Officials Say Schools Are One Step Ahead Of Bennett

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

Florida already meets nearly all of the curriculum changes that Education Secretary William Bennett proposed Tuesday, and has met them for several years, said Marion Dailey, Seminole assistant superintendent for instruction.

Bennett proposed a "broad, deep and effective" core curriculum for U.S. high school students, including:

- Four years of English
- Three years of science
- Three years of math
- Three years of social studies
- Two years of a single foreign language
- Two years of physical education and health, and
- One year of fine arts.

Dailey said Florida's requirements for high school graduation includes all of the above, except the foreign language requirement. Even then, higher educational institutions in Florida require two years of high school foreign language, so "we're seeing a large part of our children taking two years of foreign language because they want to get into state universities."

Bennett, in his report "James Madison High School: A Curriculum for American Students," said secondary school students, regardless of their socio-economic backgrounds, should be met his proposed requirements. Dailey said the National Commission on Excellence in Education insisted on basically the same requirements in its controversial 1983 report, "A Nation At Risk."

"It compared us to foreign schools," Dailey said of the 1983 report. "It basically said the high schools of our day weren't doing their job and that's why it was controversial."

The Florida State Legislature took action on the national commission's report, so that 1987 seniors were the first seniors who had to meet all of the state's revised curriculum requirements.

Bennett said all 50 states have improved their programs since "A Nation at Risk" was issued and that Florida, Louisiana and Pennsylvania have met its guidelines.

"But it is too soon to declare victory; much ground remains to be covered," he wrote. "The time a student spends on any subject is no guarantee that he will master it."

Both Dailey and Joe Williams Jr., chairman of Seminole County School Board, think a victory can be claimed in Florida.

Curriculum's effectiveness is evaluated on students' test scores, the number of students graduating, and the percentage who go on to college, Williams said. "I think in our case, it is effective," he said. "If the district is performing well, I don't see a need for changes."

Dailey doesn't foresee Florida adopting the requirement of two years of foreign language as Bennett recommended. She said the state currently requires 24 classes to graduate. "I believe the state believes that's enough at that time."

"Our test scores are exceptional and improving," Dailey said of Seminole County schools, "but we're constantly looking for improvements in curriculum. Other states ask us questions when we go to conferences. They think we're a pretty progressive state."

Although interest in foreign languages has risen during the past few years, Bennett said only 30 percent of American public high school students now study another language. "No state — only the District of Columbia — currently requires all high school students to study even one foreign language," he said.

Bennett noted that his proposal is not a statement of federal policy because individual states set the mandatory curriculum for the nation's high schools.

Dailey said Bennett does wield authority in federally sponsored education programs and. See School, Page 6A

Manger Stays, If Offer OK'D

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

Although the American Civil Liberties Union has informed Sanford City Commissioners that it received a complaint about the manger scene on Sanford city property this year, that may not stop the city from having a manger scene, according to Chuck Volk, owner and manager of Monroe Harbor Marina.

Volk said today that he is going to offer to lease a barge to the city for use as a manger scene in the future. Acting City Manager Bill Simmons said today in regard to this offer that "It would seem that if the interest is there, an accommodation could be reached." He thinks the offer merits study.

ACLU Central Florida Chapter President Ron Ross sent a letter to City Attorney William Colbert, notifying him that a complaint had been received about the city's manger scene on the eastside of the city building facing the courthouse. Colbert told city commissioners at their meeting earlier this week that he had received the letter. Commissioners told Colbert to look into the situation, but that the creche would be removed by early next week.

"Mayor Betty Smith said today that the city had turned the situation over to Colbert and would later discuss whatever recommendations he makes. Earlier she had said that "The city never intended to offend anyone. We were only trying to celebrate the season."

Ross told a reporter that he had received the complaint from another ACLU member, two days before Christmas, and that he had called Colbert to see if the display stood alone or whether a Santa Claus or a Jewish menorah were also part of the display. Colbert told Ross the creche stood alone.

Ross told Colbert that it is unconstitutional for a manger scene to stand alone on public property, and that he would make a formal complaint. Ross also said that the ACLU legal panel and the complaint would write to Sanford officials, formally complaining about the manger scene.

Blaze Killed Elderly Woman

Bad Heater Caused Fire

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

A leaky kerosene heater with an electrical cord sliced into a bare light switch caused the fire that resulted in the early morning death Tuesday of 98-year-old Annie B. Thomas, 1203 W. 16th St., according to Sanford Fire Marshal Tom Martin.

Ethel Stevenson, 72, daughter of Annie Thomas, was also in the house, but escaped through a bedroom window. She was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital for smoke inhalation and a bruised arm, and was released later Tuesday. At that time she said she was feeling better and would be staying with relatives when she left the hospital.

The fire caused an estimated $15,000 to the one-story wood frame home.

The fire started around 2 a.m. in the living room. Martin said that the kerosene heater was a large fixed unit, rather than portable. It was connected by a copper hose to fuel tanks outside the house. Though the unit was not in service at the time of the fire, the hose was leaking, he said. In addition, the original electrical cord on the unit had been replaced with an extension cord, which was spliced into a light switch that was laying bare on the floor, he explained. The electricity apparently ignited the fuel, starting the fire.

Martin said the living room floor was saturated with fuel. In addition, he discovered at the rear of the heating unit itself, a container, apparently meant to catch leaking fuel.

"There was an electrical problem caused by the leaking fuel," Martin said. He explained that the point of the fire's origin was very obvious because it could be traced in a line following the hose and electrical cord.

He said that the house had been pretty well sealed, since it was cold, but that Thomas did have a small heater running in her room. She also had a window cracked, which he said caused just enough of a draft to pull excessive smoke into Thomas' room.

Seven Killed In Iowa In Second Family Mass Murder Of Holidays

ALGONA, Iowa (UPI) — Seven members of a prominent family were found shot to death in their home in an apparent murder-suicide, the second family mass murder in rural America during the Christmas holidays.

In other family violence, in Texas a teenager in blood-spattered clothing appeared at his uncle's doorstep Wednesday and confessed to killing his mother and stepbrother.

The killings in Texas and Iowa came two days after Ronald Gene Simmons surrendered in the Arkansas Ozark town of Russellville in the worst family mass murder in U.S. history. Simmons is suspected of killing 16 people, including 14 family members.

In Iowa, police said seven people were found shot dead in an apparent murder-suicide Wednesday.

The victims included John Dreesman, 79; his wife Agnes, 74; their son, Robert, 40; and their daughter, Marilyn Chuang, 48; and her three children, Jason, 12, Jennifer 11, and Joshua 8, who were visiting for the holidays from Hawaii. Marilyn's husband died a year ago.

State Division of Criminal Investigation agent Ron Makin said it appeared one person did the shooting in Algona, a north-central Iowa farming community of about 6,000 people, but he would not identify the assailant.

But family friends, who asked not to be identified, said Robert Dreesman, who suffered from mental problems, apparently killed the other family members and then turned the gun on himself.

Neighbors said Robert Dreesman and his father disagreed over whether Robert should take over the family farming operation.

Autopsies were scheduled for today.

John Dreesman owned several farms in the area and buildings in Algona and was the former owner of a hatchery. His wife, Agnes, was active in a local garden club.

Formal Charges Filed Against Accused Thanksgiving Kidnappers

By Richard Whitaker
Herald Staff Writer

Formal charges have been filed against the two men accused of the Thanksgiving Day kidnapping of two people in Deltona that resulted in a six hour standoff with police and both are expected to be arraigned in three or four weeks.

The holiday siege ended abruptly after members of the Volusia and Seminole County SWAT teams stormed a home at 755 LeLand Drive, that morning after one of the victims shot one of the kidnappers with their own gun.

Scott Keith Joedicker, 28, of 663 Hagar Street, Deltona has been charged with two counts of kidnapping, possession of cocaine and aggravated assault, according to John Bonaccorsy, Volusia County assistant state attorney.

Jorge Ramirez, of South Florida, will face charges on three counts of kidnapping. Bonaccorsy said he filed the charges against Joedicker on Dec. 17, and the ones against Ramirez on Dec. 28.

Both men were arrested on Nov. 28, at a residence located at 755 LeLand Drive, Deltona, after they allegedly kidnapped at least three persons and held three others against their will at the home.

Volusia County Sheriff's Department spokesman Capt. Edward L. Carroll said the two men kidnapped James Emanuel and Lisa Neal from a home in Enterprise belonging to Neal's mother. Joedicker and Ramirez reportedly kidnapped the couple because over a $2,000 drug debt Emanuel hadn't paid.

Joedicker allegedly traveled from the LeLand Street address to Enterprise at about 4 a.m. Thanksgiving Day. Carroll said he force Robbie Raider, the owner of the Deltona home to go with him to commit the crime.

Joedicker was supposedly armed with a shotgun during the kidnapping.

Florida Is Now Fourth Largest State; Orlando Area Booming Too

From Staff and Wire Reports
Orlando has moved into first as the city Americans would most like to visit in 1988, while Florida has become the nation's fourth largest state, according to two unrelated studies.

As Sun Belt states have experienced recent population gains, Florida has passed up Pennsylvania into the No. 4 slot, the Census Bureau reported recently.

Research by American Express Travel Related Services shows that 14 percent of American would like to visit the Orlando area, particularly those in the 25-49 age range who are likely to have underage children. "In our hearts, we always thought that we were No. 1," said Robert Lewis, executive vice president of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

"That confirms that Central Florida is one of the hottest spots in the country," he said. "We're on a roll in Central Florida. Everything is going our way. People are sensing that and want to be a part of it."

"I think people think Orlando is a good place for a family vacation," said a spokeswoman for Burson-Marsteller, which conducted the 1,030-person survey for American Express from Dec. 11-13.

Vacation costs and quality of service rated most influential for individuals making destination decisions, the survey showed.

According to 1987 bureau estimates as of July 1, Florida's population from 1980 to 1987 increased 23 percent or 2.3 million, the bureau said Tuesday.

Florida's total population of 12 million now ranks the Sunshine State fourth among the 50 states. California, with 27.6 million people, is first, followed by New York, with 17.8 million, and Texas, with 16.7 million. Pennsylvania, whose population is estimated at 11.9 million, slipped to fifth place.

"From the business and economic standpoints, (being fourth in population) is very good," Lewis said. "That kind of growth would help take the edges off a

Worker Burned In Industrial Accident

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

A 47-year-old Altamonte Springs man remains in stable condition today at South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood, recovering from first and second degree burns over 10 percent of his body suffered in an industrial accident at NCR Corp. in Lake Mary Tuesday.

Orien W. "Bud" Perry Jr., of 950 Francis St., received a severe electrical burn while standing on a ladder working on an electrical panel at the NCR Corp. when his metal wrench touched a power bar as he was attempting to replace a faulty circuit breaker.

The accident occurred at 4:40 p.m., and Perry was immediately transported by Rural/Metro to the hospital, where he was treated for the second degree burns.

He suffered burns to his upper arms, neck, face and head, and part of his hair was burned away, his wife said.

Lake Mary Fire Chief Bob Stoddard said the man's wrench evidently made contact with the power bar he was working on at NCR's 3200 Lake Emma Road plant. He said the contact produced an electrical arc, which caused Perry's burns.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Wife Arrested After Pot Search Husband Charged Later

Altamonte Springs police with a search warrant reported searching for and finding over 20 grams of marijuana, including three pot plants that were about three-feet tall, at 603 E. Fenton Place #E, Altamonte Springs, at about 8 p.m. Tuesday.

After the find, which also included bagged pot, Suzanne Gail Paugh, 26, was arrested at her home on a charge of possession of over 20 grams of marijuana. Her husband, Lawrence David Paugh, 27, who was not at home at the time of the search, surrendered at the police station and was arrested on the same charge at about 10:15 p.m.

They have been released on $1,000 bond each to appear in court Jan. 25.

Suspect In Stabbing Arrested

Sanford police reported that the victim of a Dec. 5 stabbing in Sanford, Debra Taylor, reportedly picked a suspect out of a police photo lineup Tuesday.

That brought the arrest at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday at the Seminole County jail of Janice Olivia Mainor, 23, of 416 E. Eighth St., Sanford. Mainor has been charged with aggravated battery and was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Two Face Drug Charges

In separate cases, two have been arrested on drug charges after lawmen, with warrants, searched their homes.

City County Investigative Bureau agents reported charging Donald Wayne Geiger, 23, of 3863 E. State Road 46, Geneva, with sale and delivery of marijuana and possession of over 20 grams of marijuana after his home was searched. He was arrested at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

In the other case, Susie Smith, 18, of 1010 Orange Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at her home. She was charged with possession of cocaine and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana after contraband was found in a police search. She has been released on $1,000 bond to appear in court Jan. 11.

Looked For Drugs, Found Gun

Seminole County sheriff's deputies who made a traffic stop of a man's vehicle as he was leaving the known illegal drug dealing area of North and Jackson streets, rural Altamonte Springs at about 3:40 p.m. Thursday reported they didn't find drugs in the vehicle, but they found a knife and a .22-caliber handgun.

Kurt Melvin Tai, 29, of Orlando, was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed firearm and carrying a concealed weapon. Bond was set at $1,500 and he has been released.

Mall Watch Brings Charges

Altamonte Springs police suspicious of a man they were watching in the parking lot of the Altamonte Mall, State Road 436, at about 10 a.m. Thursday reported checking police records, which showed the man was wanted on a concealed weapons charge and violation of probation on a cocaine charge.

Police followed the suspect to his home at 412 Citrus St., Altamonte Springs, and confronted him at his car. In his car they reported finding a knife under the driver's seat. In addition to the warrants charges, John Robert Scognanillo, 22, was arrested on an Altamonte Springs charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Bond was set at $500 and he was released.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

A radar detector, 20 cassette tapes, and other items with a total value of $850 were stolen from the car of Gail Sylvester, 26, of Delray Beach, at 224 Pheasant Run Court, Longwood, Thursday or Friday.

Vanessa Parker, 25, of 1200 13th St., Sanford, reported to sheriff's deputies that she left her purse with another woman inside the Deluxe Bar, Southwest Road, Sanford, for a few minutes Thursday and when she returned for it the purse and the woman were gone.

Parker said she later confronted the woman about her purse, which contained $452. The woman reportedly said that unknown persons had taken the purse from the bar. Sheriff's deputies have the name of a possible suspect in the case.

Towels and wash cloths and 12 shower curtains with a total value of about $400 are missing from a storage room at Knights Inn, State Road 46, west of Sanford. The loss, which included about 48 towels and 110 washcloths, occurred Thursday or Friday and there was no sign of forced entry to the room, a sheriff's report said.

Diane Knight, 22, of 251 Leon St., Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies a $300 television was stolen from her home Thursday.

Killer Listed On FBI Computer 6 Years

Relatives Trace Mass Murderer's Decline

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — At the time Ronald Gene Simmons committed the nation's worst family mass murder, he was wanted in New Mexico for impregnating his daughter but was never found even though he had been listed for six years in the FBI's computer, authorities said.

Relatives Wednesday said Simmons beat his wife, terrorized his children and isolated his family at their rural Ozark home. They traced his mental decline to the incestuous relationship in which he fathered his own grandchild, Sylvia, 6, who was among the victims of the bloodbath.

"Getting the daughter pregnant started all the bad things clicking," said Abe Ulibarri, the brother of Simmons' dead wife, Rebecca. "He started secluding my sister and kept her from us. He didn't want anything to do with our family. He'd get violent."

Simmons, 47, held without bond on two capital murder charges filed so far, is suspected of slaying 18 men, women and children. All but two were relatives, privy to his family secret.

The victims included Simmons' wife, four daughters, three sons, two of his children's spouses and four grandchildren killed just before and after Christmas.

Two more people were shot to death and four people were wounded in a downtown Russellville shooting spree Monday that apparently stemmed from spurned sexual advances and work-related judges. Ulibarri of Aurora, Colo., said his sister's situation worsened after Simmons impregnated his daughter Sheila in Cloudcroft, N.M. in 1981 while Simmons worked as a civilian employee at Holloman Air Force Base.

Steven K. Sanders of Alamogordo, N.M., the district attorney in 1981, said Simmons was indicted in August 1981 for impregnating Sheila.

"I cannot help but wonder if it (the mass murder) is connected to the deviance Simmons displayed while he was here," Sanders said Wednesday.

Sanders said deputies tried to arrest Simmons in New Mexico but found his house abandoned. The family had fled to Arkansas and Simmons was never found despite being listed on the national FBI computer.

John Harris, Simmons' court-appointed lawyer, said the former Air Force master sergeant finally broke the catatonic-like silence he maintained since he handed two .22-caliber pistols to the Russellville police chief and surrendered Monday. Harris refused to divulge what was said in his private conversation with Simmons.

Except for that exchange, the brawny, gray-bearded Simmons refused to talk and lay motionless in his cell bunk staring at the wall, said Pope County Sheriff James Bolin.

Bolin said Simmons was transferred Wednesday to a state hospital in Little Rock for a psychiatric evaluation expected to last a month. He said more charges will be filed against Simmons "as we pull this thing together." Dr. Roy Ragdale, the hospital's chief executive officer, says the man's refusal to talk to police does not concern him because it will be hard for Simmons to maintain his silence for 30 days.

Prosecuting attorney John Bynum said the state will seek the death penalty.

Bolin said the bodies were undergoing autopsies in Little Rock, and Rebecca Simmons' relatives were expected to arrive from Colorado to make required identifications.

In another rural mass killing, Robert Dreesman, 40, son of a prominent Algona, Iowa, landowner, shot his parents, his sister and her three children to death, then turned the gun on himself Wednesday.

Betty Ford 'Doing Well' After Surgery

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (UPI) — Former first lady Betty Ford was recovering today from an operation to correct a minor problem just more than a month after she had open-heart surgery, a hospital spokesman said. Eisenhower Medical Center spokesman Michael McPadden said doctors completed the surgery "to correct a minor wound problem" early today.

"She's doing well now," McPadden said. "She's back in the cardiac surgical unit. She's in recovery. The president has been informed. He was waiting at home for the call."

Details of the surgery, which was conducted by the cardiac specialist who presided over her open-heart surgery last month, and the nature of the problem that required the operation were not immediately released.

Ford aide Bob Barrett told United Press International earlier that Mrs. Ford, 69, went into surgery at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Barrett indicated that the operation was not life-threatening.

The former first lady "felt quite well" earlier Wednesday, when she was listed in stable condition in the cardiac care unit, McPadden said.

Mrs. Ford, who underwent open heart surgery last month, was admitted to the hospital about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, arriving in an ambulance with former President Gerald Ford.

"Mrs. Ford experienced a sudden weakness just after dinner last evening," said Kathy Dailey, a spokeswoman for the Ford. Dailey said doctors recommended Mrs. Ford check into the hospital for observation and treatment.

"She remained in the hospital overnight and this morning feels quite well," Dailey said Wednesday. "The physician has reported she is sitting up and having breakfast."

Like Our Weather? Ask For A Repeat

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Yesterday we placed our order from Weather on Request, the special service of the National Weather Service, an arm of the government of the U.S. of A. We asked for temperatures at least 10 degrees higher for today in both highs and lows categories, plus a wind shift from the north to the east.

Voila! Ask and ye shall receive. Just feel that balmy breeze whispering in from the east as we bask in temperatures in the 70s. We talked today with those public servant meteorologists concerning fears for the safety of readers of this column who might be partying tonight. Certainly don't want "Happy New Year" to be an epitaph and weather to be a proximate cause.

We asked, and ye shall receive mild temperatures with no intervention of rain. Please drive carefully tonight. Party hearty but keep your head.

If you're going to the game tomorrow - Citrus, that is - the weatherpeople are going to form a human barrier across the northern portion of the peninsula and keep that dumb cold front from drifting into Central Florida and raining in our faces whilst watching Penn State and Clemson do their thing. With this assurance, you can expect temperatures in the mid-70s, with fairly clear skies. Rains will probably come late tomorrow night and again on Saturday. Gotta come sometime, so why not next year?

We get an extra second of life today. You may use it anytime before midnight, or just at the stroke of 12, if you wish to prolong that magic moment. Just stop your watch and add the tick.

Because the Earth does not rotate on a precise 24-hour schedule — each day loses one-thousandth of a second — keepers of the world's atomic clocks will adjust for the irregularity at precisely midnight by adding a second to 1987.

The "leap second" was ordered by the Bureau International L'Heure in Paris, the world's official timekeeper.

The second was ordered because scientists discovered the Earth's irregular rotation had caused the loss of a full second over the past three years.

If that second was ignored, the Earth would gain a full day over the next 255,188 years.

So you better do it tonight, the alternative will take too long.

The lowest low temperature in the nation yesterday was at Havre, Montana with minus 19 degrees. The highest high? Just south of Seminole in Miami and Naples, both with 71.

Elsewhere about the nation things are really bad. A blinding snowstorm howled across Minnesota and the Dakotas on New Year's Eve, prompting Minnesota's governor to send the National Guard searching for stranded motorists, but the Northeast warmed up from a deep freeze.

A snowstorm combined with winds gusting to 40 mph to create near blizzard conditions over western Minnesota and the Dakotas. Visibility was down to zero and windchills of 20 to 40 degrees below were expected to drop to 60 below, said Lyle Alexander, National Weather Service meteorologist.

In the Northeast, blasted by two days of frigid windchills, today's forecast called for sunny skies and highs in the mid 30s.

State Shuts Down $100 Million Oil, Gas Investment Scheme

WINTER HAVEN (UPI) — State officials plan to brief investors today on their rights in proceedings against an alleged pyramid scheme involving the sale of up to $100 million in bogus oil and gas investments.

Circuit Judge Dennis Maloney in Bartow issued an injunction Wednesday against SH Oil and Gas Exploration of Winter Haven, ordering the firm to stop violating Florida securities laws. The assets of the firm and its principal, Steven L. Smith, were frozen and placed under state-supervised receivership.

Most of the approximately 270 investors live in Winter Haven and Lakeland. The meeting was scheduled for 9 a.m. in the meeting room of St. Matthew's Church, 651 Carl Floyd Road, Winter Haven.

Planning Begins For Launch Date

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Top NASA engineers flew to Morton Thiokol's fire-damaged Utah rocket plant Wednesday to seek a cause for a shuttle booster failure and determine a further delay in the first post-Challenger flight.

The failure occurred during a critical test Dec. 23 in which a full-scale booster incorporating all of NASA's improvements to prevent a repeat of the Challenger disaster was test fired for a full two minutes.

Initial results were good but during a more detailed inspection Monday, engineers discovered that a large section of a "boot ring" assembly located where the rocket's moveable nozzle connects to a "flexible boot" that allows steering had broken apart, or "delaminated" at some point during the test.

As a result, NASA announced Tuesday that Discovery's planned June 2 launch on the first post-Challenger mission would be delayed. On Jan. 28, it will have been two years since Challenger blasted off on the last American manned space flight in which seven astronauts were killed after a booster failure.

Disaster Response Team Created

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Partly because of last April's bloody Palm Bay shootings, Florida will soon be home to a new agency dedicated to healing the mental scars of mass murders, plane wrecks and other tragedies.

The statewide "crisis response team" will be the first of its kind in the nation, officials said Wednesday.

"The goal of the team is to go in and stabilize victims in the aftermath of a major tragedy on a community," said Joan Farr, vice president of the Florida Network of Victim Witness Services, Inc.

"Major tragedies would include things like mass murders, airplane crashes, earthquakes, train derailments, any type of major catastrophe that might strike a community and affect the victims, survivors and the residents of the community."

Between 20 and 30 team members will be specially trained, and will be selected for their expertise in various fields. A team sent to the site of a school bus wreck, for example, would include child psychologists to help the surviving children deal with nightmares and other post-incident traumas.

Aid Delay In Crash Denied

PENSACOLA (UPI) — Passengers said it took a long time for help to arrive when a DC-9 nearly split apart during a weekend landing, but a city official said Wednesday ground controllers sent crews 90 seconds after touch down.

"The response of the various parties, including the FAA and the flight crew, were all well within regulations and were as rapid as possible," said Carlton Proctor, a spokesman for the city of Pensacola.

Passengers of Eastern Airlines flight 573 from Atlanta to Pensacola had a fright Sunday evening when a hard landing cracked the fuselage.

New Sales Banned On 3-Wheel ATVs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three-wheeled all-terrain vehicles, blamed for hundreds of deaths, would no longer be sold under an agreement between the government and the ATV industry but the dangerous vehicles are not being recalled.

Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns told reporters Wednesday the consent decree would permit the government to avoid protracted litigation while quickly protecting consumers from the ATV's safety hazards.

Peppered by reporters' questions suggesting the government had let the ATV industry off the hook on recalling the vehicles, Burns declared: "The industry capitulated to each and every item" in dispute. Moments later he conceded the Justice Department could not get the industry to accept a recall or refund program.

"Our primary concern has been to raise a warning and provide a remedy as quickly as we could to stop these injuries."

He said the agreement does not preclude legal action against the manufacturers in the future if the decree does not result in reduced deaths and injuries.

According to the decree, which allows 45 days for further negotiation before taking effect, no new three-wheelers could be sold and all existing three-wheelers would be removed from inventories. Distributors would grant refunds to the dealers with three-wheelers in stock.

The three-wheel vehicles, which are driven over hills, beaches and deserts, have been blamed for most of the 900 deaths and 330,000 accidents attributed to ATVs since 1982. Between 2.2 and 2.3 million ATVs are in use today, two-thirds of which are three-wheelers.

The agreement allows sales of the four-wheelers but requires warning labels to be placed on all the vehicles sold. It also orders dealers to post a warning sign in showrooms and offer free driver training to all purchasers of ATVs during the last year and to all new buyers.

The warning recommends limiting larger ATVs to riders 16 years and older. The industry had issued its own warnings on the larger ATVs, recommending they be limited to riders 14 and older.

"Children don't have enough skill, enough strength or enough judgment to drive all-terrain vehicles," said Dr. John Morris, head of the trauma division at Vanderbilt (Tenn.) Medical Center, who pushed the anti-ATV fight.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted 2-1 Tuesday to accept the decree, after voting unanimously to pursue a lawsuit filed Wednesday morning with the decree. The preliminary decree was accepted by U.S. District Judge John Pratt.

Commission Chairman Terrence Scanlon said he supported the decree because it could take years to pursue the lawsuit.

"The result might well be years of litigation without any safety benefits during these years," Scanlon said.

But commission member Anne Graham, who opposed the decree because it made too many concessions to the industry, said her dissent "stems from my deep concern about the imminent hazards ATVs pose and the industry's lack of concern or commitment to the consumer's safety."

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., chairman of the Commerce, Consumer Protection and Competitiveness subcommittee, a long-time commission critic, said the decree "isn't so much a settlement as a sell-out" that "doesn't address the crucial issue of protection for people who have already bought ATVs that they mistakenly believed to be safe."

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox agreed the federal action against the "rolling death machines" was too little and too late.

But ATV manufacturers endorsed the agreement. "We believe the agreement is in everybody's best interest because it avoids protracted and costly litigation," said Kurt Antonius, a spokesman for American Honda.

Other companies affected are Yamaha, Suzuki and Kawasaki and its American subsidiaries, and Polaris Industries, a Minneapolis firm.

Hart Re-Entry Is A Bad Joke

Is there anything more unbearable than someone who doesn't know when the party's over—when it's time to get up and leave?

In this case, the inauferable bore is Gary Hart, who announced the other day that he is resuming the presidential campaign he abandoned last May, when his chances were demolished by revelations of his relationship with model Donna Rice.

Hart's chances have not improved. He is too scarred by the Donna Rice scandal and his reputation as a philanderer to win the nomination, but he may be strong enough to throw the Democratic race further out of focus.

As we said last May, if Hart were to re-enter the race, he would be ripped to shreds. The press will watch him like a hawk and his political opponents will remind us constantly of Hart with the bikini-clad Rice sitting on his lap, and rumors of other women in his life.

We couldn't believe that Hart would have the immense ego to put himself, his family and the rest of us through such a scenario. We hoped he could somehow muster the good grace to stay out of presidential politics, but this arrogant man obviously lacks that kind of class. He talks as if the nation needs him when it obviously doesn't.

One reason for his return, apparently, is that he is deep in campaign debt and wants taxpayers' money to erase his red ink—money in the form of donations.

Yet Hart will be an incomplete candidate. He lacks money and an organization—most of his key supporters have departed to other campaigns. He will be dogged by his past and find that a significant portion of the public is now opposed to him on grounds of character, morals or judgment.

If Hart doesn't realize all of this, he is even less qualified to lead this country than we thought he was.

Pat Mitchell, the Iowa coordinator for another Democratic hopeful, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, summed up the national feeling about Gary Hart when he said he was offended by the announcement, that he found it sad and self-indulgent. It turns the campaign away from the issues and back onto Gary Hart's personal life. It obscures and trivializes the process.

When we first heard of Hart's re-entry, we thought we were about to hear another joke—a bad joke. The re-entry was for real—but it's still a bad joke.

About Time

It has become increasingly apparent why the president selected William Webster to get the CIA back on track. Since he moved to his new job a few months ago after distinguished leadership at the FBI, Judge Webster has made clear that he intends to rebuild morale and refurbish the agency's tarnished reputation. By all accounts he's off to a good start with the appointment of Richard Stolz as director of the CIA's clandestine operations.

Many believe that Stolz, a highly respected CIA veteran, should have received that post six years ago. He had 31 years of outstanding service with the agency, had received its highest award, and was chief of the CIA's European division. As it was, he retired in 1981, after being passed over for the deputy director's job in favor of Max Hugel, one of William Casey's pals.

Hugel had no professional intelligence experience; he had been a successful businessman and was an avid Reagan supporter in 1980. His CIA tenure was short-lived and he resigned amid allegations of fraudulent securities transactions during the 1970s.

Since then, there has been a steady succession of deputy directors, the latest being Clair George.

Which brings us back to Stolz. He is not tainted by Iranamok because of his six-year hiatus from the CIA. Thus, he has a clear-eyed view of the agency and what its role ought to be. This consummate professional is, therefore, ideally suited to run clandestine operations effectively without damage to the Constitution.

VINCENT CARROLL

Big Business Helps Fund Its Enemies

U.S. corporate leaders, so eager to please everyone these days, should heed the words of Rudyard Kipling. As the English author once warned:

"It is always a temptation to a rich and lazy nation,
To puff and look important and to say:

"Though we know we should defeat you,
We have not the time to meet you.
We will therefore pay you cash to go away."

Replace the word "nation" in the previous stanza with "corporation" and you'll understand how business today deals with groups pressing for expansion of government and curtailment of property rights. Rather than confront these activists, business tries to buy them off.

It is a hopeless tactic, as Kipling often warned. The latest evidence of this white-flag policy can be found in Marvin Olasky's book "Patterns of Corporate Philanthropy." The University of Texas professor checked the charitable contributions for 77 of the largest 100 U.S. companies (the rest wouldn't cooperate) and found that in 1985 they funneled far more money into "public-interest groups" of the left than of the right.

Sometimes a company gave money to groups directly opposed to its own activities, as when the defense contractor Honeywell underwrote disarmament seminars. More commonly, business funded groups whose goals clashed with its long-term interests.

For example, NOW's Legal Defense and Education Fund lobbies and litigates for "comparable worth," which would further limit the freedom to set wages. Twenty-four of the biggest companies contributed to NOW's fund.

The Urban League and the NAACP's Legal Defense and Education Fund meanwhile push for racial and group preference — as opposed to individual rights — in the hiring, promotion and firing of workers. Yet they received gifts from dozens of companies, too.

Also favored were organizations such as the Children's Defense Fund, People for the American Way, Gray Panthers and environmental institutes that plump for greater federal spending (and hence higher taxes) for a host of domestic programs, not to mention expanded regulation in everything from advertising and broadcasting to the environment.

By no means all the money flowed to such groups. A few right-of-center organizations cleaned up, too — notably the American Enterprise Institute. But as Olasky ably proves, the overall trend for 1985 was clear — and it undoubtedly persists to this day.

Whether out of stupidity, a desire to appease or merely a naive belief that such contributions nurture a responsible image, corporate America seems determined to underwrite its critics.

To some extent the myopia is predictable. Historically, business leaders have often sought to curtail economic freedom in order to gain commercial advantage. That's why, for instance, the president and chairman of American Airlines, R.L. Crandall, came out last summer in favor of Sen. Edward Kennedy's legislation requiring companies to offer minimum medical benefits for all employees.

Reagan Silent On Ethics

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter
Los Angeles, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan began 1987 at a low point in his presidency as a result of the ravages of the Iran-Contra scandal.

And he is winding up the year on a more hopeful note with the signing of a new arms accord with the Soviet Union.

But he does have problems with a drop in the value of the dollar and an uncertain, if more pessimistic outlook for the economy.

One blemish on the administration's cacutcheon, which will remain, is the conspicuous absence of any statement by the president on the cavalier approach to ethics in government pursued by his appointees.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater expressed outrage at criticism leveled against the administration by special prosecutor Whitney North Seymour following the conviction of former deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver on perjury charges. Seymour questioned the "loose money" that had led to the downfall of many in the administration and the behavior of aides and former aides in the top strata of government.

Fitzwater said that Seymour had insulted the American people and government workers.

The spokesman was asked over a span of two or three days when Reagan had ever issued a statement condemning aides who had abused the powers of their office or the contacts made while in the administration.

Fitzwater insisted that the president had indeed denounced those who had broken the public trust, or even warned his appointees to stay on the straight and narrow.

To this day, he has not been able to produce one statement by the president. In fact, to this moment, Reagan has not condemned the shenanigans in the National Security Council that nearly undid his presidency, and eroded public confidence in him.

He has never retracted the "national hero" status that he gave to Lt. Col. Oliver North even after he learned of the extent of North's deception and shredding of official documents when he testified before a congressional investigating committee with immunity.

Nor has he repudiated former national security adviser John Poindexter.

Industry's Winners And Losers Picked

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — The future looks bright for computers and bleak for construction. This is the Commerce Department's prediction for industry in 1988.

Computing equipment will be the fastest growing industry with an anticipated gain of 22.1 percent. Eight of the 15 industries with the best outlook for the year are related to electronics, defense or medicine.

On the list of the 15 industries with growth to match the rate of slow molasses, seven are related to construction. At the bottom is the flat glass industry, predicted to fall by 10.3 percent in 1988.

The statistics come from an advance copy of "U.S. Industrial Outlook," a Department of Commerce report that will have a long list of eager readers when it is disseminated to the public this week.

The Commerce Department looks at the winners and losers of the industrial world and predicts that the fastest-growing industries will

JEFFREY HART

Conservatives Split

In 1980, at the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, with the nomination of Ronald Reagan sewn up, there was a strong drive to put Rep. Jack Kemp on the ticket in second place. Petitions were collected, buttons and balloons appeared, and the thing seemed to be building.

Almost simultaneously, there seemed to be a possibility that Gerald Ford might actually run for vice president on a Reagan ticket. Walter Cronkite liked that idea. With all of this swirling around at the convention, Reagan brought it to an end, and George Bush was telephoned at the Ponchertrain Hotel, where he was having a beer in the bar.

Rep. Kemp, at that point, had to be regarded as the heir of the Reagan movement, and he continued to consolidate his position as such by leading the intellectual and political fight for the Kemp-Roth tax-cuts, which Bush had called "voodoo economics," cuts which helped usher in a six year spurt in American productivity and prosperity. Never mind the famous deficit. Kemp-Roth gave Congress the opportunity to cease warehousing thousands of tons of surplus cheese, ending obsolete and discredited entitlements, cutting failed programs, and much else. Kemp-Roth is not responsible for the deficit.

Nor is Rep. Kemp a tax-cutting Johnny-one-note, though that note is by no means a bad one to play. He has thought out proposals on a whole range of issues, all of them attached to his central theme of greater opportunity for all Americans. He possesses tremendous energy and an infectious platform manner. The great mystery is, why, after what amounts to at least six years of campaigning for the presidency, he remains so low in the opinion polls. He might be presumed to be the heir of the Reagan revolution, but so far he has not become that heir.

I do not myself know the answer. But one answer might be that all of the Republican candidates today are pretty conservative. There is no, repeat no, liberal presidential contender; it is still too early to judge the strength of Gary Hart. The Lindsays and Scrantons and Rockefeller of yesteryear have entirely vanished. George Bush is not a liberal. Chief of Staff Howard Baker, bete noir today of many conservatives, is hardly a liberal. The result is that all the Republican candidates have conservative support, making the former conservative movement a fragmented team. Thus, if Bush gets the nomination, the old Republican establishment will be back in charge, though well to the right of where it used to be.

As the New Hampshire scenario unfolds, it is quite possible that Rep. Kemp will emerge as the anti-establishment standard-bearer. The equation could work as follows. Bush and Dole fight it out on the establishment side with one emerging. Kemp and du Pont contend for the conservative insurgency, with one emerging. Then we have one-on-one from there on out. This could happen.

Tonsils Still Problem

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Dr. LaVonne Bergstrom started her practice in Colorado during the 1960s, whole families would be brought into the hospital to have their tonsils and adenoids removed.

"It seemed like they took them out for any reason — poor appetite, too many colds, failure to grow," she said recently. "If there was anything wrong, even if the child was cranky, out they would go."

Tonsillectomies and adenoidectomies are not as popular now as they were decades ago, although 400,000 of the operations are performed each year, according to the American Academy of Otolaryngology.

Pediatricians are much more hesitant to prescribe the removal of tonsils and adenoids, academy spokesmen say. But the two operations — usually performed together — can still improve a number of medical conditions, including some that have proved serious.

In the past decade, it has become apparent that some cases of life-threatening pulmonary hypertension in children can be alleviated by removing tonsils that are pressing against air passage ways and putting pressure on the lungs.

The same pressure can cause sleep apnea in children, doctors say. The condition causes a child to stop breathing temporarily for a few seconds at a time during the night, leading to fatigue and potentially serious complications.

"I would say infection of the tonsils is still the major reason tonsillectomies are performed, but there has been a shift in that we are seeing more serious reasons," said Dr. Lee Eisenberg, a spokesman for the academy and an instructor in medicine at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"We've established a link between heart and breathing problems and tonsils," he said. "Perhaps we never saw it before because so many children had their tonsils out 20 years ago compared to today."

By age 6, the adenoids and tonsils begin to shrink and the child grows larger. By adulthood, both types of glands are either small or nonexistent, which explains why few adults need either of the operations.

"Most adults don't have adenoids even if they never had an adenoidectomy," Eisenberg said.

day, so some of the report may err on the side of optimism.

Here is the Commerce Department assessment for three industries:

● While the immediate future is bright, down the road computer equipment companies will be bounced around by intense foreign competition, short product cycles and aggressive pricing. All of that shows up in the industry's declining trade surplus and employment. Look for more mergers of those companies.

On the softer side, the computer software industry will continue to grow in revenue and jobs to keep up with the demand by computer users to get the most out of their hardware. American manufacturers will have to keep looking over their shoulders to keep foreign competitors — especially the Japanese — from beating us in the new hardware and software advances. But the biggest threat may come from the inside, not from foreign competitors. That threat is a growing shortage of skilled programmers. By 1995, the demand for programmers and system analysts in this country is expected almost to double that of 1984, but the number of college freshmen choosing that career is dropping significantly.

● American auto manufacturers will continue to lose ground to importers. The major American automakers could lose 2 million vehicle sales and 175,000 jobs between now and the early 1990s, according to the Commerce Department. The subcompact car may take a beating as the population gets older and more comfort-oriented.

● Retailers are watching total annual sales inch toward the $2 trillion mark. Department stores are restructuring toward larger chains, but specialty stores and warehouse-type outlets will continue to prosper. Commerce Department economists see electronic retailing as the wave of the future — shopping via cable TV or telephone-based services. J.C. Penney and Sears now offer the early prototypes of electronic shopping services that let you window-shop from your armchair.

3 Ships With Chinese Arms Reported Headed For Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chinese weapons, including Silkworm missiles, needed for an offensive against Iraq are believed to be en route to Iran aboard three merchant ships, administration sources say.

The sources said Wednesday that U.S. intelligence shows two ships left North Korea, one more than a week ago and the other only a few days ago. A third also shipped out of Shanghai, China, in recent days and headed south toward the Indian Ocean, they said.

Intelligence agents believe the two ships from North Korea are headed toward Iran, which has previously gotten Chinese arms through this route, the sources said.

China has consistently denied U.S. charges it has supplied arms to Iran, helping to perpetuate the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The ship from Shanghai could be carrying arms for Iraq, which has also been supplied with Chinese weapons, but the general belief is the vessel is bound for Iran, the sources said.

They said one of the ships from North Korea is believed to be carrying a small number of Silkworm anti-ship missiles, which Iran has used to threaten shipping in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. Threatens Aid Review

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy, expressing "indignation" over the release of the killers of two American advisers, announced it will review an aid program to the Salvadoran court system.

In Washington Wednesday, State Department Spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said the United States was "appalled and outraged" that a court freed the two former Salvadoran national guardsmen convicted of killing two American agricultural labor organizers and a Salvadoran land reformer in 1981.

Oakley said the men were tried and convicted under criminal laws and should not have been released under the amnesty provisions of the Central American peace plan.

A criminal court in San Salvador announced Tuesday it granted amnesty Dec. 19 to Santiago Gomez Gonzalez and Jose Dimas, who were sentenced to 30 years in prison for killing Michael Hammer and Mark David Pearlman, both AFL-CIO advisers assisting the Salvadoran government, and Rodolfo Viera, president of the Salvadoran Institute for Agrarian Transformation. The three men were killed in the coffee shop of the San Salvador Sheraton Hotel on Jan. 3, 1981.

New Rules Ban Seal Hunt

OTTAWA (UPI) — The once-lucrative killing of white-coat seal pups on Canada's east coast, which became a cause celebre of environmentalists, has been banned by the government.

Fisheries Minister Thomas Siddon announced new rules in Ottawa Wednesday that ban commercial hunting of harp seals and blueback hooded seals. The rules also ban offshore commercial seal hunts by large vessels.

However, Siddon said the government will continue to allow annual harvests of older seals by the Inuit Tapirnat of Canada's far north and fishermen of Newfoundland's coastal communities.

Two Charged In Cult Murder Of High School Classmate

CARTHAGE, Mo. (UPI) — A high school class president and another teenager have been charged with murder in the death of a classmate whose body was found in an abandoned well with the carcasses of several squirrels and a cat.

Ronald Clements and James Hardy, 17, were bound over for trial Wednesday on the first-degree murder charges and ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond pending next week's arraignment in Jasper County Circuit Court.

Clements is to be arraigned Tuesday and Hardy the following day.

Investigators have speculated the slaying of Steven Newberry, also 17, may have been cult-related.

Clements was bound over for trial following a preliminary hearing in Associate Circuit Court, while Hardy was bound over after waiving his preliminary hearing.

Candidates Getting Federal Bucks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Elections Commission will be handing out nearly $29 million in federal funds to presidential candidates but problems with liens, documentation and requests for delays create problems for three contenders.

The FEC, charged with overseeing the federal elections laws and distributing matching funds to eligible presidential candidates, plans to hand out $28,748,261.05 Monday and Tuesday to 12 of the 13 1988 candidates, spokeswoman Karen Finucan said.

The biggest dilemma for the FEC is $100,000 set aside for the campaign of Democrat Gary Hart, whose 1984 organization was slapped Wednesday with a second lien against his 1988 matching funds.

Additional problems in Democrat Jesse Jackson's campaign and an unusual request from Republican Pat Robertson have the FEC worried about how to handle those candidates' share of the matching funds.

To be eligible for federal matching funds, candidates must first raise $100,000 from individuals, at least $5,000 in each of 20 states, with a $250 maximum from individuals.

Slain Sailor's Body Returned

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — The body of an American sailor killed in a terrorist hand grenade attack on a USO club in Spain was returned to the United States and prepared for a funeral Saturday in his Pennsylvania hometown.

Petty Officer Ronald Strong was flown from Spain in a flag-draped metal caasket that was met Wednesday by his family, Rear Adm. John Dasher and a Navy honor guard during a brief but somber ceremony at Dover Air Force Base.

The 22-year-old gas turbine mechanic died Sunday of wounds from two grenades tossed into a USO club in Barcelona, Spain, that he and nine other shipmates were visiting while on Christmas shore leave from the destroyer USS Thorn.

Dasher, the commander of Navy Military Personnel, offered the Navy's condolences to Strong's 19-year-old pregnant wife, Amy, and other members of his family.

Apoka Man Faces Poaching Trial

An Apoka man will have to face not only a trial for allegedly poaching an alligator from Lake Jessup earlier this year, but will also face the three foot reptile he allegedly poached.

Joseph Stanley Koon, 35, of 1833 Votaw Road, is accused of poaching six live alligators from the lake near Oviedo on May 28.

Assistant State Attorney Woody Igou said he plans to use the alligator Koon reportedly gave an undercover agent for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission as evidence in court.

"I plan on bringing the reptile into the courtroom as evidence," Igou said. He added that the alligator is being held at a FOWFC pen near Ocala.

Koon's trial is scheduled to go before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor during the week of Jan. 11. Igou said he doesn't know exactly what day the case will go to trial.

The incident began at Black Haddock Fish Camp in Oviedo, when Koon allegedly approached Ken Carroll, the camp's owner with an offer to sell his alligator. The undercover agent was at the camp talking with Carroll at the time.

—Assistant State Attorney Woody Igou, referring to alligators.

After about an hour of conversation about the boat Koon asked both men if they wanted to go "hunting alligators" with him. The report indicates Carroll declined the offer, telling Koon he had things to do, but the agent agreed to go along.

The agent said there were two other men in the boat with them while out on the lake, but that both were so intoxicated they couldn't help with the poaching activities.

During their time on the lake hunting for alligators the agent said Koon told him to turn off the light, so they could listen for any boating activity that would indicate the presence of game authorities.

By the time the party returned to the fish camp at 11 p.m. that night, the agent claims he had helped Koon poach six alligators from the lake. Koon kept the reptiles alive so he could take them home and "fatten them up" in a specially built pen in his back yard, according to Igou.

Koon reportedly told the agent he'd poached numerous alligators and deer from the lake and surrounding area.

As Koon and the other two men were getting ready to leave the area, the agent said he asked him if he could have one of the alligators. Koon allegedly told him, "Yes, but hurry up. We need to get out of here before we get caught."

The agent said he then removed a three foot alligator from the hold of the alligator and everyone departed the area.

On Aug. 10, that State Attorney's Office filed charges against Koon for poaching alligators.

Igou said Koon has decided to plead innocent to the charge, turning down an offer from the state for him to plead guilty and receive a lesser punishment. Igou said he couldn't publicly discuss the details of the plea bargain offered to Koon.

Poaching alligators in Florida is a third degree felony, according to Igou. "Koon could be facing five years in prison and a $5,000 fine if he's convicted," he said.

However, Igou added that he doubted Koon would receive the maximum punishment available under the state sentencing guidelines.

"They aren't pretty, but they're protected," Igou said of alligators in the state.

Sanford May Purchase CSX Right-Of-Way

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford may buy the abandoned CSX Railroad right-of-way, located between Elliott Avenue and Summerlin Avenue, to use that property for reclaimed water transmission lines.

Monday night the Sanford City Commission authorized Mayor Bettye Smith to execute the purchase contract with CSX Realty in Jacksonville.

Several annexations were also considered at the meeting, along a rezoning ordinance, several petitions for annexation, the updating of the Employee Pre-Tax benefit plan, and a request for payment of bills.

CSX has offered to sell the strip of land to the city for $7,000, according to a letter from Janet M. Miranda, assistant manager in the CSX Realty division. The land is 400 feet in length, 50 feet wide and equates more or less to 20,000 square feet, according to Miranda. Cost of the property is based on 40 cents per square foot.

CSX is requiring a $700 earnest money deposit. One section of the reclaimed water distribution system, designed for the city's wastewater effluent land application program, crosses that property, according to Bill Simmons, director of engineering and planning. He said that route is recommended to minimize the cost of installing the distribution system. Also that route allows for the easiest service to the city parks to be irrigated, he said.

Funds for this purchase would be taken from the Sewer Bond Proceeds Trust Fund, he added.

Approved on first reading was Ordinance #1912, which would rezone property East of and abutting Airport Blvd., between W. 5th St. and Jewett Lane, from agricultural (A2) to medium industrial (MI-2). George Martin was the petitioner, was represented by Bob Seigler. Most of the property around that particular section, is already zoned MI-2, according to Betty Sonnenberg, Zoning and Arbor Inspector.

Commissioners also authorized City Attorney William Colbert to draw up six annexation ordinances. Petitions were submitted from the following:

-Stephen J. Hatch, for a portion of property between Narcaus Ave. and Sea Coast Line Railroad (SCL RR), and between Kennel Road, extended Northerly, and Terwilliger Lane.
-Fred P. Clerk, for a portion of property North of and abutting SCL RR, and between Kennel Road extended Northerly and Terwilliger Lane.
-Lee and Carolyn Salke, for a portion of property between Airport Blvd. and Jerry Ave. and between W. 5th St. and Jewett Lane.

-Charles Tate, for a portion of property between Sanford Ave. and Palmetto Ave., and between

E. 28th Place and E. 29th St.
-Gary Mullen, for a portion of property at the Southerly Corner of the intersection of U.S. 17-92 and Country Home Road.

-Mildred and Theo Cobb, for a portion of property between SR 46 (W. 1st St.) and W. 5th St., and between Upsala Road and Old Monroe Road.

Commissioners also approved the updating of the City Employee Pre-Tax Benefit Plan. The city carries insurance under two insurance companies, Health Options, and prior to this year, Florida Municipal Health Trust. Now the city is switching from the latter company to Blue Cross Blue Shield. The only other revision in the plan is to change the effective dates to include 1988.

Finally, Commissioners also approved Monday night, a request for payment of statement for services, from Ivey, Bennett, Harris and Walls, Inc., of Orlando, for consulting services from Nov. 1, 1987 through Nov. 27, 1987. The amount due is $6,123.61.

United Way Will Merge

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The final action merging the Seminole County United Way into the three-county unit Heart of Florida United Way will take place in Sanford on Jan. 29.

Although the boards of directors of United Way organizations in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties have already approved the merger, which takes effect Jan. 1, state law requires the merger to be approved by a general meeting of any contributor to United Way who wants to attend. That meeting is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Jan. 29 at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Bob Walko, executive vice president of Seminole United Way, said state law requires non-profit organizations such as United Way, to hold a public meeting at which any "donor member" may vote on the action taken by the organization's board. The board voted for the merger on Dec. 15.

The three-county merger has been discussed since 1984 and was originally proposed to take effect last year. Walko said under the merger existing offices and staff in Seminole County will be maintained. The office, which was moved from Sanford to Longwood in 1985, may be moved farther north, possibly to Lake Mary, he said.

Ed Rawa, who has been assistant executive director for Orange County United Way, will be executive director of Heart of Florida United Way. Seminole county will be represented by 15 people on the governing board of the new organization, and five Seminole County members will serve on the executive committee.

Budget hearings by the new merged organizations will be held in January or early February. Agencies will be reviewed and allocations set by a tri-county reviewing committee with the exception of strictly Seminole County agencies, which will be reviewed by a Seminole committee as in the past.

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened sharply lower today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 23.21 Wednesday, was down 25.20 to 1924.90 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 863-201 among the 1,512 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 22,470,000 shares.

The market rode the back of an opening bell surge Wednesday and held on as prices closed broadly higher in light trading.

"It ran up at the open and then just stopped," said Rodd Anderson, vice president in equity trading at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. "The market looks like it's sold out. There are not a lot of stocks around for sale."

Anderson said the market had "a real nice tone" and those in the market were looking around for bargains ahead of the anticipated move higher in January.

"It looks like it is setting up that way," Anderson said. "We just don't see a lot of stuff for sale."

Dollar's Fall Continues; Gold, Silver Open Higher

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar ended the year today at a record post-World War II low in Tokyo, then fell to all-time lows in Frankfurt, Zurich and Amsterdam at the opening of major European money markets. Gold pushed higher.

The frantic dollar-selling spree overwhelmed intervention by Japan's central bank as traders sold dollars on the final trading session of the year in Tokyo at 122 yen, down from Wednesday's close of 123.53 and well below the previous postwar record low of 123.50 posted at Tuesday's close.

The selling trend continued across Europe, where dealers also paid little attention to a statement from Washington that President Reagan now wants stability for the dollar.

At the opening of trading in Zurich, the dollar slipped to yet another all-time low of 1.2825 Swiss francs, and within the first hour of trading it fell even further, to 1.279. The previous record low of 1.2885 was posted at Monday's close.

The dollar, which barely two years ago was trading at 3 Swiss francs, had finished Wednesday at 1.291.

Economic Slowdown Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economists see a fresh omen of possible recession in November's 1.7 percent drop in the government's index of Leading Economic Indicators, the steepest monthly decline since 1981. But the Commerce Department calls the bad news a "temporary setback."

The negative results reported by the Commerce Department Wednesday went almost across the board — seven of the nine indicators used to calculate the preliminary index results fell during the month, led by falling stock prices.

Government officials played down the significance of the results. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said only time will tell whether the report is just a blip "or has a long-term effect."

"We have to interpret it as a temporary setback," added Robert Ormer, deputy undersecretary of commerce for economic affairs. "I don't think that it means that the expansion is over. We get occasional setbacks in the leading indicators during expansions."

willing to lease to the city a barge, which would be located at the end of the new docks, now under construction at the marina. That would put a floating manger scene within 50 feet of Seminole Boulevard, he said.

He said that he leases the waterfront property from the city, and that that makes it his property. "It will be a cold day in hell when the ACLU can tell me what to do," he added.

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said today that he thinks the issue is a moot point this year. "There has been no discussion by the commission on what to do next year," he said.

"There are a lot of places we could display it and comply with the law. I think it would be a good idea to display it on a barge out on the public water of Lake Monroe."

The nativity scene was purchased in 1971, with money out of the city's contingency fund. It cost $1,300. It is put up along the Eastern side of the City Building each Christmas.

City hall spokesmen for Altamonte Springs, Casselberry, Longwood and Winter Springs said those cities sponsor no nativity scenes or Christmas displays of religious significance.

Overall, the Census Bureau said, the South and West experienced most of the country's growth in the 1980s, accounting for 15 million of the 17 million population increase.

The South grew 11.3 percent so far this decade and now has 83.8 million people while the West grew 15.1 percent to 49.7 million, according to bureau statistics.

The bureau also reported that Alaska had the largest percentage population growth from 1980 to 1987 — nearly 31 percent, from 402,000 to 525,000. But bureau statistics show Alaska's population dropped by 7,000 from July 1, 1986.

Other states posting fast growth rates in the 1980-87 period include Nevada, which experienced 26 percent growth, and Arizona, which had a 25 percent growth rate. Nevada's population now totals 1 million while Arizona has an estimated population of 3.3 million.

The bureau said all of the industrial midwestern states experienced population gains from 1986 as the regional economy continued to recover from the recession that socked the area in the early 1980s.

But some farm states — Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, Montana and Idaho — had another year of population losses, as did the energy-depressed states of West Virginia, Oklahoma and Wyoming, the bureau said.

And it said Louisiana, another oil state suffering economic ills, experienced for the first time a population loss from the previous year's estimate, dropping 38,000 to 4.46 million. Meanwhile, the Northeast, which includes New England and the Middle Atlantic states, also experienced population growth, from 1986 to 1987.

ager at NCR, said the power apparently was on while Perry was doing the work, and "I imagine that in the future, they'll have the power off" when that kind of work is being done.

An employee who may have seen the accident dialed the 911 emergency number for help, which arrived shortly afterwards, and Perry was given emergency treatment at the scene.

"He's always very cautious with his job," Perry's wife, Carolyn, said from his hospital room today.

Mrs. Perry said no voltage went through Perry's body and that he was fully conscious after the accident and stepped down from his ladder. She said he was wearing his prescription glasses at the time of the accident, which are safety glasses.

Perry is an electrician with NCR and is beginning his ninth year of employment at the Lake Mary plant, his wife said.

Mrs. Perry said her husband's doctors told her Perry should be out of the hospital in 10 days and back to work in three to four weeks.

"sets the tone and the pace for the nation" educationally.

She disagreed with Bennett's statement that his suggested program would not cost more. "In fact, it should be less expensive," he said. "You'd get a leaner, meaner academic machine for your money."

"It's cost us a lot more," Dailey said on the behalf of Seminole County. "It's very expensive."

The added expense, which the state only pays a portion for, stems from an additional class period, more textbooks and more teachers for the expanded and revised curriculum, Dailey said.

"Most of the high school principals believe we haven't caught up yet on the number of teachers or the amount of money for textbooks they need," she said.

Dailey said groups such as the National Education Association often have questioned Bennett's statements. "I think he has come out with controversial statements that aren't too practical for schools."

"A Nation at Risk" said high school coursework had become so "homogenized, diluted and diffused" that it no longer served a clear purpose. "In effect, we have a cafeteria-style curriculum in which the appetizers and desserts can easily be mistaken for the main course," that study said.

Bennett told reporters Tuesday. "I think a student is better off spending an extra year, even an extra two years... in getting something of substance... rather than just getting out in four years."

In his new proposal, Bennett said, among other things, that America must change the way it looks at mathematics.

"We speak of mathematical 'geniuses' in terms we would never apply to even our finest history students, and while we expect great things from a very few students, we do too little to encourage the rest," he wrote. "We seem possessed by the false notion that many students have an incurable math phobia or disability."

Spelling out his proposed science curriculum, Bennett noted that American high school students now are required to take an average of 1.8 years of science, better than the 1.5 years when "A Nation at Risk" was issued.

"But we still have a long way to go," he said. America must expect more of its students, he said, insisting, "High expectations make an enormous difference. If school systems raise the level of expectations, students will raise their performance despite the difficulty of the work, he said.

Bennett suggested content for classes in all seven required subjects to "leak out" the minimum graduation requirements called for in "A Nation at Risk," and singled out seven schools around the country that already have put the ideals into action.

"A broad, deep and effective core curriculum is possible for almost all American secondary school students," he said in the report. "If we are serious about equal opportunity in general, then we must provide equal opportunity in school."

Kidnap

While Joedicker was carrying out the kidnaping of Emanuel and Neal, Ramirez was holding Bruce Watson, Fred Russon and John Emanuel at the Deltona residence against their will, according to Carroll. Ramirez was reportedly armed with a .357 caliber revolver.

Watson and Russon are both from Deltona and John Emanuel, who is James Emanuel's brother, is from DeBary.

After Joedicker returned with James Emanuel and Neal, John Emanuel was sent to get the $2,000 the couple supposedly owed the kidnapers.

The brother was allegedly told that, if he didn't get the money or the police were notified that his brother and Neal would be killed.

When John went home to get the money, his father then alerted authorities by dialing 911, according to Carroll.

Sometime before members of the Volusia and Seminole County SWAT teams arrived on the scene, Joedicker and Ramirez released Watson so he could go to work. They later released Russon, who was apprehended by deputies as he left the area.

The kidnapers were alerted to the presence of the officers by Raider, who had been allowed to go out in the backyard to feed his dog.

When Raider told Joedicker and Ramirez the police were outside they began to panic and attempted to break down the shotgun. Short-barreled shotguns are against the law in Florida.

As Ramirez tried to help Joedicker disassemble the shotgun he set his gun down, according to Carroll.

James Emanuel reportedly grabbed the revolver and shot Ramirez twice, hitting him once in the upper chest and in the hand.

After officers took control of the house Ramirez was air-lifted to Halifax Medical Center, Daytona Beach.

All persons found in the house when the officers entered were taken into custody because authorities didn't know who were the kidnapers and who were the victims.

After VCSO investigators interviewed the persons involved in the incident Joedicker was arrested and taken to the Volusia County jail. Ramirez has since joined him there after recovering from his wounds.

Bonaccory said Joedicker is being held on $50,000 bond. "I don't know for sure how much bond was set for Ramirez, but I know he's still in jail," he said.

Residents described the family as wealthy, quiet and highly regarded. John and Agnes Dreesman lived in an isolated area on a street named after the family.

"It's dreadful news, nothing like this has happened in Algona," said one resident of the shootings.

"I have never seen anything like this," said Sheriff Charles Day.

Robert Dreesman recently graduated from the Palmer School of Chiropractics in Davenport, but was not practicing.

He was also close to earning a degree in veterinary medicine.

He was described as introverted and peaceful by friends. He attended school until the eighth grade in Algona and then attended an East Coast prep school.

In Dayton, Texas, Edward Lee Rouse Jr., 17, was held Wednesday night in the Liberty County jail in lieu of $100,000 bond on two capital murder charges in the deaths of his mother, Rita Porter, 38, and his stepbrother, Matthew Porter, 9, whose bodies were found in the burning Porter home earlier in the day, said Chief Deputy Urban Valentine.

Authorities had no motive in the killings. A shotgun and cavalry sword were recovered in the suspect's bedroom.

Valentine said the suspect's stepfather, Larry Porter, suffered head wounds, bruises, lacerations and a possible dislocated shoulder, and was in surgery at Methodist Hospital in Houston Wednesday evening.

In the Arkansas massacre, the victims included Ronald Gene Simmons' wife, four daughters, three sons, two of his children's spouses and four grandchildren, killed just before and after Christmas. Two more people were shot to death and four people were wounded in a downtown Russellville shooting spree Monday that apparently stemmed from spurned sexual advances and work-related grudges.

ten up and walked about 12 feet from her bed, then collapsed, he said.

Thomas and Stevenson each had a bedroom just off the living room. They could not have escaped except through their bedroom windows, according to Martin, because the fire separated them from the house's main exits.

"I heard her call for help," Stevenson said. "Then I heard a thud, like she fell to the floor." After climbing out the window, Stevenson began calling for help. Neighbors heard her and responded. Ezekiel Wissart tried to break the window into Thomas' bedroom, but was forced back by smoke.

Annie King, who lives nearby on Golden Gate Circle, said she woke up hearing someone screaming. King's daughter, Kathy, said her mother yelled for her to "Come and tell me if that house is on fire." King said she told her husband that something was wrong, and she told her daughter to call 911. King said they didn't know the exact address of the Thomas residence, but she had her daughter Kathy to tell emergency personnel to just come up W. 16th St. and they'd see it.

King said then that she went straight over to the Thomas house, and that Wissart was already there with Stevenson. "We were worried about her (Stevenson)." King said, "because she had heart problems." She said that when workers brought Thomas' body out of the house, "she didn't look to be burned. We just felt it was too much smoke for her."

King pointed out that Thomas was her aunt's step-mother. "She was a nice old lady," she added. She said that most of the time Thomas had been in good health and that she had had a garden behind her house which she tended regularly. Thomas' granddaughter, Nancy Morgan, 38, told one reporter that on Monday the 96-year-old had been up on a ladder picking oranges, and that she got around better than a lot of people half her age.

Martin noted that the women were elderly, but that "this could have been a preventable accident had they just known." For example, there were no smoke detectors in the house, he said.

Thomas' granddaughter, Nancy Morgan, said that Thomas and Stevenson kept children for neighbors and friends, and that earlier in the week, seven children had been in the house. No one else was in the house at the time of the fire. "That's one thing to be grateful for," the granddaughter said.

FAA Safety Seminar Will Be Held Jan. 7

Pilots wanting to "win their wings" may attend an FAA Accident Prevention Air Safety Education Seminar, scheduled Jan. 7, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Cavalier Motor Inn, 3300 S. Orlando Drive, according to Tom Savage, of Savage Aviation Training. Savage is a licensed safety counselor and examiner for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Savage expects about 200 people to attend the seminar. He noted that the public is invited to attend, free of charge, along with pilots.

Landings will be the seminar topic, Savage said. A slide presentation will concentrate on landing gear emergencies; landing on wet, icy or snow covered runways; and three types of hydroplaning.

While anyone may attend the seminar, pilots wanting to obtain their "wings" in this phase of air safety, should hold a private pilot certificate or higher certification, and also a current medical certificate, Savage said. The air safety program is a six phase program, he explained, and pilots are awarded wings at the completion of each phase. Only one phase can be completed each year. To receive credit for the seminar attendance must be verified in the pilot's log book, or other proficiency record, Savage added, and that must be signed by an FAA accident prevention specialist or accident prevention counselor involved in conducting the seminar. Four other pilot instructors will be assisting in this seminar he said.

Savage noted that he has attended several seminars in Florida in the past six months and that Central Florida, Orlando and Sanford seminars have the best attendance. He said more pilots receive their wings at the local seminars also.

The seminars are paid for locally he said. In fact, the Jan. 7 seminar will be paid for out of advertising included in the printed program those attending the seminar will receive.

Savage explained that the Cavalier Motor Inn is charging only $75 for the evening, and is offering free transportation from the airport to the Inn, for anyone who files into Sanford. In addition, Cavalier is also offering VIP rates to anyone involved in the seminar, who stays overnight.

This program is designed to "reduce accidents and encourage aviation safety through continuing learning and recurrent training," he said. "Air safety is a big deal—and we are getting results because the ac-

Man Saves Stepmother From Savage Squirrel

MOUNT DORA (UPI) — It was mad man against bearish beast in a struggle to the death that left James Williams with absolutely no affection for one creature of the forest.

"He got me pretty good," Williams said. "It startled me at first, but it makes me mad now. It makes me want to get a BB gun and shoot every squirrel I see."

Williams' stepmother, Bobbie, was hanging clothes Tuesday afternoon outside their Lake County home northwest of Orlando when the average-size gray squirrel leaped from a tree and attacked her.

Responding to her cries, Williams found the critter lurking on the bottom rack of the barbecue grill.

The squirrel bit Williams on the leg. He knocked the animal off but it kept lunging, clawing his back and arms.

Police said the squirrel's head was sent to a state laboratory for rabies tests.

Executive Files Suit Against Cuomo's Son

PORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A savings and loan association executive sued Andrew Cuomo in federal court Wednesday, the second such action charging the son of New York Gov. Mario Cuomo with illegally attempting to gain control of the financial institution.

Lynn Fenster Smith of Fort Lauderdale, chairman of Oceanmark Federal Saving & Loan Association of North Miami Beach, filed the suit in U.S. District Court, charging Cuomo and his "New York Group" violated the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act in an attempt to bankrupt the thrift for profit.

A civil suit, filed on similar charges last week in Broward County Circuit Court against Cuomo and the investor group, seeks $15 million damages.

cident rates have decreased."

Ninety-two wings have been awarded at air safety seminars in Sanford over the past three years, according to Savage. The Sanford seminars began in Sanford in 1984, with 97 people attending the first one, he said. Attendance built up until an average of 250 were attending.

He noted, however, that attendance was down to about 140 at the December seminar, which was held at Seminole Community College, rather than at the airport, where it had been held previously. Savage said the seminar is being held elsewhere, rather than the airport, since the airport would rent its banquet room for $150 for the first hour, and $60 for every hour thereafter. Savage says that since he is underwriting this seminar, his funds are more limited.

He noted, on the other hand, that the seminar does promote the Sanford airport, since that facility continues to grow in its importance to the Sanford area.

Lake Mary City Commissioners May Sign Wastewater Agreement At Monday Meeting

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary city staff will discuss a sewer agreement with Timacuan developers at a special-called meeting Monday, along with the awarding of a sewer fee study and the city buying sewer service capacity for its own property.

The meeting comes a day before what the city is terming "Allocation Day." On Tuesday, those owning land within the city's sewer service district can apply and pay applicable sewer capital charges for sewer service capacity. Applications for capacity, available from city hall, must be completed and returned to city hall between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

City commissioners on Dec. 17 postponed discussing and approving the Timacuan Sewer Service Agreement until Monday's special-called meeting, due to last-minute changes in the agreement.

Under the agreement, Timacuan developers would be able to buy 20,000 gallons of capacity per day over the 80,000 gallons per day limit set by an ordinance adopted Dec. 17 that set sewer service allocation rules. City Manager Bob Norris said the capacity would be part of what will be needed for the 1,100 housing and/or commercial units planned for the 650-acre Timacuan site.

Through an attached agreement, the Wastewater Disposal Agreement, Timacuan developers would dedicate an acre for a water-pumping station and the Timacuan Golf Course for a permanent easement onto which Lake Mary would spray affluent — treated, drinkable wastewater. Norris expects a meeting this week of developers and the city to finalize the easement offer, in time for the special-called meeting.

Norris said the benefit of the easement is two-fold: treated water instead of aquifer water would be used for irrigation, and the affluent would seep into the ground, replenishing the aquifer.

If the Timacuan Sewer Service Agreement is signed Monday, developers could proceed to buy sewer service capacity on the Tuesday "Allocation Day."

Also on Monday's agenda is the commission's approval of Camp Dresser & McKee Inc. of Maitland to conduct a $12,400 Wastewater User Charge Study on monthly retail sewer fees for the city's sewer service district. Camp Dresser & McKee earlier this month was awarded a $10,300 Fecal Coliform Study to find out the contamination source of Crystal Lake.

Commissioners also will vote on authorizing city staff to buy sewer service capacity for the city's 10 acres on Rhinehart Road. Lake Mary already has given the nod for an architectural firm to draw up a master plan for construction of a public works and public safety complex on the Rhinehart Road site, where a water treatment facility is based. Sewer service capacity would be a "huge benefit" if the complex is built on the site, Norris said.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. at the Lake Mary City Hall, located at 156 North Country Club Road.

DRINKING AND DRIVING DON'T MIX!

when you drink... DON'T DRIVE!

The life you save may be your own!

As little as two drinks can affect your driving ability. Four or more can make you legally drunk. Contrary to popular beliefs, coffee and fresh air will not sober you up — only time will. It takes approximately one hour for your body to neutralize the effect of one alcoholic drink. In other words, it takes four hours to completely sober up from four drinks. In between that time you are a danger to yourself and to other drivers on the road.

THE SIMPLE SOLUTION IS DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE! Ask a friend to drive you — they'll be happy to because they care — or call a taxi. The fare is small compared to the cost of your life or someone else's. Remember, a drunk driver is a dangerous driver.

Drinking and driving kills! The only solution is DON'T!

'Canes Not Intimidated By Awesome Oklahoma

Miami Has Positive Attitude For National Title Matchup

Jimmy Johnson

MIAMI (UPI) — When the University of Miami football team considers Oklahoma's startling accomplishments, the Hurricanes become motivated, not intimidated.

The top-ranked Sooners enter the Orange Bowl as the national leaders in pass defense, total defense, scoring defense, rushing offense and total offense.

What does Miami lead the nation in? Try incentive.

"I like the attitude of our players heading into this game better than I have in the past," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson Wednesday after working out the No. 2 Hurricanes for two hours in windy conditions. "It seems like we have a more realistic approach this year."

Football

Miami entered last season's Fiesta Bowl against Penn State ranked No. 1 and a prohibitive favorite. Seven Miami turnovers later, the Nittany Lions flew out of Arizona as national champions after a 14-10 victory that dropped Johnson's bowl record at Miami to 0-3.

"We don't have the approach heading into this game that we're gonna just go out and dominate the opposition," Johnson said. "We know how good Oklahoma is. Last year's team probably did not expect a close fourth quarter. Heading into that game, a close fourth quarter would have seemed like a surprise. This year, our players expect the game to be won in the fourth quarter."

Temperatures were in the 80s Wednesday and similar conditions are expected for the game that almost certainly will decide the national championship. Last year, the Hurricanes beat Oklahoma 28-16 with scrambling quarterback Vinny Testaverde firing Sooners defenders in the Florida heat.

"I hope we have weather like this to play in Friday, nice and cool," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said. "In terms of rushing the passer, depth is a concern. Losing (defensive tackle) Darren Kilpatrick to a knee injury affects us in that area. We got tired last year playing against Miami. But I don't think (Miami quarterback Steve Walsh) has proven he can scramble like Testaverde."

Rams Conquer Killian, 2-1

Lake Mary-Leon Play For Title

By Chris Fister

ORLANDO — You've heard about those exhibition boxing matches where the 6-5, 300-pound giant takes on all comers. Unless it's rigged, the giant beats the buffalo chips out of the 5-2, 120 pound wimp who comes out of the stands thinking he's Rocky.

Lake Mary's Rams are not only challenging the giants these days, but making a living out of beating them.

For the third day in a row, Lake Mary knocked off one of the state's powerhouses as the Rams rallied for a pair of second-half goals and went on to deep six Miami Killian's Cougars, 2-1, in the Pizza Hut Invitational semifinal round Wednesday night before 551 fans at Evans High's EE Stadium.

"We decided to take a go at it and put as much pressure on them (Killian) as possible," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "You can't sit back against a team like Killian. We had to get at them and did a good job of doing it."

The Rams will now go after North Florida giant Tallahassee Leon tonight at 7:30 for the tournament championship. Leon, which defeated Orange Park, 4-1, in Wednesday's other semifinal, is ranked second in the state in Class 3A.

In the three days of the Hut, Lake Mary, No. 10 in Class 4A, has now defeated three of the top five 4A teams. The Rams upset No. 1 Tampa Leto on Monday edged No. 5 Lyman on Tuesday and eliminated No. 2 Killian Wednesday.

"It's been a great tournament for us," McCorkle said. "We were behind (1-0 at half) for the first time tonight, but I had a feeling then that we would beat Killian. Killian showed us the best they had to offer in the first half and we were still all over them."

Even though Lake Mary out-shot the Cougars, 6-3, in the opening half, it was Killian that cashed in on one of its opportunities while the Rams came up empty.

At the 31:18 mark, Killian's T.J. Blum dribbled into the penalty area and dumped the ball off to Alex Sanchez who blasted it through the pipes for a 1-0 Killian lead.

Lake Mary's best chance came less than two minutes later when Manny Roldan made a nice pass to Jon Brooks who had an open shot but Killian goalkeeper James Wright came out and blocked the shot to preserve the Cougars' lead.

Though he missed out on one opportunity, Brooks would make up for it two fold in the second half.

Killian kept the lead for over 20 minutes of the second half and the Cougars had one excellent chance to add to it when Sanchez drew Lake Mary keeper Pete McNally out and crossed the ball in front of the open goal. Lake Mary sweeperback Scott Schmitt, though, got to the ball before anyone for Killian could and Schmitt cleared it away to keep the Rams in business.

Lake Mary, which pumped 12 shots on goal in the second half, put up the tying goal with 15:23 remaining. After long throw in from Frank Ramseur from the left side, Brooks blasted the ball past Wright for his first goal of the night.

"The first goal was a left-footed volley," Brooks said. "I felt I was due for a couple tonight and it felt really good to finally put it all together."

Killian came back with a chance to regain the lead with 14:04 remaining when Blum had

Kenyon Ross provided the spark coach Dave Jekanooski has been waiting for Wednesday afternoon as Oviedo's Lions rolled to the Corporate Travel Invitational championship with a 4-1 victory over Orlando Colonial at Oviedo High.

Ross, a transfer from Orlando Boone, scored a pair of goals while Jim Guggenheim added a pair of assists as the Lions won their third match in a row and improved to 7-3-1 overall.

"I was glad to get those two goals from Kenyon (Ross)," Jekanooski said. "I've been looking for him to break out and it was a nice day for him to do it."

Ross scored his first goal in the opening half on an assist from Tim Walsanen for a 1-0 halftime lead. The Lion then pulled away with three consecutive goals in the second half.

Rob Seltzer scored on an assist from Guggenheim to make it 2-0 and Ross' unassisted goal upped the lead to 3-0. Duncan Jones then scored on Guggenheim's second assist for a 4-0 lead.

Colonial avoided the shutout when Mike Piloto scored late in the game. Oviedo took 25 shots on goal compared to 11 for the Grenadiers. Oviedo goalkeeper Jeff Hoffman made six saves.

Four Oviedo players were named to the all-tournament team including Seltzer, Guggenheim, Derek Bates and Scott Walsanen.

"Scott (Walsanen) did a great at stopperback," Jekanooski said. "He's the glue that has held the team together through injuries and changing people back and forth."

Oviedo returns to Seminole Athletic Conference action Thursday against Lake Mary's Rams.

"We're very happy with our performance in the tournament," Jekanooski said. "We still have some things to settle before we're where we want to be, but we're really looking forward to the second half of the season and to playing Lake Mary on Thursday."

Fiesta: FSU Speed Vs. Nebraska Might

Football

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — If this were the pros, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne might try to hammer out a deal with Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden.

"Maybe we could work a trade," Osborne said. "We'll take some of their speed for some of our farm boys."

Perhaps the most interesting contrast in Friday's Fiesta Bowl between the third-ranked Seminoles and No. 5 Cornhuskers is that of Florida speed against Midwestern beef.

"We probably have the numbers in skill positions, but they balance that with numbers up front," Bowden said.

The Cornhuskers traditionally have been leaders in intimidating linemen, taking big-boned recruits and developing them through a weight program that is the prototype for the rest of college football.

"They've always been dominant up front over the years," Bowden said.

In fact, Nebraska brought about one-third of its weight-room equipment to Arizona, setting the machines up outside the gymnasium at Scottsdale Community College so the team could continue lifting despite being away from campus for a week.

"Everywhere we go for a bowl game, we always bring the weight room," said defensive tackle Neil Smith, who was voted "Lifter of the Year" by his teammates. "It really helps the program itself. If you're willing to take time out and get in there a couple of hours a day, it's really worth it."

The results can especially be seen in the statistics across the front line. The Cornhusker offensive line weighs 270, 285, 250, 270 and 285 from tackle to tackle. The defensive line is similar.

"They're huge. Huge and fast," said Florida State quarterback Danny McManus. "They're so good that even if you get in a good situation, with their speed they can chase you down. They've got great speed."

Still, speed is what Florida State is known for. The Seminoles long have had one of the most potent offenses in college football, and now match that up with speed on the defensive side of the line of scrimmage.

"One thing about the state of Florida, they have got speed," Osborne said. "An awful lot of speed."

The Seminoles go three deep at tailback and have six wide receivers to choose from. Cornerback Delon Sanders likely is the best athlete on the team, as he also plays on the Seminole baseball team and runs track.

Part of the reason the two teams are built the way they are is the areas in which they are located and recruit. Florida produces a number of great overall athletes, with speed the primary asset. Two of the nation's top running backs, Michigan State's Lorenzo White and Florida's Emmitt Smith, are from Florida, as is the Seminoles' Sammie Smith.

FSU'S JONES READY

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Keith Jones, who ran for a total of 580 yards in his last three games, said an 18-yard performance early in the year was the key to his season.

The Nebraska running back gained 240 yards against Iowa State, 94 yards against Oklahoma and 248 yards against Colorado State as the fifth-rated Cornhuskers completed their regular season with a 10-1 record.

Jones' late-season performance reflected a lesson he learned in the team's second game of the season, against UCLA, when he was benched in the second half after gaining 18 yards on six carries and fumbling twice in the first half.

The 5-foot-10, 180-pound senior is the third-leading rusher in Nebraska history, and said the benching was unsettling, but a learning experience.

"In the game of football, it's a team sport and you can't try to make it out to be an individual thing," he said. "That was definitely the lesson I learned from the UCLA game."

Elliott Burns Duke With 31 Points

United Press International

Sean Elliott of top-ranked Arizona had an answer for Duke's defense and gave it every time the Blue Devils tested him.

Elliott scored 31 points to help the Wildcats to their best start since 1932 as they turned back No. 6 Duke 91-85 for Fiesta Classic championship.

Arizona ran its record to 12-0 with an impressive performance against Duke, 6-1. Arizona had a 15-0 start in 1931-32 but played four non-college teams.

Basketball

"Any time anybody plays passing lanes against us, we tell our guys to use the driving lanes," Arizona Coach Lute Olson said. "That's what Sean did. He drove the gaps."

Elliott made 11 of 21 shots and 7 of 11 free throws and thwarted every Duke defender.

"He's tough, probably as tough as any I've faced," said Duke's Billy King, who often guarded Elliott.

"The shots were just falling down for me tonight," Elliott said. "We just got into a groove and handled it. We've worked hard to get to No. 1. We don't want to give it up yet."

Tom Tolbert scored 19 points and Anthony Cook had 12 for the Wildcats, who led all the way but had to repel numerous Duke

Blazers Survive Bullets

Basketball

United Press International The Portland Trail Blazers stumbled over Eastern Conference midgets while trying to catch a giant in the West.

The Trail Blazers Wednesday night managed to salvage one game on its current road swing against New York, Cleveland and Washington - teams that have a combined 22-56 record.

The Trail Blazers let a 14-point lead in the fourth quarter dwindle to 1 before Jerome Kersey hit two free throws to cap a 30-point performance and Terry Porter made a big defensive play in the final seconds for a 117-112 victory over the Washington Bullets.

"The last couple of nights, we really stunk it up," said Portland's Clyde Drexler, who scored 24 points. "And they were games we thought we should have won."

Said Kersey of the scare: "They got a little bit more aggressive than we did. Their trap caused some turnovers. But at the right time, we got tough and played well at the end."

The Trail Blazers handed the Bullets their third straight loss and swept the two-game season series after winning 120-101 in Portland Nov. 20.

After Portland's Richard Anderson hit one of two free throws, Mark Alarie's tip-in and Moses Malone's two free throws narrowed the lead to 113-112 with 20 seconds remaining. Kersey hit two free throws for a 115-112 lead with 17 seconds to go.

Sun Devils Nip Air Force, 33-28

Football

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) - The anticipation before the Freedom Bowl kickoff centered more on a departing coach than a season-ending football game.

John Cooper did leave Arizona State as pre-supposed Wednesday night, announcing his decision minutes after the Sun Devils defeated Air Force 33-28.

"It's good to go out with a great victory," Cooper said after junior Daniel Ford threw for a career-high 272 yards and Darryl Harris rushed for 93 yards and one touchdown for ASU. "We have some great football players on our team."

Cooper did not initially confirm reports he is headed to Ohio State as Earle Bruce's replacement but the Big Ten school did so in announcing today's noon news conference.

The Sun Devils finished 7-4-1, a year after they won the Pacific-10 title and the Rose Bowl.

"This was a lot of players' last game, a lot of them are seniors," Ford said. "You want to win for him (Cooper) but you also want to win for yourselves. It's a tough thing to go through a coaching change but that's the nature of the game."

Harris' TD came in a 24-point ASU second quarter that erased the Falcons' 7-0 lead. Channing Williams scored from the 23 three seconds into the period. Harris stormed in 3:47 later and Alan Zendejas kicked a 36-yard field goal to make it 17-7.

After the Falcons closed within 17-14 on Albert Booker's 3-yard run, Ford and split end Aaron Cox teamed for a 61-yard scoring play. Zendejas booted a 20-yard field goal in the third quarter and Kirk Wendorf scored from the 20 with 9:44 left.

Ford was 16 of 30 with one interception. Harris carried 13 times in his final college game. The first Air Force TD came on Greg Johnson's 12-yard run. The final two came in the game's final minutes when third-string quarterback Lance McDowell hit Steve Senn with passes of 10 and 18 yards. Outland Trophy winner Chad Hennings had two sacks for the Falcons, who finished 9-4.

"Whether we won or lost, it doesn't matter," Hennings said. "This game is just the icing on the cake for me. Personally speaking, I couldn't be more satisfied."

Air Force played without record-breaker Dee Dowis, who has a fractured wrist. Dowis rushed for 1,315 yards during the regular season, setting an NCAA mark for quarterbacks.

Reserve Steve Letnich, starting for Dowis, was 3 of 9 for 51 yards with two interceptions. He carried 16 times for 90 yards. "I'm really proud of this team," said Air Force Coach Fisher DeBerry. "They were a young group coming into the season. I just wish we had a little more time there at the end of the game.

A crowd of 33,261 attended the game at chilly Anaheim Stadium. There were 10,828 no-shows, many apparently apprehensive about temperatures in the low 40s.

Air Force took a 7-0 lead with 5:18 left in the half when Johnson finished a 72-yard drive with his option run right. Letnich highlighted the march with a 40-yard romp down the right sideline.

ASU tied it three seconds into the second quarter on Williams' 2-yard run up the middle. Sun Devils linebacker Drew Metcalf intercepted a Letnich pass 2-1-2 minutes later and Arizona State had the ball at the Falcons' 20. Three plays later, Harris bolted in from the 2 for a 14-7 ASU advantage.

Zendejas' 36-yard field goal with 4:17 to go in the half pushed the Sun Devils' lead to 17-7, but Air Force closed to 17-14 with 30 seconds to play when Booker capped an 80-yard march with his scoring run.

Air Force did not recover an onside-kick and Ford immediately found Cox, who got behind cornerback Gary Kilmer, for the 61-yard reception down the right sideline.

"The turning point of the game was the last play of the first half," Cooper said. "I didn't call it. You don't get great plays unless you try things."

Zendejas pushed the ASU lead to 27-14 midway through the third quarter when he kicked his 20-yarder.

Auburn Favored In Sugar

Football

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - The No. 4 Syracuse Orangemen, still holding out faint hope that fate might clear a path to the national championship, realize the crown might end up in their minds instead of on their heads even with a Sugar Bowl upset.

Syracuse, 11-0, faces an Auburn team rated lower by two spots but favored by two points in the New Year's Day game.

Auburn, 9-1-1, won the Southeast Conference to earn the bid against Syracuse, one of only three 11-0 major college teams in the country.

The other two - No. 1 Oklahoma and No. 2 Miami - meet in the Orange Bowl, scheduled to start about 90 minutes after the conclusion of the Sugar Bowl, which begins at 3:30 p.m. EST.

The way the Orangemen see it, if they go 12-0 and the Orange Bowl winds up in a tie, they deserve serious consideration for the top spot in the final rankings.

"There have been a number of times in history that an undefeated team has not been the national champion," said Syracuse fullback Daryl Johnston. "If we go 12-0, in our minds we'll be the national champion."

"But, we have no control over who is named national champion," said Robert Drummond, Syracuse's leading rusher. "Whatever we would have a lot of satisfaction being 12-0."

BROWN IN ACCIDENT

DALLAS (UPI) - Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown was involved in an automobile accident Tuesday night that left the car badly damaged but the wide receiver uninjured. Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said today.

"Tim said the whole front end of the car was banged up," Holtz said. "We feel fortunate that it was not serious, whether it was Tim Brown or anybody else."

Brown, who will play for Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl against Texas A&M Friday, attended a Fellowship of Christian Athletes breakfast on schedule early today and told Holtz there should be no concern about him playing in the game.

The accident occurred as Brown was leaving Reunion Arena in downtown Dallas after watching the Dallas Mavericks play basketball Tuesday night. He was driving his car, having spent part of the week at his home in Dallas.

"He said a lady ran a red light or something," Holtz said. "It wasn't his fault. We have a duty officer who makes out a report on everything each day - like how the meals went and if anybody was late for practice or whatever."

"He handed me his report this morning in the lobby of the hotel and when he did he said, 'he's all right.'" goal. Despite facing a Miami defense that can hit with any defensive unit in college football, Oklahoma's only proven receiving threat can't wait for Friday's challenge.

"I thrill playing against great teams," said All-America tight end Keith Jackson. "It tells me how good I am. And the Orange Bowl isn't a routine game. I don't care if we were playing this game in Alaska. I'd be ready for Miami."

HURRICANES LETHAL

MIAMI (UPI) - Arkansas defensive coordinator Fred Goldsmith laughs when he hears the question.

"What's the first thing you do when preparing for the University of Miami's offense," he repeats. "You make sure your real-estate license dues are paid because it might be time to change jobs."

Goldsmith knows how lethal these Hurricanes are. Miami totaled 525 yards offensively in thumping Arkansas 51-7. Miami bettered 500 yards twice this season and 400 three other times.

Still, like any offense, Miami's can be slowed if not completely stopped. There are three keys:

- 1. Blitz if you must, but pressure Steve Walsh.
2. Disguise coverages.
3. Don't allow receivers big gains after the catch.

Quarterback Vinny Testaverde keyed Miami victories over Oklahoma in 1985 and '86. But when the No. 1 Sooners and No. 2 Hurricanes play Friday night's Orange Bowl, Testaverde will be just a bad memory for Oklahoma.

The Sooners will contend with the cerebral Walsh, whose forte is high-percentage passing and avoiding turnovers as opposed to Testaverde's strong-arm, stiff-arm style.

The teams that succeeded most against Walsh were Florida State and South Carolina, who applied steady pressure.

"Get to him, rattle him, that's one thing you should probably do," said Mickey Andrews, Florida State's defensive coordinator. "He doesn't have great mobility and doesn't throw on the run as well as Testaverde. He's a dropback quarterback who doesn't operate as well when he has to step off his back foot."

Teens Getting Hooked On Fishing — Not Drugs

Young Americans across the country are being introduced to a new alternative to drugs. What is this new discovery? ... It's fishing!

The program was started almost a year ago by the Future Fisherman Foundation when they received a letter from teenager Matthew Deakins who said that fishing had helped to keep him away from drugs and he felt fishing could work for others. The Foundation thought Matthew's message was so important that they produced a 30-second public service announcement and 5 minute documentary which has since won three awards.

"Hooked on Fishing—Not On Drugs" is the slogan developed by the Future Fisherman Foundation to capture the attention of the public with the message that fishing is a fun, wholesome activity that can provide our youth with an alternative way to spend their time and release stress. Not only is the program being used by schools, drug prevention programs, sheriff and police departments, service and youth organizations, and state and federal agencies, but it has received recognition from President and Nancy Reagan, Secretary of Interior Don Hodel and Assistant Secretary for Fish, Wildlife and Parks William Horn.

Why is fishing an effective preventative against drug use? The Future Fisherman Foundation provides the following reasons:

- Fishing gives youth a time and place to think things out.
- It provides them with a fun, enjoyable activity.
- Fishing can actually help reduce stress that builds up in the lives of teenagers.
- It's a sport that can be done with friends and family or done alone without feeling lonely.
- Fishing helps generate communication among friends and families, and provides individuals a chance to talk about problems.
- Youths are able to take responsibility for themselves while fishing.
- It provides them an opportunity to contribute toward improving the world around them, especially the world of their family. ● It can be an inexpensive activity. ● Fishing can offer a challenge and prestige among peers.

Rudy Nail, director of organizational development for psychotherapists, says, "Many activities are capable of positively affecting family life, but fishing appears to combine more of the elements needed for a healthy and balanced life."

According to Sharon Coe, the executive director of the Future Fisherman Foundation, the "Hooked On Fishing—Not On Drugs" program is intended to work as a preventative measure to drugs as opposed to strictly a curative method. "If we can provide kids a fun, pleasant activity that they can carry throughout their life, then 'Saying No' to drugs will be an easier process," said Coe.

"The 'Hooked on Fishing—Not On Drugs' 5-minute video is an excellent tool to generate thoughts and questions among students," Coe said.

Freshmen May Carry Load For Penn State

Football

ORLANDO (UPI) — The 1972 Sugar Bowl presented Penn State Coach Joe Paterno with a worst-case scenario that he might be hitting close to home 15 years later.

Running back John Cappelletti, who led the Nittany Lions with 1,117 yards rushing that season, came down with the flu the night before the game and could not play.

"Because he had been so durable all year, we didn't have anybody else ready to play," Paterno said.

Without Cappelletti, who would win the Heisman Trophy the next year, Penn State managed only 49 yards rushing and lost 14-0.

Maybe that's why Paterno has refused to express any concern about the loss of junior running back Blair Thomas, who gained 1,414 yards this season but will sit out the Florida Citrus Bowl against Clemson because of a knee injury.

"It's not as if we don't have anybody ready this year," he said. "We have the two freshmen and Sean Redman is back on the team after straightening out his academic problems."

The freshmen are Gary Brown and Leroy Thompson, who had 62 carries this season compared to Thomas' 268 while Redman had 10 carries for 28 yards before missing five games because of academic trouble.

"They're not freshmen anymore," said Paterno, whose 19th-ranked team averaged 218.5 yards in rushing offense and 158.5 yards in passing offense per game this season. "They've been in some clutch situations and in some tough football games."

Their toughest game could come against 12th-ranked Clemson but the Tigers expect the youngsters to be ready.

"It depends on what kind of athletes they are," Clemson linebacker James Earle said. "Do they have the quickness and do they visualize the field as well as Blair? Experience helps because if you don't have experience, you can make mistakes."

"But a freshman can come in and play as well as a senior, junior or sophomore. You never know what a person can do until you see them play."

Added Clemson Coach Danny Ford, "A lot of times the backup tailback will come in and play a great game so we'll have to be ready for that."

Brown, who is 5-10 and weighs 190 pounds, saw more action than Thompson this season, gaining 273 yards on 42 carries.

CITRUS MATCHUPS
ORLANDO (UPI) — A look at key matchups for Friday's Citrus Bowl between Clemson and Penn State:

Clemson running offense vs. Penn State defense

In the nine games they won this season, the Tigers averaged 279 yards rushing. In the two they lost, they managed only an average of 87.5 yards. Penn State allowed 122 yards rushing per game.

The Nittany Lions were vulnerable to option teams like Alabama (giving up 297 yards on the ground in 24-13 loss) and Syracuse (surrendering 205 yards rushing in 48-21 defeat), however, and Clemson uses an option attack.

Because the Tigers rarely pass, the Penn State front three of Pete Curkendall, Aotua Polamalu and Matt Johnson can think first about stopping the run.

And the Penn State linebackers, thinned by injury during the season, is deep with experience because players like Darryl Washington, Andre Powell and Scott Gob were forced to play.

Penn State's offense is similarly run-oriented, even without injured tailback Blair Thomas, but quarterback Matt Knizner is skillful enough to pass the Lions to victory.

Penn State QB Gary Brown and Leroy Thompson against Clemson defense

Tigers were second-best in nation in run defense, allowing only 80 yards per game, and Brown and Thompson are relatively untried.

The Nittany Lions hope the contrast in styles between the swifter, elusive Brown and the powerful Thompson can be effective.

Penn State center Roger Duffy vs. Clemson nose guard Tony Stephens

At 300 pounds, Stephens is larger than any defensive lineman the 265-pound Duffy has faced. It will be quite a challenge for the sophomore, who took over the starting center job in week three and improved all season, and an important one since Penn State would prefer to establish the run.

Penn State quarterback Matt Knizner vs. Clemson secondary

Knizner struggled at times this season but still completed 113 of 223 passes for 1,478 yards and seven touchdowns, with 12 interceptions.

Clemson's secondary gave up 160 yards passing per game — twice the 80 yards it surrendered on the ground — but managed 17 interceptions. Penn State's offensive line should be able to give Knizner time to throw.

Leon Possesses Potent Offense

By Chris Flister

Herald Sports Writer
ORLANDO — Lake Mary's defense, which has already proven itself as one of the best in the state, will get one of its toughest challenges of the year tonight when the Rams face the prolific offensive attack of Tallahassee Leon's Lions in the championship match of the Pizza Hut Invitational.

The Rams' defense has allowed just two goals in three tournament games and has shut down some pretty potent offensive clubs in Tampa Leto, Lyman and Killian. The ministers of defense for the Rams include seniors Scott

Pizza Hut '87

Schmitt and Rod Bitterling and juniors James Noble, Jim Splcher and Peter Casella. Senior goalkeeper Pete McNally has also been spectacular in the Hut.

"We feel we can hold any team to less than two goals a game," Noble said. "And if we do that we're confident we can win. This is definitely one of the best defenses in the state."

Tallahassee Leon will look to be the first team to crack Lake Mary's defense this season. The Lions have scored 11 goals in three tournament games including a 4-1 victory over Orlando Evans, 3-1 over Daytona Seabreeze and 4-1 over Orange Park.

"There are as many college coaches coming to see Leon as any other team in the tournament," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said.

Sophomore striker Tony Vaughn, who has scored four goals in the last two games, is perhaps as dangerous an offensive threat as there is in the state. Vaughn, 6-1, 160 pounds, and junior Tucker Riordan, 6-3, 170, make up one of the biggest front lines in the state.

a 1 on 1 with McNally but the senior keeper came out and snuffed Blum's shot to preserve the tie.

The Rams then went for the go-ahead goal with 12:11 remaining when Eric Ravndal crossed the ball in front of the cage where Brooks leaped up and headed it over Wright and into the goal.

"One of Killian's fullbacks threw the ball back out and they kept playing like the ball never went in the goal," Brooks said. "But we all knew that it was good and we knew we had it won after that."

Lake Mary's defense then put the finishing touches on the Cougars in the last 10 minutes. Junior James Noble anchored the Rams' defense by all but marking out Blum, one of the state's top offensive players.

"I didn't think about who he was. I just wanted to go out and play my best game," Noble, who played with a sprained knee, said. "The knee was bothering me at first, but once I got into the game, it didn't affect me at all."

"It's been a day by day thing with Noble's knee," McCorkle added. "Right now, I can't ask for a better defensive effort out of him."

In Wednesday's match with Orange Park, Leon broke a 1-1 halftime tie with three unanswered goals in the second 40 minutes. Vaughn led the way with two goals while Riordan and Sean Walker added one apiece. Mike Gurick scored for Orange Park which actually outshot Leon, 17-10.

Lake Howell won its second consecutive consolation bracket game with a 1-0 victory over Orlando Boone Wednesday afternoon. Erik Bird scored the goal for the Hawks who outshot Boone, 13-7. Goalkeeper Joey Schulman recorded the shutout with three saves.

In Wednesday's other consolation bracket game, Tampa Leto fought past inter-city rival Tampa Jesuit, 1-0. Chad Boda's first half goal was the difference for the Falcons.

charges. Arizona made 13 of 14 free throws in the final 2:47 and Elliott capped the victory with a dunk at the buzzer.

Kevin Strickland and Danny Ferry each scored 25 points to lead Duke.

"It was an excellent game for us," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "It will get us ready for that kind of championship pressure. We had a lot of young kids out there and this will help us learn how to respond to the pressure."

In other games involving Top 20 teams, No. 3 North Carolina defeated Nevada-Reno 115-91, No. 5 Wyoming (8-0) defeated Cincinnati 100-73 in the Mile High Classic, No. 9 Florida (7-1) defeated Michigan State 83-59 in the Fiesta Classic, No. 10 Oklahoma (10-0) defeated Illinois State 107-56 in the title game, and No. 15 Iowa defeated Oral Roberts 126-94 in the consolation match of the All College Tournament, No. 18 Georgetown defeated Florida International

M. Perry: No Pressure From 'Fridge'

ORLANDO (UPI) — Michael Dean Perry insists he felt no pressure to match the accomplishments of his brother William.

Yet he gives a small, self-satisfied smile when asked how much breaking some of his brother's records means to him.

"If you have any doubts about what Michael Dean can do, all you have to do is look at me play or look at the film," said Perry, who will anchor the defensive line on Jan. 1 when 12th-ranked Clemson plays No. 19 Penn State in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

At 6-foot-1 and 280 pounds, Michael Dean is not as big as his older brother William "The Refrigerator" Perry, now a famous member of the NFL's Chicago Bears. But his 10 sacks this season gave him 28 in his career and his 24 tackles for losses gave him 61 in that category, both Clemson and Atlantic Coast Conference records.

And both records erased marks of 27 and 60 established by William from 1981 through 1984.

"He didn't say too much about it, just that records are made to be broken," Michael Dean said of his brother. "Some day, the ones I set will be broken too, so you just have to enjoy them while you can."

And Michael Dean has established his records without playing on every down of every game.

"I think it shows," he said. "By rotating all those guys, we have the advantage when it comes to the fourth quarter. And by being fresh, we're able to come at you all the time. When you get a breather and come back in, you're fresh. Since this was my senior season, though, I played a little more than I had in the past because seniors get a little more playing time."

He made the most of it, tying his own single-game records with three sacks against Virginia Tech and with five tackles for 34 yards in losses against North Carolina State, a game in which he had a career-high 13 tackles.

"I know I did the best I could in 1987 and that's what's most satisfying to me later," he said. "All the awards came later."

For his efforts, Perry was named the player of the year in the ACC, only the fifth time a defensive player has earned that honor, was a second-team All-America and was a finalist for Outland Trophy, awarded to the best lineman in the country.

High honors indeed for a person who followed his older brother to Clemson after breaking his left ankle while dunking a volleyball in his high school gym.

78-52, and No. 19 Missouri defeated Alabama St. 129-84 in the Mile High Classic.

At Reno, Nev., Scott Williams scored a career-high 25 points and Ranzino Smith added 18, helping North Carolina roll. The Tar Heels, 8-1, shot 61 percent from the floor in the opening half as they built a 22-point lead. The Wolf Pack, 5-4, could get no closer than 13 points in the second half.

At Denver, reserve Reggie Fox scored 26 points to lead Wyoming. The 6-3 junior guard hit 9 of 10 from the floor and 6 of 6 from the free throw line. Fennis Dembo added 23 points for the Cowboys, 10-0.

Lowell Hamilton scored 16 points to pace five teammates in double figures, leading Illinois, 9-2. Glynn Blackwell added 14 points, Ken Battle 13, Jens Kujawa 11, and Kendall Gill 10. Scott Wilke led all scorers with 21 points for Colorado, 2-7.

At Tucson, Ariz., Vernon Maxwell scored 22 points to lead Florida, 8-2. Wayne Schintzius added 17 points, Pat Lawrence 13 and Ronnie Montgomery 11 for the Gators.

Ditka, Bears Like Playing Role Of Underdog

McMahon To Start For Chicago In Playoffs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Coach Mike Ditka and the Chicago Bears have always been uncomfortable playing the role of the favorite.

They entered the 1986 season as prohibitive favorites after winning the Super Bowl and were eliminated by Washington in the NFC semifinals despite a 14-3 record.

"We're the underdogs, along with possibly Washington, going into this thing and that's okay," Ditka says of this year's NFC playoff field. "Someone is going to have to come through Chicago to get to the Super Bowl."

The Bears, 11-4 during the season and champions of the NFC Central for a fourth straight year, will face either New Orleans or the Redskins Jan. 10 at Soldier Field. Chicago lost to the replacement Saints at Soldier Field in October and haven't faced Washington since the playoff game last January.

The winner will advance to the NFC championship game.

In 1984, the Bears were still an unknown quantity and definitely the underdog when they surpassed Washington in the semifinals before bowing to the eventual Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers.

Football

There were doubters in 1985 and Ditka exploited it to the fullest, making a good team a mean team and directing it to the Super Bowl championship.

During the strike-plagued 1987 season, Chicago started the year as favorites, especially after whipping the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants on the first Monday night of the season.

But successive close calls after the strike to non-playoff clubs like Kansas City, Tampa Bay and Green Bay plus back-to-back losses to San Francisco and Seattle raised major questions about whether this club could advance to the Super Bowl.

"All of this talk about momentum is bull," Ditka says. "It's an eight-team field after Sunday and that's the way we like it. People may not think about the Bears as much and maybe that's a good thing."

In addition to feeling like an underdog, the Bears will have other advantages they have lacked during most of the season.

Injury-plagued quarterback Jim McMahon will start the playoffs for the Bears after missing the final three games of the regular season with a pulled hamstring.

"It's not quite 100 percent but it will be good enough. Maybe if we run the ball well enough I won't have to worry about it and I'll be able to hand off and sit in the shotgun," said McMahon, who missed last year's playoffs after shoulder surgery.

In addition, former all-pro offensive tackle Jimbo Covert, considered the key to the Bears' pass protection, should be healthy for the playoffs.

The defense, the key to Chicago's Super Bowl triumph two years ago, gave up 76 points in the December back-to-back losses.

'Showtime' For Oilers' Secondary Vs. Largent

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers cornerback Patrick Allen and Steve Brown have drawn one of the toughest assignments for Sunday's AFC wild-card playoff game against Seattle.

The two defensive backs must guard Steve Largent, the NFL's all-time leading pass receiver.

"This is showtime," said Allen, who intercepted one pass and has allowed only one touchdown pass against him in two seasons. "It's where every professional athlete wants to be. It's what you live for in sports... a chance to cover a great receiver like Steve Largent on national television. He's a record-holder, a perfectionist. He's been around for so long, and he still displays great heart and dedication. It's something you dream about."

"People say he's slow, but the first 10 or 20 yards off the line, he's as fast as anyone... He does more in those first 20 yards than anyone I've seen. Defensive backs who don't respect that get beat every week."

Largent, who has caught a pass in 152 consecutive games, caught six last Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs to increase his career reception total to 752, surpassing Charlie Joiner's record of 750. Largent also has eight consecutive 1,000-yard seasons.

"He's a great receiver," said Brown, who has intercepted two passes this season. "But I cover great receivers every day — Jerry Rice, Eddie Brown, and the receivers on this team. He's very intelligent, and reads defenses like the drop of a dime. Also with (RB Curt) Warner out, I'm sure they'll throw the ball more, and (QB Dave) Kreig looks for him."

"Sure, there are receivers I'd rather face than him, but it's in my contract that I have to cover whoever lines up across from me. Personally, I'd rather cover some high school receiver, instead of someone who's written a book on receiving."

Largent, who caught 58 passes for 912 yards and eight touchdowns this season and will start in the Pro Bowl, has respect for the Oilers' defense, which led the league by limiting opponents to 32.3 percent of third-down conversions.

"I think that what we have to do is coordinate timing with the quarterback," Largent said. "If I'm open, it won't be for very long. I'll have to be able to shake loose from those guys. They're a very aggressive bunch. They play the kind of football we need to instill among ourselves."

GIBBS 'OUT FEELING'

HERNDON, Va. (UPI) — Guided by a "gut feeling," Coach Joe Gibbs has installed Doug Williams as the Washington Redskins quarterback for the playoffs, a move Williams said could have a lot of meaning for the black community.

Gibbs met with Williams after a late afternoon practice Wednesday and told him he would start over Jay Schroeder, the 1986 Pro Bowl performer who has struggled this season.

Gibbs said Williams, 32, earned the job over Schroeder, 28, with his performance off the bench in Saturday's 27-24 overtime victory over Minnesota in the regular-season finale. Williams, known for his strong arm and poise under pressure, rallied the Redskins to 20 points in 24 minutes in producing his third relief victory of the season.

"I wanted to go with Doug to give us a lift and get us going," Gibbs said Wednesday evening.

'Eureka' Gives Way To 'Eu...Ree...Ka'

By LARRY DOYLE UPI Science Writer

At a scientific meeting in Boston at the beginning of December, a physicist announced he had found a new material that showed signs of superconductivity at temperatures as high as 538 degrees Fahrenheit.

This was nearly 1,000 degrees hotter than was even imaginable a year ago.

A material like this, if it could be isolated and made useful, could make energy costs trivial. It could make supercomputers smaller than a bread box. It could make floating trains faster than a speeding bullet.

But scientists who attended the meeting were not particularly impressed.

"It was interesting," says Edward Engler, director of materials research at IBM Almaden Research Center in San Jose, Calif.

Interesting? 535 degrees F? "There's a feeling that there's a lot of these reports and there has to be some skepticism about new developments."

This from a man who didn't leave his lab because he was so excited and didn't see his children for six weeks after Paul Chu from the University of Houston unveiled a ceramic that loses all resistance to electric flow at minus 284 F? That was only in February.

"February was a unique experience in science," Engler says. "I enjoyed it very much. It was an exciting time. But I certainly hope I don't have to live through that again."

It has been a rough, wild ride for physicists this year. The discovery of this new class of materials — inexpensively cooled ceramics that carry electricity like greased lightning — has brought with it a flurry of research endeavors so brusque and bullying as to jar the traditional scientific method.

Publication and review of results has given way to preliminary findings read at hastily called meetings, with subsequent criticism often coming under glaring media lights rather than in cooler academic circles.

"I was a little hurt by the response of some of my colleagues," says Ahmet Erbil, who announced the 535 F finding Dec. 2 at a meeting of the Materials Research Society. The assistant professor of physics at Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta says he was surprised that some of the scientists who jammed the room where he made his presentation then made very unflattering comments to reporters in attendance.

"I expected a healthy scientific skepticism," Erbil says. "And mostly, it was encouraging. But some of my colleagues, even without looking at my data, just rejected it on the face of it."

Arthur Freeman, a physicist from Northwestern University in Chicago, was one of the healthy skeptics. But he says he understands the other reaction as well.

"People have been so afraid of not getting proper recognition and credit for discoveries that there has been a tendency to report things too early," Freeman says. "People are reacting to that. We've been burned before."

Freeman, and others, also point out that ceramic created by Chu remains the only one that has held up to the hard tests: it is completely superconducting; it is stable; and it can be reproduced. These other materials give scintillating hints of better things to come, but hints they are.

"At this moment that there is no experimental evidence to exclude the possibility of room-temperature superconductivity," Chu himself says. "But that is in the future. And now I think we need to be more cautious."

In the meantime, scientists are discovering Thomas Edison was right: Genius is 1 percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration.

"We've had our 'Eureka'!" Freeman says. "I think what you're going to be seeing now is 'eu...ree...ka.'"

"The euphoria of the early days, the projections, the feeling that the sky's the limit, has been tempered by some realization that now comes some hard work."

The hard work is to make Chu's materials workable. These ceramics — composed of copper, barium, yttrium and oxygen — are naturally brittle and carry little current. To be practical, they should be neither.

"There was a very brief period of euphoria when people thought everything would be very straightforward, and it didn't turn out that way," says Donald W. Murphy, head of solid state chemistry and ceramics at AT&T Bell Labs in Murray Hill, N.J.

"But we are making progress," Murphy says. "Perhaps not as quickly as some people thought, but about what I expected."

"The excitement is still there, but it's a more controlled sort that comes from people coming to grips with the hard issues," he says. "Bit by bit, bit by bit, we're coming along, and we're getting there."

In one area, however, the scientists continue to fumble about, finding themselves in a state similar to the hapless public, which has had to struggle with articles spiced with terms describing such arcane notions as critical fields, Meissner effects and degrees Kelvin.

"The thing is, we're still not any closer to understanding what's going on here," Murphy says. "We don't have a good theory to explain why we are finding this phenomenon. We don't necessarily need one to make it work, but it would be nice to have one."

Officials: Collider Investment Paid Off

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida's hasty, $1.7 billion effort to snare the world's biggest science facility wasn't a total loss, state officials say.

Florida was not among the eight states named as finalists in the bidding for the $6 billion superconducting super collider. But officials say Florida emerged as a stronger contender for a slice of the national research and development budget.

"It puts us out there in the arena of states applying for projects like this, and it qualifies us as a serious contender for major federal projects down the road," said Chris Harris, spokesman for the state Department of Commerce.

One such project is Sematech, a $1.5 billion cooperative research venture between the federal government and a consortium of semi-conductor manufacturers, Harris said. Florida was recently named one of 12 finalists in the bidding for the project.

The Sematech decision is expected next week. The Legislature has already agreed to build a $35 million facility at the University of South Florida in Tampa should Florida win the contract. The Board of Regents has designated USF the state university system's "center of excellence" for micro-electronics.

"We stand a very strong chance of getting that one," Harris said.

The superconducting super collider would be the world's largest scientific facility, a tunnel 50 miles in circumference in which sub-atomic particles called protons would be accelerated by high-powered magnets nearly to the speed of light, then smashed into each other to form other sub-atomic particles.

From those experiments, scientists hope to discover the origins of the universe. The research also could be applied to such technologies as nuclear medicine, microchips and super computers.

Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Texas and Tennessee were on the short list of finalists released Tuesday by the National Academy of Sciences.

The list is the first step in the selection process. The Energy Department will review the academy's list and release its own — likely with the same states — next month.

But Florida does not expect it will somehow win the project after all. "We don't think they'll add any more states" to the list of contenders, Harris said.

Twenty-four states submitted proposals for the super collider. Florida got into the race this year, proposing to build the facility in Nassau County, after President Reagan announced he was committed to the project.

The Legislature gave the Commerce Department $1.94 million to pursue the project. Harris said $200,000 was left over and will be returned to the state General Revenue Fund.

Martinez Sees 1988 As Year To Focus On Philosophies

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez hopes to live down a disastrous first year in office by adhering faithfully to the conservative, small-government philosophy he believes got him elected.

Relaxed, confident and cheerful in a recent interview, Martinez admits his early support for the ill-fated services tax was a "mistake" that got him off to a rocky start, especially with conservative Republicans.

But he dismisses his troubles as routine for a new governor. "Never mind the line of Democratic and Republican challengers already forming for 1990, when Martinez faces reelection."

Martinez enters the second year of his administration without the staffers blamed by conservatives for luring Martinez into the tax quagmire, and whose inexperience tripped him up at critical moments in his first year.

Now, Martinez plans to forge ahead in 1988 with a program of fiscal and bureaucratic reform. "You end up being judged on a four-year cycle by a series of actions or inactions, of which this (the services tax) obviously was one. But there will be more," he says.

"It's always been easier to engage in the debate that got you elected here than taking hold of a problem and bringing it to a resolution, or getting it done. There's a heck of a difference between perception and reality."

"At the same time, there's the good side. When you get elected you get to live in the (governor's) mansion. You can't imagine how nice it is until you get there. So it cuts both ways."

Martinez makes it clear he has learned his lesson and plans no major new tax increases in 1988. But new impact fees for developers are possible, as are cutbacks in some state programs.

Martinez must spell out his plans in his proposed budget for fiscal year 1988-89, which is due in February.

He declines to offer many details, but promises to challenge the assumptions that have long been used in drafting state budgets. For example, he opposes "continuation" budgets, which presume agencies will operate with at least the same funding from year to year.

His basic complaint is that state leaders squander money by throwing too little at too many problems to really solve any of them, practices that are not tolerated in his vision of government.

"I just can't accept the way it's been," Martinez says. "I may find out the forces are just too strong to bring about that kind of change, but I've got to find out. I just can't accept somebody else's word that. That's been tried. It doesn't work."

To succeed, he must overcome the overt contempt of powerful Tallahassee insiders, including several Republicans. He outraged virtually every political interest in the state at one point or another during the year.

His first step will be to replace his own inner circle. Chief of Staff J.M. "Mac" Stipanovich resigned because he had become a "lightning rod" for criticism. Budget aide Glenn Robertson, criticized as a holdover from the Democratic administration, and press secretary Susan Traylor, blamed for her lack of tact, are also gone.

Martinez says he will appoint their replacements early in the new year. In the meantime, he is handling housekeeping chores himself.

State Republican Party leaders say Martinez' selection of their replacements will be pivotal to his hopes for reurrecting his young administration.

"I think he was incredibly naive when he went to Tallahassee," says Tommy Thomas, state patronage chief for President Reagan. "It was not a good year for the governor, but he can recover. A lot of it depends on who he hires to replace Mac Stipanovich, Robertson and Susan."

The governor's relations with the Legislature have shown signs of thawing.

House Speaker Jon Mills and Senate President John Vogt recently have been receptive to Martinez' arguments that lawmakers should be subject to the governor's line-item veto by stashing home-town projects in the operating budgets of important state programs.

They also agreed to apply the line-item veto to the new $550 million Infrastructure Trust Fund for building projects. Martinez trumpets the concession, although some lawmakers point out he likely had the authority anyway under a recent ruling by the Florida Supreme Court.

But Martinez' hopes for a fundamental re-evaluation of the budget process could flounder unless he learns how to work with the Legislature.

"Getting along doesn't mean buddy-buddy," says Mills. "It means establishing a working relationship. One definitely needs to establish that."

But establishing such a relationship will require extra work for Martinez to overcome the strident detractors in both parties, within government and outside.

His support for the services tax led some conservative Republicans to brand the governor as a Democrat in GOP clothing. Thomas openly suggested as much, noting Martinez was a Democrat until 1983.

While applauding his repeal of the tax, Republicans were irked when Martinez pushed a penny increase in the sales tax on goods to prevent deep budget cuts. The increase moves the sales tax rate to 6 cents on the dollar and raises about as much as the services tax — more than $1 billion.

Rep. Tom Woodruff, R-Clearwater, complains the public was "hoodwinked" by "mugwump heroes" in the deal to repeal the unpopular levy and replace it with the higher sales tax.

"The public should rise up and rebel against the games being played in Tallahassee," he fumed in a letter to the St. Petersburg Times.

Martinez conceded that his campaign pledge to cut $800 million in waste from the state budget — which primed the public for less, rather than more, spending — was based on general assumptions instead of a review of the budget. Voters felt betrayed when a governor who said he would cut state spending became a champion for higher taxes.

His popularity sank deeper when several weeks of indecision on remedying the sales tax debate ended with the abrupt turn-around. As late as Sept. 15, Martinez supported the tax, arguing, "I'll only be governor for so long, but I'll always be a Floridian."

Three days later he said the whole thing had been a ghastly mistake and, "We must wipe the slate clean and begin again."

Taking Life A Day At A Time Is Good Pace For New Year

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character. I hope you will run it every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

Dear Abby

NEVER TOO OLD
DEAR NEVER: My "resolutions" column has become an established annual tradition:

DEAR READERS: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own: Just for today I will live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appeal me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will correct those things that I can correct and accept those things I cannot correct.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to quit. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise—even if it's only walking around the block or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as good as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll improve anybody except myself.

Just for today, I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what is right and take the responsibility for my own actions. I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace!

LOVE, ABBY

P.S. If you are driving tonight, don't drink. And if you're drinking, please don't drive.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you stated that the Great American Smokeyout was conceived by the American Cancer Society. Wrong! It was started in 1974 by Lynn Smith, a Monticello, Minn., newspaper editor. Since then, both the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society have become co-sponsors, encouraging smokers to kick the habit for at least 24 hours. Please give credit where credit is due. Thank you.

JANET GROWES, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR JANET: Mea maxima culpa, which makes me to the limit of my mea culpas for 1987.
