Solidarity Suspends Strike After Reaching Compromise

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland's independent Solidarity union suspended a general strike threatened for today and won a government apology for a police attack on union members in Bydgoszcz to settle the nation's worst crisis since the summer strikes.

After seven hours of tense negotiations Monday, Solidarity and Government representatives reached a clock-stopping compromise, hailed by union leader Lech Walesa as a great achievement.

Solidarity said its national commission would meet in Gdanek today to "decide on the general strike's fate" and whether it should be postponed or canceled in light of the agreement.

As part of the compromise, the government admitted that a March 19 police assault on union activists occupying the city council building in the northwest town of Bydgoszcz "was clearly against the rule of solving all conflicts through political means."

The police beatings prompted the independent labor movement against the government in the worst labor confrontation since the Gdanek strikes last August, reviving fears in the West that Warsaw Pact troop maneuvers were a prelude to invasion.

Solidarity also accepted part of the blame for the Bydgoszcz incident, saying it may have been avoided if leaders had not surrounded a union-supported farmers sit-in and a union propaganda campaign.

Phones Overloaded After Shooting

Both Southern Bell and Winter Park Telephone Co. circuits were overloaded for awhile Monday afternoon when it appeared most of their Seminole County customers were on the phone at once trying to pass along news of the Presidential assassination attempt.

Brad Johnson, spokesman for Winter Park Telephone Co. in Altamonte Springs, said all the circuits were busy and due to the high volume of calls in the area, customers had trouble completing calls. The rush which lasted for 1 1/2 to 2 hours, subsided about 4:30 p.m., Johnson said.

The firm serves customers in South Seminole, North Orange and the Orange City-Deltona-Lake Helen area. The southwest Seminole County customers did not experience problems during Monday afternoon's rush.

Woody Wilson, manager of Southern Bell's Sanford office, said the 32 Central Office here was "locked up momentarily, when all available trunk lines and equipment were tied up." He said customers received a slow dial tone for about a half hour after the announcement of the shooting and then things cleared.

Plans were made over area radio stations for people to use the phone only in an emergency due to the tie-up, Wilson said. — JANE CASSELLBERRY

Blaze Of Gunfire Frees All 50 Hostages

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Indonesian commandos smashed their way into a hijacked airliner in pre-dawn darkness today to gun blast to free all 50 hostages and kill four of the five Muslim extremist air pirates.

Eight minutes after scores of commandos launched the assault on the Indonesia Airways DC-9 under the glare of spotlights, the three-day ordeal was over for the 50 hostages, including two Americans.

The leader of the commandos, shot in the stomach, and the pilot, shot in the forehead, both critically wounded — the only victims of the hijackers' submachine gun.

Three hijackers were shot dead at the airport in the battle, which began aboard the airliner and spilled onto the tarmac. A fourth terrorist later died of wounds in hospital.

The fifth hijacker was seized and flown back to Indonesia aboard the same DC-10 Garuda Airways plane that returned the Indonesian hostages and the negotiators to their homeland later in the morning.

The two Americans freed unharmed, Ralf Hunt of Houston, Texas, and Thomas Heischman of Carmel, Calif., were taken to the U.S. Embassy guest house in Bangkok to rest.

Another American, Karl Schneider, 47, of Lubbock, Texas, was recuperating from wounds suffered when he was shot escaping Sunday. He had a bullet extracted from his spine but was expected to recover.

The Garuda Airways domestic flight was taken over Saturday by five men wielding machine guns, hand grenades and dynamite, and threatening to blow up the plane.

The pirates forced the flight to Bangkok, where they demanded the release of the first 20, then 40 political prisoners from Indonesia. The hijackers added a ransom demand of $1.5 million Monday. That and Indonesian authorities played for time to wear down the Muslim extremists.

In the middle of Monday night, the black-clad force of 39 highly trained commandos slipped up to the aircraft and suddenly flung ladders up on the back wings and exit doors.

As they smashed their way into the plane, they ordered everyone to the floor and started shooting. At least one hijacker was killed on the plane and others fled to the runway where sharpshooters were waiting.

A 4-year-old boy seized as a shield by one of the hijackers was killed with only bruises. The child, originally reported dead, was in shock and was unable to join the others on the flight home.

The hijackers were said to be followers of an obscure Indonesian Muslim extremist seeking a rebellion in their homeland similar to the Iranian revolution.

PLO Claims Israelis Repelled

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Sea-borne Israeli commandos struck Palestinian targets along the Lebanese coast north of Tyre in an overnight raid, attacking guerrillas and destroying several vehicles, the military command announced today.

But in Beirut, Lebanon, the PLO said its guerrillas repelled the Israeli commandos as they tried to land troops on Lebanese shores Monday night, killing and wounding several of them in seven hours of artillery exchange.

The Israeli military command said all its forces returned safely but a Palestinian military spokesman said one Palestinian was killed and about five others were wounded in the artillery barrages between the guerrillas and Israeli gunboats and dinghies.

The Palestinian spokesman said the Israeli troops supported by two gunboats and eight dinghies "made several attempts" to land enemy troops near the port of Tyre.

"Our gunners chased them away following their schemes, killing and wounding several of them," he said. The state-run Beirut radio placed the casualties among the guerrillas at only four injured. The Israeli military command said: "A number of vehicles were destroyed and several terrorists hit, north of Tyre, 12.6 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border, the Israeli military command said.

Jewel Heist Nets $1.6 Million

PARIS — An airport sneak thief stole jewels reported to be worth at least 8 million francs, or about $1.6 million, from Mrs. Robert Hocq, mother of the president of the prestigious Cartier jewelry company, it was announced.

An official statement by Cartier said the jewels, stolen Saturday while being taken for loan to personalities at a gala, were worth only 3 million francs, or about $600,000.

But a police spokesman said one 20-carat diamond solitaire alone in the collection was worth 3 million francs. Police said Mrs. Hocq had put her vanity case down beside her and it disappeared when she was checking in at the Charles de Gaulle Airport in Paris.

SENATOR MAXWELL

Maxwell Honored

Sen. Clark Maxwell Jr., R-Melbourne, member of the Seminole County Legislative delegation, will be honored by the Senate as "the most effective first-term senator" when the Florida Legislature convenes in April.

In a special Senate ceremony April 14, Maxwell will be presented the award as part of the annual Allen Morris Awards presentation. The awards, named for the long-time clerk of the Florida House of Representatives, provide recognition of outstanding legislative accomplishments.

"It is one of the single greatest honors which a senator can receive. All of us here are privileged to receive an Allen Morris Award so because we have been voted the distinction by our fellow senators," Maxwell said.

Builder Asks Court Allow Casselberry High Rises

By BRITT SMITH Herald Staff Writer
Seminole-Brevard Circuit Judge Robert McGregor was asked Monday to resolve a confrontation between the Bonaire Development Co. which wants to build several 10- and 11-story residential buildings in Casselberry, and the city, which likes its skyline just as it is.

In a lawsuit filed Monday against the city and three of its councilmen, Bonaire asked the court to order the city to approve the development plan for the proposed Carmel-By-The-Lake high-rise condominium project, and refrain from imposing any further limitations on the 44-acre planned development on Lake Howell.

Named as defendants in the suit are the city of Casselberry and three councilmen — Frank Schutte, Thomas Embree, and John Leighty — who on March 16 voted against the Bonaire proposal.

The plan, defeated by a narrow 3-2 vote, called for the construction of 13 buildings of 10-11 stories each containing 715 living units. A modified plan for 528 units with buildings of the same height was also defeated.

In the suit, Bonaire officials contend that they complied with all provision of the city zoning code which allows buildings up to 100-feet high. They claim their condominium project was approved by the city's planning and zoning commission, the city planner, engineer, building inspector, and police and fire chiefs, before being rejected by the council.

EX-PREACHER CHARGED AGAIN
The number of charges filed against a 36-year-old ex-preacher for allegedly molesting young girls continues to grow.

An additional count of committing a lewd and lascivious act on a child was filed Monday by the Sheriff's office against C. J. Moore, 36, of Sanford, bringing to six the number of such charges pending against the former minister of music at a Baptist Church in Sanford.

The latest charge stems from an incident which reportedly occurred between October and December last year on the south of Sanford, is being held in the Seminole County Jail unable to post bond.

Earnest was first charged Feb. 13 in connection with multiple sexual assaults on a five-year-old girl, investigators say, took place between Thanksgiving and Jan. 31. Earnest was accused of fondling the child on several occasions at the church and the offices of Star-Line International at the Sanford Airport where he was sales manager.

Three additional charges involving lewd behavior with young children were filed March 2 and involved assaults on an 11-year-old girl and two 8-year-olds.

MAN HIT BY CAR, KILLED
A 58-year-old Sanford man was struck and killed Monday night when he reportedly stepped in front of a car on U.S. Highway 17-92 near the Cavalier Motor Lodge.

The body, clad only in a pair of jeans, was spotted Monday floating on some debris in the Chattahoochee River in a sparsely settled area of southwest Walton County by a young man trying out a new motor on his boat.

Late Monday night, after the corpse was brought to the Fulton County morgue, Assistant Medical Examiner John Feged said authorities had "No idea" yet how the boy had been killed.

In other action, the council voted unanimously against a request from Kenneth Beane for an amendment to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan. Beane had asked for a zoning change from residential to commercial for 9.8 acres located on the northeast corner of Reed Bug Lake Road and Winter Park Drive in Casselberry.

Seven homeowners on Winding Ridge Road all spoke in opposition to the zoning change. Several said they were "100 percent" against the zoning change. Increases in traffic and noise, lowered property values for homes, and drainage problems in the area were mentioned as reason for opposition of the rezoning to commercial.

The council also authorized staff to prepare an ordinance to post $50 per racing dog tax on dog track facilities within the city. The ordinance is scheduled for a public hearing on the council on their April 13 meeting agenda.

Emergency repair funds were authorized by the council for repairs of a ground storage tank at Howell Park Water Plant. The tank dome had been damaged by oxidation from excess chlorine when a chlorine line ruptured.

The builders of the tank, Cron Corporation, agreed to repair the tank at a cost of $9,972 to the city. The chlorine line has since been relocated so it cannot damage the tank again.

The council voted to continue until next Monday a public hearing and vote on adoption of an ordinance concerning building signs. The ordinance calls for developers and homeowners to maintain the signs located in public rights-of-way.

The council also received recommendations from Frank C. Broyles, Casselberry building official, who wrote in a letter to the council that the builder was "very well qualified and reputable" and "the city should receive a well-completed project."

The corporation also built Lyman High School in 1977, the Trinity Lutheran Church in Orlando and Continental Circuits Co. in Casselberry. Leona Cadenhead, grants coordinator, said all three buildings were given "excellent performance records."

The building will be funded by two federal grants plus city and county funds. The city of Casselberry and a board of directors consisting of senior citizens will manage the building.

A congregational meal program and other social, educational and recreational activities are planned for the one-story building. Social service agencies for the elderly are expected to contract for office space in the building and in the human revolution.

Miners Split On Coal Contract

United Press International
The nation's 160,000 striking coal miners, voting today on a tentative contract that could reopen mines within days, were sharply divided on whether the pact was a sellout or a victory.

Local union leaders said ratification was uncertain. But United Mine Workers President Sam Church Jr., who campaigned hard Monday in the crucial West Virginia coal fields, stuck to his prediction that the agreement would be approved.

"I think we are going to see it passed," Church said in Charleston, W.Va., Monday night. "I've been predicting 65 percent. Let's hope that's what it is."

As he left a three-hour meeting with miners in Charleston, he said, "I didn't try to convince them. They make up their own minds."

One source said if the contract was approved in either district, officials believe it will be approved nationwide. Church warned rejection would cost the UMW dearly, possibly eliminating widows' pensions and certainly lengthening the strike that began at 12:01 a.m. Friday when the old three-year contract expired. Widows' pensions angered many miners because they were achieved in a trade-off that eliminated industry royalties paid on non-union coal.

"I think we are going to see it passed," Church said in Charleston, W.Va., Monday night. "I've been predicting 65 percent. Let's hope that's what it is."

$3.43 Average Customer Increase

Lawyer Ired Over FP&L Rate Hike

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Public Counsel Jack Shreve is upset enough about a $16 million interim rate increase given Florida Power & Light Co. to consider appealing to the state Supreme Court.

The Public Service Commission voted 4-0 for the rate hike Monday, which will take effect with May's bills and mean an increase of $3.43 cents for the average residential customer.

"I think what they did is way out of line," said Shreve, who represents consumers in rate cases before the PSC.

FP&L, serving 1.5 million customers in south Florida and along the east coast, asked for an interim increase of up to $20 million while the PSC acted on its petition for a $176 million permanent rate hike.

The purpose of interim hikes is to bring a utility up to the minimum profit level allowed in its last rate increase. Only $51 million would be necessary in the FP&L case, Shreve said.

The Supreme Court generally refuses to hear an appeal on an interim rate increase because it doesn't become final until the decision on the full case is made.

"We'll certainly look at this thing closely to see if there is any basis for a Supreme Court appeal now," Shreve said.

A decision on the full rate case will come this fall after the PSC holds public hearings around the state and studies the company's financial situation in depth.

FP&L customers will get refunds plus interest if the permanent rate hike is less than the interim amount.

The Miami-based utility's average residential bill would have been $64.32, based on a higher fuel adjustment charge approved by the commission last week. It now will be $67.75, a $10.66 boost over the current bill.

Voting for the rate hike were PSC Chairman Joe Cresce and Commissioners Gerald Gunter, John Marks and Susan Leisner. Commissioner Katie Nichols did not participate in Monday's meeting.

Earlier Monday, commissioners rejected Shreve's petition for a full-fledged hearing on the interim proposal.

PSC staff had recommended a $75.1 million interim rate hike, saying they thought the commission had to use as a starting point FP&L's average investments and expenses over 1980 instead of end-of-the-year figures as requested by the company.

If the PSC did go with a so-called "year-end" rate base, a $161.3 million increase would be proper, the staff said.

Commissioners concluded they had the authority for the year-end rate base, but made a couple of adjustments resulting in a slightly lower amount than the $161 million.

Shreve said he doesn't believe a year-end base is allowable in an interim rate case.

FP&L argued initially the commission had the option of granting either $20 million or $11 million in interim relief, depending on whether its "test year" for calculation purposes was "historical" — the 12 months of 1980 — or projected — revenue and expenses as they are estimated to be for all of 1981.

It dropped this argument earlier this month and agreed to go with the historical test year. It claimed that to be entitled to $11 million in interim increases under this approach.

The PSC also rejected a motion by Shreve that it reconsider its recent decision to give Tampa Electric Co. a rate increase.

Body Of 21st Child Found Floating In River

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police say a black youth found floating in a river is undoubtedly the 21st victim of the city's child killers, but medical examiners could not immediately identify the bloated body.

The body, clad only in jeans, was spotted Monday floating on some debris in the Chattahoochee River in a sparsely settled area of southwest Fulton County by a young man trying out a new motor on his boat.

Violent Crime Increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Incidents of major crimes rose by 10 percent in 1980 — the biggest 12-month jump in five years, preliminary statistics released by the FBI showed today.

Increases were reported in seven of the Crime Index's eight categories, led by robbery, which surged upward by 20 percent, said FBI Director William H. Webster.

In addition to robbery, the other crime categories that rose in 1980 were rape, 9 percent; aggravated assault, 8 percent; murder, 7 percent; burglary, 14 percent; and car thefts, 2 percent.

Florida IN BRIEF

Murders Up 28 Percent In Florida During 1980

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The number of murders soared by 28 percent in Florida last year, with the 1,387 killings setting a record, according to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

In its annual report on major crime released Monday, the FDLE said 59.6 percent of the state's 1980 murders were caused by handguns, 4.2 percent by rifles and 5.7 percent by shotguns.

The new figure set a record, surpassing the 1,190 murders recorded in the Sunshine State during 1974.

Bone Not That Of Human

WEEKI WACHEE, (UPI) — A bone believed to be that of a third young female buried on a junk-filled tract of rural woodlands is not that of a human, according to anthropologists at Florida State University.

Herrando County deputies have recovered two complete skeletons of females from the homestead of a man serving a 30-year prison term for sex crimes and had believed a portion of a bone found at one location at the tract was the thigh bone of a human.

President's Children Set To Visit Hospital

'I think the American people have got to become angry about crime in this country, about the ability of people to do this to other human beings.'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The four children of President Reagan gathered at the White House today with first lady Nancy Reagan to visit the hospital where their father was recovering from an assassination attempt.

Michael and Maureen Reagan and Patti Davis flew during the night from Los Angeles International Airport to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington. Their motorcade arrived at the White House southwest gate around 11 p.m. Monday.

The president's younger son, Ronald Prescott Reagan, was at the White House with Mrs. Reagan during the night.

Ron, 23, was to have danced Monday night with the Jeffrey II ballet company at the University of Nebraska. He and his wife, Dora, flew to Washington on a chartered flight to join Mrs. Reagan Monday at George Washington University Hospital.

Rage, sorrow and fear were among the initial emotions of the president's family as she heard of the attempt on his life.

"I just completely broke down," a weeping Neil Reagan, the president's 72-year-old brother, said in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif. "I was busted up, real bad ..."

He wept again when he told the president's jewelry as he lay on the operating table, about to undergo surgery for the removal of a bullet lodged in his lung.

"I hope you're all Republicans," Neil Reagan repeated, "Isn't that just like him — to make a joke?"

But anger surfaced along with the tears. "My reaction is fury and rage and frustration and anger, but in this country this kind of garbage still goes on. And it is not going to happen to this president," Maureen Reagan said.

"I think the American people have got to become angry about crime in this country, about the ability of people to do this to other human beings," she said. "And we've got to stop it right now."

"I'm sure he's going to be all right ... God blesses over the best two Irishmen in the Reagan family."

'What's The Matter With Us? America Is Stunned By Reagan Attack

United Press International
Once again a crack of gunfire plunged America into an abyss of shock and disbelief. The shooting of President John F. Kennedy, the wave of repulsion across the country today and jarred loose the searing memory of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Across the land, churches held prayer vigils. State legislatures halted debate for silent prayer. And Americans — with names like Martin Luther King and the Kennedy brothers on their lips — wondered about the society they are living in.

"The nation wakes up that such cruelty continues," former Vice President Walter Mondale said simply.

Stunned entertainers canceled shows, the hours, stock market activity was cut short. Gun control supporters immediately called for more limits on handguns.

Telephone switchboards across the nation were quickly overloaded and people in department stores, bars and airports clustered around television sets, some in tears and others with fists clenched in anger.

The outrage and shock of Americans was duplicated by leaders across the world — from traditional allies like Britain's Queen Elizabeth to new-found friends like China's Premier Zhao Ziyang.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., whose two sons were among the slain, told a hushed Senate gallery filled with tourists and school children, "My family has been touched by violence."

"Year after year you read about it," he said. "My brothers, John and Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Medgar Evers, Alvin Karpis, Vernon Jordan, President Ford and now the attempt on President Reagan."

"I think all of us understand that all these good individuals had a common purpose — to make this a better country. Violence and hatred have no place in our society."

It was a sentiment repeated by hundreds across the land and many wondered why America was plagued by violence and how the president of the United States could be vulnerable to such an attack.

"What in the world is the matter with us?" asked Kansas state Sen. Charlie Angell when he heard the news in Topeka. "How can such a country keep fostering that kind of action?"

In Dallas, the scene of President Kennedy's assassination in 1963, businessman Cathy Oppel was shocked.

"A messenger told us," she said. "He had chills up and down his arm. He said 'The president's been shot.' The worst thing was those were the exact words used to me in the seventh grade when Kennedy was shot."

In Dixon, Ill., Reagan's hometown, some residents burst into tears upon hearing the news.

"I'm praying for him," said Helen Lawton, who had been a neighbor of Reagan in Dixon. "All I could think of was 'No, not again, we need him.'"

Evelle Younger, the California attorney general when Reagan served as governor there, said, "It is a shocking experience to think the president of the most powerful nation in the world is so vulnerable."

On Capitol Hill, congressmen reacted with shock and many said silently, in stunned disbelief, watching television newscasts shortly after the shooting.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, wounded in the same shooting that killed President Kennedy, expressed shock, sadness and outrage at the shooting.

"It is a tragedy of our times that men cannot serve their nation without endangering their lives," he said.

In capitals around the world and at the United Nations, outrage was expressed over the shootings and get-well telegrams poured into Washington from across the globe.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim expressed "shock and dismay" at "this act of terrorism," Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau declared the "insane assault," Britain's Queen Elizabeth said "was very shocking," Chinese Premier Ziyang sent a get-well cable to Reagan.

Former President Gerald Ford, the target of two assassination attempts during his term of office, said in Tokyo that the "incident is very disturbing."

"Obviously you cannot guarantee 100 percent security," Ford told reporters who gathered at his hotel, where he is winding up an 11-month, long-haul world tour.

Report On The 'Welfare Industry'

An expert on welfare reform has observed that it would be technically possible to reduce the cost of welfare programs by 25 percent and still accomplish their purpose.

At the first indication of the smallest reduction in the least defensible program, special interest groups created and supported by the welfare industry will descend on Congress to protest.

What is new is that the old subject of welfare reform is back before Congress with more steam behind it than it has ever had before.

The White House finds it necessary to reconcile its budget policies with a social policy that recognizes the government's obligation to the truly needy.

The study demonstrated that a mother with four children qualifying for aid to Families with Dependent Children was also entitled to benefits from 14 other programs.

The AFDC program and all 14 of the others could be defended as meeting a need, but it is hardly defensible for the government to be providing a non-working mother with a living standard considerably higher than that which a working mother can provide for her children.

As Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker was explaining to Congress recently, the number of families that would lose AFDC benefits under the Reagan budget is a deceptive measure of its impact.

Ever since welfare reform went on the congressional agenda a decade ago, there has been no lack of understanding of what was technically possible to achieve.

SCIENCE WORLD Watching Coal Burn From Inside

By EDWARD ROBY WASHINGTON (UPI) — For many centuries, people have been watching coal burn from a comfortable distance.

Now the most intimate secrets of a commonplace energy combustion process are being observed and filmed with an X-ray analytical technique developed by scientists from General Electric's Schenectady, N.Y., research center.

With the new method, researchers hope to learn things about coal that will lead to cleaner combustion and more efficient ways to convert America's most abundant energy resource into synthetic gas and liquid fuels.

The technique, still in its infancy, has already won rave reviews from coal experts with the British National Coal Board and the West German research equivalent, Bergbau Forschung.

"Our research into this previously unexplored area constitutes part of a growing scientific foundation from which environmentally cleaner and more efficient coal conversion systems could evolve," said Dr. Roland W. Schmitt, the GE vice president for corporate research.

To peer inside a burning lump of coal, GE researchers designed and built a special furnace about the size of a bread box, but capable of reaching temperatures as high as 1,900 degrees Centigrade.

The furnace, equipped with thermocouples for mapping temperatures in the coal and surrounding areas, was then inserted in a CT (for computer tomography) X-ray scanner.

The device that has revolutionized medical diagnosis of the human body since it was introduced at hospitals in the early 1970s.

At a March presentation to the American Physical Society in Phoenix, GE chemical physicist Donald Maylotte showed X-ray photographs and time-lapse movies that show the coal burning.

The films, for the first time, showed clearly how a lump of coal is transformed from a relatively dense solid to a highly porous foam as it starts to break down chemically when heated.

The density change results from "cracking," a term that describes the breakup of a complex compound of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen like coal or crude oil.

"We could see inside the coal and made a movie," said GE thermal and fuel science manager James Conly. "That's never been done before."

Conly said the film showed how the coal first loses humidity and begins pyrolysis with tars vaporized and heavy hydrocarbon compounds breaking up.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS-NEA

OUR READERS WRITE He Returned Gauntlet

The suit which I filed in U.S. District Court in Orlando on March 19 seeking damages for violation of my right to due process of law guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, probably would have been avoided if the commissioners of Seminole County had not flatly refused to hear my complaint almost a year ago concerning the high-handed attitude of the county's animal control officials.

Well, I have news for them! This time I will be heard! A U.S. District Judge will preside at that hearing. If I am successful in having this county ordinance struck down as unconstitutional, Seminole County may be faced with the task of refunding all fines collected by the animal control department during the past several years, as well as paying any damages the U.S. District Court decides is just.

Under the terms of the animal control ordinance, the accused becomes the judge, the jury and the executioner! It is too late now for any arbitration. The commissioners of Seminole County seem determined to ignore the fact that laws are supposed to be made to protect the people, not to harass them. A year ago, when they refused to hear my legitimate complaint, they "flung the gauntlet." Now I have "flung it back!"

That's a question for time to answer. As to whether corporate America actually will pick up the funding slack in the arts, there is no question that Hollywood, one of the nation's largest income firms, is perfectly situated to practice what he is preaching.

Corporate America may be required to do some fiscal adjusting itself early on in the new administration.

Involved is a possible revision of tax policy under such privileges of the executive suite which no longer be exempt. Such corporate status perks as company-supplied cars for personal use, company-paid club memberships, low-interest loans and more, more, that compensate for the high tax rates on high incomes would be treated as income.

It is not a new concept. The Internal Revenue Service has considered it a renegeing possibility for some time but it has also been the subject of some controversy there and elsewhere, most notably Congress.

The latter barred the IRS for a time from taking action, a moratorium that expires this June 1. Unless Congress repeats itself before then, or the administration takes a negative position, the IRS could begin cutting itself in on executive perks.

DON GRAFF Of The Oxes And The Perks

More than a few oxes are being gored these days in the process of trimming the federal budget, as you've probably heard.

Most of the attention is being directed at the heavyweights in the herd — welfare programs, mass transit grants and local grants and the like. One of the smaller fellows, however, is in line for what might be taken as one of the unkindest cuts.

But now an encouraging word from a potential sponsor. The reduction need not have a withering effect on music, literature and the rest of the humanities, according to Ian Rolland, president of the Indiana-based Lincoln National Corp., because the private sector can be expected to pick up much or most of the slack.

Some changes are, however, to be expected. Private donors, both corporate and individual, can be expected to be more critical of the nature and effectiveness of assisted programs than government bureaucracy is inclined to be.

"The people don't buy the argument that the sales tax is regressive. They think it's the fairest tax known to man," Childers said last week. "They're not asking for any taxes, but if they must have one, they would prefer it to be the sales tax."

House leaders say they'll give it a close look if it actually clears the Senate. House leaders say they might go along with a sales tax increase, but not a whole penny increase. A half-cent hike would be enough for everything on the Children's list except property tax relief.

Florida's property taxes already were among the lowest in the country, but they went down twice in the last year because of increases in the homestead exemption.

Property tax relief in conjunction with a penny sales tax increase would be false relief, says House Appropriations Chairman Herb Morgan of Tallahassee.

The state may find itself in another financial bind in a few years. Another sales tax increase would be out of the question, so the Legislature will raise property taxes to provide adequate funding for the public schools as it did in the mid-1970's.

"We ought to save that half a penny," Morgan says.

Graham also has recommended property tax relief, but not with state dollars. His tax relief plan would be subsidized by school districts, which would be giving up $280 million in revenues they would normally get from growth in their tax rolls.

If he's really in favor of property tax relief, why is he opposed to the penny sales tax increase which would fund it out of state coffers, they ask.

Tax Hike Probable, But Will It Be Gas Or Sales?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Legislative leaders appear willing to raise taxes this session, but they're bickering over what would cause them the least trouble in next year's elections — raising the gas tax or the sales tax.

The House leadership and Gov. Bob Graham are insisting on the gas tax route. Senate leaders, generally opposed to new taxes and adamant that government spending be kept to a minimum, are pushing for a penny sales tax plan that would raise twice as much money.

The last time the Legislature raised taxes — in 1977 — it fought through the 60-day regular session and wound up extending one month.

The House and Senate seem to be just as divided this year, so legislators might be unwise to make any vacation plans for early June.

As part of his $10 billion proposed budget for 1981-82, Graham recommended the state start collecting the sales tax on gas — a move adding six cents to the eight-cent-a-gallon present gas levy. The gas sales tax would increase as the price of fuel rises.

Graham did toss a "sweetener" into his complicated tax package, which also includes higher license tag fees for big trucks, a boost in the four cent per dollar sales tax and repeal of some corporate profits tax exemptions.

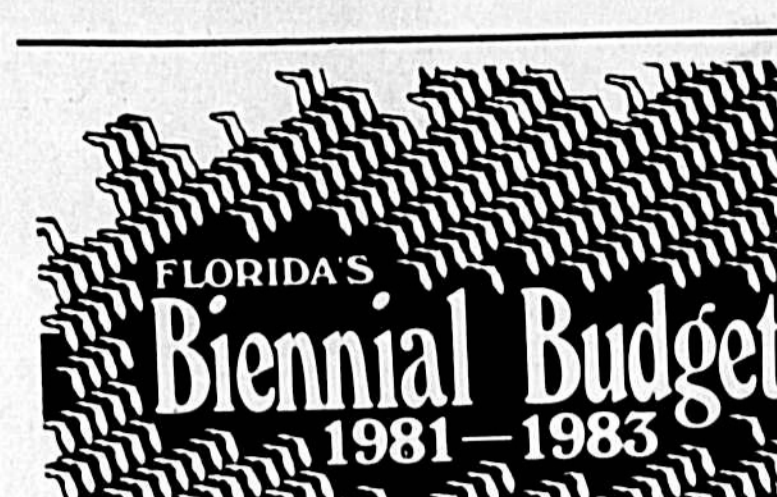

Under Graham's plan, Floridians no longer have to renew the tag on their car or small truck every year. They would buy a tag or renewal sticker at the current price beginning in July of 1982 and it would be valid as long as they owned the vehicle.

House Speaker Ralph Hagan has been advocating a repeal of the gasoline sales tax and exemption of some corporate profits tax exemptions.

But Senate President W.D. Childers surprised Hagan and House leaders when he said the Senate wouldn't pass a gas tax increase of any sort, but probably would approve a penny sales tax increase.

"The people don't buy the argument that the sales tax is regressive. They think it's the fairest tax known to man," Childers said last week. "They're not asking for any taxes, but if they must have one, they would prefer it to be the sales tax."

House leaders and Graham remain skeptical about the Children's proposal.

Florida's property taxes already were among the lowest in the country, but they went down twice in the last year because of increases in the homestead exemption.

Researchers Find Religious Current Sweeping The U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are experiencing a widespread religiousness that is spontaneous and diffuse and has no connection with the "Moral Majority," a wide-ranging new public opinion poll finds.

It is not a new-time religion. It is a spiritual renaissance built on the morality on which this nation was founded, but which ran into rough times in the 1960s and '70s, years of disillusionment which social scientist John Crothers Pollock saw as "rarely witnessed in American history."

Dr. Pollock, a former professor at Rutgers University, headed the research team that compiled the nine-month study released Tuesday, called "American Values in the 1980s: The Impact of Belief." The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., founded in 1846, underwrote the 337-page report done by Research & Forecasts, New York.

Seventy-four percent of all Americans consider themselves religious, 75 percent frequently feel that God loves them, and approximately one half engage in prayer and attend religious services, the study showed. In addition, 26 percent of the population — about 45 million people — consider themselves highly religious.

"I never expect again as a social scientist to see anything as powerful in explaining so much of what Americans do," said Pollock, in an interview. "People are judging things in moral terms... they are using religion privately and in the public sphere."

Pollock, in an interview, said most of the study was done before Ronald Reagan became president. He believes that America's deeply religious sense never faltered, but disillusionment began from the Bay of Pigs on, when as the survey states, people found that "presidents could lie to us on matters of supreme importance to our survival."

"President Johnson's subsequent justification for the deployment of U.S. Marines to the Dominican Republic in 1965 was challenged in our own press, an unusual event. The Tet Offensive in Vietnam in 1968, the publication of the Pentagon Papers, Watergate, and the impeachment proceedings against former President Nixon, produced a level of disillusionment rarely witnessed in American history."

Said Pollock, "We found that the American people admire morality over competence. Leaders liked least (in the study) were Richard Nixon (because of what respondents called dishonesty) and Jimmy Carter (called lacking in effectiveness)."

Most admired were John F. Kennedy and Abraham Lincoln, said Pollock. "Of course Kennedy and Lincoln were martyrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., was among the most admired... he too was a martyr. Only one general was mentioned, Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Connecticut Mutual underwrote the research project because it wanted to find the influences and directions in American thinking and behavior as we moved into the 1980s. The focus on religion and morality developed as the study went along.

High Court Will Rule On Anti-Soviet Trade Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to consider whether longshoremen are violating a contract by refusing to load cargo bound for the Soviet Union to protest the "bully boy" invasion of Afghanistan.

The justices will consider claims by shippers — rejected by lower courts — that the International Longshoremen's Association's boycott on Soviet trade violated labor contracts.

The anti-Soviet trade action, still being pursued by the union, was established in an IILA resolution in support of President Carter's January 1980 announcement of trade sanctions against the Soviets.

IILA President Thomas Gleason declared, "Our people are upset and they refuse to continue a business-as-usual policy as long as the Russians insist on being international bully-boys."

Also today, the justices agreed to review a Kentucky law that forbids candidates from promising they will cut their salaries if elected.

THE BUDGET THE BUDGET

1) Up, Up and Away

Source: The World Almanac, The Conference Board

2) Holding Steady

Source: The World Almanac, The Conference Board

The federal budget can be viewed in two ways, as actual federal expenditures and as a portion of the gross national product. In the first sense, the trend has been steadily upward, sharply so during the most recent years of the past decade.

Taken as a share of the gross national product — the combined value of all goods and services produced during a year — federal expenditures present a different picture. Because the GNP is also steadily rising, and because the distorting effect of inflation cancels out, federal spending has held roughly steady proportionately during the decade.

Union Chief Says Reagan Budget Could Mean 1 Million Unemployed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Communication Workers Union President Glenn Watts assailed the Reagan administration economic program, saying it could add 1 million people to the unemployment rolls.

Watts, speaking to some 1,000 delegates to the union's three-day legislative-political conference at the Hyatt-Regency Hotel Monday, said the economic package was "cold, insensitive, and impersonal."

In his prepared remarks, the union leader warned congressional rubber-stamping of the Reagan package could result in "the worst assault on the nation's poor and needy, its minorities, and even its middle class, since the dark days of the Depression."

Attacking what he called "Stock-managing of the budget" — a reference to budget director David Stockman — Watts said the administration should take a more humanistic approach to the war on inflation.

He said the economic plan is designed to "satisfy a political philosophy which places a minimal value on human needs."

"It doesn't take an economist to conclude that the Reagan plan will require the greatest sacrifice from those least able to make them," Watts said.

"Attempts to eliminate the budget deficit by cutting essential social programs will only weaken the economy, increase unemployment (by up to 1 million) and cause individual hardships," he added.

As an alternative to the administration's plans, Watts advocated an economic recovery program based on jobs and full employment.

Army Fights Chance To Buy Cheaper

WASHINGTON — Loeb Julie is a 60-year-old inventor and businessman, the son of Polish immigrants. His given name means "lion," and right now he is roaring with outrage at the U.S. Army.

The thorn in Loeb Julie's paw is the Army's stubborn refusal to purchase the high-technology, low-cost calibrators his company makes, sticking instead to more expensive, less efficient calibrators — including even outmoded manually operated models.

In the military, improper calibration is far more costly than an ounce or two of pastrami or cheese. Poorly calibrated torque wrenches used to tighten bolts in Army helicopters, for example, were a cause of crashes in the Vietnam War.

Missile Range have attested to the Julie system's greater competence. A months-long investigation by the General Accounting Office turned up not a single error in Julie's books.

And the Hussians want Julie's calibrator. While he was running into bureaucratic brick walls at the Pentagon, Soviet representatives invited him to Moscow, where in 1977 he met with several high-level scientists. The Russians placed an order. But when he got home, Julie decided he didn't want to sell his marvelous machine to the Kremlin, and tore up the order.

"The Julie technology would help the Russians improve the accuracy of Soviet missiles by 10 percent to 15 percent, which is enough to knock out our land-based Minuteman missiles," an intelligence source told us.

Only the Pentagon generals remained unimpressed. They jiggled cost figures and test results to prove that Julie's equipment couldn't possibly be as good as claimed. At one point, he says, they arbitrarily tripled his offering price to make their current calibrators look better.

In desperation, Julie turned to a secret weapon he had in his arsenal: cartooning. Dick Hafer, to produce a comic book telling the JRL story. It is factual, funny — and devastating in its caricatures of Pentagon brass.

The comic book may have hardened the Army generals' hearts, but it succeeded in catching the attention of several influential members of Congress, including Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., and Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y. The investigators are now looking into Julie's charges of Army waste and misconduct.

Last week, Julie acknowledged ruefully that maybe all his troubles with the Pentagon can be traced to the name of his calibrator. It's called "LOOST."

Footnote: A government spokesman insisted the Army's calibration system "is the best anyone has going today... We just didn't have a requirement for what Julie offered."

MVP Isiah Paces Indiana 63-50 Victory

— The tournament's Most Valuable Player — with 23 points and Randy Wittman with 16, the Hoosiers thwarted North Carolina's bid to last win an NCAA title for Coach Dean Smith.

Indiana led 27-26 at the half on a buzzer shot by Wittman from the corner. Then came the charge of the Knight brigade.

The Hoosiers opened the second half with a fury. They went on a 12-4 burst with Thomas hitting four baskets and making two steals. That brought the score to 38-30 and the Tar Heels were all but through.

Thomas, who made 7-of-10 shots from the floor in the second half after going 1-of-7 in the first half, did not think his performance after intermission was the key.

"I thought the most important play of the game was Randy at the end of the half," he said. "I gave us momentum and we went up one point and we reassured ourselves. He did a hell of a job when he hit that shot at the end of the half. I think that was the single most important play."

Wittman said the Hoosiers adjusted to the news of the assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

"It was a tragic thing," he said. "We felt for him and the other people that were shot but we had a national championship on the line and we had to go out and play."

Wittman said the Hoosiers adjusted to the news of the assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

"It was a tragic thing," he said. "We felt for him and the other people that were shot but we had a national championship on the line and we had to go out and play."

NCAA Clash Almost Postponed

— The Hoosiers opened the second half with a fury. They went on a 12-4 burst with Thomas hitting four baskets and making two steals. That brought the score to 38-30 and the Tar Heels were all but through.

Thomas, who made 7-of-10 shots from the floor in the second half after going 1-of-7 in the first half, did not think his performance after intermission was the key.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Rain Washes Away Also Night For Little Nationals

Rain was the winner Monday in Sanford as opening day games in the Sanford Youth Baseball Association's Little National League were washed out.

The Sanford Little American League will open today with three games. Monday's Little National League games have been rescheduled for Friday.

At Fort Mellon Park today, Butch's Chevron will meet Flagship Bank at 5 p.m., while Krayola College tangles with Seminole Petroleum at 7 p.m. Defending Little American League champ Atlantic Bank battles Triple 1.1.1. Trucking at 5 p.m. at Bay Avenue Field.

Both the Little American League and Little National League have been expanded this season to seven teams. Each team will play an 18-game schedule.

Butch's Chevron is the expansion team in the American League, while Sanford Disabled American Veterans (D.A.V.) Chapter 30 is sponsoring the new team in the National League. There are also two new sponsors in the Little American League, replacing George's as a sponsor.

The Sanford Junior League will begin play next Monday.

Gretzky NHL Player Of Week

By United Press International
MONTREAL (UPI) — Edmonton Oiler center Wayne Gretzky, who broke one NHL record and equaled another, Monday was named the Player of the Week for an unprecedented fourth time this season.

Gretzky led the Oilers to key victories over Pittsburgh, Detroit and Hartford and in the process broke Phil Esposito's single-season scoring record of 152 points and equaled Bobby Orr's single-season assist mark of 102.

Others receiving consideration for the award were Dan Bouchard of the Los Angeles Kings and goaltender Mario Lemieux of the Quebec Nordiques.

DePaul's Meyer Wins Award

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — DePaul's Ray Meyer, the nation's winningest college coach, has been named the ninth annual recipient of the John W. Bunn award for outstanding contributions to basketball.

Meyer, who has coached at DePaul for 39 years, will receive his award April 27 at the enshrinement ceremonies at the Basketball Hall of Fame. Meyer was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1978.

In his 39 years at DePaul, Meyer's teams have won 650 games including the 1945 National Invitation Tournament title. He has had 11 NCAA teams, seven NIT squads and

Knicks 'Bull' Into Playoffs

By United Press International
The New York Knicks won 50 games this season but they find another number just as intriguing — the eight straight victories with which Chicago closed its season.

"If we don't put pressure on their backcourt we're in for a hell of a night," Knick assistant coach Butch Beard said Monday in describing the challenge New York will face in its best-of-three NBA playoff mini-series beginning tonight against Chicago in Madison Square Garden.

The series will continue Friday in Chicago and return to New York, if necessary, on Sunday. In the other Eastern Conference playoff game, Indiana is at Philadelphia tonight. The Western Conference series open Wednesday night with Houston at Los Angeles and Kansas City at Portland.

New York had not won 50 games in a season since 1973-74. The year the Knicks won their last title. To even dream of repeating, they must get past the Bulls and their bruising height and strength.

The Bulls' front consists of 7-foot-2 center Artis Gilmore and forwards Dwight Jones, 6-10, and David Greenwood, 6-9 1/2.

At Philadelphia, the 76ers must rebound from a 98-94 loss to Boston on Sunday that cost them a first-round bye and set up their meeting with the Pacers.

Indiana, which also lost its season finale, finished third in the Central Division and sixth overall in the East with a 44-38 record.

Philadelphia, which won't be in the NBA finals last season, defeated the Pacers six consecutive times this year.

Los Angeles took three of five games from Houston during the regular season but the Rockets won the last meeting in Los Angeles, with Moses Malone outplaying Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Portland lost the season series to Kansas City but could have an edge since the Kings just survived a grueling race with Houston and Golden State for the final two berths.

Viridon No Outfielder Stranger

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Viridon is no stranger in the outfield. He played it more than 15 years, his biggest trouble being he was a center fielder in the New York Yankees' chain right around the time a kid named Mickey Mantle was playing it for them.

Once it awhile, the Houston Astros' manager who did such a magnificent job last year getting them so close to the World Series, likes to walk out to the outfield before a ball game and talk with some of his players while they're changing flaps.

He did that one day this spring with his left-handed relief ace, Joe Sambito, who had agreed to a nice new five-year seven-figure contract a short time before.

Bill Viridon had something on his mind. Typically, he used the soft key approach although he didn't beat around the bush.

"You're in a good position financially," he said to Sambito. "You don't have to worry about having a blockbuster year or about piling up big numbers. I think you're a very good pitcher with the stuff you have. I also think now is the time to start thinking about five years from now. You're not younger than that of Sandy Koufax, who wound up his career at 2.87. Only one pitcher now in the majors among those with at least 20 decisions owns a better lifetime ERA than the Astros' classy 28-year-old outpaw and that's Bruce Gooden."

Heeding the advice of Viridon and pitching coach Mel Wright, Sambito is experimenting with his change-up whenever he can find the right situation. He also plans to use it occasionally once the season starts but a jam, he figures to do with his fast ball.

"I'd hate to leave to coach the team one game," he says. "We saw what it meant last season."

Reynolds Appoints Pats' Gibson Lake Mary Track Coach

Lake Brantley track coach Mike Gibson has been named by Lake Mary Principal Don Reynolds as the track and cross country coach for the new school the Evening Herald learned Monday.

Gibson has been a highly successful coach and promoter for the Patriot school since its beginning.

He organized the Brantley Relays, which are the oldest girl relays in Florida.

Gibson, who teaches math and specializes in geometry, was a member of Seminole's state championship track team in 1966 when he was a sophomore at the school.

He was also a student of Reynolds. "You won't find a whole lot of people who weren't a student of Mr. Reynolds," laughed Gibson Saturday.

Gibson joins Rams' football coach Roger Beathard as two of the coaches Reynolds has named thus far.

And that's what Joe Sambito is doing this spring. Working on his change-up, and if he gets it down pat, look out, Viridon wants him to have another pitch. Especially to those right-handed hitters who they won't be able to sit on his fast ball.

Sambito never has had any arm trouble and is always ready to pitch. He is durable, dependable and consistent. He never has gotten that much publicity, but for sheer ability supported by hard, cold statistics, there aren't too many more effective pitchers in the game.

Would you believe Sambito's lifetime earned run average of 2.50 is better than those of either Steve Carlton or Tom Seaver, a couple of three-time Cy Young Award winners? He is. Or that it's lower than that of Sandy Koufax, who wound up his career at 2.87. Only one pitcher now in the majors among those with at least 20 decisions owns a better lifetime ERA than the Astros' classy 28-year-old outpaw and that's Bruce Gooden."

Silver Haired Legislature Election Set

Bobbi Hardy Seeks Re-Election

Representative Bobbi Hardy, representing Seminole County, District 34, in the Silver Haired Legislature, has been honored by several senior organizations with luncheons and buffet dinners.
The most recent one was given by the Volunteer Community Elders group in which she was an active co-worker for several years.
Mrs. Hardy and the other Community Elders went from door to door seeking information about the needs of the elderly, counseling them and putting them in touch with the proper authority that could aid in solving special problems.
Mrs. Hardy is seeking re-election in Seminole County, District 34, as representative to the Silver Haired Legislature. After serving one term as representative she would like to continue presenting first hand information to the Florida Legislature about the priority needs of the elderly. Voting will take place April 14, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
This is a non-political organization. All legislators are volunteer workers. Voting sites are St. Pauls Baptist Church, 813 Pine Ave., Sanford; Knights of Columbus, 2504 South Oak Street, Sanford, and Altamonte Springs Civic Center, 435 Longwood Avenue, Altamonte Springs. For other voting locations call the following number 645-3339.

Options Available For Mastectomy Patients

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for MISSING SOMETHING who said she felt like "half a woman" because she lost both breasts following a bout with cancer:
I went through exactly the same thing, and I can honestly say that I still feel very much like a woman even though I no longer have breast tissue, which is much more important!
It sounds as though your attitude toward meaningful relationships is based entirely on your "boobs." If so, you need a complete reassessment of values. If you are shallow as to feel that your desirability and worth as a woman flow out of the operating-room window, then the malignancy in your head is far more devastating!
BOOBLESS AND ALL WOMAN
DEAR ABBY: May I say something to MISSING SOMETHING? It may comfort her. I just lost a wonderful wife to whom I was married for 3 1/2 years. It was a second marriage for both of us.
When I started dating this lady, she told me that she had a double mastectomy 24 years before. She wasn't sure how this would affect our relationship, but she felt it best that I knew.
I assure you, I loved her and accepted her as she was, and we had a beautiful and fulfilling relationship. Never did I allow her to feel like "half a woman." I miss her terribly. She died at 72. I just turned 69.
DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I, too, had a double mastectomy and like MISSING SOMETHING, I also felt like half a woman. I was only 28 and thought my life was over. Thank God, there was a wonderful surgeon who referred me to a fine reconstructive plastic surgeon. Abby, that plastic surgeon performed a miracle! I now have a beautiful figure - much more beautiful than before.
I met a woman in the hospital who had had a double mastectomy 20 years before, and she only recently knew that this type of operation was available. Please let your readers know about it, Abby. Some physicians don't even mention it.
BORN AGAIN IN MONTANA
DEAR ABBY: Six weeks ago I had a left mastectomy. Association in order to obtain the names of board-certified surgeons. I should add that this type of surgery is not for every woman, but it has done wonders for many.

Academy Awards

Show Didn't Go On Due To Shooting; Reset For Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producer of the 33rd Academy Awards is confident most of the star-studded guests invited to the show will "pull together" and attend tonight's gala, delayed one day by the shooting of President Reagan.

FRANK SINATRA

Still pending is a White House decision on whether a videotape Reagan recorded in Washington several weeks ago will be used as part of the ABC-TV broadcast. Network and government officials were expected to confer on the matter today.

Saying the tradition of the "show must go on," the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences announced four hours after Reagan was shot that the awards show

The ceremony was rescheduled for tonight at 7 p.m. (PT, 10 p.m. EST), the show's producer, Norman Jewison, said.

"We'll have a good show tomorrow night," said Jewison. "It's amazing how people will pull together in times of trouble."

It was only the third postponement in the academy's history, and for the second time in 15 years, the reason was political violence.

The ceremony was postponed for a week in 1938 due to disastrous flooding, and for two days in 1968 because of the assassination of Martin Luther King.

Film stars reacted with shock to the attempted assassination of Reagan, one of their own, an actor turned president.

"I am terribly shaken up by this," said Gregory Peck, who as president of the academy ordered the postponement in 1968 after King's assassination.

Frank Sinatra, a personal and political friend of Reagan's, canceled his remaining three performances at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev. A spokesman for the singer said he was "too overcome by the shocking situation even to talk about it."

Other stars who were expected to perform at the ceremony included: Gregory Peck, who as president of the academy ordered the postponement in 1968 after King's assassination.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, April 1, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 1, 1981
Your material prospects for the coming year look encouraging, provided you don't go off on tangents. Don't involve yourself in enterprises whose future is uncertain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Take nothing for granted in financial matters today, especially if friends are involved. Situations which are running smoothly could take unexpected turns. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Your judgment in career matters today may not be up to par, so be wary about making impulsive decisions. They could prove to be counterproductive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
This is not a good day to experiment with new methods or shortcuts where critical tasks are concerned. Your ideas may be bummers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Don't give up something good going for you if you suddenly meet someone you find very attractive. His or her razzle-dazzle may quickly fade.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Even though you may realize you've made a poor bargain or agreement if you live up to its terms and conditions.

Renewing could hurt your image.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Usually you are very adept at detail work, but today your concentration could drift a bit. Unless you are careful you might make mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Don't take chances today on things which could affect your finances or security. They may look like they're worth a gamble, but further study is necessary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
There is a possibility that you may have to contend with domestic frustrations today. Unfortunately, you may be the catalyst to get the pot boiling.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Most of the time you're very good at sizing up situations quickly, but this may not be one of those days. Don't jump to conclusions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Exercise strict discipline in handling your purse strings today, or you may do a real number on your budget. Spend only for necessities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Your chances for achieving will be greatly lessened today if you fail to believe in your abilities to do so. Don't misuse your imagination.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Important situations today should not be predicated upon your emotions and feelings. A failure to be logical could cause unnecessary problems.

Open Prescription For Tagamet? No!

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an air traffic controller, male, age 53. I've had duodenal ulcers for 25 years (spring and fall type). Neither Proganthine with Maalox, nor a strict bland diet seemed to help. I experienced severe pain and nausea, plus loss of sleep due to pain in the middle of the night. Surgery was suggested and I refused.

Along came Tagamet. One tablet four times a day for 30 days and I became a new person. No pain, no nausea, solid sleep and naturally, a great change in personality. A few months after I stopped Tagamet, the symptoms returned. My doctor put me back on Tagamet and I was normal again. When I quit Tagamet the symptoms returned. I asked for an open prescription for Tagamet and my doctor was reluctant but finally gave me one for a year. I took one pill before going to bed and one before work and I felt great. Now my prescription has expired and again he is reluctant to give me an open prescription. He'd like to help but he is wary.

In view of my history, would you cooperate with a patient like me and allow an open prescription?

DEAR READER — No. Your doctor is concerned because at this date the studies of using Tagamet on a long-term basis for more than eight weeks have not been reported. We don't yet know what the long-term effects are. However, your doctor might be more willing to put you on a low dosage maintenance level if you agree to regular check-ups to be sure you don't develop significant complications, such as a low white blood cell count. He might also agree to a longer term treatment if you agree to gastroscopic studies to see if your ulcer is healed or not.

Tagamet has proved to be a very useful medicine in the short-term treatment of ulcers and continued low dosage has been used to prevent recurrences. There is much more to treating an ulcer, though, that could be important in your case. These measures are discussed in The Health Letter number 15-10, Understanding Ulcers and Acidity, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Careful attention to lifestyle and diet plus the judicious use of antacids and other medicaments may mean you won't need to stay on Tagamet to avoid ulcer symptoms.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 20-year-old male and have varicose veins in the sack of my left testicle. I've had this ever since the age of 15. I would like to know if this is unusual or if you have ever heard about anything like this. I have seen two doctors about it but they said it was nothing to worry about. Can this affect my sex life? What do you suggest I do?

DEAR READER — It is quite common. Some are mild or small and others are quite large. Sometimes they can cause aching discomfort upon standing a long time. The veins to the testicle are important in controlling the local temperature. When the temperature gets too high the involved testicle may not produce viable sperm. With one normal testicle that is not likely to be a problem.

Otherwise a varicocele, as these are called, will not interfere with your sex life. If a man is sterile because of a varicocele, it (the varicocele) can be removed.
