Man Jailed In Beating, Robbery

A Sanford man has been arrested and charged in connection with the robbery and beating of a 33-year-old cleaning woman.

David Lee Anderson, 27, of 104 McKay Blvd., was charged Thursday with robbery and conspiracy. He was being held in the Seminole County jail today in lieu of $8,000 bond, according to arrest records.

Anderson was arrested when he heard police were looking for him and went to the Sanford Police Department to find out why. Police Chief Steve Harriett said. While there, he was charged.

Barbara Cooper, of Route 5, Box 624-B, Sanford, reported to police that she was leaving the Sun Travel Agency, 2311 S. French Ave., Sanford, at about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday when two men confronted her and demanded cash, according to Harriett.

The woman offered to give the assailants money, but the men beat her with a baseball bat anyway, Harriett said.

They then fled empty-handed, Harriett said.

Mrs. Cooper was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where she was treated for head injuries and released.

A second suspect is being sought in the case.

Owners Want To Join Sanford

County To Protest Annexation Request

By Donna Estes and Rick Brunson

Seminole County will voice its objections to annexation of three county parcels by the City of Sanford as Sanford meets Monday to consider the move. The land totals 233 acres, parts of which would stretch the city limits to Interstate 4.

At least two Sanford commissioners said today they favor the annexation of any property if county residents request it and it's a legal annexation.

Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley, trustee for the property owner, said he wants the parcels annexed because "there's a new spirit in Sanford and we'd like to be a part of it."

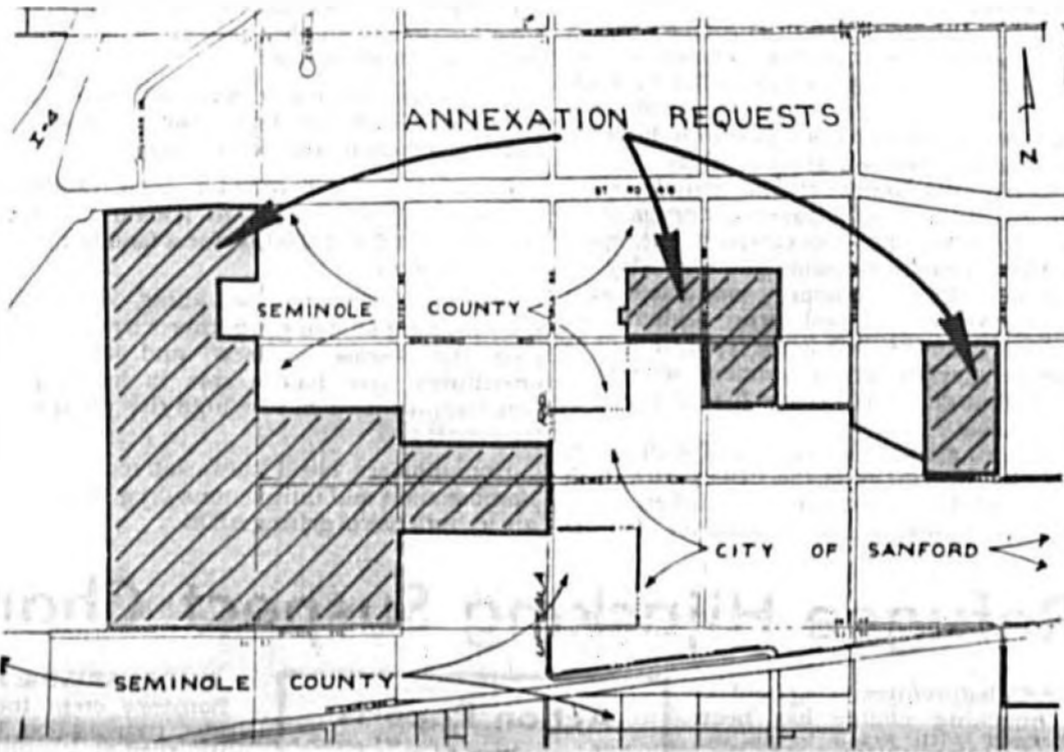

County Attorney Nikki Clayton has been instructed by a 3-2 vote of the commission to attend the 7 p.m. meeting to register the county's protest on the basis of the land's lack of substantial contiguity to the city.

The property is bounded by State Road 46 and the vacated Seaboard Coastline Railroad tracks and Oregon Avenue and Jewett Lane. If annexed there would be county property surrounded on three sides by city land.

County staff told the commissioners the property is not "substantially contiguous (touching) to other city lands" and is connected only by the Smith Canal drainage ditch.

Commissioners also questioned how Sanford can serve the property with fire protection when the nearest city fire station is on French Avenue at 14th Street, nearly five miles away. A county fire station is at SR 46 and Interstate 4.

Two Sanford city commissioners, John

Map shows the three parcels county land owners want the City of Sanford to annex.

Mercer and Robert Thomas, said today they want to study the annexation request further and wait to hear the county's objections before saying they favor or disfavor the request. But they said Sanford should annex property if county residents want to come into the city limits.

"If a county citizen wishes to have their property annexed into the city of Sanford they should be allowed to — period," Mercer said, adding if the property is contiguous as required by law.

Thomas said, "We can use everything we can get," to help the city grow and expand its tax base.

Retail Sales Stagnant

United Press International

The nation's retailers Thursday reported stagnant July sales as consumer spending stalled in face of rising personal debt and higher delinquency rates on credit payments.

Chicago-based Sears, Roebuck and Co., the largest U.S. retailer and the bellwether for the industry, announced its sales for the four weeks ended Aug. 3 dropped 0.3 percent to $1.71 billion from $1.72 billion in the same period last year.

Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling blamed the sales slowdown on "continuing softness in the economy and highly competitive conditions in the general merchandise industry."

Kmart, the No. 2 retailer with headquarters in Troy, Mich., posted a modest 4.5

percent sales gain in July to $1.52 billion from $1.45 billion in the same month last year.

Kmart Chairman Bernard Fauber said lower-than-planned sales continue to reflect the lackluster pace experienced in June, and along with competitive pressures have made it impossible for the company to match its record 1984 second-quarter profits.

Third-ranked J.C. Penney Co., New York, said its July store and catalog sales declined 0.8 percent to $803 million from $808 million in the year-earlier period.

Monroe H. Greenstein, retail analyst at Bear Stearns & Co. in New York, said July sales were even more sluggish than indicated by the reports because a calendar change

Gas Tax Effective Date Clarified

The new 2-cents-per-gallon gasoline tax imposed by the Seminole County Commission earlier this week will become effective Sept. 1, not Oct. 1 as reported by other news media.

The commissioners adopted an ordinance levying the tax for a 30-year period beginning Sept. 1 and ending Aug. 31, 2015. Funds from the tax, as well as the 4-cents-per-gallon gasoline tax adopted by the county in 1983, will be used to build and expand county roads, commissioners said.

Woman Dies When Car Hits Tree

A 58-year-old Sanford woman died when her car slammed into a tree along State Road 434 near Oviedo at about 10:20 p.m. Thursday. A second Sanford woman riding in the car was critically injured.

Theresa Clark Bowden, 58, of 222 Tuskegee St., was driving west on State Road 434 when her 1979 Oldsmobile ran off the roadway and traveled on the shoulder 102 feet before slamming into a tree, a Florida Highway Patrol report said.

Mrs. Bowden was dead at the scene and a passenger, Allien Johnson Gibson, 59, of 513 E. 9th St., was in critical but stable condition today in South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood.

The car was destroyed in the crash and troopers say careless driving was a factor in the accident.

Neither woman was wearing a seat-belt, troopers said.

Mrs. Bowden worked in the custodial department of the University of Central Florida in Orlando, since 1971. She was the supervisor of housekeeping in the dorms, according to coworkers.

Annie Mae Sneed, a friend and neighbor of Mrs. Gibson said both women are widows. They had planned a trip to church Thursday evening and

Last Day Of Parole, Ex-Deputy Back In Jail

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Today former Orange County chief deputy sheriff Leigh McEachern's parole on a 15-year grand theft sentence was to end. Instead, he surrendered to Seminole County sheriff's deputies to face charges of violation of parole. He's accused of passing bad checks.

McEachern, 44, of Snowhill Road in Chuluota, first ran into trouble in Orange County in 1978 when as Orange County Sheriff Mel Coleman's under sheriff, second in command, he stole sheriff's department funds in excess of $200. He was convicted of grand theft and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Seminole County sheriff's Sgt. Ron Gilbert said McEachern served 33 months of that sentence and because of the alleged parole violation may be returned to prison to serve the full 15-year sentence.

Orange County court records show in 1980 McEachern's sentence was reduced to 5 years.

McEachern who surrendered at about 11:20 a.m. today at the Seminole County jail, has been under investigation by Seminole County sheriff's deputies since February, said sheriff's deputy Kevin Crosier.

The parole violation warrant was issued by the state attorney, Crosier said, because McEachern allegedly passed four worthless checks with a value totaling $800. The checks were passed in Seminole County since February, Crosier said.

The bad check charges are misdemeanors, but the alleged parole violation means McEachern will be held without bond, Gilbert said.

In 10 days he will face a probable cause hearing at the Seminole County jail, Crosier said. McEachern has returned the funds allegedly obtained through the worthless check transactions, but Crosier said that doesn't alter the charges against him.

Gilbert said McEachern heard about the warrant which was issued Tuesday and surrendered.

McEachern is married and has children.

Armed Sky Marshals On Some Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has ordered armed marshals to ride on certain domestic and international flights to protect U.S. airliners against hijackings and other terrorist attacks.

Administration and airline industry officials said Thursday the marshals, who wear civilian clothes and carry concealed weapons, are assigned to flights considered vulnerable to terrorist acts.

The marshals also will be assigned to guard airports and to prevent hijackers from boarding planes.

Some details of the program are not being released in order to protect the sensitivity of the operation, said officials who asked not to be identified.

"The armed marshals are on some selective flights involving both domestic and international routes," an industry official said. "There is also an emphasis on putting more air marshals on the ground as a preventive measure."

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole is assessing other preventive measures to deter terrorist acts against U.S. airliners.

Could This Be For You?

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Don't expect C.L. Whitt to be running up a bill with her Sears Roebuck credit card. The company shipped her a plastic card with an "S" in her last name where the "W" should have been.

"They called me back and said, 'Look at it, please,'" said Whitt, 65. "I looked at it, and instead of spelling my name with a 'W,' they had used an 'S.' The girl on the phone apologized and said please don't use it — we'll send you another one."

But then catalogs, sale brochures, offers to buy insurance and other advertising from Sears and its network of businesses began arriving at the woman's home — all addressed with the unfortunate spelling.

"We sent them a legal letter saying this is causing me mental anguish and everything," Whitt said. "Sometimes you have company and the mailman comes to the door and says, 'Mrs. Whitt, do you think this is for you?'"

Two Dead, One Injured In Crash Of Fighter Plane

MIDWEST CITY, Okla. (UPI) — A fighter pilot steered his faltering jet away from a heavily populated suburb but the disabled plane then homed in on a solitary house in a wheat field, killing two and injuring another inside.

Workers today were searching the rubble, all that remained of the small stone home, for the body of an elderly victim of Thursday's crash of the A-7D attack aircraft.

One body, that of a woman, was recovered from the debris Thursday evening.

The fighter plane, on a routine test flight out of Tinker Air Force Base, hit the pasture, then continued another 250 yards to strike the house, base officials said.

Tinker spokesman Bill George said the pilot, Maj. Dennis D. Nielsen, ejected safely.

A base spokesman said the plane's engine apparently stopped and the aircraft caught fire. The cause was unknown.

Watergate Anniversary Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon, forced to resign as president 11 years ago today in the Watergate scandal, is "looking ahead, not back" as he prepares for a round-the-world trip and talks with global leaders later this month.

Since he left the White House in disgrace, Nixon has sought to close the book on the ill-fated chapter that made him the first president in history to resign. Last year, he declared, "Ten years of Watergate was enough."

One former aide recalls that Aug. 9, 1974, was "an incredibly sad day" when Nixon stood in the East Room with his tearful family, saying farewell to his loyal troops.

His close friends believe he has made a "remarkable" personal comeback since that tragic day when the Nixon second-term landslide went up in smoke.

This week, Nixon, 72, stayed close to his Saddle River, N.Y., home and recuperated following the removal of a common skin cancer from behind his left ear. Doctors who treated him say the cancer did not threaten Nixon's life.

"He's rarin' to go," said top aide John Taylor, who said Nixon was getting ready for a nearly monthlong global journey this month that will take the former president to China, Japan, South Korea, Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand, Burma, Pakistan, Turkey and London.

Shipful Of Datsuns On Fire

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — A burning freighter loaded with Japanese cars sailed toward Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian Chain today under Coast Guard escort after a three-day fire that sparked an explosion in the main cargo bay.

The mid-afternoon explosion Thursday apparently was caused by a buildup of toxic gases from burning plastic and metal in the 524-foot Coral Ace, carrying 2,503 Datsun cars to Los Angeles. There were no injuries reported.

Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Fulton Gregg said the fire was isolated in one of 10 airtight compartments containing the autos.

"The compartment has been sealed off for over 24 hours and there are no intentions of opening it up and risk a reflash until professional firefighters are on the vessel," he said.

The extent of damage to the cars and the ship was not known.

The Coral Ace will complete the 500-mile trip to Dutch Harbor by Saturday morning, if all goes well, Gregg said.

Moutie Acquitted Of Selling Drug Information To Underworld

MIAMI (UPI) — A federal jury has acquitted a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman of charges that he sold confidential U.S. documents about South Florida drug informants to Miami Beach underworld figures.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated six hours before returning its verdict Thursday night. The panel found Michael Van Raesel not guilty on three charges that he accepted payments from an undercover U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent in exchange for confidential reports he received in Roberval, Quebec about a case he was working on with Miami ties.

Had he been convicted, he would have faced a maximum sentence of 30 years in jail and a $35,000 fine.

Van Raesel, 29, raised a clenched right fist when the verdict was announced and told the jury, "God bless you." Tears flowed down his cheeks.

A mistrial was declared July 17 in Van Raesel's first federal court appearance when the jury announced it was hopelessly deadlocked after 16½ hours of deliberations.

Poll: Abortion Personal Matter

PENSACOLA (UPI) — A recent poll shows a majority of students at the University of West Florida believe abortion is a personal matter and should be left to the individual.

Dr. Frank Bisaco, a professor at UWF, said the poll conducted this summer indicates students "generally favor abortion, believe that the fathers should be involved and that abortion for minors, if permitted, should include the parents."

Bisaco said Thursday that the survey was conducted by a social psychology class, which asked 328 respondents a series of questions concerning the abortion controversy.

Among the findings, 58 percent said they believe abortion is a personal matter that should be left to the individual; 74 percent feel abortion should remain legal to keep unqualified people from performing them; 64 percent disagree with a statement that abortion is murder; and 76 percent believe nobody knows how one will handle an abortion unless faced with it.

Spouse Abuse Law Called Unfair

Mens' Groups Ask Court To Overturn Florida Statute

MIAMI (UPI) — Five mens' organizations have filed a $1.5 billion class-action lawsuit asking the federal court to overturn Florida's spouse abuse law because it is being used to separate fathers from their children unjustly.

The suit asks senior U.S. District Judge Joe Eaton to declare unconstitutional the Spouse Abuse Center Act, which provides tax funds to support shelters for abused spouses and children and provides for secrecy of their whereabouts.

The suit, filed Wednesday, said the law allows children to be taken from their homes in cases of alleged spouse abuse, even when there is no proof the children are in danger.

The children are placed in foster or shelter homes where they are denied access to their fathers and are "often neglected ... and abused," the suit said.

Lawyer Edward Winter Jr. filed the suit on behalf of Florida Fathers for Equal Rights, Men's Equality Now, Fathers United for Equal Justice, the M.E.N. Foundation and Men's Liberation.

Also named as plaintiffs were Walter John Walker and his two minor sons, Eric and Gregg. Walker charged that his wife took his children and concealed them at the Brevard County Salvation Army Spouse Abuse Center.

Named as defendants are the state's shelter system, Gov. Bob Graham, Florida Attorney General Jim Smith, Director David Pingree of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and the Salvation Army Spouse Abuse Shelter of Brevard County.

The suit accuses the state of "anti-male bias" and contends children are "brainwashed" at centers into believing their fathers are "bad people." As a result, the suit alleges, an increasing number of fathers are criminally charged and convicted based on falsified testimony from their children.

Winter is seeking $750 million in actual damages to separated fathers and children, plus an additional $750 million in punitive damages.

Sarah Lennett, coordinator for the Shelter for Battered Women and Children in Miami, said children brought to the center are cut off from their fathers if their mothers request it. But she said the center urges women to allow children to maintain contact with their fathers and arrange for visitation for fathers.

"We advocate for a woman to contact her husband and let him know the children are safe," Lennett said. "We tell the woman that the husband has as much right to the children as she does — it's equal — and not to use the children as pawns in a chess game."

AIDS-Detecting Tests Effective; More Women Suffer From Disease

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials said tests to safeguard the nation's blood supply from AIDS are effective and have detected at least 1,000 potentially contaminated units of blood.

The continued use of the blood tests and the avoidance of donating blood by population groups at high risk of AIDS will virtually eliminate the danger of AIDS transmission via blood transfusions, the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

That's the good news. The bad news is that with more than 700 women in the United States diagnosed as suffering from AIDS, a new report warns the fatal virus may be on the brink of a dramatic increase outside the homosexual community.

Nearly one-fourth of the female AIDS victims do not use intravenous drugs or fit into any other high-risk category, the report in Mademoiselle magazine said Thursday.

A fatal disease primarily associated with homosexual men and drug addicts, acquired immune deficiency syndrome has spread increasingly to women, who have been thought to be largely free of risk, the report said.

Speaking on the effectiveness of the AIDS test, Dr. Jim Allen of the CDC's AIDS task force, said, "Based on the studies we've done, this test is highly sensitive (for the HTLV-III-LAV antibody) and excellent in picking up anyone that has been infected."

The HTLV-III-LAV viruses have been identified as the cause of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which is spread by sexual contact and through blood and blood products and destroys the body's immune system. Victims succumb to a variety of infections, including cancer and pneumonia.

In the five months the tests have been in use, Allen said they have been "very, very effective in eliminating (blood) units that might have been infected."

A positive test result does not mean a person has AIDS, but does mean the person has been exposed to the feared virus.

As of Aug. 5, there have been 12,256 cases of AIDS reported to federal health officials and 6,171 deaths, for a fatality rate of 50 percent.

With more women becoming victims, scientists are studying whether women can pass the disease to men, and whether prostitutes have had a role in infecting heterosexual men not in high-risk groups, the report said.

Hemophiliacs, blood transfusion recipients, homosexuals and intravenous drug abusers are at high risk of getting AIDS.

29 Americans Freed By Nicaraguan Rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A group of 29 Americans held captive for a day by gunmen who ambushed them during what they termed a "boat ride for peace" on the battle-torn region along the Costa Rican border headed back to Managua today.

The Americans, members of the ecumenical Christian organization Witness for Peace, spent Thursday night along the San Juan River. The State Department said officials of the U.S. Embassy would meet the Americans in Managua today.

The San Juan River marks a section of the Nicaraguan-Costa Rican border where U.S.-backed rebels of the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, known as ARDE, are active.

The peace group began a "boat ride for peace" along the San Juan River Wednesday morning to protest the Reagan administration policy in Nicaragua.

A band of men stopped the boat at the 40-mile point of the planned 60-mile voyage and forced its passengers — the 29 American peace group members and 14 reporters, at least six of them from the United States — into Costa Rican territory, Sharon Hostetter, a Witness for Peace spokeswoman in Managua said.

The group was released at noon Thursday.

Refugee Hijacking Suspect Charged In Jail Fire

A Cuban refugee being held on a hijacking charge has been charged with arson to an occupied structure for allegedly setting a mattress afire in the Seminole County Jail.

The fire, which was confined to the mattress and scorched a wall in a communal area of a cell block on the south side of the jail, was extinguished by jail guards shortly after it began at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Seminole County sheriff's investigator Theresa Jereczek said.

Thursday morning Ma. Jereczek and fire investigator Ray Pippin questioned the 17 inmates who were evacuated from that cell block. Another 53 prisoners in a nearby cell block were also moved from their cells to a central recreation area of the jail during the evacuation which lasted for about 90 minutes, Ma. Jereczek said.

One inmate gave investigators a sworn statement implicating the suspect. The inmate reportedly said he saw the suspect place the mattress in an area where inmates gather to watch television, a sheriff's report said.

The suspect allegedly used a razor blade to slice open the mattress. He removed the stuffing and ignited the mattress with a match, the report said.

Lazaro Hernandez, 30, of Passaic, N.J., was charged with arson at 12:45 p.m. Thursday. Bond was set at $10,000. Hernandez, who is awaiting trial on a federal hijacking charge, remained in custody today.

He was arrested on Jan. 18 at Orlando International Airport after allegedly hijacking an Eastern Airlines flight from Newark to Miami.

Since his initial arrest, Hernandez, who has been housed off and on as a federal prisoner at the Seminole County jail, tried to hang himself and on another occasion injured his mouth when a plastic fork with which he was eating broke inside his mouth, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolaki.

Two men flagged down a pizza delivery man early Tuesday and, after asking if he had their pizza, reached in his car, stole the pie and a bag containing $25, Sanford police reported.

Joseph Hall, a 22-year-old delivery man for Domino's Pizza, 1910 French Ave., Sanford, said he was making a delivery to Higgins Terrace apartments in Sanford shortly after midnight when the two men stopped him at Pecan Avenue and Fifth Street.

VAN DRIVER JAILED

A man wanted in two counties on various charges and described by police as a "drifter" was arrested Wednesday in Lake Mary.

A Lake Mary police report said an officer on routine patrol spotted a suspicious vehicle parked near a lake on Grandview Avenue about 12:35 p.m.

As the patrolman was checking the van, a man stepped out of it and told the officer his name.

A computer check revealed that he was wanted in Volusia County for failure to pay a traffic fine. The computer check also said the man was wanted in Seminole County for driving with a suspended license.

The police report said the man had also skipped bond on the two charges.

Arrested was Alvin Wallace Leach, 36, no address.

He was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $350 bond.

Child Molester Gets Year In Jail

A Sanford man convicted on four counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child has been sentenced to one year in the Seminole County Jail.

Bobby Gray Shelton, 34, of 154 Country Club Circle, is also to spend two years on community control (a form of in-house arrest) during which he can leave his home only for approved reasons, which will permit him to continue to be employed.

Following community control, under the sentence Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi handed down Wednesday, Shelton will be on probation for seven years.

Shelton's sentence was the same on all four counts, but will be served concurrently.

He pleaded guilty on March 28, Shelton, who was initially jailed in November 1984, has been receiving counseling, which Salfi ordered to continue.

Shelton was also ordered to perform 500 hours of community service, and pay a $4,000 fine, which will go to the Seminole County Mental Health Department. He must also pay $350 in attorney's fees and $200 in court cost.

Bennett: Court Rulings Threaten Religion ...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new "cult of self" encouraged by court rulings that limit religious influences in government threatens the traditional place of organized religion in American society, two Cabinet officials say.

Speaking at the Romani Catholic Knights of Columbus convention, Attorney General Edwin Meese and Education Secretary William Bennett characterized traditional religious values as keystones of Western democracy.

The officials agreed those values are threatened by what

Bennett called "almost four decades of misguided court decisions" that have sought to separate church and state.

"By gradually removing ... from public education and public discourse all references to traditional religion and substituting instead the jargon and ritual and morality of the cult of self," Meese said, "we run the risk of subordinating all religions to some new secular religion which is a far cry from the traditional values."

In his speech, Bennett complained of "a new aversion to religion" in some segments of society.

"The same Constitution ... under whose aegis a host of religions had found happy accommodation now became in the hands of aggressive plaintiffs and beguiled judges the instrument for nothing less than a kind of ghettoizing of religion," he said.

Bennett accused the Supreme Court of interpreting the First Amendment guarantee of religious freedom as a ban on non-discriminatory public support of religion.

The court also has failed to recognize the relationship between religion, related moral values and the preservation of democracy, he said.

"And that relationship is this: Our values as a free people and the central values of the Judeo-Christian tradition are flesh of the flesh, blood of the blood," he said.

By limiting public aid to parochial schools, the court "failed to reflect sufficiently on the relationship between our faith and our political order," Bennett added.

No Paltry Poultry Found In This Flock

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Harold Bieller, whose "super chicken" made the 1984 Guinness Book of Records by laying an egg a day for 448 straight days, is interested now in producing whole flocks of egg-a-day birds.

"I'm a physiologist, not a geneticist," said Bieller. "I'm just trying to eliminate the physiological blocks to good egg production."

Through manipulating chickens' light-dark cycles and selecting for high egg production rates, he now has 70 percent of his flock at the University of Missouri-Columbia laying at an egg-a-day or more pace for 140 days of their laying cycle.

An average chicken lays four to five eggs in as many days then takes a day off, missing a total of 73 days a year.

His plan is to match the chicken's environment to its genetic capability.

In 15 years of research, he has gradually built the laying efficiency of his university flock by artificially manipulating light-dark cycles in the hen house, eventually shortening their days to 22 hours.

Bieller plans to release the Missouri-Columbia strain to primary poultry breeding organizations in 1986.

... Congress Threatening Humanism, Authors Say

NEW YORK (UPI) — A lawsuit filed on behalf of Isaac Asimov, B.F. Skinner and other authors charges a proposed federal amendment that blocks funds for the teaching of "secular humanism" is a thinly veiled attempt at censorship prompted by religious fundamentalists.

The National Emergency Civil Liberties Committee filed a suit in federal court on behalf of Skinner, Asimov, Dr. Corliss Lamont, Gordon Parks and Joseph Fletcher, alleging the 1984 Hatch Amendment "infringes upon the traditional separation of church and state."

The amendment bars secular humanism teaching at "magnet" desegregated schools in some 100 school districts, and "has a chilling effect on all teaching in public schools," committee members charged.

The amendment provides $75 million to participating districts.

The suit said the amendment is "unconstitutionally vague" since secular humanism was not properly defined. It also alleged the amendment forces educators to "steer far wide of the prohibited area" in order not to violate the law.

"This suit is clearly a First Amendment case," said Edith Tiger, executive director of the committee, "because freedom of speech encompasses the freedom to hear and the freedom to learn."

"If we allow this amendment to stand unchallenged, we might as well admit that we, as a society, are not educating our young people," she said. "This prohibition is unquestionably a federally mandated censorship of a particular set of ideas."

Attorney Eric Lieberman, who represented the committee in the suit, complained "secular humanism could mean just about anything they (fundamentalist religions) want it to mean."

"Various school districts around the country ... are being required by the (U.S.) Department of Education to certify they have nothing to do with secular humanism ... a catchall term to characterize basically everything they don't like," he said.

Lieberman said religious humanists oppose teachings on evolution, ecology, sex education, civil rights history, women's movements, trade unionism and "values clarifications." Secular humanists are the opposite, supporting such teachings.

The civil liberties committee said the amendment is "designed to impose a governmentally defined orthodoxy on local public school systems at the behest of particular religious groups."

Lamont, chairman of the committee, is an honorary lifetime president of the American Humanist Association, professor emeritus of philosophy at Columbia University and author of several books on humanism. Asimov, who has written more than 270 science and science fiction works, is president of the American Humanist Association.

Simpson Spurs Mr. Immigration

Today, we venture a prediction. Immigration reform, stalled for nearly two decades and now at its nadir, will become law before Congress adjourns in 1986.

Have we gotten sunstroke counting waves of illegal aliens crossing the border?

Not quite. Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., once known as Mr. Immigration for his pioneering support of immigration reform in the 1970s, has come out with an immigration reform bill which has a reasonable chance of success.

Rodino's stature in the House, where he is the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, makes House passage of his bill almost inevitable. And we dare interest groups to defy Rodino and kill this bill in conference committee, as happened during the last election.

The Rodino bill is all we wanted in an immigration reform bill — and less. It has the best features of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill — strong employer sanctions and a generous amnesty — without the heavy political baggage which brought that bill down.

The bill has tough employer sanctions, with both civil and criminal penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. It enables employers to check identification, while barring creation of a national identity card. It gives amnesty to millions of illegal aliens who have been in this country since 1982. It contains an expanded guest-worker program, not a giveaway to the growers. To the Hispanic community, and other Americans who fear discrimination stemming from employer sanctions, it offers a new office in the Department of Justice charged with investigating discrimination.

This is largely the bill which was crafted in the House-Senate Conference committee last fall, before immigration reform fell victim to politicians' nervousness about the Hispanic and farm votes. It is a reasonable bill. It is a moral bill. It is a bill worth the struggle, the disappointments, the political fallout.

Not so, the immigration bill before the Senate.

Wounded by eleventh-hour defeat last fall after years of courageous efforts, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., has jettisoned a crucial component of immigration reform — an immediate amnesty — to lighten the political load of his new bill. But the Simpson bill is unbalanced; it predicates amnesty on certification, that employer sanctions are working, a certification which is in the eye of the beholder — and may never come. It weakens employer sanctions by reducing some penalties and employer monitoring checks. It opens the door far too wide to a farmer-backed guest-worker program.

The Simpson bill is less of a solution for the problems of illegal immigration and exploitation than an implement from that Western senator's home state — the spur. It is a pointed reminder to the House that if enlightened immigration reform won't be passed, painful sanctions will be.

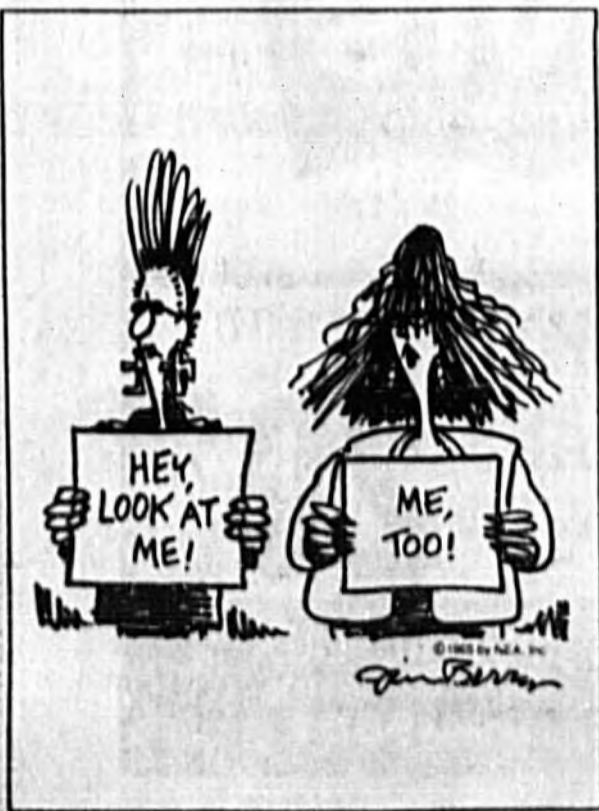

In that limited sense, the Simpson bill has done its job, spurring the House leadership to come up with the Rodino bill.

We prefer the Rodino bill to the Simpson spur and wouldn't be surprised if Simpson does too. We hope Simpson checks his spurs at the door of the next conference committee and negotiates a final compromise called the Rodino-Simpson bill.

Rodino's return to immigration reform brings a sense of history into a cause which, too often, has been derailed by shortsightedness. Rodino was embittered when the Senate failed to pass his employer sanctions bill years ago; he vented that bitterness by twice delaying House passage of enlightened Senate bills. But now he has gotten bitterness and spite and done what is right for Congress, right for America.

This bill has the wind of history at its back.

Reagan Needs Veto Tool To Fight Deficit

WASHINGTON — Some say the line-item veto is an idea whose time has come. But that wasn't the case in the Senate last month when supporters of this proven deficit-cutting tool failed to break a filibuster led by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., who prevented the proposal from coming to a vote.

Hatfield gave a lot of high-sounding "constitutional" reasons for blocking the line-item veto. But there were really only two reasons why he opposed a vote on this sensible proposal:

1. The line-item veto would allow the president to strike non-essential spending from appropriations bills that come out of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which Hatfield chairs. This would reduce Hatfield's power and authority to slip many of the thousand and one expenditures that annually go into the funding bills his panel approves.

2. If Hatfield had ended his filibuster, the bill would have easily passed by a clear majority. Fifty-eight senators — including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. — voted to end the filibuster and most of them would have voted to enact the measure.

But those 58, while a decent majority, were still two votes shy of the 60 votes needed to cut off unlimited debate on the bill, a parliamentary device by which senators can literally talk a bill to death.

This was a tragedy of considerable proportions because, as I outlined in the August issue of Reader's Digest, the line-item veto is a tool through which the president could substantially cut the deficit with just the stroke of a pen.

Forty-three governors possess line-item veto authority and an investigation I conducted for the Digest revealed that that authority has saved their taxpayers billions of dollars in wasteful and unneeded spending.

Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson, for example, used it to slash $286 million in fat and waste from the $16 billion budget package his legislature sent him last year. Among the less-than-vital expenditures Thompson blue-penciled from the bill: $750,000 to remodel a state office building; $3.2 million for an unneeded community college library; and $4.2 million for an unwanted regional office building.

California's Gov. George Deukmejian scratched a whopping $1.1 billion from his state's $21.8 billion budget last year, and then cut $725 million from this year's $25 billion budget.

Deukmejian didn't do it by throwing the poor out into the street. He did it by deleting and reducing hundreds of wasteful or low-priority spending items, including:

— $5.2 million in subsidies for the little-used "Spirit of California" night train from Sacramento to Los Angeles; $1.5 million to build intercity bikeways; $4 million for the state's Public Broadcasting Commission; and $100,000 to "study" the state's motion picture industry.

When Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis was handed a deficit-ridden fiscal 1985 budget, he eliminated dozens of unneeded expenditures to bring it into balance with state revenues. Among the items he cut: unneeded parking studies, less-than-necessary recreational boat ramps and grants that would have benefited the state's richest communities.

The president could do the same — cutting non-essential pork-barrel items totaling billions of dollars — if he had similar authority.

Unfortunately, as long as Hatfield and his friends persist in their opposition, the line-item veto will be filibustered every time it comes up.

Yet, there's hope that the enemies of the line-item veto can still be defeated. Sen. Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., who has spearheaded the drive to enact the line-item bill on a two-year trial basis, plans to offer it as an amendment to an appropriate measure in September — perhaps the debt ceiling bill.

Terrorism Knows No Borders

One of the oldest communist concepts is that the front is everywhere. This concept has become a cardinal principle of the Marxist terrorists who threaten and intimidate the free world. To the leftwing terrorist and guerrilla, a national border is meaningless. Their bombings and hijackings are a transnational menace.

Under the circumstances, Western countries have no alternative but to cross borders in crises so that the terrorists and guerrillas don't enjoy privileged sanctuaries. Increasingly, free world nations understand this. Unfortunately, those who won't come to grips with the reality of terrorism and subversion raise a hue and cry when a Western nation strikes terrorists and guerrillas in bases across a national frontier.

In the Vietnam War, the United States was tragically slow to deal with the problem of privileged sanctuaries. Only late in the war did the United States make incursions into Cambodia, where communist forces took cover, and bombed the communist bases in that country. The result was an explosion of protest on the part of radical forces in the United States.

To this day, journalists such as Anthony Lewis of The New York Times bitterly condemn the U.S. action. Mr. Lewis and others would have left the communists safe in their privileged sanctuaries in Cambodia.

There was similar selective indignation when Israeli aircraft knocked out Iraqi nuclear facilities, thereby sparing the world an enormous danger the people who opposed the Israeli air strike against Iraq are silent about Syrian incursions into Lebanon.

In recent weeks, liberals in the West have professed to be shocked at South Africa's raid against terrorist groups based in Botswana, immediately to the north of the republic. They also were outraged at the presence of a small south African reconnaissance unit in communist Angola, where 30,000 Cuban troops prop up the Marxist regime.

It's unfortunate that such cross-border incursions are a feature of international life. Inevitably, they involve risk of wide political repercussions. Yet in an area in which terrorism and guerrilla warfare are features of the international political landscape, incursions often represent an unavoidable response to threats.

Kemp Running

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York is running flat out for president and it is now really a two-man race between Kemp and George Bush. This thought results from a dinner with Kemp, his personable press secretary John Buckley, and a few friends, including former ambassador to France Von Galbraith, William Buckley and the philosopher-economist Ernest van den Haag.

A reputation for being unwilling to take the plunge has surrounded Kemp for some years. He could have run for the Senate seat of the ailing Jacob Javits. He did not, and the relatively unknown Alphonse D'Amato seized it. Kemp could have run for governor of New York. Again, he held back, and another relatively unknown candidate, Lewis Lehman, running for office for the first time, came close to defeating Mario Cuomo.

Forget all that history. This time Kemp is going for it. This columnist has known the congressman for about 10 years. Our sons were roommates in college. His fervor as a tax-cutter remains central to his politics. He points out that India now has lower marginal tax rates than, hold your breath, France. He thinks that Margaret Thatcher is in political trouble because of continuing high British tax rates which discourage investment and siphon money into the underground economy.

But Kemp has greatly broadened his range of political interests. Last week, he played a key role in returning some funding to the Reagan administration's star wars defense program against intercontinental missiles, a legislative battle on which the White House has been strangely passive. Conservatives are growling that a Shultz-McFarlane sell-out to Gorbachev may be in the works.

Several of the dinner guests raised the question of the deficit and Carter aide Lloyd Cutler's suggestion that we adapt a one-shot "dedicated" tax which could be used only to reduce the deficit.

No, says Kemp. Such a tax would only reduce the pressure on Congress to make the necessary cuts in spending.

Kemp believes that the Democrats, by and large, would like to run a mainstream candidate like Bill Bradley for president, but that the party has an all but insoluble structural problem. In order to get nominated, a Democrat has to position himself so far to the left that he virtually eliminates the possibility of being elected in November. He also sees the Democrats as having adopted the old losing identity of the 1930s and 1940s Republicans: austerity, non-growth, joylessness.

Rep. Kemp is anything but joyless. He is expansive, widely informed, articulate, he has nothing but praise for the way Vice President Bush has conducted himself, but it is clear that in Kemp Mr. Bush has his hands full. As one experienced professional put it, Bush is lining up the professionals but Kemp has the enthusiasm of the activists. As of today, former President Nixon thinks that it very likely will be a Bush-Kemp ticket, but the odds there may be changing. Mr. Bush is not associated with any issue in particular, though he has an identity consisting of integrity and competence. Kemp is bursting with ideas, and has a vision of the Republicans as an economic growth party reaching out to new constituencies and thus becoming a permanent majority party.

ROBERT WALTERS

Gambling On Party Switches

BOISE, Idaho (NEA) — "I think political realignment has been vastly overrated recently," says Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, a Democrat. "There's been a good deal of movement both ways between the two political parties ever since World War II."

"I don't think it really means much," adds Michigan Gov. James Blanchard, also a Democrat. "If anything, it points up the Republicans' essential weakness because they have to scrape the bottom of the Democratic barrel for their new recruits."

Political realignment — notably the recent spate of highly publicized shifts from the Democratic Party to the Republican Party by some relatively prominent politicians — was a topic of interest at the recent annual meeting here of the National Governors' Association.

That's because next year's gubernatorial contests could pit Democrats who turned Republican against Democrats in no fewer than five states, including Florida where Gov. Bob Graham is constitutionally prohibited from seeking a third term. The leading contender for the Republican nomination is Tampa Mayor Robert Martinez, who left the Democratic Party only last year. Other states with similar circumstances are Texas, Maryland, Massachusetts, and Michigan.

The Democrats in those races naturally denigrate the realignment phenomenon and exude optimism about their own prospects. "There's a great deal of hope there, but not much else," insists White.

But if more than half of the newly enrolled Republicans win their primary and general election contests, those results are virtually certain to be interpreted as an indicator of fundamental and possibly long-term realignment — away from the Democrats and toward the Republicans.

The Republican contenders, however, face numerous pitfalls. In Michigan, for example, the Detroit News reported earlier this year that many Republicans privately fear Lucas could "get his clock cleaned" by Blanchard.

The outcome of all the races remains in doubt, but what is certain is that the strategy of linking gubernatorial races to political realignment represents a high-risk gamble for the Republicans.

JACK ANDERSON

Military Malpractice Suits Ban May Be Lifted

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Recent disclosures might lead a cynic to say that military medicine is to medicine what military music is to music. Testimony before Congress not only has laid out cases of incompetence by military doctors, but has deplored the fact that members of the armed services are not allowed to bring malpractice suits against military physicians.

Legislation is now pending in the House that would overturn a 1950 Supreme Court decision, which forbade military malpractice suits in the absence of "clear" congressional approval.

The Defense Department is fighting the proposed law, on grounds that if service personnel are allowed to sue for bad medical treatment, the floodgates could be opened, allowing suits for virtually anything — from harsh words by a first sergeant to wrongful death caused by an incompetent officer's commands.

The result, Pentagon philosophers say, would be a breakdown in the discipline that is the bedrock of the military system.

But James Magill, assistant director of the lobbying arm of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, doesn't see it that way. The proposed law, he said, "will have no adverse effect on the morale of U.S. servicemen." The VFW doesn't see why service personnel should be second-class citizens concerning the right to file malpractice suits.

Two tragedies uncovered by our reporter Mark Woolley show why military men and women need the protection civilians have against medical incompetence:

— On March 1, 1984, Air Force T-Sgt. Albert Branch checked into the emergency room at Moffett Naval Air Base in California, complaining of dizziness, weakness and shortness of breath. Though he had a mildly tender abdomen, he was treated only for hyperventilation — given a suppository, made to breathe into a paper bag and sent home. Branch was told to go on sick call the next morning, but he never made it. He collapsed at home and was taken by ambulance to a civilian hospital, where he died shortly after admission.

An autopsy revealed that the previously healthy sergeant had died of an intestinal obstruction, caused by the bowel twisting around itself. An official military investigation concluded that Branch's condition was misdiagnosed by the emergency room doctor, and that this may have caused his death. But Branch's family never got a penny of compensation — and the physician was never disciplined.

— On Jan. 17, 1974, Jerry Meagher, a Navy electronics technician, went into the Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego to have a cyst removed from his left arm. During surgery, complications developed and Meagher's heart stopped. No trauma unit was called until three hours later, and though Meagher was revived, he was given the last rites.

Hospital records show that Meagher was resuscitated within five minutes, which would normally mean that there would be no brain damage. But Meagher is now a severely brain-damaged quadriplegic. He gets 100 percent disability of $3,500 a month, but his parents pay an additional $800 a month for his 24-hour nursing care. No disciplinary action was taken against either of the two doctors involved in Meagher's operation.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., who is pushing the bill that would give military personnel the right to sue for malpractice, explained: "This bill is not an indictment of all military physicians. We just want to weed out the bad apples."

Gardening

Put Down Spade And Pick Up Pencil To Plan Fall Garden

Gardening in the summer months is really difficult. And, the month of August is the ultimate trial for even the most dedicated gardener. It is usually so hot that most of us limit our gardening to mowing the lawn. However, this is an excellent time to further prepare for your fall vegetable garden.

Now that you have selected the site where you want your garden, added a lot of organic material and spaded or rototilled the soil, you can move on to the porch to do some serious planning. This is the time to take up your pencil and decide what varieties you want to plant. Then, you need to make a detailed, scale diagram of your garden. The proper design can spell the difference between success and failure.

Your plan should include several items — the location of each crop, the amount to be planted, the planting date, and the variety you intend to grow. Try to plan your garden so crops that will be planted on about the same date, and reach maturity about the same time, are close together. By setting up different groups or blocks within the garden, you'll be able to keep the whole garden in production as much as possible.

Within each block, arrange your crops by plant size. Put low-growing vegetables, like radishes, turnips, mustard and lettuce along one side. Plant those that will reach medium height, such as peppers, squash, bush beans, in the middle of the block. Then, put tall-growing vegetables, such as sweet corn, pole beans, and stake tomatoes, along

Alfred Bessen
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

the other side. By doing this, you'll avoid having the low growing vegetables stuck in the shade of the taller plants. Run your rows north and south, so each row will benefit from the greatest amount of sunlight.

You can plant two or more crops in a single row, as long as they require about the same spacing. For example, you can interplant a fast growing crop, like radishes, with a slow growing crop, the radishes would be pulled before the slower maturing plants need the space.

Needless to say, don't plant too much of one crop at a time. Especially those vegetables that must be eaten shortly after they're harvested. To have fresh produce over a long period, plant smaller amounts of the same crop at 10 to 14-day intervals. This system works great for crops that have a short period of peak quality — crops, such as beans, sweet corn, and peas. It's possible to prolong the season of a crop by planting two or more varieties that have different maturity dates. And, be sure you plant sweet corn in blocks rather than in single rows. This gives better pollination, and you'll pick more corn.

Crops, such as strawberries, that span more than one growing season should be planted to one side of the garden. Otherwise, you find they'll get in the way of seasonal cultivation of other crops. Be sure to leave plenty of room between rows, so you can work easily with whatever tools you need to use.

Design your garden so you can rotate crops from year to year. If you avoid growing the same crops or the same type of corn, in the same spot more than once every three years, you may reduce the build-up of soilborne diseases which can destroy your plants or reduce yields.

If weeds, soil-borne disease and insects, and nematodes have been a problem, you may want to fumigate with Vapam or similar fumigant or you may want to try a new method, called "soil solarization." This method requires no chemical fumigants and is easy and safe to do. This method consists of covering the garden with a clear polyethylene tarp for at least four weeks during the hottest time of the year — right now! Various forms of this method have provided good control of a wide range of soil-borne fungi, weed seeds, and nematodes in tests in Israel, Jordan, in California and Florida. It has not been adequately tested here, but if you're adventurous, you may want to try it.

The garden soil must be well-prepared, smooth, and real moist before applying the plastic tarp, and all amendments, such as organic material, lime and fertilizer should be worked in before covering the garden with the plastic tarp.

Use the clear polyethylene, not black. Sunlight passes through clear plastic to heat the soil directly. Black plastic intercepts the sunlight, and soil is heated by conduction where the soil contacts the plastic. Heat generated when the sun hits black plastic is lost directly to the outside air. Clear plastic produces higher soil temperatures faster than black plastic. Select a thin plastic, about 2 mil., to permit more sunlight to penetrate to the soil, although heavier ones will work, too.

The garden soil should be covered at least four weeks. But, leave the tarp in place until you are actually ready to plant. This will maximize the treatment and reduce the chance of recontamination before planting.

It appears that most of the effect is obtained from the long-term increase of soil temperatures at normal root depths. Temperatures of tamped soil six inches deep were 111 to 122 degrees F., 14 to 21 degrees F. higher than those of uncovered soil in California tests. In Florida, 30 days of solarization of soil infested with root-knot nematodes and wilt fungi increased yields of tomatoes 48 percent over those grown in soil that had been kept fallow for the same 30 days. Wilt affected 80 percent of plants in the fallow plots, but only 8 percent in the solarized plots. Tells you something, right?

Happy gardening!

Fassas Receives 4-H Community Service Award

John Fassas, owner of Western Hay & Grain, Longwood, is the recipient of the 1985 Seminole County 4-H Community Service Award.

According to Shelda Wilkins, Extension 4-H Agent, this award is presented annually to a community-oriented person who has shown outstanding support of the 4-H Program.

Mrs. Wilkins said, "Fassas has been a continual supporter of 4-H during the past year." He received this award at the Annual 4-H Thank You Breakfast held at the Agricultural Center.

Past recipients of this award are Seminole County Commissioner Sandra Glenn and Jane Casselberry, a reporter for The Evening Herald.

Readers Beg To Differ With Origins Of 'OK'

DEAR ABBY: Begging to differ with your correspondent who stated that the term "OK" originated with Martin Van Buren, our eighth president, who approved bills by marking them "OK" — the initials of his nickname, "Old Kinderhook," after his birthplace of Kinderhook, N.Y.

This is pure folklore. It has been similarly termed an abbreviation of the semiliterate expression "Oll Korrekt," slanderously ascribed to President Andrew Jackson.

Scholars, however, have established that "OK" had been used as far back as the American Revolution — long before anyone had heard of either Jackson or Van Buren (Martin or Abigail).

The source was likely one of the West African expressions such as "Yaw Kay" meaning all right.

It is a major irony that this American term should derive neither from English nor from any other European tongue, but from the lips of slaves preserving a bit of their native language.

PRECISE AT PRINCETON

DEAR ABBY: With reference to "OK," Charles Berlitz, the famous linguist, thinks "OK" came from "Aux Cayes," a port in Haiti, famous for its rum. His theory holds that American sailors were so fond of the rum, that "Aux Cayes," which later became "OK," became their expression for approval.

J. McK., BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: The origin of "OK" has nothing to do with Martin Van Buren's nickname, "Old Kinderhook."

It comes from "Olla" and "Kalla" — the first letter of each word — which means "All Good," or "OK" in Greek.

JACK KRUSH, AURORA, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I submit that the term "OK" originated in the early days of shipbuilding on the East Coast.

Dear Abby

In building a ship, the first step was laying the keel. Subsequently, all other parts were measured and installed, based on the keel. If a part was installed correctly, it was said to be "On Keel" — hence the term "OK."

NIC IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR ABBY: My best friend (I'll call her Ethel) intensely dislikes my sweetheart Max. When Max and I were living together, Ethel refused to come to our apartment, so if I wanted to see her, it had to be somewhere else.

I left Max two months ago, partly because Ethel convinced me I would be better off without him. She was ecstatic when I left him. I moved into Ethel's apartment building, and we were practically inseparable for a while until I realized I still loved Max.

I've started seeing him again and we're looking for another apartment. When I told Ethel it was on again with Max, she grew sullen and hasn't called me since.

Ethel is clearly jealous of Max. He's a charming man, but he's not interested in winning Ethel's approval. He won't even try.

Is there a way I can have Max and keep Ethel's friendship, too? I love them both — even with their flaws.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Your friend Ethel is a very controlling, possessive woman. While you may want to have both her and Max in your life, she is not about to share you. So, if you want Ethel's friendship, be prepared to say goodbye to Max — and to any other person who doesn't meet with her approval.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white silk chiffon gown fashioned with a V-neckline and long sleeves. The full skirt featured overlapping panels forming mid-calf length in front and ankle-length in back. She wore a single strand of pearls, mixed flowers in her hair and carried a bridal bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

Miss Ann Mary Fallon, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a pastel multicolor tulle dress with elbow-length sleeves and a small rolled collar. She wore a circle of spring flowers in her hair and carried an arm bouquet of roses.

Junior bridesmaids were: Cheryl Ring and Nicole Ring, nieces of the bride, Duluth, Ga., and Chrissy Petrosovic and Merry Petrosovic, Garden City, N.Y. Their pink and purple lace and tulle gowns matched the bridesmaid's. They wore circles of flowers in their hair.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Robert Roose, Charles Hartley, Lenny Hartley and Matthew Hartley.

The reception was held at the Sr. Augustine Officers Club. Assisting were Mrs. Verna Ring, Duluth, and Mrs. Derrell Neal, Lincoln, Ill.

Following a honeymoon cruise to Grand Cayman, Jamaica and Cozumel, Mexico, the newlyweds are making their home in St. Augustine. The bride is employed as administrator, Kinkaid Cluster, Jacksonville, and the bridegroom is employed a salesman.

Bristol Downs District 14, Forces Second Game

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Bags packed, plane tickets ready, hotel reservations made, the District 14 all-stars had only one more thing to do before departing for Fort Lauderdale and the Big League World Series.

As it turned out, that one thing was not as simple as District 14 may have thought it was.

After winning two straight in the Southern Regional Tournament, the Central Florida all-stars needed one more win to make its trip to Fort Lauderdale official Thursday afternoon. District 14 went up against losers' bracket winner Bristol, Va., a team that Central Florida had beaten handily, 11-3, on Tuesday.

District 14 appeared to be in the driver's seat as it took a 3-1 lead into the sixth inning, but Bristol refused to let 14 take off as it came back with three runs in the sixth inning and held on for a 4-3 victory.

Bristol's triumph forced a winner-take-all second game between the two clubs which was played Friday morning. The Big League World Series is scheduled to start Sunday but teams were expected to arrive Thursday night or today.

Baseball

In a way, Wednesday night's rain could have been the key for the Bristol squad. Tuesday, the Virginians looked like a beaten team as they made a number of mistakes in the 11-3 loss to District 14.

Wednesday night, Bristol was slated to go against Jacksonville in the losers' bracket final but heavy rains postponed the game. That gave Bristol a days rest it didn't expect and it also gave the Virginians a chance to get their composure back.

And that was something Bristol definitely needed as it went up against a Jacksonville team that had given up just one run in its last two games. Jacksonville also gave Bristol a run for its money in the first round but the Virginians came away with a 7-4, 16-inning victory.

Thursday morning, the re-energized Bristol team jumped all over Jacksonville as it claimed a 10-4 victory to advance to the finals against District 14 Thursday afternoon.

District 14 jumped out to a 3-1 lead after five innings with single runs in the first, third and fifth frames.

In the first, Todd Maufroy drove in the run with a sacrifice fly and his RBI single in the third accounted for the second run. Ovideo's Mark Merelant blasted an RBI double in the fifth for the third run.

Close to elimination, Bristol came back to put together a nifty rally in the sixth inning. Billy Parham started it off with a walk and then came consecutive base hits by Tim Jasper, Paul Pruett, Chris Jones and Chris Frazier. Pruett's single drove in Parham to make it 3-2 while Jones knocked in Jasper to tie it at 3-3 and Frazier drove in Pruett with the winning run.

District 14 couldn't push across the tying or go ahead runs in its half of the sixth and seventh frames to set up Friday morning's final which started at 8.

Thankfully, the team that wins the Southern Regional Tournament will have one day's rest before opening up in the Big League World Series. District 14 is looking for its third straight trip to the series which is hosted by Broward County. Since it is the host, Broward County gets an automatic bye into the series.

Nicklaus Going After 20th Major PGA Tour Victory

Jack Nicklaus sizes up another putt.

DENVER (UPI) — With a little help from his friends, Jack Nicklaus is in contention in a major tournament again.

Nicklaus, who missed the cut at the U.S. and British Opens this year, fired a 5-under-par 66 in the PGA Championship Thursday, one week after taking "lessons" on the practice tee of the Western Open. He trailed leader Doug Tewell by two strokes.

"This was probably the best round I've played all year, as related to hitting the ball," he said. "I played my rounds so early last week (at the Western) that I had plenty of time on the practice tee. It seemed like it was take-a-leason week."

He said fellow pros J.C. Sneed, Joey Sindelar, Tom Watson, Chris Perry and George Burns offered tips to help him improve.

"They got me back to the way I used to swing — hitting left, swinging underneath and playing left to right. I haven't hit a ball that moved left since last Friday and that is very encouraging," he said.

His 66 Thursday featured five birdies and no bogeys. His longest birdie putt was only 13 feet.

Something Nicklaus could do without before entering the 67th PGA Championship at Cherry Hills Country Club was media questions. He refused to be interviewed the day before the tournament, and on Thursday he explained why.

"I'll apologize for not coming down (to the media tent) yesterday. But I was tired of answering questions about missing the cut at the U.S. Open and the British Open, and retirement," he said.

"Now I'm on a positive note and I'll move along."

TEWELL SHOOT RECORD

Nicklaus is seeking his 20th major victory. Lee Trevino is trying to become the first person in 48 years to win back-to-back PGA titles and Watson hopes to become the fifth person ever to win all four grand slam events in a lifetime.

And all three of those superstars are in position to achieve their goals going into the second round of what has the potential to be a thrilling tournament.

On a day that brought mostly beautiful weather, the top players in the game carved up one of the world's top courses — the par-71 Cherry Hills Country Club.

The person carving the most, however, was Tewell. Despite severe back pains, the 11-year pro shot a 7-under 64 Thursday, breaking the Cherry Hills record and giving him a two-shot lead going into today's second round.

The record Tewell broke belonged to Arnold Palmer, whose 65 in the final round of the U.S. Open in 1960 stands as one of the most historic achievements in the game.

Palmer returned Thursday and shot a 75, trying and almost succeeding in driving the green at the 346-yard opening hole as he did to start his famous round a quarter of a century ago.

Seven years ago when the U.S. Open was played here, the opening round leader (Hale Irwin) shot a 69. Thursday, 17 players bested or equaled that figure.

At 5-under 66 came both Trevino and Nicklaus along with four funnyman Peter Jacobsen and Corey Pavin, the circuit's rookie of the year in 1984.

One stroke further back was Watson, who joined Hubert Green and Danny Edwards.

Morris Hatalasky was alone at 68 with the group at 69 including another gathering of high-profile players — Tom Kite, Calvin Peete, Hal Sutton and Masters champion Bernhard Langer.

Other scores turned in by well-known players included a 70 for Lanny Wadkins, 71 for Andy Bean and Fuzzy Zoeller, 72 for Gary Player, Andy North and Craig Stadler, 73 for Ben Crenshaw and 77 for leading money winner Curtis Strange.

"I'm not surprised at the scores," said Watson. "The weather was perfect, the fairways were perfect and the greens were holding."

The opening round of the PGA contained far more than its share of spectacular events, including:

— A 90-foot bunker shot by Tewell at the par-3 15th that sailed into the hole for a birdie and a 2-iron at the par-5 17th that just made it over the creek in front of the green to set up a 15-foot eagle putt.

— A 3-iron by Trevino at the 17th which skipped over the water within five feet of the hole for an eagle. That came on the heels of a double bogey, which, in turn, came after three consecutive birdies.

— A wild shot by U.S. Open hero Tze-Chung Chen at the 15th hole which bounced off some rocks in a creek and bounded back toward the green, enabling him to salvage a bogey.

— A freaky round by John Mahaffey in which he shot 42 on the front nine and 32 on the back.

Bennett Debuts As Bucs' Coach Saturday

TAMPA (UPI) — Tampa Bay rookie Coach Leeman Bennett and Pittsburgh's Chuck Noll will have one eye on the scoreboard and one on the future Saturday night in the exhibition opener for both teams.

In taking over for John McKay, the only coach in the Buccaneers' previous nine NFL seasons, Bennett is trying to infuse some youth into a creaky defensive unit that surrendered the most yardage in club history in 1984.

Lee Roy Selmon, a six-time All-Pro, will miss at least half the year with a herniated disc and fellow defensive end Ron Holmes, the eighth pick in the NFL draft, just arrived in camp and is not expected to play against the Steelers.

"Winning is important in every game — that's why we line up — but it is important to look at our young people," said Bennett, who inherits a 6-10 club. "We need to see most of our free agents and rookies in a game situation so we can have a better idea about them."

Veteran Steve DeBerg will start at quarterback for the Buccaneers and free agent Alan Hatcher will follow. DeBerg's primary backup, Jack Thompson, will start the Aug. 17 game against Atlanta.

Noll comes off one of his finest coaching efforts in a championship-studded career, leading Pittsburgh to the AFC title game with a young club despite missing perennial All-Pro linebacker Jack Lambert after the opening week. Lambert has retired because of a toe injury and replacement David Little has quickly become a Noll favorite.

Football

"David was kind of in Jack's shadow, but he got the opportunity to play last year and he assumed a leadership role," says Noll, who has guided the Steelers to 14 consecutive victories in pre-season openers.

"Without Jack, we don't have as many grows in practice," Noll said. "On Saturday, we'll be trying to find out who we can win with. The guys who have had excellent camps for us have been the second and third year players."

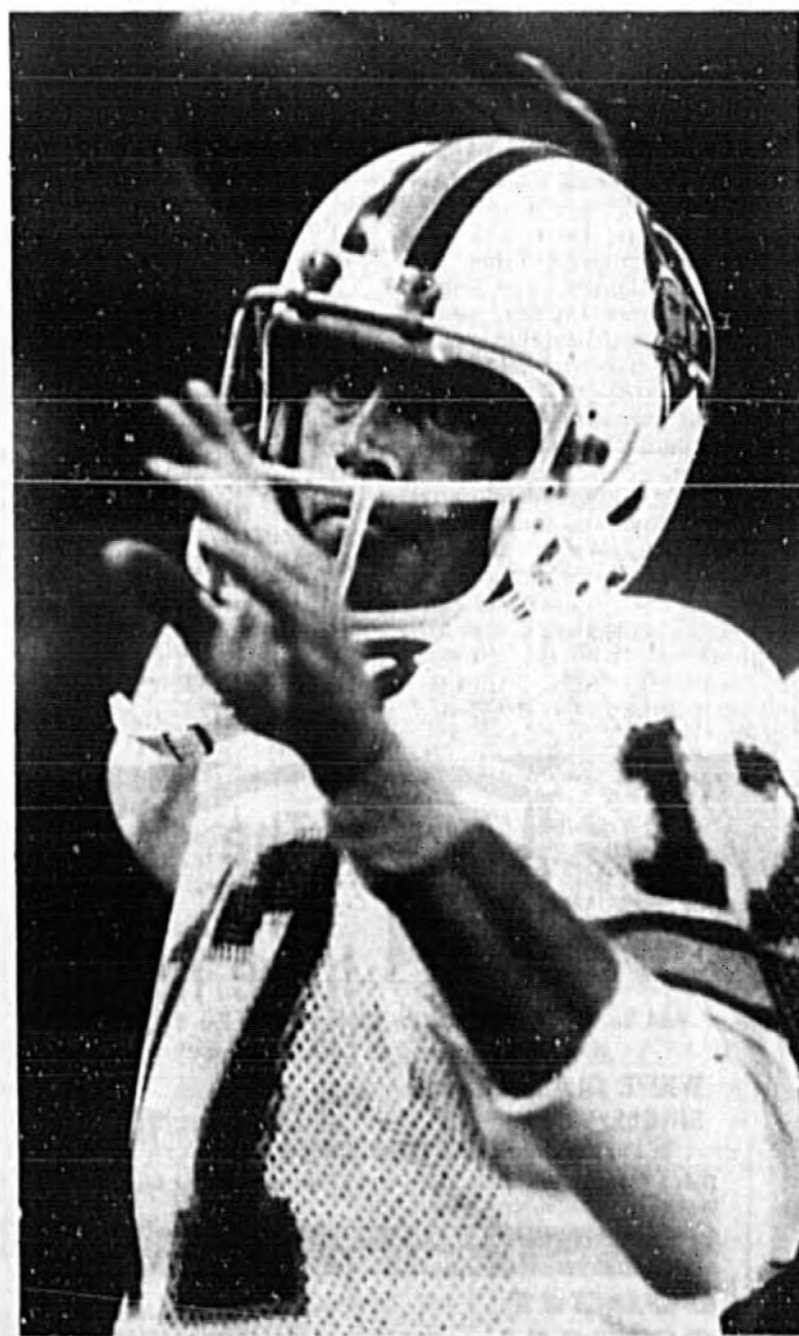

Noll will start Mark Malone at quarterback, with David Woodley and Scott Campbell also seeing action. Running back Walter Abercrombie will be used extensively on third-down situations with Rick Erenberg nursing a leg injury.

MARINO STILL OUT

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphins owner Joe Robbie met with the agent for holdout quarterback Dan Marino and termed the talks "cordial and constructive," but Marino is no closer to coming back to camp. Robbie said Thursday.

In a written statement released Thursday afternoon, Robbie said he met with Marvin Demoff in New Orleans Wednesday.

Robbie remains adamant that Marino, who walked out of training camp two weeks ago, must return to camp before further negotiations can take place.

Steve DeBerg will open at quarterback for the Tampa Bay Bucs in their preseason opener Saturday against the Pittsburgh Steelers at Tampa Stadium. It will mark the debut of the Bucs new head coach, Leeman Bennett.

Ferguson Goes Against Old Mates In Opener

United Press International

Joe Ferguson will see a lot of familiar faces Friday night when he makes his debut with the Detroit Lions.

Detroit hosts the Buffalo Bills in the exhibition opener for both teams, and Ferguson will find it strange after spending the past 12 years as the Bills' quarterback. Buffalo coach Ray Stephenson thinks it will be odd for both sides.

"I'm sure it will seem strange when we see Joe take the field in a Lions' uniform," Stephenson said. "After all, he was on our sidelines for 12 years and that's very nearly a lifetime in this league."

Ferguson and rookie Coach Darryl Rogers are the chief new faces on the Lions. One of Rogers' first major decisions will be to settle on either Ferguson or Eric Hipple as his starting quarterback.

"They're both going to play," Rogers said when asked who would start Saturday. "It doesn't make any difference who may start. We will, however, evaluate them after they play."

"Each will play one quarter in the first half and then in the second half we'll see how it drifts."

Stephenson must choose between Joe Dufek, Matt Koller, Vince Ferragamo and rookie Frank Reich as his new quarterback.

St. Louis hosts Chicago in another exhibition game Friday night.

BUTZ ENDS HOLDOUT

At 41, Pittsburgh's Dave Butz, feeling to get back in uniform and growing $1,000 poorer by the day, Friday agreed to a new contract with the Washington Redskins.

Football

The defensive tackle is expected to report Saturday, ending nearly a two-week holdout.

Butz, the 6-foot-7, 295-pound anchor of the Redskins defensive front, reportedly was offered a two-year deal that would pay him $325,000 for this season and $450,000 for 1986, plus a $200,000 signing bonus.

Club owner Jack Kent Cooke, in a contract stalemate with the 35-year-old veteran entering his 13th NFL season, reportedly was trimming his signing bonus by $1,000 for each day he did not show up beginning Wednesday.

"I think when you've been part of an organization for 10 years, you have some responsibilities put on your shoulders," Butz said. "You're relied on to do a lot of things. It's time to come back and do one thing I know — play football."

CRIBBS UNHAPPY

The agent for Joe Cribbs Thursday said the running back, feeling ignored by the Buffalo Bills, would like to work out a deal with another NFL club.

Cribbs, who played for Buffalo from 1980-84, spent the past two seasons with the Birmingham Stallions of the USFL. His agent, Louis Burrell, said he has reached an agreement to buy out of the Stallions' contract but talks with the Bills stalled 10 days ago.

New Line Of Pacemakers Out-Ticking Old Models

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been horrified to read about the defective pacemakers and the poor guys who now have to undergo another operation to get them replaced. Why isn't someone keeping an eye on this sort of thing?

DEAR READER — Someone is. Pacemaker manufacturers have embarked on a far-reaching program to identify defective units and correct them. Of course, early pacemakers were not as well developed as the newer models. There is a greater tendency for things to go wrong with the older versions and, like any machine, they sometimes need repair or replacement. Currently available pacemakers, although complicated, have had many of the "bugs" worked out and ordinarily are more reliable than the ones you have read about.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What are nasal polyps? Are they caused by an allergy?

DEAR READER — Nasal polyps are benign outgrowths of the normal membrane that lines the upper respiratory passageway. They may result from constant irritation of that lining. Therefore, polyps can be due to allergies and should be removed, because they will cause blockage. Sometimes, if they are small, medication may be used to shrink them. Of course, the allergies themselves must be treated.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why do some people develop emphysema although they've never smoked or worked around air pollutants or lung irritants? It doesn't seem to be the kind of disease that someone could develop without an outside cause.

DEAR READER — There is more than one type of emphysema and more than one cause for it. Emphysema is basically a loss of the feathery lung air sacs, which provide enormous surface area for the exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide. As the air sacs disintegrate, the lungs have progressively diminished surface area, less oxygen enters the blood and less carbon dioxide is exhaled. Emphysema often exists simultaneously with chronic bronchitis, a condition that tends to trap stale air within lung substance. We all breathe in pollutants from time to time, and, over the years, these compounds cause a reduction in lung reserve. Further, as we age, there is an unavoidable loss of pulmonary capacity — so-called senile emphysema.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

After you have been around the game of bridge just a little while, you soon hear that defense is the hardest part of the game. This deal shows why.

Against four hearts, West led the diamond four. East won the king and thought about how his side could win four tricks. Of course he didn't know that West held the club ace, but he felt that his side needed to get a club trick to set the contract.

Then, too, if West had only two diamonds, perhaps a third diamond lead would enable West to ruff with a card that would force dummy to use the 10 or jack of hearts. That would build a certain trump trick for the Q-9-8 in East's hand. But if diamonds were played before the defense took its club trick, that club trick might disappear on dummy's spade suit. All very complicated.

Eventually East played the club jack at trick two. West won the club ace and switched back to the diamond two. East won the ace and continued with a third diamond. The seven of hearts forced dummy to ruff with the 10, and that was down one.

How could West have known that East did not have a singleton club? If that had been the case, East would have cashed the second diamond before playing the club.

Why didn't North pass three no-trump, which would have made? He made a mistake.

IN BRIEF

Gemayel Endorses Syrian Peace Plan; Won't Resign

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad, endorsed Syrian plans for bringing peace to war-torn Lebanon but vowed not to buckle under to critics demanding his resignation.

Gemayel said his talks with Assad Thursday stressed solidarity between Lebanon and Syria and Lebanese unity. Gemayel, 42, a Christian Maronite, not only endorsed Syria's role in efforts to reconcile Lebanon's warring factions but also praised the National Alliance Front, a coalition of pro-Syrian groups that have demanded his ouster.

Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri and his Druze Moslem counterpart Walid Jumblatt later also met with Assad. Both are leaders of the Front and have called on Gemayel to leave office because, they said, he has not produced the political reform they have demanded.

But Gemayel, quoted in Beirut's leftist As Safr newspaper, said: "I'm the regime. I won't quit. I'll leave the presidential palace only when I'm dead or when my term ends on Sept. 23, 1988."

Absent Arabs Courted

CASABLANCA, Morocco (UPI) — Arab leaders extended their summit to search for a resolution acceptable to the 16 attending nations and proposed sending peace committees to the five Arab nations boycotting the conference.

The Arab League summit, originally scheduled to end Thursday, went late into last night and diplomats said another session was scheduled for today in an effort to adopt resolutions to end the conference with a semblance of Arab unity.

The issues dividing the Arab states are the Iraq-Iran war and an accord by Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization that calls for a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation to negotiate with Israel.

At Thursday night's full session of the 21 member Arab League summit, the first in three years, the 16 attending nations agreed to send peace committees to the five Arab nations boycotting the conference as well as to the United States and the Soviet Union.

The five include Syria, Libya, Algeria, South Yemen and Lebanon.

Syria initiated the boycott because it is opposed to a recent Jordanian-Palestinian Middle East peace initiative.

Church Worker Kidnapped, Freed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two men who identified themselves as Shiite militia security agents abducted a Canadian church worker at his home but released him unharmed about 12 hours later.

Robert Burkholder, a Canadian working for the Pennsylvania-based Mennonite Central Committee, was abducted Thursday at his home in Nabatiya, 35 miles south of Beirut.

Jill Burkholder said her husband was on his way to work when the two men, apparently unarmed, confronted him and asked him to go with them for questioning.

She said her husband apparently saw no reason not to go with them. A Lebanese co-worker tried to accompany him but the two men sped away with Burkholder in their car, she said.

He was freed about 12 hours later. "All we know is he was detained and questioned by people he was not able to identify. We don't know what they wanted. He was not mistreated," Canadian External Affairs spokesman Denis Comeau said in Ottawa.

Blacks Turn Wrath On Asians As Police Try To Quell Violence

Blacks JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Hundreds of chanting, stick brandishing blacks today laid siege to an Asian settlement near Durban while security chiefs rushed in hundreds of heavily armed police and troops in an attempt to end the riots blamed for at least 39 deaths.

Officials at the King Edward VIII Hospital in Durban reported the delivery of 16 bodies to their morgue overnight and said they were now aware of 39 people killed in four days of ferocious clashes.

In Johannesburg, Nobel Peace Prize-winning Bishop Desmond Tutu called a special service of prayers for peace at that city's Anglican cathedral.

The rioters around Durban, mostly Zulu tribe members who live in the area, today stormed the Mahatma Gandhi settlement chanting "usuthu, usuthu" meaning freedom.

Dozens of Asian families, mostly Indian, took sanctuary in the settlement when violence broke out in the area Tuesday. At least 2,000 Asians have fled with assistance from police and soldiers, leaving their homes to be looted and burned by Zulu warrior groups known as "impis," authorities said.

A civil defense official said more than 1,500 Asians registered as refugees Thursday and sought shelter in church and community halls.

Reporters said black anger was directed at Asians probably because of their participation in a year-old tri-racial Parliament that excludes the nation's 22 million blacks — 70 percent of the population.

Police Clash With IRA Supporters

LONDONDERY, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Firebomb throwing Irish Republican Army sympathizers clashed with police in six towns today as the IRA buried one of its fighters in the first of three days of anti-British rallies across the province.

In Belfast police fired 20 plastic bullets to break up a mob trying to pull a man from a car, police said. One rioter was hospitalized with a head wound but a police spokesman said he did not know how he was injured.

Police across the country were barred from taking vacation or days off across Ulster this weekend because of the three days of planned demonstrations marking the 14th anniversary of laws allowing IRA members to be jailed without trial.

In Londonderry, 75 miles northwest of Belfast, American supporters of the outlawed IRA watched skirmishes between police and youths and later joined 1,500 mourners at the funeral of Charles English.

21 — an IRA fighter killed in a bungled grenade attack on police.

New Yorker Martin Galvin — banned from Northern Ireland by the British government — slipped through a police and army cordon to appear at the funeral of Charles English who was killed in a bungled grenade attack on police.

Galvin, publicity director of the pro-IRA fund raising group NORAIT, materialized as four hooded and masked IRA men joined the funeral procession between St. Columba's Church and the cemetery.

Galvin helped carry the coffin for a short distance and then joined the procession. Two British army helicopters circled overhead and armored police landrovers followed the cortege behind the coffin. The casket was draped in the Irish republic's tricolor and bore the dead man's black IRA beret and gloves.

One of the American IRA backers, Myrna Merchant of Rouses Point, N.Y., protested the police presence at the funeral. "This funeral is overwhelming. What's really horrible is the insensitivity of the RUC (police). They have no respect for this boy and his family. It's quite an eye opener," she said.

British troops set up roadblocks around the Bogside area of the city where the funeral took place. About a dozen police vans were waiting at St. Columba's church when the procession arrived.

Pall-bearers were prominent members of Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA, and included Martin McGuinness who denies British allegations he is the IRA's military commander.

Police came under attack early today in Londonderry, Strabane, Newry, Downpatrick, Portadown and Belfast, skirmishing with youths who hurled firebombs, stones and concrete slabs, authorities said.

gave some stores an extra day in the latest period.

"Consumers are more cautiously buying general merchandise," perpetuating a trend that has dogged the industry since April, he said.

This prudence reflects higher consumer debt, a rising delinquency rate in credit payments and a tendency to make smaller payments, Greenstein said.

Analysts predicted retail sales would rebound somewhat in August with the opening of the back-to-school buying season and benefit from comparisons with results in August 1984, when sales weakened.

Kmart's Fauber said the arrival of fall fashions and improved consumer confidence levels indicate that an increase in sales will be experienced in the important latter half of 1985.

Cincinnati-based Federated Department Stores, the fourth-largest retailer and parent of such chains as Bloomingdale's and Sanger-Harris, announced its July sales climbed 8.4 percent to $632 million from $583.1 million the year before.

The retail environment remains difficult and sales in the general merchandising division continued below expectations," said Federated Chairman Howard Goldfeder.

In Minneapolis, Dayton-Hudson Corp., the fifth-largest, reported its sales were up 21.2 percent to $560.29 million from $462.39 million in July 1984.

Among other retailers, sixth-ranked Montgomery Ward & Co., a unit of Mobil Corp. based in Chicago, reported its sales declined 5 percent to $318.4 million from $335.2 million a year earlier. The July results did not include Ward's catalog business, which is being discontinued, or its Jefferson Ward stores, which are being sold.

FW Woolworth, New York, said its July domestic sales increased 5.3 percent to $235.6 million from $223.8 million a year earlier. Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Bentonville, Ark., posted a 35 percent jump in July sales to $640 million from $475 million the year before on the addition of 120 new stores. Sales on a comparable store basis were up 12 percent.

New York-based Associated Dry Goods, parent of Lord & Taylor and Caldor, had an 11.7 percent July sales gain to $249.3 million vs. $223.2 million a year ago.

Allied Stores Inc., the New York-based parent of Brooks Brothers and Jordan Marsh, announced its sales advanced 6.7 percent to $234.3 million from $219.5 million in July 1984.

Zayre Corp., Framingham, Mass., recorded a 17.9 percent sales increase in July to $238.8 million from $202.6 million

Mrs. Rice asked the East Central Florida Project Review Committee for the police protection at its Thursday meeting. She asked the committee to require the developer to pay for police protection and traffic control.

The committee is reviewing the plans of Hardy/Lieb. In its review, the committee will make recommendations to Seminole County Commission which issue the development order.

The committee said although it was sympathetic with Lake Mary's request, it would not put police protection in its guidelines for Hardy/Lieb.

The builder must follow the guidelines of the committee, Mrs. Rice said.

The committee has recommended that:

- An air quality control check called a Quality Monitoring Modeling Concept be done after the shopping center opens to check the carbon monoxide level of the air.
- The developers protect as much of Turkey Oak Sanctuary as it can. The center is scheduled to be built near a wildlife refuge.

- A traffic study must be done.
- The developers must put in bicycle lanes and locks and provide routes for other modes of transportation.

The shopping center will include a major grocery/drug store and a large department store. Wickert would not divulge the names of the stores.

He said phase one of the center would be 210,000 square feet and that the total when finished would be 359,000 square feet. This is roughly one-third the size of the Altamonte Mall. Phase two is scheduled to be completed in late 1987.

...Annex

But county Commissioner Fred Streetman said earlier this week if Sanford annexes the property a potential sewage agreement between the two governments could be jeopardized.

Sanford is counting on the county to help it expand its sewer system into a $30 million to $40 million land spreading system. The county may cooperate with rezoning some land west of Sanford for sewage disposal in return for some of the city's sewer capacity.

Along with Streetman, commissioners Bob Sturm and Bill Kirchhoff voted to send Ms. Clayton to the meeting.

Streetman and Sturm hinted they are ready to instruct Ms. Clayton to take the city to court if city commissioners ignore the county's opposition.

Commissioners Sandra Glenn and Barbara Christensen voted against objecting to the annexation. They said they saw nothing wrong with the annexation.

Kirchhoff said another one of his concerns about the annexation is that it takes property out of the county's fire tax district which supports the county fire department.

The city police and fire departments will have to go several miles into county territory to serve this property," Kirchhoff said.

Listed in city hall records as owners of the property are the Harold H. Kastner Trust, with Eoghan Kelley, trustee, Viola Kastner, and Ruth S. Dye.

Kelley, Mrs. Kastner's son, is handling 183 acres of the 233-acre annexation request.

Kelley said if the land, which is located near I-4, was annexed it would give the city more exposure and thus bring more business and industry to Sanford. That in turn would create more jobs, especially for the city's young people, he said.

There are no plans right now to develop the property, he said.

Flying High In The Past

With space travel almost routine, there are still those who prefer their flight more simple, less technological. Such are Bud and Lil Rogers.

'Our Time': Nostalgia Isn't Enough, p.3

Taking Wing On A Flight To Aviation's Romantic Past

There's a revolution in aviation and it's not in the form of some futuristic search of the cosmos. It's the common man taking to the air in flying machines more akin to something the Wright brothers flew than what Buck Rogers zipped around the galaxy in.

That's what Sanford's Bud Rogers (no relation) says. And he should know. He makes a living restoring old time flying machines and building new ones, usually nothing fancy, just your very basic airplane.

It seems the art of flying has come full circle. "It's probably because of the ultralight movement, all of the little planes they've started flying," Rogers said. "They're just a refinement of the early airplanes."

Rogers, 55, said he has built at customers' request a couple of the more enclosed and sturdier ultralights, but he's never gotten involved with the skimpier models, which he said are little more than flying lawnchairs.

But it's the authentic early planes — especially old World War II warbirds like the Stearman biplane and the Waco UPF-7 — that exert a strong emotional pull on Rogers. It's a fascination his wife, Lil, whom he met at an airport, also shares.

Rogers has been fascinated by flight since his New York boyhood. As soon as he turned 16 he took private flying lessons in a Piper J-3 Cub. That was 1944 and Rogers was too young to enter World War II although he served in the Civil Air Patrol during the war years and was slated for Army Air Corps cadet training just as hostilities ended. By the time the next war rolled around — Korea — Rogers was too old for combat.

In 1947, with the war and school behind him, Rogers figured it was time to set out on a career. Because of his youth and lack of flying experience, becoming a pilot in the fledgling airline industry was only a dream. So, he chose to become an aircraft mechanic. But Rogers found such work too routine, and by the time he came to Sanford about 20 years ago he had taken the plunge into aircraft building.

His hangar/workshop at the Sanford Airport looks like the playroom of a giant who loves model airplanes. The metal skeleton of a full-sized experimental plane, started from a kit by a shade tree mechanic who just couldn't complete the job, shares space with wood-ribbed wings waiting for a fabric covering and other crafts in various stages of construction.

Looking all the world like a dashing World War II fighter pilot, Bud Rogers prepares to climb into the cockpit of a German Messerschmitt ME 108 trainer, owned by a customer.

The walls are stacked with hard-to-come-by spare parts. A fellow of considerable foresight, Rogers said he buys parts whenever he can find them and saves them for later use.

Many old planes are nothing but a rattle-trap collection of parts, "basket cases" as Rogers calls them. But when found in barns or fields, or advertised in aviation publications, they can be pieced back together to take to the air once more, he said.

Although restoring an old plane or putting one together from a kit is usually less expensive than buying a factory-made flyer, like everything else, the cost of flying is high.

An old "basket case" that could have been picked up for $1,000 a few years ago is going for $5,000 these days, Rogers said. "And you'll have spent another $10,000 by the time you get it all rebuilt, fixed up and flying."

Ah, but it's a worthy investment, Mrs. Rogers said. To her there's nothing finer than getting decked out in antique aviator's helmet, leather jacket, flight suit, goggles and scarf for a quick spin in the open cockpit of a four-winged flying relic of a bygone era.

"I guess I like to feel the wind around my head."

It's a romantic link with the likes of Lindbergh and the barnstormers; a time when things were more simple, America more innocent, and the airplane was still a relatively new invention that held both promise and excitement.

Both for the flyers and the ground-bound, one of the attractions of this part of aviation is the sense of history. Buys would rather fly than just about anything else, but when they're not in the air or working on their planes you can usually find them discussing their collections of memorabilia. The Rogers have an assemblage of such stuff — old goggles, wooden props, and models of planes which are tiny mimics of the machines that fill their shop.

There are many of the Rogers' ilk and they meet regularly in something called a fly-in — a gathering of aviators who get together to show off their planes, both old and new.

Two local fly-ins which attract pilots from across the nation include the one in Zellwood which is held at the Bob White Field in October and the "Sun and Fun" fly-in in Lakeland held each March.

If you had started last month, you might be able to make the Zellwood gathering in your very own plane. Rogers said it takes about three months working full-time to build a simple plane from a kit. A more complex version is a seven- or eight-month project.

But Rogers said it's worth the effort.

There's a special satisfaction in piloting something you made yourself in a friendly game of tag with the clouds. And it's definitely easier on the pocketbook than buying one from the factory.

"A little two-seat, trainer-type plane from a factory will cost you about $50,000," Rogers said. "That's out of the reach of the guy who wants a small airplane" and is the major reason many dig up old planes to restore, buy do-it-yourself kits, or turn to ultralights that can be had for a fraction of that.

But some old planes, because of their popularity with collectors, command rather stiff prices. A tiny Piper Cub, which is really nothing special in the way of technology or aerodynamics, is nonetheless a status symbol and will run about $12,000, according to Seminole County sheriff's pilot Barry Maughan.

Maughan calls Rogers the master in restoring old planes. Rogers rebuilt one for him a few years ago. "They're economical to use and you still have a real airplane," he said.

Rogers said many of the craft he works on use standard automobile fuel and can get you where you're going relatively cheaply.

Privately-built experimental aircraft are where new inroads in aviation are being made, Rogers said, because private builders' creations don't have to meet the same rigid standards as factory-produced machines.

While not having to meet factory standards, restored planes or new privately built machines do have to be tested and approved for flight by federal aviation authorities. Rogers acts as his own test pilot, but says he gives the machines a good checkout on the ground before taking off.

With the low-cost, low-powered, low-flying ultralights, pilots don't have to be licensed and don't have to pass a medical exam, Rogers said. That has sent many amateur pilots into flight, but many of them have come down nose first for a rather ignominious meeting with the ground.

Back To The '60s?

Nostalgia Isn't Enough To Save NBC's 'Our Time'

By David Handler
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NBC's "Our Time" is a half-hour weekly look back at the '60s that's done in a style we actually haven't seen much of since those stormy days. With its collage of brief comic skits, celebrity blackouts and one-liners, it reminds me more than a little of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In."

Only this eight-week, Yuppie-oriented summer series isn't nearly so funny, nor is it able to get past its preoccupation with nostalgia. For me, a nostalgia becomes extremely trite and wearing after a while — even if it's about my decade.

Karen Valentine is our unlikely co-host. I don't know who I would have picked to anchor this show about "Where we are, where we've been," but I doubt she would have made the top 100 on my list.

Harry Anderson, the fine, funny star of "Night Court," joined her the first two weeks, and looked very ill at ease doing so.

Actors like Ed Begley Jr. and Richard Kline are on hand to appear in quick sketches and deliver one-liners. Sixties idols like Edd Byrnes and Adam West make cameo appearances. So do now-grown kiddie stars like Jay North ("Dennis the Menace") and Stanley and Barry Livingston ("My Three Sons").

There are frequent references to the Beatles, miniskirts, Woodstock and anything else that will remind people of the '60s. One semi-amusing bit was photos of rock supergroups that didn't make it, like Sonny (Liston) and Cher and Crosby (Bing), Stills and Nash.

The highlight of the first show was an appearance by Rick Nelson, who joined our hosts for a look back at "Ozzie and Harriet" and finished up by singing "Travelin' Man."

Paul Revere and the Raiders were also on hand, looking much the worse for wear.

"Our Time" does try to focus some attention on what we baby boomers are up to now. The first episode featured a hospital sketch about an expectant married couple. There was also a class reunion sketch, in which two former peaceniks talk about staging another "in" and, predictably, salivate over how much money they could clear on the tickets and T-shirts.

This stuff was trite and obvious.

"Our Time" isn't the only series this summer that's going after the "Big Chill" audience. CBS has "Hometown," a contemporary drama about a group of '60s friends that more than recalls that movie.

The aim is to reach an audience that is much sought after by the advertisers. But to hold that audience, the networks must do something more than a show like "Our Time" does.

"Our Time" merely reminds people of their past. It doesn't stimulate or entertain them. It doesn't have anything fresh to say about then or now.

Nostalgia isn't enough. "Our Time" isn't enough.

Boston Child Advocacy Group Seeking Halt To 'Kidfone' Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A child advocacy group is seeking to stop "deceptive and unfair" television commercials that encourage children to dial telephone services that offer taped messages for a fee.

The Boston-based Action for Children's Television Tuesday asked the Federal Trade Commission to determine whether the ads are unfit for broadcast. The organization said thousands of children call such services and run up hundreds of dollars in telephone bills.

Peggy Charren, president of the group, said the organization is not seeking censorship because, "Censorship is worse than junk on television."

"We want the FTC to determine that these ads are deceptive and unfair, to issue an order enjoining the vendors from this particular practice," she said.

Charren said if that effort is unsuccessful, the group wants parents advised that, "If you didn't authorize the call, you don't have to pay the telephone bill."

That bill would have to be itemized by the local telephone company, she said.

The complaint was filed against 976 phone service ads that include "Dial a Muppet," "Dial Santa" and "Captain K-C." Charges for such calls range between 50 cents and $1.85, Charren said.

Charren said the "Captain K-C" ads, primarily offered in the Phoenix and Denver areas, have now been taken off the air "but we want to make sure they stay off the air."

Such television ads discriminate against poor parents because they are likely to leave their children at home alone, Charren said.

"And the poor are the ones least able to afford these bills," she said.

...Flying

Ultralight fliers are at the mercy of the elements, especially the wind, Rogers said. And most accidents and fatalities related to the fragile flyers can be linked to the pilot going up against even a slight breeze, he said.

Ultralights — tiny, one-seater creatures that resemble giant mosquitoes — are perhaps the cheapest means of flight, running from $4,000 to $10,000.

Do Blondes Really Have More Fun?

Dear Dick — We watch "Dynasty" every week. Question from a professional cosmetologist: Does Jack Coleman (Steven Carrington) lighten his hair? I used to watch him as Jake on "Days of Our Lives," and his hair seemed darker then. — P.K., Knoxville, Tenn.

Yes, slightly. Coleman replaced Al Corley in that part, and Corley's hair was much lighter than Coleman's. So to ease the transition, they did lighten Coleman's hair a touch. They are now letting it get darker, so that Coleman won't have to bother with lightening his hair. But it is getting darker gradually. Jack is naturally light-headed, so it will never become really dark.

Dear Dick — It's the guys against the girls. The guys have to cook dinner if we're wrong. The girls cook for us if they're wrong. Who played the original head nurse opposite Dr. Sheinfeld on the premiere show of "ER"? Was it Gabe Kotter's wife from "Welcome Back, Kotter" (guys win) or was it Bailey from "WKRP in Cincinnati" (girls win)? Or were they the same person (nobody wins)? — L.K., Kalamazoo, Mich.

It is probably a good thing for your collective digestive systems that the guys win this one. It was Marcia Strassman, who had been Mrs. Kotter.

Dear Dick — The other night I was watching

Ask Dick Kleiner

the movie, "Bridger," and it had Dirk Blocker in it. I know he has to be kin to Dan Blocker. Is he a brother or a son? — Mrs. C.H.C., Trinity, Texas.

Dirk is Dan's son.

Dear Dick — Is Lark McCarthy, of CBS News Nightwatch, married or can I dream on? — P.R., Lawton, Mich.

She's single, so full dream ahead. But Lark is no longer on Nightwatch; she's been promoted to covering general assignments for CBS out of the Washington bureau.

Dear Dick — There is a series on ABC called "Finder of Lost Loves." The theme is sung by Dionne Warwick and Luther Vandross. Is it possible for me to get a recording of this? If so, what steps must I take? — S.A.J., Houston, Texas.

The record is around, although the series is now kaput. The theme was recorded on Arista Records, so take whatever steps are necessary to bring you to your record store and ask them for the record, or ask them if they can order it for you.

Dear Dick — In one of the last Lawrence Welk Christmas shows broadcast, Guy and Raina sang a song called "Little Toy Trains and Little Toy Tracks." Could you tell me who wrote this song and if it has been recorded? — M.W., New Lothrop, Mich.

The correct title of that song is "Old Toy Trains." The Welk people tell me that it was written by Roger Miller, so there may be some recordings of it out. Miller conceivably could have recorded it himself. Nobody from the Welk organization has recorded it, however.

Dear Dick — What happened to the actress who played Carol Hughes on "As the World Turns"? She was a delightful person. I believe she was married to a minister. — E.M.L., Perryton, Texas.

Rita Walter was that delightful person's real name. She left the show because she was going to have her third child. You are right, she is a minister's wife — her husband is the Rev. Norman Walter. He sometimes plays a minister on "As the World Turns," if they need a touch of authenticity — he recently performed the wedding for Kim and Bob on the show.

Men Coming Out Of Closet To Watch Soaps

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Conboy, the producer of the CBS soap opera "Capitol," calls the soap opera and the musical comedy the two native American art forms.

"Everything else comes from England," he said.

Conboy takes the soap opera form seriously, if not reverently, and he objects to night time soaps that "joke the form," as he says ABC's "Dynasty" sometimes does.

"When 'Dynasty' first came on I loved it," he said. "Now I only like it."

His favorite among the nighttime entries is CBS's "Knots Landing." "Dallas," he said, is well written and wonderfully acted, but he said the production seems to have gotten smaller, "as if they were trying to cut corners."

Asked the differences between daytime and prime time soaps — aside from money — he said, "I don't know that there are very many. They tell a continuing story and we tell a continuing story. Most often we do it better."

Is the daytime audience more heavily female? Apparently not.

"As a matter of fact, the male viewer has come out of the closet in the last few years," he said. "We're delighted about that. Kids also are avid soap opera buffs. And you don't want to ignore the elderly because television is a very important part of their lives.

"You try for balance. You try to tell young stories and you want men and women 65 and 70 to say, 'I wish my grandchildren were like that.' Or you have a very young person singing a very old song. You try to mix it up and grab as many as you can."

Conboy began his soaps career on the now defunct "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing," where he was producer. He was executive producer of CBS's "The Young and the Restless," which just picked up an Emmy as outstanding daytime drama, and went on to form his own production company for "Capitol."

Michael Jackson A 'Stooge' Fan; Writes Forward For Curley Book

Michael Jackson appreciates a double eye gouge and the sound of cracking noggins as much as the next guy. Jackson has written the forward for "Curley — A Biography of the Super Stooge," which is due out in October.

The book is the third on the Three Stooges by Joan Howard Maurer, daughter of Moe and niece of Curley Howard. After learning Jackson was a fan, Maurer sent him a copy of "The Three Stooges Book of Scripts" and he called back to say how much he enjoyed it.

His forward for "Curley," Maurer says, is "basically, his feelings about the Stooges and how he grew to enjoy the shows."

Daughterly loyalty aside, Maurer says Curley was her favorite Stooge. "When I was young it was really a bit embarrassing to have your father knocking his family (Curley and brother Shemp Howard) around," she said. "As far as a favorite, I had filial feelings for Moe but he was mean (in the movies).

"Curley was the effin', charming one. He was like a man-child and a bit like the character you saw on the screen — not that dingy of course — and never really grew up because of an overprotective mother."
