States Policy Clarified By Talk Ex-Secretary De- clared At Meeting

Is Center Conversations

urse Makes Pro- nd Impression Mexican Capital

ANA, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Sixth Pan-American conference buckled down to work today in an atmosphere of high spirits, as the words of Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of the conference, were heard by the delegates assembled here for the purpose of discussing the policy of the United States in the New World.

Mr. Hughes' address was everywhere the center of conversation. Those who were privately sympathetic with some of the points he made, and who were certain to carry great effect through their own countries, were not alone in their appreciation of the speaker's address.

Mr. Hughes' speech before the Pan-American Congress at Washington, D. C., on Saturday, was the deepest expression of the United States' political doctrine in the Western Hemisphere since the last quarter of a century.

Phrases in the speech referred to mutual respect for all feelings, were stressed as certain to receive a favorable reception in Latin-American countries. The front pages of all the papers there was also some inspiration for the address.

Voice Travels Mile In New Experiment

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS)—A new voice took its place in radio broadcasting history today as messages relayed across the Hudson river through a field telephone were boomeranged back from a high loud speaker a mile away on the roof of the Bell Telephone laboratories on the Manhattan side. The magnificent voice experiment was intended to demonstrate that this latest type of loud speaker would enable 100,000 persons in a mile-wide area to "listen in" to reproductions of sound without the aid of a receiving set. The experiment marked the first time that a human voice had been thrown a mile without distortion according to Dr. R. W. King, who directed the demonstration at Castle Stevens Bluff, Hoboken.

FORSTER BUSY IN BANK WORK FOR 45 YEARS

President Of First National Bank Today Celebrates Anniv- ersary Of His Entry Into Banking Profession In 1883

First Job Was As Assistant Postmaster

First National Survives Many Handicaps Including Fire, Freeze And Financial Panics

Today may be only Monday to most citizens of Sanford but to one of the city's best known and most respected pioneers it is an epochal occasion, marking the achievement of an enviable record and the celebration of an attainment that is the boast of but few men.

It was forty-five years ago to the day that Frank P. Forster, president of the First National Bank of Sanford, embarked on a banking career that has brought him prominence, success and an experience that is rich in traditional performance of duty. That career, although it is climaxed today in the realization of a most noteworthy purpose, has not been without its struggles, hardships and deprivations.

Some of those forty-five years, which Frank P. Forster has served Sanford as a banker, were as disheartening as could be endured by any man. Through fires, freezes, panics and other handicaps, which threatened the town from time to time, Mr. Forster continued his faithful service. There were times when the job seemed almost insurmountable, but an indomitable spirit and courage sent the banker plugging ahead.

Today, forty-five years from the time as a young man of 30 he began work as a teller in the old Lyman Bank, Mr. Forster finds himself the head of Sanford's oldest financial institution, a bank having a capital and surplus of $250,000 and deposits of nearly $2,500,000. He finds himself directing the affairs of an institution which is housed in one of the finest and most modern bank buildings in the state, and incidentally his office is not 300 hundred feet away from the place where he started out nearly a half century ago.

And what is the secret of the bank's success? It is based upon a policy, a very definite policy summed up in the commonplace slogan of "Safety First." Legitimate needs of its clients have been met and progressive help extended to all. In addition there has been a faithful and courteous service, extended to all, a record that enables the institution today to boast the fact that it has never found it necessary to sue on a note.

Forty-five years have turned his hair a silvery gray and have impaired the sight of two flashing gray eyes, but they have not dimmed Mr. Forster's enthusiasm or whitened his hair when as a youngster he dreamed of the day when he should be the head of a big bank. His walk is upright, his body erect as a soldier's. His voice is clear and deep, carries its message with senatorial effect.

Three quarters of a century have not bowed the head nor bent the shoulders one bit. He is not seventy-five years old—he is a youth twenty-five years young. And that is the picture of Frank Forster today. Eager for another day's work, looking for another opportunity to succeed, he tackles his bank problems with as much fervor as ever.

Beginning another milestone in his banking career today, he is ambitious to stretch his service period to fifty years. The fact that he has reached an age at which most men have long been retired seems to make him even more resolute in his determination to attain his newest desire. And the remarkable energies of the man seem to speak right out in fulfillment of that aim.

Today as he looked forward to another year, Mr. Forster was the recipient of the heartiest felicitations from his associates, friends and acquaintances. Business men by the scores came to offer their congratulations and well wishes for continued success. There came many messages from out-of-town, all of them containing the most cordial greetings and reflecting the esteem and admiration with which the veteran banker is held by people all over Florida and the southeast.

In the time of Henry VII. of England a curious statute was passed which prohibited all of his Majesty's subjects except the nobility and the royal family from playing cards during the Christmas holidays.

Frank Forster Gives Views On Variety Of Subjects On 45th Anniversary In Bank

On the occasion of the forty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the profession of banking, Frank P. Forster, president of the First National Bank, has allowed himself to deviate from his usual custom of avoiding newspaper interviews and has expressed himself upon a wide variety of topics to a representative of The Herald.

When asked what he considered Seminole County's greatest single asset, Mr. Forster replied, "Celery—but I think some of our farmers should devote some of their time to the poultry and dairy business." He added that in his opinion finer results could be obtained if the farmers would get together and form co-operative marketing associations such as they now have in California. He deprecates the present "hit-or-miss system of marketing celery."

Mr. Forster was unqualified in his optimism for the future of Florida, declaring it to be brighter than for any other state in the nation. As for the prosperity of the country in general, Mr. Forster expressed the opinion that conditions would be good, considering the fact that it is a presidential year, and would continue to get better.

Mr. Forster is of the opinion that the Republican party will again nominate Calvin Coolidge in spite of his objections to this

AIRPLANE MAKER PREDICTS GREAT FUTURE IN FLYING

Manufacturer Who Has Just Arrived In Tampa From De- trotit By Plane Says Men Will Fly Here To Weekend

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23.—(INS)—"Within a year, New York businessmen will week-end in Florida through the winter," was the prediction of Eddie Stinson, Detroit airplane manufacturer and pilot who arrived here Saturday night after a non-stop flight of 1,100 miles from Chicago in seven hours and fifty-five minutes with two passengers.

"In a year," said Stinson here today, a man flying across the continent will be no more a novelty than it was to take the first automobile. "American businessmen demand the elimination of time in the conduct of business and the airplane does it. Night flying has been so greatly developed and improved that there will be no delay."

Arthur Brisbane travels across the continent three times a month by rail, taking airplanes at the time. He'll have his own plane next and will take a dozen trips in the time he now makes three.

"Air mail carriers have demonstrated the feasibility of night flying and it won't be long before the fog radio will conquer the fog difficulty. It will make landing in a fog as easy as a railroad train makes its station. I can see a wonderful development along this line by next year. The government and private agencies are doing much work along this line, Henry Ford doing especially fine work."

"Next year," Stinson said, "will see non-stop airplanes running in all directions over the country. Stinson flew here with two passengers in a Stinson-Detroit plane from Chicago in order to deliver the plane to A. S. Kirby Chicago and Tampa capitalists. Kirby plans to commute between Chicago and Tampa offices weekly by plane. He plans to fly to Tampa one day and return to Chicago the next."

Colonel Lindbergh Definitely Maps Out His Flying Program

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 23.—(INS)—A definite announcement of his flight schedule which will lead him to Havana was made today by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Next Friday, Jan. 27, the flyer said, he will take off for Bogota, Colombia. From there, he said, he would fly to Caracas, Venezuela, arriving on the 31st. He will also touch at St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands, on the 31st; Porto Rico on Feb. 2, and Santo Domingo two days later.

This will bring him to Havana on Feb. 6. From then on, Col. Lindbergh said, he has no definite plans. Today Col. Lindbergh expected to make a short flight to test his plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, which has been idle for some days while the young flyer rested.

HUNT CHANGES TO COLLEGE OF MISSING GIRL

All Employees And Members Of Faculty Are Questioned To Draw Out Slightest Bit Of Clue In Solving Mystery

Officers Conduct Search Of Campus

Report That Girl Resembling Frances Smith Was Seen In Paris Has Been Discounted

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 23.—(INS)—Search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College freshman, centered at the college today. Every employee was examined to draw out the slightest bit of evidence. Every building was combed from cellar to attic. Ash piles, scrap heaps, coal heaps, every possible hiding place was ransacked.

Each of Miss Smith's teachers and faculty members was questioned regarding her studies and habits, in the hope that information thus gained will aid in clearing up the mystery which has aroused nation-wide interest.

This minute combing of the Smith grounds followed the huge two-day effort of the state constabulary which failed to uncover a single clue after scouring the countryside for a 20-mile area in the vicinity of Northampton.

State Detective Edward J. McCarthy, of Worcester, was called into the case today when State Detective Joseph V. Daly, sought his assistance to question Miss Mary Bouquet, of Spencer. Miss Bouquet reported that she had seen Miss St. John in a Worcester store.

A report that a girl resembling Miss Smith had been seen in the Back Bay district of Boston by Miss Beatrice Fuller was being investigated by Boston police today. Another report under investigation was that Miss Smith was located in the Hotel Astor, Paris, France, by Inspector Leon, celebrated French detective.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(INS)—A young woman registered at the Hotel Astor who was believed to be Miss Frances St. John Smith, of New York, missing Smith College student, proved today to be Miss Annie Smith, of New York, who is accompanied by a traveling companion. The missing Miss Smith has reddish brown hair; the girl at the Hotel Astor is a blonde.

Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador, has received a cablegram from relatives of Miss Frances Smith asking him to assist the search that is being made in Paris for the missing girl.

The supposition in New York that the Miss Smith at the Hotel Astor might be the missing girl arose from a cablegram she sent to relatives in New York on Saturday without giving an adequate address.

Senator Declares U.S. Should Assume River Control Task

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Full responsibility, both as to costs and construction, should be undertaken by the Federal Government in providing for flood control works along the Mississippi, Senator Hawes (D) of Missouri declared today as the Senate Commerce Committee opened its hearings on the flood problem.

"It is impossible for many of the states which suffered from the recent flood to contribute money toward this project," he asserted. "Describing the flood control problem as 'the most gigantic problem, costing more money than any enterprise in which the United States has ever been asked to take part,' Senator Hawes estimated the project would cost nearly $775,000,000, including the cost of spillways and other flood control works contained in the army engineers' recommendations as well as plans for improving navigation on the Mississippi and its tributaries."

"Some national responsibility for the flood control works alone," he said, "according to Major General Jadin, chief of army engineers, would cost the Federal Government $400,000,000."

Officials Baffled By Carolina Killing

BREVARD, N. C., Jan. 23.—(INS)—Baffled on every side, authorities today continued an investigation into the slaying in an isolated Hogback mountain cabin of Ulysses Robinson, giant mountaineer. His body riddled with pistol bullets was found in his cabin by mountain friends who heard Robinson's groans. He was taken over almost inaccessible hills and swollen rivers to a hospital here, where he died. Joe Revis, the slain man's father-in-law, was held on suspicion following the dying man's utterance that "the old man shot me." Mrs. Ulysses Robinson, beautiful young widow of the dead man, was being gruffed by authorities in an effort to learn more details of incidents preceding the murder.

OPPOSING CAMPS IN HICKMAN CASE PLAN CAMPAIGNS

Father Of Slayer Of Los An- geles Girl And Several Al- lenists Will Endeavor To Es- tablish Youth's Insanity

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 23.—(INS)—One father against another. Four alienists against another. These were the opposing lines, assuming sharp contradiction today as the people of California against the people of California against William Edward Hickman, drew nearer with each passing hour.

Fitted against each other in what promises to be the most spectacular court drama in the history of California, will be the two fathers, whose offspring were the central figures in a crime that numbed a nation with horror.

Two more days of final preparation of testimony by both state and defense attorneys remain before the "fox" comes to the bar of justice in Judge Carlos S. Hardy's superior court.

On the one side during the forthcoming trial, Thomas Hickman of El Paso, Texas, according to present indications, will strive by his testimony to convince the jury that his son evidenced signs of insanity.

On the other side, Perry M. Parker, it was announced by the district attorney's office, will take the stand and describe the events leading up to and including the payment of $1,500 on the night of Dec. 17 last in exchange for the mutilated torso of his daughter, Marlon, tossed from an automobile to the pavement at his feet.

A mother, perhaps, will also take part in the court spectacle. Though what her part will be has not been divulged by defense attorneys. The mother is Mrs. Eva Hickman, who, today was on her way from Kansas City to Los Angeles. It is thought that her testimony, if she is called to the witness stand, will be of the same nature as that which the elder Hickman, from whom she is divorced is expected to deliver, namely that her son showed early indications of mental abnormality.

Press Photographer Stabs Former Wife

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(INS)—"I was the first and I'll be the last." With these words Charles MacMillan, former Rochester newspaper photographer, plunged a knife into the back of pretty Viola Cotton, his former wife, according to police. The alleged attack was witnessed by the girl's mother and a man friend.

MacMillan rushed from the house, and drove away in an automobile. Miss Cotton was taken to a hospital, where it was said her condition was critical. All available detectives were ordered out to search for MacMillan.

MINE OFFICIAL HITS LAXITY OF FEDERAL LAWS

Philip Murray States Narcotic Laws And Prohibition Act Are Flagrantly Broken

Reveals Lawless Condition In Mines

Appeals To Treasury To Suppress Exist- ing Law Violation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Prohibition and anti-narcotic laws have been cast into the discard in the Western Pennsylvania soft coal fields where vice, bootlegging, the dope traffic and murder flourish notoriously. Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America charged today.

In a demand on the Treasury Department for immediate suppression of coal field lawlessness, Murray asserted that conditions in the Pittsburgh district are an open scandal constituting "a disgrace to the community, a humiliation to good citizenship, and a standing menace to the peace, order, safety and morals of the people."

"In the interests of law and order and public decency, we petition the Bureau of Prohibition to take proper action in the premises," Murray said in a letter to Commissioner James M. Doran.

Immediately on receipt of Murray's letter Doran got in touch with Prohibition Administrator J. D. Pennington, at Pittsburgh and ordered an exhaustive investigation of the charges.

Doran also dispatched a number of special investigators to Pittsburgh. They will launch a complete survey of the situation, probably today. The investigation by the Washington bureau will be independent of that to be conducted by Pennington, the authorities here said.

"Conditions in the Pittsburgh district are not as black as pictured by Murray," in my opinion," Doran told the International News Service. "Pennington has been doing a good job at Pittsburgh and every effort is being made to keep down the liquor and narcotic traffic."

Preliminary reports of the Pittsburgh situation probably will be in the hands of Doran by the middle of the week. "While the conditions to which we direct your attention are common in the mining camps of Western Pennsylvania, we call your special attention to the notorious violations of the Federal Prohibition Laws in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company," Murray told Doran.

"It is notorious that this condition exists in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and that it has continued for many months past, apparently without interference by the officers of the law."

Murray asserted that both men and women bootleggers supply liquor in these camps, that peddlers of dope circulate among the employes, that drunken brawls are common and that fights and assaults by drunken men and women no longer attract more than passing attention.

Nearly 100 murders have occurred in the Pittsburgh District. One camp, many of which can be traced to bootleg liquor, Murray said.

Women of Holland are just becoming interested in what are known as fashionable shoes.

Tunney and Rickard Agree On Number Of Fights That Will Be Held This Summer

By Davis J. Walsh, International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Details of an agreement reached by Gene Tunney and Tex Rickard, whereby the champion is to be allowed to "beat" the uncompromising terms of the Rickard contract so that he can fight for his boy friend, Jim Mullen, in Chicago, came to the writer today from a source within the official family of the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

The compromise, it was declared, called for two provisions. First, that Tunney would defend his title under Rickard's banner not later than July, which immediately would take the curse off the Rickard option. Second, that Tunney now fast-horse in the matter of legal obligations, would then be free to discharge a purely personal one by fighting somebody, probably Jack Delaney, for Mullen in Sept.

With this statement came the alleged reason for Tunney's sudden desire, expressed a few months ago, to fight twice in defense of his heavyweight championship next summer. Already under contract to Rickard because of signing that famous pact in St. Louis, Tunney knew that he must fight twice. Otherwise, his friend, Mullen, would be able to do himself almost no good and Tunney's oral promise after the last fight in Chicago would become worthless.

So, it was said, Tunney began outbidding Rickard with the inevitable result that they are getting together and, in fact, already have done so. The getting together is supposed to have re-

SPORT ACTIVITY GIVEN IMPETUS AT UNIVERSITY

Basketball Season Is Well Under Way While Baseball Practice Is Scheduled Soon

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA, Jan. 21 (Athletic News Bureau).—Despite the fact that mid-term examinations loom in the immediate offing, the delightful spring weather that hovers over the University of Florida has given a decided impetus to sport activity.

Basketball, enjoying seemingly more representative varsity and freshman teams than in recent years have drawn larger crowds than ever before. With a new and large basketball auditorium, the Florida hoopers are enjoying their favorite sport as Gator teams in the past were not privileged to do. Brady Cowell is handling the varsity with Dr. Haskell supervising.

Varsity pitchers and catchers have been practicing for almost two weeks, rounding their respective arms into shape for the big opening program. Why not? It is supposed to have been his, Tunney's in the first place.

Dempsy quite naturally is the choice opponent for the June date. But why do you think Jack Sharkey was sent before the State Athletic Commission to file a challenge to Tunney? Not because he was entitled to do so after what happened in the "Money" fight. He was told to go in order to establish priority claims on a Tunney fight here in the event that there proved to be anything in the tales that Dempsy was going blind or that he had decided that enough was much to much. It is no star chamber secret that Rickard looks to Sharkey as the logical substitute challenger in the event that Dempsy is not available.

POPULARITY OF CHAMPION GENE GROWS RAPIDLY

Public Opinion Swinging Now To Heavyweight Titleholder As Recent Incidents Show

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(INS)—Slowly but with insistent finality, that grim, inexorable pendulum that is Public Opinion is swinging toward and in favor of a man who, less than a year ago, was unathletic to the average palate, if one was to believe all he heard.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, is coming into the popularity that the title in question is tacitly but often erroneously supposed to endow its possessor.

Within recent weeks, two demonstrations, effectively pointing the way to this conclusion have occurred. On Christmas Day at Miami, Fla., a famous professor at Yale delivered himself of a sermon at one of the churches. It was a simple direct and without a forcible message and the congregation is presumed to have been duly moved. But, at the same time, he gathered about the lecturer, the name of the day, to get informally by views on that hand and to offer the usual amenities? In behalf of education and uplift, I am pained to say that it did not.

Even while the great man was in the place of his most convincing oratory, the appearance of another and more interesting character upon the stage had been noted. And so, when the ceremony was over, the good people, men and women, boyed that impulse and gathered about Gene Tunney to shake his hand and hearten to his precise enunciation.

A comparative few days later, Tunney was a guest of honor at the All Champions' dinner in New York. Tilden, Ruth, Bobby Jones and other great figures in the world of sport were there as honored guests, too, and each was formally introduced. The diners cheered the others with hearty good will. But they stood on their feet as a tribute to Tunney.

Say that you will, the man that has that compelling type of personality that demands and receives respect. The church people gave it to him because his life exemplifies their conception of decency, physical and mental. The sports world is getting around to that point but for reasons dissimilar and diverse.

Tunney's rather profound dignity is beginning to have its moral effect upon the sensibilities of those around and about him. His unspoken attitude says that he is important. Somehow, no one yet has been able to work up the feeling that he looks down on an important man. One as readily might look down on Mount Blanc from the crest of a subway kiosk.

Another element that is capturing public interest is that ineffable air of mystery with which Tunney has surrounded himself. Many men know him casually, few with any degree of intimacy. If he were a street cleaner, this state of affairs might be generally acceptable. But he is the heavyweight champion of the world and so many people would like to know his pleasures, whims, idiosyncrasies and various other facts of his personality. Instead, they know nothing of him at all. His seclusion is impenetrable.

There is nothing like that sort of thing for whetting the public appetite for details, authentic or otherwise, as Mr. Ford brilliantly surmised when he was about ready to come forth with his new car.

Finally, there is the matter of Tunney's ability as a fighting man. When he dethroned Jack Dempsy in Philadelphia, many refused to accept the verdict as final and they resented Tunney forthwith as a man whose only claim to consideration was predicated on the fact that he had profited by another man's ineptitude. In short, they didn't think he could fight.

They now are beginning to realize that he can. That second victory in Chicago, including the detail of getting off the floor in the seventh round and from that point going on to win convincingly, has begun to have its inevitable effect.

But he hasn't expected to beat

Ace Hudkins Defeats Tendler In Decisive Round Bout At The Garden

By DAVIS J. WALSH International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Too rough said the gent who had used a nail file for a tooth brush. Too rough, echoed Lew Tendler, shrewd cagey survivor of some fourteen embattled years in the prize ring and he was referring to neither nail files nor tooth brushes. For, he the former ever so rough and the latter ever so brittle, they are so much velour in comparison with Ace Hudkins, the neanderthal man from Nebraska.

As the writer saw Hudkins at Madison Square Garden, he was too rough, too rough and just about everything for the entire welterweight division. He hasn't beaten Joe Dundee the champion, and he won't—until he meets him. Dundee is a fairly representative champion but there have been only two battling Nilsons known to boxing and the other one is Hudkins. It is difficult to see how he can miss the title, if given a break.

The only break that Tendler got last night was that the bout was scheduled for ten rounds. Eleven might have been too much and fifteen would have been out of all reason. Tendler, now hovering about the edge of the middleweight division, had trained to a whisper, barely laid to the bell in the seventh and ninth rounds. A less gifted man, and there are only about ten thousand of them, would have folded up under the venerable Tendler's blows, but Lewis is a game as well as good and he proved it in the final round when he fought the Ace to a standstill and had his yellow head bouncing back on his shoulder blades from left hooks to the chin.

But a flash is an ephemeral thing, at best, and Tendler's last round rap was only a flash after all. You can't hurt Hudkins with a punch on a goatee any more than you can pierce iron with a hot pin. Two more rounds might have finished Tendler; five more certainly would have done so.

As it was, Hudkins carried over round except the third and the tenth, dropping Tendler clean for a count of eight in the seventh round with a left to the stomach and a right cross to the jaw. Too much enthusiasm for the kill stopped Hudkins from getting it in this round just too much gameness on Tendler's part achieved the same result in the sixth, in which the ropes with a left and right and kept roomed a right to the body with a degree of sincerity that really seemed too much for human flesh to withstand. Tendler was so nonplussed about it, in fact, that he kicked very determinedly to a neutral corner.

But he hasn't expected to beat the Hudkins who was 147 pounds when he got the title and Ace was 145 pounds over the champion night.

In consequence he is er, more durable than before and he is trying the extra rounds, he leaned back in his chair, ready to spring at the bell. He had the gun in the hand and he stood in his official decorum and he was pleased.

Tom Heeney and Delaney Will Battle In A Fifteen Round Bout Next March

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(INS)—Tom Heeney will meet Jack Dempsey in a fifteen-round bout here in the next March, 1 and Jack Shanks will be matched for the same date with Johnny Riska on Mar. 12.

The survivors will fight in May and the winner will be world's champion. The fight will take place in June at the Yankee Stadium here if it is that they produce an outstanding contender.

Otherwise Jack Dempsy will be Tunney's first opponent and Rickard will hold his own until Sept. 15, when he will be the heavyweight champion.

If Dempsy should get first crack at Tunney and regain his title, there will be no further championship scuffling this year. That is the way the heavyweight situation shaped up today following the departure of Tex Rickard for a month's vacation in Florida. He will confer with Tunney in Miami and guard his interests against those villainous Chicago promoters

Promoter Relates Chicago Boxer Wins Plans Of Tourney Bout From Filipino At Mullen's Arena

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(INS)—Promoter Humbert J. Fogazy has announced plans for a series of heavyweight eliminations in opposition to the tournament which Tex Rickard is conducting.

After labelling Rickard's troupe as a flock of burlesquers and predicting the competition would lead to nothing but a third match between Jack Dempsy and Gene Tunney, the good signor said he proposed to break Rickard's "monopolistic hold" by producing an "opponent Tunney cannot side-step."

Fogazy is negotiating for a match between George Godfrey new black menace, and Knute Hansen, who hasn't been able to get a match here since he stopped Phil Scott in a round. Fogazy hopes to bring either Luis Firpo or Victor Campolo here for a match with Roberto Roberti. Campolo, a high-touted young Argentine heavyweight, is said to be waiting for New York this month. Roberti is a young Italian giant who has been bowling over second raters. Paulino, declared out of Rickard's eliminations, may go under Fogazy's banner again.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(INS)—If Jack Dempsy returns to the ring this year he will be conditioned by Leo P. Flynn, who trained the former heavyweight champion for his two bouts last year. According to Flynn, Dempsy will come here next month to begin preparing for a bout with Gene Tunney. Jack said in a letter that he was in fine condition and was having no trouble with his eyes. Flynn intimated that Dempsy would meet no other opponent until he faced Tunney again.

Banking Career Of Forster Filled With Interesting Events

First National Head Started In Bank Following Son As Postmaster For 2 Years

Helped Form First National In 1887

Local Bank Was Only One Of 8 In County That Did Not Fail

Frank P. Forster, president of the First National Bank, who today celebrates the forty-fifth anniversary of his entry into the banking profession, is a man whose life is as interesting as any story book. He is the only director who was a member of the bank's first board and has served continuously in that capacity.

In 1908 after the First National had occupied the little brick building for some twenty years, the structure underwent extensive repairs and alterations. Part of the brick was removed and the building was veneered with marble. A large vault was installed and other changes were made in order to care for the increased business of the institution.

In 1920 the bank's officers were faced with the problem of doing one of two things: Its quarters must be expanded again or another new structure must be constructed. After some consideration of the matter, the bank decided to erect a new home and the corner where the institution now stands was purchased for $30,000. It was the first big real estate deal consummated in Sanford and was the "talk of the town" for months afterwards.

Construction of the building, a six-story brick and stone finished structure, was started in 1921. When completed it cost approximately $250,000 and was financed without any outside help to the institution. The structure was erected on the "cost plus 10 per cent" plan and in this way its builders saved an estimated amount of $25,000.

One of the chief features about the bank's quarters is its steel vault, which at the time of its installation was one of the largest in the state. The huge circular door weighs 18 tons and is 12 inches in thickness. The rear side of the door is enclosed in glass displaying an intricate locking mechanism. The combination is electrically operated.

At the time of its erection, many Sanford people said the building was too large for the needs of the city and that it would be years before its numerous office spaces could be filled. In answer to this officials of the institution today point to the fact that of 77 office rooms available 60 of them are occupied and have been for some time.

Today the building and lot are conservatively valued at $300,000 and its furniture and fixtures at $26,250. However, on the books a complete valuation of only $206,250 is carried, the building being appraised at $180,000.

Some idea of the growth of the institution is gained by a comparison of figures on its capital stock and surplus. Organized with a capital of $50,000, this amount was reduced to $25,000 in 1895 following the Big Freeze. In 1914 the capital stock was still $25,000 but there was a surplus of $25,000. Three years later the capital stock had been increased to $45,000 and the surplus to the same amount. In the intervening years the resources of the institution have been gradually increased until today its capital stock is $150,000 and its surplus $100,000. Fifty thousand dollars of the capital stock represents a stock dividend that has been declared from time to time but which has been added to the institution's resources.

Following the Big Freeze of 1895, the bank's deposits dropped as low as $60,000. In 1915, 20 years later, they totaled $317,269.85. A year later the deposits had climbed to $367,255.31. In May of the same year they had been increased to $522,230.78. In 1920 the institution boasted deposits of $1,080,634.82 and at the close of business for the year 1927 that sum had been increased to $2,261,743.54. Today the bank has about 6000 accounts.

The bank's business today is managed by a staff of 17 persons including Mr. Forster. Three of the officers have been connected with the institution for long periods. Mr. Forster for 45 years, Mr. Whitner for 39 years and A. L. Betts, assistant cashier for 22. Other employees of the bank include: A. F. Collum, J. E. Rowland and R. C. Thrasher, tellers; Paulk Reeves, H. E. Edwards, R. B. Wright, O. C. McBride and Russell Warren, bookkeepers; Mrs. Jean Michael and Mrs. Eva Mae Speedo, discount M. V. Brabury, Mrs. F. P. Strange, and Hope Huff, collecting and transit department, and William Ballard, janitor and "general factotum" for life.

Mr. Forster was born March 10, 1853 in Ohio where he lived until he was a young man. He left his home, 80 miles north of Cincinnati, on November 22, 1875 bound for Florida. Five days later he arrived at Meltonville, east of what is now Sanford. He came from Jacksonville on a boat, no railroad connecting the two sections at that time.

Mr. Forster's first night in Meltonville was spent at the old Pace Home and the following day he moved to Fort Read where he opened a small store. His first home was with a brother-in-law, a Mr. Van Deman, who lived on Golden Lake. An interesting fact connected with his coming to Florida is Mr. Forster's recollection that his first orange was one from a grove owned by the father of Alexander Vaughan, Seminole County tax assessor.

Mr. Forster lived in Meltonville for two years and in 1877 he moved to Sanford. His first job here was as deputy postmaster under the late Thomas Emmett Wilson. He held this position for a year and was then "fired" because he was a Democrat. Later he was appointed postmaster under a Republican administration and in 1882 was removed from that office, again because he was a Democrat.

It was a year after leaving the postmastership that Mr. Forster began his long service in the banking profession. Organized with that business, he engaged in no others except for a brief period when he served as the first general freight and ticket agent of the South Florida Railroad.

Mr. Forster was an alderman in the early city government of Sanford and in 1921 was honored by the citizens of Seminole County with election to the state legislature in Tallahassee. He retired from this office after serving one term.

Mr. Forster holds membership in only one fraternal order today, the Masons, having been affiliated with the Sanford lodge for many years. At one time he was prominent in the affairs of the Knights of Honor, fraternity that has been out of existence for many years. In 1891 to 1892 he represented the state of Florida in the Supreme Lodge of the order, which at that time boasted a membership of about 500,000. He was for 10 years state treasurer of the organization and also served a term as Grand Vice Dictator.

The Sanford banker is an active and enthusiastic member of the Florida Bankers Association and at one time served that organization in the capacity of vice president.

Mr. Forster derives keen enjoyment in reminiscing of the early days of Sanford. Among the interesting facts he recalls are that T. Herson was mayor when he came here. The banker well recalls the opening of the old Sanford House which took place on January 1, 1886 and remembers how it used to be the center of social activity.

Fifty years before the opening of the famous old hostelry, the South Florida Railroad came into Sanford. President Grant had visited the city when construction of the road was started and amid picturesquely colorful scenes the Executive had drawn the first spadeful of dirt. The first engine for use on the new railroad, named the "Seminole", weighed five tons and was shipped to Sanford by boat from Jacksonville.

In 1886 the second railroad came into Sanford, being the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railroad. The two roads later merged and Sanford was given good service between southern and northern parts of the state.

Mr. Forster had a part in the construction of another railroad, which today is only a memory. The banker was one of the five men who were responsible for the financing and installation of the Sanford and Everglades Railroad, a trolley line which operated between this city and the section which now comprises most of the celery delta on the east side.

The beginning of the celery industry is another favorite reminiscence of Mr. Forster. Shortly after the freeze, he recalls that local business men began to cast about for something to take the place of the citrus crop, which before that time had been the chief source of revenue for the community. At that time B. F. Whitner Sr., father of the cashier of the bank, was growing celery in his garden for private use.

Upon the suggestion of S. O. Chase and others, Mr. Whitner was prevailed upon to experiment with the product to ascertain its possibilities for commercial purposes. Three fourths of an acre were planted on the shores of Lake Jessup. The land was irrigated by means of wooden troughs and the celery was blancheted by placing the sides of orange boxes in the ground next to the plant.

In 1897 the first commercial shipment was made and it was brought an excellent price. Mr. Forster recalls. Shortly after that Mr. Whitner and a man by the name of Campbell began the production of celery on a large scale and others followed until the industry has attained its present-day proportions.

The banker remembers that the late George H. Fernald brought the first automobile to Sanford after purchasing a second-hand machine in Winter Park. Mr. Forster doesn't recall the year of this important event but says it was a "long time ago." Another early auto owner was W. T. Johns, operator of a railroad restaurant here. J. N. Whitner owned the first Ford in Sanford; it was declared.

Population of the town at the time of the big freeze in 1887 was 2,500, Mr. Forster said, and eight years later at the time of the freeze it was about 3,500. The population showed a decrease for several years after the freeze, many people moving away to places where they could secure work.

His first home was with a brother-in-law, a Mr. Van Deman, who lived on Golden Lake. FILM CRITIC SAYS FOREIGN ACTORS CONTENTED HERE

Declares Revivified Motion Picture Industries In Europe Will Not Lure Many Of Their Stars Back Home

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The belief that the men and women from Europe who have made fame and fortune in Hollywood are not anxious to quit America and try their luck in the revivified motion picture studios of Europe, was expressed by Iris Barry, film critic of the London "Daily Mail," in a recent article.

Miss Barry recently returned from America where she made an extensive study of motion picture conditions.

"Two things have alarmed the film community of Hollywood," Miss Barry declares, "and not without reason.

"One of the growing reactions against the domination of the screens of the world by the Hollywood product. Another is the decision of Wall Street that the business of making pictures is being conducted in a lunatic manner, and a warning has been issued, a peremptory command for reform.

"In response to the European distaste for an exclusive diet of Hollywood-made films they threaten Hollywood might retaliate by sending back to Europe all the famous actors and directors now working in the studios there but who originally came from this side of the ocean.

"Such a childish point of view would be utterly futile, were it not indicative of the narrow-mindedness of a part of the film community. Hollywood obviously felt in need of Europeans like Ernst Lubitsch, Roginald Deany, Ronald Colman, Ernest Torrence, Victor McLaglen, Olive Brook, Holmes Herbert, Herbert Brehon, Paul Loni, Conrad Veidt, and Emil Jannings, since it is prepared to make it worth their while to come to Hollywood. To talk of retaliation by exiling all these people is rubbish. Europe asks nothing better!

"Incidentally, there is hardly one of these men, besides more than a few of the Americans, who does not plan to go to Europe to make pictures at the earliest possible opportunity. Adolphe Menjou, for instance, has such an idea in mind, and he is far from being alone.

Sees Big Waste
Miss Barry dwelt in some detail upon charges of tremendous waste of money in the making of American pictures.

"The waste of money in many cases is almost incredible," she declared. "Stars are kept on contract for months, idle; it is the same with directors and screenwriters. Big salaries are constructed but never used. And more: the exorbitant salaries of the men whose function it is to guide film production are added, besides the show waste, to production costs.

"These film magnates, drawing the salaries of Eastern princes, are the very men who permit the extravagances, the waste and the riotous folly which are drawing the wrath of the financiers on Hollywood.

"Jazz is out of date," says Chevallier. "The public tires even of the best things, admitting that jazz may have belonged to that class. "Nevertheless we must not under jazz too much. Even if it has been overdone to the point of causing nausea, these American and negro rhythms pepped up our old music, injecting new blood and vitality into it.

"We have watched the triumph of jazz. It probably would not have been as great a triumph here if it had not been for our multitudes of visitors, chiefly American. Now I think we are watching its decadence.

Chevallier is now staring in the new revue at the Casino de Paris. Just before opening there he completed a tour of the provinces, taking with him only a jazz band, but plus two extra pianists.

"Bang Own Bang
"Often I sing my songs simply with piano accompaniment," said Chevallier. "I found my audiences preferred that to the wild animal

He added, however, he would not be surprised to see the Fourth Florida Congressional District, of which Sanford is a Republican before many years have elapsed, although no predictions to make as whether all Florida would ever be the "Solid South."

...The bill range all the way from outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Volstead Act to local option and referendum on prohibition. The option plan was proposed by Senator Bruce (D) of Maryland. He would empower Congress to regulate, but not prohibit, manufacture and sale of liquor. His measure, a joint resolution, provided for a constitutional amendment, and for enactment would require ratification by three-fourths of the states' legislatures.

FEDERAL OWNERSHIP ASKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Government ownership and operation of all telegraph and telephone lines would be provided under bill introduced today by Rep. Berger (S) of Wisconsin. He said the American Telephone and Telegraph Company "has destroyed practically all competition in the telephone business. Dominates the field in which it operates and is piling up tremendous profits by purchasing apparatus from subsidiaries."

LEADS IN SCORING

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Fodder of the still is the high scorer in the Eastern Inter-collegiate Basketball League today with a total of 35 points in four games. Layton of Cornell is the real leader, however, with 30 points in one of two games. Layton and Heep of Dartmouth are tied for second place. Cornell kept its record unblemished by defeating Columbia on Saturday night. The Cornell-Princeton game on Wednesday will be the last league contest played until Feb. 11.

BRITISH ACE LEAVES

MALTA, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Sir Alan Cobham, British war ace, took off today for Benghazi, North Africa, continuing his flight about that continent. Cobham started from England several months ago, but was detained here by bad weather and the necessity of making repairs on his machine.

Amateur Bandit Shot In His First Attempt

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Out of work five months, "nagged" by friends of his wife who urged her to have him arrested for non-support of herself and their 3 year old daughter, Lorraine, Edward Graham 27, turned would-be bandit and was shot to death during his first attempted hold-up a sham affair without a gun or any other means to enforce his command of "hands up."

PRINCE ESCAPES ACCIDENT

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(INS)—How the Prince of Wales narrowly missed serious injury in a near accident at Jettoc Mowbray Saturday became known today. A heavy lorry, kidding badly at the Prince's car, came along the road, missed crashing into it by inches. Only the royal chauffeur's quick action at the wheel averted what would have been a serious accident.

SALESLADIES WANTED

Must be refined, age 25 to 35, educated and free to travel. To sell well-known product from house to house. Guaranteed salary and commission. Steady work with nationally known concern. Apply between 7 and 9 p. m. today. P. A. Bowen, Room 102, Seminole Hotel.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Announcement has been made from Windsor, Vermont, that Mrs. Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt, divorced two months ago at Reno, Nevada, from Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Jasper Morgan, son of the famous yachtsman, Edwin D. Morgan of New York, were married and on their honeymoon today. Mrs. Morgan was the former Rachel Littleton of Chattanooga, Tenn., half-sister of Martin W. Littleton, famous New York lawyer.

BLAST INVESTIGATED

OGDEN, Ark., Jan. 23.—(INS)—An investigation into the tank car explosion on the Kansas City Southern Railroad that killed three persons and injured nine others here late yesterday was instituted by railroad officials here today. Scott Sharp Texarkana; P. A. Sellers, Teikana; and John Snow, negro Cedar Grove, La., were killed.

For the first time in more than 200 years visitors to the old Cooper's Hall, London, are not being received by a man named Boyer, the last of that name to serve as clerk. E. Lawrence Boyer, having died at the age of 70 recently.

Graham was shot accidentally when a crowd of spectators near a crowded picture theatre jostled the arm of a special detective causing the discharge of his revolver. Arthur Bedard, the detective, told police he had not meant to fire the gun. He tried to hold up the theatre.

At a whist party at Southwark, England, recently, the winner was named Luck.

My dear Miss Lawrence:
Thank you for permitting me to view your photo-play, "Motherhood." The plot is absorbing, the story carries truth and conviction and in masterly way, it stresses a great, fundamental truth.
From the medical point of view I have found the production accurate in every detail. Moreover, it banishes ignorant ideas which for years have bred terror.
"MOTHERHOOD" carries my complete and sincere endorsement. Let me congratulate you in producing this splendid pathfinder picture.
Cordially, your friend,

Forty-five Years Of Service

The Herald wishes to take this opportunity of publicly expressing to Frank P. Forster the high esteem with which he is held by the people of this community and of congratulating the other officers and directors of the First National Bank upon the remarkable record of this institution under his long and able guidance.

That Mr. Forster has amply proved his worth as an able financier is not only attested by the beautiful building in which his bank is housed, and which will stand as a monument to him for many years to come, but also by the successful weathering of several serious storms, from the freeze of 1895 when the First National was the only bank in old Orange county to survive, to the stress and strain of last summer when two local banks closed their doors, and the First National alone remained to serve the whole community.

Too much credit cannot be given Mr. Forster and his associates for the way in which they have always responded to the needs of this community. Leaders, progressive, always looking forward, they have shown the way, while others followed, in the work of community building, yet with such necessary restraint as is marked by practical common sense, and sound business methods.

On the forty-fifth anniversary of Mr. Forster's entrance into the banking business, all Sanford will pause long enough to note the work this man has done, to congratulate themselves upon his presence in their midst, and to wish him many years of additional service to this community.

The Least Democratic

An article by Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia of the United States Senate recently published in a Sunday edition of the New York Herald Tribune, gives us something meaty to think on when it comes to our government.

He is, of course, referring distinctly to the District of Columbia, and his remarks cannot be taken as at all applicable to any other portion of the country.

Senator Capper says that the four hundred and thirty-five members of the House and the ninety-six members of the Senate rule the city of Washington and its environs. The people there have no vote, and no representation whatever in Congress.

Congressional committees decide to the last cent what to do with the twenty-five odd millions collected yearly from the people of the District. They have not even the power of suggestion. Congress itself decides all questions of municipal administration, which streets shall be paved, what schools shall be built, what trucks the fire department needs, where street lights shall be placed, how many policemen the city needs.

But even worse! The Kansas Senator says that the status of the people of Washington is less than that of aliens; they cannot bring suit in the Federal courts of the country. Sixty-five thousand people in Washington, government employees, are barred from participating as jurors in the trial of criminal cases.

We do not voice it as our opinion that this system is wrong, or that drastic changes in the method of governing the city of Washington should immediately be enacted. We do know, however, that certainly this is taxation without representation, and that as long as this condition prevails we only make ourselves ridiculous when we boast of our very democratic form of government.

THE ST. AUGUSTINE RECORD presents it thus: When a plumber makes a mistake, he churges for it. When a lawyer makes a mistake, he has a chance to try the cases all over again. When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it. When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land. But when the EDITOR makes a mistake—GOOD-NIGHT!

THE WAY WITH A MULE

The list of citations made by the marine corps for gallantry in action in the recent fight with Sandino's men confirms our suspicion that the leathernecks more than lived up to the traditions of their service on that occasion.

But, of all the citations, there is one that, to us, stands out in a class by itself. Here it is: "John A. Harris, private first class, Harris rendered himself conspicuous by exposing himself to heavy enemy fire in order to obtain ammunition from the back of a terrified mule."

That sentence, somehow, gives a perfect picture of the fight. One sees the thicket-dotted scene of action. Khaki-clad marines sprawl on the ground, grimly peering along their rifle sights and firing intermittently. The air is full of an unholy noise, and bullets are spitting off rocks and whipping through the bushes.

Into this scene comes a mule laden with ammunition. Sweating men, cowering behind rocks and logs, look up and cry, "For God's sake, let's have some of them cartridges!" Private Harris, the mule's escort, prepares to unstrap the bandoleers from the mule's back.

But it takes more than a few bullets to knock the cussedness out of a mule—especially a marine corps mule. The mule moves with a contrived, born of his father, Bataan, Duxford and fastenings by this—Punch.

As Brisbane Sees It

Pan-Latin America. To Fight Eight Miles Up. No Motor Price War. Goethals Is Dead.

OUR MEXICAN friends at the Pan-American conference in Havana chawed yesterday, perhaps unintentionally, hostility to the United States, and a tendency to establish a union of Latin-America eliminating this partially "Nordic" republic.

WE HOPE, FOR everybody's sake, including the sake of "Latin America" that the tendency won't go too far. Latins have had a good deal to do with all parts of America, beginning with Christopher Columbus. Jewish citizens also, not exactly "Nordic" although just as good if not better, have built up more than their share of the big institutions on these continents.

SECRETARY OF WAR DIXIE who sets an example by flying a great deal on his own account, has ordered five fighting planes built to fight eight miles up in the air, with special oxygen equipment to counteract the thin atmosphere at that height, and an insulated fighting cockpit especially heated.

AN AIRPLANE eight miles or 42,240 feet up would be invisible looking up, but New York and San Francisco would be visible looking down, and vice targets.

Lindbergh may fly the Pacific going as boys used to cross a brook, on stones, with a hop, skip and jump, one stop at Honolulu, one at Midway Island.

Major Tien Lai Huang who flies for the Chinese; nationalist forces, invited Lindbergh to accompany him in a three-motory plane next summer, taking two or three other good fliers.

Lindbergh likes flying alone, but a trans-Pacific flight would be rather long to keep awake.

MEANWHILE THE Japanese determined to show that the Pacific is their ocean by flying it ahead of all others, are building two special planes. A Japanese pilot and mechanic will take one. It they fail the other will start immediately.

We have the world's crack flier in Lindbergh, but if Japan undertakes to fly the Pacific ocean you may depend on it that she will fly it.

DETROIT OPENED ITS big automobile show yesterday and simultaneously a big of rumors. Talk of new models, new prices and an "automobile price war" came forth. There will be no price war. This statement is made on the authority of the ablest automobile makers, including G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon company, who wires from Indianapolis "the price war is not only improbable but impossible, although competition is and will continue to be very intense."

Automobile men are competing in quality and values, with no foolish "cut throat" price war ideas.

WHEN MAJOR GEN. George W. Goethals died yesterday his country lost a good man, the great builder who made the Panama canal, devoted seven years of his life to the great work.

France, guided by her greatest engineer, De Lesseps, had tried and failed.

Goethals conquered all obstacles including disease, united and rendered service to all the world's countries. President Roosevelt made it possible for him to do it. Honor to them both.

HOPE DEFERRED maketh the heart sick. Ask the Wall street bear, he knows. He snuggled into bed last night, with that longed-for "market collapse" still in the distance, and prices going up.

"What goes up must come down," says the poor bear but that doesn't always happen, notably in the case of Elijah and his chariot of fire.

Many a Saturday night will find poor Mr. Bear going to bed disappointed. Don't sell this country short, but don't gamble or you will lose.

GOOD BISHOPS of the Church of England rewrote the prayer book. The "lords" approved. King George was ready to approve, but the "commons," the power of Britain, said "no," after some member made a fiery speech about the Church of England drifting toward Rome.

ALL ENGLAND IS excited about the prayer book, and religious discussion, most bitter, and hateful of all, is made more important than Britain's pressing problems.

It might surprise "lords," "commons," and the king, perhaps, to learn what little difference mere words make at the judgement seat; how much depends on whether you really mean what you say.

Miss Bolz Entertains In Honor Miss Riddle

Miss Lucille Bolz was hostess Friday evening at a most delightful party at her home on Park Avenue, given in honor of Miss Frances Riddle of Orlando, her attractive house guest. The occasion was also the fourteenth birthday anniversary of the hostess.

The rooms of this attractive home were abloom with quantities of pink and red roses combined with greenery. Myriads of tiny red hearts also added a festive touch. Games and music caused the evening hours to pass all too soon and at a late hour refreshments of ice cream, cake and candies were served by the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. Frances E. Bolz. The hostess presented her guest of honor with a dainty embroidered bag as memento of the occasion.

Miss Bolz's guests were Miss Frances Riddle, Miss Ella Spencer, Miss Frances Reitz, Miss Betty Hintermister, Miss Mary Belle Walston, Miss Sara Maxwell, Miss Marion Waldron, Miss Helen Douglas, Miss Dorothea Lawson, Miss Carmen Guthrie, Julian Ponder, Frank DuBose, Robert Highleyman, Wallace Phillips, Jesse Jarrell, Britt Holtzlaw, Gregory Kinlaw, Pat Lanier, Dan Hansell and Hendrix Lyle.

Miss Olive La Zette Is Hostess At Bridge

Miss Olive La Zette was hostess Thursday evening at a most delightful bridge party given at the home of Mrs. B. C. Moore on Magnolia Avenue. There were four tables in play during the evening.

The rooms where the tables had been arranged for play were bright with bowls of pastel tinted sweet peas and ferns. The pastel tints were further featured in the tallies which were done in bathing girls. After the usual number of progressions had been played, scores were counted and the prize for top score, a vanity dresser set, was presented Mrs. Lillian Duley. Mrs. J. E. Ritchie, who held lowest score was consoled with a pretty shoulder flower.

Late in the evening the card tables were cleared and refreshments of ambrosia and cake were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Moore, Miss La Zette's guest, Mrs. Katherine Young, Miss Nell Williams, Miss Clara Rankin, Mrs. Sid Rive, Miss Virginia McDaniel, Mrs. J. E. Ritchie, Mrs. B. C. Moore, Mrs. Lillian Duley, Miss Ellen Hoy, Mrs. Mary Michael, Miss Lucile Leigh, Miss Emma Farley, Miss Annie Weeks and Miss Maude Carroway.

MRS. ARRINGTON HOSTESS

An informal yet most enjoyable social affair of the past week was that of Friday afternoon when Mrs. Stella P. Arrington entertained at her home on Magnolia Avenue honoring Mrs. Henry Heath of Charlotte, N. C., the guest of Mrs. E. D. Brownlee. Bowls of calendulas and fern were placed with artistic effect about the rooms where the guests assembled. The afternoon was pleasantly spent with discussion of current events and at the one hour Mrs. Arrington served a tasty salad course and coffee. Enjoying the afternoon were Mrs. Henry Heath, Mrs. E. D. Brownlee, Mrs. W. Morton Thigpen, Mrs. William M. McKinnon, Mrs. L. I. Crazier, Mrs. Claude Howard, Mrs. Junius Turnbull, Mrs. H. H. McAslin, Mrs. S. M. Paleston and Mrs. Arrington.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gill of Miami were among the week end visitors in Sanford, and were guests at the Hotel Forrest Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Vincent of Vero, were the guests of Mrs. Vincent's sister Mrs. Robert J. Holly for the week end leaving Monday morning for Jacksonville.

Mrs. George Maffett Given Miscellaneous Shower By Friends

One of the loveliest social courtesies with which Mrs. George Maffett, a recent bride, has been honored with, was the miscellaneous shower tendered her Friday evening by Mrs. George Brockhahn and Mrs. R. F. Cooper at the home of the former on Palmers Avenue.

Sweet peas and calendulas were lavishly used in decorating the rooms of this cozy home. The dainty color motif was carried out in every detail.

After the contests, a knock was heard and when the door was opened, a colored maid entered bearing a large wash basket, saying that the laundry was ready for the bride. When the basket was opened it was found to contain numerous lovely gifts for the bride's new home. Refreshments consisting of a tempting salad course with hot tea were served by the hostesses at a late hour.

The guests for the evening were Mrs. George Maffett, Mrs. P. D. McHae, Miss Treese-Rice, Mrs. Robert Wright, Miss Adele Rines, Mrs. W. R. Fort, Mrs. Walter Haynes, Mrs. R. C. Maxwell, Mrs. Guy S. Selman, Miss Edna Chittenden, Mrs. Ruth Gillon, Mrs. J. B. Ray, Mrs. Mary B. Phelps, Mrs. H. J. Lehman, Mrs. Ralph Warren, Miss Zillah Welsh, Miss Vivian Crosby, Mrs. Francis E. Bolz, Mrs. Dwight Babbitt, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. E. E. Brady, Mrs. John T. Brady, Mrs. Annie T. Cooper, Miss Bessie Boyce and Mrs. J. Maurice Allen.

MRS. HOLLY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Robert J. Holly Sr. was the gracious hostess Friday afternoon when she entertained the members of the Book Lovers Club at her home on Park Avenue. An abundance of exquisite spring blossoms including sweet peas and snapdragons were used with pleasing effect in baskets and bowls about the rooms of this spacious home. Discussion of current events and late books caused the afternoon hours to pass quickly and at five o'clock, small tables were spread and refreshments of creamed oysters in patties, hot rolls, olives, peas, salad, strawberry short cake topped with whipped cream and coffee were served.

Enjoying the cordial hospitality of the hostess were Mrs. Henry McLaughlin, Mrs. Mattie G. Pace, Mrs. J. C. Bennett, Mrs. Harry Ward, Mrs. E. P. Morse, Mrs. L. P. Hagan, Miss Annie Hawkins and Mrs. Roy Symes.

Mrs. Leffler Presides At A Meeting Of East Side Parent-Teachers

The regular meeting of the East Side Parent Teachers Association was held Thursday afternoon at the East Side Primary School under the direction of the president Mrs. William A. Leffler. It was decided to hold all future meetings of the organization on the fourth Thursday of the school month. A committee was named to purchase rods and rings for the curtains recently purchased for the school. The prize for best attendance of mothers at the meeting was awarded the first grade. Mrs. J. C. Mitchell, principal of the school, told briefly of the Arbor Day exercises recently held at the school and told of the tree planted in honor of Mrs. Stella Arrington, supervisor of the Primary schools.

The feature of the afternoon was the splendid talk given by Mrs. S. O. Shindler on "The Nature of the Child," and it was regretted that all members of the Parent Teachers Association could not be present and hear this wonderful talk.

During the social hour which followed, several readings were given by Frances Johnson, after which refreshments of coffee and sandwiches were served by the hostesses. Mrs. B. H. Guthrie, Mrs. W. T. Jackson and Mrs. F. L. Woodruff.

80th BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Walker entertained fourteen guests at dinner Sunday evening at their home 411 Palmetto Avenue, the occasion being the eightieth birthday anniversary of Mrs. H. L. Stuart, mother of Mrs. Walker. The attractively appointed dinner table was centered with the large birthday cake frosted in white and surmounted with a bouquet of sweet peas. Besides the wishes for a happy birthday, another delightful feature of the affair was the presentation of a basket filled with new one dollar bills to the guest of honor from her children and grand children. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart have enjoyed sixty years of married life, and are both hale and hearty and are blessed with seven children, Mrs. E. J. Walker, Mrs. M. L. Fox and U. G. Stuart of Sanford, D. P. Stuart of Jefferson, Pa., Homer Stuart of Brownsville, Pa., Herbert Stuart of Steubenville, Ohio and Harry Stuart of Tallahassee, West Va., twenty-five grand children and six great grand children.

THE YOWELL CO.

Criminologist Says Slayer Should Be Kept Alive For Scientific Experimenting

BERKELEY Cal. Jan. 23 (INS) Edward Hickman, slayer of little Marie Parker, should not be hanged, but should be kept alive as a human "psychic laboratory" to be studied and experimented upon by psychiatrists and alienists.

This unique suggestion was advanced today by E. O. Heinrich, noted Berkeley criminologist, solver of many of the Pacific coast's famous crimes after a careful analysis of the Los Angeles murder case.

"The state has spent a fortune to capture this boy," Heinrich declared, "the state should profit by taking advantage of his possibilities for clinical examination. As such he is highly valuable to society. If he is hanged, this value is lost and only vengeance is satisfied."

Heinrich declared that Hickman probably was sane when he planned the kidnapping of the Los Angeles girl. He was perhaps actuated by motives of revenge, but when he brutally killed his helpless captive, Heinrich believes he was the victim of a "brain explosion."

Profitable Study While holding no brief for Hickman, Heinrich believes the case of the youth presents a problem which would afford profitable study to alienists and psychiatrists.

Some cause for the "brain explosion" will be found in the background, perhaps in Hickman's early school or pre-school days, Heinrich believes, which would explain his mental collapse, and lay thus tracing the youth's career information of value might be discovered.

"I do not believe," said Heinrich, "that Hickman was insane at the time he planned the kidnapping. From what study of the case I was able to make, I reached the conclusion that he was actuated by definite motives and that he had no ulterior designs on the girl herself."

"When the net began to close in around him, his chief problem became that of concealment. This fact, coupled with the girl's semi-hysterical condition and in realization of the serious nature of his act, unsettled his mind."

"When he killed the girl he was utterly insane. And, in my opinion, he will never be wholly sane again."

Search Twisted Mind "Hickman should be studied with a view to prevention of similar cases. It might even be necessary to trace his personal history backward to childhood. At some point in his career will be found a turning point, where his bright mind was swerved into channels which eventually would lead to his own down fall. Thousands of children in this country encounter such obstacles in their mental development and many one of these is a potential criminal."

"Hickman has brought untold suffering to the family of Marion Parker. He has been the cause of heavy expense to Los Angeles county. But, in my opinion, it is possible to gain some return for this loss."

"This youth with his twisted mind should be made the subject of clinical study in the hope that information might be gained which would prevent the development of similar cases."

Husbands' Paradise Found

What has been described as a paradise for husbands has been discovered by an expedition in the island of Nunivak, off the coast of Alaska. The island is inhabited by 170 Eskimos, and during five months in the year, by thousands of seals. A native custom orders that, directly the seals appear, the men, who live by selling the skins shall move into a camp known as the "Kashoe" and live there until the last seal leaves the island. They are not allowed to see their wives or their families, and their food is brought by their wives to a central spot, where it is collected. A feast at which the bladders of all seals caught during the year are thrown back into the sea to propitiate the seal tribe ends their period of isolation.

BOXING AT LUNCHEON

Boxing matches were served between courses at a luncheon given to a number of sporting men in Paris by a prominent figure in the pugilistic world. The table was in the form of a horseshoe, the center forming a ring. Here with each course, was given a boxing contest, representing a period in the history of the sport.

Labor Federation To Seek Beer Plank In Party Platform

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—(INS)—The Republican and Democratic National Conventions will be asked to inject the beer issue in the forthcoming presidential campaign, according to an announcement today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The two major parties will be asked to put a 2.75 beer tank in their platform, Green said, on ground that beer of that alcoholic content is not intoxicating. Last year the American Federation of Labor went on record as favoring amendment of the Volstead Act.

Green made it plain that the Federation is not opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment; but merely some of the provisions of the Volstead Act. His decision came after the Supreme Council, meeting here, heard the plea of the United Brewery Workers for real beer.

Chicago Civic Opera To Build New House

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—(INS)—The new home for Chicago Civic Opera, a structure to cost $20,000,000 will be ready in time for the start of the 1929 season, Samuel J. Hull, president of the organization announced today.

The building will be a 42-story revenue-producing project, designed to insure the permanence of opera without depending on public-spirited citizens who now underwrite it.

The mammoth building, which will cover an entire city block, will include not only an operahouse and small theatre, but also shops, stores and offices. It will be located on the Chicago river between Madison and Washington Streets.

American Pope May Be Possibility At Some Future Date

ROME, Jan. 23.—The possibility of an American Pope at some future date if the Roman question is settled to the mutual satisfaction of the Vatican and the Italian State was seen here today.

Should the breach between the Vatican and Quirinal, which has existed for nearly 60 years and kept the Popes voluntary prisoners in the Vatican, be definitely healed, the Italian Nation, sooner or later, would be bound to lose the privilege of having the Supreme Pontiff constantly chosen from the ranks of the Italian Cardinals.

Re-establishment of normal relations between the Vatican and the Italian State would hasten the time when a non-Italian would be raised to the chair of the Holy See.

When this time came about the chances would favor the selection of an American Cardinal for Pontiff for a number of reasons. The very act that the heads of the church deemed the time opportune to go beyond Italy for a Pope would reason in favor of going beyond Europe.

German "Hamlet" Scored Seldom has a great man of letters been so severely criticized as Gerhart Hauptmann, Germany's most famous poet and playwright, following the recent production in Dresden of his version of "Hamlet."

Hauptmann's theory is that the fourth act of Hamlet, as it is today, contains only the mutilated remains of what Shakespeare wrote, and that the first actors who played Laertes, dissatisfied with the part, filched lines and scenes which Shakespeare had given to Hamlet. Hauptmann gives back to the Dane the lines he thinks he should have, and therefore puts Laertes at the head of the rebellion against King Claudius. He has written six new scenes and interpolated new lines, and has moved the "To be or not to be" monologue from the third to the fifth act.

Sanford Audience Hears Lecture On Christian Science By Paul Harsch

"Christian Science, the Power of God," was the subject of a lecture delivered Thursday night at the Woman's Club by Paul A. Harsch, member of the board of lecture-ship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, at Boston Mass. A large crowd heard the speaker who was introduced by J. C. Benson.

Mr. Harsch's talk in part was as follows:

"In the text book of Christian Science, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, Mary Baker Eddy, its author, thus defines God: "God; Spirit; omnipotence; omniscience; omnipresence; omniscience;" (Pg. 587) and it is proposed to present the subject of Christian Science here from this standpoint, that is, of good and its power—power inherent, in it, constantly being manifested by it and inevitably lifting mankind upward and onward to God.

"Deep seated in the heart of every one of us there dwells a desire to know more about good, a yearning to attain to the secret place of the Most High, to that point of understanding whereby good may be brought more largely and more specifically into daily experience and there retained and used."

"Primarily, the desire for good, for the guidance and control of all intelligent mind, God, must exceed all other desires. The seeker for divine good must be able to say with David, "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God." Such desire is prayer. A prayer that is always answered. There are no exceptions.

"On the first page of the first chapter of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy, its author, declares that "desire is prayer" and that "no loss can occur from trusting God with our desires, that they may be moulded and exalted before they take form in words and in deeds." This was the prayer of Elijah answered by the "still small voice," this the prayer of Nehemiah answered by the restoration of Jerusalem, this the prayer of Jesus before the tomb of Lazarus, and this, my friends, the prayer of thousands of Christian Scientists today. A prayer that is being daily answered by the healing of every sort of sin, disease and discord."

Scotch Singers Watched

Whether the singing of "Annie Laurie" in the churches of Glasgow, Scotland, would lead to prosecution of the singers, was a question raised at a recent meeting of the Glasgow Presbytery, the senior Ecclesiastical Court of that city. One of the officers reported that the Performing Rights Society, Ltd., was becoming very vigilant and that if there were sung in a church hall or church many songs that long had been thought immune from copyright restrictions, there might be trouble. "Annie Laurie" was one of the songs mentioned. Rev. Stewart Cameron said that the prosecutions of the society has caused a sort of bondage on churches as regards their music. A committee was appointed to confer with the performing Rights Society regarding songs that may be sung.

More than 2,800 homes for working people will be built in Glasgow, Scotland, this year.

TO BUILD HALL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(INS)—A temporary auditorium seating 25,000 persons will be built in Houston for the Democratic National Convention's use, Jesse Jones, chairman of the national committee's arrangement committee, announced here today.

WOMAN TO STAND TRIAL

HELENA Ark., Jan. 21—(INS)—Mrs. Julia Vaughn 28, who was released from the state insane asylum at Little Rock recently, will go on trial here next month for the murder of Miss Cassie Marie Warren 17, salesgirl, whom she shot to death in a downtown department store in April 1926.

Sheiks Spur Planes, Autos

Airplanes and automobiles failed to impress a party of real sheiks when they recently visited a small town in Soudan, but a staircase aroused their veneration. They were familiar with trees growing in groups, but they could explain the shade-givers being in rows only through the trees being able to walk. Water faucets amazed them, for to turn a screw and see water rushing out of a wall seemed magic to them. They bought a number of the "rods of Moses" from a junk dealer to hang on their walls at home to spurt water for them. When their error was explained, the dealer took back the faucets, but later each sheik stealthily repurchased them so that he "would not be cheated out of the white man's magic."

Charley Pyle To Europe Get Nurmi Out Of Hook

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—According to officials of the Amateur Athletic Union, Charley Pyle, arch-inducer of amateur-rectitude, or maybe a first string substitute scudger, soon will sail for Finland to attempt to get Panvo Nurmi out of hook with the athletic uncles abroad by persuading him to turn professional.

The matter, I take it, will be discussed in the universal language of the fountain pen in order that there may be no misunderstanding. The pen not only is mightier than the sword but for less liable to misinterpretation; in fact, its message usually is quite clear if you get the name right and confine yourself to numerals.

These same A. A. U. officials, who are trying to get from under and thus escape the onus of sponsoring anything that might lead to the professionalism of Nurmi and Herr Doktor Peltzer in the fact of the impending Olympic Games, were authority for the statement that Nurmi actually had started for America about a week or ten days ago. They say he was held back by the Finnish frontier where he was arbitrarily refused passports. The Finns, it seems, had heard of this American ogre who spoke of anything less than $100,000 with an involuntary sneer.

They also heard of Pyle's plan to bring Nurmi, Edwin Wide, the Herr Doktor, and, if possible, Lloyd Hahn, together in a series of races between 600 yards and one mile. Failing that, he hoped to send Nurmi running in the general direction of New York in his proposed fallen-arch go-if-you-please from coast to coast. Willie Kohlemaier, brother of Hannes and the stand-out professional marathoner of his day, is another Finn who is mentioned as a possible starter in this context of seeing America first, last and too much.

The hook up with Nurmi and the Finns in general is alleged to be seen through the rather close association being maintained be-between Pyle and Nurmi. It is said that the A. A. U. officials are divided to be as reasonable as possible and enter Harlow's managers, Quist, A. A. U. officials declare, now is occupying Pyle's suite at the Vanderbilt, rent free.

It is pretty well agreed that Pyle's chances of lining up Hahn with avowed professionalism are almost nil, only mere so, and nothing has been heard that would connect Wide with such a project. As for Nurmi and the Herr Doktor, the former cannot leave Finland unless he makes his presence highly immaterial to the Finns by signing his amateur past, and, in the case of Peltzer, the A. A. U. slapping is taking no chances, if that many.

Upwards of one hundred invitations have been issued to the Herr Doktor to run in meets since German officials opened the door several days ago for three possible appearances by him in this country.

Sharkey Convinced He Should be given Match With Tunney

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Jess McMahon, matchmaker for middleweight bouts, who left for Boston this afternoon to talk contracts with Jack Sharkey, may encounter trouble when he attempts to sign the little Lithuanian for a bout with Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, here on March 12. Sharkey is said to be convinced that he is entitled to meet Gene Tunney without bothering with a preliminary match.

Further proof of the popularity of Tunney as a ring opponent was forthcoming from New London, Conn., where Jack DeLaney's manager, Joe Jencks, declared that DeLaney will accept only a match with the champion if he defeats Tom Heeny.

Completion Of Air-Port At London The Finest In The World

Jan. 23.—(INS)—The new air terminus at Croydon, opened for traffic by the British Air Ministry, displaces the old airfield, which, built in 1917, has long since proved inadequate to handle the traffic between the Continent of Europe and the British Isles.

The new air port, equipped with a quarter of a million dollars worth of machinery, is the largest passenger air terminal yet built.

Control Tower—The presiding genius of the airfield, however, will be the 100-foot high control tower, which, by means of a mechanism which dominates the airfield and which is the brain of the airway, its staff, who will control by telephone air expresses flying hundreds of miles distant, are the officers, radio operators, and meteorological expert. They are in the tower, insurance staff will be available day and night.

Lighting the tower is a most important installation, enabling pilots to see the airfield in mist, fog, or at night. At the summit of the tower is an indicator which prints the wind direction and speed.

Electric Signals—The landing area is to be equipped with signals which will guide the aircraft when he is above the cable. The signals will be so arranged that he will be able to follow the cable, gradually descending, and warned by changes of color lights on his dashboard should deviate from his path. Another

Moscow, Copenhagen, Constantinople or Northern Africa. The enlarged landing ground will enable planes to have a take-off or landing space of nearly a mile.

AVIATOR INJURED BLUESFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 22.

(INS)—Floyd Willett, commercial aviator, of Huntington, today was recovering from injuries suffered last night when his twin-motored monoplane fell 1,000 feet and landed in a tree, near here. Willett was attempting to land in Bluesfield when his plane went into a tail spin. The plane was badly damaged.

South Carolina To Allow Sunday Golf Under New Ruling

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 22.—(INS)—South Carolina will continue to have "gasoline-less" Sundays, although uncommercialized golf will be permitted, according to the ruling of the State Supreme Court on the Palmetto State's famous "Blue Law".

The decision grew out of the attempt of Governor John G. Richards to enforce the three-century-old Blue laws in a state-wide crusade which he inaugurated shortly after he took the office last year, forbidding the sale of all merchandise not recognized as necessities. The governor also banned Sunday golf, and more than a dozen golfers were arrested only to be acquitted by magistrates. A modified blue law bill, passed by the state legislature last year, was promptly vetoed by the crusading chief executive.

SHIPS CONVICTED LONDON, Jan. 21.—(INS)—

Wilfred Thomas McCartney, a

British subject, and George Hansen, a German, were today sentenced to ten years imprisonment on charges of espionage in behalf of Russia. The sentence includes two years of hard labor. The two men were alleged to have made endeavors to secure information on British military and naval matters for the benefit of Russia. Parts of the trial were held in camera.

King Ben Mouldering In Grave As Colony Awaits His Early Resurrection

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 22 (INS)—Occultism apparently has reached cross-roads in its growth in the United States as a result of the recent death of "King" Benjamin Purnell, aged 71, head of the "House of David" colony near here, "King Ben" was the self-styled "Seventeenth Messenger," and the "archangel of eternal life." His followers believed he could not die.

But he did. "King Ben" expired at 11:30, Friday, December 16, in the "diamond house," one of the colony dwellings, while the bewildered members of his colony stood about prepared to witness a second resurrection. The news of the death was kept secret for three days during which an honor guard of Ben's faithful disciples kept vigil to notify other members of the colony at the first sign of the expected "rising" from the dead.

At the end of three days the colony physician filed the legal death certificate.

Legal Proceedings

Purnell died in the midst of legal proceedings concomitant to statutory charges brought against him by State and Federal officials on which the prosecuting authorities had hoped to send "King Ben" to prison for the remainder of his life for alleged assaults on young girls. The sensational revelations of this trial, coupled with similar revelations of immoral proceedings and practices of other occult organizations in various parts of the country, with the result that determined legal efforts were under way, when Purnell died, to force a legal dissolution of the "House of David" colony, as other cults have been broken up in the past two years. The property of the colony, valued at $2,000,000 or more, is even now in the hands of a quasi-civil receivership.

It is not these revelations, however, which are to threaten the life of occultism, but rather the revelations, through the deaths of "King Ben" and one or two other occult leaders that these disciples are not or were not immoral.

Benjamin Purnell's rise to leadership in occultism is an interesting study in the growth of religious cults in this country. He was born in Mayaville, Ky., in 1857. Little is known of his parents, but his religious fervor early asserted itself, and he became known as a "boy preacher."

Other Activities

Records show that he was connected with the notorious "New Eve" cult founded in Detroit, Mich., by "Prince" Michael K. Mills about 25 years ago. The cult, because of the immorality of "Prince" Michael was dissolved and the "Prince" was sent to prison on a statutory charge.

Following the arrest and conviction of the leader, and the closing of his last known follower on the street of Detroit, Purnell, lodged in Benton Harbor, and in 1902 he founded the "House of David."

Purnell taught that death came to the world through sin. His mission, he declared, was to pick up those without sin and include them in the colony.

A rule of celibacy was imposed on all members of the colony; they were forbidden to eat meat or to drink intoxicants, and all male members wore their hair long and cultivated whiskers. This was to continue until 144,000 perfect men and women had been gathered who, he said, would again repopulate the earth.

Purnell founded the colony on a "sheep farm," but many persons of comparative wealth and genuinely strong powers of reasoning were attracted to the strange doctrine. Most of them turned all of their worldly goods over to Purnell upon their joining the colony and the property was supposedly pooled for all the members. In a few years the joint property of the colony was valued at $3,000,000 or more. All community property, however, was held in Purnell's name as he was the "State."

Colony Grew Rich

With its growing wealth, the colony and Purnell became forces to be reckoned with in the politics of Berrien County, where the colony was located. Although for years reports of immoral practices within the colony, particularly as regards certain "rites" exercised by "King Ben" under religious auspices, were current about the country, the long-haired occult leader balked efforts to prosecute him.

Purnell himself was not a cellarer. He jointly shared the rule of the colony with "Queen" Mary Purnell, consort of the "King."

Although the State charges that the "House of David" was never anything more than a fraud for Purnell's enrichment, leaders of the colony hope that the "resurrection" of their "King" is not really dead, but will rise again, as Christ did, and will hold the colony together. It is expected that the "King" will be resurrected in California, California, California.

Atlanta Child Has Escaped Death On Several Occasions

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 22 (INS)—Death has hovered near for 4-year-old Raymond Barry, of Atlanta, more than a score of times during his confinement at a local hospital since November 25. Each time doctors and nurses attracted by his heavy breathing and moaning, rushed to his assistance just in time to prevent him from suffocating.

Following an attack of diphtheria and the subsequent operation on the throat a silver tube, known as the tracheotomy tube, was placed in the lower part of his throat, extending down into his chest to make it possible for him to breathe. At times some foreign substance obstructs the tube, making respiration impossible and only the attentiveness and quick action of nurses and doctors in removing the tube in such an instance save the child's life.

Physicians say that Raymond's case is an unusual one. He was admitted to the hospital November 25 and since that time had been unable to either speak or breathe through his nose or mouth. He is forced to lay on his back during his sleep to prevent the tube's passage from becoming stopped up. He is able to take a soft diet and oftentimes make valiant efforts to speak, but this particular faculty is stubbornly faulty, according to his attendants.

Doctors pointed out that the power to breathe naturally and speak coherently invariably returns to most diphtheria victims in a short time, but that the case of Raymond is rare in that it has been almost two months since the operation on his throat.

In answer to questions the child can only nod his head.
