"I think we have done a good job of closing loopholes which have been used to abuse the law," said Judiciary-Civil Chairman Sen. Mattox Hair, DJacksonville.

He said he expected opposition to some of the proposed changes to current practices but felt the bill stood a good chance of passing. The measure would also eliminate all write-in candidates but make it easier for persons to qualify by the petition method. This would be done by dropping the number of signatures needed from the current 5 per cent in some cases to 3 per cent of the electors in the political unit the candidate wants to represent.

Following the meeting, Layer said he had presented Kelley with copies of three engineering eports, including Teague, Idyllwilde and Lake Howell, and instructed him to meet with principals of three schools to arrive at possible solutions and report their findings to the board by April 11.

Though Layer, in effect, barred the public from the meeting, Bross said at least two voting members of the school board would have had to be in attendance before a violation of state law could be acted on by the five-man board. An engineer's report released Lot week by Robert M. Stafford, president of Robert M. Stafford, Inc., a Charlotte, N.C. engineering firm, stated that sections of Teague Middle School, Lake Howell High School, Forest City and Idyllwilde Elementary Schools may become unsuitable for occupancy during the rainy season. Stafford said that the repairs made to date by the school board will not be sufficient to keep the buildings watertight.

In a slide presentation to the board Wednesday night by Teague Middle School teachers, it was learned that there are approximately 50 active roof leaks at Teague. Approximately 600 feet of ceiling tile and insulation, which became waterladen, have been removed.

Sue O'Hara, a teacher at Teague, stated, "The condition of the school is destroying the attitude and respect of the children. The removal of the ceiling tiles have caused drafts on the students." Last week, the board unanimously approved a

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

It's A 'Bittersweet Ending' For Dead Flyer's Parents

SATELLITE BEACH (AP) - Edward Wynne says the news that his son's body was among 11 U.S. servicemen returned by the Vietnamese is a bittersweet ending to 11 years of waiting endured by him and his wife.

"We're taking the news with mixed emotion," Wynne told the Associated Press in a telephone interview. "It's kind of a relief after all this time, but there's a lot of sadness in knowing."

The Pentagon reported Thursday that the body of his son, Lt. Patrick E. Wynne, was returned in a casket the Vietnamese identified as the remains of Capt. Lawrence H. Golberg of Colquet, Minn.

Wynne was aboard a F4C Phantom jet piloted by Golberg when it was shot down Aug. 8, 1966. Both men were carried as missing in action. Wynne's status was changed on May 28, 1974 to presumed dead.

'Divorce Kits' Spark Charges

JACKSONVILLE (AP) - Rosemary Furman sells do-it-yourself divorce kits and operates a secretarial service that will type them for a fee, but she says the Florida Bar Association is wrong in claiming she practiced law without a license.

The bar association has asked the Florida Supreme Court to issue an injunction stopping her from the unauthorized practice of law. Mrs. Furman has been ordered to show cause by April 4 why she should not be enjoined. She said Thursday that no legal advice is given by her Northside Secretarial Service and she will ask the Supreme Court to dismiss the charges.

Boyfriend Faces Kidnap Rap

JACKSONVILLE (AP) - It was a case of a poor boy in love with a rich girl and rejected by her influential parents, said a lawyer appointed for Michael Wayne Wingfield, 18, charged with kidnaping his former sweetheart.

The attorney gave Wingfield's side of the case to U.S. Magistrate Harvey Schlesinger at a bond hearing late Thursday. The youth was put under $100, 000 bond and agreed to be returned to Roanoke, Va.

Earlier in the day, Rebecca Lynn Prillman, 17, appeared at a Jacksonville police substation and told an officer she had been abducted from her home town, Collinsville, Va., at gunpoint Tuesday night.

Wayne Albert, chairman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Commercial Committee, has appealed to merchant groups in the city to combine their efforts to work through the committee to promote the city as a whole. Albert said he has talked to the heads of both the Downtown Business Association and the Sanford Plaza Merchants Assn. The general consensus, he said, is: "Let's get together and quit fighting." Both groups have been sending representatives to the commercial committee meetings, Albert said. "Traditionally, we have had all these separate groups competing, but it is much more effective with city-wide promotion," Albert said, adding, "there would still be friendly competition."

patients. Dr. William Wilhoit, 56, was released on a $10,000 personal surety bond after surrendering to Escambia County officals Thursday. Wilhoit, the former president of the Florida Association of Mental Health, was charged with sexual battery by an Escambia County grand jury. "I was shocked by the first indictment, so I'm numb now," Wilhoit said on his way into the jail. "I learned of the new charges when my attorney called." He was charged in the first indictment with sexu battery and perjury.

Officials said the new charges involve three women, aged 25, 40 and 60. The women claim they were placed under medication and then raped.

Channel Switch By TV Indicated

Advertisers invested $6.5 billion in television commercials last year, which suggests they have great faith in the power of that medium to influence human behavior. It's our behavior in the marketplace, of course, that businessmen want to influence.

But what about other behavior? An organization called Action for Children's Television estimates that by the time a modern child graduates from high school, he or she will have seen 13,000 to 18,000 murders committed on the shows that come in between the commercial messages.

Psychologists disagree about whether the heavy diet of mayhem in television dramas is harming children or affecting society at large. Dr. Robert M. Kaplan of San Diego (Calif.) State University says a link between television violence and aggressive behavior cannot be proved. Others point to actual crimes committed by young people copying what they had seen on televison. Common sense, however, makes it hard to reject the idea that attitudes of children, if not their immediate behavior, can be affected by what they see depicted in dramas purporting to reflect reality.

This has made television violence a public issue - and a difficult one. Urging parents to monitor viewing habits of their children more closely is fine, as far as it goes. How many parents are willing and able to assume the duty of that kind of family censorship? Because the airwaves are subject to government regulation, the temptation is to demand that the Federal Communications Commission impose program standards limiting the depiction of violence.

The FCC got its wrist slapped in court, however, when it enlisted the networks in support of a "family hour" aimed at keeping shows with a strong dose of sex or violence off the air before 9 p.m. We would agree that federal regulatory power is the wrong solution, even if the principle of the family hour is a good one.

Networks, stations and advertisers should be the decision makers about television program content. They are certainly aware of the potential public backlash when programs violate standards of taste and decency and arouse serious questions about psychological harm to children. In fact, they now face an organized effort by the American Medical Association and the National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting to bring public pressure on businesses to be more mindful of the quality of the shows they sponsor.

This kind of "boycott" activity does not sit well with producers, directors and writers who would defend their artistic freedom. The line has to be drawn, however, between elements of violence that are often necessary for dramatic impact in telling a story, and the catering to an appetite for shock for the sake of high audience ratings.

Norman Corwin, a pioneer in broadcast drama, puts it this way: "It is the duty of mass communications, which are the most powerful educators of all, to lead more than to follow: to mold higher tastes, and not pander to the lowest."

Travel Ban Ends

Human beings ought to be allowed to travel to any place on the globe (provided property owners grant admittance) without restrictions by political authorities.

That said, President Carter's action to lift travel bans on U.S. citizens' visits to Cuba, Vietnam and North Korea can be seen as something more than an enlightened acknowledgement of a rather silly bureaucratic impediment to global intercourse. To be sure, the passport bans didn't prevent people who were determined to visit politically hostile nations from doing so. And we lose no tactical ground against political enemies by terminating the restrictions: if the zealots who trooped off to Hanoi during the war could go where they wanted with the ban, nothing is to stop patriots from traveling to hostile countries without the ban.

Still, the president's action probably presages something more, something more dubious, than a recognition of the peoples' freedom to move across borders. Probably Jimmy Carter's pronouncement is intended to warm up to the eventual restoration of diplomatic relations with these hostile nations. That could mean more trade, which could be healthy.

Now that Datsun finally has the go ahead to locate its dealership in Spring Hammock in spite of objections from conservationists, Councilman June Lormann has her eye on it.

When she inquired about annexing the property into the city of Longwood at this week's council session whether the owner requested it or not, she was told by City Attorney Ned Julian it would be unconstitutional as the tract is not contiguous with present city limits.

Asked why she was so eager to annex the property, Mrs. Lormann replied: "If we don't Sanford's going to."

Council Chairman J.R. Grant suggested that potential applicants are scared away by the city's "terrible fee" - $200 for annexation request and $200 for zoning change request. The annexation fee is on next week's agenda and if Grant has his way it will be cut out entirely.

RONALD REAGAN Poverty War Near Victory It may come as a bitter blow to aging campu radicals, urban poverty barons, media liberals and politicized clergymen, but it now appears that we are on the verge of actually winning the war on poverty.

Whether or not we will depends on the outcome of an obscure battle being waged in Washington over statistics.

If one side wins, those used to believing the liberal notion that the poverty problem is getting worse will be in for an upbeat surprise. If the other side wins, Washington would bestow "instant poverty" on about 6.5 million more in the U.S. than now fall into that category. It all goes back to 1964 when then-President Lyndon Johnson's task force drawing up plans to fight a "war" on poverty set out to define the word. They turned to Mollie Orshansky, a Social Security Administration statistician recognized in government circles as an authority on the subject

Crooms Holds 'Career Day'

Approximately 145 students at Crooms High School participated Thursday in a "Career Day for Special Education" program designed to acquaint them with various occupations.

John G. Dimitry, work-study coordinator for exceptional children, said students were divided into three groups and instructed to attend the occupational speech of their choice. Speakers and their topics included Roy Wright, car and truck maintenance; Ruth Long, library and book binding; Charlotte Whitmore, foods; Allen Bush, city government; Margaret Jones, clothing construction; Joe Williams, furniture and upholstery; Reggie Brown, ornamental horticulture and Barbara Ruprecht, child care.

Dimitry explained that although the school's curriculum is largely vocationally oriented, this was the first time that speakers had been brought in from the community. - STEVE DAVIS

Scattershot Confusion

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball is reaping the penalty of its past ins - arrogance, complacency and obstinacy. "Thirty-five years ago we tried to get some concessions on the eserve clause," Bob Feller, the Cleveland Hall of Famer, ommented recently in surveying the hectic state of the game. The owners were too stiff-necked. They refused to bend.

"If they had given a little bit then, they wouldn't have all the roubles they're having today." For almost a century baseball operated a virtual sweat shop, with a wink from the Supreme Court. There were good times for a selected few -- the Babe Ruths and the Joe DiMaggios - but the undreds of average players lived in a state of peonage. They took the salary their bosses offered them or never got a uniform. They had no recourse. They were the property of the hub for life unless traded or sold. They had no voice in where they

The chemistry of cham- and more, with the biggest pionship teams - such as the world champion Reds and the crowd to ever watch boxing in peratures from December through February put the quietus on American League champion New York Yankees - has been shaken up, possibly boding leaner times.

Prevailing friction surfaces among the owners, the two leagues, National and American, are too proud to work together or adopt a ingle code. ERA Supporters Stream Into Florida

By JEAN PATTESON Women's Editor

"The eyes of the nation are on Florida. Women have been holding their breath for 200 years for this moment." The speaker is fragile, feminine actress Joan Hackett. She was in Orlando Wednesday speaking on behalf of the Equal Rights amendment (ERA) and urging women and men to "write, write, write" to their legislators.

"They can't know what you want, unless you tell them," she old women at an ERA Strategy Update luncheon sponsored by NOW (National Organization for Women) at the Kahler Plaza

The Florida legislature is expected to vote on the ERA in April, and the outcome of that vote still hangs in the balance. "Florida's IT," stressed Ms. Hackett. "It's the key state in tting this amendment made part of the Constitution. "If the ERA goes down in Florida," she predicted, "the anger

Ms. Hackett said she had never been a "political" person, and that she had been following ERA progress "as closely as any

When she was contacted by NOW and asked to give public support to the ERA in Florida, she replied "they could have me immediately for whatever they wanted for 48 hours". Ms. Hackett accompanied feminist Gloria Steinem to Tampa, Tuesday, and continued on alone to Orlando, Wednesday. She said that in the future she will be available "any time, any place" to speak on the ERA issue.

"There's no way it's possible to be a woman and not be aware of a feeling like second class citizen," she said. "It's like a climate; the feeling surrounds you like the air around you." She explained that "almost every man I ever met in the movie industry is totally misogomistic." She said that even making it to the top in the movies was no guarantee that a woman would earn the same equality of treatment or respect as male actors. "This is the simplest one-sentence amendment in the whole constitution," she said. "One has to question the motives of the opposition who are totally neurotic about homosexuality and unisex bathrooms. The amendment mentions neither." Ms. Hackett said the amendment dealt not with sexuality, but with gender. She will be followed shortly by a stream of equal rights supporters invited to Florida to speak on behalf of the ERA, including Ms. Steinem and television star Valerie Harper. Ms. Hackett will be seen in "The Possessed," an upcoming NBC Movie of the Week. Other recent successes include starring roles in "The Terminal Man" and "The Last of Sheila."

Jesus said, "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples (followers) because you love one another." (John 13:35) I would like to share with you what I believe is the greatest need in the church (a called out group of people) today. Jesus, who is the founder and builder of this church, put it rather succinctly when He said that would be an expression of love one to another that would distinguish His followers from the majority of humanity. This distinguishing quality would affect all of humanity, but its beginning point would be the family of God.

I believe it's very important that we have a clear Biblical understanding of just who composes the family of God. To me it's very exciting to realize that God has a family! Now, I believe I'm on safe ground to say from a Biblical standpoint that when one is born physically, it does not make him or her a member of the family of which I am speaking. To be a bonafide member of God's eternal family (according to the Bible) one must be BORN AGAIN (John 3:7). In other words, it's possible to be alive physically but to be DEAD spiritually (Ephesians 2:1). So, my remarks are to those who are ALIVE to what God is doing in the world TODAY.

Has this thought ever occurred to you: What is God doing in the world today? Is He just trying to get a small group of people to become His followers so that He won't be lonely in Heaven? think not! God's purpose in this epoch of time is to gather out of every tribe, tongue and nationality a people that will express God's love to a world void of spiritual light. Jesus said His followers would be the "light of the world," and I'm of the persuasion as the world situation becomes darker and darker that the TRUE light will become brigher and brighter.

I believe one of the ways God is going to bring this to pass is by answering Jesus' High Priestly prayer of John 17. Jesus shocking doubt and disabling prayed that His followers should be one even as He and the Father fears, torment that shatters are One. The reason for this prayer is clearly stated, "that the lives. Our lostness can be world may believe that Thou hast sent me" (Verse 21).

It grieves my heart when I hear radio ministers making dulgent, selfish wasteland, derogatory remarks about another minister or denomination. It grieves me when any denomination or group of people claims to have a special revelation from God, and if you don't become a nember of their group, you're not part of the family. I think it's about time the family lay aside their differences and unite under the Lordship of Jesus to give the world a true expression of God's love.

Tax collectors have a reputation for giving headaches to others - but now the tables are reversed for Seminole County Tax Collector Troy Ray.

Ray is distressed that all is not well with the loudly ballyhooed alpha-numeric permanent license scheduled to go on sale July 1. or the computer network that was supposed to connect his Seminole office with agencies in the capital. Unless the $593,000 deleted from the state budget is restored by the legislative subcommittee in the next two weeks, the work put into coding registrations for data processing by the Department of Motor Vehicles last year will be for naught. The state legislature had decreed that use of permanent tags with three letters and three numerals would go into effect this summer, but has failed to appropriate enough money to make the new plates. Therefore, Ray says Seminole's consignment of the alpha-numeric plate will be for out-of-state transfers and firsttime registrations only.

For other car owners, it will be just another serialized decal when their birth month rolls around. As if things weren't bad enough, Ray says he is running out of change. the present-style tags because the state stopped making them in anticipation of the changeover. He estimates that autos It is this way all over the state, according to Ray. He says he has been instructed twice to supply Orange County with tags - but has been unable to do so. Ray says he may have to start issuing the few alpha-numeric plates he does have ahead of time as he will not have anything else to issue. The Department of Motor Vehicles would prefer not to issue any of the new tags until there are enough for everyone, he explains. The advantage of the alpha-numeric concept, Ray points out, is its simplicity and numerous possibilities. . . "There are 26 million possible combinations using three letters and three numbers." The tag is issued to the owner indefinitely and transferred to his next car.

Seminole County had been selected as one of the 12-14 counties to be initially provided with terminals to institute the communication network, which is a must in the new tag renewal system, according to Ray. "We would have had advance knowledge and experience," he laments. "It cost the counties untold thousands of dollars to build the data bank and it was a tremendous clerical task with 1,000 e ployes required to attend classes to train for it." Ray says. All registrations were staggered as to birth dates and cost of the validation stickers and tags pro-rated in anticipation of the
