The services will be held at the Central Baptist Church, 3101 West First Street in Sanford. This year's event is being planned by SHS Senior Sondra Miller, who also serves as secretary for the senior class. Miss Miller said, "The services will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 11, at the church. We would like all the seniors to wear their caps and gowns to the program." All SHS graduating seniors and their families are invited to attend.

Geneva citizens to meet

GENEVA — A special meeting of the Geneva Citizens Association has been called for today at 7:30 p.m. Officials from Seminole Community College will discuss plans to use land next to the county dump on Osceola Road for a training facility for law enforcement, firefighters and emergency medical technicians. Also, county officials will present information on the proposed 10-year, one-cent sales tax increase to finance road construction.

Lotto split in half

TALLAHASSEE — This week's $6 million Lotto jackpot will be split between the holders of two winning tickets. Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said Sunday. Tickets with all six numbers drawn Saturday night were purchased in Boca Raton and St. Petersburg. The winning numbers were 10-24-32-37-45-47. By picking five of those numbers, the holders of 149 tickets will win $5,500. There are 9,359 tickets worth $128 because they have four numbers and 182,880 tickets worth $6 because they have three numbers. Next week's jackpot has been estimated at $6 million.

'Land it safely, please'

Columbia's crew 'thrilled' with wakeup call from home

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Columbia's astronauts, apparently satisfied with NASA's plan to forgo a spacewalk to make cargo bay repairs, conducted more medical tests in orbit Sunday and enjoyed taped messages from home.

From James Baglan's daughter, Krista, 6, came this news: "Wait 'til I tell you the story at home when my second tooth fell out. You'll really like it. I love you. Bye."

From pilot Sidney Gutierrez' son, David, 7, came praise: "You're doing great! Have a happy landing."

Tom O'Connor, 20, offered advice.

"It's a great Sunday when the kids can wake you up and you can head off to work right away."

— Bryan O'Connor, Shuttle Commander

His father, shuttle commander Bryan O'Connor, initially expressed reservations about NASA's decision not to interrupt the crew's laboratory experiments for an emergency spacewalk to fix a loose seal in the payload bay. The commander's concerns seemed to ease

Saturday night after he reviewed test results that showed the seal would pose no problem on landing day Friday.

"You know for that problem in the payload bay?" Tom O'Connor asked. "I think there's something in the glove compartment that might fix that. You might want to check that."

"So love you and take care. Land it safely, please, all right?"

The commander was worried the protruding rubber strip on the rim of the rear cargo bay might prevent the cargo bay doors from closing properly at the end of the nine-day flight. The ship could burn up during the fiery plunge to Earth if the doors do not shut tightly.

Inaugural flight

44 take off on Paradise Island tour

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The first daily flight to Paradise Island in the Bahamas left the Central Florida Regional Airport this morning at 8:15 a.m. Forty-four passengers were aboard the 4-engine DeHavilland Dash-7 for today's flight. A number of local officials were on hand to observe the inaugural event.

A ribbon cutting ceremony marked the beginning of the event. Philip Mortimer, Southeast Regional Director of the Bahamian Ministry of Tourism cut the dedication ribbon shortly before 8 a.m., assisted by Steve Cooke, Director of Aviation at the Central Florida Regional Airport. Cooke participated on behalf of the Sanford Airport Authority. Mortimer expressed his pleasure at welcoming Sanford to the ever-increasing number of cities with regular flight service to the Bahamas. He also commented about the attractiveness of the terminal, now nearly finished following a major refurbishing project.

Cooke said "Most of the people on this first flight were travel agents from around the area who get the flight as a travel incentive." Today's flight will leave Paradise Island on the return trip at 4 p.m.

Beginning tomorrow, return flights will begin several hours later, and arrive in Sanford at 8:40 p.m.

For approximately an hour, the Sanford terminal building looked like most other terminals at major airports around the country. The parking lot was full of cars, the terminal was packed with people carrying their luggage, a continental breakfast was being served, customs agents were checking passengers through the gates, and eventually, a call on the intercom. "Last call for the flight to Paradise Island, all passengers please board now." A driver who had brought some of the passengers to the terminal commented, "This is just like the big time."

The white, blue and yellow high-wing aircraft, capable of handling up to 50 passengers, will be making the round trip each day, leaving Sanford in the morning and returning in the evening. It will be housed overnight at the Central Florida Regional Airport. The flights are non-stop to Paradise Island, owned by TV star Merv Griffin. The vacation island has hotels, casinos, entertainment and many activities for tourist enjoyment. A number of travel agents in Sanford, Lake Mary and Longwood have already agreed to handle reservations for the flight.

Power line a concern to county

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County has asked Florida Power Corp. to explain how a proposed transmission line from DelBary to Winter Springs will affect the Wekiva River area, Spring Hammock and other environmentally-sensitive areas in the county.

"This is not just for a comfort factor," said Tony Matthews, county planner. "We really want to know what the impact of the proposed transmission line is going to be on these areas."

Seminole County commissioners will decide whether the state should hold a public hearing in Seminole County next year to consider FPC's choice. The local hearing is not required unless the county or an affected city requests it. Commissioners will also consider taking a position on the proposed route.

FPC is seeking to extend a transmission line from a DelBary power generating plant to Winter Springs to assist in peak power demands and provide additional power reserves to the growing areas of the county. FPC serves most of Seminole County south of Sanford.

FPC has announced about a half dozen alternative routes where the 100-foot-tall line of towers bearing the transmission line will be placed. All of the routes are in half-mile paths where existing power lines are strung. Two of the routes pass east of Interstate 4 and pass through Lake Mary.

A third route passes south of Lake Monroe along the CSX railroad line and follows the railroad through Sanford and Lake Mary. A fourth route follows a path west of I-4 near Yankee Lake and west of Markham Woods Road. A variation of the fourth route follows the same path until it meets the path of the Seminole County Expressway, then follows it south through Sanford and over Lake Jesup.

Sanford Planner Jay Marder said the city has not taken a formal position on the routes, but said using existing routes would have the least impacts on neighborhoods and the environment.

Lake Mary has opposed any route.

Courier wins French Open tourney

Sanford kin swings his way to the top

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Jim Courier's appearance, and ultimate win, in the finals of the French Open Tennis Tournament Sunday was not the first time that the residents of Sanford and Seminole County had eagerly awaited the French finals.

Just a few short years ago Mikael Pernfors, who played at Seminole Community College, faced Ivan Lendl in the finals of this same tournament. And while watching the Sanford-born Courier advance through the field of this year's field the memories of watching Pernfors do the same thing came rushing back.

Pernfors had become the darling of Seminole tennis community as he won back-to-back National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) National Championships while playing for Larry Castle's two-time National Champion Raiders.

Most fans continued to follow Pernfors' career as he went on to the University of Georgia and won two more NCAA national titles before turning pro.

With Pernfors advancing through the draw it was exciting checking the papers to see if someone you had known personally had won and if he would be a part of ESPN's daily coverage of the French Open.

And while he lost to Lendl in four sets it was nice to be able to talk to other sports fanatics about the fact that you knew Pernfors and to tell stories of the things you saw him do when he played at SCC.

When word got around that Courier was born in Sanford and was related to the Spencer family other memories surfaced for those who have been around Sanford long enough to remember Spencer's restaurant and Miss Emma Spencer.

If you wanted to go to a fancy, classy eating establishment in Sanford you went to Spence's, which was operated by Courier's maternal grandfather, Jim Spencer. For years there was no better place to go for fine food in Sanford.

And Courier's great aunt, Miss Emma Spencer, came here, from Southern California in the mid-60s and started the SCC tennis program that grew to be a juggernaut for great players under Castle.

After her retirement from SCC the late Miss Spencer, who is a member of the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame, taught tennis lessons at her fine facility next to her home. Most of the tennis players in Sanford over the age of 30 probably took lessons from Miss Spencer at one time or the other.

She continued to be one of the biggest boosters of Raiders athletics right up until the time of her death and was genuinely well loved and respected by all.

So while he will probably never know what he did, we have to tip our hat to Jim Courier for not only winning a grand slam tennis event but for also bringing back some memories to us that were long forgotten.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Poll: Floridians expect state tax

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Three out of every four voters think Florida will have a personal income tax within 10 years even though only one in four would vote for such a measure, a recent survey showed.

Younger residents, and those who have lived in the state a shorter time, were more likely to support an income tax, according to the Florida Opinion Poll conducted by The New York Times newspapers in Florida.

Florida is one of 10 states without a personal income tax, something under consideration by the Florida Taxation and Budget Reform Commission. The group has the power to put items on the ballot for voters to approve or reject.

Before an income tax can be imposed, voters would have to authorize it by amending the state Constitution, which now forbids it.

Only 34 percent of the respondents of the survey said they would vote for a state income tax. Seventy-one percent said they'd vote against it and 6 percent said they didn't know.

Among registered voters, 35 percent said they'd vote for the income tax and 72 percent said they'd vote against it. Three percent said they didn't know.

The longer respondents had lived in Florida, the less likely they were to favor an income tax.

Only 24 percent of native Floridians said they'd vote for it. The number favoring it was highest — though still only 36 percent — among those who had lived in the state only three to 10 years.

But 74 percent of those surveyed said they thought the state would have an income tax in 10 years. Only 15 percent said it wouldn't. Eleven percent said they didn't know.

Results were virtually identical among registered voters: 74 percent thought the state would have an income tax by the year 2001, 16 percent thought it wouldn't, and 10 percent didn't know.

Interviewers questioned 819 adult Floridians on tax and state spending issues in a telephone poll conducted from May 30 to June 1. Responses have a margin of error of 4 percentage points.

Among those polled were 306 people who said they were registered voters in Florida. Their responses have a margin of error of 5 percentage points.

Algae bloom threatens reefs

WEST PALM BEACH — An algae bloom poses a serious threat to reefs off South Florida, and scientists are trying to figure out the cause and a solution.

Commercial divers say they have seen increased amounts of green algae in recent weeks on offshore reefs from Deerfield Beach to Jupiter.

Some of the same reefs suffered varying degrees of damage last summer after they were buried under a layer of thick algae, which disappeared as water temperatures cooled during the winter.

"It is a serious problem that will continue to get worse unless something is done," said Brian Lapointe, a scientist with the Fort Pierce-based Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution.

Several research projects under way or in the planning stages will study the problem.

Scientists from the University of Miami and Florida International University will conduct research in coastal waters along Palm Beach and Broward counties.

And scientists conducting a $1.5 million project for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration also may study the algae if they find it close to six outfall pipes between Miami and Delray Beach. More than 10 billion gallons of treated sewage is emptied through the outfall pipes every month.

18 arrested in gay-rights protest

UNION CITY, Ga. — An Aug. 15 court date has been set for 18 people charged with criminal trespassing during a protest of Cracker Barrel's firing of homosexual employee.

The demonstrators were arrested Sunday when they failed to leave the Cracker Barrel Old Country Store restaurant in Union City, said police Detective Nick Martin. They were released on their own recognizance.

They are scheduled to appear Aug. 15 in Municipal Court, he said.

About 100 people participated in the protest, which included members of the gay and lesbian community as well as other supporters, said Jack Felham, a member of Queer Nation/Atlanta. He was not among those arrested.

The demonstrators were protesting the firings of 11 homosexual employees in Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and South Carolina, Felham said.

The Union City Cracker Barrel planned no comment on Sunday's demonstration, said manager Chris Laplaca.

Decade of water wars ends

CLEARWATER — An agreement to build a $180 million pipeline to carry water from Pasco to Pinellas and Hillsborough counties is being heralded as an end to a decade of regional water wars.

"I think it's historic," said Phyllis Buzaneky, chairwoman of the five-member West Coast Regional Water Supply Authority which approved the pact Friday. The board includes representatives of the three counties plus the cities of Tampa and St. Petersburg.

"I think this is the beginning of a true regional look at water, which in the way it should be," Buzaneky said.

A 17-mile stretch of faulty pipeline may have helped forge the agreement.

The pipeline carrying water from Pasco to the other two counties burst four times in as many years, causing severe water shortages and making Hillsborough and Pinellas increasingly nervous about their water supply.

"Like any other governmental agency, things come about by crisis," said Charles Rainey, chairman of the Pinellas County Commission and member of the water board.

The pact paves the way for development of the Cypress Bridge pipeline project to provide water to the five members of the authority.

Since Pasco sits atop the region's major underground water supplies, officials there sought assurances that Pinellas would not siphon all the county's water. On the other hand, water is scarce in Pinellas County, and officials there wanted assurances of access to enough supplies for the future.

Under the agreement, Pasco retains the right to control development of new water supplies in most of the county, but Pinellas will be allowed to build new wells in two Pasco wellfields without Pasco permission.

Fight results in fatal shooting

LAUREL HILL, Fla. — An Alabama man turned himself in to face murder charges in a shooting death at a nightclub early Sunday morning following a fight.

Andy Calloway, 20, of Opp, turned himself in to authorities in Andalusia following the shooting about 2:15 a.m. at Club 808 in this Florida Panhandle town.

The victim was identified as 17-year-old Melvin Bryant of Florida, Ala., said Rick Hord, a spokesman for the Okaloosa County sheriff's department.

Calloway was to be taken to the Okaloosa County Jail in Crestview, Hord said. He was charged with murder.

Woman blames patry settlement on syndrome

Associated Press

PALM BEACH — The former wife of a Palm Beach socialite is challenging their divorce settlement, saying she agreed to accept a mere $9 million because she has a profound fear of confrontation unique to Swedes.

Agnes Grues Gilin says she is afflicted with Swedish Mentality Syndrome, and her lawyer agrees.

"It's a catchy phrase, but we're serious," said New York attorney Jerome Letner, who filed a suit seeking more money from Gilin's ex-husband.

"It's a compulsive reaction, almost to the level of psychosis. She will do almost anything to avoid conflict. It's reached pathological proportions."

But an American medical expert said he's never heard of the ailment.

"There is no such condition," said Dr. Paul Fink, chairman of the Department of Psychiatry at Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia.

"The idea reaches such a level of bizarreness. There are lots of people who avoid conflict. It doesn't mean they have some psychiatric syndrome."

Gilin was married for 15 years to Martin Grues, a highly successful Wall Street investment banker. She said she was told about the syndrome from friends who had read about a protest doing research on the mental malady at the University of Stockholm.

TAMPA — On the last day of school, the entire fleet of Fancy Nancy's Limousine Service was carting around kids. Hillsborough County children between the ages of 9 and 14 rented out 30 limousines.

Limousine companies said the extravagant outings for elementary and junior high school students have grown in recent years.

Just three years ago, only a few youngsters were renting limousines, according to Candice Crammer Beckstrom, owner of Fancy Nancy's, the largest limousine company in the Tampa Bay area.

"Last year, it really started to catch on," she said. "But this year beats out the rest by far."

Another owner asked not to be identified for fear of losing business.

"They play with everything," the owner said. "They play with the switches. We supply the soda, and they spill them on the seats. And you start to wonder, 'Is it worth it?' You take them to the beach and they track in sand. And they all want to go to the McDonald's."

A University of South Florida child psychiatrist said the flashy fad could give schoolchildren false expectations of the world.

"Kids can't really profit from things that are so artificial," Humberto Nagera said. "They need to find better ways to socialize and be rewarded. They need to learn the value of things and to appreciate simpler things."

Nagera said the glitz and glamor could force children to grow up before they're ready, and give them false perceptions of the world.

But parents and children involved said the practice is harmless.

Ted Kennedy plans to temper drinking

Associated Press

BOSTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he plans to temper his drinking and carousing, and will seek a seventh term despite the furor surrounding an alleged rape at his family's Florida estate.

"You can't go through an experience like this and not make up your mind you are going to have to be a little more attentive to behavior," the Democratic lawmaker told The Boston Globe.

While promising future moderation, Kennedy rejected the notion that he has a drinking problem.

"That doesn't mean that I am not going to be more attentive to it," Kennedy said of his drinking habits, "but no, that is not in my ... that's not where I'm at. I don't feel I've got a problem."

Kennedy was at the family's Palm Beach seaside estate last Easter weekend when a Jupiter, Fla., woman said she was raped by William Kennedy Smith, Kennedy's nephew. Smith, 30, has been charged in the case. He has denied any wrongdoing.

The publicity surrounding the alleged rape has focused attention on Kennedy's personal life.

In an interview Thursday, Kennedy, 59, told the Globe he spent several hours on Good Friday talking with his sister, Jean, and an old friend, Bill

Barry. They talked about old times, Kennedy's late brother, Robert, and Jean's husband, Steve Smith, who died of cancer last summer, Kennedy said.

Kennedy said he woke up his son, Patrick, 23, and his nephew, both of whom had been out on the town that evening, because he was upset by the conversation and wanted companionship.

The three went to the Au Bar nightclub, where Kennedy said he had a conversation with his son.

"I was tired. I knew I didn't want to drink that evening," Patrick Kennedy later told Palm Beach authorities.

Carpet cleaner arrested in homicide

By BOB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE — After the mutilation murders of five students last August shook this college town, the parents of Eleanor Grace and Carla McKlahnke gave their daughter Mace to carry for their protection.

But Alan Robert Davis, a 29-year-old carpet cleaner charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of the two University of Florida students, told investigators that the chemical spray only made him angry.

Davis said he became enraged and strangled the women after he came to clean their rugs Thursday and Ma. Grace sprayed him with Mace. State Attorney Len Register said Sunday.

According to Register, Davis said he punched Ma. Grace once in the face and knocked her unconscious, then fought with Ma. McKlahnke after she jumped on him in an effort to help her roommate.

Davis told investigators he strangled Ma. McKlahnke, then returned to Ma. Grace's limp form, sat her up and choked her to death, Register said.

Authorities wouldn't say what might have led Ma. Grace to use the self-defense chemical spray on Davis. Register stressed that the suspect's account has not yet been confirmed by chemical tests.

The arrest of Davis Saturday night came only 36 hours after the bodies of Ma. Grace, 20, of Fort Myers, and Ma. McKlahnke, 22, of Brandon, were found.

"This moved very quickly and was very fluid," said Lt. Spencer Mann, a spokesman for the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

It helped relieve the tension on this campus where four women and a man were killed in a case that remains unsolved after 10 months of investigation by a multi-agency task force. Danny

Harold Rolling, 37, has been named as a prime suspect in the five slayings, but officials say the case of those August 1990 slayings won't be taken before a grand jury until sometime this fall.

"I will go home and sleep a lot better," 20-year-old Dean Hamen of Tampa said Sunday. "We were at the point of here it goes again."

"I'm momentarily relieved," said 23-year-old Elicia Geller of Tallahassee. "I'd be more relieved if they solved the first murders, that's still a big question."

Drug money to build ball court

By J. MARK BARNFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

MIDWAY — Money obtained from drug dealers could help kids from becoming drug dealers, says Seminole County Sheriff Tom Eslinger.

Eslinger proposes to spend $6,000 to build a basketball court at the Midway Community Center. The money will come from a fund comprised of about $80,000 in fines, seized cash and the proceeds from the sale of felons' vehicles.

"That's one of the best things using money from the trust fund," said Eslinger. "Drug dealers, some of them from Midway, will help pay for this."

Eslinger said he has become concerned about growing numbers of older youth in Midway that have no after-school activities. As a result, they are loitering on street corners and bars where drug sales occur, he said. Recently, the youth have been throwing rocks and bottles at deputies working in the community east of Sanford, Eslinger said.

"There's nothing for the kids 12 and older to do," Eslinger said. "There's the Boys and Girls Club which operates from 8 to 6 for the younger children. But nothing for the 12 and older group."

By providing a basketball diversion for the youth, Eslinger said he hopes the older youth will be attracted away from the drug element of the community.

"I look at this request as an investment in providing an alternative to the current situation and a brighter outlook for the future for the residents of Midway," Eslinger wrote in his request to Seminole County commissioners.

Commissioners will consider the request Tuesday.

Through donated money, materials and labor, the community has repaired the Midway Community Center which had developed into "crack house" into a place for positive change. The center now houses the afternoon Boys and Girls Club activities. The Midway Citizens Against Drugs held a party for children there last year that attracted nearly 400 people.

Drug Sale arrests

Members of the joint City/County Investigative Bureau made two drug related arrests near the intersection of S.R. 46 and Interstate 4 Friday night. After observing a reported sale of narcotics, officers approached three men in the parking lot of the Waffle House.

Donald Richard Melle, 34, 244 Ruth Blvd., Longwood, was charged with purchase of a controlled substance and possession of marijuana. William Edward Fields, 27, 951 Mountain Ave., Lake Monroe, was charged with both sale and delivery of a controlled substance. The third man managed to elude officers and escape.

Melle and Fields were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Wanted person returned to Sanford

Glenn Alvin Deble, 36, has been returned to Sanford from Austin, Texas, on an outstanding Seminole County Warrant. Deble was being sought after he failed to appear in court for sentencing, Sept. 11, 1988, on a grand theft conviction.

Deble was apprehended by Austin law enforcement officers and flown back to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, where he will remain without bond until his case is completed.

Man arrested after long wait

Cesar Rodriguez, 47, 516 San Marie Ave., Altamonte Springs, was allegedly involved in a drug transaction in January, in Cassberry. At that time his arrest was postponed when it was learned that his son was being sought by the FBI on a homicide charge. Details on his son's case, identity, or possible arrest were not available.

Rodriguez, however, was arrested by members of the Seminole County Sheriff's office Friday afternoon, and finally charged with both sale and delivery of cocaine. He is being held in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

DUI arrests

The following persons were arrested during the past several days on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol:

Stephen Christopher Buchanan, 25, 773 S. Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, was charged with DUI Saturday morning, when Lake Mary Police reported his vehicle was being driven in a dangerous manner while heading west on Lake Mary Boulevard.

Salvatore Libertini, 23, 1000 Lake of the Woods Blvd., Fern Park, was arrested by Seminole County Sheriff's officers early Saturday morning, following a vehicle stop on C.R. 427 at Galloway in the south portion of the county.

Bruce Edward Woodward, 32, 245 Ari Lane, Sanford, was stopped and charged with DUI, while driving on Lake Mary Blvd., early Saturday.

Charles Leigh Crawford, 26, Lotus Landing Apartments, Altamonte Springs, was charged with DUI Friday night. A Florida Highway Patrol officer, off duty and at home watching television, reportedly heard a loud muffler noise, and went to his apartment window to investigate.

According to police reports, the officer saw a truck traveling south on Wymore Road in Altamonte Springs, then turn into a nearby parking lot almost striking several vehicles. The officer left his home, and apprehended Crawford, the driver of the vehicle. Seminole County Sheriff's officers were called to the scene and charged Crawford with DUI and reckless driving. It has also been found that his driver license has been suspended a number of times, and there are four warrants against him for failing to pay traffic fines.

Sellers choice for post

By J. MARK BARNFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County public works director is among the top choices for Seminole County's two deputy managers, county manager Ron Rabun said Thursday.

Rabun, who began work little more than 90 days ago, said he will hire two new deputy managers by next month.

"I hope to have someone on board within about 90 days," Rabun said. "I have about 20 people I'm looking at, making numerous reference checks, a lot of telephone calls. I've got about six real top-looking people right now."

Rabun said among his top finalists is Larry Sellers, who has been acting deputy manager since former deputies Jim Bible and Montye Beamer resigned in October 1989. Bible and Beamer resigned in the wake of the resignation of former county manager Ken Hooper, forced out by a majority of county commissioners.

Sellers, 41, has served as director of the Public Works Department since 1984, according to county personnel files. He was hired as an engineer the year before.

Sellers has been serving as the sole county deputy manager since May 1990 when county planning director Tom VanDerworp gave up his development deputy manager's position to devote full time to preparation of the county comprehensive growth plan.

Rabun said he received a total of 285 applications for the two deputy manager positions. Under the current county administration organization structure, all development-oriented department directors report to one deputy while the other administrative and support services department directors report to the other deputy.

Rabun said he may shuffle some departments between the two deputies, but has made no firm reorganization plans as yet. He said he will be completing a reorganization scheme later this summer as he completes county budget preparations. Rabun said he has no plans to replace any department heads.

"I don't foresee any changes," Rabun said. "I have a chance to see the directors in action regularly and everyone is doing a real good job."

Monthly 911 service charge in county may rise this fall

By J. MARK BARNFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The charge for 911 service in Seminole County could go up another eight cents this October.

County commissioners will consider increasing the current monthly 911 fee of 25 cents to 33 cents for each line to the home. Businesses pay the fee for each line up to 25 lines.

County 911 Coordinator Rosanne Tall said the increase is needed to pay for greater ongoing expenses and for new equipment. A nickel of the increase will remain for 12 months for one-time equipment purchases, Tall said. The remaining three cents will help cover an expected increase in 911 expenses.

The emergency system cost $467,000 to operate this year and will cost an estimated $600,000 for the year beginning Oct. 1, Tall said. The current 25-cent fee raised about $36,000 in April, she said. Tall said the number of new connections have decreased from about 1,000 per month to 500 or 600 per month, based on fee collections.

The county's 911 system, which includes dispatch centers at the sheriff's office, the county public safety office, and every city except Longwood, takes an average of about 10,000 calls per month, Tall said. About 90 percent of the calls are for law enforcement assistance and the remainder are for fire or medical assistance, she said.

The one-year five-cent increase will raise about $100,000 for new equipment, Tall said. The 911 systems at Lake Mary, Oviedo and Cassberry need battery back-up systems to provide continuing power to the system in the event of a blackout, Tall said. Each system has an electric generator, but Tall said the resulting power surge from the generators can disconnect an emergency call.

A replacement is also needed for faulty equipment at the main 911 communications system located at the sheriff's office. Much of the expense is to replace the tape reels which record the 1,000 of emergency calls. Each one-inch-wide tape costs $5,000, she said.

Adopt-a-Road program on commission agenda

By MICK PFEIFAMP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City Commission will discuss the possibility of starting an Adopt-a-Road program in the city. The matter is to be brought up during tonight's meeting, at the request of the Scenic Improvement Board and the city's.

The Sanford project would be in cooperation with the Florida Department of Transportation, and similar to a program already underway by Seminole County, in a large portion of roadways. Lake Mary has had an Adopt-a-Road program for the past year. Public Works Director Rod Stroupe said, "We've seen excellent results with our program. Most of it involves cleaning Rinehart Road, a project adopted by the Rotary Club of Lake Mary".

The Sanford program would involve only streets and roads within the city limits. It would operate in the same manner as the county's program. Sanford based civic clubs, other organizations, and citizen groups would participate by accepting responsibility for clean-up of a particular street. Cleaning must be done at least 6 times per year. The use of safety vests, signs and other equipment would be required, as will be prior notification of the city's Public Works Department Street Division.

The city will install an "Adopt-a-Road" sign with the name of the group or individual, provide the safety vests, signs and other items, and handle prompt pick-up of the collected materials.

Chairman of the Scenic Improvement Board, Ray Sage, has suggested the city adopt the title of "Sanford, on the Sunny Side," for the local program.

The proposal will be brought before the commission during this evening's workshop meeting scheduled for 5 p.m. The regular City Commission meeting will follow beginning at 7 p.m. at the Sanford City Hall.

Lake Mary calls meet

By MICK PFEIFAMP
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission will hold a special called meeting tonight beginning at 8 p.m. to continue discussion on the citizens charter initiative matter.

The proposed charter change was brought up for discussion at the commission's previous meeting last Thursday night. At that time, Lake Mary City Attorney Ned Julian offered several approaches the city might consider regarding the change. He suggested they could either file a petition in Circuit Court to declare the proposed amendment invalid, or take no action and simply avoid placing the amendment on the ballot.

Although the commission voted 4 to 1 Thursday night to accept Julian's proposal to not place the issue on the ballot, the next step is to be decided tonight. Mayor Randy Morris said, "I'm going to propose we take it to a judge to issue a declaratory judgement. We could get other legal opinions, but only a judge could make the final decision."

The special called city commission meeting will be held in the Lake Mary City Hall beginning at 8 p.m. tonight.

Iraq embargo

The allies liberation of Kuwait has discredited Saddam Hussein and destroyed most of his military might. Yet, contrary to earlier speculation, the Iraq leader has maintained his grip on power and appears to be in no imminent danger of being toppled. If the world now resumes business as usual with Baghdad, Saddam could emerge over time as a renewed threat to stability and peace in the Persian Gulf.

That's why President Bush is correct to take a strong stand against the early lifting of the international economic sanctions imposed by the United Nations Security Council after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Bush and British Prime Minister John Major have declared their opposition to removing the U.N. trade embargo as long as Saddam continues to rule Iraq. If necessary, either the United States or Britain could exercise its veto, as a permanent member of the Security Council, to block any attempt to abolish the sanctions prematurely.

Baghdad is especially eager to begin selling oil again on the international market.

Before Saddam's tanks rolled into Kuwait last August, petroleum was Iraq's only major export, generating about $20 billion a year. Most of those earnings were used to build Saddam's formidable military apparatus. The U.N. trade ban cut off this lucrative source of hard currency.

In a bid to gain removal of the embargo, Iraq has agreed officially to Security Council Resolution 667, which spells out conditions for restoring normal trade relations. Among the stipulations is the destruction of Iraq's chemical and biological weapons, most of its ballistic missiles, its nuclear arms research installations and "all of its nuclear weapons-usable material."

Baghdad's actual compliance with these terms remains in doubt, however.

For example, the Iraqi regime flatly denies possessing any weapons-grade nuclear material, even though it is known to have operated facilities whose purpose was to produce fissionable material for atomic bombs. Nor has Iraq acknowledged the large stocks of chemical weapons which the United States believes survived the allied bombing.

Even more disturbing, a high-ranking Soviet official said recently that Moscow eventually intends to resume arms sales to its long-time ally in Baghdad. At present, such shipments would violate the U.N. embargo.

Before the Persian Gulf War, the Soviet Union was Saddam's principal arms supplier, exporting tens of billions of dollars' worth of tanks, ballistic missiles, warplanes and small arms. With much of that hardware now destroyed, the Kremlin obviously sees an opportunity to resume a profitable relationship with a valued customer.

But the Soviets cannot return to their weapons business with Baghdad until Saddam is allowed to sell oil on the world market, thereby earning the hard currency Moscow demands in exchange for arms. On the other hand, once the U.N. embargo is lifted, there will be nothing the rest of the world can do to prevent the Soviets or any other nation from rearming Saddam.

Just as trade sanctions could not dislodge Iraq's occupation army from Kuwait, continued economic pressure is not likely to drive Saddam from power. But, as long as a potentially aggressive regime controls Iraq, it should remain a pariah state in the eyes of the world and thus be denied the economic means to rebuild its war machine.

Tough job market is good training

I've been listening with empathy to reports of the tough job market facing new college graduates this year, for two reasons:

First, I remember what it was like to be a 21-year-old college graduate with a loan to pay off, wondering if I'd have to continue working at McDonald's for the rest of my life.

Second, a lot of people my age are in the same boat. Across town at one of the local TV stations, the recession took the jobs of seven longtime workers, two of them my friends. The other stations and the newspaper have been under a hiring freeze for months and all the radio news operations are laying off.

Congratulations on your degrees, kids. Welcome to Employment 101.

Now, having commiserated with you about the bad news, let me share some of the good: Once you have a job, and you will, you're going to be way ahead of those of us who stepped off the commencement stage and right into offices. The economy and the job security it offers are cyclical, and most of us end up on the short end of its stroke sometime during our careers.

Since you're bright and capable, while you have this chance to see the economy from this perspective, you'll be developing job-finding strategies and buying and saving habits that will tide you over during future bleak periods.

Contrast that with an older friend of mine who graduated from high school in a much brighter economic time, 1947. He was a smart, talented young man, and after military service in Korea, the world was his oyster. He didn't have to go to college. He worked hard, and every job he held only sent him shooting on to the next, better one.

He'd never had to look for a job before. The jobs — great jobs — had always found him. Now, when he went knocking on doors at the same job level he'd left, he found them all closed. By this time, his career had become his identity and almost all his self-worth was tied up in it. Talk less money, a less prestigious job? His ego wouldn't let him do it.

By the time he'd set his salary expectations a little lower, he found a sea of baby boomers willing to work for half what he wanted, and a changing industry willing to accept less skill and experience for less money. Life had always been so easy, he never learned to adjust to a changing marketplace. His psyche never recovered from the blow to his ego.

If I were addressing a commencement of young people who are receiving only rejection letters to their applications and resumes, I'd say something like this: Congratulations on your degrees, even if right now you're a little disappointed in them. They do represent something wonderful, but probably not what you think they do. You may have thought they were guarantees, that if you completed a certain body of work they would automatically open a certain job for you, but a college degree could never do that any more than a high school diploma guaranteed a certain career attainment a few generations ago.

What your degree means is that you were able to succeed at a lot of extremely difficult tasks, that you have the ability, ingenuity and tenacity to find and do well in a career.

Syrian invite almost rains on the parade

WASHINGTON — America almost went too far today in its gush of pride over the outcome of the Persian Gulf War. The parade in New York City to honor returning troops was to have included a contingent from Syria, a U.S. ally in the war. As it turns out, the nation that specializes in torture, terrorism and unmitigated brutality will not be represented in today's parade. But not for lack of trying by the hosts.

It was Syria that diplomatically declined the invitation by New York City Mayor David Dinkins — an invitation that should never have been issued. Perhaps Dinkins looked down the list of allies and decided it wouldn't be polite to leave anyone out on the big day. America has already been forced to be entirely too polite to this malignant ally. It was one thing to have to stomach a relationship with Syria in the name of putting down another butcher — Iraq — but it is entirely too much to have Syrian soldiers marching through the Big Apple on a day to honor men and women who thought they were fighting for freedom.

The invitation to Syria brought a howl of protest, as it should have, from American Jews and from the families of the victims of the Pan Am 103 terrorist bombing. Syria is still giving safe haven to Ahmed Jibril, the terrorist whom all the evidence points to as the culprit for Pan Am 103.

Unholy alliances sometimes must be tolerated during a war, but the war is over and human rights experts warn that our new friend is not the fine fellow he appears to be. Amnesty International has compiled a bill of particulars against Syria and its president, Hafez al-Assad. Hundreds of people are detained in Syria without charges or trial. Political dissidents are jailed, tortured and executed, or they simply disappear. Anyone who challenges Assad does not last long in Syria.

Riad Al-Turk is a case in point. Turk, the first secretary of the banned Communist Party in Syria, was arrested in 1980 and is hanging on to life in a Syrian prison today. He has been brutally tortured and denied medical treatment. He has been in and out of a coma.

Syria is the torture capital of the Middle East. Syria is to torture devices as Japan is to the microchip. The Syrians are particularly proud of the Black Slave, a device that inserts a heated metal skewer into the victim's anus. The "washing machine" is a hollow spinning drum into which a victim's arms are pushed and spun until they are crushed. Then there is the Syrian metal chair that crushes the occupant's spine while cutting his ankles with metal blades. We trust none of those toys would have been displayed in today's "Operation Welcome Home" parade had a Syrian contingent decided to join the festivities.

Assad would rather that Americans not see that side of his dirty little government, especially when he is enjoying such a good relationship with the White House. President Bush says he and Assad differ on many things, but the two nations stuck together during the war on the principle that a bigger nation should not be allowed to gobble up its neighbors. Never mind that last October, during Operation Desert Shield, Assad's army slaughtered thousands of people in Lebanon to consolidate his grip on that neighbor.

Like Saddam Hussein, Assad doesn't mind killing his own people too if that's what it takes to get the job done. The butcher of Damascus used artillery and tanks to quell an uprising in the Syrian city of Hama in 1982, killing an estimated 25,000 Syrians.

An invitation that should never have been issued.

Vote 'No' on sales tax

The Seminole County Commission has mailed to residents a slick brochure extolling the virtue and need of an affirmative vote on an additional ONE CENT sales tax designed to raise $300,000,000 over the next 10 years.

"Tourists and visitors will also pay." — Where does Seminole County have a major tourist attraction designed to attract tourists?

"Only the first $5,000 of a purchase is taxed." — This means that the purchasers of lower priced autos will pay a larger percentage of the price in sales tax while those who purchase autos costing a great deal more will only pay tax on a smaller percentage of the cost. Just another sop to the high income class who drive BMWs, etc.

"Estimated annual cost for a family is $72." — Adding one cent to the present 6 percent makes the estimated annual sales tax per family more than $500, none of which is deductible from federal taxes.

"The property tax would be at least $175 on a home with an assessed value (before homestead exemption) of $100,000." — It does not state that property tax is a deductible item on the federal income tax return. The high income inhabitants of those high priced homes would only pay 70 percent of any property tax after federal tax. The property tax indicated is only 2.3 mils and would cost many low income people living in smaller homes less than the sales tax estimate.

Inflation over the next ten years is not even mentioned and as all prices increase the dollars paid in sales tax will also increase. Considering the information given in the Commission publication there is no justification for a "YES" vote on the sales tax issue. Instead the referendum should be defeated by a large majority. It is suggested that all interested voters remember July 9 and reject this proposal.

Tell the real deficit story

By now I am sure you are aware that despite Congress' promises to use the new tax revenue to reduce the federal deficit they did the exact opposite.

That's right, Congress enacted the second largest tax increase ever and rather than reduce the deficit they increased spending $111 billion (and that doesn't include the Gulf War costs) and pushed the FY 1991 deficit to an all-time record $320 billion.

But if you're saying to yourself, "I remember hearing Congressional leaders promise that the new budget would mean a $500 billion spending reduction in the years ahead. How can they say that?"

Let me explain. Only in Congress can you promise a $500 billion savings at the same time you increase actual spending by $111 billion. Here's how it works:

When Congress talks about spending cuts, they are not talking about cutting actual spending, but reducing projected increases. If Congress just reduces the amount of increased spending, they call that a spending cut — even though actual spending is still increasing.

Confused? Let me give you a simplified example. Let's suppose Congress today is spending $1.00 on a program and they have budgeted to spend $2.00 on the same program next year. However, if they spend $1.75 next year they will call that a spending cut of $0.25 — even though they actually increased spending by $0.75.

When Congress promised to save $500 billion in the years ahead, this was not an actual cut of $500 billion. It was a reduction in their "pie-in-the-sky" budget for the future. Even with their supposed $500 billion cut, actual spending will still skyrocket.

THE PROMISE OF DEFICIT REDUCTION WAS NOTHING MORE THAN A MYTH. Congress just wanted more taxes for more spending. And they would promise anything just to get more of our income.

Congress is bankrupting America. Because of Congress' non-stop deficit spending, the interest payments on the national debt exceed a whopping $256 billion annually. These interest payments on the ballooning national debt are already more than all the individual income taxes paid by everyone who lives west of the Mississippi River. We are rapidly approaching the day when we won't be able to make the interest payment on our debt. I'm sure you understand what happens if you can't make the interest payments on your debts.

I urge you to tell the American people the real story — that deficit spending is increasing, not decreasing as Congress promised. And tell them that the deficit represents a very grave threat to our future.

Volcano erupts; U.S. Military evacuation possible

By DAVID GOODMAN
Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — A volcano that had been dormant for centuries spewed hot ash and rocks down its slopes Sunday, and U.S. officials ordered thousands of Americans at nearby Clark Air Base to pack for a possible evacuation.

There were no reports of injuries from what the Philippine authorities described as a moderate eruption of Mount Pinatubo.

The eruption sent soaring glass, ash and rock pouring from two craters of the 4,795-foot mountain at speeds up to 60 mph. Debris was sprayed as far as the South China Sea, 20 miles to the west.

More than 12,000 people from three provinces were ordered evacuated.

At Clark Air Base, about 10 miles east of the volcano, Air Force spokesman Lt. Col. Ron Rand advised the 18,000 troops, dependents and civilian employees to pack their bags and be prepared for an evacuation order.

If an order were issued, personnel would be transported to the U.S.-run Subic Bay naval base, about 50 miles southwest of Clark, Rand said.

Classes were suspended for Monday at base schools.

In Japan meanwhile, residents in the southwest feared more avalanches from a volcano that killed at least 37 people in its first eruption last week and burned 75 homes in another outburst on Saturday.

Nearly 10,000 people have left their homes at the foot of Japan's Mount Unzen, and two naval ships stood by to take residents farther away in case a new eruption sent lava, hot rocks and ash over a yet wider area.

The volcanoes now rumbling in Japan and the Philippines belong to a volcanic "Ring of Fire" circling the Pacific, but their simultaneous eruptions appear to be mere coincidence, experts said Friday.

"In my discussion with our volcanologists, we saw no connection between the two," said Jim Devine, a seismologist with the U.S. Geological Survey's office in Reston, Va.

Mount Pinatubo, about 60 miles northwest of Manila, began to show signs of activity in April for the first time in more than 600 years, and last week it belched small amounts of steam and ash.

Raymundo Punongbayan, director of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology, said the eruption could be a prelude to a larger burst. "The instability of Pinatubo is very high," he said.

He said molten rock, ash and searing gas at more than 1,800 degrees were shooting from the craters in two main flows, which so far had missed settlements in the thinly populated area at the foot of the mountain.

A dense cloud of ash and smoke rose thousands of feet and was visible at least 30 miles away. Radio reporters near the mountain said the sky was "like the night."

The governor of Zambales province, Amor Deloso, said he tried to approach the volcano's slope, but turned back because of the thick ash.

"I could not breathe because the ashes were getting into my nose," he said. "It's raining ashes. The plants were all covered with ashes."

The mayor of Botolan, Tito Doble, appealed for emergency food and tents for refugees from the volcano. Botolan is about 10 miles from the crater.

Of the 12,000 people evacuated from the area, about 3,100 are primitive Aeta tribesmen who lived on the slopes of the mountain. They were moved last week.

Doble said a "handful" of people were refusing to leave isolated settlements on the slopes. "There's nothing we can do about it," he said.

The last major eruption of Mount Pinatubo was in 1580.

There are about 21 active and 200 dormant volcanoes in the Philippines. The last major eruption occurred in 1965 when the Taal Volcano, about 50 miles south of Manila, exploded. About 200 people were killed.

Assassination suspect may be Tamil militant

Associated Press

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — A suspect in the assassination of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi of India has been identified as a member of a Tamil rebel militia, sources said.

A Tamil politician, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Sunday that he and other Tamils shown photographs of the suspect recognize him as a senior member of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, which has waged an 8-year-old battle for an independent homeland in northern Sri Lanka.

Sources close to the investigation team in Madras, India, confirmed the identification.

Gandhi was killed May 21 at an election rally near Madras, when a young woman triggered plastic explosives strapped around her waist. The woman and 15 other people also were killed.

Police suspect Tamil rebels for the attack because they use southern India as a base and are the only group in the region with sophisticated knowledge of explosives. But spokesmen for the group have denied responsibility.

In 1987, Gandhi ordered Indian troops to Sri Lanka to enforce a cease-fire between the Sinhalese-dominated army and the Tamil rebels. The peace plan failed and the Indian troops fought for 2 1/2 years against the rebels.

The photograph circulating in Sri Lanka was taken shortly before the blast that killed Gandhi and shows the suicide bomber and a bespectacled man standing nearby.

Italy forces return to roots for exiled Mafia members

Associated Press

ROME — Hundreds of suspected Mafia members exiled to northern Italy will soon be packing their bags and returning to the south due to a key change in government policy on organized crime, according to newspaper reports.

The former practice of banishing the suspected mafiosi to towns in the north was designed to disrupt their communication networks.

But Interior Minister Vincenzo Scotti said the policy backfired.

"Contacts with their hometowns never stopped. On the contrary, the result was a spread of the Mafia disease to regions previously uncontaminated by it," he was quoted as saying in the Sunday reports.

NASA said the biomedical research mission would be extended a day in the unlikely event the doors do not close right, and Bagian and Tamara Jernigan would be sent out to fix the seal.

An astronaut will monitor the door-closing from the Spacelab module in the cargo bay to make sure everything goes well before Columbia heads for Edwards Air Force Base in California.

O'Connor and the six other astronauts were thrilled by Sunday's personalized wakeup call.

"It's a great Sunday when the kids can wake you up and you can head off to work right away," O'Connor said.

Cardiologist F. Andrew Gaffney got an extra-special greeting. His family and the other astronauts' children sang "Happy Birthday." He turned 45 Sunday.

"This is probably the only place that would be better than being with your family. Thanks a lot," Gaffney said.

It was pretty much business as usual for the astronauts Sunday, their fifth day in orbit. They monitored their heart and lung function and blood pressure, took more urine samples and measured their body mass.

Preliminary results indicate the astronauts' cardiac output, or the amount of blood returning to the heart, remains higher in space than on Earth for longer than expected. Deconditioning, consequently, may occur over a longer period of time than initially thought, said Dr. Leon Farhi, the experiment's principal investigator.

NASA needs to know these kinds of things as it plans longer and longer space flights. There are Earthly applications as well.

"The same factors that affect an astronaut upon his return to Earth are operating on the patient who's demobilized and has been bedridden for some time," Farhi said.

Tests conducted after the flight on 2,478 tiny jellyfish and 29 white rats aboard Columbia will add to scientists' knowledge about the effects of weightlessness on living things.

Jernigan said Sunday the jellyfish were "alive and well and they seem to be adapting to zero-gravity, however, their swimming behavior has been significantly altered. They seem to be continuing to swim in circles to a large extent."

Astronaut M. Rhea Seddon, the doctor in charge of Spacelab, reported that the rats were "clean, happy and healthy-looking."

Saddam's durability quandary for allies

By MAUD S. BEELMAN
Associated Press Writer

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Saddam Hussein's resilience in the face of military defeat, postwar revolt and crippling economic sanctions has U.S. and other Western leaders examining new strategies for trying to end his 22-year rule.

Some diplomats believe attempts to negotiate a transition of power in Baghdad could emerge as the bite of sanctions pushes Iraq closer to economic and social chaos.

But others note that Saddam is unlikely to willingly step aside and may be the only Iraqi leader presently capable of keeping the nation from dissolving into civil war among ethnic and religious groups.

"It makes a lot of sense for officials of the Iraqi regime to try to re-establish some form of contact with the United States and Western powers because that's the main stumbling block to reconstruction," said Charles Tripp, a Middle East specialist at the University of London.

"But has anybody told Saddam that?"

Saddam's nation may be reeling, but his personal power base has been fortified.

Rebellions by Shiite Muslims and Kurds were crushed in March by Saddam's army. Soldiers have received pay hikes and particular generosity was shown to the elite Republican Guard, a key pillar of the regime.

Also, Saddam has named relatives to key positions and purged those he considered challengers.

"He's giving out titles but no power," said an Iraqi official, who spoke anonymously for fear he would be punished for talking to a Western reporter.

Meanwhile, the allies have closely watched steps for reform by Saddam, who has been effective ruler since 1968 and assumed the presidency in 1979.

Saddam is reported to have agreed to limited autonomy for Kurds in northern Iraq. On Sunday, the government daily Al-Jumhuriya quoted Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan as saying Baghdad would soon revise laws on political parties and press freedom.

But Iraqi officials say some reforms will have to wait until the lifting of sanctions — which the United States and Britain have said they would oppose doing until Saddam is out of power.

The city has also opposed the CSX route which also passes close to homes.

Matthews said the is concerned that the western-most route passes through the Wekiva River Protection Area and could affect riverside environment. The CSX route passes through wetlands in the Spring Hammock nature preserve east of Lake Jesup. The county and state have purchased much of the area to protect it.

The half-mile CSX swath also includes portions of the Central Florida Zoo. Even the expressway route passes through sensitive area, Matthews said.

Daniel Ellsberg still fighting for peace two decades later

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Twenty years ago this week, a disillusioned military analyst named Daniel Ellsberg stunned the nation with disclosure of the government's top-secret study of the Vietnam War — the Pentagon Papers.

With his colleague Anthony Russo, Ellsberg had quietly photocopied the 47-volume, 7,000-page history, which he saw as proof that American officials were lying about chances for victory in the war.

On June 13, 1971, The New York Times published excerpts of the study. Other newspapers followed.

It was a life-altering event for both men and for those who joined their defense during a protracted espionage prosecution.

"Historically, in the United States, it was one of the most politically significant cases of the time in which it happened," said Leonard Weinglass, the civil rights lawyer who defended Russo.

"Two decades later, Ellsberg, 60, and Russo, 55, remain at the barricades of the peace movement. Both protested the Persian Gulf War, and Ellsberg has been arrested 60 times in anti-nuclear protests.

During the Vietnam War, they say, their greatest accomplishment was proving that U.S. presidents lied about the war for decades — a disclosure they say set the stage for Watergate and President Nixon's resignation.

"The effect was indirect," Ellsberg said in an interview. "The Paris peace accords were signed in 1973 during my trial, but when the trial ended the war was still going on. What changed

All is apparently forgotten at Richard M. Nixon Library

Associated Press

YORBA LINDA, Calif. — Daniel Ellsberg realized the fleeting nature of fame last week when, on a visit to Southern California, he stopped at the Richard M. Nixon Presidential Library & Birthplace.

It was late in the day and the doors were locked. The gift shop was just closing and Ellsberg, who 20 years ago leaked the Pentagon Papers, went in to buy a book about the Nixon era.

"They didn't take credit cards, so I gave the woman at the desk a check," Ellsberg said. "I was wondering what she would say when she saw my name."

The woman's response startled Ellsberg. "She looked at the check and said, 'Do you have any identification?'"

"I said, 'My name is in the book I'm buying,' and I turned to the index to show her all the references."

At that, he said, the woman brightened and declared, "Well, then you must autograph one of these for us."

Ellsberg hesitated, then decided an explanation would take too long. He signed the book: "To Peace... Daniel Ellsberg."

Beeskeeper with diabetes stung from head to toe

Associated Press

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — A beeskeeper was stung from head to toe by more than 1,000 honeybees after he had a diabetic seizure and kicked a hive.

The Italian honeybees attacked John Reeves, 66, in his yard Saturday after he had an insulin reaction. He was not wearing protective clothing.

"He started kicking around, throwing his arms around and he kicked the beehive, stirred up the bees," said his wife, Elise.

He was listed in fair condition Sunday night.

Emergency room nurse Brenda Egan at North Side Hospital said virtually every part of his body was stung, including the inside of his mouth and throat, his eyes, his ears and his nose.

"At least 50 percent of his body was covered with stingers, especially the upper part," Ms. Egan said. "I don't know how bad he was stung internally, but he vomited up quite a few bees, and one came out of his ear when they brought him in."

"We picked some live ones off of him and out of the bed after we got him in here," she said.

Paramedics had found Reeves on the ground and tried to get to him, but the bees attacked, holding them off for half an hour.

Firefighters then put on reflective aluminum suits and pulled Reeves to safety.

Husband of comatose woman fights for her

By TOMMY KENNEDY Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Oliver Wangle says it pains him to see his brain-damaged wife enter a second year kept alive with the help of a respirator. But he will fight doctors' attempts to let her die before "God calls her home."

The 87-year-old retired lawyer opposes doctors' attempts to have a judge appoint a conservator to decide the fate of his wife of 54 years, Helga.

Although she has been in a persistent vegetative state since May 1990, Wangle says his wife would want to be kept alive as long as possible.

"The doctors, in my view, should be dedicated to save and preserve life — not to destroy it," Wangle said. "Is that asking too much?"

Hennepin County Judge Patricia Beloit has until the end of August to rule whether to appoint a conservator who will decide whether Mrs. Wangle will be removed from the respirator.

Jailed lawyer goes free

Associated Press

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. — A lawyer jailed for refusing to testify about a bail-jumping revolutionary was ordered freed today after six months behind bars.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Weiner jailed Linda Backiel on Dec. 10 for contempt. Though she was not the radical's lawyer of record, she argued that testifying before a grand jury would violate attorney-client confidentiality.

At least a dozen human rights and legal groups filed friend-of-the-court briefs arguing for her release.

Spokesman Kurt Antonius said the model has independent front and rear brakes and the rear brakes would function should the front brakes fail.

There have been no reported complaints or accidents, Antonius said.

Honda issues recall for four-wheel drive ATVs

TORRANCE, Calif. — American Honda Motor Co. announced a recall of about 730 of its 1991 four-wheel drive All Terrain Vehicles because of concerns about the front brakes.

The front brake hose of the TRX300FW model may contact the edge of the front fender and eventually could wear through the hose, resulting in a loss of front brakes, a company statement said Saturday.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

SYFA to hold registrations

SANFORD — The Sanford Youth Football Association will hold registration for the fall 1992 football season on Saturday, June 15 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at Chase Park on Oakley Ave. The registration fee is $50. Parents should bring a birth certificate. Children between the ages of seven and 14 are eligible for participation. For more information on the Pop Warner league, call 321-2012.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

Orlando wins a deuce

ORLANDO — Pitching performances by Orlando's Rusty Richards and Pat Mahomes spurred the SunRays to sweep a Southern League doubleheader Saturday over Memphis. Mahomes (6-4) pitched a complete game in the nightcap, giving up five hits, one run, two walks, and he struck out 11. In the first game, Richards, 1-1, gave up three hits, one run and struck out four as Orlando defeated Memphis 5-1. Ed Pierce, 2-2, was the losing pitcher for the Chicks.

Jacksonville victorious

JACKSONVILLE — Dave Fleming held Greenville to six hits and struck out seven batters to lead Jacksonville to a 5-2 victory Sunday in Southern League play. The victory was the second for the Suns (34-25) over the first-place Braves (37-19). Jacksonville is now 4 1/2 games out of first place. Jim Campanis hit a two-run single as part of a three-run fourth inning to give Jacksonville a 3-0 lead. The Suns added two runs in the eighth inning on RBI singles by Bret Boone and Ruben Gonzales.

PRO BASKETBALL

Bulls need one more

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Chicago Bulls have beaten the rap that they are a one-man team led by a superstar with the initials M.J. Now the Los Angeles Lakers must face it. The Bulls spread the wealth on offense, smothered the Lakers with stingy team defense and scored a win away from the first NBA title in their 25-year history with a 97-82 victory. It will be up to Magic Johnson to get them out of it if the Lakers are to become the first team to win an NBA Finals after trailing 3-1. Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 28 points, his lowest total of the series. Jim Paxson added 15, Horace Grant and Scotty Pippen 14 each and Bill Cartwright 12. Vlade Divac, with a career playoff high 27 points, Johnson with 22 and James Worthy with 12 were the only Lakers in double figures.

PRO FOOTBALL

London first WFLA champion

WEMBLEY, England — Dan Crossman intercepted three Scott Erney passes, returning one for a touchdown. He also intercepted a car. Being named most valuable player in the first championship game of the World League of American Football meant safety Crossman collected a new car as his prize. He also collected a winner's ring as the London Monarchs shutout the Barcelona Dragons 21-0 in the WFLA's inaugural World Bowl before 61,108 mostly British fans at the home of English soccer.

AUTO RACING

Allison gets controversial win

SONOMA, Calif. — The flag waving in the warm afternoon sunshine at Sears Points International Raceway was as black as the mood that overcame Ricky Rudd the moment he saw it.

It signaled a penalty assessed against Rudd for rough driving, giving Davey Allison — the man bumped aside by Rudd only one lap earlier — the victory in Sunday's Banquet Frozen Foods 300-kilometer NASCAR stock car race.

It was Allison who took the checkered flag four seconds behind Rudd, giving the second-generation Winston Cup star his first road course win and the 10th triumph of his career.

Les Richter officially ruled Allison the winner and penalized Rudd five seconds, pushing him back to second place, one second behind Allison. The announcement was made 2 hours, 10 minutes after the end of the race. Rusty Wallace was third, followed by Ernie Ivan, Ken Schrader, Terry Labonte and Dale Earnhardt.

Methodist's triumphant

FUM wins tournament for the third time in four years

By PAUL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Sanford Church softball league finished their spring tournament Saturday with 14 games at Pinehurst Park and Lee P. Moore Park.

In the final game First United Methodist, winners of the regular season A-league championship, foiled Markham Woods First Baptist, the B-league regular season runner-up, attempt to become the first B-league team to win the tournament with a 7-2 win in the championship to claim the trophy for the third time.

The Methodists won the trophy with sparkling defense and ended the season with a 14-game winning streak.

First United committed no errors on defense in the final and turned three double plays.

First United broke out on top early with four runs in the bottom of the first inning when Chris Dapore, Brian Burke and Robert Smith led off with singles to load the bases.

Bruce Danilla's sacrifice fly scored the first run and Jack Eltonhead's single scored two more. The fourth run scored on Chris Byrnes' sacrifice fly.

After First United added a single tally in the third inning Markham Woods tried to mount a comeback in the fourth when Bill Terwilliger, Gary Davis and Richard Walker singled to lead off the inning with Terwilliger scoring but Eric Cruz hit into a double play to end the rally with the score at 5-1.

First United added a pair of insurance runs in the sixth when Eltonhead and Byrnes singled and scored on errors.

Markham Woods tried to rally in the seventh when Davis singled and Walked doubled. Dismar's sacrifice fly scored Davis but Todd Pope hit into a force play to end the game.

In semifinal action, First United rallied from a 6-2 deficit with five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to defeat Markham Woods 8-6 to advance undefeated into the finals.

The big inning started with singles by Dapore and Burke and a Smith walk to load the bases.

Danilla then also walked forcing in a run before Eltonhead and Byrnes reached on consecutive errors scoring two more runs tying the score at 6-6 before Robert Jones walked forcing in another run and Mark Whitley's ground out scored the final run.

Courier storms back to capture French Open victory

By DAVID GRARY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS — If it was Jim Courier's happiest moment, it was clearly one of the toughest for Andre Agassi.

In his gaudy purple-trimmed outfit, he'd outplayed everybody, including Boris Becker. After losses in two previous Grand Slam finals, here was an ideal chance for Agassi to break through against a lower-ranked player he used to practice with at training camp.

But that script went awry. Courier, a native of Sanford, lost two of the first three sets in Sunday's final, then stormed back — aided at times by gusts of wind that troubled Agassi — to win 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4 in his first appearance in a Grand Slam final.

Courier, after flopping on his back and later throwing his lucky baseball cap into the crowd, said, "There have been lots of happy moments in my life. ... but at the moment, this is the happiest."

But Agassi couldn't conceal his dismay at blowing another chance for a Grand Slam title.

"Who knows how many shots you have? I've been fortunate to have three finals, but it's disappointing," said Agassi. "The pessimistic side of me will always have questions."

Courier, 20, had never reached the quarterfinals of a Grand Slam tournament before, but he was more poised than Agassi after two second-set rain delays.

"The rain delays hurt us a little bit, but that's life. That's the way it goes," said Nick Bollettieri, who coaches Agassi and used to train Courier.

Though Bollettieri shared Agassi's disappointment, he was in some ways the biggest winner of the tournament.

Not only Courier and Agassi, but also women's champion Monica

Seles are former pupils at Bollettieri's tennis academy in Florida.

Seles retained her No. 1 ranking with her victory and Stefan Edberg stayed atop the men's list because of Becker's semifinal loss to Agassi. But Courier, who started the year ranked 25th but was ranked ninth in the world when the tournament began, will jump to No. 4, dropping Agassi back a notch to fifth.

Their match was the first all-American final at Roland Garros since 1954. It ended on an ace by Courier, who flopped backward onto the soft clay in triumph.

Courier, who now has won all four of his career finals, pocketed $451,660 — more than he made all of last year. Agassi won $225,830.

For Agassi, it was the second straight year he had lost a French Open final to an underdog. He lost in four sets last year to Andre Gomez, then lost to Pete Sampras in the U.S. Open final in September.

"He'll have his day," Courier said of Agassi. "He's too good a player to be denied his whole career."

Courier followed in the footsteps of Michael Chang, who in 1989 became the first American to win the French Open in 34 years. Courier had the same coach as Chang did then — Higuera.

While Courier and Seles were the champions, the tournament belonged to 38-year-old Jimmy Connors, who battled Chang into a fifth set before succumbing to exhaustion in a third-round match that was the dramatic highlight of the tournament.

The center-court crowd made that clear again Sunday before the Agassi-Courier match. After several former champions were introduced, a special mention was made of Connors, doing TV commentary on the match, and the crowd stood to applaud.

Maples kept Seminole off balance throughout the first game, holding the Tribe to only three hits. He struck out nine and walked seven-four of the walks in the final two innings.

"Mike did a good job," said Deltona head coach Jim Cavriliuk. "I was a little surprised he lasted the whole seven innings, but he pitched pretty well."

Seminole and Deltona traded runs in the first inning. Dave Eckstein singled and scored on Jeremy Chunut's sacrifice fly for Seminole. Brian Bierwagen's sacrifice fly drove in Tom Garrett for Deltona.

Deltona jumped on top with two runs in the fourth. Ariel Lopez sparred the rally with a triple to score Jeff Hastermann and crossed the plate himself on a single by Sam Woodward.

Brian Brooks singled and scored on a throwing error as Deltona added one run in the fifth. Seminole made it 4-3 when Chunut scored on Demi Beamon's two-out infield single.

In an effort to give them more experience, Cavriliuk played some less experienced players from the J.V. team in the second game.

The Tribe opened the scoring in the third when King walked and raced home on Scott Ferguson's sacrifice fly. Deltona tied the score in the fourth as Lopez singled in Richard Herod.

Ferguson singled home Eckstein to give Seminole the lead in the top of the fifth. But Deltona evened the score again in their fifth when Mark DeLaney singled and scored on an error.

Seminole grabbed the lead for good with three runs in the sixth. Matt Freeman led off with a double while King singled in the inning. Freeman, Tony Duncan, and Beamon scored in the inning. Maples walked three batters, threw two wild pitches, and was victimized by a past ball. Ferguson and Chunut both walked and scored in the seventh inning to make the final margin 7-2.

The late-inning offensive outburst pleased Powers.

"We need to work on our offense," said Powers. "We did score some runs, and Jeremy Chunut is swinging the bat well right now."

Morgan struck out four and gave up one hit in pitching the final 1 1/3 innings to pick up his third win of the summer. When he entered in the fifth inning one run had scored and Maples was on first base with two outs.

"Robby did a nice job," said Powers. "He stopped a rallying Deltona team and threw strikes. That's what it takes to win."

Seminole hosts Port Orange Tuesday at 3:00 at Seminole Field.

Trailing 2-0, Markham Woods took an early lead with three runs in the top of the second inning when Davis singled. Walker tripled and Steve Parker singled and later scored on Jason Houghlin's ground out.

Markham Woods added three more in the third when Carlos Colon and Diemer singled, Davis reached on an error scoring Colon, and Walker singled scoring both Diemer and Davis.

But Markham Woods managed only four hits and no runs over the last four innings.

In the other semifinal game Markham Woods squeaked past Central Baptist 3-0 to set up a rematch with First United.

Markham Woods initial run came in the second inning when Diemer doubled and scored on Keith Vincent's single.

They added two runs in the fourth inning when Terwilliger led off with a triple and scored on Davis' single.

Davis then scored on a two-out single by Vincent.

Markham Woods preserved the win by playing some great defense committing only one error, turning two double plays and holding Central Baptist to five singles.

Markham Woods earned their way into the semifinals when they broke open a 2-2 game with three runs in each of the third and fourth innings to defeat Sanford First Nazarene.

Terwilliger and Parker had three hits each to lead Markham Woods while Frank Turner and Shang Gager each had two hits to pace Sanford First Nazarene.

First United advanced to the semifinal by blasting Central Baptist 13-1.

Lyman edges Lake Mary

LAKE MARY - It took five pitchers, but Lyman edged Lake Mary 5-4 in a National Baseball Federation contest Saturday afternoon.

Jason Goodpastor worked out of bases-loaded jams in the bottom of the seventh and completed the eighth to pick up the win, the first against no losses for the Greyhounds. Lake Mary fell to 9-8.

Doug Porter doubled home Kevin Scott for the winning run before Goodpastor mowed down the Rams.

Lake Mary grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Chris Beisler, after reaching first on a fielder's choice, scored on a grounder to short by Dan Anson.

But Lyman answered in the top of the third as Bob Hendt got to first on a fielder's choice, stole second, advanced to third on Will Ramirez's single, and tied the game on Kevin Stanley's grounder to second.

A sacrifice fly by Chad Kessler returned the lead to Lake Mary in the same inning. Scott Johnston walked to begin the rallying, making it 1-3 after an Anson single and a walk to Matt Diemer.

However, the Greyhounds again evened the game in the sixth, with Frank Harmer scoring on a grounder by Donnie Beasler. Chad Beisler doubled to put Harmer on third.

Lake Mary was unable to produce any runs in the last of the eighth.

Not one player had a multiple-hit contest in the pitcher's duel. Mike Lyons started the contest for the Greyhounds and was relieved by Tim Revchidschel, Dave Kessler, Kevin Scott, and finally Goodpastor.

The Rams will play Friday against Daytona Beach at Sanford Stadium.

Sweet potato grows all summer

Summer weather in Central Florida does not allow you to grow many vegetables successfully due to the high humidity and temperature. Most of us put our gardens out of production and work on improving the soil with organic materials or "soil enrichment" (tossing the man to rid our soil of nematodes, some diseases and weeds). But there are a few vegetable crops that prefer our hot and humid summers. One you will have the most success with is the sweet potato.

because when you harvest, it is impossible to find all the small tubers that are produced. These small tubers will sprout again next spring.

Another way to get plants is to purchase sweet potatoes at the grocery store. Break off the shoots plus some roots and plant these in sand. This method is not always successful because many sweet potatoes are sprayed with a "sprout retardant" which prevents sprouts from forming and allows the sweet potato to last longer.

When preparing your soil, it's always a good idea to incorporate lots of organic materials like compost, manure, or peat moss to improve the water and nutrient holding capacity of the soil. Remember, sweet potatoes do not need a lot of nutrients so avoid heavy use of nitrogen fertilizers unless you want all vines and few tubers.

Many plant sweet potatoes in mounded rows or hills. Make a ridge 12 to 16 inches high, and level off the top. You are now ready to plant sweet potato slips. Set the plants out about a foot apart anytime from February to June. While the plants are becoming established, water them frequently. Once established, they may not need to be watered again. And, you may only need to weed in the beginning. As the vines grow, they will take over and the weeds may be crowded out.

In four months or so, you will begin to harvest your sweet potatoes. Sometimes, it can be preferable to leave them in the ground until ready to use them. Sweet potatoes do not store well in the refrigerator.

Other vegetables can also be grown in the summer. A seminar on summer vegetable gardening will be held at the Agriculture Center on Tuesday, June 11, at 7 p.m., in the auditorium. Special guest speaker will be Tom Carey of Sundew Gardens in Oviedo. The program is free and open to the public.

(Celeste White is Seminole County Extension Urban Horticulturist. Phone 323-5500 ext. 6886.)

Sweet potato slips (starter plants) are available by mail order nurseries and some local garden centers. Recommended varieties for Florida include Porto Rico, Georgia Red, Jewel, Centennial, Coastal Sweet and Boniato. Once you or a gardening friend have grown sweet potatoes, you will find that you have all the plants that you want

Three is still a crowd

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate, so I will tell you my problem from the beginning. I am a 38-year-old mother of three. I divorced my husband twice for the same reason. Both times I caught him with another woman. (The same woman, and she was my best friend.)

Now I have a guy I think the world of. I love him like I have never loved anybody in my entire life. I can't stand being away from him. We have everything in common. He keeps telling me how much he loves me, and I know he isn't lying. He treats me like a queen. There is only one problem. He's living with another woman. He says he doesn't love her, and I believe him. He's too kind and decent to tell her he's in love with another woman. He says if she knew, she might even kill herself.

He doesn't want me dating anyone else, but he goes home to her every night and I'm alone.

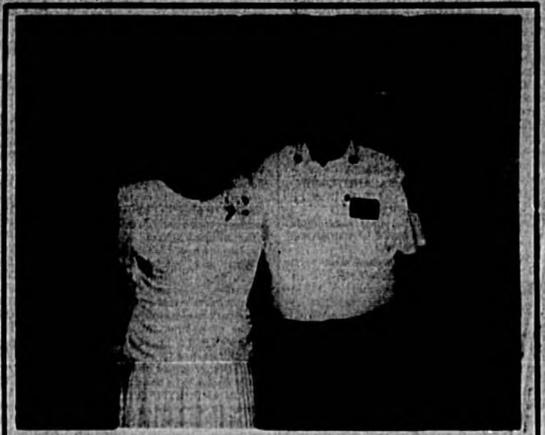

I'm tired of hiding, but I'm afraid if I force him to make a choice, it won't be me. What should I do?

or 8 years old. The poor kid sat on the floor and cried silently while his father delivered these cruel blows with hate in his eyes. I stood no more than 3 feet away throughout this episode, searching for the right words to demand that he stop hurting the boy, but I feared that if I said anything, the man would be angered and embarrassed and would take his anger out on the child later at home.

Please address this issue, Abby. Tell your readers how to handle such situations.

Prednisone treats this muscle disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with a muscle disease called polymyositis that is being treated with prednisone. What can you tell me about this disease?

DEAR READER: Polymyositis, a muscle disease of unknown cause, is one of many autoimmune diseases (such as lupus and scleroderma) marked by the body's inappropriate reaction to its own tissues.

Patients with polymyositis experience muscle pain, inflammation and weakness. The affliction may be associated with malignant tumors elsewhere in the body, and often overlaps with related diseases, such as progressive systemic sclerosis and vasculitis (blood vessel inflammation). Additional symptoms include rash, arthritis, fever, malaise and weight loss.

The diagnosis is suspected from the symptoms, verified by blood tests (which show abnormal proteins and other abnormalities) and confirmed by electromyography (electrical testing of muscles) and muscle biopsy.

The prognosis varies. Some patients, especially children, may experience a mild form of the disease, interspersed with long periods of remission; other patients, notably those with underlying heart or lung disease, may succumb quickly from complications, such as pneumonia.

Prednisone (a type of corticoid) is the treatment of choice and almost always leads to improvement in muscle strength and an overall feeling of well-being. Obviously, if polymyositis is secondary to a tumor, the malignancy must be treated with surgery, radiation or chemotherapy before the muscle disease can be controlled. Maintenance prednisone therapy is the rule, although the dose is adjusted until benefits with the lowest dose are achieved.

Because there is wide variation in the severity of the disease and patients' responses to therapy, I urge you to question your doctor about your specific case.

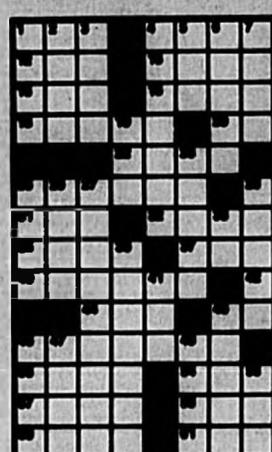

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Lupus: The Great Imitator." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91388, Cleveland, OH 44101-3388.

What makes good defenders at the bridge table? They build up pictures of the unseen hands, so that they can judge how best to try to defeat the contract.

How do defenders build up these pictures? Not only by analyzing the declarer's line of play, but also — and this is more important — by watching their partners' signals. It is vital, for example, to notice that partner played the three before the two, or vice versa. It may make the difference between defeating a contract and letting it make.

Today's hand is a relatively simple example. North's opening bid was unappealing, with no club honor, but it was the correct action with two three-card minors. South's eventual jump to four spades was slightly aggressive, but he liked his apparent double fit in the black suits. A more scientific bid would have been a game-try of three clubs, which North would have rapidly declined by signing off in three spades.

West led a top heart, East dropping the three. What did West know about the heart situation? East could have had a singleton, but it was unlikely. If East had two hearts, he would have dropped the higher card, starting an echo. So East had three or four hearts.

If East held three hearts, cashing the second top heart immediately would establish dummy's queen, giving South a discard for his diamond loser. As there was nowhere for declarer to dump his second heart loser, it was correct for West to switch to the diamond king at trick two.

This play establishes four tricks for the defense: two hearts, one diamond and one club.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 11, 1981

Your leadership qualities will be constructively enhanced in the year ahead. There's a possibility you'll be in the forefront of something that is both exciting and important.

GENEVI (May 21-June 20) The timing is right to tackle something big you've been contemplating but reluctant to attempt. You're in a cycle where you could be lucky where large issues are concerned. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $23 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If something in which you're presently involved is proceeding in a constructive fashion, don't alter your game plan. Leaving it undisturbed enhances its probabilities for getting even better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ventures you personally create or control have excellent chances for success at this time. Back your own horse instead of betting on someone else's pony.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be rather fortunate today: Although you may not be aware of it, several people are pulling for you. What they can do for you is what you wouldn't be able to do on your own.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are presently in a fortunate trend where you can make your hopes realities. Stop sitting on your expectations and start doing something positive about them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your commercial negotiations today, don't be reluctant to initially ask for the moon. Even if you're chopped down several notches, you should still come out rather well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's a time to view an important arrangement you're involved in from a different angle. A fresh perspective could reveal a number of benefits you've been overlooking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Important changes are transpiring at this time that could have an advantageous effect on your career. Probe for information from sources you feel are reliable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be luckier than usual at this time in partnerships — several alliances, not just one in particular.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may not be especially fortunate in your social affairs at this time, but you could be remarkably lucky in material ways. Each are operating under different types of influences.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Personal interests can be advanced today — if you are bold and assertive rather than timid and laid-back. Establish several short-term objectives; you'll function best when busy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects look very encouraging today, especially in arrangements where what you hope to gain can be shared with others. Don't be selfish.
