Heathrow Highway Signs Almost Had To Go

By Deans Jordan Horald Staff Writer

Federal authorities ordered the state Department of Transportation to take down unauthorized aigns on Interstate 4 announcing Jeno Paulucci's Heathrow development but backed down after receiving guarantees Heathrow would be put on official state maps.

That was but one aspect of the installation of two large signs and two exit signs paid for by tax dollars announcing the multi-million dollar private development of Heathrow, a process involving a judgment call by DOT officials, a flurry of letters and calls by Paulucci, and decisions apparently based on assumptions

The unwritten criteria that saw approval of the signs included Heathrow's proximity to 1-4, the traffic flow towards Heathrow and projected traffic flow, its postal status, its placement on official state maps, how well the area is known. and federal approval. Sign criteria for other entities, however, such as Seminole Community College, are written and highly detailed. It took SCC several years to get an I-4 sign because of low enrollment, according to DOT records.

While DOT officals say Heathrow met its criteria, a close inspection suggests otherwise. And the Federal Highway Administration, which almost got tough with the state over the issue.

decided to let the Heathrow signs stay after it was guaranteed Heathrow would go on the official state map - and after consideration of the expense involved in taking the signs down.

So how did the under-construction development get 1-4 signs?

The director of the DOT district that oversees Seminole County says the private subdivision was checked out and the signs approved even though there reportedly was in-house disagree-

One element that helped sway DOT was the belief that Heathrow has it's own post office and zip code. That belief may have come from a Heathrow letter to the DOT in February stating

"Heathrow was just granted from the U.S. Postal Service its own postal designation stating Heathrow, Florida U.S.A. 32746." That zip code is actually assigned to the Lake Mary's Post Office, under which auspices Heathrow sells

A place-name is also supposed to be on an official state map before signs go up on 1-4. according to a federal official, yet in Heathrow's case, the decision to get it on the state map came after the fact. Further, federal authorities were told in a letter by Paulucci after the signs went up that Heathrow was not only going on stateapproved maps - which it is, or will be when the See SIGNS, page SA

Police Praise Young Kidnap Victim's Bravery

NAPLES (UPI) - A 9-year-old heiress, praised by police for her bravery, ate sandwiches and fought off ants for 28 hours inside a cardboard box where her kidnappers had hidden her while waiting to collect a $1.5 million ransom.

The ransom was never collected and Amanda Mueller, the great-granddaughter of the founder of the Mueller noodle company, was rescued unharmed Saturday after a five-day kidnap ordeal.

"She may be the bravest 9-year-old I've ever talked to," William Wells, head of the Miami FBI division, said Sunday.

Wells said Amanda was sometimes bound or locked in a bathroom and possibly tranquilized during the first four days of her captivity but she managed to work on her homework and memorize detailed information about her abductors. Four men were arrested Saturday night and charged Sunday with federal extortion and conspiracy charges in the kidnapping. They were to appear before U.S. magistrates today and may face additional charges. Wells said one of the men, real estate developer Peter Farrell. 37, had lost a large sum of money last spring in failed real estate deals and apparently blamed John Mueller. Amanda's

United Way Sets Record $600,000 Goal

The United Way of Seminole County will kick off its 1986 campaign Tuesday at an 8 a.m. breakfast at the Sanford Civic Center, setting out to raise a record $600,000 in Seminole County. But this will probably be the last year there will be a separate local drive.

The Seminole United Way board has voted to celebrate the 100th pirthday of United Way by uniting with Orange and Occeola county United Ways.

If all goes as planned the merger will be implemented in July 1987. according to Bob Walko, executive director of Seminole United Way.

This year's kick-off will feature Miss Seminole, music by the Seminole High School band, encouragement by Lake Mary High School Cheerleaders and a complimentary continental breakfast.

Al Stimac, manufacturing manager at Stromberg Carlson, Lake Mary, is chairman of the campaign. Joseph W. Vaccaro, diector of employee relations and site services at Stromberg Carlson is deputy campaign chairman.

The local board's action followed a vote by the Orange County United Way Board to go ahead with plans for a single tri-county organization. The three United Ways have been coordinating their campaigns for several years.

Walko said the boards have agreed the way to go is one organization in order to be efficient and best meet needs.

"Seminole loses nothing, but will receive more money and special services," Walko said. He said Joseph Wechirle. United Way executive director in Orange County, estimates the merger will cost his organization $1 million. Walko said

ACT Scores Tops In Decade, SAT Scores Unchanged

NEW YORK (UPI) - The nearly I million high school students who took the ACT college admissions test this academic year produced the best average score in a decade, while the 1986 SAT scores were unchanged after

The Scholastic Aptitude Test and American College Testing exams are used to measure the academic abilities of high school students. The test results were announced Sunday, the second year the scores were reported simultaneously.

As usual, the boys beat the girls on both tests.

The average for the nearly 1 million students who took the ACT was 18.8 out of a possible 36 points, up 0.2 points

'There have been small but steady increases in average scores for the past five years and the 1986 score is the highest we have seen in a decade," said ACT President

On the SAT, the College Board said the average for more than a million 1986 test-takers was 431 on the verbal test and 475 on the math section. Each portion has a maximum score of 800. The same averages were recorded

The 1986 national SAT averages are 74 points (47 verbal, 27 math) below those of 1963, when a long slide in scores began and led to the school reform movement.

SAT averages bottomed out in 1981 at 424 on the verbal portion and 466 on math. Until this year, rises of one or two points were recorded annually.

Drug-Test Order 'Flawed'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Drug tests could be falsified and innocent workers could suffer because of a major flaw in President Reagan's executive order requiring such tests for certain federal employees. Pentagon sources say.

Defense officials warn that because a privacy provision of the order calls for employees to provide urine samples without an observer present, drug users could tamper with specimens to elude detection. Drug users in the military, for example, have secretly switched their samples with those of unwitting service members during group testing. Pentagon officials said last

"The White House order is really disturbing to me," said one Pentagon drug program official who asked not to be identified. "Without an observer present, agencies won't be able to tell if they're getting your specimen, the next guy's, or the dog's."

Authorities who have administered the military's extensive drug test program said specimen switches led to the victimization of many innocent soldiers before the Pentagon started requiring direct observation in the early

"Despite their extraordinary richness, tropical rain forests are among the most fragile of all habitats," the professor said in a lecture prepared for the opening of a National Forum on Biodiversity.

The U.N. Environmental Program and the Food and Health Organization have estimated that 23,000 square miles of tropical forest - about the size of West Virginia are being cleared or converted to farm lands each year.

Doctors Vote To Take Drug Tests

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Doctors attending the annual meeting of the Florida Medical Association unanimously adopted a resolution asking doctors around the state to undergo voluntary drug-testing as an example to their patients.

Dr. James B. Perry of Fort Lauderdale, who was installed Saturday as president of the FMA, called the resolution "a symbol of our participation in the efforts to control drug abuse.

Perry succeeds Dr. Luis M. Perez of Sanford as president. Perez was the first Cuban-American to hold that office.

The 300 members of the House of Delegates, the policy-making body for the 15.000-member FMA, meeting Sunday, also urged physicians around the country to follow their lead.

The resolution urges the American Medical Association to adopt a similar policy. AMA President John J. Coury of Port Huron. Mich., has already endorsed the measure, Perry said.

Dr. Robert Windom, assistant secretary of health for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, praised the resolution and called on doctors to take a greater leadership role in curtailing "this devastating threat to human life."

He suggested that not only doctors, but also their staff, should undergo voluntary testing to show their patients they are free of illegal drugs.

Peny announced at the beginning of the FMA's five-day convention in Hollywood that fighting drug abuse and promoting better health care for the elderly and indigent would be his major goals.

The delegates also chose James G. White. a pediatrician from Ormond Beach, as their president-elect to succeed Perry next year. Dr. Kay K. Hanley, of Clearwater, was elected vice president of the FMA. She is the first woman to hold that post, and also was elected to be a delegate to the AMA.

The election concluded the association's annual meeting.

Longwood Considers Budget, Taxes Tonight

By Jane Casselberry

Herald Staff Writer The proposed $5.73 million Longwood budget for the property tax rate of $2.90 per $1,000 assessed valuation, will be on the City Commission's agenda tonight, as well as proposed amendments to the city charter and current budget.

Public hearings on the ordinances flxing the tax rate and making the annual tax levy and adopting the budget will be held before final adoption when the commission meets at 7:30 p.m. in city hall at 175 W. Warren

The proposed tax rate is expected to bring in $957,000 and is 8.98 percent more than the roll back rate of $2.68 per $1.000 assessed valuation. The roll back rate is what is needed after the 7 percent increase in total taxable value is figured in to bring in the same amount of

Alcohol Harder On Women, Researcher Says

CHICAGO (UPI) - Women should be alcoholics drink less, but get sick more." treated for alcoholism differently than men because they become alcoholics at lower levels of alcohol consumption, are nuicker to develop related diseases and drink for different reasons, a researcher

Differences in the metabolism and psychology of women drinkers suggest they may be more susceptible to alcohol addiction and more vulnerable to its effects than men, said Sheila Blume of the State University of New York at Stony Brook. "What it comes down to is women she said.

Blume said women start drinking for different reasons than men, often using liquor to overcome shyness, and are more likely to become closet drinkers. Also, women typically seek treatment for alcoholism because of family or health problems, while men cite problems on the job or with the law as motivating factors.

Further, even though they drink less, women are quicker to develop alcoholrelated diseases, including liver disease, obesity, malnutrition and high blood pressure. Blume said. They also have a higher mortality rate than male drinkers.

Blume, in a review of research on women alcoholics, said there are several reasons why women need less alcohol to become addicted, but weighing less is not one of them.

"Women, even if they are alim, have a greater proportion of body fat and less body water than men regardless of weight, so alcohol gets into their system less diluted," she said. "Women are also about twice as likely if they have a drinking problem to have a combined problem with other drugs, and that causes them to drink less."

Doctors treating alcoholic women need to be aware of these differences. Blume said. Alcoholic women need more support for their low self-esteem and doctors need to look for other drug addictions. which will cause alcoholic relapse if untreated, she said.

Government researchers also reported today that Antabuse, a drug that has been used to treat alcoholics for nearly 40 years, is not any more effective than counseling in keeping alcoholics "dry."

One of two men who ran when a Seminole County sheriff's deputy approached at about 1:20 a.m. Saturday on Southwest Road, Sanford, got away. The other was nabbed and charged with assault on a police officer and resisting arrest after he allegedly tried to pull away from the deputy and allegedly swung at him.

The deputy hit the man on the left side of his head with a flashlight and the man was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, before being booked into fail.

Judge Seeks State Supreme Court Post

A judge in the Seminole-Brevard Judicial Circuit is vying for a position on the state Supreme Court in anticipation of a vacancy.

Two vacancies are expected to occur in January because of mandatory retirements. but only one will be open to those qualified statewide.

Adkins' seat can be filled by an applicant from any part of the state. Boyd's vacancy must be filled from an applicant in the area of Dade and Monroe counties. The state constitution requires that five of the seven justices come from each of the five appeal districts.

First Amendment Must Be Guarded

Religion is masquerading as science in Louisiana public schools.

Under pressure from Protestant fundamentalists, the Louisiana legislature has passed a law requiring that students be taught the Biblical version of creation along with the scientifically proven law of evolution. Those who do not share the religious 'fundamentalists' faith in the literal word of 'the Bible will be required to learn it in science

" To establish as government policy a particular religious view, in this case creationism, is to compromise both freedom of religion and scientific discovery.

The First Amendment to the Constitution expressly forbids, as the only guarantee of religious freedom, the official establishment of any one set of beliefs over others. To safeguard scientific discovery, 72 Nobel Prize-winning scientists have asked the Supreme Court to declare the Louisiana law unconstitutional.

The scientists argue that the scriptural account of creation, which holds that the earth and all its species were created in six days, rests on "hypotheses that are testable and have been proven false" by scientific

"Teaching religious ideas mislabeled as science is detrimental to scientific education," the scientists said in a brief to the high court. "It misleads our youth about the nature os scientific inquiry... and strips our citizens of the power to distinguish between the phenomena of nature and the supernatural articles of faith."

Such clashes between religion and science have punctuated history since before Galileo was summoned in front of the inquisition to defend his view that the earth is not the stationary center of the universe. In more recent times, truth lost out to the forces of ignorance in the 1925 "monkey trial" that convicted John T. Scopes of the crime of teaching evolution to his Tennessee biology

The lesson to be learned from the Louisiana and scientific, can only be assured if the government bars the establishment of any one faith over others. We are confident the Supreme Court, when it rules on the case, will affirm the most basic principle enshrined in the Constitution: Separation of church and

Artistic Benefits

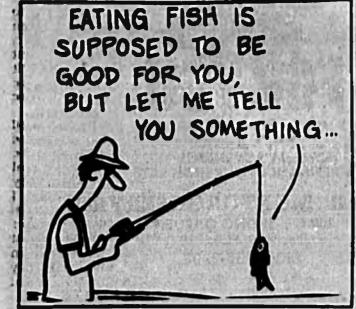

There was an odd asymmetry to the exchange of citizens between the Soviet Union and the United States recently. Just as Tass, the Soviet press agency, was announcing that Edward L. Howard, a former Central Intelligence Agency employee, had been granted asylum in the USSR, two Russian high-wire artists sought and received similar protection in the United States.

In the cold national security equation of the Earth's greatest rivalry, the United States came up short-handed. No one could argue along those grounds that two circus perform-Hers could offset the loss of a spy with Howard's knowledge of U.S. intelligence activities inside the Soviet Union. Even marvelous ballet dancers, such as Mikhal Baryshnikov, who fled the USSR for life in th neWest contribute little to national security. But they often add splendidly to what might be called the quality of life through their artistic 'achievements.

With few exceptions, the flow of citizens between the USSR and the Western democracies is dissimilar. Teachers and artists — writers, dancers, actors, musicians — seck the freedom a Western nation offers. Their defection usually follows years of planning. Westerners who spy for communist countries, however, flee in the opposite direction no sooner than they have to. Often they wait until just before they are to be caught because they don't want to surrender their

Some people will always betray their country for one reason or another, but their lives in new countries are seldom glamorous. The West, though, gains creative thinkers and performers. That can only benefit its citizens and enhance its attractiveness

Don't Hesitate, Answer Nancy's Telephone

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A young college however, when reporters asked why a briefing student interned at the White House this summer. Her job was mainly clerking in the various West Wing offices. But to be on the safe side she was advised that if two telephone calls come in at the same time - one from the president and the other from the first lady - it would be best to take Nancy Reagan's call first "because she's running the White House."

In the past, White House officials would put their briefings "on background," meaning not for attribution, when the subject was fairly sensitive. These days, Reagan press aides put nearly all briefings dealing with foreign visitors and foreign policy "on background."

Reporters prefer, however, to have the information attributed to the source and they usually question why a briefing cannot be on the record. Most of the time the question is ignored. Frequently, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes will say "because that's the way we want it," or, "that's the way we do business.'

An aide came up with a new reply recently.

could not be on the record. "Because we want to lie," he quipped.

In an interview for NBC's "Meet the Press," Mrs. Reagan was asked whether her children had ever used drugs.

"Oh, when they were in college, they tried marijuana, yes," she replied. "That was it and they didn't like it?" Marvin Kalb asked.

"That was it," Mrs. Reagan replied. "That was back in the '60s, when we were going through a very rough time."

If the Reagan children did their experimenting back in the '60s." they were more rebellious than had been expected. Daughter Patti was 17 years old in 1969. Son Ron was only 11.

Since the spring of 1985, the president has made 20 political trips to 19 states and may do about 20 more appearances in the next few weeks leading up to the Nov. 4 midterm election.

The President and Mrs. Reagan will head for

California in the final days of the campaign to stump for GOP candidates and to vote in Solvang, a Danish community in the Santa Ynez

Deferring power to a strong chief of staff is not new with this administration. Over the years, it has been more the rule, rather than the exception. President Dwight D. Eisenhower with the greatest reluctance passed the word to Sherman Adams, his chief of staff, that his acceptance of gifts, had made him a liability in the White House.

President Richard Nixon let H.R. Haldeman rule the roost and bar the gate to the Oval Office - probably regretting to this day that he did not exercise more control over his Palace Guard.

But presidents are supposed to adopt Harry Truman's maxim. "The buck stops here." and in the end they must assume the responsibility of the office to which they are elected. Their top appointees often rule the roost and make decisions that are costly for a president who permits himself to be shielded and isolated.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Secretary of Education William J. Bennett gave a speech on the same night last week that evangelist Pat Robertson indicated that God wants him to run for president in 1988.

Robertson said he would wait to see if 3 million registered voters would sign up to back his campaign, but added, "Let me assure you that deep in my heart. I know God's will for me in this crucial decision."

Bennett spoke on the role of religion in the American democratic process, tying his address at the University of Missouri to the 199th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. What he had to say didn't get as much attention as Robertson's closed-circuit TV speech, but it bears examination.

The first argument that Bennett advanced, complete with historical background and quotations, was that the men who wrote the Constitution and other early American leaders embraced religious values in nation.

"All of the founders intended religion to provide a moral anchor for our liberty in democracy." Bennett said. He called religion "a wellspring of the civic virtues that democracy requires to flourish," promoting "hard work, individual responsibility and concern for community and country."

Bennett criticized "secularists" who object to any reference to religion in public life, but, in the second point of his argument, was just as tough on "sectarians" who "assert, wrongly, that the Constitution was designed, first and foremost, 'to perpetuate a Christian order.'"

He paraphrased an earlier statement by Robertson (without naming him) to the effect that "Christians feel more strongly about love of country, love of God and support of the traditional family than do non-Christians," and added:

"This sort of invidious sectarianism must be renounced in the strongest terms. The vibrant families and warm patriotism of millions upon millions of non-Christian and non-religious Americans give it the

An Unwilling Magnet

BONN, West Germany (NEA) -This country is used to refugees. It took in millions after the last war -Germans displaced from territories seized by Poland and the Soviet Union and masses of East Europeans fleeing the new order in their homelands. It has continued to receive a steady stream of East Germans.

But there is something new about the refugees of late. The Federal Republic is experiencing an influx of Asians, Africans and even a scattering of Latin Americans.

The newcomers take advantage of a clause in the West German constitution that guarantees asylum to any foreigner claiming persecution at home. This clause is causing a major political crisis.

The numbers of Third World refugees jumped from under 40,000 in 1984 to more than 70,000 last year. This year, they are expected to top 100,000 - half of all the refugees taken in by Western

The flood has led to demands to change the constitution to limit the right to asylum. The demands, in turn, have led to a split within the governing coalition. The Bavarian wing of the dominant Christian Democrats is leading the charge for change. It says the asylum clause makes the country a "magnet" for those throughout the world who see the chance of a better life here.

The junior coalition partner, the Free Democrats, is opposed to any Bavarian spokesmen assert that one out of three refugees arrives in the country with a valid visa issued through the foreign ministry, a Free Democrat preserve. The Free Democrats reply that the Bavarians are "playing with numbers" to avoid the real issue.

That is, most agree, how to distinguish genuine political refugees from those looking for a better economic deal, which should sound familiar to Americans concerned about our own influx from countries to the south.

· The situation is further complicated by the fact that half the refugees enter via Berlin. They arrive in the east part of the city and - with the help of East German authorities, West Germans charge cross into West Berlin. From there, they have access to the rest of the country. What particularly galls West Germans is that Asians and Africans are allowed to cross the hated wall that remains a barrier to Germans in their own country.

Border control in West Berlin might be an answer, except that it would violate the position of the Western allies that the city is legally Chancellor Helmut Kohl is caught in the middle, and in some danger of being crushed politically by the extremes. He, and therefore the government, is against a constitutional change and for measures to tighten existing refugee-control procedures.

Kohl has called an all-party conference - the Social Democrats and the Greens also oppose constitutional change — to try to find common ground. What he and others seeking a compromise most fcar is that the refugees could become the dominant issue in the campaign for the January elections.

Meanwhile, the problem becomes ever more costly. Refugee care is now a $1.3-billion budget item. And that's not the worst of it. To spread the burden around, the government is locating refugees throughout the country, often in very small towns, according to a quota system. Communities are expected to accept refugees up 0.1 percent of the local population.

A Clue In Primitive Vertebrate

By Gayle Young UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - The lamprey is a rather unremarkable looking aquatic creature with one remark. able characteristic - it is the only known vertebrate with a spinal cord that regenerates when severed.

Although researchers doubt the human spinal cord could ever do the same, they are studying how the lamprey readjusts to its regenerated spinal cord in case a medical breakthrough restores function in human victims of spinal cord inju-

"It's highly doubtful a severed human spinal cord could grow back together," said one such researcher. Avis H. Cohen of Cornell University. "But it seems likely we will be able to bridge the gap in a severed human cord, either chemically or electrically, and that's where the lamprey can help us." When a spinal cord is severed, the nerves that are no longer attached to the brain still remain in good shape and working order, said Cohen, a neurobiology researcher at Cornell who has been studying lampreys since 1977.

Scientists across the country are discovering ways to bridge spinal cord gaps, using either chemicals or electrical impulses that will trigger the lower nerves into action.

But once that connection is made, there is no guarantee that the newly triggered nerves will be able to sort the signals into precise directions for walking, sitting and running.

"This sounds like a real stumbling block but my research indicates that may not be the case," Cohen said.

Cohen has shown that a lamprey also suffers from a mix-up of connections when its severed spinal cord grows back together.

"There is a gap that the healthy nerves grow over, hooking up to nerve connections on the other side," she said. "But there is no way the nerves can hook up in exactly the same way they did before. In fact, when you think about it, the odds are about a million to one."

Cohen has severed the spinal cords of lampreys in laboratory tests and monitored the nerve functions after regeneration. She said her studies have shown a revived lamprey does not receive the same pattern of nerve-triggering impulses it did before the cut.

Yet after regeneration, the lamprey — which looks like an cel - can still swim normally, " she said.

PLO Rebuilds Its Forces In Lebanon

And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON - The Palestine Liberation Organization's diaspora is ending. Just four years after they were driven out of Beirut by the israeli army and dispersed to the four winds, armed PLO guerrillas by the hundreds are slipping back into Lebanon, hoping to take up their terrorist operations at the same old

The humiliation of PLO chief Yasir Arafat and his 15,000-man army seemed complete in September 1982, when they acrambled aboard ships that took them disarmed and helpless — to safe havens in Tunisia and other Arab countries. Their reluctant hosts made it clear that they would tolerate no nonsense; it was quite a comedown for a military force that had held much of Lebanon in its grip for years.

We first reported two years ago that PLO extles were drifting back to Lebanon. "The reconstruction of a Palestinian state within Lebanon ... is only a question of time," warned one confidential intelligence report

According to our intelligence sources, PLO fighters, equipped with small arms and more, have continued to infiltrate their old Lebanese stamping grounds. It will be only a matter of time, intelligence experts told our associate Lucette Lagnado, before the PLO rebuilds its old bases and resumes its terrorist attacks on Israel down the coast.

All of this is mightily embarrassing to Israel, of course. It means the controversial invasion of Lebanon was all for naught. The war not only cost Israel dearly in blood and treasure, but its Arab enemies were able to paint the Jewish state as an aggressor, and a heartless one as well. The massacres in the Palestinian refugee camps outside Beirut. by Israeli allies, were roundly con-demned even by friends of Israel.

About the only consolation the Israelis can draw from the PLO's return to Lebanon is that the Syrians, too, are unhappy at the development. Syria achieved dominance in Lebanon after the PLO's ouster, and this is now challenged once again by the returning guerril-

For that reason, Lebanon's Christian president, Amin Gemayel, welcomes the PLO's return as a counterweight to the Syrians, Rashly perhaps. Gemayel hopes to use the PLO for his own purposes.

Small groups of PLO exiles have been sneaking into Lebanon in fishing boats between midnight and dawn. Once on land, they head for their old hangouts in Sidon and Tyre, where they are welcomed as saviors by Palestinians in the refugee camps.

Some top PLO officers are reportedly among the inflitrators. They are intelligence and logistics experts whose assignment is to lay the groundwork for rebuilding the PLO's old bases and organization within Lebanon.

"The PLO needs a platform from which to operate," explained one intelligence analyst. "They need freedom to do what they want, and only Lebanon can offer that. There is no government in Lebanon, no control, nothing."

The PLO is still badly fragmented.

throughout the Middle East. Even inside Lebanon the organization is divided, with several thousand PLO guerrillas in league with Syria against Arafat's attempt to exercise control.

But our sources are convinced that Arafat's returning loyalists will try to reclaim their old turf, with their sights set most keenly on West Beirut. If they can hold their own against rival Moslem militias like Amal, the PLO infiltrators will establish a base that can then accommodate the thousands of compatriots still living in exile. The Palestinian resurgence comes at a time when the Moslem terrorist groups already entrenched in Lebanon have been expanding their operations in Europe and the Near East. Perpetrators of the synagogue attack in Istanbul, the bombings in Paris and the hijacking in Karachi are believed to have been operating from bases in Syrian-controlled Lebanon. What the world doesn't need is additional terrorists using the unhappy country as their headquarters.

Lack Of Offense Besets Everyone But Lake Howell

Five out of the six Seminole Athletic Conference high school football teams are suffering from the same malady. Don't check their deoderant. They haven't needed any so far because they're been very inoffensive.

Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Oviedo and Lake Brantley are finding the way to the end zone is not paved with gold. All five teams lost last week and combined for a grand total of 27 points.

That is pretty sad.

The only team in the SAC that has shown any type of offensive consistency is the Lake Howell Silver Hawks. In their first game against Edgewater, the Hawks tallied 27 points and had a running attack that was extremely potent as Cornell Rigby and Nate Hoskins both had big games.

Last week, the Silver Hawks turned to quarterback Mark Wainwright as he went 10 for 12 good for 100 yards in a 19-10 win over West Orange. Wainwright threw a pair of 10 yard touchdown passes to Bill Wasson.

Much of the Lake Howell success can be attributed to their huge offensive line. Often difference so far for Lake Howell. Lake Howell will travel to ond-ranked Miami was idle. Seminole this Friday night.

The Seminoles played better offensively against Titusville, half behind fullback Curtis Rudolph, Quarterback Jerry Governali threw the ball well but five passes were dropped. One, by Herb Hillery, was missed in the end zone. Seminole's shuttling of Dwayn Willis between quarterback and halfback hasn't produced much from the speedy senior at either position. Governali needs to take hold of the QB position for the Tribe to perk up offensively.

The Lake Mary Rams were were upset by DeLand, 13-6. The Rams (1-1) have really only had one legitimate scoring drive this year. Although the Rams defeated Apopka, 19-7, in their season opener, one touchdown came on a kick return while another touchdown was set up by a fumble deep in Apopka territory. A field goal and a safety accounted for Lake Mary's other five points.

In their loss against DeLand. the Rams engineered a 15-play, 88-yard drive that was capped by a John Curry's eight-yard touchdown run.

The Rams did muster 226 yards in total offense but that doesn't mean anything when you can't capitalize. Lake Mary turned the ball over twice on two interceptions thrown by quarterback Shane Letterio.

Letterio is off to a shaky start as he is 9 for 23 with two interceptions, no touchdowns, and 69 yards. Letterlo is a quality player, though, and has the ability to come back from his two poor games.

The Lyman Greyhounds have looked anything but impressive in their first two games. The 'Hounds were lucky to escape with a 7-6 win over usually poor Boone. The 'Hounds fumbled four times giving Mainland a

Bucs End 3-Year Road Drought

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) - Steve Young only looks good on the scoreboard.

Young engineered Tampa Bay's first road victory in three seasons Sunday, a 24-20 victory over the Detroit Lions.

'Steve Young played, overall, satisfactorily,' Tampa Bay coach Leeman Bennett said after the Bucs won away from home for the first time since winning at Minnesota, 17-12, on Nov. 6,

"He didn't throw the ball particularly well," Bennett said after Young completed a mere 6-of-15 passes for a bare 39 yards, "but he made the big plays when he had to."

Tampa Bay has won just three games in two seasons and Young was the starting quarterback for two of them both against Detroit. The former Brigham Young and USFL star led the Bucs to a 19-16 overtime win over the Lions last year.

"I haven't thrown this few passes since

Rookie Nathan Wonsley ran 22 yards three plays after the first turnover and Young scrambled 9-yards to score eight plays following the second.

Wonsley, filling in at tailback for injured James Wilder, scored on a 55-yard jaunt in the third period and Donald Igwebuike kicked a 33-yard field goal to pad the Buca' lead to 24-6.

Detroit quarterback Eric Hipple completed a Lions' record 31 passes on a person high 46 attempts to record his second 300-yard game (318 yards). He lamented the Lions didn't get going until

'We have to get angry at the start of the game," Hipple said, "like we did at the end. It's not that we're blase. But we have to play games mad.

We have to say, :I've got the ball and they're not going to get it." Hippie said after guiding Detroit to its only two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, both on short runs by James Jones.

"After we got kicked a few times," he said, "the guys started responding. But we have to respond earlier.

"But we didn't enter the game that way - and we have to," Hipple said. "I think the fact we're 1-2 will make ua angry again."

The 88-yard run by Wonsley, who gained 138 yards in 18 rushes, was the longest by a Tampa Bay back since Wilder's 75-yard romp in that win at

"I was pleased with Wonsley and Ron Springs," Bennett said. "They did a tremendous job filling in for Wilder. Wonsley obviously will get a chance to play more when Wilder comes back."

Lady Seminoles Improve Times

GAINESVILLE (UPI) -Whatever happened in the Alabama locker room at halftime Saturday should be packaged by Coach Ray Perkins.

The fourth-ranked Crimson Tide looked lethargic on offense in the opening half against Florida and they were fortunate to trail just 7.0 as Jeff Dawson missed two field goal attempts for the Gators. Alabama took the ball for the opening possession of the second half ... and forgot to give it back.

'We really executed well in the second half," said Bobby fellow sophomore halback David Casteal for three second-half TDs in Alabama's 21-7 triumph. "All the backs ran hard and gave but it was easily inside the great second effort.

With two of its top five runners not on hand, Seminole High didn't figure to do too well in the team standings. So coach Cindy Branum told her runners to work on improving and that's what they did in the Winter Haven Invitational Saturday at Polk Community College.

Seminole finished in 11th place with a team score of 290, but six of its seven runners improved on their times from last week's Lake Mary Opener.

Cross Country

In Saturday's meet, Seminole was without number two runner Viola Posley, who was out of town, and number four runner Ginger Skees who is out with an injury.

Leading the way for the Lady Tribe was junior Shownda Martin who finished sixth individually with a time of 12:23, 10 seconds better than her time at Lake Mary. The individual champion was Brandon's Sherry Driggers who finished with a time of 11:50 and was the only competitor to break 12 minutes.

Seminole's second finisher was freshman Nadrianne McGill who came in 55th at 14:38 which was slower than her time of a week ago.

Also in the top five for the Lady 'Noles was Sherry Burgess (61st at 15:03), Michelle Pearson (76th at 15:56) and Julia Roberta (92nd at 17:11). Those three runners dropped over a minute off their times from Lake Mary.

Lyman Boys Swim Off With 6th As Clearwater Meet Draws Elite

The Lyman High swim teams visited the Clearwater Invitational held in Clearwater Saturday. The boys team came away with a sixth place finish and the girls finished 13th.

Lyman was the only conference team to compete in the event and coach Don Clark said the Greyhounds represented Seminole County well in the state-caliber meet despite not having two of its better performers.

"Top teams from both 3A and 4A were there Saturday" Clark said."We were without Charlie Rose, who has been out of town all week, and Richard Ott injured himself the night before the meet and wasn't able to participate.'

The boys, though, were boosted by the efforts of Tom Mooney who finished fourth in the 100 backstroke and freshman David Bandy came through by winning the consalation bracket in the 500 free with a time of 5:02. Chuck Reinighaus also took eighth in the individual medley for the Greyhounds.

The Lyman girls were unable to place any swimmers in the finals Saturday and they hope to bounce back Wednesday when Lyman will host Seminole and Oviedo at the Lyman pool. The meet begins at 4 p.m. - Mark Blythe title this season.

Lyman will travel to Lake Brantley this Friday to take on the Patriots.

Add Oviedo to the list of offensive inefficiency. The Lions have scored two touchdowns this year: a blocked punt recovered in the endzone, and a 45 yard flea flicker.

The Lions have not had a scoring drive. Three plays and punt has been a solid description of their offensive unit so far this beason.

The reason for the Lions inef-'fectiveness is simple. The offensive line is not blocking. In last week's 14-2 loss to Seabreeze, Sandcrab linebackers John Morrell and John Miles were barely touched as each had 10 solo tackles.

Willie Gainey is a suberb tailback, but without the offensive line blocking Gainey has gained many of his yards on his

Oviedo (1-1) had a total of 89 yards last week. Oviedo is idle this week.

The Lake Brantley Patriots (0-2) have played fairly well on offense. Backup quarterback Greg Ebbert, who is replacing the injured Jason Lanham, did an admirable job last week in the Pats 27-0 loss to Evans.

Ebbert went 7 for 15 good for 106 yards. Johnnie Griffin gained 47 yards against Evans while chalking up 65 in the Pats 16-14 opening game loss to Oviedo. The problem with Griffin so far this year has been his fumbling. Griffin has fumbled twice, one killing a long Brantley drive, the other resulting in an Evans touchdown. The problem with the Pats also lies in the offensive line. Until the Brantley offense lineman start to block, the Pats will have a tough time offensively.

Traditionally it takes an offense unit longer to jell than the defense. The SAC defensive un-Its have played very well, but the defense can't carry the team.

Until the offenses start to develop, don't expect any barnburners in the SAC.

Jones 1-Hits Astros

United Press International

Padres Manager Steve Boros. who is building toward next year, may have stumbled on to the cornerstone of his future pitching staff...

Jimmy Jones pitched a onehitter in his major-league debut Sunday to lead San Diego to a 5.0 victory over the NL West leading Houston Astros. "We're not going too far, and we want to get a look at some of our young pitchers," said Boros. whose team is tied for last place. "Ed Wojna and Ed Vosberg have looked good in previous starts, but this one is going to be tough to top."

The only hit allowed by Jones. a native and resident of Dallas. was a third-inning triple by Astros pitcher Bob Knepper.

"It was nice to be able to perform in front of my family." sald Jones, 22, who faced only one batter over the minimum while striking out four. "I was pretty nervous and just trying to get by the first hitter, and stay calm after that."

Jones, recently recalled from Las Vegas of the Pacific Coast League, said having his minor league teammates behind him was comforting.

"Everything seemed to be working for me, and nothing seemed to be working for them (Houston)," said Jones, who was backed by 15 hits. "It was the first game I've ever had without walking a hitter. I had the Las Vegas infield and catcher on the field with me, so everything felt

San Diego took a 3-0 lead in the first on a RBI single by Jerry Royster and John Kruk's tworun single. The Padres padded their lead to 5.0 in the fifth. Kevin McReynolds ripped his 23rd homer, and Randy Asadoor singled in a run.

Despite the loss, Houston remained 10 games ahead of San Francisco and Cincinnati in the NL West with 13 games remaining.

Reds 8, Dodgers 4

Phillies 7, Mets 1 At New York, "Starvin" Marvin Freeman allowed one hit over seven innings and Gary Redus highlighted a four-run fourth with a two-run homer to lead the Phillies. Freeman, a 6-foot-7, 183-pound right-hander making his second major-league start, boosted his record to 1-0. Cardinals 7, Expos 2

At Montreal, Andy Van Slyke hit an inside-the-park home run, and Tim Conroy struck out a career-high 11 in seven innings to lead the Cardinals. Conroy, 5.9, allowed seven hits and walked three. Jay Tibbs, 7-9, was the loser. Vince Coleman of St. Louis collected his 100th stolen base of the season.

Tim Raines singled and doubled and drove in a run to raise his average to .330. He trails Tony Gwynn (.333) by three points in the N.L. batting title race. Gwynn was 0 for 3 Sunday but was 4 for 5 Saturday. Raines was 1 for 4 Satur-

Giants 8, Braves 2

At Atlanta. Mike Krukow pitched a six-hitter over eight innings for his 18th victory, and Robbie Thompson went 5 for 5 with an RBI to lead the Giants. Krukow, 18-8, won for the fifth straight time. Doyle Alexander fell to 5-6.

Cubs 3, Pirates 2

At Chicago, Leon Durham crushed his 20th home run of the year leading off the bottom of the seventh to help the Cubs complete a sweep of their three game series. TV Torment: Mondays Are Bad To Bears

CHICAGO (UPI) - The NFL need not worry about the invincibility of the Chicago Bears as long as there are games played on Monday nights.

Mondays, you see, haven't Allasta been kind to the defending Dallas Super Bowl champions throughout their history. It's as if the late George "Papa Bear" Halas, a founder of the NFL, was saying the game was meant to be played on Sunday.

Chicago went through its entire 1985 season unbeaten on Sunday. Its only loss was to (Licher Hall. 4:14 Miami 38-24. The 24 points equalled the most Chicago has ever scored on Monday night, yet it lost.

Monday Night Football hasn't been kind to the Bears. Maybe it's the curse of the Cubs and Wrigley Field: thou shalt not play at night under the lights.
"In the past, we just haven't performed too well on Monday night," said veteran safety Gary Fencik. "A lot of times we've stunk up the joint."

The Bears will enter tonight's 9 o'clock contest at Green Bay with a 5-12 record in 16 years of Monday Night Football. They are 0-9 on the road on Monday night. No other NFL team has a worse Monday night road mark. Only Buffalo, the Giants and the Saints have worse record on Monday night.

"Maybe the law of averages is about to catch up with us," says Bears' coach Mike Ditka.

Ditka growled at the NFL earlier this year for scheduling the Bears three times on Monday night and then forcing them to play on the road the following

"The Monday night thing is disruptive enough without having to come back and travel the next week," echoed Bears' general manager Jerry Vainisi.

Chicago did beat the Packers on Monday Night Football last year. It was the game that helped vault William "Refrigerator" Perry into the national limelight.

But it has been a "little shop of horrors" for the most part for the Bears. There was a 40-7 loss to San Diego in 1978 that was one of the worst games the Bears have played in the last decade. Eric Hipple, hardly a household name outside of Detroit, went wild on a Monday night in a 48-17 rout by the Lions on Oct. 19, 1981, when he threw three TD passes and humiliated Chicago. Miami also whipped the Bears 34-3 in 1971 at the Orange Bowl.

When one speaks of Monday night success, the first franchise that comes up is the Oakland-Los Angeles Raiders. In 28 appearances, the Raiders are a sparkling 24-3-1, the best in the NFL.

The Raiders are 12-0 at home; compare that to a mediocre 5-3 ledger for the world champion Bears.

The Bears haven't played the Raiders on a Monday night yet. Good thing for Bears' fans.

Other teams have flourished playing before the Cosells. Merediths, Michaels and Giffords. The Colts are 8-4, signaling more a record of times gone by. Kansas City is 7-4, including a 6-1 record on the road.

Miami is probably right behind the Raiders, which should have been a warning to the Bears that they weren't going to go undefeated last year as long as they had to play in the Orange Bowl on Monday night.

The Dolphins are 21-10 on Monday night, including 17-3 at home.

Some teams that fans might suspect would also be Monday night favorites haven't done so well. Dallas' earlier 31-28 win over the New York Giants to kick off the 1986 season of Monday games put the Cowboys only one game over the .500 mark at 15-14 on Monday. The Cowboys 29 appearances are second only to the Dolphins for most appearances on Monday night.

Washington is 16-10, including 12-2 at RFK Stadium on Monday night.

Some teams have suffered like the Bears in Monday night

New England, the Bears' victim in Super Bowl XX, is 2-11 and 0-7 on the road. New Orleans, which doesn't seem to win much on Sunday either, is 1-6, which may explain why the Saints don't get invited much to the ABC party on Monday night. The New York Giants are also finding the hex on Monday night - they are just 3-10-1.

French Group Defies Government To Urge Anti-terrorist March

PARIS (UPI) - The right-wing National Front party, ignoring a government ban on public demonstrations. urged supporters to go into the streets today to protest a recent spate of bombing attacks.

Police seized 33 pounds of explosives and about 30 detonators over the weekend hidden in a forest about 120 miles east of Paris, a police statement said.

Prime Minister Jacques Chirac told leaders of political parties last week public protests would be banned for the near future while the country takes stock of a wave of bombings that has killed eight people and injured more than 150.

Jean-Marie Le Pen, the leader of the National Front, said Sunday he would go ahead with a planned evening rush-hour march through downtown Paris "because it seems to us that government policy on the struggle against terrorism has clearly not been established."

"This terrorist offensive is not the first and not the last. The government has no excuse if it finds itself in a state of unpreparedness and ingorance." Le Pen said.

Police officials, who have declared the march illegal, said in a statement today that policing the demonstration would distract police from trying to prevent more bombings and "will have grave repercussions" for traffic in the capital.

Traffic figures and projections were also mentioned by officials in justifying the signs though the DOT did not have as of Friday a traffic count figure for the Heathrow exit of I-4. They, do. however have a projected traffic flow for that exit in the year 2011. And If Heathrow is the primary destination of westbound traffic at the interchange, that is not supported by county traffic figures which only measured the traffic west of Heathrow, which meant the cars counted would be going elsewhere. That leaves one criterion left, Heathrow as a place that is geographically recognized (that is recognized by local residents as a place). The state map engineer, a federal official that oversees 1-4 and the general manager of Rand McNally maps all said they had not heard of Heathrow until recently. And a Michigan-based map company with an office in Orlando, which reported it was going to put Heathrow on the map, called it a township in its announcement and spelled it incorrectly.

Local DOT officials say the sign request was routine and that no pressure was brought to bear on the office to get them up.

The sign saga began Feb. 11 at ceremonies at Heathrow with the opening of a postal "contract The unit, officially called Heathrow Contract Branch, was attended by Harry Penttala, regional postmaster general for the southern region of the United States. He was also in the area to inspect the Lake Mary post office, present awards to postal employees and review Lake Mary's request for a bigger post office building. Mail was delivered at the Heathrow opening in showmanship style by a man wearing a jet back-pack. Since the opening, mail addressed to Heathrow, Fla., with the Lake Mary zip code will be delivered to Heathrow by Lake Mary, according to the postmaster.

Steverson went on to tell Young that Heathrow will someday contain 4,000 home sites, 26 neighborhoods, an 18-hole champion golf course, a 40,000-square-foot country club, a racquet club, and will be the 1986 hosts of the Royal Grand Prix Tennis Tournament.

The belief that Heathrow had its own post office was not a major factor in the decision but it is something that is looked favorably upon, said a traffic engineer who worked on the request. H.L. Wynn Jr. Wynn also confirmed that the sign criterion is not written down but rather approvals are granted on the basis of "engineerning judgment."

He said Heathrow's selfidentity, its future growth, and its proximity to the westbound reasons for the signs.

"Heathrow is going to be more than a subdivision community," Wynn said. "People on the interstate system are going to be looking for it." He said that justified the signs on the interstate.

Benedict said his office did not receive any pressure to put up the signs.

The four signs, at a cist of $3,500, were approved April 28 and went up July 25. In letter dated Sept. 3. Paulucci tella Carpenter he had been in communication with William Abel, general manager of Rand McNally, cartographic division, in reference to putting Heathrow on the map. And what becomes important, is on what map. He had already told Carpenter in a previous letter that Heathrow was going on Rand McNally's commercial maps.

According to Paulucci's Sept. 11 3 letter, he said Abel advised him that "we (Heathrow) were exit of I-4 were the prime too late for their Road Atlas but from hereon anything that Rand McNally prints insofar as the United States and/or Florida is concerned will show Heathrow. Florida on the map.'

Abel denies he said that.

Abel said if a place is put on an official state map, it might make their maps, which could also happen if the place has a post office. Incorporation also sways them, he said — and he said he thought Heathrow was heading in that direction though a Heathrow official recently denied -

Home Education Act

32 Seminole County Students Registered For Home Study Program

By Carol Gentry Herald Correspondent

On Aug. 25 school bells sounded across Seminole County. Bright yellow buses, missing during the summer months, appeared and public and private school students returned to class.

According to Seminole County School Board records. 32 students will not see the inside of a classroom this year. Due to an amendment to state laws defining educational policies, parents now have the choice of educating their children at

Through intense lobbying led main'; hy religious organizations, on July 1, 1985, the Florida Legislature passed and the governor approved the Home Education Act. This amendment consists of two pages of guidelines that allow for the wide variety of interpretations.

According to this act, the mother, father or legal guardian responsible for the education of the child is not required to have any prescribed educational training. If they do, they must list their teaching certificate number. The parent only has to notify the superintendent of schools within 30 days of the student's non-attendance at the public or private school of their intent to establish and maintain a home education program. The notice must be in writing and include the names, addresses and birth dates of the involved children.

When the superintendent receives this letter, with the exception of a yearly evaluation, the public school system is no longer responsible in any way for the educational process of the child. Parents now establish the curriculum, become the teacher and absorb the cost and procurement of all equipment, materials and text books used for instruction.

According to Assistant Superintendent for Instruction, Marion Dailey, there are basically three categories of Seminole County residents who wish to teach their children at home. Leading the list are those parents who for religious reasons, do not want their children to attend public schools. With the older students, many are potential dropouts in "holding pattern." They have no interest in attending high school and are just waiting until they turn 16 years old so they can either quit school or sign-up for Seminole Community College's GED Program. The third category consists of those unusual circumstances that are the exception to the rule. In one such case, a father's job requires him to travel all over the world. Rather than be separated as a family unit, they chose to educate the children themselves as they traveled.

The home education participants are required to meet certain criteria mandated by law. They are directed to keep an individual student portfolio of records and materials. An annual educational evaluation that documents and student's educational progress commensurate with his or her ability must be filed yearly with the district school board office. The wording of this law leaves the interpretation of these important evaluations open for debate or individual judgement. It fails to provide a definite definition of portfolio so almost any type of student work could be included. Unless there is a progressive record on file at the school board office of student IQ or achievement test scores, the child's "commensurate ability" is not known by school officials.

The Seminole School System contacts each parent in this program and informs them that their child is eligible and where they may go to take the Nationally Normed Student Achievement Test and the State Student Assessment Test. It is up to the parent whether or not they with to take advantage of these cost free tests that would show the education level of their child.

The law states that if the school officials do not feel that the child is receiving a proper education. they must notify the parent in writing that such progress has not been achieved. The parent then has one year to provide remedial instruction to the student.

"In reality;" Mrs. Dailey said. "We can do nothing for two years."

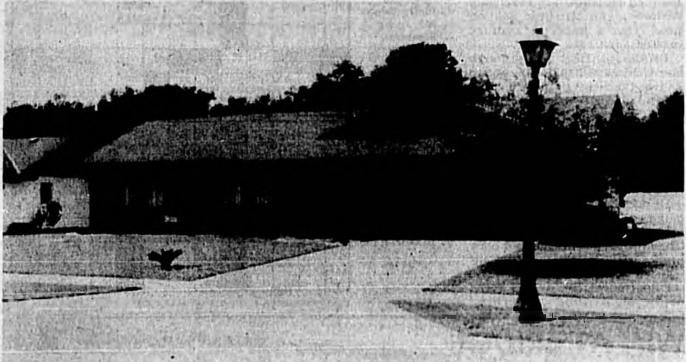

Many times the parents find that the task is too difficult and they decide to return their child to the public school system. Once again they must file a written notice with the superintendent terminating the home education program and re-enroll their child in school.

When the child returns to the public school system in Seminole County, it is the sole decision of the school's principal or his designee as to what grade level the child is placed. Education level is considered the important factor not just the child's age.

According to Secretary Edle McCready, who handles the massive amount of paperwork for the home school program, as of Aug. 1, 11 parents had failed to turn in any type of evaluation for the last school year. A letter was then sent to remind these parents of their responsibility and as of Sept. 4, only three had replied.

"Of all of the children in the home school program," said Mrs. McCready, "Judging from the portfolios and test scores I receive from the parents, I feel that possibly eight are getting a good education."

The act allowing the home education program by law must be reviewed in July of 1987 by the legislature. At this time it will be decided whether it should be changed, left the way it is or repealed.

Sanora Yard Of The Mon

Sanora Homeowners' Association grounds committee selected the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gray, 126 Krider Road, as "Yard of the Month" for September. According to the Facilities and Grounds Committee chairman Levelle Thompson, the yard has an attractive layout and plant selection. The blue vase juniper used as foundation plants are brought to life by color of the hibiscus in bloom at the front entrance and the pink and white vinca at the garage corners. An oak on one side and a maple on the other, used as accent plants, will be functional as shade trees, Mrs. Thompson said. A lone sago palm marks the driveway entrance.

Obfuscated Diagnosis Still Means Surgery

"disc herniation and ligather this happens, deep crevices or mentous hypertrophy, with poor clefts form in the tonsils, the filling of the S-2 root sleeve, right exposed lymph glands on either side." Could you explain what side of the throat. Over time, this means?

DEAR READER - I think this means that the doughnutshaped structure (disc) that separates the second and third sacral spinal bones (low in your back) has herniated (shifted position) and may now be pressing on the second sacral nerve as it exits from the spinal cord.

The root sleeve is a short cuff that envelops each nerve that passes from the spine. If the disc protrudes and kinks a sleeve, the nerve covering will not fill with material that is injected during a myelogram. Hence, the doctor will conclude that the disc has slipped to one side and is causing pressure on a nerve; this may give you pain in one leg.

I am not sure how to interpret the comment on "ligamentous hypertrophy": this would seem to indicate that one of the supporting spinal ligaments has swollen or grown.

In any case, it seems clear that you have a problem with a herniated disc. Surgery to remove or correct it may be your best option.

DEAR DR. GOTT - The AIDs virus has been found in saliva. What precautions do dentists take to sterilize their equipment between patients? I'm especially curious about the little suction hose that's used to remove excess saliva.

DEAR READER - Although the AIDS virus has been found in saliva, there are no documented cases of AIDS infection being spread by mouth contact. Most dentists sterilize their instruments by steam or chemical means. I suggest that you ask your dentist what method he or DEAR DR. GOTT - What

WIN AT BRIDGE

What does it mean when you double the opponents in their freely bid game contract, if you and your partner did not enter the auction previously? That anything else is very important.

There is no special significance when you are the opening leader. Jackson's Doc Advises Against Oxygen Chamber

By Bob Webster

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pop music star Michael Jackson wants to slow the aging process by sleeping inside an oxygen chamber, but his doctor says the singer "has many bizarre ideas" and has been told to abandon the idea.

Jackson, 28, was photographed inside the hyperbaric chamber while visiting the Michael Jackson Burn Center at the Brotman Medical Center in Culver City.

The photo appeared in the National Enquirer.

But Jackson's personal physician scoffed at the

The Anaheim company that makes the chamber Jackson was pictured in said it turned down the singer's request to purchase one of the $65,000 chambers.

'No one could possibly sleep in that chamber," said Judy Johnson, product manager for Sechrist Industries Inc.

The company also issued a statement saying there is no medical evidence that use of the chambers prolongs life or maintains youthful

Innocence Meets Evil: MacLachlan Stars In 'Blue Velvet'

By Frank Sanello

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - The stars of most epic films that flop don't stay stars for long. Quick! Who had the title role in the remake of "Flash Gordon"? Can you name the star of the recent movie version of "The Lone Ranger"?

Who played Bo Derek's "Tarzan"? Kyle MacLachlan considers himself very fortunate. He played Paul Atreides, the Messianic hero of the epic-science fiction film "Dune," which also happened to be one of the epic bombs of 1984. "I looked like a blow-dried Ken doll in 'Dune.' MacLachlan says.

The handsome 26-year-old actor is almost relieved that "Dune" flopped because Dino De Laurentiis had him under contract to star in four possible sequels. "I would have been Paul for the next 20 years." he says, flinching at

The slightly built MacLachlan has done more than escape oblivion. He's proven that he can play something other than a "blow-dried Ken doll" in outerspace.

"Blue Velvet" was directed by David Lynch, who also directed "Dune," but it's hard to believe the two films were created by the same person. Co-starring Isabella Rossellini, Dennis Hopper and Laura Dern, "Blue Velvet" is a deeply disturbing, hard-to-watch story about innocence confronting evil in a small town. Rossellini (Ingrid Bergman's daughter) plays a masochistic nightclub singer who is regularly beaten by Hopper in horrifically graphic scenes. MacLachian is a sweet college student who finds himself shocked and fascinated as he's drawn into their sadomasochistic relationship. bringing Laura Dern's even more innocent high school student along with him.

"Blue Velvet" is so kinky it makes "91/2 Weeks," last spring's S&M extravaganza, seem like a Disney film.

Feminists will not be pleased by the repeated abuse Hopper inflicts on Rossellini, even though MacLachlan is treated almost as roughly.

"It was a worry," MacLachlan recalls. "While we were shooting we were always saying, 'I wonder how women are going to react to this picture.' It's an exploration of evil and what evil does. All the sadomasochistic scenes were necessary to make that explora-

The hardest scene to shoot for both MacLachlan and Rossellini involved the actress standing stark naked outside his character's house. "It was a real tough night because there was no way we could close the set. We were shooting in a real neighborhood in Bible Belt country. People were shocked. The neighbors were standing around watching. Isabella is a real trouper," he says.

It's been reported that Lynch, who also directed the cult classic "Eraserhead" and "The Elephant Man," cast MacLachlan in both "Dune" and "Blue Velvet" because the actor looks like a younger version of himself. But MacLachlan doesn't see any resemblance and says Lynch looks like a young Jimmy Stewart.

Currently, the actor shares a duplex in Hollywood with his look-alike brother Kent, 23, a struggling actor. and Dern, whom he met and fell in love would shock you."

with on the set of "Blue Velvet."

A native of Yakima, Wash.. MacLachlan landed his first film role starring in "Dune" at a Scattle audition that was part of a nationwide search. "Blue Velvet" is only his second film. and he doesn't have another job lined up, although he says he auditions for just about everything in his age range. He even read for a supporting role in "Top Gun" - but did not receive a part.

His dream role, he says, would be playing Cyrano de Bergerae on stage, a strange choice for someone with his male model looks. MacLachian disagrees. "I sort of think of myself as ugly on the outside, and a wonderful person on the inside. I was an ugly child. I could show you some pictures that

A Whale Of A Birthday; Baby Shamu A Year Old

ORLANDO (UPI) - The 950-pound baby nudges up to an admiring visitor and flashes a toothy smile, unaware that her amazing existence is overshadowed by a 58-year-old mouse living just down the road.

The mother, who carried the baby 17 months. accepts a hug offered in belated congratulations on the historic delivery.

But she closely watches the stranger moving about her daughter's $15 million nursery, as if the wispy human - her species' only natural enemy - might harm her 9-fout baby. Already the subject of intense scientific research, network television features and worldwide news coverage, Baby Shamu is credited for sending Sea World of Florida into a year of record attendance. She remains the only killer whale successfully by squirting out a single candle on a special The nation's No. 4 theme park, based on last year's attendance figures, is planning a special birthday party in her honor. It is to begin at 6:21

born in captivity and will mark her first birthday

p.m. Friday, the precise moment of her birth last The party won't be as spectacular as the one to be held next month at neighboring Walt Disney World, to which thousands of reporters have been offered free trips to let the planet know Mickey Mouse has been in Florida 15 years. Sea World - whose corporate goals are education, research and entertainment - is actually charging people to attend Baby Shamu's birthday gala. For $100 party goers can be

'godparents," or for $35 "friends of the family." Proceeds are earmarked for the Arnold Palmer Children's Hospital and Perinatal Center under construction in Orlando.

Sea World officials, like curator of animal behavior Dan Blasko, say Baby Shamu's foremost importance is scientific. She is watched eight hours a day, and her actions are documented for research papers.

"Behaviorally, we are breaking new ground every day." Blasko said in an interview at the 6-million-gallon tank in Shamu Stadium, where the calf lives with her 11-year-old mother, Kandu, and two other adult killer whales. "More than anything else, she has raised questions about our assumptions of killer whale development," Blasko sald. "We are developing a curve for the growth rate - physically and psychologically - that's never been done before." At birth, Baby Shamu weighed 350 pounds and measured 6 feet from snout to fluke. She was expected to nurse for about a year but seems to be weaning quickly, now preferring fish - about 50 pounds a day.

"She's not spending nearly as much time nursing as she was just a couple months ago. And we don't really know for sure how much milk she is actually taking in versus how much of the nursing is just habit," Blasko said.

The calf has her full complement of about 46 permanent teeth. And although killer whales are known to attack the larger blue whale, sea lions and even polar bears, there have been no attacks on humans working with the whales. Blasko said.

Marine biologists are especially interested in knowing how much of the killer whale's behavior is instinctive and how much is learned. One reason for past falled births in captivity is mothers haven't bonded with calves and have become confused at the bables' attempts to nurse.

So trainers taught Kandu, who is 17-feet long and weighs about 5,000 pounds, how to nurse during the final months of her pregnancy. The baby was conceived at Sea World's San Diego park, and is named after her California father. Kandu was brought to Florida in a chartered jet. Baby Shamu sometimes performs the same leaps. fluke "waves" and back swimming her adult companions were trained to do. Yet Blasko said none of the baby's tricks were taught by "It's all learned behavior from the mother and the other whales," he said. "More often than not she learns through mimicking. She's mimicked them almost from day one." Baby Shamu spends about a quarter of her time away from her mother or with the other sea mammals in her tank, and grabs three-minute whale naps throughout the day.

"The nature of the animal is one of self confidence, because they are not preyed upon in the wild," Blasko said. "They are at the top of the predatory chain.'

"There is a certain atmosphere of group unity," Blasko said of the whales. "But it's like a family." "We're part of it too," he said, beaming like a first-time parent. "They relate to us as though we're killer whales. That's the way we've set it "So what you have here is a kid, childlike, relating to all the adult whales around her. She's at a kid's age where she can do whatever she wants and still get away with it." For now, Baby Shamu is the undisputed star at Sea World. With killer whales known to survive up to 25 years in the wild, the bulk of zoological knowledge in this field should continue to grow

"She'll continue to learn, but I don't know how much we'll be able to teach her," Blasko said. "She'll probably teach us a lot more."

David Butcher, corporate director of animal behavior, with killer whales Kandu and Baby Shamu at Sea World. Baby Shamu celebrates a birthday Friday.

Sanford Code Enforcement Process Up For Changes

the state of the s

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

The cumbersome Sanford code enforcement review process is in for major streamlining through ordinance amendments city commissioners enthusiastically endorsed at an unofficial work session.

The revisions will be formally adopted in regular session, commissioners said.

The amendments, developed by City Attorney Willam Colbert, were termed "the answer to some of our problems" by City Commissioner John Mercer.

Under the present review process, code violations can continue to exist several months after first cited by city building inspectors.

Commissioners have taken a dim view of the situation, saying it ties the city's hands when it comes to expeditious action against blatant code to the enforcement stage that much

The proposed code enforcement amendments do not alter the city's fine do not diminish the rights of cited system, which can run up to $250 a property owners, which is key to the day. The fine represents a lien on the cited property, granting the city foreclosure rights after six months of non payment.

The revisions can reduce from three months to one the period it usually, takes before a property owner can be demanded to take action on a violation or face a fine, Colbert said.

Both city Building Inspector Dan Florian and Code Enforcement Board member Bob McKee endorse the city's avoiding legal challenges of its code enforcement policies, said Colbert.

Presently, the review process involves a series of administrative steps before the code board can require a property owner to take action on a cited violation or face a city fine to goad him into action.

This is because the building inspector must present his findings to the board in regular session and it rests with the board to judge whether these findings constitute a code violation. If a violation is determined, the property owner is contacted and a hearing set for the board's next regular session. At this meeting, if the violation still exists the owner is given a certain period of time to correct the deficiency. If the violation has not been corrected by the board's next meeting, another compliance deadline can be set, and a fine levied if it is not met, Colbert said.

Under his revisions, "The violation is heard immediately," Colbert said.

The city building inspector presents his findings to the board as an already determined violation, and contacts the property owner for attendance at this session. On that night, the board grants the owner a compliance deadline and sets a fine that will be imposed if the deadline is not met, Colbert said.

However, the amendments do not rule out the property owner's approaching the board to request an extension of the deadline if he can prove his inability to comply is due to extenuating circumstances. Colbert Colbert's revisions are combined with commissioners having given the code enforcement board a green light to use the city's enforcement laws to maximum potential for those judged to be biatantly ignoring Sanford's building. health and safety standards.

Colbert's efforts have apparently capitalized on the July 1 adoption of legislation affecting local government code enforcement boards.

His revisions focus on the law's granting greater authority to city building inspectors, which, in addition to granting them the right to declare violations, also enables them to request code board meetings, rather wait until regurlarly scheduled session to present their findings.

Sessions requested by inspectors would be to address findings of "really dangerous conditions," such as an open sewage area the property owner refuses to take immediate action on, Colbert said.

The revisions are also hoped to have a chilling effect on repeat offenders, Colbert said.

In cases of past citings, offenders already on the books for a particular violation can be subject to immediate fines if they allow the same violation to develop again, he said.

A 120-Day Supply

U.S. Keeps Extra Oil For Emergencies

WEEKS ISLAND, La. (NEA) - It takes about 80 cents worth of gasoline to get from the main road to this out-of-the-way wetland on the Gulf Coast of the country. That's at today's average price per gallon. It may soon cost more and more, however, and thus the trip could become increasingly important. Weeks Island is a Strategic Petroleum Reserve site. It is one of six facilities of the kind in the United States, four in Louisiana and two in Texas. The federal government stores oceans of crude oil at the

Crude Storage

The Strategic Petroleum Reserve was originated in 1975, when Congress enacted the Energy Policy and Con-servation Act. The earliest proposal was to store 150 million barrels of crude oil. that figure was later revised to 500 million, and it was finally lifted to a total of 750 million by 1991.

The first oil was stored in 1977, but technical problems and political bickering threatened the program. President ened the program. Pres Carter suspended the storage plan in 1979 when he placed as embarge on frantam oil, and thereby created a tight market in which the price of crude rose to new highs. The 503 million barrels in lace have cost a total of $18 billion. The tab has led so government officers to call for an end to the progress. President Rangan has decided to continue storing the petroleum indefinitely, however, and it's being deposited at a rate of 50,000 barreis a day.

installations to assure an easy supply in the event of a market crisis

The program was initiated in response to the first market crisis, in 1972. The Arab states cut off part of the American supply then, precipitating a quadrupling of costs.

That choke hold was not eased until early this year, when oversupply cut the price of oil by half and gasoline by one-third.

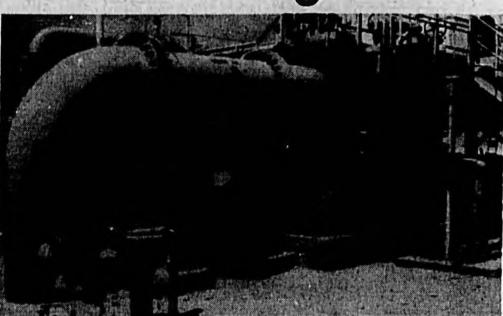

Now there are indications the marketplace is on the verge of yet another change. The price of oil is rising again. The Arab states have agreed to trim their exports by 4 million barrels a day, and the Soviet Union has joined the effort to force petroleum costs up at least $4 or $5 a barrel.

There's no telling what might happen after that. Certainly the Arabs would like to keep prices rising for good. Some analysts believe that inflation may set off another energy panic, and U.S. officials would be obliged to do what they could to stabilize the situation.

That means they would probably tap the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. And many more people would be traveling to Weeks Island and the rest of the storage sites. The nation has stashed slightly more than 503 million barrels of crude fossil fuel at the six locations, and more oil is going in daily.

One seventh of the total is kept at Weeks Island. It's floating in subterranean reservoirs. Weeks Island is one of several hundred sait domes that lie beneath the marshlands of the gulf, and the oil has been stored in a series of caverns that have been dug commercially by the Morton Salt

The caverns have simplified the storage here. The deposits at the other sites are more involved. For instance, the reservoirs at a hearby facility called Bayou Choctaw were created by injecting streams of water into the ground, dissolving the pools of oil.

That's the only major difference between the sites, however. They are otherwise all remote, furnished with high technology and administered by a subsidiary of the Boeing Co.

Norman Selfert is the Boeing manager at Weeks Island. He is a middle-aged petroleum engineer who is responsible for at least $1 billion worth of public oil. He says the stuff has been pumped to the site by a pipeline from a Mississippi River port, and rests from 500 to 1.500 feet underground.

And he believes it rests quietly. He says it does not interact with the salt, and is reasonably secure.

They are also ready for almost instant use. Seifert says he can begin retrieving the oil on a moment's And the result is the Strategic notice, and it is a relatively uncomplicated process. He says the process is initiated by pumping water into the storage areas, which, sodium, and making room for the in turn, forces the oil to flow out of the reservoirs.

The oil can then be diverted to that pipeline leading to the Mississippi River port (near New Orleans), where It may be sold to the petroleum companies at a price set by the government. Once started, Seifert says he can send the oil to the market at a rate of 26,000 barrels every hour.

And he's tested it to be sure. Weeks Island participated in an experimental drawdown of the strategic reserve in January of this year. The government says 2 million barrels were taken from storage over a three-week period, and half that amount was sold to the commercials for $27 million.

So the process apparently works. Petroleum Reserve is an black ace in the energy hole.

Topless Seven Win Would Be Binding Only In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) - A judge is expected to take at least six weeks before deciding whether a New York statute prohibiting women from going shirtless in public is, as seven topless activists claim, "a dinosaur of the penal law."

'I think we've made a major, major statement," said Mary Lou Schloss, 38, of Rochester, one of seven women arrested during a "topfree plenie" in the city's Cobbs Hill Park June 21. The 50-year-old state law requiring women but not men - to wear tops in public was attacked as sexist and discriminatory during a four-day, non-jury trial in Rochester City Court.

A victory for "The Topfree Seven" would set a precedent in Rochester, but would not be binding in other parts of the state. If the group loses, they have vowed to appeal to the state's highest court.

The prosecution maintains testimony by police and admissions by the defendants are enough to convict them of breaking the law.

"Their testimony (about justification) should bear no weight," Thomas Brilbeck, an assistant Monroe County district attorney, said Thursday in his closing statement. Judge Herman Walz, who has said he would not jail the women if they are convicted. indicated he would not rule at least until late October. The seven each face fines of up to During summations Thursday, defendant

Nikki Craft of Oshkosh, Wis., argued her crusade for women's rights is comparable to the black civil rights struggle of the 1950s. "On the surface it seems trivial — incredibly trivial. It's as trivial as sitting in the back of the bus," said Craft, referring to Rosa Parks, a celebrated Montgomery, Ala., black woman who refused to give up her seat to a white man. "I would suggest that any man who thinks what we are doing is trivial should just put on a top when he goes swimming and when he gets out, just lay out in the sun with that sloppy soaking wet top on." Craft said.

Schloss, in her statement, said keeping the exposure law on the books does not represent the interest of the government.

Talks Breakoff 'Dooms' El Salvador To Long War

SAN SALVADOR. El Salvador (UPI) - The cancellation of peace talks between the U.S.-backed government and leftist rebels dooms El Salvador to a long war that will be costly to both sides, diplomats and government officials

"Without dialogue we are locked into a military solution, which means more death and destruction for all of us," said an official of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's ruling Christian Democratic

Both sides have said they did not expect to reach a peace agreement during the third round. which was to be held Sept. 19 in the town of Sesori, 55 miles east of the capital.

But some observers hoped Duarte and the Marxist-led insurgents, locked in a 7-year-old civil war, would at least agree to continue talking, and possibly reach some agreements on humanizing in the end, neither side could make the concessions necessary to allow the talks to go ahead.

"I think both sides were looking for a way out, and were hoping to find a way to blame the other side for the breakdown," said one Western Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas, who served as mediator as he did for two earlier rounds of talks in late 1984, repeatedly warned both sides against "defrauding" the people by not holding the dialogue.

"Otherwise, this long and futile war will just continue," he said in a recent homily. While most analysts agree the U.S.-backed army has gained the upper hand in the war, few predict a quick military victory. Rebel numbers are down from a high of some 12,000 four years ago to about 5,000, according to military observers, but in a country only the size of Massachusetts, 5,000 people under arms can wreak havoc.

Some 60,000 people have already died in the fighting and besides the human cost, a prolonged war will continue to cripple the nation's economy, which has already suffered a $2 billion blow since late 1979.

With inflation running at about 30 percent and unemployement and underemployment hovering near 50 percent, Duarte finds himself in a bind.

Almost half the nation's budget is dedicated to the war, tying up scarce resources, and little new investment is attracted to the country to create

As the war continues, the 60-year-old president has little option but to rely on foreign aid to keep the country affoat. He already receives about $1.5 million a day in U.S. military and economic aid.

A U.S. Embassy official acknowledged that cancellation of the peace talks could could cost, Duarte politically by further antagonizing hostile unions, who were earlier one of his main

"This certainly doesn't help any," the official said. "It would have been better for Duarte to hold the talks. ... It could refocus attention on his political problems, and that could be a problem." A Western European diplomat was even more

What's carrying Duarte politically is dialogue," he said. "Without it, he will have to show public opinion he can solve the nation's economic and other problems, which so far he has been unable to do."

Each of the warring factions have gone to great lengths to blame the other for the break-off of negotiations, trying to score points with a public weary of the bloodshed.

While it is not yet possible to say who won the propaganda war, most analysts say the insurgents pushed too hard on demilitarizing the area for the talks, while the government provoked a confrontation by sending in troops to secure the town, less than 48 hours after Sesori was chosen as the venue.

The occupation outraged the insurgents, who demanded the troops be withdrawn.

After the talks broke down at a preliminary meeting in Panama last week, the government said the insurgents not only wanted the troops withdrawn from the town, but from almost 400 square miles, with the idea of moving their own troops in.

Lake Mary High School's drug awareness program, which includes a contract pledging not to use illegal drugs or alcohol, and a drug test for those who are suspected of substance abuse will get national television network coverage, possibly today.

A Miami-based NBC. News team was at the school Wednesday and Thursday. A producer said the segment, which will appear on NBC Nightly News with Tom Brokaw, possibly today, includes interviews with Lake Mary parents, students, administrators, school board member Pat Telson, and an American Civil Liberties Union spokesman. The ACLU plans a suit to prevent the contracts from being used, saying they wolate the U.S. Constitution's rights of

"Why Lake Mary? Because the timing is terrific," Ms. Singletary said. "It comes after President Reagan's (drug) speech. Lake Mary came up with the idea last year, and they're in the position to get moving, ahead of the president's suggestion." she continued.

Lake Mary is in a unique position in addressing the drug and alcohol problem, and the network is always looking for unique approaches to solving problems," she said.

She added that the piece, with reporter Jim Kaiserski, may air as soon as today. NBC Nightly News is broadcast at 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and can be seen on
