RELATION OF CURRENCY IDEA MEETS REBUFF

Amendments Of Long And Thomas For Expansion Of Currency Handed Defeat

WASHINGTON, Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—A campaign to add currency inflation to the administration farm bill rider apparently collapsed today in the withdrawal of the silver purchase amendment of Senator Long and the Thomas amendment for monetary expansion.

Unprecedented federal control of production by industry would be permissible under amendments to the five-day week bill proposed by Francis Perkins, secretary of labor. She also suggested inclusion of a minimum wage provision.

Because of lack of business pending reports from committees on the administration's emergency program, the House adjourned until Thursday. The Senate directed its judiciary committee to investigate the delay by the Department of Justice in prosecuting officials of the Harriman National Bank for alleged violation of banking laws.

A staff member told from the White House yesterday that the defeat of Senate amendments of monetary inflation as a means of aiding the farmer.

The proposal to add devaluation of silver to President Roosevelt's far-reaching agricultural relief bill was defeated 28 to 33.

Amid Bryan-esque echoes of the turbulent '28 campaign, the Senate resumed an afternoon session for the purpose of voting on the proposal of Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, and urged by others.

The President's opposition to making currency inflation part of the farm program was considered by many Senators the decisive factor in defeating the silver amendment. Opponents were amazed by the strength shown for it and said several who favored inflation voted against it only because Roosevelt did not want it tied to the agricultural bill.

A motion picture of the President's speech in Arkansas, the dramatic leader and only opponent to speak, informed Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho: "The President does not desire" the amendment. Borah had said he would vote against it if the President disapproved.

The Idahoan had been insisting that only through expansion of the currency could commodity prices be lifted, the depression conquered and the farmer's income restored.

Overwhelmed by this setback, but cheered by the gain from last January, when his silver plan was defeated 66 to 18, Wheeler announced off the floor he would press it separately later on.

5-YEAR PLAN OF SABOTAGE IS CHARGED

Counsel For Russian Defendants Make Accusation Against 6 British Engineers

MOSCOW, Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—"Five-year plan to sabotage" by six British electrical engineers on trial for bribery, sabotage and espionage—charged last night by the counsel for three of their Russian co-defendants.

The accusation was made at the beginning of the defense summation, shortly after Prosecutor Andrei Vishinsky asked that charges against Albert W. Gregory be dismissed but that the five other British employees of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company be convicted as spies, saboteurs and bribers.

The session last night was devoted to pleas by four defense attorneys, all of whom are acting on behalf of the prisoners who had pleaded guilty and whose activities therefore were confined to the most perfunctory sort of defense.

A. A. Smirnov, counsel for William L. MacDonald, was the first to plead for any of the Britons. He emphasized that his client had been crippled since childhood.

"Otherwise his legs might have brought him to a proletarian environment," Smirnov declared.

MacDonald lacked a college education and normal associations with other youths, and easily fell under the influence of Vasili Gusev, one of the Russian defendants and other Russian counter-revolutionaries, the attorney insisted.

Smirnov, in reply to the intimation by Prosecutor Vishinsky that the Russian had fallen under the influence of the Britons, asked why should the Soviet engineers be taught by the English technicians how to behave?

Gusev, one of three Russians for whom the prosecution demanded the death penalty, was said by Smirnov to have sold his country, along with some of the others, for a few rubles.

Russian defenders of Gusev, V. A. Sokolov, P. E. Olyenik, M. O. Kraseninikov and others, pleaded that their clients had fallen under the influence of the Britons, and therefore were entitled to consideration in the verdict, notwithstanding their plea of guilty, Smirnov continued.

LABOR SLATED TO GET POST IN PERKINS GROUP

Other Likely Appointments In Government Are Disclosed As Near

WASHINGTON, Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—The appointment of a Pan-American trade commission in Florida to cement relationships between this state and nations nearby was suggested Sunday by Governor Sholtz in an address coincident with the third annual Pan-American day celebration in Miami.

"I suggest that this Pan-American trade commission have representatives from all Florida counties," the governor said, "and I am looking in the time when we are able to follow this up with a Pan-American exposition in Florida."

"If a real bid is made for Pan-American trade, harbors of Florida will be treasuring with Florida already has made strides," he said. Because of its location, the development of trade between ports of Florida and of neighboring nations has gone far. The governor said this continued development was a plank of his platform during his campaign for election, and he is just as firm in his determination yesterday to do all in his power to promote its continuation.

The governor said this continued development was a plank of his platform during his campaign for election, and he is just as firm in his determination yesterday to do all in his power to promote its continuation.

Simultaneously it was disclosed on high authority that Guy T. Hoberling, a former representative from Kansas, is to be named to the important position of Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

It was stated that his appointment had been definitely decided upon and is expected to be transmitted to the Senate within a week.

Vincent Dallman, of Springfield, Ill., appears certain to be assistant secretary of the treasury.

Jerry Mitchell, of Great Falls, Mont., was said to be in the running to have an excellent chance of becoming an assistant secretary of the treasury.

Speculation also centered about the name of A. M. Miller, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, for appointment as governor of the board.

Timothy Gave, of Chicago, and Florida, who was in the running for commissioner of internal revenue, will be offered another important post.

Along with the more important nominations to be sent to the Senate within a short time will be a number of postmasters, federal district attorneys, United States marshals and collectors.

The administration has announced that efficient Republican postmasters will be permitted to fill out their four-year terms, but it was indicated that members of that party who hold offices not under civil service probably will be displaced.

Monday, the Senate Indian commission postponed a decision on the nomination of John Collier, of California, to be commissioner of Indian affairs.

The delay was granted at the request of Senator Thomas (D), Okla., an opponent of the nominee.

HOUSE PASSES SENATE BANK RECEIVER BILL

State Comptroller Is Given Power To Appoint Conservators For Institutions

TALLAHASSEE, Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—The House today passed 87 to six the Senate-approved measure to give the state comptroller the power to appoint conservators for state banks in financial difficulties.

A majority in favor of the measure overrode the opposition that sought to give appointive power to stockholders, depositors and creditors, subject to court approval.

The Senate in a hasty session passed the House bill to eliminate the 20 percent penalty for motor vehicle owners who fail to purchase license tags by Feb. 1 each year. The Senate previously had passed a similar bill but the House measure and sent it to the governor. Legislators said he would sign it.

The Senate also passed a bill to give the University of Florida the custody of historical documents and records of defunct colleges and received two bills designed to prevent bootlegging of gasoline, in which a state tax is not paid.

Backers of the beer bill reached out yesterday to save it from certain defeat and by a surprise move in the Senate took it away from a hostile temperance committee, and sent it to a Judiciary committee, ready and willing to give it a lease.

Near the close of the session, with the beer bill before the Judiciary and the temperance committee and the Senate deadlocked, Senator Pat Whelan, active in the fight for the measure, got through a motion for joint committee consideration.

The 18 members of the two committees are said to stand 11 to 7 in favor of the House bill.

All day the town was ringing with reports that the bill was dead before it could reach a vote in the Senate. It had been slated to go to the temperance committee which was reported three to two against it.

The unexpected move in the Senate was like giving the bill a shot in the arm. It came out of a verbal battle, safe and sound, and went to the Judiciary committee by a vote of 20 to 18. Whelan's motion, coming later, was adopted 20 to 17.

In some quarters the House was taken to mean that Florida would join other states in permitting the sale of legalized beer and wine. Opponents of the bill (Continued On Page Four)

STEEL MEN FEEL OPTIMISTIC OVER BUSINESS FUTURE

Operations At High-Rate Capacity Since March Of '32

HOBOKEN, N. J., Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—"Big steel" yesterday again hit its first real note of optimism of the past year or more.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, at the annual stockholders' meeting here, disclosed that the company's operations were at 25 percent of the rate capacity this week, the highest since March, last year.

At the same time the shareholders unanimously adopted a resolution supporting President Roosevelt's economic program and Mr. Taylor declared upon submitting the motion.

"We have always supported the President of our country, but I gladly put this resolution because I feel, with you that we are on the road to better things."

Some 200 shareholders, both men and women, braved a steady downpour of rain to attend yesterday's meeting. Unlike the sessions last year, there were no significant questions asked of the management, and they wanted to know why their vote no dividends on the common stock or why the preferred stock had been placed on a 22 annual basis instead of the previous regular 8 1/2 rate.

There was no intimation as to what action would be taken on the preferred dividend at the board meeting, April 25.

All of the retiring directors were re-elected.

Mr. Taylor declared that the officials of the corporation "are buoyed up with the hope and confidence that better times are ahead."

"We have come through these difficult years of the depression," he said. "We are now in the fourth year of the great and universal depression. We in the corporation are willing to continue with courage and confidence this fight against dissolution and despair."

The chairman explained that there had been no question of bonuses to officials as, under the company's regulations, bonuses can only be given when earnings aggregate at least $100,000,000 in a single year.

Perceval Roberts, Jr., who has been a director of the organization since its inception, in a brief address said that "I have a hopefulness at present which I have not heretofore had."

POWER TO PLACE ARMS EMBARGO VOTED BY HOUSE

Senatorial Approval Of Administration Bill Is Seen Likely

WASHINGTON, Apr. 18.—(A.P.)—Congressional approval of the administration's proposal that President Roosevelt be empowered to place embargoes on arms shipments to certain countries, after appearing certain yesterday, after overwhelming House action.

Beating down stalwart opposition led by Republicans, the powerful Democratic majority sent the legislation through the House 252 to 109 and to the Senate, where it is supported by most of the Democrats.

A similar proposal, requested by former President Hoover, was approved by the Senate last week. It authorized the president to place an arms embargo on any country which is deemed to be a threat to the peace of the world.

The House vote broke party lines. Twenty-two Democrats joined 81 Republicans and four farmer-laborites in opposition, while nine Republicans and one farmer-laborite—Kear of Missouri—voted with 222 Democrats for adoption.

A trial effort to modify the measure, drawn as requested by Secretary Hull, was made by Representative Fish, of New York, ranking Republican on the foreign affairs committee. His motion to send the resolution back to the committee for insertion of an amendment to "protect the neutrality of the United States" was defeated on a roll call vote of 217 to 113.

J. P. HALL CITES POST OFFICE LAW ON LOTTERY MAIL

Postmaster Says Any Case Of Violation Will Be Prosecuted

Asked whether or not he had seen letters postmarked "Havana, Cuba" inviting local persons to purchase Cuban lottery tickets that gave them chances on cash prizes totaling as high as $50,000, Postmaster J. P. Hall today said that "They have not been reported to me, but if they had, I would have ordered an immediate investigation that would have been supervised by a federal postoffice inspector."

The Herald was advised today that at least two letters have come through the mail, during the past few weeks, and have been received by local persons. The letters explain how the lottery is operated, what chance the person has to win a prize, the various prizes that go to the lucky ticket holders, and how much the tickets cost.

JURY DELIVERS ITS VERDICT IN DEATH OF JONES

Witnesses Come Before Coroner's Inquest Held Monday

A coroner's jury meeting at the Court House yesterday afternoon rendered the opinion that Sam Jones, local fish merchant whose body was found in the smoke filled room of his home in Floral Heights early yesterday morning came to his death by suffocation from fumes and smoke by fire due to the partial burning of a mattress.

Witnesses at the hearing included T. W. Baxter, E. M. Howard, Paul Shoemaker, G. A. Jones, Dr. S. Polston, R. J. Hickson and J. G. Leonard.

Dr. Polston told the coroner's jury that he was called to the scene, had examined the body and resided in an attempt to revive the man, and stated the opinion that his death was caused by suffocation.

T. W. Baxter said that at the solicitation of friends he drove Mr. Jones to his home in Floral Heights. Mr. Baxter said that he stepped the car in about the middle of the road so that the lights of the car shone on the house. Mr. Jones got out of the house, Mr. Baxter said, and was trying to unlock the door when he drove away.

E. M. Howard, who resides near the Jones home, said that he saw smoke coming from the house and that he and G. A. Jones, another neighbor, ran to get into the place through the back door, which was locked. They both entered through the front door. Mr. Howard said that he instructed someone to telephone police and a doctor.

G. A. Jones testified that he was the first to enter the house according to Justice of the Peace I. C. Roberts. "Mr. Jones said he didn't remember whether the door was locked or not. He said, 'The key was in the door on the outside, but in the excitement he didn't remember unlocking the door or not.'"

Deputy Sheriff R. J. Hickson said that when he arrived on the scene the door was open and several persons were nearby, and that he and one of the firemen carried Mr. Jones out on the porch where Dr. Polston examined the dead man.

Paul Shoemaker and Joo. G. Leonard both testified as to the condition in which they saw Mr. Jones at the Elks Club shortly before Mr. Baxter took him home.

The jury was composed of E. R. Phillips, F. M. Venable, G. F. Root, M. R. Purke, E. F. Grant, and I. Kinard.

Mr. Baxter, in calling attention to his testimony at the hearing which was held after the Herald had gone to press, made the following statement today: (Continued On Page Three)

Other San Francisco areas also felt winter's breath. A 44-year-old man was broken at Reno with a maximum temperature of 47 degrees. It was the coldest April 17 in the history of the weather bureau there.

Hindering Investments

The free and unlimited coinage of silver, devaluation of the gold dollar, and various forms of inflating the currency, are but different means now being considered by Congress for relieving debtors of their heavy obligations.

In a recent article on the depression Roger Babson points out that the total debt of this country, public and private was in 1929 some $154,000,000,000, divided approximately as follows: farms, $12,200,000,000; railroads, $12,700,000,000; federal, state, and local governments, $30,100,000,000; corporations, $74,600,000,000; and private individuals, $25,000,000,000.

"When our national income was $80,000,000,000 a year," Mr. Babson says, "we were able to get by for a time with this staggering load, but when income dropped to $30,000,000,000, as at present, the charges became too heavy to meet. We, however, can never build prosperity on repudiation. Voluntary readjustments, yes!—but to force creditors, either by arbitrary or unlawful means, to give up their just claims against their will is wrong in principle and harmful to business.

"Exponents of partial or total debt cancellation talk as if there were a clear division between debtors and creditors, that the creditors were all rich people and the debtors all poor people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. There is no clear-cut distinction between debtor and creditor classes. Every holder of a savings bank pass-book, every life insurance policy-holder, every widow or orphan dependent on an annuity, or on support from endowed charities whose funds are invested in bonds and mortgages, is a creditor, and it is these creditors who would be harmed most if compulsory or confiscatory abrogation of contracts should be allowed. Furthermore, you cannot expect to obtain the necessary credit for business expansion if lenders have no assurance that their contracts will be held valid.

"Much is heard from debtors about dishonest dollars—dollars that have increased in value since they borrowed the money and hence force them to pay back in high valued money what they borrowed in low valued money. It is true that the value of the dollar in its purchasing power for commodities has increased to 1.33 compared with 1920. This is an advantage to the creditor but it is no excuse for cancellation of debts. Suppose the shoe were on the other foot! Suppose a man borrows a thousand dollars today—dollars of high purchasing power. If commodity prices rise and the purchasing power decreases to, let us say, 66 cents, as it did in 1920, then the lender will receive only 60 cents on the dollar, or $660 in purchasing power for the $1,000 he loaned. We never hear any propaganda for increasing the face value of a loan when prices rise, but we now hear a great deal about increasing the face value of a loan because prices have fallen. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways!"

Any resumption of prosperity depends largely upon a return of normal credit conditions. When business men, industrialists, and other enterprising individuals are able to secure normal credit accommodations, normal business conditions will return. But investors, bankers, and other credit houses are not likely to make loans as long as agitation continues for changing the form of our medium of exchange.

News From Europe

European date lines are conspicuous these days in most American newspapers. Such momentous events are taking place in Germany, Russia, France, England, Italy, and the Balkan countries that our readers are eager to receive news from the nations and the great press associations are alert to their duty and are supplying the information.

Some idea of the extent of news copy which is cabled the United States may be gained from the fact that the Associated Press alone often receives 20,000 words by cable in a day. One important cable company had an annual volume of 10,000,000 words of news in a single year. It is interesting to note that Europe receives only half as much copy from this country as we receive from over there.

In the strategic news centers of Europe scores of trained American newspaper men are always on the job to flash the first word about some important diplomatic event; the eruption of Vesuvius, the wreck of the Paris-Pyrennes express, a landslide in the Alps, the assassination of a royal figure, or the fact that the Prince of Wales is wearing a straw hat.

To provide this service an extensive organization is required. Not only are the men who handle it highly trained and dependable but the system of communication is intricate and far-flung. Telephone, radio, and wireless telephone, connected with ships at sea and with planes in the air, combine to effect almost instantaneous reports on events of importance.

News collection in a highly developed country like England is much simpler than in Turkey or China. In the former country distances are short, train service is excellent, telephones and wireless are plentiful, an efficient police is always ready to co-operate, and there is no language hindrance. It is not necessary to cite the difficulties in a country where a reverse of these conditions is true.

Practically all of our foreign correspondents are American citizens upon whose loyalty to their country can be depended the accurate and unprejudiced reporting of European news.

CURRENCY STANDARDS LITERARY DIGEST

IN ALL THE PRESENT CONFUSION about the currency, it may not be amiss to call attention to some brief definitions of currency standards advanced in The American Bankers Association Journal.

Here currency systems are first classified by being listed in two general groups: (a) those based on some specific metal or metals, and (b) those based on some standard.

- (1) Gold Standard (a) gold-coin standard (b) gold-bullion standard (c) gold-exchange standard, principally: (i) dollar-exchange standard (ii) franc-exchange standard (iii) lire-exchange standard

- (2) Silver standard (B) Inconvertible currency systems (1) Simple inconvertible currency (2) Managed inconvertible currency

- (3) Foreign-exchange standard These various systems are then briefly described in The American Bankers Association Journal. First, there is gold.

A country has the gold standard when the internal value of its currency is kept at parity with gold by the maintenance of a free gold market. By the latter is meant unimpeded convertibility of the currency into gold and vice versa, at a fixed ratio and without maximum limit and unimpeded importation and exportation of the yellow metal. Gold must be unlimited legal tender.

The gold-coin standard is that form wherein the currency may be freely converted into gold coin

Farm Club Group Enjoys Outing At Beach On Easter

Several members of Seminole Chapter, Future Farmers of America, today reported a "wonderful" time that was had at Turtle Mound, about 10 miles from New Smyrna last Sunday when, turning from a morning of successful fishing, they played the part of gallant oarsmen for a est development.

Finally, there is a brief word about inconvertible systems: Inconvertible currencies are currencies not kept convertible to gold or silver at some fixed ratio. A simple inconvertible currency is one the value of which is temporarily or indefinitely divorced from that of gold or silver merely through absence of convertibility, but where there is no continuous attempt to regulate the purchasing power of the money.

A managed inconvertible currency is one of which the currency or banking authorities attempt more or less continuously to regulate the value by altering the quantity of currency and, or other credit instruments in circulation. Currency management is not confined to inconvertible currencies. In most convertible currencies there is some management.

party of New Smyrna Junior League girls who visited the scene for an afternoon of fishing, boating, and swimming.

The boys left Sanford at about 5:30 o'clock in a truck furnished by J. St. Clair White, Sr., and a car owned by Alex R. Johnson, their sponsor. They took with them a rowboat and four outboard motors, as well as a supply of fishing tackle, food, and bathing suits.

Arriving at Turtle Mound at about 8:30 o'clock, the boys spent the rest of the morning fishing. Nearly 100 fish, including 75 whiting, were landed by the party, before a belt was called at noon, when the boys enjoyed a fish dinner on the beach.

The young women arrived on the scene at about 2:00 o'clock, and after taking to rowboats, the boys offered themselves as oarsmen. During the rest of the afternoon the boys played their roles with more or less satisfaction, and as they report it, "We surely had a good time."

Those comprising the party were: St. Clair White, Jr., Clifford Bell, Talton Phillips, Creston Phillips, Talmadge Metta, David Smith, Hal Colburn, James Colburn, Clifford Gustafson, Clifford Kly, Robert Wallace, and Alex R. Johnson.

Keaton And Durante Are In Film Tonight

Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante have stolen a march on the country. While many state legislators are battling over the beer question, these two comedians have completely settled the problem in their new comedy, "What No Beer?" which is to be seen tonight at the Milano Theatre. This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy covers the whole agitation for beer.

But while the politicians have been waging their wordy battles, Keaton and Durante have pitched in and taken over a brewery in which they make beer for the masses. In the course of their operation, they get caught in a war between rival beer-running gangs who seek control of their output. The story, therefore, weaves its way between comedy and excitement.

The romantic interest is provided when Buster falls in love with the sweetheart of one of the gang leaders. The feminine lead is taken by Phyllis Barry, who made her screen debut opposite Ronald Colman in "Cynara." Other important roles are played by Roscoe Ates, brewmaster of the Keaton-Durante brewery; John Milian and Edward Brophy, rival beer racketeers; Henry Armetta, Charles Dunbar and Charles Gibson. "What No Beer?" was directed by Edward Sedgwick who directed Keaton and Durante in "Speak Rascally."
