Fisher Bodies are exclusive to Chevrolet in the lowest price field

All that is new, smart and desirable in fine modern coachwork—is represented by the phrase Body by Fisher. And today, the only car of lowest price to offer Fisher coachwork is the new six-cylinder Chevrolet.

Examine this car carefully and you'll discover one evidence after another of Fisher's master craftsmanship—the same long, clean, ultra-modern streamlines you've admired so much on custom cars; gracefully sloping front pillars, with cowl and windshield frame constructed in one smooth piece. Step inside and you'll get many pleasant surprises, for Chevrolet interiors are complete with modern comfort-features and conveniences: a finger-touch adjustable driver's seat; an interior sun visor; broad "lounger-type" seats; and a wide expanse of vision for all occupants. Notice how easily

Chevrolet doors are opened by the new automatic door ejector. See how obviously solid and substantial is the Fisher composite wood-and-steel construction, how massive and well-fitted are Chevrolet doors. Slam them hard, and instead of a metallic noise, you get the welcome solid sound which tells you, "This is the finest of coachwork."

The truth is—Chevrolet and Fisher have achieved in these bodies the best-looking, best-built, most completely equipped line ever to appear in the lowest price field.

They Got Their Man

True to the traditions which have made legendary the expression, "The Mounties always get their man", the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have recently successfully concluded a dramatic seven-weeks' man-hunt in the badlands of the Yukon after Albert Johnson, the mad trapper of Rat River.

The pursuit through the Arctic snow which followed the killing of one Mountie and the wounding of another of the crimson-jacketed riders was one of the most thrilling in the annals of the Royal Canadian police. A posse, composed of a dozen of the finest "mushers" on the force, struggled through snowdrifts with their dog teams, directed on the trail by airplane observation, until it finally overtook the maniac.

Worn down by his strenuous fight through the desolate country, Johnson was about to collapse. But he rallied in one last gesture of defiance and blazed away with wavering pistol, sending two bullets into one of the leading pursuers. The posse then closed in upon him and he was dropped with a rain of shots.

Such examples of determination and performance of duty under the most trying conditions have made the Royal Mounted a feared and respected organization whose influence in deterring crime in a country, mostly wild and bleak, has become widely recognized.

What would crime conditions be in Canada if its famed law enforcement organization had not functioned so excellently? Would Canada be overrun with gangster groups, bandits, and highwaymen? Would she have such a fine record for law obedience if her citizens did not know that no matter what crime they committed or where they went, they would be hunted down and made to pay?

We don't think so. Widespread crime doesn't occur when people know that influence, legal technicalities, and general enforcement inefficiency, are not part of a system to defeat the aims of justice.

Cardozo's Selection

Filling the place left vacant by the resignation of Oliver Wendell Holmes from the United States Supreme Court bench is no easy task, but the appointment of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, a Democrat and a Jew, has been received with widespread approbation with indications that a man of high regard and brilliant legal intellect has been chosen for the difficult job.

In commenting upon Judge Cardozo's appointment, the Christian Science Monitor says:

"An Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of New York State, which in other jurisdictions would be called the State Supreme Court, Judge Cardozo has established a reputation for judicial liberalism and general scholarship comparable to, and perhaps second only to, that of the venerable jurist whom he succeeds. His writings may have less of the epigrammatic quality than those of Justice Holmes, but they lack nothing in breadth of vision or in human sympathy with the underprivileged.

"Like Justice Holmes, he is, as one of his admirers, Mr. Joseph Pollard, writing in the Forum, has dubbed him a 'philosopher-at-law.' To him the law is not a structure of absolute and pitiless logic, though logic has its use. It is not a petrified forest of precedents, though experience has its value. Law must change and grow to meet new complexities of living, yet it must have a degree of stability that men can rely on. It is not an end in itself to be served by mankind, but a means to the ends of justice in the service of mankind.

"In one of his early opinions for the Court of Appeals, Judge Cardozo won acceptance of the innovation in legal reasoning that the manufacturer of a motorcar is liable to the purchaser for a mishap resulting from defective construction, though the purchaser had no contractual relations with the manufacturer, but only with a dealer. This jurist usually has taken the generous side in cases of damages against corporations and in interpretation of the workmen's compensation laws. On the question of the 'yellow dog' labor contract which figured in the Senate's rejection of an appointee to the Supreme bench, the court over which Judge Cardozo presides refused an injunction to a rapid transit company which tried to forbid its employees to join a national union."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN WAS A LEE

MELBOURNE TIMES

Today, when we are celebrating the one hundred and twenty-third anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, it is with more than passing interest that we learn that in all probability Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee, these two great leaders of the opposing forces, were cousins. Abraham Lincoln was a Lee, and William E. Barton, the foremost authority on Lincoln, believes that Lincoln was of the line of Robert E. Lee.

Abraham Lincoln declared himself to have descended from two of what he called "second" or "undistinguished" families of Virginia. Of his ancestry he possessed little knowledge, especially on the Hanks side.

The northern end of the "northern neck" of Virginia, occupying a space of about thirty-five miles, between the Rappahannock and the Potomac, gave to the nation more famous men than any other space of equal area in the United States. Among others there lived the Carters, the Taylors, the Lees, the Lees and the Washingtons. The first Lee in America of whom there is any record was Colonel Richard Lee, who settled across from the "northern neck." His estate, "Paradise" was located in Gloucester County, and if Virginia could be said to have any aristocracy in that early day, Gloucester County was the center of it.

OUR IDEAL CHOICE

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

President Hoover's naming of Judge Cardozo to the Supreme Court is one of those ideal selections for public office which are all too uncommon. One single reason for their infrequency is that ideally equipped men are so tragically rare.

There was but one respect in which the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals did not precisely meet the situation created at Washington by the resignation of Justice Holmes. That was due to accidents of geography. Judge Cardozo comes from a state which has already furnished two members of the present court—Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone. Justice Roberts, of Pennsylvania, hails from the same general region. In contrast, the Pacific Coast is without a representative, and so are the Southern and Southwestern districts.

But this greatest of courts was not founded upon any theory of local representation any more than it was founded upon partisanship. Other things being equal, a President will naturally give weight to questions of geography. Similarly, some degree of political balance is desirable. But the vital points are ability and character. In the present situation the pre-eminence of Judge Cardozo's essential qualifications became plain. In our judgment, the more the available material was studied, we rejoice that Mr. Hoover, after due deliberation and has ignored the lesser considerations or the transcending ones.

It is seldom that a justice ascends the Supreme Court bench and such unanimous applause as greets Judge Cardozo. The reason is not far to seek. He has been a lifelong laborer for a humane and advancing jurisprudence. Yet he has never been tempted to give these tangential minds which would place their pet theories of law.

Service Leagues Of Churches Have Meet

With about 95 communicants in attendance and the Church Service Leagues of Benson Springs, Deland, Orange City, Orlando, New Smyrna, Leesburg, Titusville, St. Cloud, Winter Park, and Sanford represented, a neighborhood meeting of the Church Service League of the Episcopal Church was held on Wednesday at Holy Cross Episcopal Church. The meeting opened with the celebration of Holy Communion at 10:00 o'clock with the Rev. H. Irving Louttit, rector, as celebrant, and the Rev. John D. Wing as assistant. At this service the Bishop gave an address.

Mrs. George W. McElroy, president of the Church Service League of this city, called the business session to order and introduced Mrs. Deane Turner of Fort Myers, diocesan president of South Florida.

During the meeting it was decided to send a message to Mrs. Mann conveying sympathy and remembrance from the body as a whole. Mrs. White, of Deland, diocesan treasurer, stated that assessment funds have come in at almost 100 percent. She asked that a generous contribution gift be made by each parish in May.

Lenten Prayer Service was held at 12:05 o'clock after which luncheon was served in the parish house. Immediately after luncheon Mrs. Turner introduced Bishop Wing, who made a brief talk in regard to Lenten observance, who is now in training at St. Augustine School at Raleigh, N. C., in order to carry on the work of the church among her race. Bishop Wing expressed his appreciation of the assistance rendered this colored girl, which will enable her to finish this year.

Mr. Louttit gave a short talk on the teaching missions to be held throughout the diocese during the month of April, stating that the purpose of the mission is to build a "Kingdom unto God in the United States and throughout the world." He added that he hoped through these missions to "deepen the individual spiritual life" and stated further that the ladies' part in this matter is to take a personal responsibility in encouraging persons to attend the missions.

Mrs. Amelia Noble, diocesan social service secretary, gave an informal talk, using the blackboard to demonstrate the fact that in the future the use of the questionnaire will be very essential in this branch of the work. Mrs. Turner then entered her report as a delegate to the Triennial Convention held at Denver, Col., last September, emphasizing the theme of the convention, "The Kingdom of Our Lord."
