Bridgewater set both of his records in convincing style. His winning time of 49.51 in the 100 backstroke was more than two seconds better of the mark of 51.54 set in 1987 by Sarasota-Riverview's Trippi Schwenk. In winning the 200 individual medley in 1:51.47, he shave nearly a second off of the old record of 1:52.33, set by Merritt Island's Edward Dailey in 1988.

With his two marks, Bridgewater is now the only Class 4A double state-record holder.

The only other Seminole County swimmers to place in the finals were the Lake Mark 400 freestyle relay (fifth, 3:19.50) and the Lake Brantley 200 freestyle relay (seventh, 1:31.39).

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by Ken Rummel

The reason football officials throw flags to indicate penalties in today's football is all because of a small college coach in Ohio. Before 1941, officials blew a horn when they saw a penalty. But Coach Dike Beede of Youngstown University didn't like that idea because it often caused players to stop in the middle of a play. Also, spectators sometimes couldn't hear the horn, and wouldn't know a penalty was called till after the play was over. So, in a game in 1941, Beede got officials to experiment with dropping a handkerchief, or flag, for penalties. Everybody liked the idea and it was soon adopted. So the next time you see an official drop a penalty flag, you'll know it all started because of a man named Dike Beede.

What are the most points ever scored in a season by any player in National Football League history? The all-time record was set by Paul Hornung who scored 178 points for Green Bay in 1956. Despite all the years that have passed since then, no one has ever topped Hornung's record.

IN BRIEF

Bank plans staff reduction

OCALA — Mid-State Federal Savings Bank announced recently a staff reduction program that is expected to reduce salary and benefit expenses by approximately $925,000 a year. Mid-State Federal will incur approximately $200,000 in severance costs during the current quarter as a result of the program.

Charles E. Harris, chairman of the board of Mid-State Federal, said the staff reductions included 18 executive and staff positions that were scheduled to be phased out upon completion of the pending acquisition of Mid-State Federal by First Florida Banks, Inc.

He said the staff reductions were not dependent upon the acquisition, and would be completed even if the acquisition were delayed or terminated.

Roberts elected to SunBank board

ORLANDO — Robi Kelley Roberts, owner and president of RKT Constructors Inc., has been elected to the administrative board of directors for SunBank N.A. in North Brevard County, officials announced.

Roberts is owner and president of RKT Constructors Inc., a state-certified general contracting firm. She is also half owner and vice president of Roy F. Roberts & Son Land Developers Inc., a state-registered underground utility company.

SunBank N.A. is the largest bank in Central Florida with 64 offices in Orange, Seminole, Brevard, Lake and Osceola counties. It currently has assets over $4.2 billion and deposits of more than $3.4 billion.

Tower Air resumes international flights

MIAMI — Tower Air resumed scheduled flights recently from Miami to Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

Service resumed with the departure of Tower Air Flight 42, a nonstop flight to Copenhagen with continuing service to Billund, Denmark. In addition to the weekly Thursday departures to Denmark, Tower will offer weekly Friday nonstop flights to Oslo, Norway, with continuing service to Gothenburg, Sweden and weekly Saturday nonstop flights to Stockholm.

Quarterly net gain reported

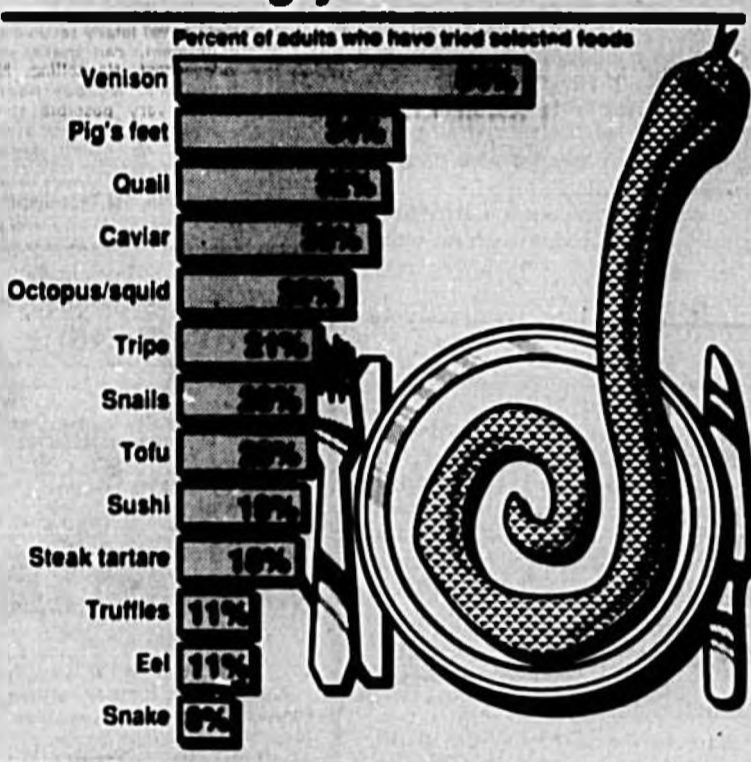

JACKSONVILLE — Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida reported a net gain of $4.6 million for the third quarter of 1990, increasing earnings for the first nine months of the year to $49.8 million.

Officials said that represented an $18.3 million improvement over the first nine months of 1989.

Total revenues increased to $1.1 billion for the first nine months of 1990 compared to $964.6 million for the same period a year earlier. Corporate assets rose to $647.7 million as of Sept. 30, compared to $490.7 million at Sept. 30, 1989.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida policyholders' equity increased to $177.8 million as of Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $129.1 million at Sept. 30, 1989.

Consumer rightists oppose streamlined meat inspection

WASHINGTON — Consumer activists say if a proposal passes to streamline the nation's meat inspection system, they may urge Congress to move inspection duties from the Agriculture Department to another agency more committed to public health.

During a meeting called by the National Academy of Sciences, a coalition of consumer groups urged the Agriculture Department to drop the idea of proceeding with a streamlined inspection system for cattle. The system has been under consideration since 1984.

A panel of experts assembled by the academy gave a qualified endorsement to the new system in a report last Sept. 17. They suggested modifications to the system, including specific steps to control hazards, and said it should be used only in plants with a demonstrated record of quality control.

In addition, they urged fundamental changes in the meat inspection system so it would detect microbial or chemical contamination in meat.

The consumer advocates accused the Food Safety Inspection Service of being too willing to quickly implement the streamlined system, rather than doing the research to develop a trustworthy system. They called for withdrawal of proposed rules to implement the system.

"Unless the department withdraws (the proposal) and demonstrates it has now begun a serious effort to meet the recommendations of (three Academy of Sciences reports), our Safe Food Coalition may feel compelled to call on Congress to remove meat and poultry inspection from the (department) and place it in an agency that has the commitment and the staff to run a public health-based program," said Carol Tucker Foreman.

Foreman, an assistant agriculture secretary during the Carter administration, spoke on behalf of a coalition of consumer groups, public interest groups and labor unions.

Under streamlined inspection, which would be used only in large beef packing plants, the government would operate two inspection stations on slaughter lines, compared to the three now in place. Plant employees would have more responsibility for removing dressing defects.

The inspection service says the changes would allow inspectors to devote more time to looking for "disease conditions with public health significance."

Sanford chamber names directors

By MARK PFEIFFER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has appointed a new ten member board of directors for a 3-year term, and scheduled their installation banquet at the Sanford Civic Center for January 17.

Included among the incoming board are three additions, Mike Good, Bill Simmons and Tom Stevenson. Others were re-elected to the board including W.E. "Duke" Adamson, Sylvester Chang, Mack N. Cleveland, Jr., Bobby Douglas, Shirley Schilke, Roger Stewart and Chuck Volk.

The new members will begin official duties as of the Dec. 11 meeting.

Nominations for incoming officers will be the first order of business to be considered at that meeting. The nominating committee is proposing Jim Young, the current Vice President of Seminole National Bank as 1991 President, this year's Treasurer Bobby Douglas from Sun Bank as Vice President and Betty Gramkow of Gramkow Funeral Home as Treasurer.

The Chamber now has a total of 38 board members serving one to three year terms.

Eastern ruling prolongs agony, union leaders say

By JANE SUTTON
United Press International

MIAMI — Leaders of its Eastern Airlines' unions said the carrier's reprieve in bankruptcy court has bought it a little more flying time but they doubt it will be enough to keep the airline alive.

"I think it's just prolonging the agony. It's like a death watch going on," Charles Bryan, president of the International Association of Machinists, said.

The airline won a reprieve from liquidation late Wednesday going to get two weeks out of it and then probably shut it down.

"They've lost $1.6 billion since March 4, 1989, and they were in bad shape before that. They need a major financial infusion and there's nobody out there who's going to give it."

E.J. Breen, a spokesman for Eastern's division of the Air Line Pilots Association, said the first $15 million was already spoken for to pay travel agents' commissions on tickets and to meet the Nov. 15 payroll.

"That money is all gone," Breen said. "I think they're going to get two weeks out of it and then probably shut it down.

"They've lost $1.6 billion since March 4, 1989, and they were in bad shape before that. They need a major financial infusion and there's nobody out there who's going to give it."

"My feeling is that the body is still twitching but the plug has been pulled and Judge Lifland was not in the mood to sign a death certificate last night."

Unsecured creditors wanted Eastern liquidated immediately because it has failed to meet financial projections since court-appointed trustee Martin Shugrue took over in April.

Shugrue argued that the carrier had a "reasonable prospect" of reaching self-sufficiency by February or March.

Lifland said he had heard no credible argument for liquidation and that there was a major public interest in preserving Eastern's 18,000 jobs and maintaining competition in the airline industry.

But the judge agreed that under bankruptcy proceedings, Eastern's assets belonged to the creditors.

Pan Am, United both gain

By JACK LESAR
United Press International

Pan Am Corp. outlined a $400 million deal that will give United Airlines most of Pan American World Airways' U.S.-London routes and forge new cooperative ties between the two carriers.

The agreement signed Wednesday night — hours before a midnight deadline — provides for reciprocal benefits to members of both airlines' frequent-flyer programs and makes provisions for other joint marketing and sales efforts.

Under the agreement, United will acquire all Pan Am's U.S.-London authorities except for the London-Miami and London-Detroit routes, plus leasehold rights and assets at San Francisco International and Washington Dulles airport, two Boeing 747-200 aircraft and parts, for $400 million.

United also agreed to guarantee that up to $100 million worth of Pan Am tickets would be honored for travel on United if Pan Am, which has been long experiencing financial difficulties, were to cease its air transportation operations.

The agreement also calls for coordination of schedules and "code-sharing" on certain flights. Such shared flights would carry flight numbers of both airlines, and both Pan Am and United could sell tickets and collect revenues for those flights.

One industry analyst called the deal a "very good fit" and said Thursday that United stands to gain much new business over time.

IN BRIEF

Seminar set for Alzheimer awareness

LONGWOOD — "National Alzheimer Awareness Month" during November, will be commemorated at South Seminole Community Hospital with a mini-seminar, "What's New in Alzheimer's". The program, which is open to the public without charge, will begin promptly at 10 a.m. till 12 p.m. Pat Jimison, founding director of the Alzheimer Resource Center which serves Central Florida, will be the seminar speaker. Jimison speaks throughout the state on the subject of Alzheimer's and other dementias and is a caregiver of her husband, who is an Alzheimer patient.

For more information or to register for this free mini-seminar, call Diane Outman at South Seminole Community Hospital at 767-5809.

Blood bank needs donors

SANFORD — Central Florida Blood Bank's Sanford Branch needs Friday donors. The branch is located at 1302 East Second St. and is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Friday.

The branch needs donors to help support the demands on the blood supply from their area, which is especially important over weekends.

Central Florida Blood Bank is a not-for-profit organization with a mission to provide a safe and adequate blood supply for the communities it serves. Support from the Sanford community is an important link to the blood bank's success in meeting the blood supply needs in Central Florida.

Sanford Branch operating hours: Monday, Wednesday & Friday — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday & Thursday — 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Non-english speaking services improved

JACKSONVILLE — To reflect the changing needs of Florida's consumers, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida is updating its policy on providing health insurance coverage to non-English speaking individuals.

A case in Tampa involving a Spanish speaking individual brought the need to update this policy to the company's attention. With Florida's diverse population, the policy was no longer appropriate.

"Our first and foremost concern is for our individual customers to understand the health insurance policies they purchase," said Thomas E. Albright, senior vice president and chief marketing executive at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida. "Several of our policies require ongoing communications between the insurance company and the individual so that the individual can maximize his/her benefits."

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Florida will develop programs to assist Spanish speaking individuals wishing to purchase policies. The company will pattern its services after the Spanish language services already in place for its group customers. For example, the company will offer the services of bilingual sales staff and customer service representatives as well as develop materials in Spanish.

Insured members receive refund

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More than 3 million members of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) insured under the AARP Group Hospital Plan are sharing in a premium refund of approximately $115 million.

The refund varies with the individual's level of coverage. Rebates range from $5 to $45 per individual. The average refund check is $26.

Because the claim experience on the Group Hospital Plan has been better than anticipated in the past 18 months, the savings accumulated is being returned to the plan participants.

Workplace prenatal promotion offered

ORLANDO — SunBank and the March of Dimes are hosting the introduction of a new prenatal health promotion program for the workplace. The Corporate Breakfast is scheduled for Nov. 29 from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., in SunBank's Sun Room on the Third Floor of the Park Building in downtown Orlando. Business and civic leaders are invited to learn about Babies and You, a March of Dimes service that has proven to be successful across the country.

Benefit planned for Alzheimer center

WINTER PARK — Holiday decorations, balloons, and refreshments will help prepare everyone for the Season as they shop for special handcrafted jewelry by Fabric Finery and a special showing of Secret Jewelers of Winter Park, who will offer a gift of jewelry from their showroom in a drawing to be held on Dec. 9. This gala event will be a benefit for the Alzheimer Resource Center, Inc., Winter Park-Orlando, with a portion of receipts going to the Center's work for Alzheimer's disease victims. There will be an open invitation to the public to visit the Alzheimer Resource Center at 250 Loch Lomond Drive, Winter Park and select special gifts for friends. Call 407/843-1910 or 1-800-330-1910 for more information.

Woman nominated for state position

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Pamela Moore, RD, LD, director of Food and Nutrition Services at South Seminole Community Hospital has been nominated President-elect of the Florida Dietetic Association of 1991-92.

The election is scheduled for Jan., 1991 with installation in June.

Moore, a 1985 recipient of the Florida Dietetic Association's recognized Young Dietitian Award, served as president of the association's East Central Chapter during the 1986-87 term. She is presently FDA's coordinator for the division of management practice.

She received her bachelor's degree and completed clinical practice at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and has been working on postgraduate courses toward her Health Science Management degree at the University of Central Florida. If elected, Moore will serve one year as president-elect and the subsequent year as president of the association which has 3,000 members, state-wide.

Researchers pinpoint gene that causes genetic paralysis

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Scientists reported Thursday they had apparently identified the genetic defect that is responsible for an unusual form of inherited paralysis.

Researchers at the Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School in Boston and the University of Pittsburgh said they had tracked down the faulty gene that causes hyperkalemic periodic paralysis.

The disorder is one of a strange group of inherited illnesses that cause episodes of paralysis that are temporary, but debilitating.

The defect apparently causes a malfunction in a critical pathway called a "sodium channel" located inside muscle cells. The malfunction apparently causes potassium to build up outside the cell wall, upsetting the cell's usual balance and paralyzing the muscle.

Because such channels also are found in the heart and brain, the findings may provide insights into other diseases as well, experts said.

"The deeper understanding of hyperkalemic periodic paralysis that this exciting discovery has provided not only opens the door to new approaches to treatment aimed at remedying the channel defect but may also shed light on other muscle disorders suspected to involve channel abnormalities," said Dr. Lawrence Stern of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

McClanahan was recognized for her outstanding dedication to the profession and for contributing much of her free time to the guidance counseling programs of several Seminole County schools. "She regularly went above and beyond the call of duty to help our children and their families who needed it to get back on track," noted Lake Brantley High School guidance counselor, Regina Klaers.

Three tales of Thanksgiving

She'll be home for Christmas

Habitat for Humanity builds first house here

By LACY DOMEN
 Herald People Editor

MIDWAY — Ella Mae Blue, burdened with crippling arthritis, has been eking out an existence on social security since retiring from the mule teams and celery fields in Sanford.

At 85, she owns a plot of land, but the 80-year-old house in which she lives can no longer be repaired. She risks falling through the floor of the termite and water damaged structure.

It has been difficult for her to make needed repairs on her meager income.

"I saved up all my little checks to do this," she says, pointing to the siding nailed to her house.

Nails will no longer hold the siding to the rotting structure.

The house's main support beam has broken. Seeping stormwater has caused walls to buckle and leak.

"It's done decayed. Termites ate it out. The roof's poppin'," she explains.

But Blue, once concerned, is thankful. She will have a new home for Christmas.

Habitat For Humanity, a non-profit organization dedicated to eliminating poverty housing from the face of the earth, has chosen Blue as the first recipient of a brand new house in Seminole County.

The volunteer organization whose spokespersons are Jimmy and Rosalind Carter, is one of 200 affiliates in the nation, including four in Volusia County and one in Orange County, plus more than 40 in developing countries.

Pastor Don Nolt, who spearheads the effort in Seminole County, says Habitat volunteers have visited the backroads of this vibrant, affluent county and found shacks never meant for long-term living. He hopes to build 50 houses annually until "all unacceptable housing in Seminole is wiped out."

"I'd guess there are several thousand houses to build in Seminole," he says.

Nolt's involvement began over three years ago when he retired as associate pastor of St. Stephen Lutheran Church after undergoing quadruple bypass surgery and suffering damage to his heart.

"I only have half a heart, now," he says, tapping his chest. "I wanted to make my time count."

Undaunted by leukemia, Lake Mary lady is thankful for all the blessings in her life

By LACY DOMEN
 Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — Sarabecca Rosier appears to have it all. She is beautiful, charming, and has a husband, Joe, who loves her. She has a daughter, Scarlett, almost 8, who is a talented dancer. She has a son, Jason, 11, a good student. She says she maintains her positive attitude by thinking about all the things for which she is thankful instead of dwelling on something for which she is not. Rosier has leukemia.

Rosier was a happy mom three years ago, shuttling her children to school, social events, and activities.

"Mom picked me up from preschool one day and she just couldn't breathe," Scarlett says. "I was really scared."

Rosier, who had no history of abnormal health, ignored the warning. She resumed her daily activities, chauffeuring Scarlett one day to gymnastics and treating her to her favorite lunch at Dunkin' Donuts.

"I felt worse. It felt like my ribs had been crushed," she explains.

She felt no better over the next several days and was admitted to the hospital for possible heart problems.

"I said I didn't have time to go in the hospital. It was on the eve of the Holy Days and I was busy cooking and getting ready for my parents visit," Rosier remembers.

After having lupus and heart disease ruled out, but with her health deteriorating, Rosier was airlifted to Shands Hospital at the University of Florida in Gainesville, where she underwent a bone marrow biopsy.

"That was the most painful thing. It felt like my body blew up. I saw bright red drops of blood like when

Lawbreakers grab second chance for successful life

By LACY DOMEN
 Herald People Editor

SANFORD — When Linda was placed under a two-year house arrest for selling drugs, the opportunity to take a course in developing successful living skills appealed to her.

"It was a way to get out of the house one more night," she said.

Today, the woman who said she was addicted to relationships which contributed, at age 40, to her problems with the law, is working toward becoming a counselor. Her relationships with family, friends, and men are healthier, she said, because she has learned to manage her own life.

The transformation was not without much soul-searching and guidance from Seminole Community College instructor Valerie Harrison, who also owns the company Images of the Mind and teaches the course in living skills for the State of Florida Department of Corrections.

Correctional Probation Supervisor Linda Mills said the state authorized the course, and with only a set of guidelines from Lake County and a list of topics to be covered, including employment, substance abuse and education, Mills, Fay Brake, director of Leisure Programs for SCC and Harrison hammered out the current curriculum, currently being taught for the fourth time.

The 15-week program started out as a voluntary one for offenders such as Linda, Paul, Christine and Mike. It is now often court-ordered.

Mike is a youthful offender who ended up in trouble "from a sick relationship." At first he "thought the class was a bunch of junk."

"But then I started to grasp it. It helped me forget the past. I planted both feet on the ground and realized the only thing in front of you is your future. I started to take control of me instead of letting others influence me," he said.

Harrison said the basis of the course is letting go and moving on.

"The obligation you have from the past is to use it and learn and let go of all the garbage which weighs you down," she said.

Christine agreed.

"All I ever felt was guilt and shame," she said. Christine volunteered for the program to "put structure and discipline back where it belongs, in my life."

Paul, too, volunteered for the course to shorten his sentence.

"I learned common sense and to step back and look at myself. I think people cause most of their own problems and what we learned is how to deal with those problems and not to be too hard on ourselves," he thoughtfully said.

Taking control of your life sounds easier than it often is, according to Harrison. Unhealthy behavior patterns developed when we are young carry into adult life, she added.

"My dad used to tell me I was stupid," Linda said. "I learned

ENGAGEMENT

Audrey Myree Green and Michael Edward Korgan

Green-Korgan

SANFORD — Ms. Linda Green and Mr. John Green, Sanford, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Audrey Myree, to Michael Edward Korgan, son of Mrs. Jan and Mr. Mike Korgan, Sanford.

Born in Sanford, the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of Mrs. Virginia and Mr. Watley Blaschak of Lansing, Tennessee. She is the paternal granddaughter of Mrs. Virginia Mae and Mr. John C. Green of Sanford.

Miss Green is a 1990 graduate of Seminole High School and was active in FBLA and DCT-OJT program. She is presently employed as chiropractic assistant at the Bixon Chiropractic Center.

Her fiance, born in Sanford, is the maternal grandson of Mr. Clifford and Mrs. Hazel Johnson, and the paternal grandson of Mr. Ed and Mrs. Florence Korgan, all of Sanford.

Korgan is a 1980 graduate of Seminole High School and a 1990 graduate of Seminole Community College. He is employed as mechanical engineer at Stone Packaging System.

A wedding is planned for December 1, 1990 at the Upsala Community Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

Only humans can keep river alive

Representing Friends of the St. Johns, Feur S. Haberly, DVM, of Oviedo, told members of the Woman's Club of Sanford, at the November meeting, some of the perils of the St. Johns, a river in distress.

Dubbed as the Nile of America, the 300-mile river, the longest of Florida's rivers, is also the most abused. Development, industry and agriculture are the culprits causing the river's ultimate death.

Haberly spoke and showed slides in the absence of the designated speaker, Adm. Richard Fowler. He was introduced by Faye Siler, chairman of the club's Arts Department, who substituted for Winnie Scott, Conservation Chairman.

Human beings are responsible for the river's distress and only humans can keep it alive. For information, contact Friends of the St. Johns, P.O. Box 956, Sanford 32772-956.

President Marty Colegrove conducted the business session and called on officers and department chairmen for routine reports.

Elizabeth Boyd was inducted as a new member by Mary Ellis, second vice president. Two prospective members attending were Pat Querry and Lucy Fitzgerald.

Among the various projects on the club's agenda during November and December include a Country Barbecue, participating in "Make Sanford Shine," contributing to and helping with the St. Lucia Festival, hosting the Golden Age Games Bridge session, providing stocking stuffers for girls, 4 to 18, at Hacienda Girls Ranch, making monetary contributions to the ranch, and helping to dress Teddy bears and ringing bells for the Salvation Army.

Club members are reminded of the club's Arts and Crafts Festival to be held at the Dec. 5 meeting. Faye Siler said entries must be registered by 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4, at the clubhouse. Judging will take place by noon and winners will be announced at the Wednesday meeting.

sale, to benefit the St. Lucia Festival, will be held at the Lake Forest Clubhouse, on Highway 46, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Nov. 25 and 30. The benefit is open to the public at no charge.

The clubhouse was festively decorated in the autumn motif. Colorful, furnished leaves centered the dining tables with traditional fall arrangements featured on the head table and mantle. Hostesses were Betty Stettens and Grace Parks, co-chairmen, and Ann Brisson, Rose Payne, Leslie Faunne, Janice Fell, Jane Phillips, Betty Smith and Trish Cobert.

Fall Festival a success

Holy Cross Episcopal Church was a favorite of activity and festivity at the annual Fall Festival Day. A steady stream of bargain hunters shopped at the Country Kitchen and Bake Sale, Yard Sale and Crafts Shoppe. A delicious turkey luncheon was served as well as supper that night.

About the turnout and response, Betty Akers, president of the Episcopal Churchwomen and chairman of the event said, "I was very pleased. I had a lot of good help."

Assisting Betty were Bill Deas, Frans Mebane, Donna Murray, Patty Spear, Vivienne and Gordon Sweeney, Jeanne and Henry Tamm, Len Pawson, Wally Phillips, Betty Bush, Ethel Perlick, Marie and Phil Joyce, Joye and Bob Crowe, Bob Sommerberg, Beaulie and Sonny Roberts, Mary Jo Cochran, Doris and Al Duxbury, Mildred and Joe Nicholas, Helen Fanning, Harriet Seigler and Donna Blue.

Ann Echols was the recipient of the $50 gift certificate donated by Lois Place.

Sorority sisters gather

Colored in the Magic was the theme of the Delta Sigma Phi All-Chapter luncheon held Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Tamarac Country Club where Chairman Joyce Sammel and her committee put together an exceptional package — delicious food, excellent entertainment, and excellent door prizes.

BSE City Council President Jane Heims led the opening ceremonies and introduced the following into the Silver Carriacoo Hall: Gloria Emerson, Marlene Clausen, Betty Bush, Annette Lakwood and Joyce Sammel.

Marlene Clausen welcomed the guests and introduced Laurel Tromblay and Marty Colegrove into the frame of the Rose.

The following Valentine Cards were announced: Sally Gray, Xi Epsilon; Margie Eakin, Epsilon; Betty Lambda, Kappa; Carolyn, Psi; Delta; Delta; Pat Johnson, Gamma; Alpha Tau; and Ann Narkins, BSE City Council.

During the social hour, Magellan Star Bonita entertained the women. He performed several sensational feats of illusion to the delight of his audience.

Highlight of the day was the appearance of a delightful storyteller, Annette Bruce of Epsitis. As folks as they came, Annette held the women spellbound with her sharp wit and sparkling commentary. The vibrant skirt she wore, fashioned of men's neckties, matched her colorful personality.

Labeled as the Official Story Teller of Florida by Secretary of State Jim Smith, Annette told several familiar stories but with a different twist. In one instance when she was talking to her aunt on the telephone, the subject of dieting surfaced. Annette told the legendary aunt that she did not diet "on days that begin with a T — Tuesday, Thursday, today and tomorrow." She generated considerable laughter from the highly appreciative crowd.

Women don't chew the fat

Charlotte Balcombe Lane was the guest speaker when the Heathrow Women's Club met at the Woman's Club of Sanford for the November meeting. President Marlene Bassie presided over the business session.

For luncheon, the women were served a catered meal containing 880 calories from recipes in Charlotte's recent cookbook. The menu included roast chicken in cherry sauce, barley pilaf, carrots and parsnips, spiced apple ring and bread pudding.

Club members honor their own with Rotarian of Year and Paul Harris Fellowship awards

When Lake Mary Rotary Club members gathered on a recent Saturday night, it was to honor their own with the Paul Harris and Rotarian of the Year Awards and to celebrate the founding of the local chapter on November 8, 1975.

Harris founded Rotary in Chicago in 1905 to promote fellowship and high ethical business standards among men. From those humble beginnings, Rotary boasts 22,000 clubs in 160 lands, including a newly chartered club in Russia. As women have entered and climbed the ranks in the business world, Rotary has accepted them as members too.

Many Rotarians and guests celebrated Christ's Night with an elegant banquet dinner at the Lake Mary CJA Building. Entertainment was provided by songstress Linda Panarello.

President Bevel Clark deemed the event a success because the young chapter did not begin the way Rotary Club chapters usually begin.

"We were scrappy from the get-go. Usually a chapter is a spin-off of a larger one. The larger club sponsors the fledgling chapter, but we weren't sponsored. Lake Mary was a group of men born of guys who got together and here we are," Clark said.

One of the chapter's founders, Pete Jamison, was awarded a Paul Harris Fellow for his involvement. Pete's wife, Miriam, offered an award to add pin to his lapel.

Also honored were Ty Dodman, whose wife, Bettye, assisted by pinning his pocket front, and the late Mack Blythe, who was named Rotarian of the Year in 1975 and died in an auto accident a few years ago. His wife, Bettye, accepted the award posthumously for him.

Scott Wysz explained a Paul Harris fellow can be received from the club from a sponsor or by personally donating to the scholarship fund. Money from the Fellowship fund in the world, according to Clark.

Harry Terry was nominated by a committee of past Rotarians of the Year and captured this honor for 1989-91. Pete Jamison said Harry won not because he came up with one brilliant idea nor because he headed one special project.

"He wasn't necessarily the one to be the frontman, but he is always the one to count on," Jamison said.

Cruising into retirement

Tim and Martha Stevens, Lake Mary, report after 26 years of marriage, everything is smooth sailing.

The couple sailed into the Caribbean sunset recently, cruising from Port Canaveral for four nights in Nassau, Paradise Beach and Salt Cay.

Martha said she and Tim had always wanted to take a cruise, and now that they are both retired, he from Seaboard Systems where he worked as an engineer, and she as a community planner, they took to the water.

Whether for food or fellowship or both, please join us, Susan said.

Rides will be provided for those who need one. Church members can also deliver meals to about 100.

Susan said over 750 meals were served last year, and 1,000 meals are expected this year. No donations are needed.

"We just want to share our Thanksgiving," Susan said.

For more information, call 334-8817 or 834-1457.

Martha and Tim Stevens embark for exotic lands.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Eric Stuart

John Eric Stuart marries in New Mexico ceremony

CLOVIS, NM — Karen Diane Murphy and John Eric Stuart are announcing their marriage today. The wedding was an event of August 4, 1980, 11 a.m., at Cannon Air Force Base Chapel, Clovis, NM. Chaplain Frank Sherman, Major, USAF performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of James and Patricia Murphy, Yakima, WA and the bridegroom's parents are Timothy and Janet Donahoe, Sanford and Van Stuart of Sanford. He is the grandson of Loren and Ruth Dougherty, Sanford.

Given in marriage by Temple Horry, friend of the bride and groom, the bride chose for her vows a bluish peach satin wedding gown. The gown featured a dropped waist and she wore matching satin gloves. The strapless bodice was trimmed with lace and the skirt featured peach lace tiers with a high-low hemline. The bride's hairpiece was a matching satin bow trimmed with simulated pearl sprays and iridescents. She wore a pearl and iridescent necklace and matching pearl earrings.

All people are victims of drug abuse problem

DRUG ABUSE: The problem is not just a people using drugs or selling drugs to others, but it is the government and media are making too big a deal of the drug abuse problem today. Most people don't use drugs, even though they might have a friend now and then, and they have nothing to do with people who abuse drugs. So why do we have to be bothered with it? This talk about a problem that only affects a small percentage of the population.

In matters of health and heart, it's never too late to change

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Happy at Last in Oklahoma," the 83-year-old woman who changed her eating and health habits at age 80. What an inspiring letter!

Abigail Van Buren

I am 31 and happily married to a wonderful guy. We have a preschool-age son. Like "Happy in Oklahoma," I have also doubled my weight and am very uncomfortable with my shape. After reading that letter I am encouraged to try harder. My doctor dictated my eating habits. Whenever I felt bored, sad or unhappy, I'd eat. Monday I would begin a diet, then I'd fall off it and gain. Abby, that lady's letter has changed my life. No more starving myself, overexercising and dieting again for me. I will start now to change my bad habits.

I cut her letter out of my newspaper and plan to keep it handy for reinforcement when I'm tempted to "cheat." May God bless this wonderful Oklahoma lady. Thank you, Abby, for running her letter. CHANGING FOR GOOD AT 81 DEAR CHANGING: Many other readers were inspired by that letter. And for those who missed it, here are the highlights.

"My advice to people who want to do what I did: Remember, you didn't get fat overnight. Ease into your new habits. Never talk about what you are doing. Just do it! Let others discover that you are losing weight."

"First, cut down the size of your servings, then limit your meals to healthy foods such as fruits, vegetables, cereals, lean meat and non-fat milk. Drink at least 10 glasses of liquid a day (most of it should be water). When you eat out the fats and sweets, you will be surprised at how good the other foods taste. Even a baked potato can be great. Start exercising. Begin slowly, then gradually increase the time, but do it so regularly that it becomes a habit."

"Moderation is the key to success. Substitute common sense for bad habits."

McClanahan was recognized for her outstanding dedication to the profession and for contributing much of her free time to the guidance counseling programs of several Seminole County schools.

"She regularly went above and beyond the call of duty to help our children and their families who needed it to get back on track," noted Lake Brantley High School guidance counselor, Regina Klaers.

Three tales of Thanksgiving

She'll be home for Christmas

Habitat for Humanity builds first house here

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

MIDWAY — Ella Mae Blue, burdened with crippling arthritis, has been eking out an existence on social security since retiring from the mule teams and celery fields in Sanford.

At 65, she owns a plot of land, but the 80-year-old house in which she lives can no longer be repaired. She risks falling through the floor of the termite and water damaged structure.

It has been difficult for her to make needed repairs on her meager income.

"I saved up all my little checks to do this," she says, pointing to the siding nailed to her house.

Nails will no longer hold the siding to the rotting structure.

The house's main support beam has broken. Seeping stormwater has caused walls to buckle and leak.

"It's done decayed. Termites ate it out. The roof's poppin'," she explains.

But Blue, once concerned, is thankful. She will have a new home for Christmas.

Habitat For Humanity, a non-profit organization dedicated to eliminating poverty housing from the face of the earth, has chosen Blue as the first recipient of a brand new house in Seminole County.

The volunteer organization whose spokespersons are Jimmy and Rosalind Carter, is one of 200 affiliates in the nation, including four in Volusia County and one in Orange County, plus more than 40 in developing countries.

Pastor Don Nolt, who spearheads the effort in Seminole County, says Habitat volunteers have visited the backroads of this vibrant, affluent county and found shacks never meant for long-term living. He hopes to build 50 houses annually until "all unacceptable housing in Seminole is wiped out."

"I'd guess there are several thousand houses to build in Seminole," he says.

Nolt's involvement began over three years ago when he retired as associate pastor of St. Stephen Lutheran Church after undergoing quadruple bypass surgery and suffering damage to his heart.

"I only have half a heart, now," he says, tapping his chest. "I wanted to make my time count."

Undaunted by leukemia, Lake Mary lady is thankful for all the blessings in her life

By LACY DOMEN

LAKE MARY — Sarabecca Rosier appears to have it all. She is beautiful, charming, and has a husband, Joe, who loves her. She has a daughter, Scarlett, almost 8, who is a talented dancer. She has a son, Jason, 11, a good student. She says she maintains her positive attitude by thinking about all the things for which she is thankful instead of dwelling on something for which she is not. Rosier has leukemia.

Rosier was a happy mom three years ago, shuttling her children to school, social events, and activities.

"Mom picked me up from preschool one day and she just couldn't breathe," Scarlett says. "I was really scared."

Rosier, who had no history of abnormal health, ignored the warning. She resumed her daily activities, chauffeuring Scarlett one day to gymnastics and treating her to her favorite lunch at Dunkin Donuts.

"I felt worse. It felt like my ribs had been crushed," she explains.

She felt no better over the next several days and was admitted to the hospital for possible heart problems.

"I said I didn't have time to go in the hospital. It was on the eve of the Holy Days and I was busy cooking and getting ready for my parents visit," Rosier remembers.

After having lupus and heart disease ruled out, but with her health deteriorating, Rosier was airlifted to Shands Hospital at the University of Florida in Gainesville, where she underwent a bone marrow biopsy.

"That was the most painful thing. It felt like my body blew up. I saw bright red drops of blood like when

Lawbreakers grab second chance for successful life

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — When Linda was placed under a two-year house arrest for selling drugs, the opportunity to take a course in developing successful living skills appealed to her.

"It was a way to get out of the house one more night," she said.

Today, the woman who said she was addicted to relationships which contributed, at age 40, to her problems with the law, is working toward becoming a counselor. Her relationships with family, friends, and men are healthier, she said, because she has learned to manage her own life.

The transformation was not without much soul-searching and guidance from Seminole Community College instructor Valerie Harrison, who also owns the company Images of the Mind and teaches the course in living skills for the State of Florida Department of Corrections.

Correctional Probation Supervisor Linda Mills said the state authorized the course, and with only a set of guidelines from Lake County and a list of topics to be covered, including employment, substance abuse and education, Mills, Fay Brake, director of Leisure Programs for SCC and Harrison hammered out the current curriculum, currently being taught for the fourth time.

The 15-week program started out as a voluntary one for offenders such as Linda, Paul, Christine and Mike. It is now often court-ordered.

Mike is a youthful offender who ended up in trouble "from a sick relationship." At first he "thought the class was a bunch of junk."

"But then I started to grasp it. It helped me forget the past. I planted both feet on the ground and realized the only thing in front of you is your future. I started to take control of me instead of letting others influence me," he said.

Harrison said the basis of the course is letting go and moving on.

"The obligation you have from the past is to use it and learn and let go of all the garbage which weighs you down," she said.

Christine agreed.

"All I ever felt was guilt and shame," she said. Christine volunteered for the program to "put structure and discipline back where it belongs, in my life."

Paul, too, volunteered for the course to shorten his sentence.

"I learned common sense and to step back and look at myself. I think people cause most of their own problems and what we learned is how to deal with those problems and not to be too hard on ourselves," he thoughtfully said.

Taking control of your life sounds easier than it often is, according to Harrison. Unhealthy behavior patterns developed when we are young carry into adult life, she added.

"My dad used to tell me I was stupid," Linda said. "I learned

Audrey Myree Green and Michael Edward Korgan

Green-Korgan

SANFORD — Ms. Linda Green and Mr. John Green, Sanford, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Audrey Myree, to Michael Edward Korgan, son of Mrs. Jan and Mr. Mike Korgan, Sanford.

Born in Sanford, the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of Mrs. Virginia and Mr. Wailey Blaschak of Lansing, Tennessee. She is the paternal granddaughter of Mrs. Virginia Marie and Mr. John C. Green of Sanford.

Miss Green is a 1990 graduate of Seminole High School and was active in FBLA and DCT-OJT program. She is presently employed as chiropractic assistant at the Bixon Chiropractic Center.

Her fiancé, born in Sanford, is the maternal grandson of Mr. Clifford and Mrs. Hazel Johnson, and the paternal grandson of Mr. Ed and Mrs. Florence Korgan, all of Sanford.

Korgan is a 1986 graduate of Seminole High School and a 1990 graduate of Seminole Community College. He is employed as mechanical engineer at Stone Packaging System.

A wedding is planned for December 1, 1990 at the Upsala Community Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

Only humans can keep river alive

Representing Friends of the St. Johns, Peter S. Haberly, DVM, of Oviedo, told members of the Woman's Club of Sanford, at the November meeting, some of the perils of the St. Johns, a river in distress.

Dubbed as the Nile of America, the 300-mile river, the longest of Florida's rivers, is also the most abused. Development, industry and agriculture are the culprits causing the river's ultimate death.

Haberly spoke and showed slides in the absence of the designated speaker, Adm. Richard Fowler. He was introduced by Faye Siler, chairman of the club's Arts Department, who substituted for Winnie Scott, Conservation Chairman.

Human beings are responsible for the river's distress and only humans can keep it alive. For information, contact Friends of the St. Johns, P.O. Box 956, Sanford 32772-956.

President Marty Colegrove conducted the business session and called on officers and department chairmen for routine reports.

Elizabeth Boyd was inducted as a new member by Mary Tillis, second vice president. Two prospective members attending were: Pat Querry and Lucy Fitzgerald.

Among the various projects on the club's agenda during November and December include: a Country Barbecue, participating in "Make Sanford Shine," contributing to and helping with the St. Lucia Festival, hosting the Golden Age Games Bridge session, providing stocking stuffers for girls, 4 to 18, at Hacienda Girls Ranch, making monetary contributions to the ranch, and helping to dress Teddy bears and ringing bells for the Salvation Army.

Club members are reminded of the club's Arts and Crafts Festival to be held at the Dec. 5 meeting. Faye Siler said entries must be registered by 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4, at the clubhouse. Judging will take place by noon and winners will be announced at the Wednesday meeting.

sale, to benefit the St. Lucia Festival, will be held at the Lake Forrest Clubhouse, on Highway 46, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Nov. 29 and 30. The benefit is open to the public at no charge.

The clubhouse was festively decorated in the autumn motif. Colorful, burnished leaves centered the dining tables with traditional fall arrangements featured on the head table and mantel. Hostesses were: Betty Steffens and Grace Parks, co-chairmen; and Ann Brisson, Rose Payne, Leslie Pauline, Janette Pell, Jane Phillips, Betty Smith and Trish Colbert.

Fall Festival a success

Holy Cross Episcopal Church was a beehive of activity and festivity at the annual Fall Festival Day. A steady stream of bargain hunters shopped at the Country Kitchen and Bake Sale, Yard Sale and Crafts Shoppe. A delicious turkey luncheon was served as well as supper that night.

About the turnout and response, Betty Akers, president of the Episcopal Churchwomen and chairman of the event said "I was very pleased. I had a lot of good help."

Assisting Betty were: Ba Ba Deas, Frank Mebane, Donna Murray, Patty Speer, Vivienne and Gordon Sweeney, Jeanne and Henry Tamm, Len Pawlson, Wally Phillips, Beth Bush, Ethel Perick, Marie and Phil Roche, Joyce and Bob Crowe, Bob Sonnenberg, Beaufie and Sonny Raborn, Mary Jo Cochran, Doris and Al Duxbury, Mildred and Joe Nicholas, Helen Pauling, Harriet Siegler and Donna Blue. Ann Echols was the recipient of the $50 gift certificate donated by Lois' Place.

June Helms, president of City Council, (7); Annette Bruce, storyteller; Marlene Clausen, president of Laureate Alpha Tau and Joyce Sammet, luncheon chairman, gathered for a recent sorority meeting.

"Celebrate the Magic" was the theme of the Beta Sigma Phi All-Chapter Luncheon held Saturday, Nov. 10, at Timacuan Country Club when Chairman Joyce Sammet and her committee put together an exceptional package — delicious food, excellent entertainment and exciting door prizes.

BSP City Council President June Helms led the opening ceremonies and inducted the following into the Silver Circle: Vicki Hall, Glenda Emerson, Marlene Clausen, Vertis Sauls, Amore LaRosa and Joyce Sammet.

Marlene Clausen welcomed the guests and inducted Laurel Tromblay and Marty Colegrove into the Order of the Rose. The following Valentine Girls were announced: Sally Gray, Xi Epsilon Sigma; Joyce Harvey, Xi Theta Epsilon; Marge Eakin, Preceptor Beta Lambda; Kitty Corley, Preceptor Delta Delta; Pat Johnson, Laureate Alpha Tau; and Ann Neckino, BSP City Council.

During the social hour, Magician Jair Bonair entertained the women. He performed several sensational feats of illusion to the delight of his audience.

Highlight of the day was the appearance of a delightful story teller, Annette Bruce of Eustis. As folksay as they come, Annette held the women spellbound with her sharp wit and sparkling commentary. The vibrant skirt she wore, fashioned of men's neckties, matched her colorful personality.

Labeled as the Official Story Teller of Florida by Secretary of State Jim Smith, Annette told several familiar stories but with a different twist. In one instance when she was talking to her aunt on the telephone, the subject of dieting surfaced. Annette told the legendary aunt that she didn't diet "on days that begin with a T — Tuesday, Thursday, today and tomorrow." She generated considerable laughter from the highly appreciative crowd.

Women don't chew the fat

Charlotte Balcombe Lane was the guest speaker when the Heathrow Women's Club met at the Woman's Club of Sanford for the November meeting. President Marianne Bassile presided over the business session.

For luncheon, the women were served a catered meal containing 880 calories from recipes in Charlotte's recent cookbook. The menu included roast chicken in cherry sauce, barley pilaf, carrots and parsnips, spiced apple ring and bread pudding.

Charlotte later spoke on low-cal "Weird Veggies and Fruits." Among the weird foods she brought with her to the meeting and explained were: Malanga, Kiwano, Fennel, Bok Choy, Jicama, Nopales, Red Banana, Boniato, Daikon and Chayote.

Women from Sanford attending the event were: Liz Helfrich, Gina Jones, Angela Adcock, Charlotte Knowles, Ann Howland, Frances Mitchell, Nelle Coleman, Martha Stevens, Martha Yancey, Dorothy McReynolds and Jeri Lirk.

Club members honor their own with Rotarian of Year and Paul Harris Fellowship awards

When Lake Mary Rotary Club members gathered on a recent Saturday night, it was to honor their own with the Paul Harris and Rotarian of the Year Awards and to celebrate the founding of the local chapter on November 8, 1973.

Harris founded Rotary in Chicago, in 1905, to promote fellowship and high ethical business standards among men. From those humble beginnings, Rotary boasts 22,000 clubs in 160 lands, including a newly chartered club in Russia. As women have entered and climbed the ranks in the business world, Rotary has accepted them as members, too.

Sixty Rotarians and guests celebrated Charter Night with an elegant banquet dinner at the Lake Mary CIA Building. Entertainment was provided by songstress Tricia Panarello.

President Brent Carl deemed the event a success because the young chapter did not begin the way Rotary Club chapters usually begin.

"We were unique from the get-go. Usually a chapter is a spin-off of a larger one. The larger club sponsors the fledgling chapter, but we weren't sponsored. Lake Mary was a grass roots bunch of guys who got together and here we are," Carl said.

One of the chapter's founders, Pete Jamison, was awarded a Paul Harris Fellow for his involvement. Pete's wife, Miriam, affixed an award, a gold pin, to his lapel.

Also honored were Ty Dedman, whose wife, Bettye assisted by pinning his jacket front, and the late Mack Blythe, who was named Rotarian of the Year in 1975 and died in an auto accident a few years ago. His wife, Mazel, accepted the award posthumously for him.

Scott Wyse explained a Paul Harris fellow can be received from the club, from a sponsor or by personally donating to the scholarship fund. Money from the Fellow goes into the largest scholarship fund in the world, according to Carl.

Harry Terry was nominated by a committee of past Rotarians of the Year and captured this honor for 1990-91. Pete Jamison said Harry won not because he came up with one brilliant idea nor because he headed one special project.

"He wasn't necessarily the one to be the frontrunner, but he is always the one to count on," Jamison said.

Cruising into retirement

Tim and Martha Stevens, Lake Mary, report after 28 years of marriage, everything is smooth sailing.

The couple sailed into the Caribbean sunset recently, cruising from Port Canaveral for four nights in Nassau, Paradise Beach and Salt Cay.

Martha said she and Tim had always wanted to take a cruise, and now that they are both retired, he from Seaboard Systems where he worked as an engineer, and she as an elementary guidance counselor from Forest City Elementary School.

Martha said future plans include trips to Seffner to visit with daughter Debbie Hudson, her husband Chuck, and grandchildren Jessica, 14, Sarah, 12, and Meghan, 10.

Share Thanksgiving

Special service marks holiday

The Martin Luther King Steering Committee will hold its Pre-Thanksgiving Worship Service on Wednesday, November 21, at 7:30 p.m. at Allen Chapel AME Church, 1203 Olive Avenue. This special religious service will feature the Mass Choir of Allen Chapel AME Church and the guest speaker will be the Rev. J. Wallace Gaines. The community is invited to attend this pre-Thanksgiving worship service.

Rev. J. Wallace Gaines was born in Fort Smith, Arkansas. He received his elementary education in Des Moines, Iowa, and his Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree from Drake University where he was commissioned a second Lieutenant, honor cade status, in the U.S. Air Force. For three years in succession, Rev. Gaines was voted the most outstanding junior officer, honorably discharged at the rank of captain. He continued his graduate studies at the University of Virginia Law School, the College of William and Mary Law School, Oklahoma City University in pursuit of his joint Law and Master of Business Administration degrees.

Rev. Gaines was called into the ministry and preached his trial sermon on Palm Sunday, 1977. In July of that year, he served his first pastorate assignment at the St. Paul Baptist Church, Wewoka, Oklahoma. In January 1979, he was called as the senior pastor of the Antioch Baptist Church, Waterloo, Iowa.

In September 1984, Rev. Gaines was called to begin developing a new church based on the word of God rather than tradition in the Waterloo area. The Peace Baptist Church, of which he named and founded. There he assembled the great Peace Baptist Church Evangelical Ensemble, one of the nation's great gospel choirs.

He has been active in social concerns of the needy, organiz-

He has served as guest preacher in various cities including Seattle, Boston, Dallas, New York City, and Chicago.

Presently, he is fast-track manager trainee, Southland Corporation, Orlando.

Calling choir members

Calling all church choir members, concerned singers who wish to become members of the Martin Luther King celebration choir. Rehearsals are held beginning Nov. 20, 7 p.m. at the St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church, Ninth Street and Pine Avenue. All concerned choir members and all churches are invited to be a part of this community choir which is under the direction of Mrs. Mary Whitehurst and Mrs. Gloria Williams.

The Martin Luther King commemorative banquet tickets will go on sale, Wednesday evening at the pre-Thanksgiving Service at Allen Chapel. Tickets are $7.50, children: $15 for adults. Tickets will also be available from the Steering Committee members. Mrs. Shirley Allen is Banquet Chairman.

Committee to meet

The Class Reunion Committee of the Classes of 1950-59 will meet today at 8 p.m. at the Elks Home, Seventh Street and Cypress Avenue. All concerned people and classmates of those years are invited to come and help with the completion of the plans of the reunion to be held during the Christmas holidays. Richard Evans, Chairman.

Women's Day a success

The Hickory Avenue Church of God's Annual Women's Day in October was indeed a great success. Deaconess Bertha Phillippe Brown was given the honor of being awarded Patron and Ad Winner. She solicited the most funds for the Women's Day observance. First place in Group Two was the honor she received. She was presented a trophy for each area and a trip for a weekend vacation at the Marriott

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Eric Stuart

John Eric Stuart marries in New Mexico ceremony

CLOVIS, NM — Karen Diane Murphy and John Eric Stuart are announcing their marriage today. The wedding was an event of August 4, 1980, 11 a.m., at Cannon Air Force Base Chapel, Clovis, NM. Chaplain Frank Sherman, Major, USAF performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of James and Patricia Murphy, Yakima, WA and the bridegroom's parents are Timothy and Janet Donahoe, Sanford and Van Stuart of Sanford. He is the grandson of Loren and Ruth Dougherty, Sanford.

Given in marriage by Templer Horry, friend of the bride and groom, the bride chose for her vows a blush peach satin wedding gown. The gown featured a dropped waist and she wore matching satin gloves. The strapless bodice was trimmed with lace and the skirt featured peach lace tiers with a high-low hemline. The bride's hairpiece was a matching satin bow trimmed with simulated pearl sprays and iridescents. She wore a pearl and iridescent necklace and matching pearl earrings.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white and peach silk roses and carnations interspersed with silk lilies of the valley featuring long peach satin ribbon streamers.

Cheryl Miesen attended the bride as Maid of Honor. She wore a strapless peach satin, sleeveless gown with a basque waistline. The street-length skirt featured matching satin tiers. Her hairpiece was a pearl spray with iridescents and she wore a pearl and iridescent necklace. She carried a nosegay of white and peach silk roses and carnations interspersed with silk baby's breath featuring short peach satin ribbon streamers.

Alan Thibodeaux of Altamonte Springs served the groom as Best Man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of Templer and Barbara Horry, Clovis, NM.

After a wedding trip to Yakima, WA, the newlyweds are making their home in Clovis, NM. The bridegroom is a sergeant in the U.S. Air Force and the bride is Sr. Airman, USAF. They are both assigned to the 2040th Communications Squadron, Cannon Air Force Base, NM.

All people are victims of drug abuse problem

DEAR MARY: I'm certainly not in favor of people using drugs or selling drugs to kids, but I think the government and media are making too big a deal of the drug abuse problem today. Most people don't abuse drugs, even though they might have a drink now and then, and don't have anything to do with people who do use drugs. So why do we have to be bombarded with all this talk about a problem that only affects a small percentage of the population.

SANFORD CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: I can't tell you how much I wish I could agree with your letter, but let me point out to you some of the ways our lives are impacted by drug use and abuse even if we've never had a drug-related problem or have had no personal contact with someone who has had a problem with alcohol or any other drug. You have been victimized by the drug abuse problem if you have experienced any of these things:

1. paid federal or local taxes
2. gone to school, or have had children in school
3. driven or ridden in a car
4. been a victim of a crime against your person or property
5. used or purchased health care insurance.

These are just some of the more impersonal ways we are all victims of the drug problem in America, but from this very incomplete list, you can see why it is probably impossible to live in America today without being personally impacted by the problem of drug abuse in our society. And, finally, while this

In matters of health and heart, it's never too late to change

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Happy at Last in Oklahoma," the 85-year-old woman who changed her eating and health habits at age 80. What an inspiring letter!

I am 31 and happily married to a wonderful guy. We have a preschool-age son. Like "Happy in Oklahoma," I have also doubted my weight and am very uncomfortable with my shape.

After reading that letter, I am encouraged to try harder. My moods dictated my eating habits. Whenever I felt bored, lonely, sad or unhappy, I'd eat. Every Monday, I would begin a new diet, then I'd fall off it and try again. Abby, that lady's inspiring letter has changed my life forever. No more starving myself, overexercising and beginning again for me. I will begin right now to change my bad habits.

I cut her letter out of my newspaper and plan to keep it handy for reinforcement when I'm tempted to "cheat." May God bless this wonderful Oklahoma lady. Thank you, Abby, for running her letter.

CHANGING FOR GOOD AT 31

DEAR CHANGING: Many other readers were inspired by that letter. And for those who missed it, here are the highlights.

"My advice to people who want to do what I did: Remember, you didn't get fat overnight. Ease into your new habits. Never talk about what you are doing. Just do it! Let others discover that you are losing weight."

"First, cut down the size of your servings, then limit your meals to healthy foods such as fruits, vegetables, cereals, lean meat and non-fat milk. Drink at least 10 glasses of liquid a day (most of it should be water). When you cut out the fats and sweets, you will be surprised at how good the other foods taste. Even a baked potato can be great. Start exercising. Begin slowly, then gradually increase the time, but do it so regularly that it becomes a habit."

"Moderation is the key to success. Substitute common sense for bad habits."

Those lucky financial breaks for which you've waited so patiently could be coming your way in the year ahead. This might well be Scorpio's turn for fancy cars, homes and shopping spree.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be rather fortunate in your financial affairs today, but not where partners are involved. Lady wants you to try to build your resources on your own. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today what is best for you might not necessarily be best for someone with whom you're closely involved. It will be better for all concerned to make your decisions logically, not emotionally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Follow your instincts and hunches today, because they could provide you with constructive insights in your commercial affairs. It's these dividends that'll supply you with the edge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Make definite plans for a fun day, starting with the companions with whom you want to share it. Select friends whose wit, humor and interests are on the same wavelength as yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important today that you establish meaningful objectives for yourself, because you can be outstanding at anything you undertake. These days don't come along often, so make the most of it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Depart from your usual routines today and do something different. If it is out-of-doors and enables you to move around mentally and physically, with a touch of adventure attached, all the better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A joint venture in which you're involved that has financial overtones is proceeding in the right direction, but if your expectations are too high, you

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Basic bridge is taught as a simple and logical game, relatively gimmick-free. As students progress and become more experienced, they adopt a few bidding gadgets to improve their results. Some of these gadgets come to the fore in today's bidding. Three spades was an artificial response to two no-trump, promising length in both minors, plus values to play at least a game. So South duly bid his four-card club suit. By partnership agreement, North's bid of four hearts now showed a singleton heart and implied interest in getting higher than five clubs. So South just went right to slam. What could he hold better than A-x-x-x of hearts

House

Noll founded the Neighborhood Association Bringing Home Repairs to Seniors which provided free home repair to elderly poor in the county. After volunteering for the Meals On Wheels program, which provides hot meals for senior citizens, Noll realized the great need many seniors on fixed incomes have for home repairs.

"We painted and patched and sanded and cleaned and talked and listened 'til we can do nothing else but continue to paint and patch and..." he says.

When Noll realized Blue's little house could no longer be patched, he sought help in building a new one.

Noll considered an affiliation with Habitat International and met with Victor Hoepte in DeLand. He discovered the group was doing just what his group wanted to do: help neighbors to a better life.

Noll has been busy collecting donations, materials and money, from varied sources. He needs $1,600 for each of the 12 building days until Christmas. It will take to complete the frame structure.

The trench for the concrete foundation is in place. Blue cannot help with the actual building, as many Habitat home recipients have done, but she will serve as monitor of communications, fielding phone calls and relaying messages, to do her part for Habitat's growth.

She is excited. "It means everything to me. If it wasn't for Pastor, I guess I'd be gone through the floor by now," she says.

The man with the big half-a-heart would never let that happen.

"I have the best job in the world," he says.

Leukemia

you see stars from the pain," she says. Rosier was diagnosed with AML, a leukemia which strikes young people and is very swift, very deadly.

"The white blood cells eat up the red ones like Pac Man," she says. "I was more dead than alive within days."

Rosier's ordeal included enduring a bone marrow transplant and living in a sterile environment, because the operation destroys the immune system.

"It took mine 140 days to kick back in," she says.

She did not see Scarlett for seven months because of an outbreak of chicken pox at her school. Jason's grades fell because he was so worried about his mother.

She lost her hair from the treatment. It will not grow back. "One in 250,000 don't get their hair back. I'm the one. I wish I had those odds for the lottery," she says.

Rosier occupied one of ten beds for AML patients at Shands. She became close friends with another AML patient, Maria.

"I was so excited for Maria when her hair grew back. We thought we might be okay," Rosier says.

Rosier is the only one of the 10 AML patients who is still alive.

"Are you cured for good?" Jason asks. "They don't know," Rosier answers honestly as she explains she is in post bone marrow remission and her prognosis looks good.

"We hope so!" Jason adds. "We're very glad to have you, mom," Scarlett says as she hugs Rosier.

"I'm very glad to be here," Rosier, teary-eyed, says as she squeezes her children to her.

BOOK REVIEWS

Will at work: On American Idea

Suddenly
By George Will
(Macmillan, 417 pp., $19.95)

Syndicated columnist George Will has always been a booster of American ideals. He chronicles the effects of those ideals in this country and internationally in his latest collection of columns, "Suddenly: The American Idea Abroad and at Home 1986-1990."

Will sees what he defines as the American idea - political and economic diversity protected by limited government - behind the momentous changes in the world during the last half of the decade. "In the late 1980s, in the Soviet Union and its satellites, history exuberantly took a hop, skip and a jump and the world was suddenly better," he writes in the book's forward.

grandeur of politics." Will's usual wit and finely crafted turn of phrase is evident throughout this enjoyable book, which concludes with columns on things that matter most to the author: his children, his pet peevs, and of course, baseball.

The New Yorker Book of Cat Cartoons
(Knopf, 103 pp., $16.95)

Garfield move over. Cat cartoons are going upscale.

The collection of 101 cat comics from 65 years of The New Yorker magazine may be drawn with a bit more finesse than past forays into feline humor, but the jokes are basically the same: the antics of arrogant cats and the trials of doting owners, dumb dogs and beleaguered birds and mice.

Some of the best comics are those without words.

In Warren Miller's world, a cat tags along with a group of birdwatchers replete with a miniature set of binoculars. Mische Richter's moonlit scene of a tall castle silently lowering its drawbridge to let out a solitary cat for a night of regal hunting.

just because he said I was stupid, doesn't mean it's true." "How did you know what my dad used to say to me?" Christine answered.

Harrison said part of letting go of the emotional baggage is to stop blaming others for problems. She uses positive statements and encourages her students to see themselves in an "I can be better" situation instead of telling themselves "I can't do it because..."

Mike has set career goals and now chooses his friends wisely. "Misery loves company, but I'm not miserable anymore," he said.

Paul is now working in community service and volunteers his time for homeless people. He is rebuilding a once dysfunctional relationship.

"I learned to fly," he simply said.

"We add respect and responsibility to each student's vocabulary," Harrison said. Harrison said gaining self-respect is also not easy. Often the public feels lawbreakers cannot be rehabilitated which adds to feelings of low self-esteem for a person who has made a mistake.

She is tough on her students, setting stringent guidelines for assignments. She loses almost half of them, when they are not ready to face the stark reality of themselves.

"The students who participate are really wonderful, great people," Harrison said.

The ones who make it through are thankful for the experience. "I no longer look at myself and feel pain," Linda said.

Christine who is training for a new profession in computers said, "The course was the beginning building block for the foundation of my future. It is where I learned to be responsible to and for myself and to take charge of my destiny. I would not be doing what I am doing today had I not begun taking steps with Valerie," she said.

Education

IN BRIEF

Lake Mary LSAC to meet

LAKE MARY - The Lake Mary High School Local School Advisory Committee will be meeting tomorrow, Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the school's media center. Lake Mary High School is located at 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. in Lake Mary. The meeting is open to any parent of a Lake Mary student. Volunteers are needed on a number of LSAC sub-committees.

SAT prep course to start

LAKE MARY - A preparation course to help students get ready to take the SAT will begin tomorrow at 5 p.m. The class will meet once a week until January 24. Time will be given off for the winter holidays. For more information or to register for the class, call Evon Lake at 330-0179.

Terrific Tuesdays for Parents

SANFORD - The Parent Resource Center at Seminole Community College will be working in cooperation with the Ascension Lutheran Church in Casselberry on a project they call Terrific Tuesdays.

The program offers arts, crafts, music, songs and games for parents and their children to do together. It will meet at the church, 351 Ascension Dr. in Casselberry.

The cost of participation in the group is $1 per child per week for members of the Parent Resource Center (PRC). A PRC membership costs $25 per year. To register, call the center at Seminole Community College at 323-1450, ext. 575 or call 321-4682.

Locals participate in Wofford Scholars

SPARTANBURG S.C. - Heather C. Pegram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pegram of Sanford and Sharmar Regina Mooney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Mooney of Longwood, recently participated in the 41st annual Wofford Scholars Program at Wofford College.

Pegram is a student at Seminole High School and Mooney is a student at Lyman High School.

To compete, students must rank in the top 10 percent of their class and have a minimum SAT score of 1050 or an SAT score of 24. They must also be active in extra-curricular school and community activities.

The two students interviewed with various members of the Wofford faculty and student body in a contest to earn scholarships.

Homecoming festivities finished for Ram court

By ALLISON SLATER
High school correspondent

LAKE MARY - The 1990 Homecoming King and Queen, seniors Mike Merthie and Ashlyn Stone, were crowned before a crowd of students and despite a growing rainstorm Friday afternoon, Nov. 9, at the Homecoming festivities dwindled to their close for this year.

The Homecoming Court was presented at 1:30 p.m. after a shortened school day for the students. The members were carried by convertible BMWs and Mercedes around the track as raindrops began to fall.

Representing the juniors were Anush Collins, Angie Roberson, Beth Moore, Matt Greene, Vicki Douglas and Mike McKenna.

Senior representatives were Katie Gilliam, Colby Berger, Jenn Moore, Chris Haney, Amy Rayburn, Marcus Cobbe, Laura Rauch, Kevin Millionig, Merthie and Sloan.

As 1989 Queen Aitx Douglas crowned Sloan and principal Don Smith crowned Merthie, the rain came down in torrents, causing a mass exodus from the stadium by those without the shelter of umbrellas. As the royal couple drove around the field one last time, senior chorus members Shelly Glickson and Corey Harrelson sang the seniors' song, "For Just a Moment," from the movie St. Elmo's Fire.

The Rams went on to win the football game against Lyman in a tough battle that made a hero out of Haney. Although the event was mosquito-free, the rain made it an somewhat unpleasant experience.

Said Merthie of his honor: "It felt great to be named Homecoming King. I never expected to win. I couldn't stop smiling all night!"

Students find out that teachers' job isn't easy

By SHANNON LATIMER
High school correspondent

"I found out it is not always easy," said senior Bobby Jones.

Bobby and other students had the chance to observe and perform the duties of teachers, administrators, and office personnel.

Jones took on the duties of Mr. Gene Williams, the Dean of Students. He got a behind-the-scenes look at the school's discipline office.

As part of American Education Week, the students signed up to be student teachers and administrators for the day.

American Education Week was Nov. 12 through Nov. 16. Student-Teacher Day was held on Wednesday, Nov. 14. It was only one of the activities done to celebrate the event.

Dressing for the role was a part of the activity. Many tried to dress like the teachers or administrator for whom they were substituting.

The teachers-for-a-day also had the responsibility to know about their temporary jobs. If going over notes, student teachers had to be familiar with the information in the notes. Some had to come up with their own lesson plans.

"I decided to assign a creative essay," said Akelahon Toomer, who taught for English teacher, Mrs. Maxine Bodiford.

Student participants received certificates and a better understanding of the workings and dealings of Seminole High School.

"I had fun working in the office and learning the phone system; it gets busy in the office," said Patty Clark, senior, who worked with the receptionist Mrs. Sherry Herron.

Thank you, Mr. Hampton

On Thursday at Midway Elementary School, first grade teacher Betty Kuykendall presented principal Leroy Hampton with a certificate of appreciation for his work with the students at the school. The presentation was a part of the school's American Education Week activities.

Star Lab a hit with the kids

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The large silver igloo bobs lightly back and forth as two dozen youngsters scurry out into the light of the luncheon at Stenstrom Elementary School as students at other schools have done in their own lunchrooms.

They squint until their eyes adjust to the light outside the Star Lab, an inflatable planetarium, purchased by the school district for about $10,000 a couple of years ago.

It is making the round from one school to another. With the emphasis on the integrated learning curriculum, teachers from all subject areas are able to bring the study of astronomy to their charges.

A language arts class studying the books of Laura Ingalls Wilder learned about the Indian legends of the stars in their unit of life on the prairie.

"Oh, it's loads of fun for the kids," said Ruth Meyers, a fifth grade teacher who was using the Star Lab that day to teach her students about the mythological Greek figures for which many of the constellations are named.

The students had gathered across the room to put their shoes back on their feet before heading for the food line.

"It was just like a carnival ride," one of them called out to another.

Meyers smiled knowingly. "But they learned something in the meantime."

According to Bettie Palmer-Spratt, the school district's coordinator of science instruction, the Star Lab can be used by students at any grade level from Kindergarten through high school, but that it is most popular at the elementary level.

"The younger kids really love the Star Lab," she said. "They forget they're learning."

Inside the inflatable shell, the night sky is projected onto the black background. A pump circulates air in the unit with a loud humming noise not normally associated with such a clear view of the stars.

"They don't even notice the sound," Meyers said of her students.

In addition to projecting the night sky as it looks at various times during the year, the Star Lab is also equipped to give students a view of the continents as they would appear from the center of the earth and a study of the geological plates that make up the earth.

"It gives the kids a new perspective to see the earth from inside the globe," Meyers said.

Gathering up gifts for Rams in Desert Shield

LAKE MARY - Operation Desert Shield has touched the lives of a good portion of Americans in a personal way.

"A lot of people know someone who has been shipped over there," said Fran Kemp, the fine arts department head at Lake Mary High School who helped organize a gift drive to send Christmas presents to Lake Mary High School graduates and other local residents who are stationed in the Saudi Arabian desert.

Right now there are about 15 soldiers on their list, but transfers and additions cause the list to change constantly.

"We hope to send packages for Valentine's Day and Easter if they're still there then," Kemp said.

Students from the school's art classes gathered up books, non-perishable food, games, snacks and toiletries. They packaged them in brightly colored packages, both store bought bags and hand painted paper tied up with neon ribbons.

"This is part of the school's theme of Rams care," Kemp said.

Frank Schwartz, an occupational specialist who helped the fine arts department organize the event said that the students at Lake Mary High School have taken on projects to help the community, the environment and the world.

"They've done things from this to cleaning up the highway in front of the school to collecting food for the hungry," he said.
