

Eye Test Flub Gets Driver New Trial In DUI

By Susan Leden

A Longwood man convicted of drunk driving will get another trial because a Seminole County judge ruled the man's guilt was partially determined by results of an eye-movement test interpreted by an arresting officer not expert in the procedure.

The judge's ruling will change the DUI testing policy of Seminole County sheriff's deputies. Sheriff's Sgt. Jerry Riggins, who heads DUI enforcement for the department, said he will receive additional training on the test in question and will pass that additional information along to the other deputies.

As of this weekend, Riggins said, deputies, who are continuing to perform the test, will be equipped to ask suspected DUIs a battery of pre-test, state-provided questions which would help establish if they had a physical impairment, such as a recent head injury, or are on medication which might throw off the results of the test, which evaluates involuntary eye movement. The movement is highly apparent in someone under the influence of alcohol.

All Seminole County deputies received eight hours of training in the test from Riggins about one year ago. The test is part of a battery of three, including a walk and turn segment and a stand on one leg exercise, which make up a nationally standardized procedure intended to single out DUIs. Riggins was trained in administering the three tests at the Institute of Police Traffic Management at the University of Florida in Jacksonville, where he will return to upgrade his training then give Seminole County deputies additional hours of training in the tests.

Most police agencies in the nation using the tests, Riggins said, provide officers with 12 to 18 hours of training.

He said he feels his men were "adequately" trained in the test, especially when considering that the eye test is used in conjunction with the two other tests and is usually backed-up by a breath analysis and a video tape of a suspected

Depositions Begin In Yankee Lake Tug-Of-War

By Karen Talley

Sanford City Manager Frank Falson wheeled 50 pounds of Yankee Lake data from city hall to the North Oak Avenue law office of Mack Cleveland Tuesday, then spent four hours giving a deposition to four attorneys defending against the city's condemnation proceeding to obtain the property.

Falson said he was "interrogated" by Cleveland and Jim Spoonhour, attorneys representing Jeno Paulucci and Nicholas Pope, and Ross Stanton of St. Petersburg and Howard Marsee of Orlando, eminent domain attorneys hired by Seminole County. Paulucci, through his agent, Pope, sold the 2.867-acre Yankee Lake property to the county last week.

Both the city and county want the land for waste disposal facilities.

According to Falson, because less than half of the information requested by the attorneys was addressed during the session, his testimony will be continued today at city hall.

"They want to go over everything page by page," Falson said.

A case management conference on the suit has been scheduled by Seminole County circuit Judge Dominick J. Saffi for Dec. 9 at 2:45 p.m. After attorneys for the plaintiffs and defendants present their sides of the issue, Saffi is expected to schedule a formal hearing. Cleveland said prior to the conference the defendants' attorneys "want to know exactly what the city has done from the inception" of its wastewater management program. When

15% Turnout

Incumbents Sweep Longwood Election

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

It was a clean sweep for the three incumbent candidates in Tuesday's Longwood municipal election in which 746 residents (15.4 percent of the city's 4,843 registered voters) came to the polls.

This was even less than the 25 percent turnout City Clerk Don Terry had predicted.

In District 1, Mayor Harvey Smerilson, 43, won his second two-year term on the commission defeating his opponent Steve Uskert, 72, by 411 votes to 324. Smerilson had 44.9 percent of the votes; Uskert, 44 percent.

Commissioner June Lormann was the top vote-getter with 516 votes as she won unopposed her seventh consecutive term on the commission for District 2.

In District 4, Commissioner Harold "Ed" Myers, 67, won re-election with 375 votes or 51.5 percent and thus avoided a run-off with one of his two opponents, John Hepp, 45, who garnered 231 votes or 31.7 percent, and Charles "Chick" Pappas, 68, with 122 votes or 16.7 percent.

All of the challengers had served on the commission in the past.

"I want to thank the voters of Longwood for their confidence," Smerilson said Tuesday night at a victory party at his home. "I'm looking forward to continuing the program we started."

Smerilson expressed surprise at the poor turnout and the fact that there was no run-off in the three-man race.

"I thought we could motivate the people, but apparently we didn't," he said. He said he found going door to door during the campaign that many people the voter's rolls are no longer living in the city.

Uskert said he had entered the race to give the voters an option and they had made their choice.

Myers, who was celebrating with his supporters at a victory party at the Longwood community building, attributed his victory to "hard work."

"It proves hard work pays off," he said. "I've worked hard all year and did my homework. I've answered all complaints and even solved a few."

"I lost," Pappas said, "but I wish the incumbents a prosperous year and the best for the city of Longwood. I am very much surprised that there wasn't a run-off and the terrible turnout."

"People don't care anymore, they just let things slip by. They scream and yell, but when the time comes they don't do anything about it."

Hepp had two words for the election — "It stunk." He said because only 746 residents bothered to vote, "people deserve what they get. If they have no more feeling about it than that, I suppose the city

Security Adviser 'Retiring,' Reagan Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said today his national security adviser, Robert McFarlane, is "retiring" from his job as a top White House foreign policy aide.

There has been no official announcement that McFarlane had quit his foreign policy post, but as Reagan left the White House to helicopter to a school in nearby Maryland, reporters shouted at him: "What about McFarlane?"

"He's retiring," Reagan shouted back without elaboration.

Earlier, government sources said McFarlane had decided to leave his post as Reagan's national security adviser because of conflicts with the White House chief of staff, Donald Regan.

Aides said they expect a formal announcement of the resignation today. News reports of McFarlane's decision surfaced two days ago, making it unusual for the White House to hold off official comment on such a move for so long.

The Washington Post, citing administration sources, said today that McFarlane informed President Reagan of his decision to leave — to spend more time with his family — while the president vacationed in California during the Thanksgiving holiday.

The Washington Times reported today that Adm. John M. Poindexter was chosen to replace McFarlane. Possible successors had included David M. Abshire, the U.S. ambassador to NATO; Poindexter, McFarlane's deputy; and Lawrence Eagleburger, former assistant secretary of state.

Poindexter, reached at his suburban Rockville, Md., home, declined to comment on the report. "I don't have any comment," Poindexter said.

Since Regan came the White House in a swap of jobs with Treasury Secretary James Baker, there has been friction between McFarlane and Regan. Aides say McFarlane has resented Regan's "take charge" style and his intrusion in foreign policy making.

Regan, on the other hand, has objected to McFarlane bypassing him and calling the president directly in times of crisis.

The White House remained officially silent on the matter Tuesday, but deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters the president would abide by the wishes of any staff member who wanted to leave office, an indication McFarlane's resignation was being accepted.

McFarlane quietly said "no comment" to United Press International when asked about the resignation Monday night upon his return from California with Regan.

The president declined Tuesday to discuss the matter, telling reporters: "I'm not taking any questions."

Both CBS News and the Post reported McFarlane had informed Reagan of his decision last week in California.

A retired Marine lieutenant colonel, McFarlane was named to replace William Clark as national security adviser Oct. 17, 1983. He had been Clark's deputy and a special envoy to the Middle East.

He also served in the State Department and during the Nixon era when Kissinger was national security adviser.

McFarlane, 48, has been close to the president, frequently seeing him several times a day to bring him up to date on security and intelligence matters. He also was an important force behind the Geneva summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

County Picks Site For Library In Lake Mary

A 17-acre site has been chosen as the location for a Seminole County library in Lake Mary.

The county commission gave the go-ahead for the library construction at the site within the Greenwood Lakes planned unit development at its work session Tuesday.

According to County Director of Public Services John Percy, the county looked at several sites before choosing the location between Lake Mary High and middle school.

The property was originally designated a park site by the county, but later approved as a library/park site, Percy said.

The county parks and recreation advisory board opposed the use of the site for a library, however parks and recreation staff supported the joint use of the property, he said.

The library will take up three acres of the total 17.23 acre site, Percy said. The next step in the project will be to notify the developer, survey the site and obtain architectural renderings of the proposed building. The site is located on Greenway Boulevard just off Longwood Lake Mary Boulevard.

The construction of the $1 million library in Lake Mary is slated to begin in December 1987.

Also at Tuesday's work session, Percy said he will present the Sanford library plan before the city's historical preservation board at its Dec. 11 meeting. The purpose of the newly-created board, he said, is to study new construction in Sanford's historic district.

The commission was also presented with a drawing of the proposed $970,000 library addition in Sanford. The building's site plan must go before the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission for approval, Percy said.

The addition would be a single story, 12,000 square-foot building to rear of the present facility at 230 E. First Street. The old library would be used for technical services. The public service area of the library would be located in the new building, Percy said.

The public will enter the library through the front door of the new building on Palmetto Street, County Library Services Manager Jean Rhein said.

Hanging Foiled

A woman found semiconscious with a strip of sheet knotted around her neck just after being locked up in the Seminole County jail was rescued uninjured late Tuesday.

Being closely watched today was Cheryl Warren, 23, of 2411 Laurel Ave. Sanford. She was being held in lieu of $100 bond on a charge of disorderly intoxication, according to Capt. Jay Leaman of the Seminole County sheriff's department.

Leaman said Ms. Warren, arrested by Sanford Police around 10 p.m., was placed in a cell about 10:30 p.m. A few minutes later a corrections officer on routine patrol found Ms. Warren hanging with the torn bedding around her neck and partially unconscious, Leaman said.

What she was tied to was not reported, he said.

According to a Sanford police report she was arrested after reportedly running around her house yelling obscenities and wearing only her underwear and a T-shirt. The report also said she was breaking out the windows of the house with a chair.

Leaman said Ms. Warren, who will be 24 Thursday, was examined by the jail nurse and did not need further medical attention.

He praised jail personnel for their quick actions and the woman's rescue.

High Court Takes Up Voting Act Challenge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court is taking up the first legal test of the revised Voting Rights Act, amended by Congress in 1982 to make it easier for blacks to prove infringement on equal access to the election process.

The justices were scheduled to hear oral arguments today in a North Carolina redistricting case that pits civil rights activists against the state and the Reagan administration.

North Carolina is appealing a lower court decision that said seven multi-member legislative districts drawn in 1982 violated the Voting Rights Act.

The three-judge panel ruled in January 1984 that North Carolina lawmakers wrongly used six multi-member districts to create white majorities when it would have been possible to form several black single-member districts instead.

At issue is interpretation of language in the act that says a voting procedure "which results in a denial or abridgement of the right of any citizen of the United States to vote on account of race or color" is illegal.

Administration and North Carolina lawyers are urging the court to specify that unwillingness of whites to vote for blacks is not proof of Voting Rights Act violations.

IN BRIEF

Atlantis Makes Safe Landing As Practice Starts For Columbia

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — With Atlantis back on Earth in good condition after a "wonderful adventure," the flagship shuttle Columbia's crew today geared up for a practice countdown to clear the way for blastoff Dec. 18.

The launching will mark the 10th and final flight of 1985, doubling the previous shuttle launch record and setting the stage for what NASA Administrator James Beggs said will be the "most important" year since the dawn of the space age with 14 shuttle flights on the books.

Columbia's seven-member crew, including Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., planned to climb aboard today for the final hours of a dress-rehearsal countdown scheduled to end with the computer-simulated ignition of the ship's three main engines.

Atlantis swooped to a picture-perfect touchdown Tuesday at 4:34 p.m. EST on a concrete runway at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert to close a highly successful weeklong mission, one of the most successful shuttle flights to date.

Columbia is scheduled to land at the Kennedy Space Center Dec. 23 with a new nose-wheel steering system designed to reduce brake and tire damage. It will be the first Florida landing since April when Discovery blew a tire after two landing gear brakes locked up.

Tags Tie Up Cabinet

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet discussed for the third time Tuesday the design of Florida's new auto license tags without reaching a decision.

The governor and Cabinet deadlocked after three votes and closed their regular meeting without deciding whether to choose a new sun-and-sea motif submitted by a contest winner or the current orange outline of the state against a plain background.

Attorney General Jim Smith failed to return to the meeting after the lunch recess and was not available to break a tie vote. Graham and the Cabinet will meet again next month.

The final vote left Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner, Comptroller Gerald Lewis and Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington supporting some form of the current plate.

Gov. Bob Graham teamed with Secretary of State George Firestone and Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter in support of a modified version of a sun-and-sea motif by Chuck Ax of Hollywood, Fla., who won a design contest.

Six Fastest-Growing Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The six fastest growing cities in the United States — counting both large and small cities — are all in Florida, a new federal study shows.

The Fort Pierce metropolitan area, which includes St. Lucie and Martin counties, ranked first in the U.S. Commerce Department's growth projections for the year 2000. By that year, the area is expected to host 323,000 people, for a 79.6 percent growth in population.

Following Fort Pierce is Fort Meyers expected to grow 76.9 percent; Naples, up 75.1 percent; West Palm Beach, up 61.3 percent; Ocala, up 61.2 percent; and Sarasota, up 57.9 percent.

Melbourne also made the top ten at the tenth position behind Fort Collins, Colo., Phoenix, Ariz. and Reno, Nev.

"In all those cities, it's a combination of two factors," said University of Florida population analyst Stan Smith. "One is retirement and the other is employment."

Smith Bows Out Of Race

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Frontrunning gubernatorial candidate Harry Johnston announced Tuesday State Attorney General Jim Smith will not appear on a campaign ticket with him.

Johnston said Smith, who was to run day-to-day operations in a Johnston administration, amicably resigned from the campaign Monday night by "mutual agreement." He said basic differences over campaign staff and strategy that had been brewing for about two months caused the split.

"It's very difficult any time when you have two very strong personalities to anyone accepting the secondary role," Johnston said at a news conference. "One person had to make the decision (on the campaign matters) and that person had to be me."

Smith, a two-term attorney general, had been considered a contender in his own right in the governor's race.

Chiles Continues Improvement

LAKELAND (UPI) — Sen. Lawton Chiles rested in the progressive care unit at Lakeland Regional Medical Center today, hopeful of being released from the hospital by the weekend.

The Florida Democrat underwent four hours of quadruple heart bypass surgery Monday and doctors said he might be released this weekend.

The 55-year-old lawmaker was in good spirits Wednesday, moving around in his room, meeting with aides, reading newspapers and watching television.

Cabinet Rejects Tougher Entrance Standards For State Universities

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The task of revamping state university entrance requirements falls back to the Board of Regents after the Cabinet and Gov. Bob Graham Tuesday voted 4-3 to reject tougher but more flexible standards.

The vote came after a two-hour debate over whether the standards would cause "psychological problems" for vocational education students.

The rule, which would have established a sliding scale to allow admission of high school seniors who do poorly on standardized tests but who do well in the classroom, omits vocational classes from a list of recommended high school elective subjects.

Current admission standards demand an incoming freshman present at least a "C" average and score at least 840 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The proposed sliding scale would have allowed the student's grades and standardized test score to combine to average a

"B-plus." Students could have presented a "C" average with a score of 1,050 on the SAT.

Ron Scull of the Florida Vocational Association said the rule would discourage students from taking vocational classes. He warned declining enrollment might force cancellation of the classes that prevent many high school students from dropping out.

"It sends a message in (students') minds that if you enroll in vocational education you get a substandard education," said Scull, whose group includes educators and businesses that supply vocational programs.

Chancellor Charlie Reed agreed the omission might cause a "perception problem" for vocational programs but added the Board of Regents would be able to recommend individual vocational classes as electives anyway.

"I don't support that we are in the business of solving those psychological problems," Reed said.

Later he added: "I don't think welding has the relevance to the liberal arts requirement in the university system of English, mathematics, science, a foreign language and history that you need to be successful in a university."

Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner, Attorney General Jim Smith, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter and Comptroller Gerald Lewis overruled Reed's objections and asked the regents either to omit the list of electives or include vocational education.

Gov. Bob Graham, Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington and Secretary of State George Firestone voted in favor of the proposed rule.

The proposed rule would also:

- Allow individual universities to set alternative standards for some students, as long as the universities offer programs to help them cope with college, a measure Reed said would help the retention of minority students.

- Hike the number of hours students must spend in required English, math, science and foreign language courses from 15 to 19 by the start of the 1985 school year.
- Give college-bound students a better idea what electives colleges are looking for, by specifying computer science, fine arts and humanities courses — but not vocational classes — as helpful.

Reed urged adoption of the rule to help high school seniors plan their course loads. He said the regents would be unable to return a revamped proposal to Graham and the Cabinet until February.

But Conner objected to what he called the "pressure" tactic. "You're trying to do your job," he told Reed. "Give us the opportunity to do ours and don't be using these pressure statements when there are deep, strong beliefs about vocational education that are represented on this board."

Kennedy Seeks O'Neill Seat

BOSTON (UPI) — Joseph P. Kennedy II, the son of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, appears ready to carry on the family tradition in politics by announcing his candidacy for the seat of retiring House Speaker Thomas O'Neill.

Kennedy, 33, was expected to make the formal announcement today at a news conference. Aides said he made a round of courtesy visits this week to key Democratic officials to inform them of his decision.

Kennedy was unavailable for comment Tuesday but an aide said a decision had been reached.

"Joe Kennedy will make an announcement tomorrow (Wednesday). All I can tell you is Joe has made a decision regarding his future, and that's what he'll be discussing," said Steven Rothstein.

Although Kennedy has never run for public office, he has gained headlines with Citizens Energy Corp., a non-profit company he founded to supply low-cost fuel oil to poor families. He appeared recently in a number of television commercials aired statewide publicizing the service.

Kennedy's anticipated announcement should make for an interesting congressional race. Also considering running in Boston attorney James Roosevelt, grandson of President Franklin Roosevelt.

Israel Links Three To Spying

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's probe into the U.S. espionage case has linked no more than three Israelis — two diplomats and possibly the head of a secret counterterrorism unit — to accused spy Jonathan Pollard, a government source said Tuesday.

"That's all we know, about as far as I know," said the government official, who asked that his name not be used.

Yosef Yagur, science attache at the Israeli Embassy in Washington, and Ilan Ravid, Israel's science consul in New York, were summoned home within hours after Pollard, a civilian U.S. Navy intelligence analyst, was arrested Nov. 21 in Washington and charged with giving American secrets to Israel.

Pollard is being held without bail in the United States.

"Somehow they must have been connected to Pollard," the official said of Yagur and Ravid. "How exactly, we are still investigating."

But he said investigators were "not sure" that Rafael Eitan, who headed the counter-terrorist unit called "Lechem," was directly involved in the spy case.

It was possible that because of the nature of espionage work, Eitan chose not to be informed of the identity of the source of the material.

Arab newspapers reported that Pollard, 31, gave Israel specific information about the Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunisia, which Israeli warplanes bombed on Oct. 1, killing about 70 people.

"Complete rubbish," Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said in response to the newspaper reports.

Officials in Jerusalem and Washington have expressed satisfaction at developments in the case since Sunday, when Israel apologized to the United States and said it would dismantle Lechem, the spy unit involved in the case.

In Jerusalem, Israeli government officials said Lechem, which existed in the Defense Ministry, outside the regular intelligence community, would not be dismantled until after the investigation was complete.

They also said the United States would be permitted to "interview" — they avoided the term "interrogate" — the two diplomats and Eitan "in the near future."

Although Prime Minister Shimon Peres, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin have met almost daily on the issue, the investigation now is being carried out at "a senior working level," a diplomatic source said.

House Import Bill Faces Veto Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House overwhelmingly approved a bill to limit textile imports Tuesday, sending the controversial measure to President Reagan who has threatened to veto any protectionist legislation.

The bill, which the Senate already approved, also offers protection for two of the nation's other beleaguered industries: shoes and copper.

Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., a leading supporter of the textile measure, warned the United States would become "a second rate nation" unless it protects its industries and workers from cheap imports.

If it survives a veto, the bill would cut textile imports from the nation's three major suppliers — Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong — and freeze imports from the next nine biggest exporters: China, Japan, Pakistan, Indonesia, India, the Philippines, Thailand, Brazil and Singapore.

Rep. Hal Daub, R-Neb., called the bill "a kick in the teeth" to American consumers who will pay higher prices for clothing.

"A vote for the bill may be one of the most damaging things we could do for American agriculture" because U.S. trading partners may retaliate by turning to other countries for farm products, Daub said.

House Ways and Means Committee Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., urged his colleagues to reject the narrowly focused bill and promised his panel would begin work on a compromise trade package when Congress reconvenes in January.

But the trade war fever was running too high and Rostenkowski's pleas were ignored.

The bill limits the future growth of all textile and apparel imports except those from Canada and Europe, whose higher-priced merchandise does not threaten the domestic industry.

Stuffed toys and silk products would be exempt from the quotas.

Shortly before the House began debating the measure, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said passage of the bill would "signal to the world that the U.S. Congress does not share the president's soft line on trade."

O'Neill said there are two reasons for the nation's record large trade deficit now running at $140 billion: "First, the Reagan administration's big deficit policies (and) second, its hands-off attitude toward trade."

By accepting the Senate-passed trade measure, the House avoided the need for a conference to work out differences between it and the stripped-down textile bill approved by the House in October. It now goes to the president, shifting the focus to whether Reagan will veto it, and if so, whether both Houses of Congress can muster a two-thirds vote to override it.

To win additional votes, Senate supporters added protections for the domestic shoe and textile industries in hopes of overriding a veto. But last month's 60-39 Senate vote fell short of the two-thirds majority needed for an override, indicating that such a feat would be unlikely.

Shoe imports, which now account for nearly 80 percent of the domestic market, would be limited to 60 percent for the next eight years under the bill. It also would require the president to negotiate voluntary restraint agreements with major copper exporting nations.

Leading Indicators Inch Up Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The index of leading indicators — the government's sensitive barometer of economic trends — rose a modest 0.3 percent in October, the sixth straight month of improvement, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The department also revised upward the index for September, showing a 0.4 percent increase instead of the 0.1 percent initially reported. The increase for August was revised down to 0.6 percent, from 0.9 percent.

In a separate report, the Census Bureau said housing sales fell 5.5 percent during October, the third monthly decline and the biggest drop since April. Analysts were surprised by the housing figures, given the lower interest rates of the last several months.

The index, which economists use to predict economic activity about three months ahead, has improved in every month since May, but modestly. Only in January has the increase in the index risen above 1 percent.

Revised figures placed the increase in the index for the third quarter at 1.5 percent, following a second quarter that showed no increase at all.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said October's gain brought the average monthly increase during the past six months to 0.4 percent.

"Past relationships show that average gains of 0.5 percent per month in the leading indicators are consistent with next year's target of 4 percent growth in real gross national product," Baldrige said in a statement, adding the index was "pointing toward continued expansion in 1986."

Private economists were less optimistic.

"It's extremely consistent with a modest outlook over the next several months," said Robert Gough of Data Resources Inc. Referring to the administration's target for 4 percent GNP growth next year, Gough asked: "How do you get 4 percent growth out of a 0.3 percent increase in the index? That's got to be magic ... hocus-pocus."

"What it's showing is the economy is basically growing slowly and will continue to do so," said David Berson, an economist with Wharton Econometrics who predicts growth in the 2 percent to 2 1/2 percent range for the first half of the year.

"We think it's very unlikely that the economy will grow anywhere near 4 percent next year," Berson said.

Six of 11 individual indicators had a positive effect on the index, pointing to a stronger economy next year, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

The bureau said a growth in outstanding debt aided the index, as well as a slowdown in the pace of deliveries from businesses, signaling greater demand, a slowdown in claims for unemployment benefits and an increase in raw materials prices. Also helping the index were an expansion of stock prices and stronger demand for consumer goods.

But Gough said while the "enormous accumulation of consumer debt" was a positive sign for the economy, "it has to be viewed as a constraint to future spending."

"Consumers are so deep in debt I think it's impossible they can maintain purchases at any of the strength of earlier this year," said Sandra Shaber of the Chase Econometrics analysis firm.

Four indicators were negative, led by a slowdown in the formation of new businesses, sharp declines in building permits and orders for new factory equipment and a shrinking of the money supply.

One indicator, the length of the average work week, was unchanged.

The index of leading indicators reached 171.1 in October, compared to a 1967 base of 100.

Reagan OKs Committee Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican congressional leaders, emerging from a White House meeting Tuesday, indicated President Reagan would accept a tax reform bill drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee rather than see the issue die.

"I think he wants to keep the process alive," Senate GOP leader Robert Dole told reporters. "That's the message I received, which would indicate that he's not going to reject the House Ways and Means package."

With the committee poised to give its formal approval to the bill at an afternoon meeting, House Republicans outlined an alternative to Reagan that comes closer to the key provisions of the tax plan he presented in late May.

Dole suggested Reagan might endorse both the committee bill and the GOP alternative. "He hasn't made that call," he explained.

House GOP leader Bob Michel indicated some members of his party harbor strong objections to the Ways and Means bill, but was pragmatic in his view that the Democratic majority could muster enough votes to pass the measure.

Michel said Reagan mentioned several times "that he wanted to keep the process alive," which some White House aides interpret as a sign the president would offer at least a backhand endorsement of the committee bill at the proper time.

Once the bill clears committee, Michel said, "The fat is definitely in the fire and I would expect then the president would have to respond."

The intent in endorsing the committee bill would be to facilitate its passage by the House and send the issue to the Senate, where the Republican majority could rewrite the tax plan more to Reagan's liking.

Strong presidential opposition to the bill could doom the measure as early as next week. Michel said Reagan emphasized such a defeat in the House "probably" would doom tax reform — the top priority of his second term — "for all time."

During a high-profile, political appearance in Seattle Monday en route back to Washington from his Thanksgiving break, Reagan failed to mention the tax bill.

The committee's measure differs from Reagan's version in several major respects. It keeps many of the tax breaks the president would eliminate and has higher tax rates than Reagan wants.

Specifically, it contains personal tax rates of 15, 25, 35 and 38 percent and a top corporate rate of 36 percent. Reagan wanted personal rates of 15, 25 and 35 percent and a 33-percent top corporate rate.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said Monday he hoped Reagan would support the committee bill "to at least get it to the Senate and conference."

Intransigence Fits Hypocrisy Pattern

Nicaragua's rejection of a peace plan drafted by its Latin American neighbors suggests that the Sandinista government is more interested in spreading its leftist ideology than in resolving regional disputes. Nicaragua's increased repression of internal dissent is an even more revealing indication of the true character of the Sandinistas.

President Daniel Ortega vetoed a proposal from the Contadora nations. The goal of the plan was to ease hostilities in Central America by closing foreign military bases, freezing new weapons purchases and prohibiting further military buildups. The Contadora nations — Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia — have been trying since January 1983 to negotiate a treaty among Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica.

Ortega said the proposal would allow U.S. military maneuvers in the region. The maneuvers, he said, would be a threat to Nicaraguan security. His objection, however, seemed intended to scuttle the Contadora process.

The United States has a legitimate defense interest in Central America. The United States must defend the Panama Canal and maintain sufficient military strength to inhibit Soviet adventurism in the area. The United States should also continue military assistance to Central American allies that could be targets of Sandinista subversion.

Nicaragua's intransigence toward the Contadora process fits the pattern of Sandinista hypocrisy. While declaring that they want regional peace, the Sandinistas sow turmoil in Central America. They recently denounced Honduras for seeking U.S. F-5 fighters to replace aging French aircraft, even though Honduras has cause to fear Nicaraguan aggression.

The Sandinistas seem equally uninterested in resolving internal problems. Instead of following the democratic principles they espoused during the 1979 revolution against the Somoza dictatorship, the Sandinistas have steadily denied basic freedoms. An Oct. 15 emergency declaration prohibited public demonstrations and suspended free speech, privacy of the home and communications and the right to strike. In the past few weeks, the Sandinistas have jailed a reporter from the opposition newspaper La Prensa. They have accused Nicaraguan workers at the U.S. Embassy of espionage, without producing evidence.

The Sandinistas have also used the emergency decree to attack the Roman Catholic Church. Eight people who organized a recent welcoming demonstration by Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo at a town near Managua were arrested. The Sandistas have criticized the cardinal for urging peace talks between the government and opposition forces.

The Nicaraguan government's belligerence toward its neighbors and its repression of internal dissent lead to the conclusion that the Sandinistas' goal is not peace in the region or democracy at home, but the establishment of totalitarianism in Central America.

Lucky Leaves White House To Live Free

Lucky, the Reagan's 65-pound sheep dog, is going to be missed at the White House. But with a "born free" style, he had to run in the outdoors.

The frisky Lucky, who holds the record in the canine world for helicopter flights, is no longer going to be top dog in the Reagan menagerie. She will be living from now on at Rancho del Cielo, the Reagan's mountain ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., with four other Reagan dogs and six horses.

Many Secret Service men are appreciative of the fact that the Reagans spend Christmas Day in the White House and refrain from traveling until a couple of days after the holiday. That way, the agents can see their families and still rotate on their shifts.

Many of the first families in the past headed for their homes, favorite resorts or ranches during the yuletide season, taking along aides and agents who would have preferred to stay home with their own families.

Once when Pat Nixon expressed concern that the Secret Service agents would have to leave their homes to be on the family's detail, one member of her family told her not to worry — "that's their job."

The Reagans will plunge into a series of Christmas parties when they return to Washington from their Thanksgiving holiday. Mrs. Reagan has picked an interior White House scene for her Christmas card this year, but the setting and the artist are being kept secret until early December.

Each year the White House Christmas tree has been decorated with different touches, but always traditional, and always glittering.

The White House is expected to be closed the weekend of Dec. 7-8 to permit decorators and maintenance crews to trim the mansion.

The Reagans will head for Los Angeles on Dec. 27 for a round of yuletide parties. They will then fly to Palm Springs to ring in the New Year at the estate of multimillionaire Walter Annenberg, who holds a black tie party every New Year's eve.

South Sea Islands No Paradise

One can only wonder why the Soviets persist in sleeping at the switch.

They continually paint the United States as an imperialist bully, imposing its will on powerless peoples. But their examples rarely bear much relation to reality.

Curiously, in the one instance where they might be able to make something of a valid case they remain silent.

I refer to the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

This consists of several island groups spread over 3 million square miles of ocean between Hawaii and the Philippines. It has been under American control since it was seized from the Japanese in some of the bloodiest battles of the Pacific war — Saipan, for example. With peace, the islands dropped out of the news and have pretty much stayed out.

The Trust Territory takes in four groups totaling 2,141 islands. Total land area: 715.8 square miles. Only 98 are inhabited. Total population: 135,000.

One group, the Northern Marianas, several years ago opted for commonwealth status, similar to Puerto Rico. It is by far the most developed, having, to a considerable extent, been reconquered by Japanese tourists who contribute more than $200 million a year to the economy.

The other three — the Marshall Islands, Palau and the Federated States of Micronesia, a grouping of four separate island clusters — are seeking a looser link with the United States. They have negotiated a Compact of Free Association that would make them internally self-governing. The United States, in return for continuing economic assistance, would retain military control of the region.

As it is, the islands have gone steadily downhill economically in the four decades of U.S. rule. Development programs have turned out to be mostly unfulfilled promises and misconceived failures. The islands are today a vast tropical slum short on almost everything in the way of modern conveniences — paved roads, electricity, sanitary systems — but not of modern problems. Alcohol abuse is rampant and violent crime is on the rise.

U.S. aid has become a dole. Half the employed population is on government payrolls, with Washington underwriting the budgets. Local leaders complain that the islanders have developed a "dependence mentality."

Perhaps it is only to be expected. As guardians of another people, we have been here before. The situation of the Trust Territory inhabitants sounds very much like that of the American Indian.

German Terrorists Arise Again

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The bomb blast last week in the parking lot of an American PX in Frankfurt provided further proof that West German terrorist groups, supposedly eradicated five years ago, are definitely alive and active.

The group believed to be responsible for the latest outrage had also set off a car bomb at the U.S. Air Force base outside Frankfurt last August. The terrorists call themselves the "Red Army Faction," and their resurgence, like some malignant phoenix, has been described in an internal Pentagon intelligence report as "a serious threat to U.S. military interests into the foreseeable future."

The report, a "special assessment," confirms observations made by our associate Lucette Lagnado on a recent trip to West Germany. The report concludes that the group has begun a "new phase" of

JEFFREY HART

Vicious Child Killers

Back in May 1981, a particularly atrocious crime occurred in the apparently tranquil small town of Essex Junction, Vermont, which is near Burlington, a small city.

Meghan O'Rourke and Melissa Walbridge, both 12, took a short cut home from school because it was raining. The route led through a patch of woods. There the two tiny girls were overpowered by two men. They were raped and sodomized, slashed with knives, shot in the eye with BBs, and finally knifed and left for dead. Melissa in fact was dead. Meghan at length staggered out of the woods bleeding profusely from her chest wound. Rushed to a hospital, she recovered.

When the murderers were picked up, they turned out to be Jamie Savage, age 15, and Louis Hamlin, age 16.

The story is chillingly told in a new book by Peter Meyer, previously the author of "The Yale Murder." Mr. Meyer's intention, clearly, is to call into serious question our governing assumptions about the commission of crime.

The Yale murder was an appalling story. Richard Herrin, a Hispanic from Los Angeles, had an undergraduate affair with Bonnie Garland, of the suburbs. When Garland tried to break off with Herrin, he took direct action. A guest in her home, he beat her brains out with a ball-point hammer as she slept in her bed.

Surprisingly, or not surprisingly, the Yale community — especially its Catholic aspect — put on a major legal and financial effort in behalf of Herrin. He got off with a medium sentence — "temporary insanity" — and will be out in a few years. In the "Yale Murder," Peter Meyer thinks that is all wrong.

Here, he digs even deeper, and raises questions about the nature of violent crime. In fact, he rediscovers the realistic notion of the Bad Kid.

Jamie Savage and Louis Hamlin grew up in the North End slums of Burlington, and in both cases trouble was there from almost the beginning. They were constantly violent, delinquent, and sadistic. They committed innumerable burglaries. They tortured insects and animals.

The initial editorial response, when the two boys were identified as the murderers, was morally pathetic. The editorial writers did not blame the murderers; they blamed the community. "They" — the murderers — "are the victims of a society that failed to meet their needs." We "must wonder whether each of us is not partly to blame for the crime. If we weep for the victims and their families, we must weep for ourselves as well."

That was "enlightened" opinion. But ordinary opinion was having none of it. Savage and Hamlin had to be protected against lynching, and the trial had to be moved 100 miles to the south for reasonable tranquility.

Under then Vermont law, Savage, at 15, was a juvenile and therefore had to be released at 18. In other words, he was free to kill as many people as he liked as a "child," and he was out, free and clear at 18. Needless to say, murderous and thieving kids knew all about this law. It has since been changed: for a number of serious crimes, "kids" are now treated as adults in Vermont.

Louis Hamlin got a stiff sentence that will keep him in prison past age 50. Savage is now at large somewhere.

The scholars and the experts have identified the symptoms of the criminal mind at an early age.

Peter Meyer deserves congratulations. He has rediscovered an undoubted phenomenon, the Bad Kid.

Farm Bill Irritates Everyone

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Once again, Congress has tried to deal with an impossible situation hastily, under great pressure and while trying to please everyone. At issue — philosophical fighting over the new farm bill.

Before Thanksgiving, the Republican-controlled Senate passed a four-year farm bill by a vote of 81 to 28. The House had passed its version of the legislation earlier. Now a House-Senate conference must try to iron out the differences.

The farm bill's passage in the Senate followed hours of closed-door negotiations between senators and Agriculture Secretary John Block. The final hours of acrimonious debate pitted senators against each other, depending on which commodity their states produced. Finally, the Senate bowed to pressure from Democrats and from farm-state Republicans facing re-election next year.

Critics say that all of this fighting might be worth something if the final bill actually solves some of the pressing problems that farmers face — but it's not likely to. The final bill will reduce farmers' incomes in the future, which means that only the fittest and largest farms will survive.

Both the Senate and House bills shrink the two main governmental tools that influence farmers' incomes: the support-loan levels, which put a floor under basic commodity prices; and the direct federal subsidy payments, which prop up farmer income.

The White House is unhappy with the Senate-passed bill, since it would mean annual expenditures of several billion more than the $50 billion lid it hoped to put on farm programs.

However, the White House is much unhappier with the House-passed version, which would cost far more — and which Block calls "simply unacceptable."

As mentioned, the House and Senate bills have common traits:

Both lower the price-support levels for major crops like grains, cotton and rice; this should help to bring those commodities closer to world prices, and thus make them more competitive in foreign markets. Both bills contain administration-backed provisions to boost U.S. farm exports and to take highly erosion-prone land out of production.

The biggest difference between the two bills concerns target prices — the income subsidies paid to wheat, corn, cotton and rice farmers to help guarantee them a certain minimum return for their crops.

The five-year House bill would freeze those subsidy rates at current levels through 1990. The Senate bill calls for a one-year freeze.

Sakharov Family Says Report Of Release Was KGB Ploy

ROME (UPI) — There are no plans to release Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov in exchange for Soviets held in the West, his relatives said, pegging rumors of the swap on the KGB.

The family's comments Tuesday came a day after the Nobel laureate's wife, Yelena Bonner, arrived in Italy for treatment of an eye ailment.

Bonner's son, Alexei Semyonov, and her son-in-law, Efrem Yankelevich, held a news conference Tuesday after flying from Newton, Mass., to meet Bonner on her first trip outside the Soviet Union since 1978.

Sakharov, winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, has been forced since 1980 to live in internal exile in the closed city of Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, for speaking against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Protests Greet Polish President

PARIS (UPI) — Polish President Wojciech Jaruzelski, making his first state visit to the West, is in Paris today to meet with President Francois Mitterrand — a session that has provoked outrage in France.

Jaruzelski arrived Tuesday night to a cool greeting by diplomatic standards. Heads of state traditionally are met at least by a minister, but he was greeted only by the Foreign Ministry's chief of protocol.

Mitterrand's decision to receive Jaruzelski today angered the French, which cut trade credits to the East European country after Jaruzelski declared martial law Dec. 13, 1981, effectively crushing the Solidarity union movement.

Mitterrand is the first Western leader to receive Poland's communist leader, who addressed the U.N. General Assembly in September. President Reagan refused to see Jaruzelski during that visit to New York.

Moslems And Christians Clash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem militia leaders and Prime Minister Rashid Karami studied how to thwart rival forces in west Beirut as Moslem and Christian forces clashed on the heights east of Beirut and in the capital.

Israeli forces in southern Lebanon killed five suspected guerrillas north of the Lebanese-Israeli border Tuesday and sniper fire wounded several people in downtown Beirut, a military spokesman said.

Israeli soldiers were searching for Palestinian guerrillas northeast of the town of Hasbaya when the attack occurred and the soldiers seized "a large quantity of combat material," the spokesman said.

In Beirut, a Moslem group claimed its gunmen attacked an Israeli patrol in the south. An Israeli military spokesman declined comment.

Seven MIA Bodies Recovered

HANOI, Vietnam (UPI) — An American military unit changed from work fatigues to dress uniforms and prepared U.S. flags for the handing over of remains believed to be those of seven Americans killed in the Vietnam War.

The remains were to be turned over in a short, solemn ceremony today at Hanoi's Noi Bai airport and flown to Hawaii for forensic tests.

Aquino Confirms Marcos Challenge

By Fernando Del Mundo

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Corazon Aquino said today she will challenge the presidency of Ferdinand Marcos in early elections and offered the vice presidential spot on her ticket to the only other serious presidential contender.

Armed Forces chief Gen. Fabian Ver, reinstated Monday shortly after being acquitted in the 1983 murder of Aquino's husband, began a top-level military shakeup at a four-hour meeting with Marcos in the presidential palace.

"Without wishing to pass judgment on the qualities of other opposition candidates, I heartily affirm my candidacy and confirm my willingness, if elected, to serve our people as president," Aquino said.

Aquino, 52, told a news conference that she had offered former Sen. Salvador Laurel, the other leading Marcos opponent, the opportunity to run on a single ticket to unseat the 20-year ruler.

She said the challenge facing the anti-Marcos forces was not merely to rally behind one candidate but to field one "who cannot, rightly or wrongly, be seen as a continuation, potential or actual, of the Marcos regime."

Asked about Aquino's offer, Laurel said, "I think the discussions will be very bright in the sense that it will bring about a unification."

Aquino's announcement came quickly after Marcos signed legislation setting early presidential elections for Feb. 7.

Her decision came only one day after the politically charged acquittal of Ver, 24 other soldiers and one civilian of plotting the murder of her husband, opposition politician Benigno Aquino.

Mobs of leftist youths roamed five separate parts of Manila late today banging pots and pans, exploding firecrackers and burning tires to protest the verdict. No arrests or injuries were reported.

Ver, immediately after his acquittal, proposed a broad military reorganization that was discussed at a four-hour meeting today between Marcos and top armed forces and defense officials.

A government announcement said Marcos had reinstated the 24 other acquitted soldiers in their former posts. Among them were Maj. Gen. Prospero Olivas, chief of Manila's Metropolitan Police Command, and Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, head of the elite Aviation Security Command.

In a move that appeared to consolidate Ver's influence, the four-star general promoted his close friend, Coast Guard Commodore Brillante Ochoco, to chief of the Philippine Navy.

He also named a new coast guard commander and assigned or shuffled officers in five army and navy commands. The palace statement said there would also be changes in 20 provincial commanders.

Botha Lifts Emergency As Blacks Bury Dead

By Brendan Boyle

MAMELODI, South Africa (UPI) — President Pieter Botha lifted a 4-month-old state of emergency in eight rural areas Tuesday and more than 45,000 blacks buried 12 riot victims in the first unrestricted mass funeral since July.

"The revolutionary climate ... is fast losing momentum," Botha said in a statement announcing the lifting of the state of emergency in five rural areas in Cape province and in three remote areas south of Johannesburg.

Elements that are ideologically opposed to orderly reform and that went out of their way to drive communities in South Africa toward violent confrontation with each other are being defeated," Botha said in the statement issued in Pretoria.

But the racial violence continued Tuesday. Police said a black man was shot to death and two were wounded when officers fired shotguns at a crowd stoning them in the coastal village of Knysna, between Port Elizabeth and Cape Town.

The state of emergency — first declared by Botha on July 21 to try to curb racial violence — gives police and soldiers unlimited powers of arrest and empowers them to seal off townships and to impose curfews.

The state of emergency remains in force in 28 administrative districts around Johannesburg and Port Elizabeth. Emergency rule is also in effect in two other districts around Cape Town, where it was invoked Oct. 25.

The Dissident Detainees Parents Support Committee said 904 people — most of them blacks — have been killed in the past 15 months of rioting to protest the white-minority government's policy of racial segregation known as apartheid.

The group said of those, 772 were killed this year. It also said more than 6,500 people had been arrested under the state of emergency provisions and that more than 1,200 were still in jail as of Tuesday.

In Mamelodi, a black township about 10 miles from Pretoria, diplomats from 11 countries — including the United States — joined black mourners who waved an outlawed African National Congress flag at a funeral for 12 of 13 black people killed by police during a protest against high rents on Nov. 21.

Police watched the funeral from a hillside camp but did not approach the mourners, who sang and danced for five hours.

Led by a huge green, gold and black flag of the ANC, a black militant group, the crowd jogged about one and a half miles in sweltering heat from the sports stadium in Mamelodi, where services were held, to the township cemetery for the burial.

Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed ANC leader Nelson Mandela, violated provisions of her internal exile to attend the burial.

It was the first unrestricted mass burial of riot victims since July, when 15 people were buried in Kaitleng, near Johannesburg.

U.S. Embassy political counselor Tim Carney, the first American diplomat to attend a funeral for black riot victims, said, "The United States is here to express its support for the principle of peaceful protest and the due process of law."

"We are here to show sympathy with these people of our community who have suffered a loss," Carney said.

Beggs Takes Leave From NASA To Fight Fraud Indictment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA Administrator James Beggs, on the threshold of what he called America's "most important year" in space, is stepping aside to fight a federal indictment charging him with fraud, administration sources say.

Word that Beggs was taking an indefinite leave of absence came while the NASA chief was in Washington overseeing the highly successful mission of the space shuttle Atlantis, which landed in California Tuesday.

Beggs, a former General Dynamics Corp. executive, and three current officers of the firm were indicted Monday on charges of conspiring to defraud the government out of $3.2 million on an ill-fated Pentagon contract.

Singer Kicks Officer, Not Habit

ATLANTA (UPI) — Singer Connie Francis was arrested at Hartsfield International Airport after she allegedly refused requests to extinguish a cigarette aboard a plane and kicked a police officer, police said.

Francis, 48, was arrested about Tuesday after she refused requests from a stewardess, the pilot and co-pilot of a Delta Air Lines plane to extinguish a cigarette, according to Bill Berry, a Delta spokesman.

Atlanta police officers escorted her off the plane, which was en route from Nassau, the Bahamas, to Los Angeles. The plane was being refueled at the time of the incident.

Atlanta police spokesman Kevin Forier said Francis kicked one of the officers as they were walking across the tarmac.

Francis was taken to the Clayton County Jail where she was booked on charges of simple battery of a police officer and criminal trespass. She was released on personal recognizance and continued her journey to Los Angeles about seven hours after her arrest.

DUI when stopped.

A DUI suspect can refuse any or all of the tests.

In the case where a new trial was ordered, the suspect refused to take a breath test, Riggins said. And, he added, the man "did not appear that intoxicated" on the video tape made of him at the Seminole County jail.

This is the first Seminole County case Riggins is aware of which had gone to trial with the case hinging strongly on the eye test.

The test is based on the discovery that in an intoxicated person the eyes involuntarily jerk or jitter when the suspect gazes to the side. It is an involuntary action which cannot be controlled or even felt by the subject. The more severely the eye jerks and the sooner the jittering starts after the suspect begins to follow with his eyes an object, such as a pencil the tester slowly and steadily passes in front of his line of sight, the more highly intoxicated that person is, according Riggins.

got what it wanted." Hepp said he was surprised that there will be no run-off election. "I thought it would be a run-off between Myers and myself, but he got a few more votes than I expected. It was the split vote that killed me," he said.

Although there was no question about her election, Mrs. Lormann expressed dismay at the voter apathy.

The commissioners will be sworn in on Jan. 2.

The report on campaign contributions filed by the candidates prior to the election revealed that Myers, with a total of $2,435 (including a $100 loan) had the most fund, followed by Harvey Smerilson with $2,250 in monetary contributions. Uskert received $2,183.18. Pappas listed a total of $675 in loans, contributions and in-kind donations. Hepp reported $1,104.80 in monetary and in-kind contributions.

Expenditures listed by the candidates were as follows: Myers, $1,428.81; Smerilson, $1,218.73; Uskert, $1,446.94; Pappas, $399.31; Hepp, $814.29; Lormann, $50.

the possibility was raised that this comprehensive review might prompt a request for delay of the formal hearing, Cleveland said "I don't know yet, we may consider it. We also know the city wants to move this thing along."

Falson said the defense attorneys "touched on" the possibility of a delay request while he was giving his deposition.

According to Cleveland, the defense attorneys will also seek depositions from Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and city Utilities Director Paul Moore. He said indications of both sides' legal "strategies" will be more clearly defined at the case management conference.

Witnesses Aid Police In Suspect Nab

Longwood police reported pursuing a fleeing suspect from a pub where he reportedly hit and kicked a man and ripped a $3,000 gold necklace from his neck. The suspect was nabbed near the scene after he fled in a car, a police report said.

Police were called to Suzanne's Oyster Pub on Dogtrack Road at about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday. Witnesses at the scene, who had tried but failed to hold the suspect at the scene, said the man fled after allegedly robbing and assaulting another man in the restroom, the report said.

The victim, who was not named in the report, was followed into the restroom and hit and kicked in the head and legs by the bandit who wielded an 8-inch slap jack and ripped a necklace from the victim's neck.

The suspect fled the restroom only to be captured by bystanders. He succeeded in making an escape and when police arrived they reported pursuing a 1985 Toyota driven by Kathy Scott, 35, from the scene to County Road 427 at Charlotte Road.

There the vehicle was stopped and Ronald Lee Scott, 40, of Kissimmee was charged with armed robbery and aggravated battery. He was being held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

BEER BASHER

A 54-year-old Oviedo man who allegedly hit a clerk at Browdy's Market, State Road 419, Oviedo, in the face and fled with a reputed accomplice taking along a bottle of beer from the store has been charged with robbery, resisting arrest, fleeing to elude police and disorderly intoxication.

His reputed accomplice was also nabbed and charged with obstructing police after allegedly trying to interfere in the other man's arrest. He was also charged with robbery and fleeing to elude police.

The robbery occurred at about 6 p.m. Monday and by about 9 p.m. the two suspects were jailed by Oviedo police after police pursued and caught them and returned them to Browdy's after meeting resistance. The pair was reportedly identified at Browdy's as suspects in the case, a police report said.

Lanzia McKeiver, the alleged hitter, and Freddie McKeiver, 33, both of Box 112 Avenue B, have been charged in the case. The elder McKeiver was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond and the younger on $1,000 bond.

POLICE PURSUIT

A man who fled from the Sanford police station parking lot with a police car pursuing his van reportedly led police on a run through Sanford that ended when the man parked at his home at 1006 Mangostine Ave. and then fled on foot, only to return to the van within a few minutes to be arrested, a police report said.

The officer who pursued the van reported he had been called to the station because of a disturbance at about 2:30 p.m. Monday. During the pursuit the van reportedly ran a stop sign and once the vehicle was stopped and the suspect fled the officer reported noting there were several children in the van.

The suspect who had run from the scene came back to the van and Barry Raymond Wamley, 24, was arrested at his home. He has been charged with resisting without violence, fleeing to elude police, driving with a suspended license and running a stop sign. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

TWO FIRES

Seminole County fire fighters responded to two fires at about 3:30 a.m. Tuesday.

One fire at 530 Carlisle Ave., Altamonte Springs, which investigators believe started because a piece of furniture placed too close to a fireplace ignited, caused about $25,000 damage to the home of Ronald Riley Sr., 48, Riley who was in the home with his son at the time of the blaze was treated at the scene for a burned shoulder, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The other fire, at Thomas Grocery, 2331 Sipes Ave., Sanford, which is also the home of owner Lila May Thomas, 48, did about $2,000 damage to the north side of the building and is believed to have been caused by burning garbage placed near the building, a sheriff's report said. No injuries were reported in that fire.

EXCHANGE WITH ROBBER

A man who approached the car of Andrew Gamber, 25, of 2327 Brookside Ave., Winter Park, on North Street in Altamonte Springs and offered to sell him marijuana put his hand in Gamber's shirt pocket and Gamber grabbed the man by the arm and held him as his car sped along North Street, a sheriff's report said.

The man broke free, taking $18 from Gamber's pocket and he left behind two small bags of marijuana which fell into Gamber's vehicle during the confrontation, the report said.

A sheriff's deputy arrived on the scene at about 3:15 p.m. Monday and a suspect was spotted and pursued on foot by the deputy into woods near County Road 427 and North Street. The suspect got away, but a shirt believed to be his was found in the woods, the report said.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Brian B. Schaefer, 45, of 1170 Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies a thief took silverware, cash, jewelry a $500 video recorder and other items with a total value of several thousand dollars, from his home Monday.

Angela Marie Geiger of P.O. Box 208, Lake Geneva Drive, told sheriff's deputies $120 was stolen from her purse which was taken from between the seats of a Jeep parked at Pete's on State Road 46 at State Road 426 in Geneva at about 7:30 p.m. Monday. The purse was returned by suspects who apologized to Ms. Geiger, but the cash was gone, a sheriff's report said.

A $2,000 pump and fittings were stolen from the entrance of Wingfield subdivision, owned by Wingfield Development Co., Longwood, between Nov. 29 and Monday, a sheriff's report said.

The suitcase of Florence Reis, 64, of Westfield, N.J., was stolen from the garage of her daughter-in-law's home at 101 Smokerie Blvd., Longwood, on Monday or Tuesday. A sheriff's report said the suitcase contained clothing and other items. The suitcase and contents were valued at $1,500.

A $780 motor was stolen from the boat of Wilburn Oglesby of 908 Maple Ave., Sanford, while parked at Marina Isle, State Road 46, Geneva on Sunday or Monday, deputies reported.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

Wright Ignites 'Noles

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — Sixth man is just a literal term when it is applied to Mike Wright.

The Seminole High senior plays just as much as any starter and Tuesday night it was Wright that made the heads up plays in the key situations as the Fighting Seminoles opened the season with a 64-54 victory over DeLand's Bulldogs before 401 fans at DeLand High.

Wright scored four of his 14 points and handed out two of his six assists in the last two minutes Tuesday as Seminole fought off the charging Bulldogs.

"Sometimes kids put too much emphasis on starting," Seminole coach Bill Klein said. "The name of the game is to find a role the kid can play. Mike (Wright) is playing sixth man right now so we can put him in when we need him and wherever we need him."

While Wright provided the spark in the late going, the Tribe got excellent performances from Rod Henderson, Andre "Smooth" Whitney and Craig Walker as it tuned up for tonight's Rotary Tipoff Classic at Winter Park High. Winter Park meets Seabreeze in the second game.

The Seminoles take on Orlando Oak Ridge in the opening round tonight at 7. Also competing in the tournament will be Winter Park, Daytona Beach Seabreeze, Daytona Beach Mainland, Orlando Jones, Orlando Edgewater and West Orange.

"We're going to have to play better defense against Oak Ridge," Klein said. "We were all right in the first half, but did too much reaching in the second."

Walker, a 6-7 sophomore, poured in a game-high 17 points and hauled down 10 rebounds. Walker's imposing presence also kept DeLand from scoring a lot of points in the paint.

Henderson, a 6-4 junior, popped in 12 points and pulled down seven rebounds while Whitney, a 5-10 sophomore, hit 11 points and dished out six assists.

Seminole raced out to a 10-2 lead in the early going as Walker and 6-7 senior Rod Fossitt kept the Bulldogs from scoring anything inside. The Tribe ran its lead to 17-5 at the end of the first quarter.

The Seminoles took their biggest lead on the biggest bucket of the night when Walker slammed home two points on an assist from Robert Hill. Walker, who was fouled on the play, hit the free throw to give Seminole a 21-9 lead.

Seminole, however, got into foul trouble in the second quarter when Whitney and Fossitt both picked up their third fouls. That enabled DeLand to stay within 12, 28-16, at halftime.

Seminole came out blazing in the second half and built up an 18-point lead, 40-22, with 2:55 left in the third quarter. Wright scored four points and handed out two assists in the 12-6 Seminole scoring surge.

DeLand then called a time out and started to work its way back into the game thanks to a full court press and the free throw line. The Bulldogs scored 11 of their 19 third quarter points from the charity stripe while Seminole didn't even attempt a free throw in the quarter. DeLand pulled within five points, 40-35, when Steve Litke threw in a 30-footer at the third-quarter buzzer.

The Bulldogs continued their comeback early in the fourth quarter as they pulled within one point, 44-43, with 5:15 left to play on a pair of free throws by Ed West. For the game, DeLand made 22 of 36 free tosses while Seminole was 12 of 17.

DeLand hung within a point until Seminole reeled off six straight for a 48-45 lead. Henderson's baseline jumper started the rally and, after Wright came up with a steal, Walker was fouled and hit both free tosses. Walker hit two more free throws for a 52-45 lead with 2:57 left to play.

DeLand came back within 52-47 but Wright then broke the Bulldogs' press and hit Walker for a layup and a 54-47 lead. After a DeLand turnover, Wright dished off to Fossitt who hit a short jumper that made it 56-47 with 2:07 left. Wright then hit a pair of baskets to sew up the win for the Tribe.

"Coach (Klein) told me he wanted me to be one of the team leaders this year," Wright said. "When DeLand started coming back it was because we weren't taking our time and we were trying to force the ball. We had to slow the ball down and not make mistakes."

In the final two minutes, it was Wright that took control of the Seminole offense while DeLand made the mistakes.

Scaletta, Marshall Squeeze Boone, 56-55

By Chris Fister

Lyman coach Tom Lawrence is counting on footballers Robert Thomas and Ralph Philpott to supply plenty of offense for the Greyhounds. But, it's going to take some time for the two to get in a basketball frame of mind.

Meanwhile, Lawrence is relying on his returning veterans that have been with the team from the start of practice. Two of those veterans, T.J. Scaletta and Brett Marshall, paved the way Tuesday night as the Hounds opened the season with a 56-55 victory over Boone's Braves at Lyman High.

The Greyhounds return to action Thursday night at DeLand.

Scaletta poured in a game-high 21 points and Marshall worked inside for 15 while Thomas and Philpott combined for 11 more. Boone had four Neither team led by more than six points Monday as Lyman had a three-point halftime lead, 29-26. Boone had a six-point lead early in the fourth quarter but couldn't extend it.

"It was tight all the way," Lawrence said. "And it was pretty sloppy at times. You expect that with the first game."

Lyman took a 56-55 lead with just over a minute remaining, then got the ball back and went into its delay game. Lyman nursed the clock until Scaletta was fouled with 12 seconds left. Scaletta missed the front end of the one and one but Philpott grabbed the rebound. Philpott was fouled, but he too missed the one and one and Boone got the rebound. The Braves.

Turners, Mays Lead Tribe Into Opener

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

The returning lettermen for the Seminole High wrestling team number just three but first-year coach Glenn Malolini can take solace in the fact that the Tribe trio is among the best in the state.

The three returnees are brothers Troy and Tracey Turner and Sheralton Mays. The Turner brothers both did well at the state meet last year while Mays also qualified for the state meet. Seminole opens the season tonight at Daytona Beach against Mainland. Malolini will field four freshman, six sophomores, four juniors and only one senior. "We're going to be really weak in the dual meets this year because of the lack of experience we have," Malolini said. "They (the younger wrestlers) are going to get thrown to the wolves, so to speak."

One Seminole scrapper who won't get thrown to the wolves will be junior Troy Turner. Turner, who wrestles in the 148-pound weight division, is the heart and soul of the Tribe's wrestling force.

"Troy is probably the most accomplished wrestler in the county and maybe the state," Malolini said. "He holds the school record for the most wins ever by a varsity wrestler."

Turner, the older brother of Tracey, finished second at the state championships last year and was named an All-Conference and All-County wrestler for the '84 season. Turner also ended the season with a record of 27-1, the only loss occurred in the state finals. For the past two years, Turner has compiled a record of 50-7 — the best of any Seminole wrestler.

Raiders Rout No. 1 Falcons

Roberts Scores 27 Points As SCC Dominates, 88-76

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Tony Roberts isn't attending Seminole Community College on a music scholarship but he was definitely in tune with a solo performance Tuesday night.

With 1:04 to play and the Raiders holding a commanding lead over No. 1-ranked Florida College, one of SCC's supportive fans, trumpet in hand, stepped up and blew the Taps over a flock of frustrated FC Falcons.

It was a fitting salute to Roberts' too. It was his superb 27-point, four-assist and four-steal effort which closed the coffin lid on Florida College as the Raiders ran away with an 88-76 victory before 300 fans in junior college basketball at the SCC Health Center Tuesday night.

The victory upped the second-ranked Raiders' record to 9-1. With Indian River's tournament looming Friday and Saturday, a pair of wins would vault them into the state's No. 1 spot. Florida College, meanwhile, lost for the first time after eight successive wins.

Falcon coach Don Owens cited the SCC defense, the pressure of being top-ranked and sloppy play from his guards as the cause. "Our guards were out of control," Owens said. "Seminole's defense had something to do with that. The crowd did, too, and our No. 1 ranking. We beat Seminole at our place (81-73) and they wanted us badly."

Badly enough that coach Bill Payne's Raiders never trailed. "We wanted to get them out of their game and that's what we did," Payne said. "We kept them from doing what they wanted to do."

Which was backing in guards Dexter Ray and Oscar Santiago for short turnaround jumpers in the lane or baseline. "We concentrated on stopping their guards from penetrating," Roberts said. "We put one in front and then came over with the backside help."

Roberts and hot-shooting Mike Landell set the tone early as each popped in a pair of jumpers as the Raiders bolted to a 9-4 lead. Florida College closed within 15-13 with 11:37 left in the half but Roberts hit from outside and Landell swiped the ball and fed David Gallagher for a layup and 19-13 lead.

Owens used a series of timeouts to try and stem the onslaught but nothing worked. The Falcons closed within 25-22 but Roberts hit another jumper and 6-8 center Vance Hall found freshman Efram Brooks with a dandy pass for a 29-22 lead.

The margin grew to 39-31 at halftime when Roberts scored on a drive and added a free throw to complete the three-point play. Despite the eight-point bulge, Payne said he was wary at halftime. Roberts and Hall, however, pacified their coach's nerves early in the second half. After Brantley, who finished with 27 points, tossed in three consecutive jumpers to cut the deficit to 43-37, the SCC press took effect.

Gallagher, who handed out eight assists, stole the ball and fed Greg "Slim" Johnson for a layup. Roberts then stole the ball and fed a speeding Hall who dunked it for a 47-37 lead.

"We've been on Vance's case to run the floor," Roberts said. "When a big man can get down the floor, it's the toughest thing for another team to defend."

Which Hall proved 30 seconds later. After Roberts bombed away for two from the outside, he swiped another pass and looked for Hall again. His pass led him perfectly and the 6-8 freshman brought down the house with another crashing slam. He was fouled on the play and his free throw gave the Raiders a 52-37 bulge with 15:45 left.

The advantage grew to 60-39 when Roberts canned another three-point play and then added two more free throws with 13:40 to play. The Raiders, usually inept from the foul line, converted their last 15 foul shots to thwart any Falcon comeback attempts.

Florida College did close within 71-61 with 3:20 to play but Gallagher stole the ball and was fouled. He hit both free throws and when Owens was slapped with a technical foul for stepping onto the court, Gallagher dropped two more for a 75-61 lead with 3:01 to play.

Two minutes later, the noise emerged from "Jack's Pack," a boisterous band of SCC's supportive baseball players, and played last rites for the Falcons.

LADY RAIDERS WIN 6TH
SCC's Lady Raiders pulled out a 49-48 victory in Tuesday's lidlifter despite the absence of sophomores Kim Lemon and Vikki McMurrer, both sidelined with injuries.

Coach Heana Gallagher's women, 6-3, built a big lead and then held on as Fatima Lafond, Elizabeth Dietrich and Lisa Starks each tossed in 12 points.

Wrestling

The younger Turner, who wrestled at 136 last year, has been following, or rather filling, his brother's footsteps. Sophomore Tracey has broken each record his brother has set during each school year.

"Tracey went to the semifinals in the state tournament last year," Malolini said. "That in itself is a great accomplishment. He will become as accomplished as his brother at the rate he's going."

Turner finished up his freshman year with a school record 25 wins with only six losses and a fifth-place state finish.

The Turner brothers have already set the pace for the Fighting Seminole wrestlers with the way they perform each day in practice, according to Malolini.

"They're tough kids," Malolini, who came from Lake Howell after serving five years of coaching there, said. "They have great attitudes and they know what it takes to be a winner."

The Seminoles will have to overcome last year's problems when they only won one dual meet and had problems all year long filling weight divisions because of the lack of participation.

"The problem with last year's team is that it was a much smaller team than this year's," Malolini said. "A smaller team makes a poor dual team and it showed last year."

Even though the Tribe only won a single dual meet all of last year, it did manage to take a 12th place finish at the state meet.

That finish was accomplished with just five wrestlers.

Mays was one of those wrestlers who placed highly in the state meet. Mays, who is a 121-pound junior, was compiling win after win until he was eliminated in the quarterfinals.

"Sheralton Mays did a good job in the state meet last year," Malolini said. "He is definitely one of our top performers for this season."

Across the county, Lake Howell too has some top performers returning for this season.

Returning for the Silver Hawks will be seniors Marty Lacore (heavyweight) and Jim Sandberg (157 pounds), juniors John O'Shay (220), Henry Heim (169), Nate Hoskins (140), Dave Sigler (134) and Dave Miller (129).

Head coach Joe Corso will be looking for Miller to be the key man on the mat this year after his performance in the state meet last year.

"Dave qualified for the state meet last year after having a great year," Corso said. "He should do well this year if he stays healthy."

The Silver Hawks will look to better last year's ledger when they were 8-6 in dual meets, a fourth place at the district meet, and two qualifiers in the state championships. They open the season tonight at New Smyrna Beach.

"We didn't do too bad last year," Corso, who is in his fifth year of coaching wrestling at Lake Howell, said. "This year we should

Bass Fisherman Key Schedules Seminar For Sanford Wal-Mart

Pro Bass Fisherman James Key will be in Sanford Friday to conduct a fishing seminar at the Sanford Wal-Mart Store. Key, a native of Troy, Ala. has over 10 years experience as a water conservationist and boating safety instructor. He has also fished the pro bass fishing circuit for many years, earning great respect from his peers.

Many radio stations feature his weekly syndicated fishing show and Key also writes a weekly fishing column in many newspapers. He has also written several articles for national magazines.

"I've got all sorts of films on fishing and hunting that I want to share with all the outdoorsmen in the area," Key said. "There are new ways of fishing and new kinds of equipment being introduced each year. All the weekend fishermen need to know all of this so they can better their performance. I'll also be spooling STREN Line for 1¢ per yard on your reels. You can't beat that deal."

Visitors to Key's outdoor seminar can also register for seven fishing and one hunting trip with eight of America's greatest outdoorsmen.

They include Hank Parker (Bass Classic Champion), Jimmy Rodgers (Host of Anglers in Action TV Show), Billy Westmoreland (Number one smallmouth bass fisherman in the world), Shaw Grigby (1984 Red Man All American Champion), Tony Couch (Hottest young bass fisherman in Georgia), Steve McAdams (the Premier Crappie in the country), Shag Shahid (trick casting champion) and Ben Lee (World Champion Turkey Caller).

Gillick Is Top A.L. Executive

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Gillick, the architect of the American League East champion Toronto Blue Jays, Tuesday was named the Major League Executive of the Year by United Press International.

In voting by 26 UPI baseball correspondents, Gillick received 20 votes to run away with the award. Others receiving mention were Whitey Herzog of the Cardinals, John Schuerholz of the World Series champion Royals, Mike Port of the Angels, Bill Bergesch of the Reds and Roy Eisenhardt of the A's.

Gillick, who has been with the Blue Jays since their inception in 1976, built Toronto from an expansion nobody to a division winner in 1985.

During the AL playoffs in October, Gillick, a former minor-leaguer in the Orioles' chain, said he learned the most from the systems that operate in Baltimore, Los Angeles and Kansas City.

Stetson Showcases ICBA Cagers

The Inter-County Basketball Association has booked another preliminary for its teams. The ICBA will play at DeLand before the Stetson-Xavier game on Jan. 2. The teams will be guests of Stetson University for the game.

The ICBA's "Little Guys League" will conduct its first season of play with four teams made up of fourth and fifth grade boys and girls. They will practice and learn for the next month and start league play after the holidays, playing once a week at either Oviedo or Lake Howell high schools, according to Mickey Norton, ICBA executive president.

ICBA teams not playing in the December tournament will kick off play when the League season starts Jan. 4.

Any boys or girls — grades 4 through 8 or boys in HS, 18 and under not playing school ball, who would like to play with an ICBA team in their area, call Norton at 365-4040.

Oviedo Sets 'Christmas Classic'

The Oviedo Women's Softball League will host its first "Christmas Classic" Softball Tournament on the weekend of Dec. 14-15 at the Oviedo Little League Complex. The tourney will be a double-elimination affair open to Women's class C and D caliber teams.

The entry fee for the tourney will be $85 plus two new balls. In addition to the tourney play there will be an added "Softball Olympics" for the teams that enter. Each will be allowed to submit one entrant for the power hitting, baserunning and throwing accuracy/distance contests.

Any teams wishing to enter should contact Mickey Norton at 365-4040.

Outriggers Takes Over Top Spot

The Outriggers moved into sole possession of first place in the Sanford Recreation Department Co-Ed Volleyball A League with a sweep of the Patriots last week.

The Outriggers swapped the Patriots, 15-11, 15-7 and 11-3 to improve to 17-1 while the second-place Patriots dropped to 14-4.

In other action, the Blood Mongers II topped Sanford Blues, 15-7, 15-2, 15-7 and the Cobras drilled the Afternoon Delights, 8-15, 15-2, 15-7. The Savages took B&M via forfeit.

Baseball Signups At Casselberry

The City of Casselberry Parks and Recreation Board will hold registration for T-Ball and Little League Minor and Major League play on Tuesday, Dec. 10, according to Sharon Ellis, parks and recreation director.

The registration begins at 7:30 p.m. at South Seminole Middle School located on Winter Park Drive. For information on fees, call the Parks and Recreation Department at 831-3551, Ex 260.

Brett Leads First-Time Glovers

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Kansas City third baseman George Brett was among six players named Tuesday as first-time winners of the Gold Glove award for fielding excellence.

Three other newcomers came from the American League — first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, shortstop Alfredo Griffin of Oakland and outfielder Gary Pettis of California.

Jacksonville Holds Off Marion

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Jacksonville University withstood an early second half 10-point surge by Francis Marion College of South Carolina and went on to record its third straight triumph in as many games with a 69-60 win.

The Dolphins were paced by Otis Smith's 16 points. Cleveland William's 15 points and Danny Pearson's 14 points.

Tickets On Sale At Lake Mary

Tickets for Friday's Section 5A-1 football showdown between Lake Mary and Pensacola Woodham are on sale at the Lake Mary High School athletic office between 7:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. today through Thursday.

Reserved seat tickets are $5 and general admission seats are $4. Tickets will be available until noon Friday.

Lindsey, Martin Gobble Up Foes

(Editor's note: Beginning next week, Chuck Burgess' swimming column will move to Tuesday in the Evening Herald.)

This past weekend in the Justus Dolfini of Orlando Turkey Weekend Special swim meet, the swimmers of the host team stroked away with records and best times to begin the short course AAU season.

The most impressive swimmer of the meet had to be 12-year-old Austin Lindsey. Lindsey, who doesn't age up for another six months, swam his way to six new state age group records and nearly broke a national record in the 500-yard freestyle.

Lindsey, from Oviedo, broke records in the 50 and 100 breaststrokes, 100 fly, 200 individual medley, and the 100 and 200 freestyle events.

Lindsey's time in the 500 free was close to two seconds slower than his time in the state meet last weekend when he broke the national record for 11- and 12-year-olds. Unfortunately for Lindsey, who is only in the seventh grade at Trinity Prep, the record-breaking time must be swum in a sanctioned AAU swim meet in the state of Florida.

The only other record broken in the meet was by 14-year-old butterflyer Nathan Martin. Martin eclipsed his own record in the 100-yard butterfly and also qualified for the Junior National Short Course Championships in April.

Martin, who missed the junior national qualifying time in the preliminaries of the 100 fly, took out his first 50 yards .78 of a second faster and pulled in the last 25 yards of the race with a strong desire to reach his goal.

Chuck Burgess

The result was an unbelievable 52.27. The time for the national meet was a 52.39 and is seldom reached by swimmers Martin's age.

For Martin's performance, he was awarded the swimmer of the week award for the Dolfini.

Other outstanding swimmers of the weekend were turned in by Dolfini of all age groups. Among them included Charlie "Dog Bone" Fry (senior age division) in the 500 free. Fry made the national meet by going 4:39. Well under the 4:41 needed to qualify.

Others who had great swims included Robbie McMichael (senior), Peter Schuyten (senior), Andre Diefenthaler (senior), Jack Jackson (senior), Colin Cooley (13-14), Brent Woods (11-12), William "Porky" Campbell, and Alex Fishberg (senior).

The best of the girls included Tanya Rose (13-14), Lauren Aspinwall (13-14), Kelly

Daughtery (13-14), Casey Burgess (13-14), Natalie Stewart (senior), Lianna Schuyten (senior), Renee Schuyten (13-14), Staci Kerr (13-14) and Jen Duncanson (13-14).

This week three swimmers of the Justus Dolfini of Orlando will partake in an international swim meet in Texas.

The three members who will swim in this prestigious meet are Rachael Weightman, Jenny Higgins and Christie Lindgren. The three girls will represent Central Florida and the Dolfini in the biggest swimming event of the year.

The Lyman Swim Club will begin its season this week under head coach Don Clark. Clark will be offering a three hour senior (high school) practice starting at 3 p.m. daily and will be open to any swimmer in the area.

The team is looking for interested youngsters to join the growing team. Swimmers between the ages of six and 18 are asked to sign up.

Coach Clark has been coaching in the Orlando area since 1969 and has been at Lyman High School for the past three years. In that time, Lyman has captured the conference title each year, the girls team placed third in the district meet and the boys managed a second in the same meet and the boys added a fifth place finish at the state championships.

Anyone interested is asked to contact Clark at 831-5600.

Good Rackets Can Cost $30 Or $300

I'm sure that the question that I am most often asked by my students is, "What kind of racket should I buy?" It's a good question and one that really does not have a quick or simple answer.

There are hundreds of rackets on the market today and they range anywhere from excellent, well made and very dependable to awful, quickly constructed and apt to explode when a ball comes near the strings.

There is no doubt that coming up with a racket that feels comfortable for you and one that you have confidence in is a vital part of playing good tennis. It's not the most important thing I've never seen a racket improve anyone's foot work or make them quicker, but it is a very significant part of the overall tennis picture for you.

To begin with when you go looking for a new racket do not believe the ads in tennis magazines or tennis shops that promise, "use the _____ racket and you'll become a legend in your own time," or use the "_____ racket and win the hearts of all the ladies" or, the ad that says "want to beat your boss?" Then use the _____ racket and your fantasies become a reality.

You would be shocked at how many rackets are sold with this type of advertisement. Usually you pay much, much more for a racket under these conditions than you should. You have been tricked by the advertisement.

I'm not a real good player but I've been trying to play this game for over 20 years. I've used all sorts of rackets — some of which have cost as much as $250.

Larry Castle

I used to change rackets every time a new one came out that promised to improve my game. For the past two years I've been using an oversized aluminum racket that I bought at K-mart for $19. That's right — $19. It is a discontinued model of the head director I put new strings in all the pre-strung rackets I buy and new grips and believe it or not, this K-mart racket is the best racket I have ever played with.

I bought seven of them and I hope I can find some more. This racket was right for me because it is light, moves through the air easily and has a flexible shaft. It is perfect for my type of game and better still for my tennis elbow. For you, though, it might not feel good at all.

Look for the following when finding what is right for you.

● Grip size: usually men use 4 1/4 to 4 3/4 inch grip sizes. Women use 4 1/4 to 4 1/2 inch. However, this is a matter of preference so handle the racket or even try to hit with a demo before you buy a specific size and model.

● Your type of game: if you are very steady but lack power a flexible shaft and more weight in the hand would be right for you. This will give you more power. If you like to blast the ball and have lots of power then a stiffer shaft will give you more control.

● Material racket is made of: this is purely a matter of taste. I do not like graphite and I hate wood. The composite seem unsatisfactory for me. I'm comfortable with aluminum. You should get what you feel good with.

● String tension: more and more the top players are going to looser tension. McEnroe is under 50 pounds tension and so is Connors. You will have less stress on the arm with looser string and you will have more power. Control suffers, though.

● Finally, how much do you want to spend?: believe me you can get a great racket for under $30 or you can spend $300. Shop around, look for sales as the choices are endless.

Zivojinovic Surprises McEnroe

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — John McEnroe wilted under the power of Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia and was eliminated in five sets Wednesday from the $1.5 million Australian Open.

Zivojinovic, who defeated Mats Wilander in the first round of Wimbledon, captured three of the last four sets with astonishing authority and won by scores of 2-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4, 6-0.

The capacity crowd booed McEnroe as he grabbed his racket bag and stormed off the Kooyong center court without waiting for Zivojinovic. The unseeded Yugoslavian was mobbed and kissed by a half-dozen females while the crowd of 9,500 gave him a standing ovation.

McEnroe on Monday rallied from a 2-1 deficit in sets to Henri Leconte of France. But Wednesday there was to be no recovery against Zivojinovic, who hammered the New Yorker with fiery first serves, powerful volleys and magnificent passing shots.

Zivojinovic's stunning victory concluded play for McEnroe in 1985 — a year he would rather forget. This marked the first time since 1982 the volatile American failed to win a Grand Slam event.

Zivojinovic will meet the winner of the Johan Kriek-Mats Wilander quarterfinal match to be played later in the day.

In an earlier fourth round match, top seed Ivan Lendl struggled past South African Christo Steyn to gain a quarterfinal berth.

The 6-foot-6 Yugoslav, ranked 71st in the world, earned $24,903 in pummeling McEnroe into submission, which is $7,302 more than he earned last year.

It was as bitter match.

McEnroe, who led two sets to one, appeared headed for a semifinal berth in his quest for his first Australian championship. Zivojinovic, however, blasted an ace past the second seed in the opening game of the fourth set. McEnroe belted the ball which whistled past Zivojinovic's face. The big 22-year-old glared at his smaller opponent and that tension remained in the final three sets.

Zivojinovic held service throughout the fourth set and evened it at two sets. Zivojinovic took McEnroe's opening service in the fifth set with an ace followed by a forehand return which caught McEnroe flatfooted.

The Yugoslav broke McEnroe again to lead 3-0. After a baseline rally, the Yugoslav played a drop shot which McEnroe hit off the top of the net onto Zivojinovic's racket. The Yugoslav slammed the ball away for a winner.

Zivojinovic led 4-0 and McEnroe, who received a doubtful line call, appeared dejected and shook his head when the umpire called the ball good.

Zivojinovic set up two match points when he ripped another ace for a 40-15 advantage. McEnroe, the fight punched out of him by Zivojinovic's power, played a carefree return wide of the line.

Lendl, who cursed his way through the 2-hour and 23-minute rain-delayed match, finally gathered himself and won 6-3, 6-2, 6-7 (7-3) 6-2.

Smiling Seminoles

There were a lot of smiling Seminoles at Monday night's awards banquet. This foursome was a big reason the junior varsity and freshman teams posted identical 6-2 records. From the left, halfback Jarod

Jones was the offensive MVP and linebacker Willie Grayson was the defensive MVP. Halfback Leonard Lucas was the JV offensive MVP and linebacker Tracey Turner was the junior varsity defensive MVP.

Shula Enjoys Electricity As Dolphins Fry Bears

MIAMI (UPI) — Monday night's win over the Chicago Bears had all the trappings of Miami coach Don Shula's greatest moments in the Orange Bowl.

There was Chicago trying to become the first team since the 1972 Dolphins to go undefeated through the playoffs. There was the importance of the game for Miami's playoff chances. Also, there was the crowd, 75,594 strong, with zero no-shows.

"My greatest moments in the Orange Bowl are like (Monday) night," Shula said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "The crowd is into the ballgame, the electricity flows. You go out on the field for the pre-game warmups and you can feel the excitement. It pumps you up ... The next thing you know, you're involved in a highly emotional game."

It certainly pumped the Dolphins up to the tune of a 38-24 win over Chicago. The win puts Miami in a three-way tie for first place with the New York Jets and New England in the AFC East at 9-4. The Bears are 12-1, ensuring that the 1972 Dolphins will remain the only team to win all their regular season and playoff games — at least through this season.

"From my standpoint, preserving the unbeaten record and keeping us tied for first place were the two most important things," Shula said. "Not necessarily in that order. My thrust now is keeping the team tied for first."

Miami dominated the first half, taking a 31-10 lead and scoring on all five possessions.

"That first half had to be as fine a first half as I've been around in a long, long time," Shula said. "Five possessions and we get four touchdowns and a field goal. There were a lot of big plays in the first half."

As is almost always the case in 1985 for Miami, there was some discouraging injury news to go with the win. Pro-Bowl center Dwight Stephenson suffered a shoulder injury and his status for Sunday's game at Green Bay is uncertain, although he told Shula Tuesday he would be ready to play. Also, offensive tackle Jon Giesler, plagued by a bad knee all season, is suffering from a sore knee and ankle after playing his first game in three weeks.

Wide receiver Mark Clayton suffered bruised ribs and a sore knee, and linebacker Mark Brown has a pinched nerve in his neck.

Once again, the Dolphins are left with only five healthy offensive linemen, although help could come from tackle Cleveland Green, recovering from a sprained ankle.

MacIntyre: Little Hope For Vanderbilt Program

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Outgoing Vanderbilt football coach George MacIntyre says he is pessimistic about the future of the school's football program, as he announced his resignation at the end of a 3-7-1 season for the Commodores.

During a question-and-answer session following his announcement Tuesday, MacIntyre was asked what it would take to produce a winner at Vandy and about the future of the football program.

He replied that the school has a nucleus of fine players but needed six or seven "stemwinders."

He said without that many outstanding players, "Vanderbilt will have to be content with what we've been. I'm not content."

MacIntyre said there are "great students who are great athletes but they are being recruited by state schools."

MacIntyre cited increasingly

tough academic standards at the private institution as part of his reason for leaving.

"One of the biggest reasons is the continuing rise in academic standards, both in admissions and in the retaining of student athletes," he said in a prepared statement.

"I certainly don't condemn the university for these standards because in my opinion there is none better. But I am stating the facts as I see them."

MacIntyre had a 25-52-1 record over seven years at the private university. Six of those seasons were losing seasons. The Commodores finished 3-7-1 this year.

MacIntyre defended his coaching ability, saying he produced an exciting football team to watch with many records being set.

Mandy's 4 Goals Pulverize 'Noles

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

The defending state champion Lyman Lady Greyhounds successfully opened their season Tuesday night by destroying the Lady Seminoles from Sanford, 9-0, in prep soccer action at Seminole High.

Leading the scoring flurry for the Greyhounds was senior Sheila Mandy who had one better than a hat trick with her four goals.

The Lady 'Hounds built a comfortable halftime lead by hitting four goals in the first 20 minutes of play. Mandy split her scoring by drilling two goals in the first and two in the second half.

"Our girls had a good night," said head coach Tom Barnes. "We play Orange Park this Saturday. That should be a better game for us."

Helping Mandy with the scoring was Bonni Steeves and Dawn Boyce who had two goals apiece and Linda Schultheis who added another.

The Lady Seminoles, who played without much of their team due to a virus going around the school, didn't have much of a chance from start to finish, according to head coach Suzy Reno.

"I really wasn't disappointed," Reno in her third year of coaching the Seminole team said. "I don't think we really expected to win."

The Greyhounds have only lost one game in the past two years and return all but one of their starters from a year ago. Behind a powerful offense and an impenetrable defense, the 'Hounds went 24-0 last year to capture the school's first soccer state title.

"We're a very small, young and inexperienced team," Reno said. "We have a lot of work to do during the season."

Even though the 'Hounds stomped all over the 'Noles, goalkeeper Sheri Rumler had 25 saves on the night. Rumler was helped by defenders Kim Machnik and Cindy Benga.

The Greyhounds had five corner kicks, but couldn't convert a single one due to Rumler's aggressive play between the pipes.

The Lady Seminoles will travel to Trinity Prep to play the Saints on Thursday at 6 p.m.

Another tough county soccer girls' team opened successfully Tuesday night. Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots followed the example set by the Patriot boys and kicked their way to a 3-0 shutout of the Winter Park Lady Wildcats.

The scoring took a while to develop because of the two tough defensive styles the teams possess. However, the ice was finally broken when Katherine Hawkins took a pass from Julie DeRusso and kicked it in for the first score of the evening with 10 minutes left to play in the first half. That was all the scoring in the first half as the two teams prepared for the second half with the Lady Patriots holding a 1-0 lead.

The second half started with a bang when Cara Marien hit one through the Wildcat net after Jennifer Josephs placed the ball in the perfect spot on a nice pass over the middle. The Lady Patriots led 2-0 with 21:28 left to play in the game.

LADY 'HOUNDS WIN

LONGWOOD — Lyman coach Dick Copeland said Tuesday night's victory over Boone wasn't the most exciting basketball game he's ever seen but he is elated his Lady Greyhounds are unbeaten after two games. Once again Tuesday, senior Kim Forsyth dominated the action with 19 points and 15 rebounds as the Lady Greyhounds broke to an early lead and maintained it throughout for a 47-41 victory over the Lady Braves at Lyman High School.

"Kim mixed it up pretty well," Copeland said. "She did her scoring inside and outside."

Forsyth had help on the boards and in the scoring column from LaTonya Johnson. The 5-8 senior tallied 13 points and pulled down seven boards. Senior Denise Stevens added nine points to the cause.

Lyman, 2-0, hosts Oviedo Saturday at 6:30 p.m. Boone fell to 0-3.

LADY RAMS PRESS APOPKA

APOPKA — Lake Mary coach Bill Moore wanted to press the issue. Sooner or later, he knew it would pay off.

After pressuring Apopka most of the first half and coming away with just a 22-18 edge, Moore said he thought it was just a matter of time.

It was. With Karen DeShetler, Tonya Lawson and Anquetette Whack accounting for 17 steals, the Lady Rams ran away with a 54-26 victory over the Lady Blue Darters in District 4A-9 prep basketball at Apopka High School Tuesday night.

Lake Mary, which hosts Mainland tonight, improved to 2-1. Apopka fell to 0-2.

"We just wore them down the second half. Our press really bothered them," Moore said.

Lake Mary outscored Apopka, 12-6, in the third quarter as Whack stole the ball twice and scored, once converting a three-point play as Lake Mary took a 34-24 bulge into the fourth quarter.

In the final eight minutes, the Lady Rams dominated completely, outscoring Apopka, 20-2, to coast home with the win. Lawson stole the ball three times and scored while Cynthia Patterson and Whyte controlled the boards.

DeShetler led the way with 13 points and five steals. Whack had 10 points and seven thefts. Lawson added eight points and five steals. Whyte and Patterson each grabbed 11 boards. Whyte also blocked three shots.

be a little stronger in the middle weights. We need to work a little harder in the upper weights if we want to be successful."

Lake Howell, like Seminole, is a young team in experience, according to Corso. "We're a pretty young team for having so many returnees," Corso said. "We still need a lot of experience during the year."

A team who will not need too much experience this year will be Kevin Carpenger's Lake Brantley Patriots. The Pats, who return six starters from the junior varsity and only one from varsity, will look to Jeff Petersen for the pins in the thick spots.

"Jeff Petersen is our only returning varsity wrestler," Carpenger said. "He will be a strong one in the heavyweight division."

Petersen, who wrestles in the 222-pound division, helped put the Patriots to a good year with strong performances in the district and regional meet last year. With his help, the Patriots managed a 11-3 dual meet record and placed second in the district and fourth in the region.

"I'm really happy about our season last year," Carpenger said. "We don't know if we'll be a good dual meet team or a good tournament team."

The Patriots will be in a transition year, according to Carpenger.

"We'll be in a rebuilding year," Carpenger said. "We have 60 kids that came out, but hardly any of them have wrestled before."

Assisting Carpenger this year will be Scott Roth and Doug Bacon. The Patriots, who split a dual meet last week, host Lyman and Mainland for a triangular meet Saturday at noon.

Mount Dora Tops Howell; Johnson Lifts Lady Hawks

Lake Howell's Silver Hawks were hurt by 17 turnovers and 36 percent shooting from the floor Tuesday night as they opened the season with a 69-59 loss to Mount Dora at Lake Howell High.

The Hawks took a 15-14 lead after one quarter but Mt. Dora came back to outscore them, 13-6, in the second quarter or a 27-21 halftime lead. Mt. Dora went on to take a 14-point lead in the fourth quarter before Lake Howell trimmed it to eight. But the Hawks ran out of time.

Kevin Lienard was high for Lake Howell with 17 points. John Lowe tossed in 13. Todd Peterson contributed 10 and Mark Schnitker added eight.

"We made a lot of first-game mistakes," Lake Howell coach Greg Robinson said. "We turned the ball over in key situations and that really hurt us. We played well in the first quarter but then started to get away from the things we were doing well."

LADY HAWKS WIN IN 2 OTS

Jolee Johnson stole the ball and scored with 45 seconds left in double overtime as Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks trimmed Mt. Dora, 67-65, at Lake Howell High.

The Lady Hawks improved to 2-3 with the win and return to action Thursday at Apopka. Mount Dora fell to 0-1.

Erin Hankins, who has hit double figures in all but one game this season, led the way with 17 points while Johnson hit 16.

Reesman Hat Trick Propels Silver Hawks

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

Eric Reesman scored a hat trick as the Lake Howell Silver Hawks successfully opened their season against the Edgewater Eagles Tuesday night in prep soccer action.

Coach Norm Wight's Silver Hawks came from behind after the Eagles scored an early goal in the first half. The Silver Hawks then put in five unanswered goals to post their first win in as many tries of the season.

Reesman started things by hitting the first three goals of the evening for the Hawks. Shawn Makey added another in the second half and Byron Droze ended the scoring spree in the closing minutes of the second half.

Lake Howell outshot the Eagles 18-4 and had three corner kicks to Edgewater's none.

In other boys prep soccer action Tuesday night it was coach Jim Brody's Lake Brantley Patriots shutting out the Winter Park Wildcats, 4-0.

Chris McManus led the scoring for the Patriots with two goals, leading the Patriots to a 3-0 halftime lead.

McManus' first goal was assisted by Mike Shanahan while his second score was unassisted. Other goals were put through by Cory Sheffield and Dirk Hortian.

Bob Skinner assisted Sheffield's goal and Hortian was a straight shot up the middle with no assist.

Lake Brantley totally outshot the Wildcats, 32-9. The Patriots had one more save than the 'Cats and they also outdistanced Winter Park, 4-1, in corner kicks.

Lake Mary and Seminole weren't as fortunate as the other two county teams in their season debut, losing to Oak Ridge, 1-0, and Lyman, 9-0, respectively.

Lake Mary, who will face fourth-ranked (4A) Lake Howell at Lake Mary Thursday at 6 p.m., held the Pioneers to a scoreless first half with the defensive play of Vinay Jotwany, Louis Rosen, Scott Schmitt and Chris Risko.

"We played very well defensively," head Ram coach Larry McCorkle said. "We just couldn't create chances for ourselves to score."

The Rams and Pioneers each had 14 shots on goal, equaled the corner kick statistic and the Pioneers only had one more save than the Rams. Unfortunately for the Rams and McCorkle, that one save cost them the game.

With 12 minutes left in the game, Oak Ridge's Les Broussard took a 45-yard pass from Tony Vicari and put a shot through the goal posts to give the Pioneers a 1-0 lead.

Ron Swift and his mother, Isabel, practice teamwork to become a "dynamic duo" in the kitchen.

Cook Of The Week

'Cooking Comes Naturally'

By Dorothy Greene
Herald Correspondent

When teamwork counts, Ron Swift, our Cook Of The Week, calls on his mother, Isabel, and together this "dynamic duo" can turn out a catered affair without ever getting in each other's way in the kitchen. In his own right, Ron is a fantastic cook whose Scandinavian background lends credence to the fact that he comes by it naturally.

"My interest in cooking just comes naturally," says Ron. "Mom's always been a good cook, and so are my sisters. And my grandmothers were especially good cooks. I can remember going to grandmother's for Thanksgiving and, my gosh, you just wouldn't believe all the things she had on the table, all the Swedish treats."

Even Ron's brothers took an interest in cooking, and one, who is now deceased, was especially good at making roast goose. Another brother's specialty is making Scandinavian pastries, says Ron, so this year's holiday season is sure to have an abundance of favorites.

Ron is a Sanford resident whose roots began in Minneapolis. When he was a 16-year-old high school student, Ron worked in a very famous restaurant there called "Shiek's Cafe," which was the dining place for Presidents when they visited Minneapolis. "It was a German restaurant," says Ron. "and I used to help prepare the salads and wash glasses. I was there a year ago, and it is still in existence."

Family life at the Swift's was always very warm and devoted, and, says Ron, "When I think back about my early childhood, I always remember a big family, a happy family, a family that did things together. We played together, we worshiped together, we stayed together a lot. I thought all families were like that, but I found out differently when I went out west to California. Half the kids I knew came from broken homes and it just amazed me."

At the age of 25, Ron headed for Los Angeles, California and lived there for 15 years while working for an aluminum company. "The folks joined me there the last five years," says Ron, "and we were all together again. That's where I learned to bake bread, and, strangely enough, I sold about 7 or 8 loaves a week to people I worked with. I also baked cinnamon rolls, which I learned from my mother."

"He's still a bachelor," says Isabel, Ron's mother. "But I'm thinking now that it might be good to get married," says Ron, with a chuckle. On a more serious note, Ron says, "It's something you don't like to think about, but one day you aren't going to have your parents around and it would be very lonesome without them around the house." With an implied twinkle in his eye, Ron's dad says, "I've only got another 50 years to go and Ron will only be 100 then!" The rapport between Ron and his parents is quite evident and is a fine example of mutual respect and admiration.

At the urging of his brother, who was stationed at the Naval base, Ron and his parents moved to Sanford in 1971, and two days later Ron began working for Orange County. "I've been in the computer business all my life," says Ron. "I've been a computer programmer, then a systems analyst, then manager of a systems department, and two years ago I had the opportunity to program and design micro computer systems for the county. Computers are fascinating," Ron says, "and the complexion of the microcomputer changes every day. What is state-of-the-art today, may be obsolete a year from now."

Although the computer field and kitchen patrol may seem worlds apart, Ron is very comfortable working to prepare the most elegant meals, from church functions to weddings. It all started in 1974 when Ron and his family joined the Sanford

Christian Church and a lady at the church needed help to cater a wedding, "and she knew I liked to cook so she asked me to help her," says Ron. "The next wedding came along and they asked if I would cater it. It was simple, just cocktail meatballs and finger sandwiches, etc. But then it became a habit, and through word of mouth it grew." Ron uses the kitchen facilities available at the church where 3 ovens can accommodate a wide variety of menu items. Last year, Ron catered his boss's wedding which was a dinner-type celebration featuring roast beef and ham, for almost 200 guests. "I generally cater where I can cook in church's kitchens," says Ron, "or in the person's home, and only for friends or family."

When Ron retires, his greatest ambition is to have his own catering service — with a new twist. "A lot of people can't afford catering," says Ron. "I would like to have a place where people could rent everything they need, the serving pieces and all the trimmings. They could order whatever they wanted and I would prepare the fresh food trays and package them up. This way people could come in, pick up what they need and go home and fix their own spread. It would be much cheaper than having me go in, set up tables and serving pieces, and then clean up afterward."

Ron is very serious about his dream and hopes to find just the right location to start his own business. "I would rather cook than do anything else I can think of," says Ron. "And working 12 or 14 hours a day wouldn't bother me at all. But I can't do that until I retire and can take full time to find a building and put in the kitchen, the freezers, the walk-in coolers and all the things you need for something like that."

Ron has an impressive collection of cook books, including a complete set of gourmet books, and some professional cook books, one of which is actually used by the American Culinary Institute as a text book. Ron's collection numbers about 4 to 5 hundred, so that a special cupboard was built to house them. "He reads cook books like I read novels," says Isabel. "He knows we don't have room for any more, so he sneaks them in the house," she laughs, "and I find them later."

Ron and Isabel make it a family affair when preparing for church functions. Isabel is in charge of the fellowship committee at church, and Ron says, "Right now we're planning a Thanksgiving-Christmas dinner to welcome our new minister on December 7th. We're going to have about three turkeys with all the trimmings." Isabel's specialty is brown and serve rolls which can be made in advance, fast-frozen in plastic bags, then just baked for 10 minutes before serving. "A lot of people have wanted my recipe," says Isabel, "so now it's theirs." Working in a full time job, Ron says he couldn't do without Isabel's help. "We work real good in the kitchen," says Isabel, "and we don't get in each other's way." Generally, Ron prepares the meats and vegetables while Isabel works on salads, desserts, pastries and rolls. Their routine is down to a science, whether for everyday meals or catered events. For large functions, Isabel will usually prepare the vegetables, fruits, pastries and desserts, while Ron works with roasts, chicken wings, meatballs, etc. Isabel estimates that she can turn out about 100 finger sandwiches an hour, using chicken salad, cheese spreads, salmon salad, egg salad and much more. Although their roles are interchangeable, and both Ron and Isabel are proficient at what they do, the teamwork is what counts for a successful meal.

Isabel and Ron are both avid bowlers, and Isabel was the recipient of a gold medal at the Golden Age Games in 1984 for the highest score in her age group. "Besides bowling, church is my hobby," says Ron. An elder at Sanford Christian Church, Ron says, "Church is my whole life. I teach Sunday School and love working with the youth, especially the troubled ones. I try to take whatever time I have to help young people who are troubled or are in trouble." Isabel says that Ron is very logical and very understanding and has even helped married couples who have had problems. Ron feels that because he has never been married, he can be more objective and therefore, see both sides of a situation, which can be helpful.

Ron loves to make soups and soup stocks and sauces, "and I've just been reading an article on how to make stocks and brown sauces," he says. "I love to do that. I'll go get the bones and put them in the oven and brown them with vegetables, then dump them all in a soup kettle. But, unfortunately, Florida doesn't lend itself to that kind of cooking except in the cold season of the year which is very limited. We've talked several times about getting a place in the Carolinas or some place where they had some seasons so I could do the kind of cooking I like, but I don't think I could do that anymore. The church family has become so important to me, and there are so many friends that we have at church, I would be lost without the church family."

Every February Ron combines his favorite pastime, cooking, with a vacation to West Virginia by accompanying a group from the church on a ski trip. "I used to ski as a kid in Minnesota, but I don't anymore," says Ron. "I don't want any broken bones. But I go with them and I cook for the group." Isabel is the hospitality chairman at church and also enjoys preparing arts and crafts projects for the Vacation Bible School.

Along with a perky little Cockapoo named "Toby," the Swifts are looking forward to a bountiful holiday season. Christmas will be spent at brother Gary's in Deltona. Ron's sisters Marilyn and Pat will be with their families in Michigan. "They usually come to visit in October," says Ron, "and that's when we really have fun. We all get together with our cooking ideas, and they'll put little slips of paper in my recipe books to mark the ones they want me to Xerox and send to them."

Whoever is lucky enough to become Mrs. Ron Swift one day, will surely be pleased to have a helpmate who is so undeniably talented in the kitchen. Below, Ron and Isabel share some of their own favorites for your good times.

SAUTEED CHICKEN
1 chicken, 2-3 pounds, cut into serving pieces
3-4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon chopped onion
½ cup pale dry sherry
½ cup chicken broth (canned is satisfactory)

Salt and pepper chicken pieces. Melt butter in heavy skillet. Add chicken pieces, skin side down. Cook 10-15 minutes or until golden brown on one side. Turn pieces and cook 10-15 minutes longer. Turning, cook an additional 10-15 minutes. Cook covered part of the time to ensure doneness. Finish uncovered. Remove chicken pieces and arrange neatly on serving dish. Keep warm. Pour off most of fat from skillet, and add chopped onion. Cook approximately 1-2 minutes until soft. Add wine and loosen drippings. Add chicken broth, stirring. Cook about 2 minutes. Swirl in one tablespoon butter and pour sauce over the chicken and serve. Serves 4.

TIMPSON'S PARTY TENDERLOIN
4 pounds beef tenderloin
4-6 strips bacon
1 pound fresh mushrooms
1 package Au Jus mix
2 tablespoons butter

In saucepan, melt butter. Add cleaned mushrooms and saute until tender. Set aside. Prepare au jus according to package directions, except use only ¼ cups of water. Add mushrooms and juice to the au jus. Let simmer on very low heat 1 to 1½ hours. Tenderloin should be lean and trimmed of all fat. Do not let the butcher tie it. Cut tenderloin in 4- or 5-inch pieces. Sear meat in hot skillet on all sides. After searing, add drippings from skillet to au jus. Place pieces of tenderloin in baking pan. Wrap each piece with 2 strips of bacon and bake in 350° oven for 30 minutes. Remove from oven, slice and serve at once topped with au jus and mushrooms. Meat will be rare. Serves 6-8.

BROWN AND SERVE ROLLS
Combine in large bowl:
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages yeast
Combine 2 cups warm water (120°) with 3 tablespoons cooking oil. Add to sugar and yeast mixture. Add 1 beaten egg at room temperature. Stir in 5½-6 cups flour or enough to form a stiff dough. Knead until smooth. Let rise until doubled in size. Punch down and make into rolls. Let rise again until doubled in size. Bake at 250° for 20 minutes. Do not let brown. Cool and place on cookie sheet and place in freezer, uncovered. Put in plastic bags until ready to use. Put them on cookie sheet and bake 10 minutes at 350°. Makes 30-36 rolls.

POTATO CHIP COOKIES
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 large egg yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla or almond flavoring
2 cups sifted flour
1 cup crushed potato chips
Cream butter and sugar, add egg yolk and flavoring. Add flour and potato chips. Roll into balls and flatten with bottom of glass dipped in sugar. Bake at 350° for 15 minutes. You may put an almond in center of cookie before baking. Makes 3 dozen.

GARDEN SALAD
Mix together in saucepan and slowly bring to a boil:
½ cup sugar
½ cup salad oil
¼ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon bean juice
Remove from heat and let cool.

In large mixing bowl, combine:
1 can (12 oz.) white shoepeg corn
1 can (17 oz.) sweet peas, drained
1 can (16 oz.) French-style green beans, drained
1 jar (2 oz.) pimientos, drained
1 cup each, celery, bell peppers, onions (diced)
Four cooled liquids over vegetables and toss to mix. Place in refrigerator for at least 12 hours.

Microwave Best Used For Bar-type Cookies

With the holidays fast approaching it's time to make decisions about the cookies we plan to bake. The microwave can best be used for bar-type cookies. Their taste, texture and appearance compare favorably with conventional baking and can be baked in less time than it takes to heat the conventional oven. For individual-type cookies it is best to use the conventional oven.

Use a square or rectangle dish and shield the corners with foil. Do not grease the dish. Raise the baking dish by placing it on a microwave-safe saucer for baking. After baking, let stand directly on the countertop to complete the cooking.

Oatmeal and chocolate chips are a combination hard to beat. This bar-type cookie will become a favorite for the holiday and for lunch boxes too.

OATMEAL-CHIP SQUARES
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
 1 egg
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1 1/2 cups quick rolled oats
 3/4 cup flour
 1/2 cup chopped nuts
 1/2 cup chocolate chips
 Cream butter, sugar, and vanilla. Add egg and beat. Add remaining ingredients. Press mixture into 8-inch square dish. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave on 70% power for 4-6 minutes; uncover and microwave on 100% power 1-2 minutes. Cool and cut into squares. Yields 16-24 cookies.

I used to make this cookie conventionally. It is so much easier and quicker with a microwave. No worry about scorching and no constant stirring while the mixture cooks.

DATE BALLS
 1 1/2 sticks butter
 1 box chopped, pitted dates
 3/4 cup sugar
 1/2 cup chopped nuts or coconut
 2 cups rice krispies
 Powdered sugar
 In a 3-quart casserole, combine butter, sugar, and dates. Microwave on 100% power 3 1/2-6 minutes or until thickened. Stir twice during this time. Cool slightly. Add nuts and rice krispies. Roll into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Roll in powdered sugar.

If you like coconut pie you'll like this cookie.
COCONUT BARS
 Crust:
 8 Tablespoons butter

1/4 cup dark brown sugar
 1 cup flour
 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
Filling:
 2 eggs
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1 1/2 cups coconut

Combine crust ingredients and press into 9-inch square dish. Microwave on 50% power for 3-7 minutes. Combine filling ingredients except 1/2 cup coconut. Power over crust and microwave on 50% power for 8-10 minutes, or until almost done in the center. Sprinkle with remaining coconut. Microwave 1-3 minutes longer, until set. Cool directly on countertop. Toasted coconut is best because it adds color. This bar cookie is almost like a well-known candy bar.

PEANUTTY BARS
 1/2 cup butter margarine
 1/2 cup brown sugar
 2 cups quick cooking rolled oats
 1/2 cup nuts
 1 teaspoon vanilla
Topping:
 1/2 cup chocolate chips
 1/2 cup peanut butter
 Microwave butter in a 1-2 quart bowl at 100% power for 45 seconds or until melted. Blend in sugar, then remaining ingredients. Spread in a 8x8-inch baking dish. Place dish on an inverted saucer in microwave. Microwave at 100% power for 3-6 minutes or until bubbly.

Cool for 2 minutes, sprinkle with chips and drop teaspoonsfuls of peanut butter randomly. When soft, spread to frost, making a marbled effect. Cool and cut into "finger" strips.

Stay near the microwave oven and do this bar cookie in stages. It is worth the little effort.
BLONDIE BROWNIES
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 2 eggs
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup chocolate chips

1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
 1/4 cup flour
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/4 cup nuts, chopped
 Microwave butter in microwave safe bowl at 100% power for 45-60 seconds. Stir in sugar. Mix well. Stir in remaining ingredients except chips. Spread in an 8x8-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup of chips.

Shield corner of dish with foil. Place on inverted saucer in microwave oven. Microwave at 100% power for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup chips. Microwave at 100% power for 1-3 minutes. Cool directly on countertop. When cool, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

End Of Relationship Does Not End Pain

DEAR ABBY: Over a year ago, our next-door neighbors (I'll call them Betty and Roger) terminated a long-term relationship, after which Roger moved to the other side of town to live in his travel trailer. He and my husband are close friends, so Roger drives over to visit us frequently. Betty still cares for Roger, who has been playing with her feelings — trying to get back into bed, but refusing to make a commitment. Betty told him last week to stay out of her life because just seeing him was too painful, but he seems unmoved by her pain.

Betty has asked us to please not let Roger visit us. My husband thinks this is ridiculous and says she must get over him. Betty is considering selling her house and moving away to avoid the pain of seeing Roger. (She cries at the sight of his car parked in front of our house.)

Abby, should we ask Roger to refrain from visiting us? And how can I help Betty get over him?

NEXT-DOOR NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: You can help Betty get over Roger by insisting that she get counseling in order to deal with her lovesick feelings. ("Love" is a mental condition; sometimes it's a mental disease.)

Your husband is right. If Betty can't handle seeing Roger (or his car), instead of insisting that Roger be kept out of her sight, she will have to get over him.

DEAR ABBY: I have two grown daughters and a 6-month-old baby boy who is, especially dear to me because his father died while waiting for a heart transplant. (He was only 33 years old.) It was my second marriage and his first.

I was five months pregnant

Dear Abby

when I lost my husband. We had been married a little less than a year. I was 45.

I need one of your good answers when strangers ask me if the baby is my grandson. Some even suggest that he was an "accident," which hurts me deeply as he was a very much wanted child. I suppose when he goes to school he will be asked if I am his grandmother! Please help me.

STUMPED IN BALTIMORE

DEAR STUMPED: Please accept my condolences for the loss of your husband. It is obvious that you loved him very much.

When your son is mistaken for a grandson, simply say, "No, he is my youngest child." Say it with a smile, and keep in mind that the person is probably just trying to be friendly.

DEAR ABBY: I have been laughing about the ladies who complained because of workmen showing up with their kids.

Well, ha ha ha! They haven't seen anything yet. My cleaning woman brought her husband to my house every week for over a year. He ate, smoked and watched TV while she worked.

I am an old woman with osteoporosis and I use a walker. I had to fix lunch and coffee for him. I finally got fed up and let the woman go and told her why. Who needs a deal like that? Not me.

Hannukah Feast Has Special Warmth

The warmth and glow of Hanukkah, or the Festival of Lights, is here. This special holiday of feasting and exchanging gifts is an ancient one. Symbolically, a candle is lit on the Menorah each night as the first stars appear in the sky. By the eighth and final night of Hanukkah, all the candles are aglow.

This ritual, beginning the evening of Dec. 7, commemorates the miracle of lights, when the Jews, upon defeating their oppressors and regaining the Temple of Jerusalem, found they had only enough holy oil to burn the light for one day. But the oil burned eight days. The first holiday was celebrated in the Second Temple of Jerusalem, when families went to the temple with food to share. Children's games make this a lighthearted holiday, and it is the most joyous of the Jewish celebrations.

HOLIDAY TURKEY

1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon margarine (divided)
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 cup chopped celery
1 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon, divided
8 cups soft bread cubes
1 cup toasted slivered almonds
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 cups cut-up orange sections
Salt to taste
1 12-pound turkey

Melt 1/2 cup margarine in large skillet; add onion, parsley and celery and cook until tender. Add 1/2 teaspoon tarragon and remaining ingredients (except turkey), and cook over low heat for 10 minutes.

Stuff neck and body cavities of turkey with mixture. Fasten neck skin to back, hook wing tips behind back and tie legs together. Dot turkey with 1 tablespoon margarine, salt and 1/2 teaspoon tarragon. Place in roasting pan; cover turkey loosely with aluminum foil. Place in 325-degree oven and roast 4 hours, or until meat thermometer inserted in largest part of thigh registers 185 degrees (remove foil during last 30 minutes of baking time). Save turkey drippings for gravy. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 12 to 16 servings.

Houston Importer Has Hit With Beer

By PAULA DITTRICK

HOUSTON (UPI) — Competition is keen among beer importers, but a Houston businessman reports a growing market for China Beer, a Taiwanese brew introduced to the United States late last year.

"Our beer has a clear target — Chinese restaurants," said J. Hunter Todd, chairman of Casablanca Company Inc., which has exclusive import rights to the only beer made in Taiwan.

China Beer is handled by 300 distributors in 40 states, he said. Sales are expected to increase with the recent arrival of six-packs in U.S. liquor, grocery and convenience stores. The six-packs will sell for about $6.

"We're nationwide with the exception of some New England states," Todd said. "This is one of the most unusual beers in the world. As far as taste and quality this is a cognac."

Before China Beer arrived, Tsingtao from mainland Communist China was the primary beer served in Chinese restaurants. Tsingtao is the leading imported Oriental beer.

"We sold more beer in our first year than they sold combined in their first five years," Todd said of Tsingtao, adding he expected 200,000 cases of China Beer to sell in its first year in the United States.

The beer is a pilsner-lager brewed using Australian summer barley, German hops and selected yeast strains, Oriental rice and water from a lake called "Sun-Moon."

The Chien-Kuo Brewery in Taipei is owned by the Taiwanese government, but was constructed in 1915 by Germans. Taiwanese brewmasters still get their training in Germany, Todd said.

Unlike American beers which are aged for only a few weeks, China Beer is aged in lagging tanks for about six months for a rich, mellow flavor, Todd said.

"It's probably one of the best brewed beers in the world," he added.

In Taiwan, the same brew is called Taiwan Beer, is cheaper and bottled in a large green bottle with a plain label. China Beer is bottled in an amber bottle with a colorful label in the style of a classic Chinese painting.

"We own the copyright and the label," Todd said. "They're brewing it for us through a special agreement."

1/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
Salt and pepper to taste

Pour drippings from roasting pan into large measuring cup, scraping up all brown particles. Skim off fat and measure 1/4 cup fat into saucepan. Add enough orange juice to drippings to make 2 cups. Blend flour into fat in saucepan. Stir in orange mixture. Add tarragon. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 1/4 cups.

ORANGE SWEET-POTATO PIE

Orange Pastry Shell
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour

Salt to taste
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 1/4 tablespoons cold water

In bowl, mix together flour, salt and rind. Combine oil and water and add all at once to flour. Mix well with fork. Roll out dough into 12-inch circle. Line 9-inch pie plate; make high rim and flute edge. Chill while preparing filling.

Filling

1/2 cup margarine
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
3 eggs, separated
2 cups mashed cooked sweet potatoes
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1/4 cup finely chopped onion

Salt to taste
1 cup finely cut dates
1 cup halved orange sections

In large bowl, cream together margarine and sugars. Beat in egg yolks. Blend in remaining ingredients except orange sections and egg whites. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into sweet potato mixture. Stir in orange sections. Turn into prepared pastry shell.

Bake in 350-degree oven 50 minutes, until pastry is brown and a knife inserted in center of filling comes out clean. Cool 5 minutes before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

FEASTING commemorates the Festival of Lights, as Hanukkah is observed by Jews throughout the world.

Old-Time Holiday Favorites With A New Twist

Traditional favorites—Amaretto di Saronno's almond taste gives a new flavor dimension to your holiday turkey glaze and stuffing.

When planning Thanksgiving and Christmas feasts for family and friends this year, prepare old-time holiday favorites with a delicious new twist! No table is complete without a beautifully roasted and fully-dressed turkey, sweet potatoes and luscious pies, but why not surprise your guests and make this traditional meal more exciting? Trying new variations of seasonal favorites will surely keep the tradition of your holiday dinner alive and well!

To give your turkey perfectly crisp skin and a delightful new flavor (and to fill your home with a wonderful aroma while the meal is cooking), prepare a golden Holiday Glaze made with honey, orange juice, light brown sugar and the almond-flavored liqueur, Amaretto di Saronno. This easy-to-prepare combination can be used not only to baste your turkey but also as a glaze on sweet potatoes. Remember, when cooking with spirits the alcohol burns off and leaves only the essence of fine flavor.

Stuffing can run a close second as the main attraction of your holiday feast, and can also be prepared with a little extra zip this year. Try a Fruit and Sausage Stuffing made with pork sausage, dried fruits and Amaretto di Saronno. The combination of browned sausage, seasonal dried fruits and the almond-flavored liqueur, together with the traditional ingredients of stuffing, will make this special dish the perfect accompaniment to your Holiday Glazed turkey!

Saronno Holiday Glaze and Fruit and Sausage Stuffing are just two of over 40 recipes specially created by Amaretto di Saronno for its new "A Celebration of Seasonal Occasions" recipe packet. To receive a copy, free-of-charge, send your name and address to: Amaretto di Saronno, Dept. TH, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10016.

FRUIT AND SAUSAGE STUFFING

- 2 pounds bulk pork sausage, casing removed
- 1 cup butter
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 2 cups chopped celery

- 3 quarts (12 cups) bread cubes
- 4 cups mixed dried fruits, coarsely chopped
- 2 teaspoons marjoram leaves
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper

1 teaspoon ground sage
1 cup water or turkey broth
1 cup Amaretto di Saronno
Brown sausage in a large skillet, stirring with a fork. Remove meat to a large bowl, pouring off fat. Add butter, onion and celery to skillet and cook over medium heat, stirring, 5 minutes. Add bread cubes, turning to brown. Add mixture to sausage; add remaining ingredients and toss until well mixed. Adjust seasoning to taste. Cool before using to stuff turkey.

Makes enough stuffing for one 12-pound turkey.

SARONNO HOLIDAY GLAZE

- 1/4 cup orange*
 - 1/4 cup honey juice
 - 1/4 cup Amaretto di Saronno
 - 1 cup light brown sugar
- Combine all ingredients in a small, heavy-bottom pan. Heat slowly until all sugar dissolves. Cool. Brush on half the mixture half way through cooking time; continue to baste until finished.
- Use for turkey, chicken, duck, goose and sweet potatoes.
- *Substitute 1/4 cup melted, unsalted butter if a less sweet flavor is desired.

Homemade Ornaments

By Karen Anderson

There's no time of the year that's more suited to parent/child projects than the holidays. Most of us are ready to make time for special preparations, and this is a time when hand-crafted and homemade items take on added significance and appreciation. They are, indeed, a small part of ourselves that we give to others.

Bread-dough ornaments are at the top of my list. Children of all ages can participate.

This recipe has proved successful for our family:

- ### ORNAMENT DOUGH
- 2 cups flour
 - 1 cup salt
 - 1 cup water

Combine flour and salt and mix well. Add water a little at a time, mixing constantly, until a ball forms. Don't let the dough get sticky. Now put the kids to work kneading the dough 7-10 minutes until it's smooth but firm.

Work on a lightly floured board. Roll out dough and cut with cookie cutters into holiday shapes. Add noses, mouths, eyes, buttons, cuffs for Santa's suit, etc., by rolling "strings" of dough and sticking them to the ornament with drops of water.

Kitchen gadgets can create "special effects." Put some dough in a garlic press and squeeze through to form "hair." The end of a meat hammer or a fork can make an interesting pattern. Food items such as raisins can be eyes or buttons. Use your imagination.

Place a small wire hook (used to hang other Christmas ornaments) in the top of each uncooked ornament. Bake at 325-350 on a foil-covered cookie sheet 1/2 hour for each 1/4 inch of dough (until golden brown).

When cool, paint with acrylic or enamel. Have your children write their names and the date on the back of each ornament. Seal front and back with a clear paint or polyurethane.

Take special care when storing the ornaments. Don't store them in the basement; the dampness will cause them to soften and mildew even when painted.

You can add a new ornament for each year of your child's life. Then the complete collection can be given to a child when he begins his own family tree.

In addition, these ornaments make ideal gifts for teachers, friends and grandparents.

My family enjoys making cut-out figures of Mary, Joseph and Jesus either free-hand or with "modified" cookie cutters.

A beautiful merging of Judeo-Christian traditions can be achieved by creating a Jesse Tree. Based on the verse from Isaiah 11:1, "a shoot springs from the stump of Jesse, a sprout thrusts from his roots," a Jesse Tree is traditionally a simple branch decorated with Old Testament symbols (apples, rainbows, the Star of David) along with Christian symbols (fish, doves, crosses).

For those who wish to emphasize the non-religious side of the season, try jovial Santas, glittering bells (add the glitter after the paint and before the polyurethane) and colorful stockings.

Keep in mind that your child's imagination is the key to success.

Make Elegant Holiday Gifts

One of the oldest traditions at Christmas time is the exchanging of gifts, and the choosing and wrapping of presents which can create joy for both the giver and receiver. A gift that has been personally hand-crafted can perhaps be the most meaningful of all.

In our North American culture, there are certain foods associated with the Christmas season. Turkey, dates and figs — and little orange citrus fruits — are edibles that are synonymous with this special time. During the past year or two, a newcomer has appeared on the holiday scene, the CLEMI Clementine from Spain, and its great taste and versatility lends itself to many Christmas "sweets and treats."

CARAMELIZED CLEMI CLEMENTINES

8 CleMI Clementines
 ½ cup sugar
 ½ cup water
 2 tablespoons brandy
 Squeeze juice from 2 CleMI Clementines; strain juice and set aside. Peel remaining CleMI Clementines and divide into segments. Place in heatproof container.

Combine Clementine juice, sugar and water in a small heavy saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Increase heat and boil rapidly, without stirring, until the sauce turns a light caramel color. (Be careful not to burn sauce.) Remove from heat and add brandy. Return sauce to low heat and stir to blend liquids. Pour over Clementine segments. Serve immediately, garnished with a few strips of Clementine zest. If desired. Makes 4-6 servings.

CREME DE CLEMENTINE

10 CleMI Clementines
 ½ cup sugar
 2 teaspoons cocoa powder
 1 cup brandy
 1 cup cold heavy cream
 Thoroughly wash Clementines in hot water. With vegetable peeler, remove a wide strip of peel from each Clementine. Scrape any white pith from peel. Squeeze juice from Clementines. In saucepan, blend sugar and cocoa. Stir in Clementine juice; add peel. Bring to a boil; cover tightly and simmer 6 minutes. Remove from heat, stir 1 minute to cool slightly then stir in brandy. Cover and cool to room temperature. Pour through strainer, pressing peel to extract all juice. Cover tightly and chill several hours or overnight. To serve, blend in cream and pour into decanter. Makes 4 cups liqueur.

NOTE: Liqueur will separate on standing. Shake to mix before serving. If desired, blend 1 egg yolk into liqueur to prevent separation. This mixture should be stored in refrigerator for up to 2 weeks.

CLEMI CLEMENTINES WITH SABAYON SAUCE

4 CleMI Clementines
 1½ ounces semi-sweet chocolate
 ½ cup warm strong coffee
 2 tablespoons sugar
 1 egg yolk
 2 tablespoons Triple Sec
 1 cup sweetened whipped cream (optional)

Peel Clementines removing white pith. Partially separate segments at one end so that center white stem can be removed and Clementines can be opened into a flower shape.

Place each Clementine flower on a dessert dish. Cover with plastic wrap.

Melt chocolate in warm coffee. Combine sugar and egg yolk in top of double boiler; stir in chocolate coffee until well mixed. Place over simmering water, whisk constantly until thick and creamy. (Do not allow to boil or mixture will curdle.) Remove from heat and stir in liqueur, if desired. Pour sauce on prepared Clementine flowers and garnish each center with a dollop of whipped cream. If desired. Makes 4 servings.

CLEMI CLEMENTINES IN PORT WITH WALNUTS

7 CleMI Clementines
 ½ cup sugar
 ¾ cup water
 1 cup port wine
 ½ cup walnut halves or pieces
 1½ cups sweetened whipped cream (optional)

Squeeze juice from 1 Clementine; strain and combine with sugar and water in saucepan. Wash remaining Clementines; remove zest (thin peel without any white pith). If you don't have a zester, use a vegetable peeler to remove a wide strip of thin peel from each Clementine. Add zest or peel to mixture in saucepan. Bring to a boil, simmer, uncovered 10 minutes. Strain.

Meanwhile, peel Clementines, removing white pith. Partially separate segments at one end so that center white stem can be removed and Clementine will open into a flower shape when served. Place Clementines in glass bowl. Top with walnuts.

Pour syrup over Clementines; cover with a double layer of plastic wrap. Let cool to room temperature, then chill 1 to 7 days. To serve, place one Clementine in each serving dish; open segments to make flower shape. Pour port wine over each. If desired, garnish with a dollop of whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Roast Goose A Nostalgic Christmas Tradition

By Alison Claire
NEA Food Editor

This Christmas, nostalgia reigns. Those yearning for a traditional holiday may elect to serve goose as a special treat.

Historically, goose was a favorite of the British. In Scandinavia, Christmas Eve porridge was served to "prepare the stomachs" for the rich bird and its accompaniments later. Goose and kraut are favorites on the German holiday menu, and Central Europeans consider the roast goose a Christmas treat.

Here are some recipes to take friends and family through the feasting hours, whatever the main course.

And, all ages may raise their glasses in a special Irish toast:

"Here's wishing you more happiness
Than all my words can tell,
Not just alone for Christmas
But for all the year as well."

PUNGENT PARTY CHICKEN WINGS

3 pounds chicken wings (about 18)

1 can (12 ounces) vegetable cocktail juice (1 1/2 cups)
3 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sesame oil
Generous dash ground ginger
4 teaspoons cornstarch

Cut wing tips off at joint; cut each wing in half at joint. In 13-by-9-inch baking dish, mix vegetable juice, orange juice, soy sauce, oil and ginger. Place chicken in marinade; cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours, turning chicken occasionally.

Preheat broiler. Drain and set aside marinade. Place chicken on rack in broiling pan. In small saucepan over low heat, stir together marinade and cornstarch. Cook, stirring occasionally until sauce thickens. Broil chicken 6 inches from heat source for 35 minutes or until fork-tender, basting with marinade and turning occasionally. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 36 pieces.

VEAL PATE MAISON

1 pound ground veal
1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 pound ground smoked ham
12 ounces smoked ham, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
3 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons fine herbs
1 teaspoon thyme
3 eggs
3/4 cups cognac (or apple cider)

Combine all ingredients and mix until well blended. Pack mixture tightly into a greased 10-by-4-by-3-inch loaf pan. Place pan on larger shallow pan to catch drippings.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Cool in pan; wrap in foil and chill for several hours. Loosen sides of loaf from pan; remove and place on serving platter. Garnish with onion rings; cut into thin slices and serve with toast points. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 10 to 12 servings.

GREEN CHILI-ONION DIP

1/2 medium-ripe avocado, diced
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 pouch dried onion soup and recipe mix

1 cup sour cream
1 cup plain yogurt
1 can (4 ounces) chopped green chilies, drained
1/4 cup diced tomato, drained
1/4 cup chopped ripe olives
1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper

Tortilla Chips

In small bowl, toss avocado with lemon juice.

In medium bowl, blend soup mix, sour cream, yogurt, avocado, chilies, tomato, olives and crushed red pepper. Cover and chill 2 hours. Stir before serving. Serve with tortilla chips. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 2 3/4 cups.

DOUBLE CHEESE-APPLE DIP

2 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (8 ounces)
1 cup creamed cottage cheese
1 1/2 cups chopped unpeeled apples
1 tablespoon chopped chives

Fresh apple wedges for dipping

American Foodies Take It On Chin

By John Dammers
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The moment the Foodie Revolution became a reality on a par with those carried out by Preppies and Yuppies, Ann Barr and Paul Levy sharpened their forks and knives.

They did so, however, not to down more groceries themselves but to poke and puncture the people who do.

Veterans of writing wars in England, the two have Americanized their own British bestseller into "The Official Foodie Handbook" and given it a subtitle that could serve as a battle cry — "Be Modern. Worship Food."

For those who've been hiding under the kitchen counter, rather than wrestling with truffles or trape on top of it, foodies are nothing more than people who think, talk and dream incessantly about food.

Food is an art to these folks, easily on a level with painting, music or drama. It is unquestionably their favorite art.

"Most of the book is just plain fun," said Levy. "Of course, there are a couple of ridiculously erudite bits. Just testing, you know."

In a world full of cookery books, it seems inevitable that even a book poking fun at foodies would include a few recipes. These are served up with great style — and no small amount of tongue in cheek — as Ten Recipes That Shook the World.

Two of the ten that deserve special attention are Michel Guerard's "ouef poule au caviar" and Anton Mosimann's bread and butter pudding. The Guerard recipe is described as "Calories: not many. Cost: plenty."

OUF POULE AU CAVIAR

Per serving:

Fresh egg
1/4 tsp. fromage blanc
Salt and pepper
1/4 tsp. finely minced onion
1/4 tsp. chopped chives
1/2 oz. best Iranian Sevruga caviar

Slice the tops off fresh eggs very carefully with a serrated knife half an inch above the roundest part of the shell. Then scramble the egg over the lowest possible heat, as slowly as possible, and remove when the consistency of light cream.

Beat in the half teaspoon of fromage blanc (not butter) per serving, along with the salt and pepper, onion and chives. Spoon this into the washed and dried eggshells, top each with caviar and replace the top of the egg.

BREAD AND BUTTER PUDDING

9 oz. milk
Pinch of salt
3 eggs
3 small white bread rolls
1/2 ounce sultanas or raisins, soaked in water

3/4 oz. apricot jam
9 oz. double cream
1 pod of vanilla
4 1/2 oz. sugar
1 1/4 oz. butter

Confectioner's sugar
Bring the milk, cream, salt and vanilla pod to a simmer, then add to the sugar and eggs, which have been mixed together. Sieve the mixture. Slice the rolls thinly and butter.

Arrange them in a buttered ovenproof dish, add the raisins, then the custard. Sprinkle the remaining butter on top and poach carefully for 35-40 minutes in a bain marie, or pan placed in a larger roasting pan filled to the 2-inch mark with boiling water.

Serve with dribbles of apricot jam and dust the top with confectioner's sugar. Serves 4.

Slow Osteoporosis By Strengthening Bones

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — What can I do so as not to make my osteoporosis worse? Should I lift things, walk a lot, do heavy housework, etc.?

DEAR READER — Bursitis is an inflammation of the membrane that covers the joint and holds in the lubricating fluid. The pain of bursitis may be so severe — and the irritation so pronounced — that movement of the joint is hampered.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor tells me I have diverticulosis. Is there a cure for this? I am 66 and have had abdominal pain and loose bowels for a year now.

You are doing all the right things. The main approach is to keep your arm as mobile as possible by doing special exercises.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Please comment on bursitis and/or "frozen shoulder."

DEAR READER — Broken hips can be avoided by not falling. Since this is an unrealistic goal — accidents do happen — your next best approach is to strengthen your bones so that if you do unavoidably slip, the bones will not fracture.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I do not have full range use of my left arm. This began two months ago, out of the clear blue sky. It is intensely painful.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am taking Motrin and have therapy twice a week. At times I get shooting pains down my arms, and I also get pain up the left side, into the back of the neck and the front left muscle.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here's another deal where pulling the wrong card paid a dividend. By this time you would think that Minnie Bottoms' opponents would know they should not trust her plays.

The three-heart bid was forcing, and South decided that with a minimum no-trump opening and a protected spade king, he could make nine tricks in no-trump more easily than 10 tricks in a heart game. Hence, three no-trump.

Because West did not want to give up a trick in the spade suit, he led the club four. Declarer played low from dummy, and as usual Minnie got her face cards mixed up. She played the king. In with the club ace, declarer now had some options. Instead of going after the heart suit immediately, South felt he could continue clubs. West apparently having both the jack and the 10. So back came the club seven. West followed with the two, and declarer played the eight from dummy. Now Minnie found her jack. She then returned the jack of spades and the defense took six spade tricks to set three no-trump three tricks. Needless to say, proper play by East at trick one would have left South no choice but to take the heart finesse and wrap up nine tricks.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY DECEMBER 5, 1985

Impressive achievements are possible for you in the year ahead. But you must have a definite game plan instead of merely responding to events or conditions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An important objective can be achieved today, provided you have stick-to-itiveness. Don't give up just when your goal is within reach. Major changes are ahead for Sagittarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Re-examine that flash of inspiration before springing into action today. Under closer scrutiny, it might not be as good as you first thought.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It will prove wisest in the long run not to become involved in friends' business affairs today, nor to let them become involved in yours.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extremely selective regarding who you go to for advice today. If their counsel is unsound, it could worsen matters, not correct them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to be tolerant and understanding today when working with people who don't grasp ideas as quickly as you. If necessary, stop and re-explain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't bank on others doing things for you today that you are capable of taking care of yourself. They'll resent being imposed upon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If a major household purchase is not an immediate need today, take more time to think about it. Second thoughts may alter your selection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to attempt tasks today if your heart isn't in them. You might finish them, but you may not be too proud of your work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you yield to extravagant impulses today, you could put yourself in a tight financial position and later lack funds for something you really want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a good salesperson today, but unfortunately, you might be poor at closing the deal and let your prospect off the hook by talking too much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you're pretty good at keeping secrets, but today could be an exception. Guard against blurting out things you shouldn't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best today to steer clear of stores that offer unique and novel merchandise. You might buy a bunch of useless gadgets.

14th Annual Toy Safety Report

Committee Urges 'Koosa' Recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most potentially dangerous toy a parent can put under the Christmas tree this year is also a member of one of the most popular toy families in recent history — the Cabbage Patch Kids, a consumer group says.

The Consumer Affairs Committee of Americans for Democratic Action, in its 14th annual toy report, warned parents Tuesday that a collar on the original Cabbage Patch Kid "Koosa" stuffed animal can cause choking in children who try to wear it.

The committee said it has learned that Coleco Industries has quietly modified the collar but has not warned against the old version, which is still available in stores for Christmas.

The Koosa is the animal version of Coleco's Cabbage Patch Kids, one of the most popular toy lines in recent history.

Committee Chairwoman Ann Brown called on the Consumer Product Safety Commission to immediately recall the old dolls "before serious injuries occur." Brown said the newer collar has a buckle that snaps away easily and is shorter, making it less likely to fit around a child's neck.

Coleco spokeswoman Barbara Wruck denied the collars were modified for safety reasons. "Both the original and the revised collars do meet all of the CPSC and the Canadian safety regulations," she said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "There have been no injuries, which have occurred as a result of the use or misuse of the revised collars," she said.

But Tamara Pickart of San Rafael, Calif., recounted the near-disaster that befell her 6-year-old daughter Amy.

While sitting in the dentist's office, Amy removed the collar and put it around her own neck, where it became stuck. In a tearful panic, the girl began choking. Two adults could not remove the collar and finally the dentist used a dental tool to cut it off, Pickart said. Dr. Richard Gaebel, the dentist, and experts at Johns Hopkins University Hospital agreed the "product design is deficient and the potential for injury exists."

CPSC staff member Doug Noble said he was sent to the news conference to report back to the federal agency. "We're very interested in any information anyone can give us on toy safety," he said.

The commission began a holiday toy safety drive last week, but Brown criticized the agency for failing to "name names" of dangerous items among the $4 billion in toys that will be sold between now and the end of the year.

The committee also called on the CPSC to: — Investigate and possibly ban all baby walkers, which government figures show injured more than 15,000 babies last year.

— Call for voluntary safety standards for portable hook-on baby seats, many of which have been found to have design problems in supporting babies.

— Require a warning label on new suction cup baby gates, which can trap babies' heads if improperly used in doorways with baseboard moldings. This would be in addition to the ban on accordion-style wooden baby gates, which have been blamed for numerous choking deaths.

Following is the committee's list of the best and worst toys on the market this Christmas, based on performance, value and design. The toys on the worst list were not found to be dangerous, but are of either low quality, overpriced or have misleading packaging.

- 1. Volttron Skull Tank (Panosh Place).
2. Kindles (Ideal).
3. Modulock (Mattel).
4. Upsy Baby (Kenner).
5. Volttron Motorized Lion Force (LJN).
6. Rub-A-Rounds (Fisher-Price).
7. Rocks & Bugs & Things (Ideal).
8. Bookville Schoolhouse (Lakeside).
9. Wrestling Superstars (LJN).
10. Linkets (Matchbox).

- Best
1. Tap-a-Tune (Little Tikes).
2. Chubbles (Animal Fair).
3. AM-FM Radio (Fisher-Price).
4. Teddy Ruxpin (Worlds of Wonder).
5. Last Word (Milton-Bradley).
6. Picture Perfect (Tomy).
7. Quatron (Price, Stern, Sloan-Random House).
8. Stomper Speedsters Twistrack Set (Schaper).
9. Robostrux (Tomy).

Disney World To Add Water Thrill Attraction

ORLANDO (UPI) — Under questioning about the theme park's latest price increase, the president of Walt Disney World has revealed a water thrill attraction and a 900-room hotel will open at the park within two years.

Splash, named for the 1984 hit Disney movie about a mermaid, is still in the design stage but likely will be built on company property along U.S. Highway 192 in Osceola County, said Richard Nunis.

He declined comment on the cost of construction.

Disney World raised its single-day admission tickets $2 effective Thanksgiving week to $21.50 for adults and $18.50 for children. Including an earlier ticket price increase, Disney admission has jumped 19 percent this year.

Nunis said raising ticket prices was necessary to finance improvements planned and under way at the theme park.

Splash will become the fourth gated section of the park, along with Epcot Center, the Magic Kingdom and the Disney-MGM movie studio and tour, which is still in development.

Construction of the hotel to be called the Grand Floridian will begin next year and take about 18 months. The hotel was part of Disney's master plan for the Florida property and will feature a turn of the century design.

Along with the Contemporary Resort and the Polynesian Village, the Grand Floridian will be the third hotel owned and managed by Disney on its monorail route.
