Refusenik reunited with family

SAN FRANCISCO — A Russian "refusenik" whose wife battled the Soviet government for nearly a decade to allow his emigration to the United States was tearfully reunited with his family Thursday night.

Mikhail Shteynberg, 45, arrived on a flight from New York and Vienna and was greeted by 60 singing, sign-waving well-wishers including his wife Bella and his daughter Inna, 14.

"It's hard to believe, it's been so long, so many years of hope and struggle," said Shteynberg, an engineer, after the emotional reunion with his wife and daughter.

His wife, a pediatrician, said, "I will never forgive the Soviet Union for all these lost years."

Gene Kelly hospitalized

LOS ANGELES — Venerable actor and dancer Gene Kelly has been hospitalized with pneumonia, forcing him to cancel a planned show, theater officials and the entertainer's agent said Thursday.

"An Evening With Gene Kelly," the show set to open Friday night at La Mirada Civic Theater, was canceled after Kelly's agent reported the star of Broadway and Hollywood musicals had been hospitalized with pneumonia, theater spokeswoman Donna Heckenlaible said.

"All we know is that Mr. Kelly is in a hospital with pneumonia and that the show, which was sold out, is canceled," she said.

The show was scheduled to include film clips of Kelly's long career and reminiscences by the entertainer.

Kelly's agent, Warren Cowan, confirmed the entertainer was hospitalized with pneumonia, but would provide no details of his condition.

The name and location of the hospital were not disclosed.

Pulitzer winners announced

NEW YORK — An investigation into the obituary pages at The Alaska Daily News led to a Pulitzer Prize for the newspaper after winning vital reforms to help save young Eskimos from alcoholism and suicide.

The newspaper Thursday was awarded the gold medal for public service for its 10-day series in January 1988, focusing attention on the high incidence of alcoholism and suicide among native Alaskans. The nearly yearlong investigation spotlighted the despair in the bush villages, spurring government reforms as well as action by community elders.

Discussion gives slain cop's pals chance to vent emotions

By SUSAN LODEN

That's what Eric Bryant said when he and three fellow Seminole County sheriff's deputies gathered to share thoughts about slain deputy Hugh Thomas Jr. — thoughts about his life, loves, duty and friendships.

The funeral was today. On Wednesday, tears were choked back and some flowed, along with a mix of smiles and a few laughs, when Eric Bryant, 25, Dale Wagner, 37, Brent Davison, 24, and Pete Kelling, 22, talked about their 24-year-old buddy who was ambushed and killed in Geneva Tuesday morning.

The killer committed suicide after shooting the deputy.

Brent said his friend and fellow deputy died in a "civilian war."

He said, "This is not a job, it's a civilian war. Hugh lost his life in a war. As a society we need to figure out what's going on. If we're going to punish people for breaking the law, punish them. Don't let them out of jail in two weeks."

Tony LeMasters, 27, of Sanford, who killed Hugh outside LeMaster's estranged wife's house, was released from jail five days before the slaying because there wasn't enough evidence against him to hold him in connection with burglaries and his brother's jail escape earlier this year.

"If he hadn't killed himself, I can't tell you what would have happened," Eric said. Hugh's friends are glad they don't have to see the case resolved through the court system.

Hugh was "out for justice. Not revenge," Brent said. They called Hugh a hero and said they know he gave his life saving LeMasters' wife from harm after he received a report that an armed man was outside her house.

The deputies said the criminals are becoming more violent as they benefit from a failing criminal justice system that police believe puts greater restraints on them than on criminals.

Society, they said, is going to have to wake up and come up with some solutions before it's too late. They said police could use more support on all levels including the building of more jails and prisons.

"We're not fighting for us. We're fighting for them (society)," Brent said. "People have to understand it's not going to stop until they get involved. The laws were made for everyone."

"We're addicted to what's right," Brent said of Hugh and the others in their group. "We're addicted to the truth. We're doing what's suppose to be done."

"We're not fanatics," Dale said. "We're just basic people who want to good. We're into this — 'Can I help you, sir?'"

Airline school coming to Sanford

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The airport authority yesterday conditionally approved a five-year lease for an Orlando-based airline academy.

The $144,959 annual lease for three buildings and ramp space at Sanford Regional Airport will be presented to representatives of Air Line Aviation Academy at a meeting next week.

Although the authority approved the lease unanimously, some concerns were aired by authority members and local pilots.

Authority member Don Knight cited three recent accidents by Air Line Aviation Academy students at the Sanford, Ocala and Kissimmee airports. "I wonder about the quality of students," he said.

Bill Bush, a member of the authority, said the cost of the program indicates a seriousness among students about learning to fly. Tuition for the six-month program is $17,995 per student.

"It looks like a money machine to me on the surface," Knight said.

Ted Otto of Aviation Training Associates said he was concerned that the air traffic control tower staff would not be able to handle an immediate increase in operations. "I have this fear that someone's going to get hurt unless you gear up the tower first," he said.

Mack LaZenby, airport aviation director, said nearly $46,000 had been set aside to add two air traffic controllers to the staff. He said the two employees would be placed on the current five-controller staff after the lease goes into effect, tentatively scheduled for June 1.

"I think we have to gamble," authority Chairman A.K. Shoemaker said. "How do we grow? We do it with people and bodies and planes and volume. With this thing, the fleas got to come with the dog. I think we're on the right track."

LaZenby told the authority that an increased volume in traffic at Sanford Regional Airport could prompt the Federal Aviation Administration to fund additional air traffic control staff and to open a 3,500-foot runway parallel to the primary runway. The parallel runway is now used as a taxiway.

"You've operated (the tower) at a darned expense over the years," LaZenby said to authority members. "Now it's time for the FAA to come in and take over that tower."

The 140-student academy is expected to increase traffic at the airport by 47,000 operations annually with 28 aircraft. The authority approved a motion to review academy activity if that number reaches 60,000 operations.

Take-offs and landings constitute operations.

Local celebration planned for Victim's Rights Week

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — 1988 was a landmark year for victims of crime and their survivors in Florida, led by the passage of a state constitutional amendment specifying rights for victims in criminal cases, which passed with more than 90 percent voter approval.

With that in mind, Linda Kuhn, victim-witness coordinator for the Seminole State Attorney's Office, is organizing a third annual local celebration for National Victims' Rights Week.

April 9 through 15 as Victims

Rights Week and the Seminole County candlelight vigil honoring victims of crimes is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday April 12 at Centennial Park at Fourth Street and Park Avenue in downtown Sanford.

The event is open to the public. Candles will be lit at the park and carried in a procession to the steps of the Seminole County Courthouse. City and county police agencies have been asked to supply a marked police car and a uniformed officer to be stationed at the one-mile procession along the route.

Preston to die April 27

Governor signs death warrants for two other convicted killers

United Press International

Gov. Bob Martinez signed the third death warrant Thursday for Robert Preston, who was convicted of killing an Altamonte Springs convenience store clerk in 1978.

Preston was scheduled for death in the electric chair at 7 a.m. Thursday, April 27.

Martinez also signed death warrants for two other convicted killers: Robert Heiney and Wayne Tompkins.

Preston was sentenced to death for the January 1978 murder of Altamonte Springs convenience store clerk Earline Walker.

Preston abducted Walker while she was working a night shift at the store, court records said. He also took $600 from the store cash register and safe.

Preston took his victim to an empty field not far from the store, where he stripped her and slashed her throat. He stabbed her 20 times and carved a cross on her forehead.

Heiney was convicted of beating Francis Marlon

SHA OK's $1 million budget plan

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Housing Authority yesterday unanimously approved a $1 million budget proposal for operating the city's 480 public housing units.

The authority has been working against an April 1 deadline to submit the budget to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The board rejected an initial proposal Monday, opting to mix cost-of-living salary increases.

Monday the board voted 4 to 1 to freeze authority salaries during the next fiscal year. In her first budget proposal to the board, interim Executive Director Linda Williams recommended increasing salaries of 17 authority employees up to 5 percent for cost of living.

Legislators seek answers to DOT woes

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Last year, state Transportation Secretary Kaye Henderson touted his department's ability to finish projects at a record rate.

This year, he is faced with possibly derailing $700 million in projects over the next five years because, state auditors said, the agency spent more money than it had and did not exercise proper internal controls.

Henderson promises the worst is over and says he is taking steps to make sure such drastic overspending does not happen again.

"I promise you I will get to the bottom of this," he said and brought in an independent auditing team to make sure the agency is spending its money properly.

Meanwhile, critical transportation projects have ground to a halt, including the expansion of Interstate 95 in Broward County.

Turnpike and toll road plans have been cancelled and in some instances, cities and counties have taken it upon themselves to see if they can find federal money to repair and re-amp Florida's crumbling highway system.

Gov. Bob Martinez and Henderson have ruled out any kind of motor fuel tax increase to help the Department of Transportation, but some lawmakers have publicly supported the tax.

Somebody out there has to pay for this mess," said Rep.

Ueberroth still pitching to Eastern

United Press International
MIAMI — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth has presented a bid to buy strikebound Eastern Airlines for roughly $500 million in a deal that includes provisions for substantial employee ownership, an official of the Air Line Pilots Association said.
 A source close to Eastern's parent company Thursday confirmed receipt of the Ueberroth bid, and said the offer was being considered, despite reports that the board of Texas Air Corp. had rejected it in favor of a higher bid.
 "There is more at stake here than dollars," the source said.

"Serious consideration has to be given to who is going to make the best deal for Eastern's people. ... Mr. Ueberroth's offer is still being considered."
 In Miami, a federal court hearing on Eastern's request for a back-to-work order aimed at striking pilots ended Thursday with no ruling.
 U.S. District Judge Edward Davis asked Eastern and the pilots union to submit proposed findings by Monday. Lawyers said a ruling may not come until Tuesday.
 Rick Chapman, secretary-treasurer of the pilots' union at Eastern, said he was told by Ueberroth that the bid was presented to the board of Texas Air, which is meeting in Houston.

 Art Kent, a spokesman for Texas Air, declined to comment on the report.
 An associate of Ueberroth was later quoted by Dow Jones as saying the investor group was backing out of the bidding for Eastern, after being informed by Texas Air that it had been outbid. The report could not be confirmed.
 Chapman could not say which assets of Eastern were covered by the bid, or provide details about Ueberroth's financial backing, but he said the separate sale of Eastern's shuttle might improve Ueberroth's chance of success.

Kent confirmed that others besides real estate mogul Donald Trump have entered the bidding for the company's lucrative Northeast shuttle, which links New York, Boston and Washington.
 Trump agreed to pay $365 million for the shuttle in October, but later sought a price reduction of $125 million because of Eastern's strike.
 ABC reported Thursday that Trump and Texas Air had reached a new agreement on the shuttle. Bruce Nobles, the man picked by Trump to run the shuttle, declined to comment on the report.

Printing industry zooms in Florida

TAMPA — Where industry and population go, the printing industry follows and Florida is no exception.
 Employment in the printing industry in Florida grew 47 percent between 1982 and 1988, while all other manufacturing employment grew only 18 percent, according to Printing Industries of America Inc. in Arlington, Va.
 Printing Industries, the world's largest graphic arts trade association, said Florida printers had total sales of $2.2 billion in 1988, operating 1,724 establishments with employment of 26,889.
 Commercial printing, which has the lion's share of sales with $1.73 billion in 1988, includes printing of industrial and commercial brochures, direct mail materials, maps, posters, restaurant menus and financial statements.
 A distant second is printing of business forms, at $185 million.

NRC may have shut down nuclear plant

MIAMI — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Thursday it would have shut down the Turkey Point nuclear plant if Florida Power and Light had not done so voluntarily when 11 employees failed requalification tests to operate the reactor.
 NRC spokesman Ken Clark said the NRC met with utility managers to discuss the problem after 28 of the plant's 52 license holders were randomly selected to take the requalifying test for operating licenses and 11 failed.
 "We want to look at the rest of the guys," Clark said.
 FPL volunteered to shut down the reactor and to put employees through a weeklong series of tests on a simulator. NRC licensing examiners will monitor the testing.
 The reactor was already scheduled to be shut down for operational tests Saturday. The plant's only other nuclear reactor had already been shut down for refueling, said FPL spokeswoman Kathy Scott.
 She said the shutdown would not affect service.

Disney sues Academy over Snow White

LOS ANGELES — The Walt Disney Co. said Snow White's appearance at the beginning of the Oscars program was an unflattering and unauthorized depiction of their character and has sued the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.
 Disney sued the academy Thursday in federal court for copyright infringement, contending Snow White was used without permission, and the performance constituted an "unauthorized and unflattering reference" to Disney's original, who made her debut in Disney's first feature-length animated film in 1937.
 The segment featured a woman in a short dress with a high-pitched voice who was introduced as Snow White. She was the centerpiece of the lengthy opening production number at the 61st annual Academy Awards Wednesday night.
 At one point, the actress and actor Rob Lowe performed a parody of the Credence Clearwater Revival song, "Proud Mary," during which she sang, "Used to work a lot for Walt Disney, starting in cartoons every night and day ..."

LAOCOC sues Miami messenger service

MIAMI — The Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee filed suit Thursday accusing a Miami messenger service of illegally using the 1984 Olympics emblem to do business.
 The 12-page suit, filed in Miami federal court, asks for at least $1 million in damages and at least $3 million for wrongful conduct, court costs and attorney's fee, and seeks to prohibit the messenger service from using the emblem.
 It charges Star Messenger Service with copyright infringement, trademark infringement, unfair competition under state and federal law, and damaging the Olympic committee's business reputation.
 The committee claims Star Messenger Service is using the 1984 Olympics "Star-in-Motion" symbol as its logo to give the appearance the service is sanctioned by the LAOCOC, said attorney Therese Vento.
 Sergio Mannisae, president of Star Messenger, said the Olympic star and the messenger service logo are different.
 "They have tried to tell me my logo is confusing because it is similar," he said. "Similar is not the same."

British lawyer arrested as fugitive

ORLANDO — A British lawyer accused of fleeing with his clients' money was arrested in Orlando on fugitive charges, the FBI said Thursday.
 Avtar Singh Bhol, 58, was apprehended without incident late Wednesday at the Orlando home where he had been living, FBI spokesman Larry Curtain said.
 A federal warrant issued Jan. 31 in Boston charged him with fleeing the United Kingdom to avoid prosecution.
 He is wanted by the Thames Valley Police in Reading, England, on theft charges. They allege that Bhol, a solicitor, vanished in July 1988 with $840,000 to $1.28 million belonging to his clients.

Kimball's sentence remains unchanged

United Press International
TAMPA — Former Olympic diver Bruce Kimball lost his bid Thursday to have his sentence for drunken driving-manifestation reduced so he could enter a $12,000-a-year alcohol treatment facility.
 The 25-year-old silver medalist in the 1984 Summer Olympics pleaded no contest in January to two counts of manslaughter and three counts of drunken driving involving serious bodily injury.
 He drove his sports car into a group of young people near the end of a darkened dead-end road near Brandon last August. Two people were killed and four injured, three seriously.
 Hillsborough Circuit Judge Harry Lee Coe allowed Kimball to change his plea from guilty to no contest so that insurance policies he carried would not be voided and would provide some financial awards to victims. But he sentenced Kimball to 17 years in prison, a sentence that mandated he be confined in a maximum security prison.

 He has been at the Tomoka Correctional Facility in Daytona Beach for the past month, and Thursday he asked Coe to reduce the sentence to 10 years, which would allow him to be confined in a minimum security institution and to enter a private residential alcohol treatment center.
 But after a hearing of about two hours, Coe denied the motion for sentence reduction.
 Kimball, wearing blue prison clothing, was somber as he appeared before Coe and acknowledged for the first time publicly that he not only had an alcohol problem, but also a drug problem.
 "I feel as though I now realize that I have a drug and alcohol problem," he said.
 The former University of Michigan athlete did not specify what drugs were involved, but said "one drug led to another."

High court rules in water dispute

United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — A property owner can divert water runoff to a neighbor's property and is only liable when the flow of surface water becomes "unreasonable," the Florida Supreme Court ruled Thursday.
 The landmark decision on the rights of property owners to get rid of surface water came in a nine-year dispute between Gus Machado Buick and Westland Skating Rink in Hialeah.
 The justices ordered a new trial in Dade County Circuit Court and voted 7-0 to set a "reasonable use" standard for property owners who claim damages involving water runoff from a neighbor's property.
 Under the rule, a landowner cannot always deal with surface water as he pleases, but he can alter the natural flow of that water even if it runs onto someone else's property, Justice Stephen Grimes said in his opinion.

 "Each possessor is legally privileged to make reasonable use of his land even though the flow of surface waters is altered thereby and causes some harm to others," Grimes wrote. "He incurs liability only when his harmful interference with the flow of surface waters is unreasonable."
 Earlier disputes of this nature were settled under the common enemy rule, where the winner was the person who most effectively steered the surface water onto his neighbor's property, said Grimes, who said the new rule is important in Florida, where booming population has led to construction sprawl.

Blockade Keys to head off boatlift, former chief urges

United Press International
MIAMI — The United States should adopt an emergency blockade plan to keep U.S. boats from leaving the Florida Keys from leaving the Florida Keys the next time Fidel Castro opens Cuba's borders, a Coast Guard chief during the Mariel boatlift urged.
 Capt. Alex Larzelere is convinced there will be another boatlift unless the United States adopts a comprehensive plan to secure its borders.
 The island suffers a severe housing shortage and widespread underemployment, which is worsening as soldiers return from Angola, he points out.
 "Millions of Cubans would like to leave the island. I don't expect another boatlift within the next year or so. But if conditions continue the way they are it's an option Castro certainly would exercise."
 "If tension begins to develop because of a poor economy, he will then want to select people to leave," Larzelere said.
 Now retired, Larzelere was chief of Search and Rescue for the Seventh Coast Guard District in Miami when the Mariel boatlift began and later was commodore of the squadron of cutters operating in the Florida Straits between Cuba and Florida.

 He has written a book analyzing the six-month boatlift that brought 125,000 Cuban refugees to Florida in 1980 and outlining a comprehensive plan for preventing a repeat.
 "Castro's Ploy — America's Dilemma: The 1980 Cuban Boatlift," was published last month by the National Defense University Press.
 Larzelere sympathizes with Cuban-Americans who went to Mariel harbor in 1980 to pick up relatives.
 "I'd feel the same way if my family were down there," he said. "But I think the Cuban-American community realized after a time they were being used by Castro. The boats were loaded with people Castro had selected. Most of the boats came back without their relatives."
 "It was a very painful experience for the United States and the Cuban-Americans and we should take every precaution to prevent it in the future."

Larzelere said in an interview from his home in Alexandria, Va.
 The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 already established criminal penalties for bringing undocumented aliens into the country, regardless of circumstances. It is a good step, but it is reactive, not preventative, he said.
 "They have to wait until people get into the country before we can take any action," Larzelere said.
 He said one of the keys to preventing a new boatlift is to restrict boat traffic leaving Key West. The southernmost island in the Keys, just 90 miles from Cuba, was the departure and return point for most of the Mariel boats.
 "Most of the boats that went to Cuba probably could not make it from anywhere else; they were that small," Larzelere said.
 In the 1980 boatlift, the United States felt it was inhumane to use military force to keep the refugee-laden boats from landing in Key West. Castro, however, indicated he would use force to keep them from returning unwanted passengers to Cuba.

"It was inevitable once the boats got to Cuba, they would return with people. Castro laughed. Our best option is a series of options to prevent people from going to pick them up," Larzelere said.
 The Magnuson Act authorizes the Coast Guard to close U.S. harbors to preserve national security if the president declares an emergency.
 It would require a major commitment of people and vessels, he points out, because of the vast numbers of harbors and inlets in the Florida Keys.
 But it could work if Coast Guard cutters were deployed across the Florida Straits to intercept southbound boats.
 Border patrol agents posted along U.S. 1, the highway linking the Keys together, could assist by stopping trailered boats at highway checkpoints. They could check for proper registration and advise boat owners of the penalties for bringing back illegal aliens.
 "The Cuban-American population, if we had said right away the government will not tolerate this, by and large they are law-abiding and would not have done it."

Death scene reconstructed

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies said Thursday they have pieced together a picture of exactly what happened when Dep Hugh Thomas Jr. was shot and killed Tuesday morning.

Capt. Roy Hughey said all four bullets fired at the scene by Tony LeMasters, 27 — who committed suicide after killing Thomas — had been recovered. All the shots were fired by LeMasters, he said.

It has been determined, Hughey said, that LeMasters came to the home of his estranged wife Janice Richards LeMasters, who lived with her parents off Snow Hill Road, at about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Police have determined that LeMasters hid outside Mrs. LeMasters' house after a witness saw him enter a wooded area near there. LeMasters was armed with a rifle and the witness called police to the scene. Deputy Thomas responded.

Thomas pursued LeMasters back to the house. Thomas talked with occupants who told him the armed man he was searching for might be LeMasters. Thomas walked to the side of the house and was ambushed and killed by a single shot to his head from LeMasters' rifle, investigators said.

LeMasters was hiding behind a slat-board fence at the rear of the house where his wife's family parked their cars.

He knew that his wife and her mother would be leaving the house that morning to take his baby daughter to the doctor. Hughey said it is believed that LeMasters was going to ambush them, but instead shot Thomas.

After Thomas was killed, LeMasters shoved the rifle under a rotted part of the bottom of the fence and jumped the fence.

He went to Thomas' body and took the deputy's revolver.

Mrs. LeMasters' brother, Jay Richards, 23, came to the back door. LeMasters called his name and fired two shots at Richards from Thomas' gun. One bullet hit the porch and the second hit a shovel and was deflected.

LeMasters immediately put Thomas' gun to his own head and fired a single shot to commit suicide, Hughey said.

Mrs. LeMasters had received a court order the previous Monday to keep her husband away from her and their 5-month-old daughter because he had threatened to kill her. LeMasters, of Sanford, was told by his wife Monday night via phone that she had the injunction against him.

LeMasters had been released from the Seminole County jail March 24 because there wasn't enough evidence to hold him in two burglary cases and for aiding his brother, Robert LeMasters, in a jail escape.

That was Hugh's attitude too. "Hugh meant very much to me. I loved him like a son," Dale said. "This was a true person. A true patriot. He's a hometown boy who did good, just like a Minuteman. He would drop what he was doing in a minute to help anyone else. I'm very proud. That's one thing I wish I had told Hugh. But he knew it. He died doing what he wanted to do. Because of that I can take it that he died happy. If he could have stayed awake Hugh would have worked 24-hours a day. He was very fair; very just. The word is dedication. The man was dedicated, as these guys are."

"He always had a smile for someone," Pete said of Hugh. "I would have liked to have gone to his wedding," Eric said. Hugh was to be married to Lisa Ellenburg Oct. 21. Pete was going to be his best man. Instead he will be a pall bearer for Hugh.

"Stuff can go wrong quick at any time," for a sheriff's deputy, Pete said. Eric said Hugh was just in the wrong place at the wrong time. His friends said Hugh would have been able to deal any situation and survive, if he had been given a fair chance.

Brent was in the dispatch center of the sheriff's department when the call came in that Hugh had been shot. He rushed to the scene, frustrated by the fact that traffic wouldn't move aside for his emergency vehicle. Brent found his friend dead, but he did his duty. He secured the scene and protected evidence at the site while waiting for investigators. His respect and love for Hugh enabled him to do his best for his friend.

Brent stayed with Hugh, and hid his anguish until he was alone in his patrol car leading the ambulance bearing Hugh's body back to Sanford. Brent said he cried through out that trip.

Hugh had been a deputy for almost five years, before he became the first Seminole County deputy killed in the line of duty in about 12 years.

Hugh's mother Sisay said he was born with the heart of a policeman and began expressing that ambition when he was two years old. After her son was slain, Dale said Mrs. Thomas gently chided Dale, saying she thought her son was joining the boy scouts when he became a deputy. Hugh did begin his career as a lawman as a youth deputy, and Explorer Scout, while still a student at Lake Brantley High School.

He achieved his goal of becoming a lawman, with the encouragement of Dale, who as a school resource officer and security guard at a skating rink, has had the opportunity in his 10 years as a deputy to influence many youngsters in to choose careers as Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

"I blame myself a little for Hugh being here," Dale said, although he knows Hugh would have been a cop no matter what. Dale said Hugh's mother realizes that too.

His buddies said Hugh's ultimate dream was to become a California Highway Patrolman. They called him "Super Trooper Thomas," and he had a CHIP uniform patch glued to the glovebox of his car.

"When things would get rough," Pete said, "Hugh would say, 'I'm heading for California.'" Dale said he encouraged Hugh to become a deputy because the duty is more varied. Hugh found his niche as a traffic officer for three years and had recently switched back to routine patrol for a change. He wanted to become an investigator, but there were no openings in that division when Hugh switched duties, Eric said.

Eric is an investigator and said he feels a bit safer, because an investigator is seldom the first officer on a scene, which was the case when Hugh was slain. Pete said they are aware of the dangers of their work and when they start their day often jokingly wonder if they will survive to go off duty.

"Hugh and I were saying two weeks ago - we're due for one of our people to be involved in a shooting one way or another," Eric said.

"I just told the boys the other day that something was going to happen. But I didn't think it would be to one of these guys," Dale said.

Of all the kids influenced by "Deputy Dale," who is assigned to Lake Brantley High School, the four that "clicked" — "who had the right chemistry" to become his surrogate sons as well as sheriff's deputies were Hugh, Eric, Brent and Pete.

Caution urged in solicitation for firefighters

SANFORD — Seminole County Fire Marshal Kirk Middleton has cautioned county residents that the Central Florida Fire Fighters' Council, which is making telephone solicitations for donations, is not affiliated with and does not provide any support to firefighters in this county.

Money collected by the group benefit Orange County firefighters, he said.

Applications accepted for local Soap Box Derby

SANFORD — The Sanford Parks and Recreation Department is accepting registrations for the first annual Central Florida Soap Box Derby to be in Sanford July 15.

Twenty families from Tampa, St. Petersburg, Titusville, Orlando and Seminole County attended the March 22 derby kickoff meeting, Mike Kirby of the recreation department said.

The derby will be for children aged 9 through 16 who construct their own go-carts for the kit car and masters divisions. The recreation department will have the first of a series of workshops on building cars April 12 at 7 p.m. on the first floor of City Hall. Winners of the derby will be sent to the national soap box finals in Akron, Ohio Aug. 12. Individuals who place in the competition will win trophies and savings bonds.

Beautification funds subject of meeting

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Boulevard Study Committee will give the public a chance to present their ideas on funding, methods for the Lake Mary Boulevard Gateway Corridor beautification plan.

The committee will hold a public work session at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 12 in the Lake Mary commission chambers, 158 N. County Club Road.

Seminole County Planner Dick Boyer said the purpose of the meeting is "to offer the public and any interested groups or forums, the chance to present financing ideas."

The plan is an interlocal agreement among Seminole County, Lake Mary and Sanford. The county on March 14 unanimously approved the plan, making some changes to the ordinance and the following evening Lake Mary commissioners also unanimously approved it. Sanford Planning and Zoning commission recommended its approval.

The cost of the beautification project is estimated at $3.7 million for such things as planting of live oaks, irrigation for the landscaping, maintenance and concrete pavers at each signalized intersection. Utility line burial is also a requirement along the roadway. Lake Mary's cost is estimated at about $1.1 million, the county, $1.7 million and Sanford, $925,000. The county has suggested a one-cent gas tax to help pay for the cost of landscaping.

The plan, expected to begin with the county's widening project this year, is widely endorsed by various groups including the Seminole County League of Homeowners Associations, Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, Seminole County Sierra Club and various homeowners associations.

At some public hearings, however, concern was expressed by residents about funding, especially regarding the utility burial.

Supreme court delays killer's execution

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court refused Thursday to grant a stay of execution condemned killer William Eutzy, scheduled to die next week for the murder of a Pensacola taxi driver.

In a 5-2 decision, the court ruled Eutzy, who is scheduled to be executed April 5, had no procedural or legal grounds for delaying his execution.

Eutzy was convicted of shooting taxi driver Herman Hughley in February, 1983. The jury recommended he receive a life sentence, but the trial judge overruled that recommendation and ordered the death penalty.

The majority of justices rejected Eutzy's claim that two aggravating factors the trial judge considered when issuing the death penalty should not apply to him.

Eutzy claimed that a 1958 conviction in Nebraska should not be considered because he is challenging the conviction. He also claimed the Pensacola murder does not meet the legal definition of "cold, calculated, and premeditated," and so should not be considered as an aggravating factor.

Justices Rosemary Barkett and Gerald Kogan sided with Eutzy, arguing there was no conclusive evidence the murder was premeditated.

Barkett also wrote that if the Nebraska case is overturned, "The result could be that a man will be executed in Florida despite the complete lack of any valid aggravating factors."

Barkett and Kogan said the death sentence should be stricken and Eutzy given a new sentencing hearing.

"Death should never be imposed where there is any significant doubt as to the reliability of the sentence, as there is here," Barkett wrote.

Former poet laureate's Pulitzer is a surprise

United Press International

KEY WEST — Former U.S. poet laureate Richard Wilbur was caught off guard Thursday when he won his second Pulitzer Prize for poetry.

"I'm astonished and pleased," said Wilbur, who learned the news in a phone call to his winter home in Key West. "I really hadn't been counting on a thing. I'm so pleased that they've come at me again."

"I know that many years ago Robert Frost won several Pulitzer Prizes. I've always felt he was different from me. I didn't expect that I would be honored again."

The Pulitzer committee lauded Wilbur, 68, for "New and Collected Poems," a collection of his work dating back to 1943. "I simply put into that book all the things I'd ever published in book form, all the poems published that way. I decided not to throw the things out — for the present," Wilbur joked.

He said he had not had time to make plans for a celebration. "My wife just kissed me and that's a good beginning," he said.

Wilbur won his first Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1956, for his third book, a collection of poems titled "Things of the World." It also won the National Book Award.

Wilbur is widely known for his translations of the works of French playwright Moliere, and collaborated with playwright Lillian Hellman on the comic opera "Candide," which ran on Broadway in 1956.

Reagan, Kennedy agree on one thing

Speaking at Pepperdine University the other day (and waiving his $50,000 fee), former President Reagan shared with students the agonies of writing his memoirs.

"I tell you, I sit there looking at those blank pages, but I want to give readers an idea what it's like in that house they drive by," he said.

Self-assessment is always difficult, and undoubtedly more so when you are reflecting on eight years in that particular house, the White House.

But an immediate solution to Reagan's problem was at hand. Across the continent, on the Yale University campus, U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy also was delivering an address. He was reflecting on the Reagan presidency.

"Ronald Reagan may have forgotten names, but never his goals," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "He was a great communicator, not simply because of his personality or his TelePrompTer, but mostly because he had something to communicate."

Kennedy went further, praising Reagan as "an effective president above all else, because he stood for a set of ideas," and pursued them with vigor and single-mindedness. "He stated them in 1980 — and it turned out that he meant them — and he wrote most of them not only into public law, but into the national consciousness."

The solution for Reagan, of course, is to hire Ted Kennedy as a ghost writer. It is possible that Republicans have never spoken so eloquently of their president. Coming from a staunch Democrat, who would doubt its truthfulness?

Let's see graduation rate

Three federal lawmakers, two of them former stars of the National Basketball Association, have proposed a law that, if enacted, would blow the whistle on some of this country's unscrupulous exploiters of college student athletes.

The bill requires colleges getting federal aid to disclose the graduation rates of student athletes. The legislation was proposed by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.Y., who played for the New York Knicks; Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Md., formerly of the Washington Bullets; and Rep. Ed Towns, D-N.Y., who ran track and played basketball in college but, like most of his teammates, didn't go pro.

In their quest for the big-time money that goes with big-time sports, too many colleges and universities are interested mainly in showcasing their student athletes on TV, not educating them. Students have emerged from these schools without the ability to even read a street sign, much less a computer manual. How are these young people supposed to find a job?

Requiring schools to report their graduation rates wouldn't stop the abuse altogether. But, as Bradley said, it would at least help high school athletes make "an informed choice" in picking a college. Some of the more blatant offenders — colleges that drain athletes like pop bottles and dump them rather than prepare them for adulthood — would no longer be able to hide so easily.

Ideally, the National Collegiate Athletic Association would have imposed this disclosure requirement. In failing to do so, the NCAA put the ball in Congress' court. The Bradley-McMillen-Towns bill ought to be enacted promptly.

Nicaragua: New wine in old bottles?

The brand new bipartisan American policy in Central America isn't brand new. But it isn't quite brand old. There is a new terrain.

Part of the new terrain can best be described by recounting some idle chatter that took place last year during the first top-level meetings between the contras and the Sandinistas. Before the negotiating began, the Sandinista officials taunted their contra adversaries. "The Yankees will sell you out," they said. "They sold out their allies in Vietnam, they'll do it to you."

But not long after that, the Soviets announced that they would leave Afghanistan, selling out their communist allies. Moreover, in the dominated nations of Eastern Europe, in parts of the Soviet Union itself, people yearning for space and freedom are pushing the Soviets. In some ways the Soviets are yielding somewhat.

Accordingly, it's not a secure time for any threatened ward of the Soviets, certainly not the Sandinistas. The Nicaraguan economy is a junkyard, with 20,000 percent annual inflation and not even any contras to blame it on. At any future negotiations, the contras will join in the taunting. "The Soviets will sell you out; they did it in Afghanistan and they'll do it to you."

The other new part of the terrain concerns the Democrats. All along they have made an "if only" case. If only military aid to the contras was stopped, the Arias Plan could succeed. If only that devil Elliott Abrams and his aged puppet Ronald Reagan stopped confronting Congress and started cooperating, things would be different.

OK. The military aid was stopped and will stay stopped for another year. The Aged One is in California, chopping logs and giving speeches. The Evil One is opening a law practice in Washington. The Republican administration cooperated with the Congress, and the Democrats signed a statement that calls for democratization in Nicaragua.

In the Arias Plan the Sandinistas pledged to have free elections, free press and freedom to organize politically. They reneged.

A national election in Nicaragua is due early next year. The Sandinistas say it will be free and fair. But what if they renege? Will congressional Democrats behave honorably and hold them to account? Will the Democrats demand that the anti-Sandinista opposition in Managua gets a fair chance to get its election message on television? Will Democratic congressional doves like David Bonior, Tony Coelho and David Obey be prepared to turn the screws on Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega if democratization is a sham? Or will they offer more excuses for the Sandinistas?

The other new part of the terrain concerns George Bush and James Baker. They are supposed to be the moderate, pragmatic descendants of Reagan. But they too have read the results of Afghanistan.

On the surface, the new agreement sounds pathetically familiar. Now, as before, we send humanitarian aid to the contras, won't let them use their guns, wait to see whether the Sandinistas — without military pressure — will move to democratic rule. The only difference: A policy that most Democrats and Republicans denounced is now a policy that is endorsed bipartisanship.

That's only on the surface. The pause button has been pushed. But when the tape starts to play again, if Bush is tough, and the Democrats are honorable, the music could be different.

Tinkering with the status quo

WASHINGTON — From opposite sides of the Capitol and from both the rival parties, pressures are growing that undermine the operating assumption of the George Bush presidency.

That assumption is that the 1988 election constituted a vote for continuity of policy and political direction, that no great change in the status quo is necessary or desirable. It's that belief, voiced often by the President and his senior aides, which armors the White House against criticism that the administration is pokey on appointments, unfocused in direction and lacking in any major goals.

The past week brought clear evidence on two fronts that Bush's largely complacent view will be challenged on Capitol Hill.

Senate Democrats under their new chief, majority Leader George Mitchell (D-Maine), put forth a legislative agenda for a year that is a good deal more ambitious than the blueprint Bush offered the country last month. And the House Republicans, in electing Rep. Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.) as their new whip or assistant leader, picked a man whose entire career has been built on upsetting establishment applecarts and fighting the status quo.

Both Mitchell and Gingrich denied that their actions were in any way a rebuke or challenge to Bush. But taken together, they create a situation in which the President's early passivity could easily lead to his being badly whipsawed in coming months.

Bush believes most Americans are largely content with things the way Ronald Reagan left them. He also recognizes that he has very limited political leverage. Though he won 40 states, Democrats increased their strength in the House and Senate, and clearly do not fear Bush as they feared Reagan and his ability, when he was newly elected, to go over their heads to their constituents through television.

So Bush has set forth a minimalist program and has made it clear, by word and by deed, that he is ready to compromise on many points in return for Democratic cooperation in its passage.

When Mitchell and his lieutenant, Sen. Tom Daschle (D-S.D.), delivered the Senate Democrats' agenda for the year, it pointed up the bare-bones quality of Bush's program. To be sure, there's plenty of vagueness in the Democratic agenda, but its call for action on everything from defense reform to energy, the environment and family policy, in effect raises the price Bush will have to pay for Democratic cooperation.

As Mitchell remarked in a phone interview, the very fact that the Democrats were able to produce such a document — which reads much more like a presidential State of the Union address than something that normally comes out of Congress — "is something that administration ought to think about."

Mitchell demonstrated in the fight over John Tower that he was able to hold the Democrats nearly unanimously in line on a challenge to the President. The wide participation in the process he and Daschle managed suggests he is not puffing when he says, "We have a pretty good consensus now on where we ought to go and what our priorities are."

That means Bush must anticipate a wave of policy initiatives coming out of the Senate on the Democrats' timetable, not his own.

Meantime, the election of Gingrich as House GOP whip means Bush must now expect far more dogged Republican resistance to any policy of cooperation and accommodation with the majority Democrats. Gingrich made his reputation as the GOP's chief antagonist of House Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas). He has made dozens of speeches describing the Democrats' 35-year House hegemony as the worst example of what he calls the "increasingly illegitimate power base" of the opposition.

"If it's pikes, guns and grenades on the House floor," warned Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley (D-Wash.) the day after Gingrich's victory, "it would not be good for the President."

But armed combat is Gingrich's specialty. And the degree of frustration among House Republicans who put him in office is easily great enough to provide volunteers for legislative suicide squads. "He'll be down there at the (White House) leadership meetings," one Gingrich ally said, "pressing Bush to veto this or that Democrat bill and telling him that the whip count shows enough Republican votes to sustain a veto."

And that is precisely how Bush, with his modest agenda and his mini-political muscle, could find himself cruelly muddled between an increasingly cohesive Senate Democratic majority and an increasingly belligerent House Republican minority.

To escape from this box, the President will have to show a lot more political initiative, energy and imagination than he has displayed so far. He will, in short, have to set his sights higher than just tinkering with the status quo.

A man whose entire career has been built on upsetting the establishment applecarts.

Wrongfully discharged cadet fights to serve

WASHINGTON — A Navy recruiter ranks Mark Powell among the top one percent of candidates with the right stuff to become a military officer.

But the Navy won't let Powell, 25, join up until the Air Force cuts him free from the bogus discharge it wrapped around his neck more than five years ago. Powell was dismissed from the Air Force Academy in 1983 because a medical board he never met decided he had a "narcissistic personality disorder."

Powell turned the disaster into a challenge. He has vowed to prove that the academy made a mistake, and wants to re-enter the military. Three U.S. senators, two congressmen, a retired admiral and other military heavyweights are now backing his crusade to overturn the discharge.

Powell doesn't want revenge. He doesn't want a lawsuit. He simply wants to wear the wings of a military aviator.

In his second year at the academy, Powell was accused by his squadron commander of lying, a serious honor code violation. He challenged the accusation with intensity — apparently too much intensity. The medical board decided he was narcissistic, a label stuck on people with an inflated sense of self importance to the point of being debilitating. Maj. Steven Pecinovsky, who was then chief of civil law at the Academy, thought Powell could have disproved the honor code allegations and has backed Powell to the present day.

A spokeswoman at the Academy hospital told our associate Jim Lynch, "The medical board looked at (Powell) very closely. The young man received more than fair enough attention." The board approved the findings of a staff psychiatrist, despite the fact that 26 of Powell's classmates quickly signed affidavits stating that he was getting along just fine with his fellow cadets.

James Klimaski, a Washington attorney specializing in military law said that of all the discharge options available to the Air Force, it "scraped the bottom of the barrel" to come up with narcissism. Powell is not the first to get smeared with such a charge. In the past we have exposed how the military loosely invokes psychological diagnoses to unfairly brand people, usually whistleblowers.

Powell left the academy and enrolled in the University of Michigan where he was crowned the National Collegiate Novice Skydiving Champion. He excelled as a scuba diving instructor and joined the ROTC pistol team as a civilian. The team coach, a Marine gunnery sergeant, says if Powell weren't a civilian "he'd probably be captain of the team." His grades were high and he amassed a stack of references vouching for his character and patriotism.

Last year, Powell took his case before the Air Force Discharge Review Board. A former deputy chief of psychiatry in the Central Intelligence Agency testified that narcissism could not ever have had a narcissistic personality disorder. Two civilian psychologists concurred that narcissism is a life-long condition and that Powell showed no signs of it. Distinguished Navy, Air Force and Marine personnel stood up for Powell at the hearing.

But the board stuck with the original ruling, the only obstacle keeping Powell out of Navy aviation officer candidate school. Powell appealed and his case is now pending before the Air Force Board for Correction of Military Records.

Col. Donald Mapes, consultant to the Air Force surgeon general, has recommended that the appeal board change Powell's discharge status.

Powell doesn't want revenge. He doesn't want a lawsuit. He simply wants to wear the wings of a military aviator.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher early Friday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 0.18 Thursday, was up 6.23 to 2287.57 shortly after the market opened.

Advances outpaced declines 511-311 among the 1,299 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 14,000,000 shares.

Stock prices closed mixed Thursday in moderate trading as money-center bank issues outperformed other issues in the wake of the market's steady climb earlier in the week.

Chester Pado, director of technical research at Jeffries & Co. in Los Angeles, said the market's performance reflected some "window-dressing" — the buying of strong stocks and the selling of weak ones in advance of portfolio managers' quarterly reports to their clients.

Money-center banks stocks, he noted, attracted buyers because they have been among the best performers in the first quarter.

Dollar higher; gold down

United Press International

The dollar was mostly higher Friday in moderate trading on major foreign currency markets as traders awaited the weekend meeting of the Group of Seven finance ministers. Gold was mostly lower.

In early New York trading, the dollar was little changed against key foreign currencies in moderate trading, showing strength in the face of Thursday's repeated intervention.

On Thursday, the dollar suffered a reversal, breaking through 1.90 against the mark early in the session and then retreating late in the day after a surprise move by the Federal Reserve.

The dollar rallied early in the day, extending its strong gains despite repeated efforts by the Fed to stem the currency's rise by intervening in the open market and selling dollars for West German marks.

The market ignored the intervention and pushed the dollar beyond 1.90 against the mark to levels not seen since last summer.

The dollar traded on the plus side for most of the day, but later in the day, the Fed intervened and bought yen as opposed to marks.

Analysts said it was a signal that the Fed meant business and it took people by surprise.

Analysts expect trading to be cautious as dealers await the weekend meeting of the Group of Seven in Washington.

Union fights sell-off

United Press International

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Union leaders for Northwest Airlines, targeted for a $2.8 billion takeover by oilman Marvin Davis, threatened to wage "all-out war" against any corporate raider intent on paying for the buyout by selling off pieces of the air carrier.

The company revealed after the stock market closed Thursday that Davis has offered $90 a share for NWA Inc., the parent company of Northwest Airlines. On Tuesday, the airline announced that an unidentified group had bought 4.9 percent of the company's stock and also had indicated interest in a buyout.

Davis, who made his fortune in Denver before moving to Los Angeles, said in a letter to NWA's board of directors dated March 30 that his offer is friendly and that he intends to keep the company intact and based in Eagan, Minn. He said the offer, which is good until April 21, represents a 50 percent premium over prices at which the stock recently traded.

Nader hits Bush bailout plan

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush's plan to bail out the ailing thrift industry soaks consumers and taxpayers but spares the "crooks" who created the devastating financial crisis, consumer advocate Ralph Nader said.

It was the latest shot in a growing battle over who should pay for the cleanup of hundreds of broke but federally insured savings and loan associations, most of them in the oil patch. The estimated price tag for the bailout is now at least $157 billion over 10 years.

Nader's remarks Thursday came as his Congress Watch organization joined with other consumer groups in launching a nationwide, grassroots campaign to force Congress to change the Bush plan.

Nader said the cost of cleaning up the thrift crisis should fall on the S&L industry that created the mess, largely through mismanagement and fraud, in the early 1980s.

The cost also should be shared by other financial institutions, the wealthy and corporations that pay little in taxes but have been enriched by the 1980s business boom, he said.

Instead, the Bush plan "sends the bill for the cleanup to the most innocent parties, depositors and small taxpayers," said Nader. He also said the thrift industry is trying to get Congress to kill the few positive reforms the Bush plan provides for consumers.

"Not content to stick the taxpayer with the cost of the bailout, industry lobbyists are now working day and night to weaken the consumer protections present in the Bush plan," Nader said.

The American people are angry, Nader said.

"We're already getting a lot of reaction from people around the country," Nader said at a news conference. "They're saying, 'We're not going to pay for the crooks.'"

Joining Nader were representatives of the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now and the U.S. Public Interest Research Group. The Bush plan calls for the closing or selling hundreds of thrifts and creation of a government corporation to issue $50 billion in bonds for the cleanup. More money would be raised from taxpayers, industry fees and the sale of repossessed property.

It also would restructure regulatory oversight, in part, by making the Federal Home Loan Bank Board part of the Treasury and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. part of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which regulates commercial banks.

Nader's campaign calls on citizens to mail members of Congress a "savings & loan bailout pledge," asking the lawmakers, among other things, to promise not to support a bailout that sends the bill to depositors and small taxpayers.

"The congressional strategy of President Bush and (Treasury Secretary) Nicholas Brady is to try to push through the saving and loan bailout program as fast as possible," Nader said.

Sandra L. Brown, of Palm Harbor, who is past president of Homicide Survivors Group, Inc., will be the key speaker. She is author of the book "Life After Murder: Picking Up The Pieces."

Kuhn said local victims and survivors of homicide victims will be given an opportunity to publically acknowledge their victimization.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception at City Hall, across from the courthouse.

"We do this to recognize victims. So many times they tend to be forgotten persons. We in the criminal justice system realize how they've been affected, no matter whether they're the victim of a rape or burglary. They are still a victim," Kuhn said.

Seminole County has been a leading advocate in supporting victims of crimes since State Attorney Norman Wolfinger took office more than four years ago, Kuhn said. The new constitutional amendment mandates some things that were already being done for victims in Seminole County, she added.

Victims are now assured involvement in prosecution and sentencing and are kept informed of the status of their case as it goes through the system. Rules ordering restitution of victims have been established.

For more than one year Kuhn has headed a self-help group for the survivors of the victims of homicide in the county.

A gap in the local support system, which Kuhn said she and other members of Seminole County Victims' Rights Coalition, are trying to correct, is the lack of a safehouse for victims of spouse abuse.

Although she deals with a new case of spouse abuse almost every day, Kuhn said the Seminole County Commission was asked to help support development of a safehouse, commissioners said one wasn't needed. Kuhn said that's not the case, because the Orange County safehouse for victims of spouse abuse, which serves three counties including Seminole, typically has a waiting list of more than 100 victims. In 1987, Kuhn said six deaths in Seminole County were linked to spouse abuse.

The coalition has plans drawn for a safehouse and an association of builders has promised to supply materials. The group needs $5,000 to begin independent development of fundraising activities to support the safehouse. Longwood businessman Avie Abramowitz has, Kuhn said, offered his house as a site for a fund raising cocktail party, which hasn't been scheduled, as a first step in the development of the safehouse.

The coalition is also, Kuhn said, preparing for the safehouse to be certified by the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, so it can qualify for some state funds.

Slowly but surely, Kuhn said, things are changing with gaining recognition of the needs of victims of crimes.

Mary Figg, D-Lutz, who has introduced a bill that would boost Florida's motor fuel tax in the coming year by 10 cents a gallon.

Figg will not predict the fate of her proposal, which Martinez has said he will not sign. She also said the bill is not "a leadership proposal," meaning it is without the overt support of House Speaker Tom Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, and Senate President Bob Crawford, D-Winter Haven.

Rep. John Cosgrove, D-South Dade, said there will be a "war" in the coming session over how transportation money is spent for the next 10 years. He has filed a bill seeking reconsideration of the 50-cent turnpike toll increases that went into effect in February.

In an unusual step, Martinez is seeking sponsors this session for a bill that would move the responsibility for DOT's finances to a joint legislative-executive task force.

According to Floridians for Better Transportation, a lobbying group pushing for a large expansion in road construction and repair projects, the state will need to spend $8 billion over the next 10 years to bring its highway system up to minimum standards.

That figure represents the entire DOT budget for four years and lawmakers like Figg say there is no way to produce that kind of revenue without a substantial tax increase.

Mother to allow son to die

United Press International

PORTLAND, Maine — The mother of a 25-year-old man left comatose from a stabbing attack said she decided to withdraw her son's rubber feeding tube Thursday despite concern by his attacker the action could prompt murder charges against him.

The case has also prompted concern from legal scholars, who say it poses troublesome policy decisions for both courts and prosecutors.

Sylvia Lane has inserted or removed the tube from Mark Weaver's abdomen many times over the past four years. But this time, she will not be putting the tube back in. And in a week or two, Mark Weaver will be dead.

"I think Mark will finally be at peace," Lane said Wednesday. She has cared for her brain-dead son almost constantly in the four years since he was almost fatally stabbed in a fight with a man he did not know.

"Actually, we believe that he died on the way to the emergency room in 1985," the mother said. "We think his soul is trapped in his body, which doesn't work, with a brain that doesn't work."

It took a long time for Lane to decide that her son should be allowed to die. For months, she hoped for a miracle that never arrived.

Once she made the decision and obtained permission from the Cumberland County Probate Court, however, the process was interrupted from an unexpected source — the man who stabbed Weaver in the neck four years earlier, putting him in what doctors call a "persistent vegetative state."

Noel Pagan, 28, of Welleley, Mass., served three years in prison after being convicted of assault in Weaver's 1985 stabbing. He did not know of Lane's plan to disconnect the feeding tube until earlier this month, when a reporter called to tell him.

Pagan's attorney, Robert Mullen of Auburn, wanted the state Attorney General's Office to assure Pagan he would not be charged with murder after Weaver died. But the office refused to provide that assurance, or to discuss the Weaver case at all.

"It would be inappropriate to discuss whether we would charge someone with murder before the death of a victim," said David Cheever, spokesman for Attorney General James Tierney.

Without that assurance for his client, Mullen went to court, seeking to block removal of the feeding tube.

After a hearing on Pagan's motion, Probate Judge Dana Childs on Tuesday denied Pagan legal standing in the case, saying the Massachusetts man was looking out for his own interests rather than Weaver's.

"The lawyer did precisely the right thing for his client, and I think it's a mistake for the attorney general not to state his intentions," said Harvard Law School Professor Alan Dershowitz.

"This is not a life-support system case. This is a feeding tube and it's rare for states to allow a feeding tube to be removed," Dershowitz said. "It would be hard for the state on one hand to have participated in the death and on the other hand to say someone else is responsible for the death."

Mullen said his client would not appeal the probate judge's decision, opening the door for the feeding tube's removal.

Weaver will remain in his hospital bed at home until he dies, his mother said. A doctor will check on him daily, and nurses will remain with him around the clock. Without the tube, Weaver will receive neither nourishment nor fluids, and doctors say he will die of dehydration within a week or two.

Weaver's condition resulted from a nighttime fight with Pagan on a Lewiston street in the summer of 1985. According to testimony in Pagan's trial, the two men, who did not know each other, were walking on opposite sides of the street. Pagan, reportedly angry at a girlfriend, was muttering under his breath.

Weaver reportedly thought Pagan was talking about him, and challenged him.

May to death with a claw hammer in Okaloosa County in June 1978.

Heiney, who had lived in Houston, was seen with May in Jackson, Miss., June 5, 1978. The two said they were traveling to Florida to find work.

May's body was found near Interstate 10 in Okaloosa County the next day. He had been hit in the head at least seven times with a claw hammer.

An autopsy showed that May's blood-alcohol level had been .28 percent when he died, making him too drunk to defend himself.

Heiney was arrested for car theft three weeks later in Eaton, Ohio. He had May's wallet, credit cards, and other possessions, and blood that matched May's type was found on the front and back seats.

The warrant was the first signed for Heiney.

Tompkins was sentenced to death for the March 1983 stangulation of Pasco County resident Lisa DeCarr. Tompkins murdered DeCarr after she fought off his sexual advances and then buried her beneath her mother's house, court records said. The warrant was the first signed for Tompkins.

Budget

The new budget allows $281,383 for salaries, down from $303,688 in the initial proposal. Last year the authority paid $319,338 in salaries.

The salary allowances do not include a $50,000 estimate budgeted for a professional management team. Earlier this month the board voted to replace the executive director position with professional management. No firm has yet been contracted for authority directorship.

The board included in the budget $10,400 for unemployment compensation of former executive director Elliott Smith. Williams said Smith has not yet filed for compensation. The board terminated Smith Sept. 8, and this month denied his request for reinstatement.

EPA adds 101 sites to Superfund list

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency has added 101 toxic waste dumps to its national priority cleanup list, raising the number of sites being addressed under the federal Superfund program to 860.

In addition to the 101 new sites, EPA officials said Thursday another 273 dumps have been proposed for inclusion on the National Priorities List, bringing the potential total number of Superfund sites to 1,163. EPA officials said most of the 273 dumps eventually will be added to the final list.

The National Priorities List identifies and ranks the toxic waste sites that federal and states officials believe pose the greatest long-term threat to human health and the environment.

Sites on the list are eligible to receive federal cleanup money from the $8.5 billion Superfund, which is funded by taxes on industry, predominantly chemical and petroleum companies.

The 101 new sites were in 33 states, led by Pennsylvania with 12 sites, New York with 10 and Michigan with seven.

Among the new sites in New York was the municipal landfill at Islip, the town that launched the notorious wandering garbage barge in 1987 because its landfill was overflowing. The barge roamed the Caribbean for months in a futile attempt to find a place to dump its load before returning to New York.

Of the 1,163 final and proposed Superfund sites, New Jersey has the most, with 107, followed by Pennsylvania with 94, California with 88, Michigan with 80 and New York with 76.

Three infants critically hurt in pool

TUSTIN, Calif. — Three infants who crawled into a filthy swimming pool at what neighbors said was an unlicensed daycare center were in extremely critical condition and being kept alive on life support systems, officials said.

The infants, Arthur Matthew Grise, 14 months, of Orange, Melissa Diane Polsoff, 19 months, of Tustin, and Jonathan Derek Weston, 23 months, of the unincorporated Tustin area, were found in the pool at 3:50 p.m. Thursday. Orange County Sheriff's Lt. Larry Abbott said.

The owner of the house found the children and called paramedics, he said.

Grise and Polsoff were taken to Western Medical Center in Anaheim where they were in extremely critical condition on life support systems, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Weston was at Children's Hospital of Orange County also on life support systems, Abbott said.

Orange County Sheriff's detectives were investigating the incident and the Department of Social Services was looking into allegations the owners of the house were running an unlicensed daycare center.

Neighbor Nancy Reed said she had called officials to complain of the conditions at the house.

Judge to rule whether Reagan will be witness

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense lawyers told the Iran-Contra judge they need testimony from former President Ronald Reagan to show Oliver North was authorized to act in the Iran-Contra scandal by top government officials.

After the prosecution ended its case Thursday against the ex-White House aide, U.S. District Judge Othard Gezell said he would rule Friday whether he will compel Reagan to submit to a subpoena and testify at North's trial.

Gezell excused the jury until Monday for a "customary period of lawyers' talk" that included Thursday's hearing and one on Friday.

The judge admonished the jurors not to read or watch anything about the case and suggested they go out and "look at the cherry blossoms," the flowering Japanese trees that are about to hit their pink peak around the capital.

In January, when Gezell quashed a North subpoena for President Bush, the judge said he has the "naked power" to force Reagan to answer the subpoena but would consider the former president's views on the issue before ruling.

Reagan's lawyers are fighting the demand for testimony, claiming North has not demonstrated a clear need for Reagan's appearance. The Justice Department is fighting the subpoena on constitutional grounds.

At a hearing Thursday, Gezell said that instead of "live testimony," he might permit the use of excerpts from Reagan's presidential diary or answers to written questions the former president submitted to the grand jury that indicted North in March 1988 on 12 felony charges.

But Barry Simon, one of North's lawyers, told the judge that Reagan is "clearly a material witness" and must be forced to testify.

WORLD BRIEFS

Iraq said to be building A-bomb

CAIRO, Egypt — King Fahd of Saudi Arabia said Thursday his country is prepared to help neighboring Iraq rebuild the nuclear reactor destroyed in 1981 by an Israeli air strike.

The Washington Post reported in its early Friday edition that Saudi Arabia is helping to finance a secret nuclear project in which Iraq is trying to produce and test an atomic bomb within two years.

In a front-page article from Jerusalem, the newspaper quoted "well-placed Israeli sources" as saying the Iraqis began the project after Israeli fighter jets blew up the 70-megawatt Osirak nuclear reactor in 1981 and are using 25 pounds of enriched uranium that survived the attack.

The Post said the Israeli claims were "largely confirmed" by American defense analysts in Washington.

Fahd ended a four-day official visit to Egypt, where he arrived after spending four days in Iraq.

Israelis kill two guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An Israeli patrol intercepted and killed two guerrillas trying to sneak into northern Israel from southern Lebanon Friday in the seventh failed infiltration attempt in less than two months, security sources said.

The sources said the Israeli troops were on patrol near the village of Shihin, inside Israel's self-declared "security zone" and 2 miles north of the Israel-Lebanon border, when they spotted the guerrillas and killed them in a brief firefight.

The identities of the guerrillas was not immediately known, the sources said, adding that no casualties were reported among the Israeli troops.

Canada, PLO hold first meeting

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — Canadian and Palestinian diplomats held their first official meeting less than half an hour after Ottawa announced it was lifting a ban on high-level contacts with the PLO.

Yves Fortier and PLO Ambassador Nasser Al-Kidwa met for 20 minutes Thursday at Canada's U.N. mission.

"Our objective is to concentrate on the peace process in the Middle East," Fortier said.

"I'll be free to talk to the PLO and search for a meaningful solution."

The session marked the first ambassadorial-level meeting between Canada and the PLO, and came less than 30 minutes after Ottawa announced it was lifting the ban.

Clark, secretary of state for external affairs and a former time minister, announced the government's new policy in Ottawa, but said Canada still does not recognize the independent state the Palestine Liberation Organization declared in November.

Clark also emphasized that the government's support for Israel remains unchanged.

But the move was condemned by the Independent Canada-Israel Committee, which said Canada has joined the "general stampede" to grant the PLO credibility. The group said the PLO continues to work for Israel's destruction.

Fortier said he had been instructed to meet with Al-Kidwa "to review the Middle East question in a general way."

"We will continue our discussions and will meet with PLO Ambassador Zehdi Labib Terzi when it is required," the Canadian U.N. envoy said.

Fortier said there was "no parallel" between his meeting with Al-Kidwa and the recent talks between U.S. and PLO representatives.

He said Ottawa's decision was prompted by PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's declaration in Geneva last December that his group had disavowed terrorism and recognized Israel's right to exist.

Fortier said Canada had also noted "meaningful developments" within the PLO since a Nov. 15 meeting in Tunis.

Three Arabs killed in 'Land Day' disturbances

United Press International

DEIR HANNA, Israel — Thousands of Israeli Arabs demonstrated peacefully in support of the Palestinian uprising, while soldiers killed three Palestinians in widespread violence in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Authorities stepped up security Thursday throughout Arab areas of Israel and the occupied territories to thwart violence during Land Day demonstrations called to show solidarity with the Palestinian uprising and to protest confiscation of Arab land.

The army prohibited Palestinians from leaving the West Bank and put the Gaza Strip under indefinite curfew. The underground leadership of the uprising, in a "Land Communique" leaflet, called for increased attacks on soldiers Thursday.

Tension ran high in the occupied territories where residents staged illegal marches and clashed with soldiers in at least 20 communities.

In the West Bank village of Shuweika, an Israeli officer shot and killed a Palestinian who was about to throw a large rock at a patrol in an alleyway, military sources said. Two Palestinians from the West Bank village of Jabalia were killed by army gunfire, and 36 others were wounded in scattered clashes, Palestinian sources said.

At least 401 Palestinians and 14 Israelis have been killed in the nearly 18-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation.

In Israeli Arab villages and towns, Land Day observances were mostly peaceful with about two dozen arrests and a handful of minor incidents reported.

A general strike called by Israeli Arab councils shut down most Arab businesses but was not entirely successful. Many Bedouin villages and at least seven northern Israeli Arab towns ignored the strike call.

Land Day commemorates the 1976 riots in which six Israeli Arabs were killed while protesting government confiscation of Arab land. About 700,000 Arabs are Israeli citizens.

Gorbachev's visit is stirring little interest in Cuba

United Press International

HAVANA, Cuba — Cuba is making little fuss over Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's forthcoming first visit to Havana, where the Kremlin's reform-minded ways have received a cool reception from President Fidel Castro.

Gorbachev and his wife Raisa are scheduled to arrive Sunday for a three-day visit that will include private talks with Castro and visits to scientific and cultural centers.

The Soviet leader also will address the Assembly of People, an organization of municipal government representatives, and sign a bilateral friendship and cooperation agreement.

While this is Gorbachev's first visit to Cuba and Latin America, the official Cuban media have given it sparse advance coverage. So far, only a small article was published on page four of the official newspaper Granma. The story made no mention of preparations for Gorbachev's welcome other than to say he would arrive Sunday.

"They are not saying yet how will he be received," said Luisa Greuet, 82, enjoying the sun Thursday in a downtown plaza. "But it is two days away."

Gorbachev was to have made the trip to Cuba in December after his visit to the United States, but it was postponed after the devastating Armenian earthquake forced the Soviet leader to return home early.

The last Soviet leader to visit Cuba was Leonid Brezhnev in 1974. Rolling out the red carpet, Castro gave Brezhnev a weeklong tour that confirmed Cuba's status as the Soviet Union's staunchest ally outside Eastern Europe.

Western analysts suspect this visit will be cooler because of what appears to be a growing ideological rift between the two leaders over economic development.

Gorbachev's emphasis on economic efficiency and greater productivity has not set well with Castro, who has been unable to translate the $5 billion in annual Soviet aid and subsidies into sustained economic growth.

While Gorbachev has made tentative forays into capitalist methods to increase productivity, Castro in an address in January marking the 30th anniversary of the revolution that brought him to power said, "Marxism-Leninism or death."

In 1986, Castro embarked on a program he called the rectification of errors, which is aimed explicitly at rooting evils of incipient capitalism and consumerism.

The result has been growing economic stagnation and problems meeting Soviet and East European export obligations.

Dallas drops its 12th straight

A 16-2 opening burst couldn't keep the Dallas Mavericks from suffering their 12th straight defeat.

Patrick Ewing scored 4 points and Mark Jackson added 3 points and a key assist in a 9-1 closing spree Thursday night, helping the New York Knicks to a 99-98 victory over the Mavericks.

"This was like a game of hearts," Dallas Coach John MacLeod said. "But we couldn't get the last card to drop."

In other NBA games Thursday night, Houston beat New Jersey 109-101.

Golden State thumped Charlotte 113-104, Denver outran Seattle 123-116, Sacramento upended Phoenix 135-123 and the Los Angeles Lakers crushed San Antonio 138-98.

Sanford leagues to organize

The organizational meeting for the ladies' league will be conducted April 13 at 6:30 p.m., also in the Downtown Recreation Center in the lower level of City Hall.

Entry fee is $275 per team with a non-resident fee of $10 per non-Sanford resident player. All fees must be paid by 7 p.m. April 14. Both the men and women's seasons will begin the week of April 24.

Camp scholarships available

Round-trip transportation and tuition cost to the Little League Summer Camp in St. Petersburg is available to the winner of the annual Robert H. Stirrat Summer Camp Scholarship Essay Contest.

The scholarship contest is open to all boys ages 10 to 15. Each youngster should prepare an essay of 100 words or less based on his impressions of Little League Baseball.

Each entry should be submitted by April 30 to: Stirrat Summer Camp Scholarship, Little League Baseball, P.O. Box 3485, Williamsport, Penn., 17701.

Buffalo: Close isn't enough

Being close to the top is no longer acceptable to the Buffalo Sabres.

Guy Carbonneau scored twice Thursday night to lead the visiting Montreal Canadiens to a 4-2 victory over Buffalo.

"People in the sport franchise don't want to hear we're getting close to the better teams," Buffalo Coach Ted Sator said after his club's loss to the Adams Division leaders. "We want to beat them."

"If we're always comparing ourselves to the team on top, that means we're satisfied with being second best and we're not."

With the loss, Buffalo saw its lead over fourth-place Hartford shrink to two points.

The Whalers crushed the Pittsburgh Penguins 9-5 Thursday.

The Sabres, 36-35-7 for 79 points, close out the season at the New York Islanders Saturday and at home Sunday against the Quebec Nordiques. Hartford, 36-37-5 for 77 points, winds up Saturday night at home against the Chicago Blackhawks and at Boston Sunday.

Elsewhere, St. Louis edged Quebec 4-3 in overtime and Philadelphia nipped Washington 5-4.

Prom night for Rams

Junior's return to rotation could give Lake Mary a lift

By TONY DESORMIER
 Herald sports editor

ORLANDO — Despite that his team has already lost a game and can't finish any higher than fifth, Lake Mary High School baseball coach Allen Tuttle is still looking for the Rams to get a lift out of playing in the Colonial Classic.

And with a game left to play, the Rams may already have.

For the last month, pitcher Curt Prom has been on the shelf with an arm ailment. With a .35 earned run average (that's about a third of a run per game), Prom could be the key to Lake Mary's post-season hopes.

On Thursday against Astronaut High School of West Columbia, S.C., Prom made his first start in almost a month. And it looked like the layoff didn't hurt him a bit as he threw a masterful two-hit shutout, leading Lake Mary to a 7-0 win.

The victory lifts the Rams into today's game with Winter Park (7-6 winners over Germantown, Tenn., on Thursday) at noon to decide the fifth and sixth place finishers.

"He's had a little problem with his arm, so we've held him back," said Tuttle of Prom. "Today, we decided to give him a shot. He says he feels real good."

He looked real good, too. After Derek Richardson opened the game with a line drive single just off the glove of a leaping Scott Conklin (the Lake Mary second baseman) and was put out on a double play, Prom retired 20 of the last 22 hitters he faced. In all, he faced 23 hitters, just two over the seven-inning minimum.

The only other batters to reach base for the Airport Eagles were Van Safriet (a two-out walk in the second) and Bryan Bouknight (a one-out single in the seventh).

Prom's effort was bolstered considerably by the steady defense played by his teammates. Of the 21 outs Prom needed to complete the game, only four came on strikeouts. The rest were handled with deceptive ease by the Ram defense.

"We played some awfully good defense," said Tuttle. "Defensively, we're starting to come together."

In fact, since a first inning defensive lapse on in the loss to Coconut Creek on Wednesday that dropped Lake Mary out of championship contention, the Rams have played brilliantly. "After the first inning yesterday, we played as well as we've played all year long," said Tuttle on Thursday.

What the Rams need to do now is get their offense in gear. On Wednesday, Lake Mary had 11 hits but left 11 men on base in a 9-2 loss. Against Astronaut Thursday, the Rams had just five hits and managed to score five runs in one inning with just two hits.

Lake Mary scored all the runs it needed in the bottom of the first when Shane Stuflet hit a two-out double and scored on a single to right by designated hitter Derek Wolfe. Aaron Iatarola made it 2-0 with a one-out home run in the third inning.

There it stood, Prom and Astronaut's Jody Varn locked up in a pretty impressive high school pitching duel. Then, with two out in the bottom of the sixth inning, Varn's defense deserted him.

After Wolfe reached on an error

A month on the shelf with an arm problem didn't seem to have any effect on Lake Mary's Curt Prom. On Thursday in the Colonial Classic, Prom lowered his already miniscule earned run average (.35) with a two-hit shutout of West Columbia-Astronaut (South Carolina).

It was a night of close calls for second baseman B.J. Calapa (right) and the Oviedo Lions. Playing in the semifinals of the Apopka Invitational against the host Apopka Blue Darters, the Lions dropped a controversial 8-5 decision.

Oviedo loss to Apopka clouded in controversy

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

APOPKA — Apopka used a three run rally in the third inning to pace the way to a controversial 8-5 victory over Oviedo Thursday night in the second semifinal of the Apopka Invitational at Apopka High School.

The Blue Darters improved to 15-2 and will face Jacksonville Sandalwood, a 9-8 come from behind winner over Miami Columbus, tonight at 7 in the finals. Oviedo fell to 8-10 and will take on Columbus at 4.

"We gave them (Apopka) all they wanted," Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell said. "I'm proud of our team, they went out and took on the state's fourth ranked team and forced them to pull out all the stops, they know they were in a tough game tonight."

The Lions opened the games scoring with a single run in the top of the first inning. Micah Kinnaird led off with a single down the left field line. Apopka pitcher John DeClue then attempted a pick off and the ball went off the first basemen's glove and into right field allowing Kinnaird to reach third.

Mike Verne reached on a walk and Gregg Hughes dropped down a nice sacrifice bunt to advance Verne to second. John Hernandez then sent a fly ball to center field to bring in Kinnaird and give Oviedo a 1-0 advantage.

Apopka was held scoreless in the bottom of the

Birle returns to haunt SCC Raiders

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Ex-Lake Mary High School pitcher Eric Birle came home to haunt the Seminole Community College Raiders as he scattered nine hits to lead the St. John Community College Vikings to a 5-1 victory in Mid-Florida Conference baseball action at Raider Field Thursday afternoon.

Birle, pitching in front of family and friends, did a great job of mixing his pitches, striking out four and walking only two in going the distance. He allowed at least one base runner in every inning but came up with the right pitch when it was needed.

The Raiders hit into three double plays and had only one man, except for the runner who scored, reach as far as third base.

"The boy did a great job," said coach John Tindall of St. John's. "He got to pitch before the home folks and did himself proud."

The win advanced the Vikings to 19-14 on the season and 8-4 in conference play. The Raiders, meanwhile, fall to 7-20 and 2-9 and will travel to Jacksonville Saturday to take on the conference-leading Stars of Florida Community College in a 2:00 p.m. contest.

Lost in Birle's performance was a very well pitched game by the Raiders' Richard Hargraves. A 6-3 freshman right hander from Okcechobee, Hargraves only gave up eight hits while striking out two and walking two. Only two of the five runs against him were earned and retired 14 of the last 16 men he faced.

Unfortunately for the Raiders, Birle was just too tough for them to hit.

The Vikings got on the scoreboard first when Mike Tucker led off the second with a single to left center, stole second, advanced to third on a throwing error, and scored on a ground out by David Hughes.

Seminole tied it in the bottom of the second on a single by David Leugers (a freshman from Leesburg), a stolen base and a single by Kevin Monahan (a freshman from DeLand). But little did the Raiders suspect that that would be their

Games called due to absent umpires

The Mid-Florida Conference women's softball double header between the Lady Raiders of Seminole Community College and the Lady Matadors of Valencia Community College had to be postponed Thursday when the umpires failed to show up for the games. The games will be played at a later date if the games have any bearing on the conference standings.

Reunions not so bad

DEAR ABBY: This if for all those people who don't want to go to their class reunions because they weren't popular—or didn't belong to the "in" crowd in high school and they thought no one would want to talk to them anyway.

I didn't think anyone would talk to me either, but my husband and I decided to go to my 20th high school reunion. Abby, it was the best move we ever made.

I hugged more people in two days than I had hugged in 20 years! I have never felt such a sense of love and belonging as I did at that reunion. There were no pretenses of where we came from, since most of us came from working-class families; we came home to be together. I even made peace with an old enemy!

For those who organized that reunion in Pittsburgh, thank you from the bottom of my heart. For those who didn't make the effort to attend—you missed a wonderful weekend.

YOU CAN GO HOME AGAIN

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR YOU CAN: Because you took the trouble to write, perhaps those who were lukewarm about going "home" for a class reunion will reconsider. Thanks for writing. Thanks, too, for mentioning those generous people who organize class reunions. They require a ton of work, and not many are willing to tackle the job.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

County museum opens door to past

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — From the moment you step up on the breezy front porch and open the creaking screen door of the Seminole County Historical Museum, you enter a world of Seminole County's yesteryear.

To the left, a quaint early Victorian living room, complete with throw rugs and slightly askew furniture, has been arranged by loving relatives just as Miss Martha Fox kept her living room in Sanford.

A short stroll down the hall and to the right is a large steel jail door, in use at the Sanford City Jail on Palmetto Avenue from 1904 to 1913. Nearby, a glass display case holds several dozen dolls neatly dressed by little girls dozens of years ago.

The Seminole County Historical Museum, located in the county's Five Points Complex on U.S. Highway 17-92, southwest of Flca World, both contains and is part of the county's past. The building itself, built in 1926, housed the County Old Folks Home, which was in continuous use until July 1964, according to a placard in the front hall.

The more than a dozen rooms now displaying exhibits in the museum once housed elderly retirees and the superintendent, said Lorraine Whiting, museum curator and a founder of the museum's Seminole County Historical Society. The building housing the museum was once one of several on the site, including an infirmary.

The retirement compound also included a fishing pond and an area where the residents could tend livestock and grow vegetables for their meals.

Reflective of Seminole County's traditionally Southern past, black residents lived in a wooden building next to the main home and ate in a dining hall apart from the main dining room, Whiting said. Not until much later in the history of the Old Folks Home did blacks join whites in the main building, she said.

The superintendent's apartment, at the south end of the building, still has the 1920's "modern" wood stove, complete with bun warmers and the porcelain-coated, cast-iron bathtub. Whiting said the resident's visitors usually entered the home through the superintendent's apartment.

"I guess he wanted to check out who was coming in," she said with a chuckle.

But most of the resident's rooms have been turned into displays with bits and pieces of the past donated by local residents.

The furnishings of the Martha Fox Room near the museum entrance were donated by family members on the condition that the furnishings be arranged exactly as she had it in her own home. Museum officials agreed, and now visitors have a rare opportunity to see an old Southern living room seemingly untouched by the passage of more than 50 years.

Perhaps the most exciting exhibit is the Second Seminole Lorraine Whiting, curator of the museum, sits in a classroom recreated to look like the workplace of a schoolmarm in 1913.

Wars Room, which is the result of several years of research by Seminole County Historical Society historian Arthur Francke. The room features photocopies of U.S. Army Lt. Richard Peyton's notes, handwritten on May 24, 1937, after he returned to Fort Mellon on Lake Monroe.

In his notes, Peyton describes traveling south on the St. Johns River from the mouth of Lake Monroe, accompanied by 20 soldiers and "four friendly Creek Indians." Peyton writes of discovering a large lake on the St. Johns River several miles south of the mouth of Lake Monroe and camping on a circular island in the middle.

Peyton named the lake after the commander on the southern army forces, Gen. Jesup. The discovery of Lake Jesup is illuminated by a painting by local artist E.B. Stowe on display in the exhibit room.

Other exhibits in the museum give visitors a cross-section view of life in Seminole County during the late 1800s and early 1900s.

The agriculture room includes tools used by the county's celery farmers before the turn of the century. On display is a curved tamper hoe used to smooth the bottom of trenches when the farmers laid the terra-cotta pipes—"tiles"—used to drain the mucky fields in and around Sanford.

The agriculture room also has an old roller used by field hands to stretch long strips of fabric-backed paper between the rows of celery. That blanched celery to the white favored by early consumers.

The nearby forestry room has a 6-foot-high pine tree stump still showing the separated bark and gashes made by early turpentine collectors. Bringing the display to life are photographs of workers collecting the pine sap from pots hung on the trees.

Other exhibits include a general store, an early classroom, a transportation room featuring memorabilia from the steamships and trains that served Seminole County 100 years ago.

These and other displays could easily fill an afternoon and bring you back for more expeditions into the past.

The museum is open free to the public from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Clubs and organizations can arrange guided tours by calling 321-2489 during the museum's hours.

The Miracle of Spring
The world is weary of winter. It seems that the snow and ice will never disappear but, suddenly, a small flower pushes through the snow. It seems like magic, this first hint of spring. The world begins to hope again. This is God's miracle in the world, the power of nature to renew itself each spring. Attend the church or synagogue of your choice this week and thank God for the miracle of Spring.

Pope warns U.S. bishops against Western evils

United Press International

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II warned U.S. bishops the American culture within which they work and minister is "marked by elements which need to be purified and uplifted by the saving message of the Gospel."

The pope made his comment in a generally affectionate letter addressed to all U.S. bishops summing up in broad terms the results of the four-day summit session between the U.S. hierarchy and top church officials March 8-11 at the Vatican.

The Vatican did not mention any of the criticisms of the U.S. leveled by Vatican officials — especially on the touchy question of divorce — nor refer to the defense of the American church by the 36-member U.S. delegation.

But John Paul did pointedly remind the bishops needed to keep before them the necessity of upholding church teaching even in the face of the pervasive secularization of American culture.

"Rather than a list of specific conclusions, you who were present will convey to those whom you represented an increased awareness of the challenges which call the church in the United States to proclaim ever more effectively the mystery of Christ," the letter said.

"While yours is a culture with many positive values," John Paul told the bishops, "it is at the same time, like everything human, marked by elements which need to be purified and uplifted by the saving message of the Gospel."

"In this perspective our task as Pastors is to speak always the truth of Jesus Christ entrusted to the church — that truth which gives life and which alone can set us free," he said.

The pope's comment reflected the argument stressed in speeches of the U.S. prelates during the Vatican meeting that the "open" and secular nature of U.S. society and the value it attaches to individual freedom makes it difficult to convince Catholics of the truth of some of the controversial teachings of the church on such matters as its ban on the use of artificial methods of birth control.

But the papal letter expressed warm appreciation for the work of the U.S. bishops and priests.

It said the summit session "provided an occasion for a most fruitful reflection and discussion on important aspects of the church's evangelizing role in your country, which will offer valuable points of reference for your future ministry," the pope said.

'Satanic Verses' affair affects intra-religious relations

United Press International

Fundamentalist Moslems, outraged by Salman Rushdie's book "The Satanic Verses," have rioted, destroyed property, died and called for the death of the author.

The Moslem reaction was quickly condemned by Western intellectuals, politicians and church leaders even as they struggled to understand the offense Moslems felt and that generated such a deadly response.

Among the first reactions to the furor was that of the communications unit of the National Council of Churches, which denounced the threats — first and most forcefully articulated by Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini — against Rushdie's life.

At the same time, the council, which has pioneered in efforts to improve relations among Christian and Moslem communities in both the United States and throughout the world, hopes the affair will open new avenues of dialogue between the two faith groups and deepen understandings among both Christians and Moslems of the values and traditions that shape their religious views.

The council's Office on Christian-Muslim Relations, has taken the lead in that effort by both commenting on the issues raised by Rushdie's book and the Ayatollah's extremist response and putting together a packet of material for church groups and other interested people to study.

In its statement, the office's Executive Committee leans over backward in an effort to establish some balance, expressing its "deep sympathy" with Moslem communities who, it says, "have been insulted and their faith offended" by the book.

"Offense to the religious beliefs and sensitivities of the followers of Islam — or any religion — should be viewed as seriously as offense against the religious beliefs and sensitivities of Christians," the statement said.

At the same time, echoing the communications unit, the committee statement reaffirmed its commitment to freedom of thought.

"The answer to controversial speech is not enforced silence but more speech that is carefully considered," it said.

John Paul hears confessions as part of Easter

United Press International

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II donned a priest's cassock and heard the confessions of seven Easter pilgrims in St. Peter's Basilica before the start of solemn Good Friday ceremonies.

It was the 10th straight year that John Paul has slipped quietly into the Basilica by a side door at noon to hear the confessions of a few select people from among the hundreds of pilgrims who have waited for hours in the church.

The pope's gesture underlined the importance he attaches to individual confession.

The confessions took place a few hours before a "Celebration of the Passion" in the basilica to commemorate the suffering and death of Christ on the cross and marking the Catholic Church's deepest day of mourning.

Later in the evening the pope was to lead the traditional "Way of the Cross" pilgrimage from the ancient Colosseum, where early Christians were thrown to the lions, and up the Palatine hill.

John Paul, re-enacting Christ's supreme gesture of humility, washed and kissed the feet of 12 priests Thursday to commemorate Jesus's Last Supper with his disciples on the eve of the crucifixion.

The gesture was part of the opening rites used by the pope to lead the world's 840 million Roman Catholics in mourning marking Christ's crucifixion and the Easter Sunday celebration of his resurrection.

The ceremony was held in the St. John in Lateran Basilica — known as the mother of all the churches — near the city's ancient southern gate. The pope drove to the basilica from the Vatican, where he initiated the "three days" of Easter rites Thursday morning.

After the traditional Easter Vigil midnight mass in St. Peter's Saturday, the Holy Week rites turn to joy on Sunday, when the pope celebrates mass on the steps of St. Peter's and gives his blessing.

In today's pulpits, a good sermon is hard to find

If I should ever return to the parish ministry, you won't find any sermon titles on the bulletin board on the front lawn of my church. But you will find the names of the hymns that will be sung at the following Sunday's service.

Sermon titles, I have found, are more likely to turn people away than to get them to come to church. But if they know the hymns will be familiar favorites, they will be there.

Ministers have been misled into thinking their congregations are interested in sermon topics. They don't understand that when parishioners ask, "What will the sermon be about?" they want to know whether it will be about 10 minutes or about 30 minutes. If a sermon is going to be any longer than 12 minutes, they will stay home.

This is why I won't advertise how long my sermon is going to be. I always preach 15 to 18 minutes. That's too long by today's standards.

A clergyman in England who is aware that long sermons drive people away keeps his sermons down to six minutes. So you can see why he hit the roof when he read in a newly released British

When parishioners ask 'What will the sermon be about?' they want to know whether it will be about 10 minutes or 30 minutes church guide that his sermons go on for 60 minutes! He immediately rang up the publishers demanding a correction.

The guide to 2,000 English churches reveals that sermons can be as short as three minutes (at All Saints in Kent) and as long as 35 minutes (at Patrick Free Church in Glasgow, Scotland). Scottish preachers tend to be the most long-winded. As a reviewer of the guide says, "Scottish congregations are lucky to escape with less than 25 minutes."

The guide gives other information about the churches. Each parish was asked to write its own description of itself. Some of the comments:

- "150 members — 85 percent under 50 years of age."
- "Won civic award for hyperbolic parabolic roof."
- "Our church has no pews, no pulpit."
- "Ideal for sinners."
- "We are good old compromise Church of England."
- "Good parish football team."

Back to sermon length, the popularity of short sermons is obviously due to the fact that people find most sermons boring. If a sermon is interesting, we will gladly listen for 25 to 30 minutes.

A few weeks ago I heard Peter Marshall, son of the late White House chaplain whose name he bears and of Catherine Marshall, author of the best seller of the 1950s, "A Man Called Peter." Marshall spoke for 40 minutes to a congregation whose interest never flagged.

My first inspiration for going into the ministry was a Baptist minister, Edwin McNeill Poter. After he had been preaching for 14 or 15 minutes I would start to look at my watch. It wasn't that I was impatient for him to end, I was hoping it wasn't getting close to 12 noon when the sermon would be over.

What makes a sermon memorable? The Lutheran pastor, Paul Scherer, would tell his homiletics class, "What you want the congregation to say when you are finished is not 'What a great sermon' but 'What a great God!'"

James Montgomery Boice of Tenth Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia said the pulpit goes into decline when a preacher substitutes the words, "It seems to me" for the majestic, "Thus saith the Lord."

Whatever it takes, we know a good sermon when we hear one. The trouble is, we don't hear one often enough.

Breast cancer has no link to menstruation

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently read that the more menstrual cycles a woman has over her lifetime, the greater her chance of breast cancer. How does this relate to the menstrual cycles created after menopause by the taking of Premarin and Provera?

DEAR READER: Some cynics have suggested that each person has an allotted number of heartbeats, the implication being that if your heart beats too fast or if you exercise irregularly, you are shortening your life. This is bunk-um. The statement you read sounds to me like a similar, unsubstantiated claim. Breast cancer has nothing to do with the number of menstrual periods a woman has in a lifetime. If this myth were true, women who have never had children would have a higher incidence of breast cancer than women with large families (who did not menstruate during their pregnancies); such is not the case.

Breast cancer may be related to high levels of estrogen (female hormone) in some women. Thus, a girl who begins menstruating at an early age may be at risk of breast cancer for a longer time because her body is being stimulated by estrogen for more years than a less precocious woman. However, this is by no means a common pattern. Breast cancer bears no consistent relation to menstrual pattern or size of breasts.

Two other factors appear to be more important: breast injury is sometimes associated with cancer; women who breast feed their infants seem to be statistically LESS prone to cancer.

The final word on birth control pills is not in. Some women who take estrogen-containing contraceptive medication have been reported to show a slight increase in the incidence of cancer.

On the other hand, postmenopausal women given estrogen (Premarin)/progesterin (Provera) pills do not have a higher cancer rate; in fact, some studies have suggested that they are LESS likely to develop breast cancer than are untreated women.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Playing a part-score contract lacks the drama of making or beating a game or slam, but two successful part-scores can add up to a game. After South reopened the bidding with one spade, the battle began for which side would win the contract. East's three-heart bid suggested that East had almost enough high cards for an initial response. That information and the opening lead were all that South had to work with in deciding how to play for nine tricks.

When a low heart was led, declarer could deduce that West did not have the K-Q. (The king would have been the proper lead.) There was also a slight presumption that West did not hold the K-Q of diamonds, since with that holding, West might have led a diamond. It was also unlikely that West held three club honors. (With A-Q-J of clubs, West would probably have doubled one spade to suggest the ability to play a club contract as well.) True, declarer did not absolutely know that East held the red queens and the jack of clubs, and therefore could not possibly hold the king of spades after his pass over one heart. But it is true that East, with the king of spades, either red queen and the jack of clubs, would have six high-card points, and would have responded to one heart.

Declarer duly performed these mental gymnastics, and laid down the ace of spades. As he dropped the king, West glowered and exclaimed, "Did you see my hand?"

"No, but I listened to the bidding," was the calm reply.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 1, 1989

There may be some very pleasant surprises in store for you in the year ahead pertaining to new involvements and new interests. These could be the results of associating with people with whom you were never chummy previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to get involved with individuals today whose behavior could reflect poorly on your own image. This is a delicate area, so stick to friends who match your standards. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $1 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might be the recipient of a beneficial development today that will be of material value to you. Don't be a glib artist, but welcome favors from others graciously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When dealing with friends today try to keep everything on a purely light and sociable basis. Don't get involved in their complicated affairs, nor let them probe into your confidential matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Fortunately, you're likely to be very resourceful today and you should be able to achieve your objectives, even those where you might not have the full cooperation of others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might have to alter an arrangement today that is not pleasing to everyone concerned. If each is willing to make some concessions, it can be worked out amicably.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are too exacting in your dealings with others today, people with whom you'll be involved won't live up to your expectations. Don't expect perfection from others you may lack yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Important assignments should be attended to as early in the day as possible. When you tire you may start to think less clearly and consequently be less effective.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

You're apt to be more motivated today if there is some type of profit to be derived, not necessarily for yourself, but for those for whom you provide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let it upset you today if someone of whom you are especially fond is a bit more attentive to another than to you. If you behave jealously, it will only make matters worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should be able to manage situations that are of a commercial nature rather competently today. However, there's a chance you may be careless in other areas of your life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Goals and objectives that are of importance to you today may not be equally as intriguing to your companions. If you get too demanding or bossy, it could put a damper on things for everyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There could be ambivalence in the way you manage your resources today. In some instances, you are apt to be shrewd and effective, but in others you might be careless and extravagant.
