Electrical Shortages Still Plaguing State

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Electricity has flickered back on for the more than 60 per cent of metropolitan Tampa hit by a blackout late Wednesday as officials continue to warn of a Florida power crisis.

Tampa Electrical Company officials blamed the nearly three-hour blackout on mechanical failures rather than an excessive power demand that has led other major utilities to plead with residents to conserve electricity.

The officials said a shortage of working generators, combined with unusually hot, humid weather from Central Florida southward, is taxing the power supply to the breaking point. Tampa power officials said two pieces of equipment failed for unknown reasons in

Zoo Park Plans To Society

By MARION BETHEA Heald Staff Writer

Renderings of the new county zoological park by the Orlando architectural firm of Fugleberg, Kock Associates, at Tuesday's meeting of the Seminole County Zoological Society left trustees "flabbergasted," according to Gib Blake, president of the society. The trustees, Blake commented, were impressed with the scope of the renderings and the elegance of the park which. as the accompying photos depict, are comparable to New York's Central Park zoo or Busch Gardens. The enormity of the provisions for animals in their natural habitat staggers the imagination when realizing how the park will place Sanford "on the map" as a tourist attraction, he said. Blake said a presentation also made by a St. Augustine firm from a miniature railroad which will wind through the park site. Although receptive to the idea. Blake emphasized it

Blake went on to say the zoo trustees are enthusiastic with the present success and are planning in the near future for the engineering drawings and specifications, after which the society is preparing to let bids for construction of the zoological park, and estimated advertising for bids the latter part of July or early August.

The Latin terrorists who extorted a million dollars from Ford Motor Co. in Argentina are not really all that revolutionary.

In Latin America, foreign businessmen have long been paying for protection of one sort or another, to governments, to opposition parties, to whomever appears to be in a position to do them harm.

Despite the erroneous impression in the United States that the large multinational corporations act just about as they please aborad, the fact of the matter is that their size and wealth make them easy targets. The bigger they are, the greater their investment in a country, the more vulnerable they are to the native demagogue, be he government official. labor boss or terrorist.

In Argentina, for example, it is no longer any secret that Ford's bill was upward of $400,000 a year. That was the money Ford spent on charitable works, building, equipping and ehlping support schools.

Schools? Why should an auto maker build schools?

Quite simply because the Argentine government thought it would be a fitting contribution for the big foreign company to make to the nation's cultureal development.

In as competitive an automobile market as that of Argentina, only a dull-witted individual would not quickly see the wisdom of the official suggestion, and the heads of the auto companies there are not retards.

Actually, the school building idea is believed to have originated in Mexico decades ago. Ford has been building schools in the Axtec republic for years, too. In the 1950's even the Foreign Correspondents' Association in Mexico City contributed funds for the construction of a rural

Gardens Not For Lazy

This is the season when the backyard farmer, particularly those who will be trying their first vegetable gardens this year, is put to the test. Few desirable plants grow unaided, as the amateur soon discovers.

The part-time grower who thought a small garden plot might be the ideal source of muchneeded exercise soon learns what it means to toil in the soil. The exercise is there, for a certainty, perhaps more than had been bargained for. -Monroe (La.) Morning World

He now has denied directly the implication from Watergate witnesses that an attempt was made to shift responsibility in the case to the Central Intelligence Agency.

As new pieces are added to the Watergate puzzle, we find that the CIA apparently was drawn into the investigation against its will by high White House officials who were supervising a special intelligence unit probing national security leaks. We can understand the President's concern that these intelligencegathering activities might be eopardized in the course of the Watergate investigation.

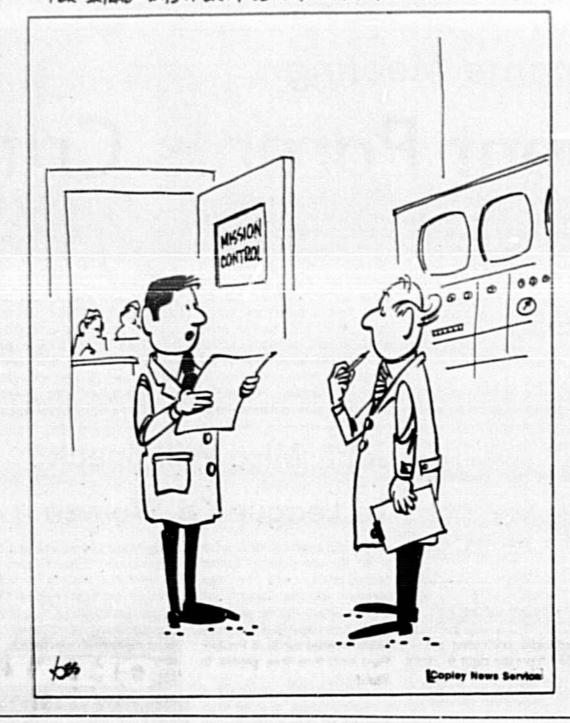

A picture has begun to emerge in which members of the White House staff, acting upon the President's admonition to protect the integrity of a vital intelligence apparatus unrelated to Watergate, engaged in illegal activities. Mr. Nixon has accepted once again the ultimate responsibility for excess of zeal and a failure of judgment on the part of some of his closest aides. It is apparent, too that wheels set in notion as early as 1970 led to the events of 1972 and 1973 now occupying Watergate investigators. The intelligence activities which began then amounted to a resumption o those which President Johnson had undertaken at a time when organized protest demonstrations were creating a visible threat to civil order. Bahamas Will Play Major Role

Chief, Washington Bureau Copley News Service

WASHINGTON-The Bahamas, best known as a Caribbean mecca for sunbathing Americans, appears destined to play a major role in the fast-changing U.S. energy

A major oil terminal to handle shipments from the Middle East and the Persian Gulf has been approved by the Bahamanian government, it was learned here. Atlantic Terminal and Tanker Services Co., Inc. of Lausanne, Switzerland, plans to begin construction of a crude oil transhipment terminal in July on Grand Bahama Island. The deep-water terminal will accommodate the largest supertankers now being built-ships that cannot be handled in comparatively shallow U.S. ports. Smaller tankers will shuttle the crude oil to U.S. refineries on the East and Gulf coasts.

A spokesman for Atlantic Terminal says the installation will handle 20-30 million tons of oil a year. It is expected to be in operation by the fall of 1974.

The Swiss firm is headed by V.C. Georgescu, an American and a former executive in London who is one of the world's best-known oil consultants. A major participant is Pakhoed Holdings, N.V., of Rotterdam, The Netherlands, the world's largest petroleum products, storage and transshipment

The proposed storage facilities in the Bahamas may be only the first of a series of transshipment centers off the East and Gulf coasts. In his energy message to Congress, President Nixon asked the Interior Department to investigate the possibility of man-made terminals or islands. Studies are well under way for such a facility off Wilmington,

Georgescu estimated in an interview that by 1985 the United States will require more than 740 million tons of oil a year from foreign sources. About 175 million tons are expected to be supplied from Canada and Venezuela, he says, leaving a balance of some 550 million tons which must come from the Eastern > Africa, by his estimate. Georgescu also predicts increasing U.S. and Japanese interest in liquefied natural gas from the Persian Gulf, principally from Iran.

Hemisphere—mostly from the Persian Gulf region. About 50-

100 million tons may be available from North and West

"In my opinion Japan will probably be importing over 15 million tons of LNG from the Middle East by 1985," he said. In the same period, he predicts, Japanese oil imports will soar to 700 million tons a year, 500 million tons over 1971

"The competition for oil could become fierce," he said. Western Europe's consumption by 1985, he said, will reach 750 million tons. The European Common Market countries consumed 335 million tons of oil in 1970. U.S. imports of LNG, he said, will be influenced by federal price policies and the availability of new-design LNG ships. The United States recently negotiated a $1.7 billion deal with Algeria to import between 1 billion and 2 billion cubic feet of Algerian gas a day over the next 25 years. The agreement involves Export-Import Bank loans totaling $556 million. Virtually all of the imported gas is earmarked for the northeastern United States.

The developing worldwide oil shortage has prompted industrial nations to seek a common price policy toward the supplier nations. U.S. and Japanese officials are discussing strategy with the European Economic Community, but France is objecting to joint negotiations. Japan meanwhile is reported seeking independent agreements with Saudi Arabia, Iran and Indonesia.

The irony of 1972 is supreme: Above all in U.S. election history, it will go down as the Year of the Greatest Dirty Yet the evidence seems overwhelming that President

Nixon's smashing defeat of Sen. George McGovern represented the voters' measure of their relative competence to serve in the White House. Soviet Modernizes Offensive Tactics Put at a Premium

The new men from other services presumably have a predilection for selective procurement of more sophisticated weapons. Provocative studies in this area of Soviet staff and field changes have recently been completed by Alexander O. Ghebhardt and William Schneider Jr., consultants to the Hudson Institute in New York. Schneider is also a U.S. Senate staff member.

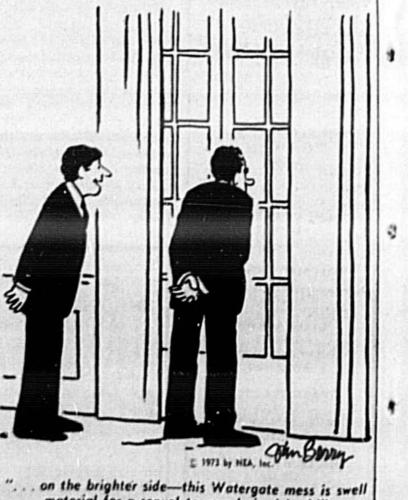

Two examples, taken at random from their detailed work will give the flavor: · Adm. S. M. Lobov, chief Soviet expert on nuclear submarines, has been appointed assistant chief of the General Staff, the first time a non-army officer has filled · Recent Soviet experiments with a stellar-inertial guidance package, for their 4,000-nautical-mile range SSN8 submarine-launched ballistic missile (SLBM), and maneuverable re-entry vehicles suggest the new leadership's interest in turning technological advances to offensive advantages in their force structure.

Ghebhardt and Schneider conclude that if the new Soviet marshals and generals should "take best advantage of their resources in ICBMs with the formidable throw-weight (missile size) advantage their prior procurement policies have produced, a major shift in the strategic balance could occur.'

This would be true, of course, only if the United States does not take full advantage of its own research and

Meditation In Activity

Copley News Service

Recently we began attending a series of lectures on the Art of Meditation. Meditation is not only an "in" activity (or nonactivity) we were told, but is also good for you. It helps you relax. It also can enable you to experience life-changing mystical revelations, but, on the whole I would be satisfied with learning to relax even though our son and three friends are engaged in an indoor football contest while our daughters and ten cohorts practice song and dance routines for the 6th grade variety show.

A Catholic Mason?

It's possible, but...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both Catholics My husband wants to join the Masonic Order. I say the Masons will not take a Catholic. My husband says they will. If he is right and joins the Masons, I say if the Catholic church finds out about it they will kick him out, and he won't be able to receive communion with his family, and when he dies they won't give him the last rites.

Something else that I never could understand: Why can't a Catholic be a Mason, too? DEAR IN: The Masons WILL accept Catholics, but a Catholic who joins the Masons forfeits his right to receive the sacraments, and he will be canonically excommunicated from the Catholic church. [You can't "kick" a Catholic out of the church-he can attend church if he wants to, but he can't receive the sacraments.] The Catholics view Masonry as a formal religion, and one cannot be a Catholic and a Mason for the same reason that one cannot be a Catholic and a Lutheran or a Catholic and a Mohammedan at the same time. DEAR ABBY: I am now a grown man, but when I was a child my parents never forced me to eat anything I didn't like, and I never suffered from it. I now tend to follow that approach with my own children. I have divorced and remarried, and my present wife and I have my children from my previous marriage for many weekends and most of the

We get along fine, except at mealtime. My wife feels that children should be made to eat food they don't like, on the theory that it is good for them, and they will grow to like it. The children have made an honest effort to try certain foods which don't appeal to them, but they simply don't like certain things. My wife tends to prepare at least one thing at every meal that the children don't like, and it is a constant hassle at mealtime.

We have agreed to let you arbitrate and will abide by your decision. DEAR FATHER: Angry arguments at mealtime are bad for the digestion. I vote for a compromise. If the kids are too picky and don't like too many things, for nutrition's sake, bear down. But don't force food on them just to prove your wife's authority over them. That's not fair.

DEAR ABBY: I've been putting this off for so many years I am ashamed of myself, but now I must do something about it. When I was very young I had an illegitimate daughter just used his last name, and it has gone on like that ever This first daughter is now 44 years old, and one day in order to get old age benefits she will have to have a birth

POLLY'S POINTERS

As Shoe Liners

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY-When going without stockings, try putting half a paper towel over the bottom of each foot and then slip your shoes on. I think this is more comfortable than wearing those little footlets we buy. The paper absorbs perspiration and the feet stay cooler. I find it most useful to keep on hand a package of small bottles of assorted colors of enamel paint. They are handy for so many uses but the small brushes that come with them are so poorly made I find it hard to do a good job with them. Now I always clean the nice soft brush that comes with fingernail polish and find the short handle and firmly built bristles make every little paint job a joy.-L. W.

Polly's Problem DEAR POLLY-I make most of my dresses and recently I became quite upset when I cut a dress out of permanent press, 65 per cent fortrel and 33 per cent polyester fabric and discovered several creases (not from a fold) which would not steam out. What can I do to remove these creases?-M. K. W.

DEAR POLLY-Why can't the manufacturers of glasses frames make the nose pieces more comfortable? Please tell them that people who have to have very heavy lenses are a nervous wreck at the end of a day by having all that weight on the nose piece. If nothing else they surely could make a pad on the places where the pressure is .- LETHA

DEAR POLLY-Mrs. J. A. C. wanted something done about the disposable diapers that are thrown out of car windows and along the highways. I work in the nursery of my church and my co-workers and I have solved the problem of what to do with disposable diapers by rinsing a soiled one and then dropping it in a plastic bread wrapper, tie a knot and drop in the bathroom trash can. We send the soiled cloth diapers home the same way. Bread wrappers would be a simple and sanitary solution to that problem when traveling with baby. Place soiled diapers issues, paper towels, etc., in the bag and tie. Drop this in a paper sack and there is no odor, no fuss. Drop the entire thing in a trash container at the next rest stop

By MARGIE BESTER Copley News Service

As Senior Prom time approaches for members of what I am appalled to discover I think of as the younger generation, I find myself waxing nostalgic over memories of my own

The biggest thing about my Prom was that I had a date.

I can't for the life of me remember his name, but the fact that I had one was momentous enough in itself to emblazon itself in my memory

Since I attended an all-girl high school, my classmates and I began plotting our strategy for securing a Prom date months in advance-in some cases, years

When someone finally asked if he could take me to my Prom and after I stopped laughing and crying in hysterical relief, I began preparing myself for what my friends and I considered "P-day.

The first most important item on the pre-Prom agenda was an appropriate dress. It had to be something that would transform me from a small, thin, as-yet shapeless 17-year-old into a tall, svelte, fantastically endowed woman.

I explained all this to my mother, and after she stopped laughing and crying hysterically in mirth, she decided to go along with the plan. Especially after I threatened to hang myself if she

Being an expert seamstress, my mother went to every store in town looking over dresses and outraging the store personnel by informing them she was only looking for ideas for a dress she'd make herself. Store personnel are not amused by such announcements.

I must admit, mom came through with a terrific dress. It didn't turn me into a tall, svelte, iantastically endowed woman, unfortunately, but it certainly made me look a lot better than I did in my school

The next big step was an appropriate hairdo.

It had to be piled on top of my head since piling one's hair on top of one's head for one's Prom was de rigueur when I was a senior. Never mind that we looked absurd-it was far preferable to look absurd than to look different from everyone else there, boys excluded.

There were, of course, some girls who went a bit too far. Like a friend of mine who decided to wear false evelashes for the first time in her life. She made a big mistake.

She'd probably have had better luck putting them on if she hadn't been so incredibly nearsighted that, without her glasses, she almost needed a

Seeing-Eye dog. What happened with the eyelash caper was she managed to get them on the general vicinity of her eyelid, but they were stuck on so precariously that, whenever she was in a breeze, they positively flapped.

She hadn't worn her glasses, naturally, and ended up eating her eyelash before anyone

Actually, we all managed to have a fairly good time in spite of the fact that we all had splitting headaches midevening from the tons of hairpins stuck into our scalps. And we all wore new shoes that almost completely paralyzed our feet and our girdles were killing us-we'd all worn girdles of course. That also was de riqueur for Prom

WORLD ALMANAC

U.S. is second only to apple production among the deciduous fruits, with California producing almost half of the nation's crop. The peach is believed to have originated in China. and was brought to Europe from Persia by the Romans. It was introduced into Florida by the Spanish in the 1500s, The World Almanac says. Peaches are related to the cherry, plum and almond.
