Lake Mary Moves To Settle Lawsuit With Paulucci

Despite an admonition from Mayor Walter Sorenson to "hang tough and let it go to court," the Lake Mary City Council on Thursday night moved toward settling out-of-court a lawsuit filed against the city by industrialist Jeno Paulucci over a parcel of land purchased two and a half years ago.

"I think the letter (from Paulucci's lawyer setting terms of an agreement) stinks," Sorenson said. And Councilman Richard Fess added, "It reeks of the odor of a familiar fish."

The lawsuit involves 10 acres of property on Rinehart Road purchased by the city from Paulucci on April 23, 1979, for $50,300.

Paulucci has said he sold the city the property at the $50,000 price solely because the city said it would use the tract as a site for a City Hall complex. The suit was filed after the city announced its intent to purchase and renovate the current City Hall property at 154 N. Country Club Road earlier this year.

The city has contended there was no restriction on the sale. The letter containing the proposed agreement was written to City Attorney Gary Massey by Paulucci lawyer Abbott M. Herring on Wednesday as a follow-up to an earlier conference between Massey and Herring.

The letter said: "It is my understanding that an agreement could be reached between the parties as follows:

— That it be recognized that the intent of the parties was that the land was for a City Hall and/or government complex.
— That the parties would enumerate certain use restrictions, such as that it not be used for a garbage dump, landfill or vehicle barn.

— That in the event the city decided against utilizing the land, or portions of the land, for a City Hall and/or governmental function and wished to sell the property, Paulucci would have a first right of refusal to be exercised within a reasonable amount of time to be determined by the parties.

— That the sales price would be a fair market value, to be determined by appraisals.

— The appraisal would be by two appraisers, one selected by the city and the other by Paulucci. In the event they could not reach agreement, they would choose a third appraiser, who would arbitrate their differences.

— That the agreement, in order to pass muster as to the rule against perpetuity, would have a duration based on the life of Gena Paulucci and/or Jeno Paulucci, plus 21 years, whichever is greater . . ."

Asserting that the lawsuit is "jeopardizing the city's position with the Central Florida Crime Laboratory," Councilman Ray Fox urged his colleagues to approve the proposal. Officials of the current crime laboratory at Sanford and the state Department of Law Enforcement have agreed they would prefer to build a new $4 million facility on the two acres of the Rinehart Road property, under a lease agreement with the city, if the lawsuit with Paulucci is settled. The officials have said they must decide on a new site by early December.

Sorenson responded that the only opportunity the city is jeopardizing is the opportunity to give away two acres of city-owned land.

The councilmen agreed to approve the proposed agreement in concept, but instructed Massey to negotiate two of the items. They told him to delete the ban on the city's using the property to store city vehicles. Massey also was told to determine the relationship of Gena Paulucci to Jeno Paulucci, after he explained that the final section of the proposal calls for the agreement to remain in force until 21 years after the girl's death. Gena Paulucci is Jeno Paulucci's daughter, according to information provided by Paulucci's Sanford office today.

Garbage Firm Gets Reprieve In Lake Mary

By DONNA ESTES

The Superior Sanitation Co., of Longwood, "seems to have solved its problems," the Lake Mary City Council agreed Thursday night, giving the firm a clean bill to continue its franchised refuse operation in the city.

And the firm may get approval from the council in the near future for a rate increase from $7 to $8 monthly.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said earlier in the day that a "large dose of complaints" had been received about the firm's service. But City Manager Phil Kulbes said he had not received a "single complaint" about the firm in recent weeks, and councilmen agreed.

Councilman Vic Olivera, a past critic of Superior's service, said the firm is trying to pick up garbage and trash for city customers even if extra trips must be made in the evening hours.

7 Applicants Eyed For Fire Chief Job

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Casselberry could have a new fire chief by mid-December, according to Mayor Owen Sheppard. He said seven applications have been received for the position vacated in October by Kenneth Gaines.

Gaines resigned to accept a firefighter position with the Orange County Fire Department, citing low morale and better career opportunities as his reasons for quitting. He is, however, still serving part-time as the city's fire administrator.

According to Aida D'Ercole, city personnel supervisor, the seven applicants will be tested by the Civil Service Board at 7 p.m. Dec. 8 at City Hall.

"The top three scorers then will be interviewed by the mayor and whomever he chooses to assist him," she said. "The applicants must score at least 70 on the examination."

Sheppard said City Clerk Mary Hawthorne and Gaines will assist him with the interviews. Sheppard will make Sorenson told the representatives they may "come back to the council later with your requested rate increase."

Several weeks ago the firm notified its city customers of a rate increase of $1 monthly without receiving prior council approval, as required by a non-exclusive franchise agreement with the city. When the request for the increase was submitted to the council, it turned it down, saying the firm had not justified it.

The firm said at the time the increase was necessary because Seminole County raised its refuse-disposal fee at the county sanitary landfill by 50 percent.

In other business, the council adopted an ordinance repealing a section of the zoning code permitting persons to serve on both the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Board of Adjustment.

The ordinance was suggested by Councilman Ray Fox, who said it would be difficult for a person to "wear two hats" by serving on the advisory Planning and Zoning Commission and on decision-making Board of Adjustment at the same time.

The council also gave preliminary approval to an ordinance amending the personnel policy to include a section requiring the automatic suspension of city employees suspected of wrongdoing.

The council voted unanimously to pay workers in the Dec. 8 city election $35 per day and to give city employees the Friday after Thanksgiving off as an additional paid holiday.

the final appointment.

Applicants for the fire chief position include:

—Paul Algeri, Oviedo, a retired, New York City fire lieutenant.

—Hector Castro, Tampa, a fire captain in Tampa.

—David Halstead, Orlando, a fire lieutenant in Allamonte Springs.

—Roy LaBoussiere, Sr., Casselberry, a former Casselberry fire chief.

LaBoussiere left the city's employ in 1979, after serving two years as fire chief to be fire chief in Yemba, Saudi Arabia.

—Richard Kolb, Ocala, who is a senior fire instructor with the Florida Fire College in Ocala. Kolb is the former assistant fire chief of Daytona Beach.

Gilbert O'Gline, Sanford, who worked with the Naval Training Center fire department in Orlando.

—Gasper Palmisano, Pinellas Park, a fire lieutenant in St. Petersburg.

According to recent City Council action concerning residency requirements of city fire personnel, the new fire chief will be required to reside within a 15-mile radius of the city.

Cities League Backs Sales-Tax Hike

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

In an unanimous decision, the Tri-County League of Cities passed a resolution Thursday supporting a proposed one-cent sales tax increase. The meeting, hosted by Orlando at the Iron Bridge Regional Sewage Plant in Oviedo was attended by mayors from Orange, Seminole and Osceola counties.

The resolution was passed "urging the Florida Legislature to enact legislation embodying the property-tax relief and local-government-assistance program of the Florida League of Cities."

"What we are in support of, and intend to do by passing the resolution, is urge the Legislature to pass the one-cent sales tax, which will, in turn, cause a reduction in local ad-valorem (property) taxes," Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard said. Sheppard is secretary-treasurer of the Tri-County League.

"This is not a new tax," St. Cloud Mayor Sara Lewis, league vice president, said. "It is simply changing the property tax to a sales tax, allowing people to pay as they go."

Ms. Lewis said 30 percent of all sales tax is paid by tourists and 70 percent by residents. She said tourists impact on local service "at least by 30 percent, if not more, and it is not fair to make local residents carry the burden for tourists."

"I don't mean to imply that we don't want tourists to come to our cities," she said. "What I am saying is that tourists should be required to help pay for the services they are receiving, and the best way is through the one-cent sales tax."

Sheppard said many of the state's county governments are "pushing to get a one-half-cent optional tax" passed, but, he said, the one-cent tax should be imposed "without option to help local municipalities and residents."

"We can see the long-range implications," he said. "If we don't alleviate some of the tax burden placed on our city residents who are paying for services other people are using and not paying for, we could have real problems. It just isn't fair to keep asking local residents to pay the way for people coming into the cities, using our services and leaving without any contribution to the affected area."

Sheppard said the primary task before the Tri-County League concerning the tax is "showing the taxpayer the benefits of such a tax. It just isn't fair to keep raising the ad valorem on them to meet the area needs."

Interferon May Solve A Vision Problem

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Interferon, a lauded cancer treatment, may be the answer to curbing an epidemic of a highly contagious form of pinkeye that has affected the vision of thousands in Miami, members of a research team say.

"Interferon — the anti-viral substance that has been heralded as a breakthrough cancer treatment — will be tested for its potential in curbing an epidemic of hemorrhagic conjunctivitis by a team of New Orleans researchers," scientists at the Eye & Ear Institute of Louisiana said in a statement scheduled for release today.

A team of ophthalmologists from the institute planned to begin pioneer clinical trials Nov. 25 in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, officials said.

Interferon is difficult to manufacture, doctors said, and only a small quantity of the expensive droplets will be used in the three-week clinical trial.

Officials said hemorrhagic conjunctivitis, an acute, highly contagious form of pink-eye, reached epidemic proportions in India before spreading to Central America and Miami earlier this year. The viral disease normally lasts about 10 days and does not cause permanent visual impairment, doctors said.

Presently, the disease is treated with vasoconstrictors and artificial tears, which ease the symptoms but do not knock out the virus.

Hidden Lake Gets The Word On Crime Watch

By LEE DANCY

Sgt. William Bernosky readies a projector to show the movie "What Is a Cop."

Residents of Hidden Lake living near Sanford's southern boundary will soon be keeping closer tabs on their neighbors.

Approximately 50 people from Hidden Lake gathered at the Sanford police station Thursday night to discover how they could deter crime where they live. Sgt. William Bernosky, public-information officer for the department, introduced the residents to Neighborhood Watch.

Bernosky is trying to drum up interest throughout the city in the program, designed to make "nosier" neighbors. If residents stay abreast of the comings and goings of their neighbors they may be able to avert a possible crime, Bernosky pointed out.

Here's how it works: Let's say Mrs. Smith has jaunted off to the grocery store for a major shopping spree. She is going to be gone a couple of hours and calls Mrs. Jones across the street to tell her. Thirty minutes after Mrs. Smith leaves for the store, Mrs. Jones notices the Smith's front door is open. Mrs. Jones calls the Sanford police to notify them of the unusual situation.

The police come to investigate, check the house and discover nothing disturbed and nobody on the premises. Mrs. Smith's door latch apparently is broken.

Mrs. Jones did not help stop a crime this time, but there could have been burglars in Mrs. Smith's house. The cliché "better safe than sorry" definitely applies in Neighborhood Watch.

Questions at the meeting ranged from how Neighborhood Watch works to "When is the right time to call the police?"

One woman said she thought her neighbor had been growing marijuana in his back yard, but until the meeting had been afraid to call the police.

Dora Young was appointed Hidden Lake's chairman for the Neighborhood Watch program. It will be her duty to organize her neighbors and instruct them on what to do if they see an unusual situation in the neighborhood.

College Students May Be Required To Study Basics

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Despite protests that colleges are already going back to the basics, a planning board has recommended that students be required to take a year of mathematics and two years of English before their junior year.

The proposal, which must win approval by the governor and Cabinet before becoming law, was endorsed by the Post-secondary Education Planning Commission Thursday over protests that it was "overkill."

No Cash For Shark Attack

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — A Volusia County jury has ruled that a shark attack is an act of nature and that a 25-year-old Illinois man cannot collect $300,000 in damages for a severed leg.

Jurors Thursday deliberated two hours before rejecting the claims of Henry Peterson of Wakegan, who said in a lawsuit that lifeguards should have at least warned him about sharks in the ocean off Daytona Beach.

One More Try For Death

ORLANDO (UPI) — Orange County State Attorney Robert Egan says he will try to put killer James Dupree Henry in the electric chair one more time.

He said he was distressed with a federal appeals court decision Wednesday upholding a lower court ruling that tossed out Henry's 1973 death sentence. The court's action means Henry must be resentenced.

Compromise Reached, Government Still In Biz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate culminated an all-night session by agreeing 63-35 today to cut about $3.3 billion from an emergency spending bill that will keep the government operating through March 31 after current funds expire at midnight tonight.

The vote came at 4:29 a.m. EST.

President Reagan had threatened to veto the original $17.4 billion spending bill unless Congress agreed to further reductions.

Suit Against Commissioner Settled

Developer James W. Hickman's lawsuit against Seminole County Commissioner Robert "Bud" Feather and five others for mortgage default on 26 lots in the Brantley Harbor East section of the Meredith Manor subdivision near Altamonte Springs has been dropped.

Hickman signed a voluntary dismissal Thursday after Feather "paid everything that was due and a little bit more," Feather said.

In the lawsuit, Hickman claimed Feather owed him $147,244 plus interest on a $270,000 loan because he failed to make payments since June 1.

Also named in the suit were Feather's ex-wife Dorinda Simerson Feather, his partner in the deal, Steven B. Clipper of Fort Lauderdale, lot owners Robert and Mary McGibbeny and their mortgage holders, Barnett Bank.

Hickman, who holds a 10 percent interest in the Brantley Harbor lots plus a 1,000-foot piece of commercial frontage property along State Road 436, serves as trustee for several previous owners whose identities are protected by a blind trust.

On Thursday, Feather said the reason he fell behind on his mortgage payments was that his "divorce dragged on for a year and I was prohibited from selling lots or borrowing on my property until a final settlement was reached."

Feather said the mortgage has been whittled down to $108,000.

LINCOLN LESS HUBCAPS

Charlie Smith's 1979 Lincoln Continental is minus its four chrome spoke hubcaps this morning.

Police report the wheel covers were stolen sometime between 7:30 and 7:59 a.m. while the car was parked at Smith's residence, 319 W. 16th Street, Sanford.

The hubcaps were valued at $500.

JEWELRY TAKEN

A kitchen window was found open when the burglary was discovered. Items stolen include a sterling silver ring, gold neck chain, sterling silver girl's necklace, a gold-plated ring, a silver antique ring, a silver ring with green stone, a ladies diamond engagement ring, a man's gold and ruby ring, and a ladies 1964 high school ring.

Assorted pre-1965 silver coins were also taken in the heist, police report.

HIT AGAIN

It was the second time around for Max Paul, 328 Citrus Street, Altamonte Springs, when burglars took $895 in goods from his home.

Paul's home was burglarized September 8 and the thieves may have come back from a repeat engagement sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Burglars entered the Paul residence by prying open a bathroom window, police said.

Taken were a man's western-style dress jacket valued at $130, a $80 leather traveling bag, six to eight men's dress shirts, $120; a brown and white pillowcase, five to six golf shirts valued at $80, an 880 AM-FM clock radio, and a 12-inch Panasonic color television set, $400.

TV, OVEN TAKEN

A Sony 19-inch color television set valued at $510 and an Armana microwave oven valued at $400 were the only two items taken in a Wednesday burglary at the Margaret L. Meek residence, Forest Lake Drive, Maitland, police report.

Burglars entered the home sometime between 5:45 a.m. and 5:20 p.m. after knocking out a window pane in the carport door.

VACATIONER BURGLARIZED

Burglars removed an east bedroom window screen to gain entry to the home of Elbery D. Maxwell, 100 Loch Arbor Court, Sanford, sometime between 9 a.m. Tuesday and 4:10 p.m. Wednesday when the break-in was discovered, police report.

No list of missing items was immediately available.

GUNS AND JEWELRY

Sayde Duda returned home at 4 p.m. Wednesday to find her jewelry case open on a bed. Several pieces of jewelry were missing, she told police, along with at least five guns.

The thieves struck sometime between 10 a.m. and the time of discovery. Police said they removed a bedroom window screen to gain entry.

One fingerprint was lifted from the jewelry case, police said and other evidence includes a set of footprints discovered outside the bedroom window.

Also listed among items taken in the heist are six to eight sterling silverware place settings and silver accessory items, a diamond Hamilton watch valued at $1,000 and a gold necklace and matching earrings.

GRILL ON WHEELS TAKES OFF

A black gas barbecue grill on wheels was taken from the home of Marguerite C. McCarthy, 1948 Nottingdale, Maitland sometime between 4 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Wednesday, police report.

The grill was valued at $150.

CLEANLINESS THEIR BAG

A Kenmore washer and dryer set were stolen between 6 p.m. Sunday and sometime Wednesday from a model home at 5477 Park Vale Ave., Maitland, police report.

The almond-colored pair were disconnected and removed from the garage of the home, police said. They were owned by U.S. Homes, Inc.

Longwood Commission Says

No Convenience Stores In Historic District

By LEE DANCY

Herald Staff Writer

There is nothing historic about convenience stores, the Longwood City Commission has decided.

Despite protests from Commissioner J. Russell Grant, the commission on Monday tentatively approved an ordinance which, if approved on second reading, will amend the city's comprehensive zoning plan. The vote was 4-1, with Grant voting no.

An ordinance prohibiting all kinds of stores in the city's historical district except "antique and gift shops compatible with the character of the historic district," will come before the commission for a public hearing and second reading Dec. 14.

The historic district is an eight-block section bordered by County Road 427, Jeasup Avenue, W. Lake Street and Bay and Pine avenues. If the amendment to the ordinance passes on second reading, it will eliminate an original provision for neighborhood commercial zoning, which would allow convenience stores.

Grant protested the ordinance, saying it would prevent property owners along CR 427 from putting their land to its best commercial use.

"427 is a business highway and it will continue that way in the future," Grant said at the commission meeting. "These people have property there, and they need to use it to their best advantage."

Other commissioners did not agree, saying a convenience store already located on CR 427 within the historic district, the Dixie Market, is an eyesore. Commissioner Steven M. Ubert questioned the effect the ordinance amendment would have on the Dixie Market.

"As long as its present use continues Dixie Market can continue as a convenience store," City Attorney Marvin Rooks said. "If they change the use and at some time try to go back (to being a convenience store), they would have problems."

Mayor John Hepp said the primary consideration of the proposed amendment is maintaining the "historical look" of the district. Any buildings constructed within the district must conform to certain design standards, he said.

"I guess you could make a convenience store look historical," said Commissioner June Lormann.

Arts, Crafts Festival Slated This Weekend

By LEE DANCY

Herald Staff Writer

Numerous possibilities for distinctive Christmas gifts may be discovered Saturday and Sunday at Longwood's fifth Annual Arts and Crafts Festival.

The event is sponsored by the Central Florida Society for Historical Preservation, based in Longwood. Festival director Ray Bryan said he expects every available space for artists and artisans from across the state to be filled.

"We have 195 spaces available for the artists," he said. "They are each paying $25 per space this year."

Money raised from the event will be used to cover the 1981 mortgage payment on the society's two main showplaces in Longwood, the Bradley-McIntyre House and the Inside-Outside House. Bryan said the Inside-Outside House is one of the nation's oldest prefabricated buildings.

Both historical structures originally were located on State Road 436. When that congested thoroughfare began to experience intensive development years ago, the society took out a $300,000 mortgage to cover the costs of moving the buildings to Longwood's historical district, Bryan said.

Exhibitors will be positioned along Warren Avenue, Church Street and Police Drive. Bryan said the streets will be closed to traffic for the two-day event.

The Bradley-McIntyre House will be open for public tours. The admission price is $1, and food will be available. Several antique doll collections will be exhibited inside the house.

Exhibits also will be judged, with $500 in prize money to be distributed in three categories. Bryan said the society originally had hoped to secure all the prize money from local businesses, but only $200 was collected. The rest of the money will be made up from admission fees to the Bradley-McIntyre House.

Some local restaurants donated food, and local printers donated their services on the festival's brochure, Bryan said.

Lake Mary May Buy Computer System 'After Santa Comes'

By DONNA ESTES

Herald Staff Writer

Three proposals to place the city of Lake Mary's utility billing and accounting functions on a computer were rejected by the City Council Thursday night, and the idea of the city acquiring a computer was shelved until after the first of the year.

Councilmen Gene McDonald and Ray Fox urged the delay, saying they as a committee will speak with computer firms to find the best size and type of computer to handle city needs.

Proposals were considered and rejected from NCR, Information Management Services and Seminole County. NCR, according to the council's interpretation, proposed a hardware and software system at an initial cost of $80,000, while Information Management Services' system was offered at $19,975 initially. Seminole County offered a time-sharing proposal using the county's computer system, at $19,193 for the first year.

City Auditor Roger Bowen urged the council to seriously consider a "mechanical bookkeeping system," saying hand posting of city books is "tremendously tedious" work. He said that during the audit he recently completed the city's books balanced for the first time. In years past, Bowen corrected errors as he conducted the audit.

"If you don't do something, you will come to a position with growth where you must do it," he said, favoring the city's acquiring a computer. He said state laws on record-keeping and accounting are precise and complex. As an example of the state requirements, he said, a payroll check requires seven different postings.

Bowen said that even if a computer were acquired, the number of City Hall personnel could not be reduced. "But if you don't get a computer, you will need another employee in City Hall soon," he said.

The city currently is using a computer service at a cost of $3,500 annually for utility billing.

Pointing to difficulties with the contracted system, Bowen said it will not stop billing a late charge even after a customer has moved away. The contracted service's "software doesn't fit your needs," he said.

City Attorney Gary Massey recommended the council look into purchasing a computer from one company and the software from another. "Software can be provided by others (than computer firms)," he said.

"After Santa comes, we'll work on this," McDonald said.

These people are saving electricity in their new Watt-Wise™ homes.

"Our Watt-Wise package is saving us $30 to $40 a month on our electric bill!"
Thomas and Lois Pomeroy of Miami.

"We try not to compare electric bills with our neighbors. We don't want to embarrass them."
Roy and Cheryl Pihlgen of Margate.

"We've been very happy with the house and especially happy with the size of the electric bills."
Edward and Bertha Gentner of Sarasota.

"Why spend money on electricity when you could spend it on something else?"
Richard and Maryellen Renaud of West Palm Beach.

"Spend a little now to save a lot."
Robert and Jean McMahon of Cocoa.

People can be generous in praising a Watt-Wise Living™ home. Because it's very easy to save electricity — and money — when you live in one. Naturally, how much you save will depend on your lifestyle and conservation efforts.

What's Watt-Wise Living? It's a combination of features that meet FPL's energy-saving standards, while maintaining your standards for comfort.

Watt-Wise homes have cost-saving features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar or heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Other savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up. All features that can be easily included in the construction of a new home.

Today, FPL's Watt-Wise Living program is one of the wisest investments you could make. Stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free brochure.

Watt-Wise Living. It saves you more than it costs. Ask your builder.

New Economic Ball Game

The increasing involvement of foreign governments in companies doing business in the American domestic market poses new problems for American business irrespective of size.

In the past, there was very little foreign involvement in America's domestic market, except for a few specialized product areas. That time is gone. Today, there's hardly a U.S.-made product that isn't subject to competition from European and Asian manufacturers. And the competition is directed as much at small business as at giant corporations. It is also competition provided by foreign governments with a stake in "private" businesses.

Milton D. Stewart, editor of INC., the Boston-based business magazine, recently discussed this in an editorial. He pointed out that "We are going to live more and more in our own country with 'domestic' firms whose owners are foreign companies and even foreign governments."

Mr. Stewart cited the example of "the recent acquisition of Texasgulf Inc. by Elf Aquitaine, an oil company controlled by the French government. 'What is important,' he said, 'is that the French government—presently socialist—will wind up owning control of a billion-dollar American company.' He added that "it is a striking example of how quickly the so-called iron wall between government and government-sized business can disappear, even in this country."

This situation makes it imperative that Americans comprehend the new structures of trade and business. Americans are all for free trade, but what are we to do about foreign governments that penetrate corporations involved in the U.S. market? What do you call a company that is partly owned by a foreign government? Certainly, one can't think of them as free enterprise entities.

This brings us to the subject of how American companies are to compete against this new form of state capitalism. There are some, perhaps, who believe that our antitrust laws must be modified in order to permit new American-business combinations capable of competing against huge foreign firms or firms with partial government control and financing. That approach would seem to be inimical to American-style free enterprise. We don't want to create American cartels as a counter to European or Japanese giants. We don't want to do anything that weakens small and medium size businesses in the United States and causes such firms to be swallowed by giants. The entrepreneurial system is best defended and maintained by individual entrepreneurs.

Can we prevent foreign governments from operating in the American domestic market under the guise of private enterprise? That is a basic question. Certainly, such commercial activity is a new form of state intrusion in the U.S. domestic market. When foreign governments buy into companies that compete in the U.S., they engage in activities that touch on the U.S. national security—on national economic interests. The U.S. would be justified in establishing conditions with respect to such activities and to impose restrictions if the activities are deemed hurtful to our economic system.

There is much to explore and discuss in this area. It is very important that foreign government participation in the U.S. economy come under prompt and thorough scrutiny.

We are in a new ball game, and we need to understand how it is being played.

AROUND THE CLOCK

By BRITT SMITH

I don't know what I'd do (first) with all that money, anyway.

I don't spend much time fantasizing about excess money so I was unprepared this week when I read of a silly case which puts riches within the grasp of any working stiff.

I used to be more ready to spend large sums of sudden money back when I entered sweepstakes contests, but my cynicism got the better of me and I started returning the "No" envelopes.

I saw a distinct possibility of wealth, however, when I read about a Chicago woman who was awarded $9,000 in workers compensation by the Cook County Board of Commissioners because she hurt her wrist using a date stamper.

Not having been there to hear all the testimony, I wouldn't normally mess with the board's decision. But the quality of thinking behind the ruling simply cries out for comment. The case reminds me of the man who buys a home near an airport because it's cheap, and then complains about the noise of the airplanes.

Josephine Bondi, 28, worked in the clerk's office in the Circuit Court until she supposedly lost partial use of her right hand (28.5 percent to be exact) due to repeated use of a 15-ounce date stamper.

She could have quit before her injury got to such a stage just as the man could have moved from the edge of the airport.

I'm concerned that the board's opinion granting the $9,000 award could open up the proverbial can of worms. I can see every court clerk in the country who uses a date stamper wrapping her wrist in an Ace bandage and demanding a whopping sum in workers compensation.

The Bondi case is strikingly similar to that of Ramon Martinez, a New Mexico laboratory worker, who in 1977 was awarded $75,000 — $125 a week for 600 weeks — because of a neurotic fear he would die of radiation.

Martinez worked for 30 years molding devices from uranium. But in 1978 he quit his job, complaining that he was going to die of cancer from the radiation.

After the Bondi and Martinez awards, I wouldn't be surprised to hear of the sewer worker winning a lifelong pension because he couldn't stand the smell.

Or a police officer being given an 11-year annuity for his anxiety neurosis. The bad guys shot at him.

What if a bus driver petitioned the courts for a subsidy for the rest of his life because he was frustrated by people who wouldn't move to the back of his crowded vehicle?

Where might it all end?

Housewives could seek relief in the courts because of their dishpan hands; teachers might claim inability to teach because of dumb students; nurses could aver that they suffer from paranoia because their patients don't get well.

Who knows what a humane judge will accept as an excuse for alleged damages?

I, too, have an irrational fear of work. I don't think it's going to kill me, but I sure hate to get my fingers dirty on carbon paper.

"You see, your honor," I can imagine telling a judge hearing my appeal for $1 million (a nice round figure) because I'm afraid to work anymore. "I've been in the newspaper business several years, always smudging my shirt sleeves with fresh ink off the newsprint, dirtying my fingernails, spotting my nose if I scratch an itch, and generally getting unkept and grimy."

"This may not mean much to someone who can cover up his personal soil with a black robe, your honor, but that accumulated soot of my profession has clogged my pores, puckered my fingertips from repeated showers, and kept me at a poverty level from dry cleaning. I am traumatically fearful of journalistic jaundice and feel the insurance company should finance a 600-week vacation."

Think I could get away with that?

DON GRAFF The Press And The President

The usually well-mannered Washington press corps is accustomed to laughing with, not at, a president.

They forgot themselves the other day, however, when Ronald Reagan solemnly assured that "no bickering or backbiting" is going on in his "very happy" administration.

Under circumstances that should require no further explanation at this point, the newspeople can probably be forgiven the momentary breach of protocol. The president himself, however, is a different case.

In this and other statements at his most recent press conference, Reagan appeared to be embracing a by-now familiar attitude toward the press; that it is not only the bearer of bad news but often the creator.

He suggested that the press had made a big story where there really was none by exaggerating "out of all reality" the differences between his top foreign affairs and defense advisers. Reporters were admonished to consider the impact abroad of their reporting from Washington.

The capital, he observed at one point, reminded him of a "gigantic ear." The implication apparently being that Washington, and particularly that part of a uniquely specialized community that specializes in information, should refuse to hear anything that might be construed as bad news. At least so construed by the standards of the administration of the moment.

It is an attitude that is not unique to this president. It is the same one that skewed the press and public relations of most of his immediate predecessors. The obvious example is Richard Nixon's lengthy adversary relationship with the working press. But even John Kennedy, who enjoyed a generally good press if any recent president did, had his off moments, being moved at one point to delete the late and lamented New York Herald Tribune from the White House subscription list.

Further, it is an attitude that is usually acquired after Inauguration Day. A presidential hopeful can find a press critical — even a press savaging — of an incumbent exceedingly helpful to his own purposes.

But once in the Oval Office, it is understandable that a president can come to view an inquisitive and frequently critical press as an obstacle to his policies. The danger comes when a president goes a long step farther, taking the implied position that the press should actively assist in the pursuit of those policies.

The press sees the situation quite differently. It is not its function either to help or to hinder the public policies or the internal tensions of an administration, but to report them as accurately as possible. Its primary obligation is to the public.

Never mind that in the short run that public may sympathize more with a president, particularly a popular one, than with a press it feels may be too sharply critical — or may be telling it things it would rather not hear. In the long run an informed public, even against its desires, is more important to the political health of the nation than the specific programs of any administration.

JACK ANDERSON

Director Tried To Profit From Athletes

WASHINGTON — Another hobgoblin has appeared from out of Bill Casey's corporate past: In his pre-Washington life, the dour CIA director conspired to use American Olympic athletes for personal gain.

This is just the latest in a succession of tawdry discoveries, which point to something amiss in Casey's background. In earlier columns, I've reported on his involvement in other questionable business deals.

These untoward incidents don't add up to a criminal case against Casey but raise questions about his fitness to run the Central Intelligence Agency. Someone else with Casey's dubious background would be turned down for employment by the CIA. Shouldn't the chief be judged by the same standards as his subordinates?

The Olympic scheme has been dug out of dusty files by my reporters John Dillon and

BUSINESS WORLD

Old-Fashioned Lobbying

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first year of the Reagan administration may have accelerated a trend towards the ultimate demise of the old-fashioned business lobbyist in Washington.

William Cantor, a New York executive recruiter who has specialized in finding communications and government relations executives, says that's because the Reagan people show a preference for dealing directly with the heads of big corporations instead of talking with them at arm's length through lawyers, ex-congressmen and other lobbyists as past administrations did.

Cantor said business has been quick to take advantage of this attitude because the climate in Washington now is right for their viewpoints.

Cantor also said it has become increasingly difficult for lobbyists to deal directly with senators and representatives because of the demands on the lawmakers' time. They are forced to talk with staff members.

"What it boils down to," Cantor said, "is that the big demand for people in Washington now is for information experts: a legal degree and often a master's in a relevant field also may be required."

Two firms engaged in frontline government relations in the capital agreed with some of Cantor's conclusions.

Ron Eisenberg of Marston & Rothenberg said it's true the Reagan team likes to talk directly to business leaders but this shouldn't be taken as an indication it is subservient to business and anti-consumerist.

Eisenberg also said the days of the lame-duck politician lobbyist and the flamboyant Hollywood-type drumbearer are numbered. "Government relations people now have to be well educated and have real expertise."

He said the Reagan direct-dealing climate is only at the top level and "many or most decisions are made at lower levels" so there still is plenty of need for top-flight middlemen.

John Adams, one of the older government relations practitioners in the capital, urged caution in thinking things are really changing all that much. He thinks ex-congressmen and senators still will be lobbying for years to come, particularly if they're good lawyers. He agreed, though, that genuine expertise is replacing old-fashioned political tactics to a substantial degree.

But one of Adams' associates, Peter Kostmayer, an ex-congressman from Pennsylvania, who hopes to go back to Congress, told UPI incumbent senators and representatives don't think they owe anything to ex-members serving as lobbyists so these lame-ducks really are dependent on their talents like lesser people in the business.

Kostmayer said the role of old-fashioned lobbyist is bound to decline in Washington for another and more important reason. "It is becoming clear," he said, "that the best place to influence a congressman is not in Washington but in his home district. The best strategy is to work on the voters and they will make known their views in no uncertain terms to the congressman."

Kostmayer also said he thought the impetus for direct dealing between government and business at the top level now is coming more from business than from the White House.

ROBERT WALTERS Who Will Pay For Pipeline?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For millions of families that rely upon natural gas for cooking, heating and other household uses, it's time to learn about the "all-events tariff with consumer non-completion guarantees."

That's the elaborate euphemism being used by government and industry officials to describe a plan that would force consumers of natural gas throughout the country to finance the most expensive non-government construction project ever conceived in the nation's history.

According to Energy Secretary James B. Edwards, a supporter of the project, the plan would add $1.50 to $1.75 to consumers' monthly gas bills — but if construction cost estimates continue to escalate as rapidly as they have in recent years, the cost to gas customers could be far higher.

The project is the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System, designed to provide a pipeline network that would carry vast deposits of natural gas from Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope to the interior of the "lower 48" states.

Six years ago, when the project was conceived, the estimated completion cost was less than $8 billion. Four years ago, the projection was $10 billion. Two years ago, it was $15 billion. Today it stands at $45 billion.

The project's promoters don't have the money to pay for pipeline construction, the federal government is rightfully leery about becoming involved — and even the nation's largest commercial banks are terrified of the cost.

At a recent congressional hearing, a vice president of New York's Chase Manhattan Bank spoke in awe of the "unprecedented financing request" made by the ANGSTS sponsors, a consortium headed by the Northwest Energy Co. of Salt Lake City.

"The debt requirements of this project are likely to test the limits of the world's capital markets," added a vice president of California's Bank of America, the largest private commercial bank in the world.

"The size of the project relative to both the financial capacity of the sponsors and the size of the world capital markets is simply far too great," he warned.

Unwilling to abandon the extravagant project, Northwest Energy has proposed a unique device to raise much of the needed money — a federal mandate requiring consumers to pay pipeline construction costs years before it is completed.

The scheme is similar to the construction-work-in-progress concept under which utilities long have sought to bill their customers for ongoing construction costs — but have been regularly rebuffed by state regulatory commissions.

An "all-events tariff" is a surcharge imposed on consumers without regard to the status of the ANGSTS project. Thus, payments would be required if it is interminably delayed, completed on time (the sponsors claim construction work will last for five years) or totally abandoned.

A "consumer non-completion guarantee" requires continuing consumer payments — even if all or part of the project is scrapped — to help the promoters pay interest on their outstanding debt.

In And Around Geneva

Open Door: Just A Time To Meet Your Neighbors

A wonderful gesture of welcome has been instituted at the Geneva United Methodist Church—a fellowship meeting called the Open Door.

Every Tuesday at 10 a.m., folks are coming together for a non-church type meeting. According to Nellie Isner, the pastor's wife, it is "just a time to get to meet your neighbors."

Some people play cards, and those that are still around at lunch time are invited to partake in what the hostess-of-the-day has provided. (A free will offering is accepted for the lunch.)

Lou Childers

Geneva Correspondent
349-5790

The first gathering of the Open Door was held on Oct. 20 with 25 people attending. There is really no structure to the fellowship — no dues, no officers — just a good time for all who attend. Why not plan to attend next Tuesday?

The Lighthouse is officially open and accepting young people with "crisis-type" situations. It is important to note that contrary to local rumor, the youth facility is not housing "juvenile delinquents" — just teen-agers with problems at home that caused an interruption of normal family life.

The facility is still looking for house parents, and anyone interested in Christian outreach of this type should contact Gus Martin, director of The Lighthouse at 349-5099, or Jay Durie, executive director of the sponsoring organization, the Central Florida branch of Youth for Christ at 425-4431 in Orlando.

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Myers and their son, Jim, have finally moved into their new home off Lake Harney Road.

Mr. Myers is with Orlando-based ARC Kyle company, a concrete pipe producer. The Myers have five other children, all grown and in their own homes.

According to Mr. Myers, his work has always required him to travel in foreign lands, and he and Mrs. Myers are looking forward to finally putting down some roots.

The family-oriented Rock Church will host a hayride for children of all ages (8 mos. to 105 years) Wednesday evening, Nov. 25 at 7 p.m. The shindig will begin at the Jim Post home on B Road in Geneva and will conclude with an old fashioned outdoor hot dog barbeque.

For information if you are interested in attending, please call Jim at 349-5693. Pastor of the Maitland-based church, Don Cox, cordially invites Genevians to attend.

The Rev. Gary Isner of the Geneva United Methodist Church will hold a special Thanksgiving Worship Service, Thursday, Nov. 26 at 8:00 p.m. The Community is invited to attend.

Gardening

Don't Be Too Hasty In Pruning

Don't be too hasty in pruning cold damaged plants such as hibiscus, allamanda, poinsettia, citrus, rubber plants, philodendrons and others. The extent of cold damage in many instances cannot be distinctly determined until growth starts in spring.

Tom Davis

Urban Horticulturist
322-3228

By pruning now, you may cut off live wood. Also, the leaves and stems that are dead afford some protection to that not yet damaged. If you prune this out, later freezes may do more damage than would have been done if the dead parts were left on the plant. If you do prune now, cover the part remaining during freezing weather to protect it.

Although the entire top of some plants (rubber plant, philodendron, poinsettia and others) may have been killed by freezing, these plants may send up new shoots from the roots next spring. Don't write the plant off until warm weather arrives and they have a chance to renew themselves.

Frozen banana stalks and bird of paradise stems may be removed as soon as you can determine how much is dead. Banana stalks become brown and soft when frozen. New shoots will appear from the ground next spring. With bird of paradise there is no true stem, only leaf stalks. These will turn brown soon after freezing. You may remove them or leave them for protecting the root system until spring.

Freeze damage to citrus is not easy to determine since damage to the trunk may not show up for several months following the cold weather.

Trees should be pruned as soon as possible after the extent of damage has been determined. You will know, as a rule, what this damage is after the second flush of growth following the freeze. Damage to azaleas may be to flower buds and stems. Flower bud damage will show up at blooming time (few or no flowers) and stem damage by death of branches in late spring or early summer. Dead azalea branches should be pruned out as they occur.

Camellia damage is probably confined to flower buds and leaf burn. Cold damaged flower buds will either drop from the plant or only partially open showing a brown center. Leaf damage on camellias will not be too lasting, as new leaves will come out in spring and the old, damaged ones will drop from the plant.

Keep plants as healthy as possible and provide as much protection as you can during cold weather and chances are very little pruning of cold damaged plants will be necessary.

Longwood Woman Wins $1,000 In Cooking Contest

Kerri Levine of Longwood, has been named the winner of the $1,000 prize in the Chun King Wok Cook-Off held in the Altamonte Mall Tuesday.

An expert panel of judges selected Mrs. Levine's recipe, Florida Lemony Chicken from among those of six finalists who prepared their original stir-fry recipes before an audience of shoppers.

Judges for the contest were Peggy O'Donnell, a Land O'Lakes cooking teacher and consultant; and Joseph Crea, food editor of the Daytona Journal.

The prizes were awarded by Chun King consultant Anne Byrd, who served as mistress of ceremonies for the event.

FLORIDA LEMONY CHICKEN

3 whole (or 6 halves) chicken breasts, skinned, and cut in chunks
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup chicken broth
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt

3 tablespoons oil
1 scallion, cut in small pieces
1 can (8-oz.) water chestnuts, drained and cut in quarters

2 lemons, thinly sliced with seeds removed shredded lettuce

Toss chicken with soy sauce; let stand 30 minutes. Mix cornstarch with 1 tablespoon of the chicken broth to make a paste; stir in remaining broth, sugar, and salt, mixing until smooth.

Heat 2 tablespoons of the oil in a wok or large skillet. Add chicken; stir-fry over high heat until chicken turns white and is cooked through. Remove chicken from wok. Add remaining tablespoon of oil to wok. Add scallion and stir-fry one minute. Add water chestnuts, lemon slices, and chicken; stir-fry about 2 minutes or until hot. Add chicken broth mixture; cook until sauce thickens, stirring constantly.

Arrange lettuce on serving platter; pour chicken over lettuce. Serve immediately.
YIELD: 5 to 6 servings.

Piglets Cute; Hogs Dangerous

DEAR ABBY: "Sue in San Francisco" wrote: "Recently, I received a phone call from the 35-year-old illegitimate daughter of my deceased husband. She said she was anxious to know something about her father. She knew before contacting me that she had been conceived within six months after my marriage and that the affair with her mother, of which I had no knowledge, was an ongoing thing since before our marriage. She also knew that her father had died some years ago."

Sue closed with, "I don't need this woman to enter my life as a constant reminder of my late husband's infidelity. Abby, I beg you to ask those who seek their natural parents to please consider the heartaches they can bring to others in order to satisfy their own curiosity."

I had been married only seven months when my husband told me that his son by another woman had just been born. I recall that I literally "froze." But the next morning I made up my mind that I would acknowledge that child so he could bear our surname. (My mother-in-law's advice was, "Leave him in the street where he

Hungry Sanford Looks To Feast On Hawks

Seminole '81: A Look At A Champion Part 1

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

After clinching the District 4A-9 and Five Star Conference championships along with a berth in the state football playoffs, some team would be subject to the whims of complacency.

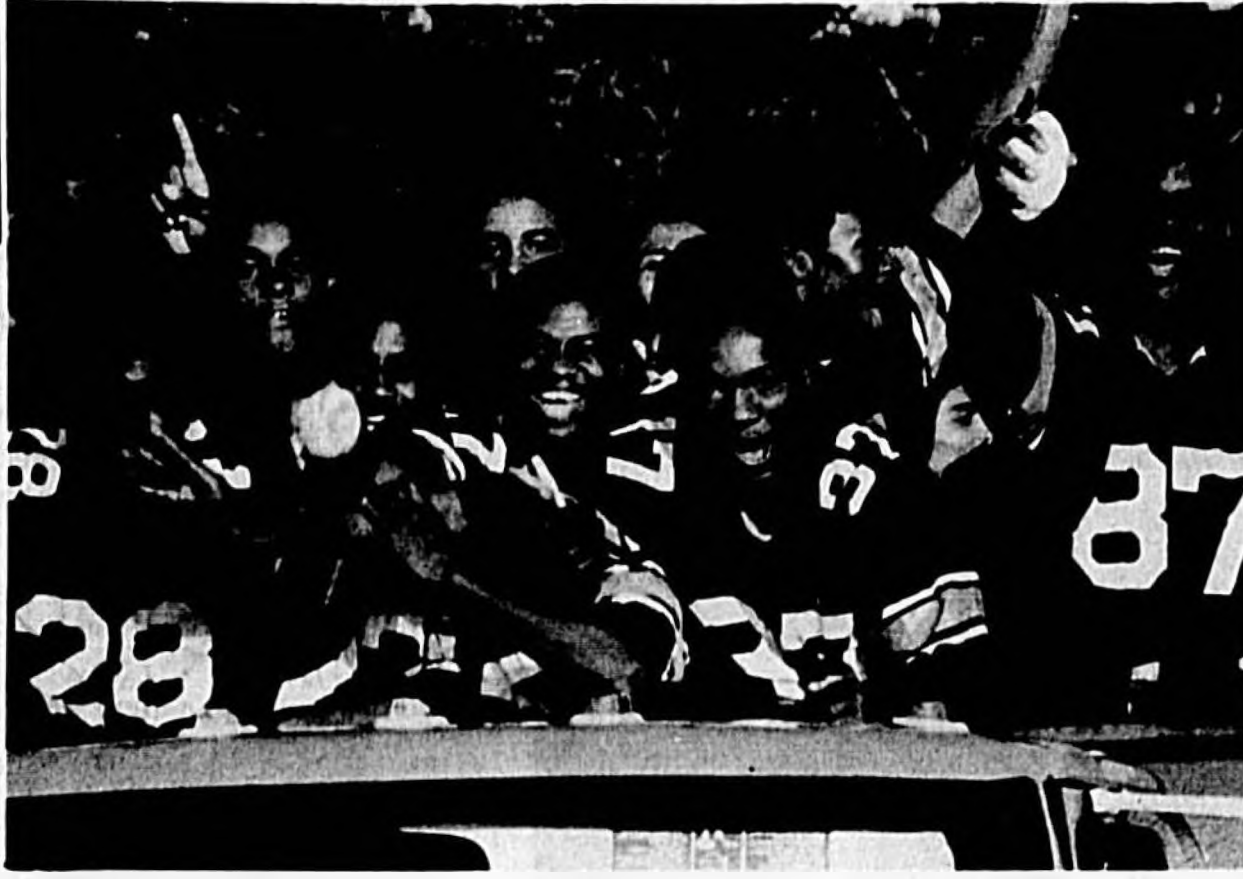

Not so with coach Jerry Posey's Fighting Seminoles, however. The 7-2 Tribe goes after victim number eight tonight — three of which have been in succession — when it hosts Spruce Creek for the 1981 Seminole homecoming.

Although it's a week early for the Thanksgiving bird, the hungry Seminoles hope to make turkeys out of coach Terry Manfredi's Hawks in this season finale. "This game means a lot to us," said senior linebacker Greg Register as he gestured toward an ornament in the Tribe locker room. "It's another step on our ladder. We want to be undefeated in conference and district."

In the Tribe's dressing quarters is a cardboard and paper constructed ladder which leads you through the season with a series of footprints.

At the bottom, a footprint is missing where the Titusville Astronauts lost the season. Then comes a big paw for the victory over Lake Howell.

Next up is another step with a foot over Edgewater. Those last two feet could have been Alan Cahill's, who provided the margin of victory in each with field goals in overtime. (A look at the kicker revealed he still has both of his.)

The next print was a 26-13 whipping of Apopka. DeLand was next on the ladder, a 7-0 shutout for coach Dave Mosure and his "Dave You To Beat Us," defenders.

been in fine step the rest of the way up its ladder with victories over Lake Brantley, Lyman and Daytona Beach Mainland.

To pluck tonight's bird and add victory number eight, however, the Seminoles must pluck the wings of one Kenny Flowers — who some observers feel is the best back in the conference. None of those observers have seen Lenny Sutton — the Tribe's workhorse.

Flowers had rave reviews last year, but has come up a little short his year on Broadway notices. Last week, however, he went over a 100 yard rushing (something Sutton does out of habit) in a victory against Lyman.

He also intercepted a pass, which prompted one former area coach to remark, "With all that talent Manfredi has, why does he have to play Flowers on defense."

Which seems to be an appropriate question when discussing Spruce Creek. Every year the Hawks start fast, but choke on their own feathers down the stretch.

A year ago, they had the district title handed to them, only to fall apart at the end of the season and lose a three-way playoff to Lake Howell.

This year was no different. At one point, Spruce Creek was sitting at 3-0 with a "not-so-tough-schedule" remaining. They lost to Mainland and Apopka on successive weekends, however, and squandered any chances of turning tonight's game into a "big game."

Along with Flowers, the Hawks has an exciting sophomore quarterback in Billy Elmore, who launched four TD passes against Lake Howell. Junior John Lavin also sees action behind the center.

"Spruce Creek is the kind of team that scares me to death," pointed out Posey. "They have great size and a lot of talent."

The Hawks are 5-4 overall and 4-2 in the district. Ten players tip the scales at 200 pounds or more. Half of them are over 6-foot-1. Three are 6-foot-3 or better.

Seminole will counter with its pesky 4-3 and 3-4 defensive formations, which have up to 50 variations depending upon the offensive alignment.

"Flowers is a good runner," Mosure concedes. "He picks his holes and bounces to the outside very well. We have to stop their veer, but it's a predetermined veer, which means they usually decide what they're going to do in the huddle instead of the quarterback reading the defense."

While Posey and Mosure are singing the usual coaching tributes about Flowers, the Seminole defense is looking at the 6-foot-1, 190-pound speedster as just another back.

"Coach Mosure teaches us to look at him as just another jersey," reveals Register.

"We aren't going to do anything special," informs senior defensive captain Byron Washington. "We're just going to play like we always do."

"We don't consider him (Flowers) no great person. It's not like you're playing against Herschel Walker."

The way this band of Seminoles has been playing, the great Georgia game-breaker may stub his toe a few times too.

TRIBE TALES — Tight end Frank Rowe points out that Johnnie "Bull" Littles, Victor "Quick Vic" Williams and Lenny "No Nickname" Sutton are all 100 percent which has been the reason for the outstanding offensive output of recent weeks.

While the backfield is 100 percent, a few of the defenders are wounded. Defensive end John Rowsey is bugged by an earache and is "doubtful." Kicker and defensive tackle Cahill has a bruised jaw. He will kick, but probably nothing else. "I just hope we don't have a letdown," said Posey Thursday afternoon.

(Monday, the Evening Herald take a look at Seminole's "Mr. Intensity" — coach Dave Mosure.)

Lucky Lions Can't Lose Against Cocoa Beach Tonight

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer

How's this for a Friday night scenario?

Joe Montgomery's Oviedo Lions entertain Cocoa Beach's Minutemen tonight at 8 in the Lions' homecoming game. A lot of teams would like to walk a few miles in the Lions' shoes because they can't lose.

Relatively speaking of course. Certainly the possibility for a Lion defeat looms in the presence of an offensively powerful 7-2 Cocoa Beach club. But win, lose or draw, Oviedo's post season destiny has already been decided. Well, half decided to be more accurate.

Oviedo was officially extended an invitation to be the host team in this season's Rotary Bowl Charity Classic. That invite came Thursday from the Rotary Club of Seminole County South. Montgomery and the 3-A Lions feel it would be an honor and pleasure to face 4-A power Winter Park. The 6-4 Wildcats have accepted a bid as the visiting team.

Only trouble is, Oviedo may be out of town on another engagement, facing Brooksville Hernando in the first round of 3-A state playoff action.

The key to unscrambling the Lions' post-season social calendar lies, however, in the hands of fellow Orange Belt Conference contenders St. Cloud and Kissimmee.

Oviedo

Oviedo has concluded its conference and district schedule with a 4-1 mark, a big part of the Lions' 6-3 record. St. Cloud and Kissimmee square off tonight with identical 3-1 district records. Should St. Cloud beat Kissimmee, St. Cloud wraps up the district title on the basis of an earlier season win over Oviedo. A Kissimmee victory gives Oviedo the district title on the basis of the Lions' earlier season win over Kissimmee. So the bottom line for the Lions is either a bowl game, or a state playoff game.

On the eve of this pigskin puzzlement, you'll have to forgive Montgomery for feeling like a youngster given the green light to send Santa Claus multiple Christmas lists.

"Number one would be winning the district," confides Montgomery. "We're hoping Kissimmee pulls off a win so we can get in the state playoffs. If not, we're happy to have the opportunity to play in the Rotary Bowl. It will be an honor."

If there is a grinch on the Lion horizon, it has to be the fact that prior to kickoff against Cocoa Beach, the Lion coaching staff has to have preparing for three different teams in the back of their collective minds.

The first matter at hand, is of course the Minutemen, who followed up last season's 6-4 Space Coast Conference showing with a 7-2 effort this season.

"We'll be facing the best Cocoa Beach team that we've faced in the 10 years we've been playing them," promises Montgomery.

"They run an outside veer offense and we've had problems defending it because we don't see it in our conference. With that in mind, Montgomery feels his Lions will have to pop a few light bulbs on the Oviedo scoreboard.

"The key to our winning is that we have to score three touchdowns, that's what it will take to beat Cocoa Beach."

A possible Rotary Bowl showdown against Winter Park is another parcel for food for thought for Montgomery, especially when he was reminded that the Wildcats were ranked fifth in the state earlier in the season.

"I'm glad they're not ranked fifth now," chuckled Montgomery. "Winter Park is a very physical team. They had some players out with injuries for some of their games, but they'll all be healthy and ready for the Rotary Bowl."

"Playing them would be a big challenge for us. It's kind of a situation where we have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Either way things turn out, I know our players will be looking forward to the challenge."

Should fortune smile on the Lions and leave them with a state playoff berth, how does Montgomery assess Brooksville Hernando?

"Well," paused the Lion coach, "they're the kind of 3-A team that comes down to Lyman's jamboree every year, beats everybody, then they go back home."

The game may be looked at as a dull one, but not to the Silver Hawks who look for an impressive ending of this 1981-82 football season, and hope to continue to succeed under first year man Blaceglia.

The Hawks should come with full strength, although versatile kicker and running back Scott Grant is bothered by a thigh pull.

Incidentally, should Kissimmee win against St. Cloud, Kissimmee will then become Winter Park's Rotary Bowl opponent while the Lions are off dealing with Brooksville Hernando. St. Cloud, though, hasn't won at Kissimmee since 1953.

Hawks Try To Stick 10th Setback On Boone

By BILLY STRIPP
Herald Sports Writer

One month ago, this Lake Howell-Boone football clash looked to be a showdown of losers. After six weeks of agony, Boone and the Silver Hawks were both looking for their first win of the season.

Howell, however, has turned it around in the last three weeks with victories over Lyman, DeLand and Apopka. Boone, though, is still trudging along with nine losses.

"I hate to play a team that hasn't won a game," said Hawk coach Mike Blaceglia, who is all too familiar with that problem through his first six games. Howell has been the second hottest team in the county, next to Seminole with its three victories. The Hawks would like to make it four with a victory tonight at Boone. The kickoff is at 7:48 p.m.

If so the case, Blaceglia may look to sophomore Robert Kerr to kick, as he and a host of other junior varsity players were brought up the past two games.

With neither team going anywhere, the players from the Silver Hawks noted that they want to end the season with pride.

For Howell's seniors, this may be their last time to be on a football team. As for the Boone Braves, some might have felt they weren't on a football team as they have struggled nine tough losses.

For what seemed to be a big clash for losing teams, may just turn out to be another Silver Hawk victory.

Here's Looking At You...Or Too Blind To See

This is an interesting little tale. Tuesday or Wednesday, a highly-placed well-informed source claims two Lyman junior varsity coaches—Dan Bridges and Jim Markham—were spying on a Lake Brantley practice.

The 'Hounds play the Patriots in this season-ending slugfest and the source was of the opinion that the Greyhounds may be trying to pick up some additional info.

Patriot coach Dave Tullis downplayed the incident. "We're doing the same things we've done all year," he said. "But the kids did mention there was a blue van at practice Tuesday and Wednesday."

When Scott was reached Thursday morning, he denied any knowledge of the occurrence. "This is the first I've heard of it," said the biggest Greyhound.

Sandra Glenn, I'm going to show you what a gentleman I am. Not very smart, but a gentleman just the same.

I had the county commissioner in the prediction race, 66-64. Now, during this last week I could pick the same teams he does and win the title. Sportswriters

Billy Stripp and Joe DeSantis are both out of contention with 57 right ones.

However, I will make three different selections than you to give you a chance for glory. Since you're coming up for reelection, it may be your last shot.

Spruce Creek (5-4) at Sanford (7-4)
The panel feels the 'Noles. Seminole's defense feels a win is a must if the momentum is to be kept for the playoff game with Vero Beach next Friday. Unanimous for the Tribe.

Lake Brantley (6-5) at Lyman (4-5)
Both schools started the year fast, but talled off. Lyman is young, while Brantley has the vets. Game appears to be even. That's how the panel sees it.

Cocoa Beach (6-3) at Oviedo (6-3)
Joe Montgomery raves about the Minutemen, but he raves about anybody. He's even raved about Northwestern University (0-30). Everybody likes the bowl-bound or playoff-bound Lions.

Lake Howell (3-4) at Boone (0-9)
Monty would even rave about Boone. Lake Howell is on a roll, three in a row. The panel is in complete agreement that it will continue.

Bethune-Cookman (6-3) at Central Florida (4-5)

Where do you bury the survivors? If UCF wins this game, I'll eat Don Jonas' cigar. Joyce Tullis, who knows better, picks the Knights along with Billy Stripp. The rest of us pick the Wildcats. Sanford's Charles Riggins comes close to home as a defensive lineman for BCC.

Miami (7-8) at North Carolina St. (4-4)
USC has lost twice in the past three weeks, but the panel still likes Marcus Allen and the Trojans.

Packers (5-4) at Bucu (5-4)
Slight edge to the Bucu. If I weren't such a gentleman, it would be even. This game could end in a tie anyway.

Dolphins (7-3-1) at Jeta (6-4-1)
This game did end in a tie the last time they played. How much longer can the Dolphins continue to lose to the Jeta. Not much longer feels the panel.

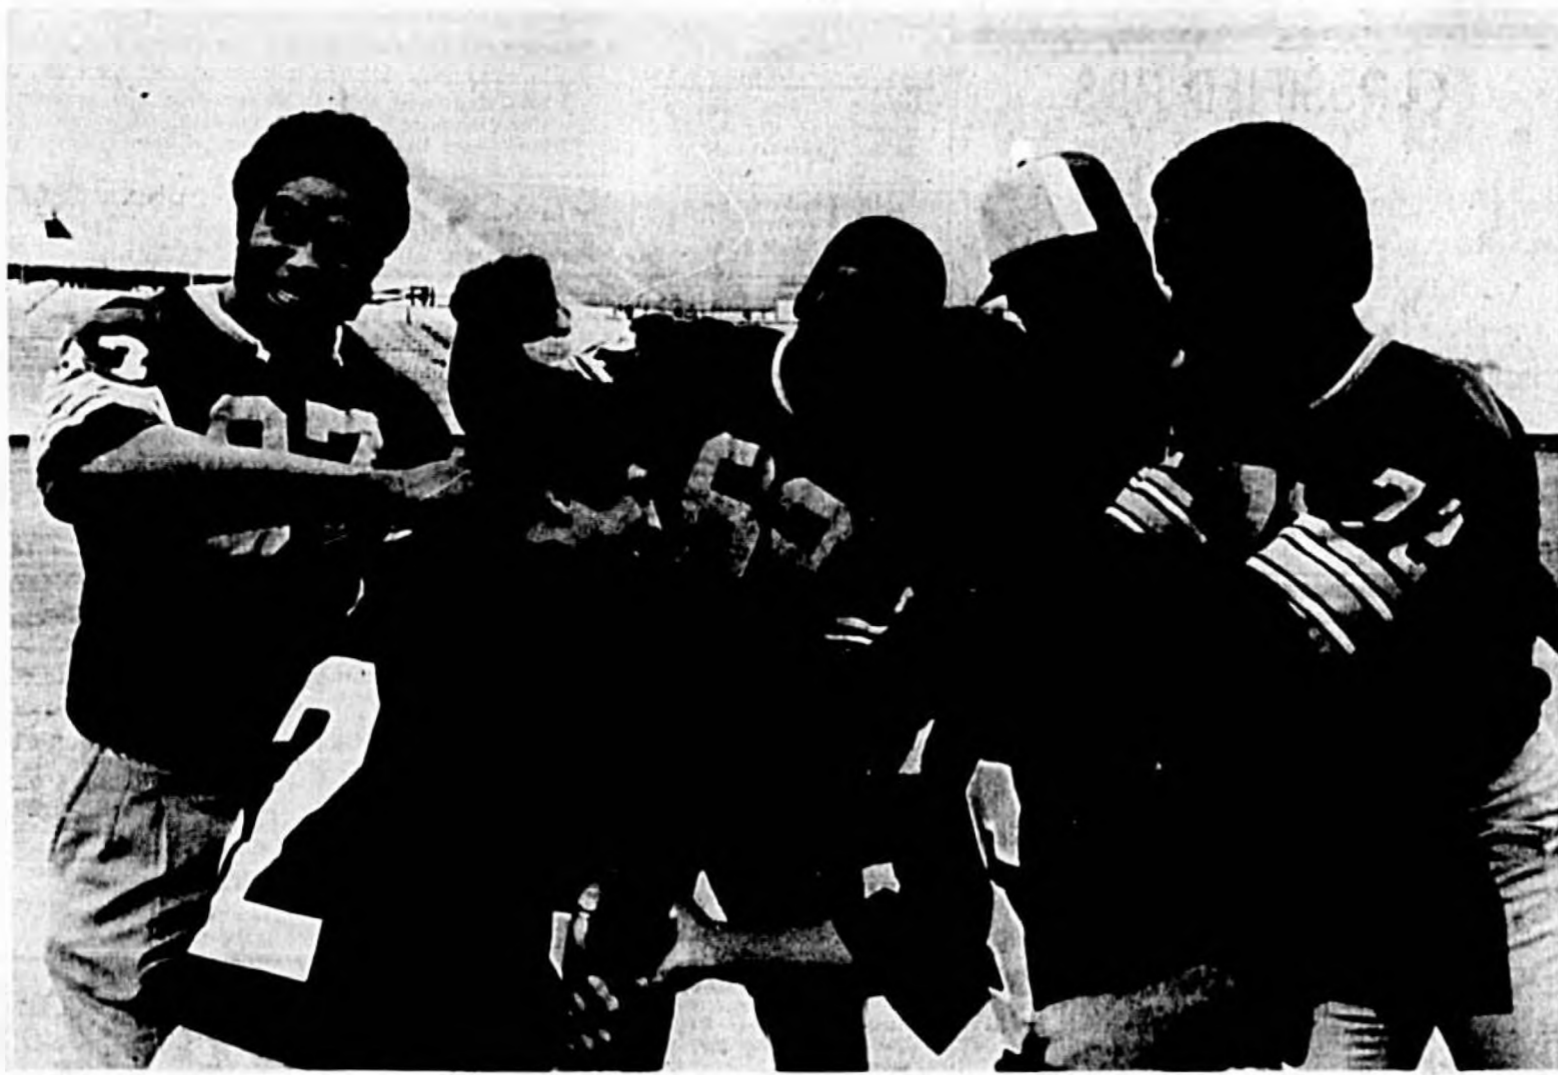

Vikings (7-4) at Falcons (5-8)
The Falcons are probably the best 3-4 team in the league. Glenn and Joan Blaceglia hold out for Minnesota, while the rest of us are for the birds.

SATURDAY KNIGHT DEAD?

Bethune-Cookman College defenders give University of Central Florida running backs John Muldoon (left) and Vincent Lewis a taste of what it may be like Saturday. The Division I-AA Wildcats invade the Tangerine Bowl for a 7:30 p.m. battle with the Division III Knights in what both schools hope will be the beginning of a strong rivalry. Bethune players, (left to right), are 6-3, 220-pound Rod McGahee, 6-4, 245 Charles Riggins, 6-7, 255-pound Booker Reese and 6-5, 225-pound Lee Williams. Riggins is a former standout all-conference defensive end for Seminole High.

Lakers' 'Magic' Makes Coach Disappear

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers' owner Jerry Buss, saying the excitement is gone from his team, fired Coach Paul Westhead Thursday within hours of Magic Johnson's threat to leave the club unless the coach was let go.

Assistant coach Pat Riley was named as Westhead's replacement with former NBA great Jerry West named offensive coordinator. Although Riley will officially be head coach, Buss said West will serve a vital role in designing the Lakers' offense.

"I have appointed Jerry West as offensive coach for the Lakers," Buss said at a hastily called Thursday afternoon news conference. "I did not specifically make someone head coach and someone else the assistant coach."

"I feel Pat Riley is very capable of coaching the Laker team but I feel that we need a new offensive coach. I asked Jerry if he would take that job and because of his relationship with Pat, I feel that the two of them can coach the team together with Jerry in charge of the offense in particular."

"I don't look at this as a cocooch type of thing," West said. "I'm here to help Pat."

Johnson, who is in the first year of an unprecedented $25 million, 25-year guaranteed contract, shocked team officials Wednesday night by saying he wanted to be traded. Johnson claimed the game was "no longer any fun" and blamed a new offensive setup installed by Westhead.

A feud had been simmering between Westhead and Johnson for some time centering around the Laker guard's displeasure with the new offense. It reached a climax following Los Angeles' 113-110 victory over the Utah Jazz when Johnson told reporters he wanted to be traded.

ingering the third period, outscored Washington 34-18 over the next 12 minutes to take a 90-87 lead.

Pacers 102, Kings 99

At Indianapolis, Johnny Davis and Mike Bantom scored crucial baskets late in the fourth quarter to snap a 94-94 tie. Indiana took an 85-78 lead into the final quarter but Mike Woodson's 15-footer for Kansas City tied the score 94-94. Davis and Bantom then scored consecutive field goals to ruin the Kings' comeback.

Warriors 105, Clippers 100

At San Diego, Golden State, with Lloyd Free scoring 24 points and Bernard King adding 22, posted its fourth straight victory. SPORTS IN BRIEF

Lyman, Patriots, Saints Compete In State X-Country

Lyman's boys, Lake Brantley and Trinity Prep's girls, along with a little Lake Mary freshman carry the Seminole County cross country torch Saturday when the state meet opens at the DeLand Airport course.

Coach Jim Marshall's Patriot girls will run at 9:30 a.m. Led by junior Ellen Stern, senior Tracy Bonham and sophomore Kathryn Hayward, Brantley cleaned up on area competition all year. Last Saturday, the Pats finished third in the regional.

Coach David Huggins' Greyhounds, likewise, have been tough in the area. Sophomore Doug McBroom leads a close-knit group of Brian Hunter, Adam DeMino, Craig Stapleton and Carl Schmalmaack.

Edgewater, nevertheless, is an overwhelming favorite to take the meet. In last week's regional at Titusville, the Eagles totaled just 36 points. Lyman was fourth with 137. The Hounds run at 10:15 a.m.

Coach George Austin's Trinity Prep girls captured their fourth 2A district in a row last Saturday. Precocious eighth grader Adrienne Politowicz leads the way. She won the district in a fine 12:06 clocking over the two-mile layout.

Lake Mary's Shannon McNulty, Sanford's Tracy Johnson and "Punkie" Lingle add depth to the Saints' squad. McNulty was second and Johnson fourth for Trinity. Freshman Tommy Matthews, who finished second in the boys three mile in 15:58, will run for the Trinity boys. The 2A girls goes at 11 a.m., while the boys follow at 11:45 a.m.

Fresh Kim Averill is Mike Gibson's lone representative. Averill finished third behind McNulty in the district with a time of 12:40.

Raiders At VCC Tournament

Seminole Community College's Raiders go after their second straight basketball tournament prize tonight at 8:30 at Valencia Community College.

The 2-1 Raiders first-round foe is tough Gulf Coast Community College. A victory tonight moves SCC into the championship game Saturday against the VCC-Edison Community College winner game two tonight. The title game will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Turkey Shoot Set Saturday

The annual Rotary Turkey Shoot takes place Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Disabled American Veteran Grounds near the American Legion on Highway 17-82.

On hand for the presentation was Sue Chapman, chapter treasurer (left) and Olga Strickland, president. The center is located at 591 Lake Minnie Drive, Sanford. The dedication was made in appreciation for the contributions made to Crossroads by the club.

Health Agency Needs $3,000

The Long Term Care Task Force of the Health Systems Agency of East Central Florida has developed a guide to inform the elderly of area health and social services available to them, but unless the group can raise an additional $3,000 by Dec. 5 the project will go down the drain.

The guide is an educational pamphlet to acquaint senior citizens and their families with alternatives to nursing home care.

There are approximately 150,000 seniors (60 and over) in Seminole, Brevard, Orange and Osceola counties who might benefit from such information. Any organizations or businesses interested in helping provide the needed funds may contact the Health Systems Agency at 628-1382.

Kid Abuser Sterilized

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — A convicted child abuser and mother of three has undergone sterilization — a judge's suggestion as alternative to a prison sentence.

Authorities disclosed Thursday that Melinda Middleton, 19, underwent the operation Saturday after giving birth to her third child at a medical facility at Travis Air Force Base.

The sterilization was suggested by Solano County Superior Court Judge William E. Jensen recently after Mrs. Middleton was convicted of felony child abuse in the January death of her 5-month-old daughter, Misty.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Early Rehabilitation Vital With Stroke

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a light stroke five months ago. I was hospitalized three days. I'm almost back to normal now. I cannot play the piano like I used to — my left hand, especially, doesn't do as well. Also my singing is not as good as before.

I can walk one to two miles, although I could walk only a short distance after my stroke. I can do light work. I also do floor exercises — practically no limit to these.

When I jog or run or do heavy work I get a feeling of discomfort, no weakness or dizziness, no pain, no shortness of breath, just a punk feeling. Resting or walking slowly I feel OK again.

I am a World War I vet of 85 years of age. The doctors recommend two buffered aspirin a day. Would you advise any other medication.

DEAR READER — I just hope I'm doing that well when I reach 85. And I notice that your handwriting is steady.

You must have had a very light stroke and you were very fortunate that you had no significant residual damage. Many people who appear to have extensive damage the first day or two do have a good recovery. Some of the initial damage is from the swelling in the injured brain area. As the swelling subsides, these cells often regain normal function.

Early treatment designed to aid the ability to speak (speech therapy) and the full range of motion and activity is important. Most good stroke centers and most larger hospitals today have services for these available. I must emphasize, though, the importance of early rehabilitation.

Your story should provide a lot of encouragement to others. I am sending you The Health Letter number 16-6, What You Need to Know About Strokes, which explains the symptoms and what you can do about them. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I would not recommend any other medicines for you on the basis of your letter. However, I think it is important for stroke patients to have a normal blood pressure. Some people need to lose weight to lower it and to maintain a low cholesterol level. Smoking is out. I presume with your story that you don't have that bad habit. And I think you should concentrate on an enjoyable walk and not try to jog or run.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please settle my fears about lumps found near the skin? I have had one such lump for six years that the doctors call a harmless lipoma just on the basis of feeling it. It is near the bottom of my rib cage. Now I can feel one forming on my outer right thigh. You said once that any lump should be biopsied. Now I'm frightened that any lumps I have or might get might be cancerous. Do I need to get a biopsy every time one forms? I have no other symptoms and they are painless.

DEAR READER — I think everyone who develops any lump other than a swelling from a sting or an abscess that is easily identified should see a doctor and let him examine it to decide what should be done. You shouldn't make this decision yourself. In some instances the doctor can be confident that the lump is by examination, but in others the only way he can be sure is to biopsy it and look at cells under the microscope. Let your doctor decide if you need a biopsy or not after he has examined the lump.

Simple lipomas are harmless. They are not cancer lumps but fat lumps.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

November 21, 1981
The many kindnesses you have done for others have won you an array of loyal supporters. This coming year they will be working behind the scenes on your behalf, pulling all the right strings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Normally you enjoy being out among the bright lights and the action, but today you're apt to find more pleasure just being with your special someone. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Bringing your desires into being is likely today. You approach matters both hopefully and realistically. This balance spells success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You can do your image a lot of good today by not taking yourself, or situations, too seriously. Let everyone see you're a very easy person to get along with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Winning new friends is easy for you. You're the type who never judges others harshly. This will be very evident to those you meet today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Someone is looking out for your interests today, although you may not know of it immediately. Something quite important is involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
This should be a pleasant and harmonious day if you let moderation be your key words. Take a middle-of-the-road attitude and let destiny run its course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Regulate your time today so that your work and play hours balance out evenly. Do a little of each, but not too much of either.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Find a kindred spirit who is interested in the same types of social activities, preferably a fun sport you can play as partners.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Family members will follow the example you set today. If you're calm and at peace with yourself, this will also put them at ease.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You're likely to find yourself a bit restless today and may require a change of scenery. Seek an atmosphere that offers harmony and beauty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
A profitable tip can come your way through someone you'll be rubbing shoulders with socially today. When wisser heads speak, listen intently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Forego temptations to delegate assignments you should be taking care of personally. No one can do the job better than No. 1.

but Bridgette is his best, in our opinion.

Here is a bridge hand played by him almost 20 years ago in intercollegiate competition.

The bidding was good by any standards and the play even better.

Joli saw that if spades broke 2-1 he had a heart finesse for seven. If they broke 3-0 it was up to him to guess where the trumps were. Then he saw that he had a perfect safety play for his contract.

At trick two he called for dummy's king of trumps. West showed out and Joli drew trumps and could afford to lose that heart finesse.

Why was this way of playing trumps a safety play? Suppose that West held all three trumps. South would lead a second trump to his ace. Then he would cash the second high club in dummy and play diamonds.

West could ruff one of those diamonds or he could hold back his queen of trumps. If he did that Joli would throw him in with that card when he had finished with the diamonds.

West would be end-played. He would have to either lead a heart up to the tenace or give a ruff and discard.

Vroom...Go-Karting Thrills

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

You're racing down the straightaway. The wind in your face and the hum of the engine in your ears. Suddenly, the track turns sharply right and you glance quickly over your shoulder to find the competition — the enemy — hot on your heels. You hold tight to the corner of the track and spin the car successfully through the turn crossing the finish line under a checkered flag in a blaze of glory.

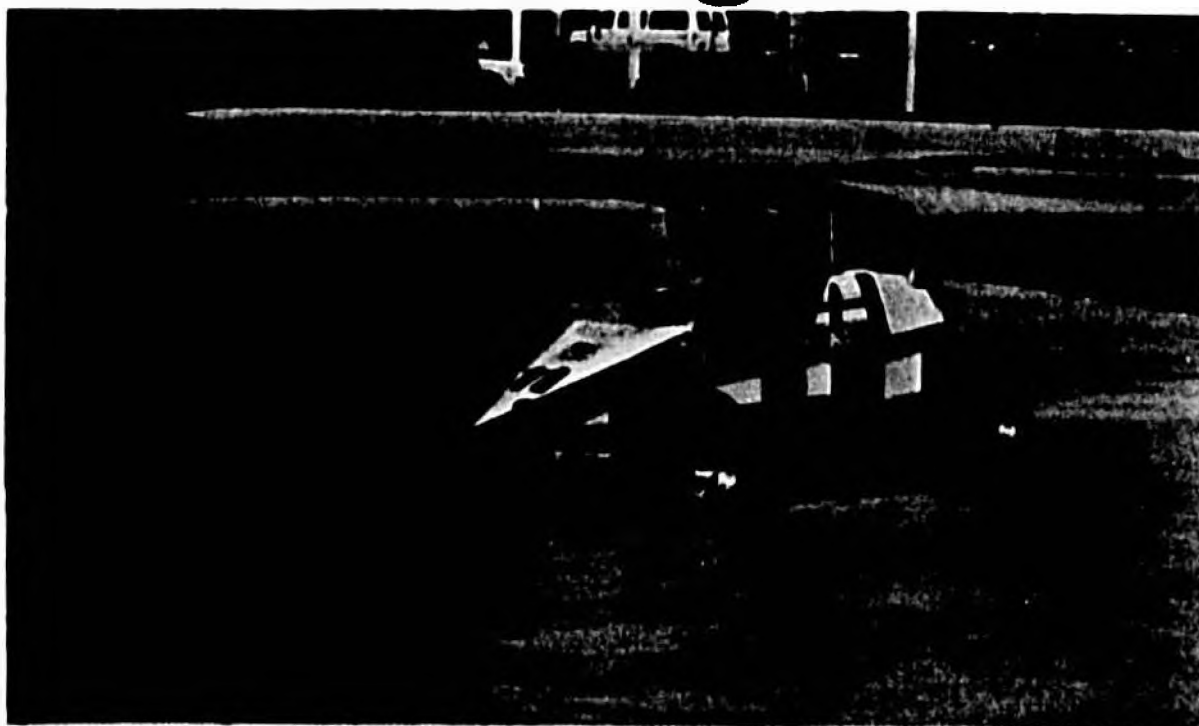

Indianapolis 500? No, but to the driver it might as well have been the "big one." It's go-karting and many of the sports' enthusiasts say they get just as big a thrill as automobile racers when they're behind the wheel of their karts.

In the past decade or so, go-karting has taken on a whole new meaning in the world of sports racing. Oh, there are still the hand-pulled karts and "souped-up" kart models that need only a good push and strong tailwind to push them down the road. But, according to karting enthusiasts, racing has opened up a "poor man's Indy 500," allowing both children and adults to drive and compete in the fast-action sport on professional grand prix raceways, sometimes reaching speeds in excess of 100 m.p.h.

"I love it," R.G. Kondracki of Sanford, said. "I've been racing go-karts since 1975 and my children have been racing since they were about seven-years-old."

Kondracki's oldest son, Marc, 14, is currently ranked 15th in the world among go-karters. Georgeann, 16, and Mike, 13, have also won several karting races, Kondracki said.

Kondracki, a former racecar driver, said it hasn't been very long ago that competitive karting in Sanford was pretty much confined to one or two people but that recently a "number of people have gotten into it and love it."

"There's no middle ground," he said. "You either love it or you don't. But, for those who love it there's nothing that can compare with the feeling of taking a kart around a bend or down a straightaway at top speeds on the major tracks like the Daytona International Speedway or Road Atlanta or the Savannah, Georgia, Pocono, Pennsylvania, or Talladega, Alabama speedways. Nothing beats it."

According to Kondracki, there are two national karting clubs including the World Karting Association and International Karting Federation. He said the advantages of being a club member are reduced race entry fees, awards, and "just the friendships between other racers."

But, the races in which Kondracki and others like him enter are a far cry from the "training-wheels-and-orange-crate racers" of the juvenile daredevil.

"It's not a child's game anymore when you're topping speeds of 100 m.p.h.," he said. "I've broken several ribs in crashes and I've flipped the kart once — but I wasn't hurt. Let me tell you though, I thought it was all over for me."

Kondracki said helmets and leather jackets are required racing apparel. "It's a good idea to wear gloves." Most racers don't wear seat belts, he added, because "we sit so low to the ground and we usually have the gas tank — some of us even use alcohol for fuel — sitting to our side or between our legs, that if we crashed and had a belt on we would probably burn before we could get out. Most of the time, a person can get clear of the wreckage without too much injury but not with a belt on."

Kondracki said at last year's Daytona race, one go-kart racer died as a result of a crash.

"This sport is nothing to take lightly, but it's really no more dangerous than similar sports of speed and agility," he said. Kondracki said he doesn't mind his children racing because "they're very cautious and it has also helped them develop good automobile skills."

Yet, even with the dangers involved, racers pour hundreds of dollars into the sport, buying, maintaining and racing the karts.

According to area kart racers, the vehicles can cost from $1,350 to $2,000 or more.

Mario Andretti Grand Prix International go-kart park personnel in Casselberry, said their racecar replica karts, or Formula race cars, cost about $10,000 each.

R.G. Kondracki, Sanford, has put the kart with the "horse"-power and his championship go-kart can reach speeds of approximately 100 mph.

Formula cars but the raceway also has about 16 regular go-karts. The grand prix cars are capable of speeds of up to 75 m.p.h., but on the Casselberry track the speeds reach only about 45 m.p.h. The regular go-karts can reach speeds of about 20 m.p.h.

The Lil 500 Go-Kart Track in Fern Park, off U.S. Highway 17-92, has about 13 carts for family-track use and eight fast-track karts. Their only requirement for racing is that the racer be at least seven-years-old on the family track and 12-years-old on the fast track.

"Racing isn't for everyone," Kondracki said. "For many, go-karting at the neighborhood track is enough but, for others, the pro-style racing is the answer."

The next scheduled professional go-kart race is slated for Nov. 28 in Kissimmee, Kondracki said.

However, if you're not quite sold on the "competitive edge," the "neighborhood" tracks are open — some all week long — and they'll leave the driving to you.

McCallum's 'Kidnapped' Travels To U.S.

By RUTH THOMPSON

"It doesn't travel well" is a common explanation for why some wines, so pleasant in their home region, are never distributed widely, while others are shipped halfway around the globe.

The same analogy holds for television shows. And David McCallum, who first came to television popularity in "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," has worked in the past two years in two such series.

Sandy-haired, handsome McCallum, who lives in New York with his wife, Katherine, and their two young children, says "I crossed the Atlantic 20 times to be with my family weekends while I was doing an adventure series, 'Sapphire and Stell,' in England.

And no, I do not expect it will ever come to the United States. It was somehow very specifically for home consumption in Britain."

But another one that McCallum thought, during production, would be limited to its European run is turning into a highly suitable show for America. It is the three-part mini-series adaption of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped," starring McCallum as Alan Stewart.

McCallum explains: "Once I saw it edited I was pleased with what they pulled off. You see it was a French-German-English international co-production. Except for some long shots, most of the outdoor scenes were shot in Wales because most of Scotland was already under snow. Many of the interiors were done in Bristol which, by the way, is an absolutely beautiful city."

He is also pleased that the first U.S. showing of "Kidnapped," "is going directly to the new technology — cable." (It is the new Kraft offering on Superstation WTBS with satellite transmission to 196 markets on Dec. 1, 2 and 3).

On the whole, it seems, drama travels better than comedy. Jean Marsh, the co-creator of the British-made "Upstairs, Downstairs" as well as an actor in the series (Rose the parlor maid), said she was baffled, and happily so, that the lighter moments of the widely exported series survived all frontiers and was as much a hit in Finland as in England.

Humor, supposedly, is the most localized commodity.

David McCallum in "Kidnapped" to be televised Dec. 1, 2 and 3.

Sesame Street's Muppeteers Serious About Their Playfulness

The two-headed monster was having an argument with himself. With a flurry of comic pulls, tugs and grunts, each half of the Muppet was pointing in a different direction and urging "Dis Vay!" in growly "monsterese."

Not a member of the Sesame Street production crew could keep a straight face.

During the taping of Sesame Street's 13th season, which begins Monday on PBS, it is not unusual for the antics of the puppeteers to have the production crew in stitches. The men who bring life to the whimsical Muppets created specially for this children's series are skilled actors and comedians.

Carroll Spinney, Jerry Nelson, Brian Muehl and Richard Hunt appear on television almost every day. Yet they have chosen to accept the anonymity of unseen puppeteers and to put their energies into making children learn while they laugh. And they take their work seriously.

Carroll Spinney, whose characterization of Big Bird has made the tall yellow Muppet the favorite feathered friend of children around the world, originally used puppet shows to help finance his way through art school in Boston. But the lure of puppeteering was too strong and the art career was eventually forgotten.

Spinney credits his own childhood insecurities with the success of his performance. "I remember well how unsure of things I felt as a child," he says. "I try to make Big Bird's reactions like those of a youngster who often feels that everyone else seems to know more than he does."

Spinney's other famous character, the cantankerous Oscar the Grouch, is almost the opposite of sunny-tempered Big Bird. Oscar is, Spinney says, a wonderful outlet for his own grouchy feelings. "I'm not much like Oscar in real life, but everyone has contrary feelings occasionally, and that's why it is fun to be able to play someone like Oscar."

Jerry Nelson, one half of the mirth-producing two-headed monster, knew the applause of an audience as a stage actor and singer, until he joined Bil Baird's puppet troupe and decided on a career in puppetry. He has been with Sesame Street since 1970, creating a diverse group of characters that includes The Amazing Mumford, a bumbling magician, Herry Monster, whose strength often surprises even himself, and Count von Count, a black-clad Transylvanian with a passion for counting.

Like Spinney, Nelson appreciated the opportunity puppetry presents for an unusual variety of characterizations. In addition to his comic turns, he is often cast as the straight man, a role he has worked hard to perfect. "There's an art to helping other people be funny," he says. "As an actor, I've always been a student of human nature and people's characteristics. I'm especially fascinated watching the typical straight men in comic teams in old movies."

"Another challenge I enjoy," Nelson adds, "is the chance to develop a great many voices. A puppeteer's voice has to change with every character to fit the Puppeteers Brian Muehl (Barkley the Dog), Carroll Spinney (Oscar the Grouch), Richard Hunt (Aristotle) and Jerry Nelson (Count von Count) are skilled actors and comedians who have chosen to devote their considerable talents to making children learn while they laugh. The unseen puppeteers bring to life many of the popular Muppets who will enliven Sesame Street's 13th season of educational entertainment for preschoolers, beginning Monday on PBS.

puppet's look and personality."

The variety of voices that go with the Muppets was part of the attraction for Brian Muehl, who was a mime with the Mummenschanz troupe on Broadway before joining Sesame Street three years ago. "Sesame Street needed someone who could use his body well to create a bouncy giant character called Barkley the Dog," Muehl recalls. "Barkley doesn't speak, but when I auditioned for the part I deliberately did a voice tape. I was really anxious to be able to use my voice again."

Muehl was given his chance with a number of wacky Muppet characters, and recently has established one character that is playing an increasing role on the show, a chronic worrier called Telly Monster. "Telly is my favorite character," he says. "He's the classic pessimist. He always expects the worst."

"It was challenging for me at the start to learn to use my body less and to create characterizations like Telly solely through the expressions and voices of the Muppet. But the process of bringing a character to life is the same in any medium. I'm really just an actor with my arm in the air."

Muehl still gets the chance to use his full body playing the playful Barkley, but he strives for a sense of reality even for this non-speaking character. "I try to forget I'm performing for an audience," he says. "I want to believe in each character and feel I'm personally going through his trauma. When I play Barkley, I want him to act like a real dog. I think about the mutt I grew up with as a child and try to capture his motions, the way he would fight for attention and let us know when he wanted to be scratched."

"Fun" is the key word used by Richard Hunt, one of the zaniest of the Muppeteers, when he explains why he likes his work. "I saw the Muppets a long time ago on Ed Sullivan's TV show and thought to myself: this is great stuff, a way of having fun and being crazy and silly and also doing some good by helping to educate kids."

Hunt's Sesame Street roles have included Gladys, the stagestruck cow, and drawing cowpoke Forgetful Jones.

A special challenge this year will be Aristotle, a Muppet who is blind. Part of the show's continuing effort to include the handicapped in its format, Aristotle is an experiment in using puppetry to explain difficult concepts such as blindness.

The MacNeil-Lehrer Report:

Popularity AND Excellence

Now in its sixth year, the "MacNeil-Lehrer Report" is one of the most popular regularly scheduled programs on PBS.

Robert "Robin" MacNeil and Jim Lehrer devote 30 minutes each night to one topic from the day's headlines. By focusing on a single topic, "The MacNeil-Lehrer Report" gets below the surface only scratched by network news. Attracting a nightly audience of over 4 million viewers, the show has proved to the major networks that a one-subject-a-night news program can succeed.

"The networks sense that news must be more than a headline service for the public," MacNeil says.

MacNeil and Lehrer's brand of in-depth, at-length journalism doesn't give viewers indigestion from taking in too much news at once or telling them what to think.

"Our job is to help inform the people and to get the point across," Lehrer explains. "It is not hard to remain neutral. My views are irrelevant.

"Reporting is still and will always be reporting," Lehrer says. "Who, what, where, when, why, how remains the same. There has to be more news, more information, more debate."

Lehrer believes that to achieve more thorough coverage the news may soon be reported in "magazine style" with programs concentrating on specific interests.

"In this electronic age," MacNeil adds, "television should explore what it can do beyond conventional methods. Our show makes the viewer the reporter, editor and part of the process."

To insure the show's highly topical news process, possible story topics are updated daily using a tentative two-week schedule. A staff of 35 have finely honed the system over the course of more than 1,600 shows. MacNeil, in New York, and Lehrer, in Washington D.C., talk to each other at least 20 times a day by phone.

They first met while covering the Senate Watergate hearings for public television. They found their opinions were similar, although their backgrounds were not. MacNeil is an urbane, unflappable Nova Scotia native who was once a playwright and BBC correspondent. Lehrer, a straightforward Texan, is also a novelist. They are best friends.

Al Vecchione, a 20-year NBC veteran and executive producer of the "MacNeil-Lehrer Report" since 1976, says, "Robin and Jim . . . share the same journalistic philosophy, believing in a fair, intelligent treatment of stories."

"We are not out to compete with each other or our guests," MacNeil explains. "Neither of us are out to 'make' our careers on the backs of others." Lehrer adds: "We're not there to beat up on people, it's not a macho game with us."

Recently they formed a production company with the Gannett Co., to continue working together to offer more innovative approaches for television. "This will help us to develop more as a team," MacNeil says.

Both have received many offers from commercial television. The lure of better pay, fatter production budgets and the larger commercial network audiences have not outweighed their love of their jobs and the carte blanche editorial freedom.

MacNeil says: "It is up to television to offer a wide variety of things to watch, including a wide variety of news. What people watch is their choice. We're giving them something to choose."

THE CAT

The cat wanders like a cat in the silent night.
It flies like a bat through the night.
It prowls and growls like a dog through the silent night.
If it sees you going through the night it will curl up by your feet and love you all night.

FLOWERS

Flowers are light.
Flowers give love.
Flowers are like the warm feelings you get from above.
Flowers are nice.
Flowers are good.
I like flowers; everyone should.

One day, while I sat in a flowerbed,
Why, you wouldn't believe what one said.
I do recall, I heard one say,
"We should spread love, in every way.
We should always, year after year,
try to spread happiness, love, and good cheer."

And to this time,
and this very day,
flowers still do bring me happiness,
Day after day after Day.

BLUE

Blue can be a lonely feeling.
Nobody ever likes that.
Blue can be a feather so tall upon a lady's hat, from a mother bird who sits on dear blue eggs.
Blue can be a rainy day that blue elephants do so enjoy.
Blue can be the laughing eyes of a brand new baby boy.

Commercial's 'Mrs. Olsen' Acted In Many Films

DEAR DICK: My sister says that Mrs. Olsen of the Folger's coffee commercial starred in a movie in 1975. I say she's crazy. We've been arguing for months and you're the only person who can help us. C.L. ANDREWS, Boston, Mass.

Why would you think your sister is crazy? Virginia Christine is a professional actress. Mrs. Olsen is only one of many characters she has played over the years. She was making movies long before she got the job playing Mrs. Olsen. Actually, her career goes back to the movie "Edge of Darkness" in 1942, and includes such greats as the original "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" There is nothing listed in her credits for 1975, specifically, however.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if the Roller Derby will ever appear on TV again? If so, when and on what station or channel will it be? I enjoyed that sport program very much. DOROTHY MOSELEY, Stuart, Fla.

How lucky can you get? However, if you insist on wanting to see that nonsense, you'll have to talk to your local stations. The Roller Derby is not a network show. It is syndicated, which means that local stations can buy it from the producer, if they want it, and they have control over whether or not it will be seen.

DEAR DICK: Please settle an argument within my family as to whom Gil Gerard of "Buck Rogers" is married to. I say he's married to Connie Sellecca. My parents say he's married to Erin Gray. Who is right? KIM SHOCKLEY, Fort Hood, Texas.

You are. Connie is Mrs. Gerard.

DEAR DICK: On "Flamingo Road," is Lane Ballou the same girl who played Clay Basket on "Centennial?" E.R.G., Racine, Wis.

No. Christina Raines plays Lane Ballou. Clay Basket was played by Barbara Cerrera.

DEAR DICK: Is Diane Ladd, who played Belle on

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

"Alice," any relation to Cheryl Ladd? CYNDI LYNN, Marcellus, Mich.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know whether or not Cliff DeYoung and Jack Nicholson are brothers. H. MATISSE, Ventura, Calif.

DEAR DICK: Are Bo Hopkins of "Dynasty" and Jerry Reed, the country singer, related? MELBA GRUB, Salisbury, N.C.

DEAR DICK: Two actors, Jesse Vint and Alan Vint, have come on the scene in recent months. Can you advise if these two men are brothers? H. VINT, Bloomington, Ind.

The Vints are brothers, but none of the others mentioned above are related to each other.

DEAR DICK: I need your help. I watch "Tarzan" every Saturday afternoon, especially the ones with Johnny Weissmuller. Can you tell me whatever happened to Bay (Johnny Sheffield), who played Tarzan's son? PATRICIA HILLER, Philadelphia.

Peter Fleming, a friend of mine, is a good friend of Sheffield, so I can report that Johnny is alive and well. He is totally out of show business. He lives in Southern California and he is happily and successfully restoring turn-of-the-century buildings.

DEAR DICK: Can you please tell me what Veronica Lake and Betty Hutton are doing now? B. HILLES, Ojai, Calif.

Veronica Lake died in 1973. Miss Hutton has retired and is living somewhere in the East, the last I heard.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me who owns the rig that R.J. drives on "B.J. and the Bear?" A co-worker of mine said her ex-husband owns it. M.A.B., Nappanee, Ind.

If your co-worker used to be married to Universal Studios, she's right. Otherwise, no. The studio owns the rig.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if the TV series "The American Dream," which was shown recently, will ever come back on the air. I loved the series. L.P., Tuscaloosa, Ala.

It was, I think, an extraordinarily good series. And got an extraordinarily bad deal from the network. It was really kicked off with a minimum of promotion and a bad air time. And the result is that it is permanently dead.

Harry Reasoner: "I thought somebody who was there should tell what it was like, and tell it before he started to drool and forget things."

'Before The Colors Fade'

Reasoner Tells It Like It Was

By DAVID HANDLER
NEW YORK (NEA) — He has reported the news and anchored it. He backed up Walter Cronkite, he was teamed with Barbara Walters. Today, he is one of four host-correspondents on "60 Minutes," the most successful news show in television history. Harry Reasoner, at 58, is a genuine star.

Throughout, Reasoner has kept his perspective and his sense of humor. Ed Murrow told him to. "Back in the middle ages — before there was sliced bread — nobody had the same kind of aura and influence Murrow did in radio," Reasoner recalls. "When I was a young correspondent he told me to remember: Just because your voice carries halfway around the world doesn't mean you're any wiser than you were when it only carried to the end of the bar."

Harry Reasoner goes back to the roots of TV news. In 1954, he was the entire news department of a brand new station in Minneapolis. In 1956 he landed a summer desk job with CBS in New York, worked his way up from fireman reporter to correspondent — the first to earn that title at CBS without coming out of radio. He's covered stories in Udall, Kan., Florence S.C. and Saigon. You name it.

He once shot dice with Jimmy Hoffa at a Teamsters convention and won $7.50. Harry Reasoner was there before TV news became institutionalized, when it was still, as he calls it, "improvising to meet a need."

He thought it was important to get his experiences down on paper, and he has — in a wry, anecdotal and informative memoir called "Before the Colors Fade." "It's not a complete history," says Reasoner from his jumbo "60 Minutes" office overlooking the Hudson River. "Nor is it an autobiography. I just wanted to get it down as a source book for future historians. I thought somebody who was there should tell what it was like, and tell it before he started to drool and to forget things."

"Before the Colors Fade" recalls the frenzy, the experimenting of the early days. It also recalls the fun. "It seems to me that to be 30 and a network correspondent is less fun now than it was in 1960. There are so many more people involved now, so much more technical capability — which you sometimes feel a responsibility to use."

"Before the Colors Fade" also clears the air a bit. In it, Reasoner candidly admits it bothered him being a sub all of those years at CBS. He admits he jumped to ABC because he wanted to be the main man, and that he thought it was a pretty rotten idea when ABC decided to team him with Barbara Walters. He took a pay cut to come back to CBS. He seems to be at peace now. "I find myself much less neurotic about who the big dog is," he admits. "Now I find that if I have a respectable, well-paying job I'm happy."

The biggest change in TV news since Reasoner's salad days is that it has become profitable. With entertainment programming costs skyrocketing, the networks are suddenly looking to the news divisions as money makers. That doesn't bother him.

"There's no sign whatsoever that profitability has caused any network news operation to corrupt its basic job. The feeling of responsibility hasn't changed, and I never thought it was wrong to admit you're interested in how many people watch your show."

What does bother Reasoner is that he thinks all three networks pay too much attention to Washington in their evening news broadcasts. "The greatest temptation in journalism is to establish a pattern," he says. "You do it one way and the next day you do it the same way. Senator Jackson is always ready to talk. Then you go out on the lawn and do your stand-up."

"But what's happening in Washington isn't necessarily the best evidence of what's going on in the country. In Washington you always deal with someone who has an axe to grind."

Reasoner steers pretty clear of Washington himself. He does 25 pieces a year for "60 Minutes," requiring him to spend between 120 and 140 days a year out on the road. He loves it. It's like the old days. "We have what we call creative disorder here at '60 Minutes,'" he chuckles. "The fun and terror is still here. We've never grown up."

Nor have his views about his role as a journalist changed much. He's a traditionalist. "A reporter's job," he says, "is to go in with a clean slate and let the reporting make the editorial point. Remember, nobody thinks of himself as a villain. They aren't villains — they're people who want to make money. I want to make money, too."

Reasoner credits Cronkite with preserving the traditional journalistic cannons during the Vietnam and Watergate years — when they could easily have toppled. "People of vastly differing beliefs could still rely on the networks to give as dispassionate a view as possible. They believed that as long as Walter was around there would be a strong holding down of activist journalism. At a time of great division in this country, Walter established that the credibility of TV news could survive."

Entertainment and DINING GUIDE

Lake Monroe Inn—Perfect For Holiday Gatherings

Need a break from the daily routine, a place to make your weekend complete or the perfect setting for upcoming holiday parties? Look no further.

Lake Monroe Inn, located on beautiful Lake Monroe on N. Seminole Blvd. in Sanford, offers the finest in eating, drinking, dancing and relaxing.

Join us any day of the week. We're open from 5 p.m. until 1 a.m., Sunday; 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., Monday, and 10 a.m. until 2 a.m., Tuesday through Saturday, for your dining and dancing pleasure.

Steaks, prime rib, frog legs, seafood and chicken highlight our menu and these exquisitely prepared dishes are guaranteed to put a smile on your face.

Enjoy a cocktail with dinner or meet friends over drinks for an evening of dancing. We have live entertainment nightly.

For lunch, stop in with a friend or business associate and take advantage of our luncheon buffets served from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Our buffets cost only $3.95 and we also have many sandwiches and lunch specials from the menu.

And, with Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's just around the corner, don't wait too long to make arrangements with the Lake Monroe Inn to supply all of your party needs.

Make this holiday season and every day special. Join us at the Lake Monroe Inn.
