San Francisco Drought Closes Swimming Pools

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Surrounded by drought-stricken counties already rationing water, San Franciscans now will have to cut their use to face what the mayor calls "the most desperate matter facing this city since World War II." Car washings and full swimming pools are banned in the regulations passed Tuesday by the Public Utilities Commission. The water conservation policy, which goes into effect April 1, is designed to cut overall consumption by 25 per cent.

Consumer Laws In Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet, or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws. The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line. The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status.

Carter Readies Water List

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is ready to announce a new "semifinal" list of up to 32 water projects in danger of cancellation, say members of Congress with advance word. The list, expected to be released today by the White House, includes many carryovers from an earlier, controversial list of 19 projects that Carter deleted from his fiscal 1978 budget recommendations last month.

Ray Tells 'Nothing New'

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray's lawyer says his client revealed no "great surprise information" in a prison cell interview with House assassinations committee investigators looking into the murder of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. The assassinations committee was to get a report on the Ray interview today and also planned to consider an interim report on its investigation to date.

Election Law Reform Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic majority in Congress is gearing for swift and favorable action on President Carter's election law package, but some Republicans are ready to fight Carter's plan for public financing of congressional campaigns. Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., coined the phrase "kept congressmen" in voicing his opposition to public financing of campaigns, a phrase echoed Tuesday by other GOP members of Congress.

Altamonte Leads In War On Crime

Altamonte Springs Police Department ranked 13th of 39 cities in Florida of similar size in the recent state report of clearance of major crime cases in 1976. With 1,597 crimes occurring in the city last year including murders, robbery, breakings and enterings, the city police department cleared 84 per cent of them. The national average is slightly above five per cent, Chief Justice East said. The clearance rate indicates the numbers of crimes solved. At the same time, East said, the city recorded an 11.8 per cent decrease in crime.

For the 1976 year, the Seminole County Sheriff's Department recorded a 9.3 per cent decrease in crime and a 17.2 per cent clearance rate. The police department of other cities in Seminole recorded the following statistics: Sanford, 2.3 per cent decrease in crime and 14.2 per cent clearance. Casselberry, 2.2 per cent increase and 23.3 per cent clearance. Longwood, 26.2 per cent decrease and 5.4 per cent clearance with 357 crimes reported. Winter Springs, 1.2 per cent increase and 12.3 per cent clearance.

Lake Mary with 39 crimes, 23.1 per cent clearance and 62.1 per cent decrease. Orlando, 13.5 per cent increase and 45.7 per cent clearance with 197 crimes reported for the year. In neighboring Orange County, the Orlando Police Department recorded a 6.4 per cent decrease in crime and a 24.8 per cent clearance. Winter Park had an 11.6 per cent decrease in crime with a 18.1 per cent clearance. —DONNA ESTES

Youth Hurt In Jump From Roof Trio Nabbed In Breakin

Sanford police arrested three 15-year-old suspects in a burglary at the Army Navy Surplus Store, 310 Sanford Ave. Officers said the teenagers were nabbed as they jumped from the roof of the building after police were alerted to the break-in. Police reported one boy was treated at a local hospital for a fractured ankle and the youths were turned over to state juvenile authorities after being charged with burglary and grand larceny. Officers found three bags containing tennis shoes, shirts, pants and hats valued at $471 on the roof where the suspects allegedly had broken in through an skylight and lowered a ladder into the store. Sheriff's deputies today were looking for a brick-hurling burglar who smashed a glass door at LaFayette Radio Electronics, 1811 U.S. 17-92, Fern Park, and scooped up seven citizens band radios and an Am-FM radio, stereo unit, total value $892. Sanford police today reported burglars forced their way into the American Legion building at 3506 Orlando Drive and pried open a cigarette vending machine taking approximately $100. Police are also investigating the reported theft of a $200 electric typewriter from Seminole High School.

CRASH VICTIM DIES
Police reported a Sanford man injured in a Friday night auto collision on Airport Boulevard, west of U.S. 17-92, died Tuesday in an Orlando hospital. Denver Richard Cosgrave, 19, of 810 W. Second St., had remained in critical condition until his death. Kathy Sue Angle, 18, of Sanford, a passenger in Cosgrave's car is listed in good condition at Seminole Memorial Hospital, officers said. —BOB LLOYD

Costly Pizza Heist

A circuit court jury at Sanford has found an Orlando man guilty of the Feb. 2 armed robbery of the Pizza Inn, U.S. 17-92, Fern Park. Visiting Judge Charles Reiders, of Titusville, ordered Troy Lane Taylor, 23, held in jail during a pre-sentence investigation. Taylor could receive up to life in prison on the conviction. A waitress told the jury that Taylor was the man who robbed her at gunpoint of approximately $115 and another restaurant employee identified him as the man seen leaving the robbery scene. Taylor, however, told the jury he was with another Orlando man taking his sister-in-law to Sarasota via I-4 at the time of the alleged robbery. Trial was scheduled today before Judge Allan Dickey for Richard A. Riley, 35, of Midway, accused of sexual battery of a 14-year-old girl on Jan. 13, while she walked home from school in north Seminole. —BOB LLOYD.

Tucker Predicts Increase In Florida's Sales Tax

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — House Speaker Donald Tucker says taxes are probably going to be raised by lawmakers this year. And he says the sales tax is the levy most likely to go up. Tucker told reporters Tuesday that the levy probably would go up from four to five cents on the dollar — as recommended by Gov. Reubin Askew — in order to get about $330.3 million in new revenue. Tucker said Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter's far-reaching auto insurance proposals have a chance of passing, but he shied away from endorsing them. He also called the Public Service Commission a "three-ring circus" and said it surely would be expanded to five appointed members. Tucker's budget-writers are now drawing up a spending plan that avoids the massive tax hike that Askew has called for to pay for beefed up funding of some programs.

O'Malley Charges Stand

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge has refused to dismiss fraud and extortion charges against Thomas O'Malley although attorneys for the former state treasurer say their client is not strong enough to stand trial. The motion for dismissal came at the end of a four-hour hearing for a continuance in O'Malley's case. Witnesses including the defendant's wife, Mary, and several doctors testified about O'Malley's health. O'Malley's attorneys have sought the delay because they say he cannot stand the physical and emotional strain of the trial, which was scheduled to begin Monday. U.S. District Judge Charles J. Fulton said he would rule on the continuance later this week.

Tax Dispute

In the draft legislation, "an extremely bad situation for us to enter into." Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski said it was "a good example of what not to do." The draft legislation was presented to the state legislative delegation before it was reviewed by the county commissioners, the Lake Mary City Council and the Sanford City Commission. The two cities have approved the legislation as written. The interim committee this afternoon will attempt to agree on the final provisions of the legislation, which would be redrafted and submitted to the state delegation by April 15. John Morris, a Sanford city commissioner who is chairman of the interim committee, said the county's objections were "not expected. We'll just have to work it out this afternoon." Morris added, "Nobody wants another taxing authority. That's why we limited it to five years." The proposed district would not have the independent power to tax, Morris said, because a referendum would be necessary to approve the one-mill levy. "It's unfortunate the situation has been misrepresented," he said. Sanford City Manager W. E. Knowles, an interim committee member, said of the county's objection, "They've never made these statements in front of the committee. We always get it through the news media." Knowles said if the disagreement could not be resolved at this afternoon's meeting, Lake Mary and Sanford could "go it alone" on a regional sewer authority. "I haven't discussed this with the legislative delegation," Knowles said. "I'm just a member of the committee."

S.W.A.T. Teams Standing By

marked $22,000 of federal revenue-sharing funds for S.W.A.T. equipment. Polk hopes to have the special teams properly equipped within a short time. If the one-time outlay of money can be instrumental in "saving one life or serious injury, then in my opinion," Polk says, "it's worth it." The sheriff's S.W.A.T. team will be available to assist law enforcement agencies anywhere in the county. For the last year team members have paid for basic equipment like uniforms out of their own pockets. "Every man has spent at least $150 of his own money," said Higley. The proper equipping of the S.W.A.T. unit will include purchase and outfitting of a van-type vehicle as a communications center-command post that will be kept ready to speed to a potentially dangerous situation with everything from ropes and rappelling gear for scaling buildings to automatic rifles, flak vests and other protective gear. One important feature will be portable radios that will enable S.W.A.T. members to communicate without clogging regular sheriff's radio channels. S.W.A.T. team members don't get any extra pay. They're carefully screened department volunteers who are called in to engage emergency situations involving hostages, or other situations requiring direct and quick action. They are trained to work as a team and to react in harmony without disorder or high profile on-scene preparations. "I definitely think S.W.A.T. is one of the best deterrents to stopping hostage situations in the county," Polk continues. "People will know we have the team and are equipped." A hostage situation in its first 20 minutes is the most critical, according to S.W.A.T. team leaders. The whole idea is to reach and control the scene quickly with discipline and to "calm it down." Negotiations with the hostage takers is a carefully handled, and sometimes long term, situation. "If we don't prepare for potential situations and they come, then citizens will want to know 'Why didn't you prepare?'" says sheriff's spokesman John Spolski. "We have to try to anticipate the unpredictable. We could face the same situations here as there have been in New York, Los Angeles and other cities recently. And we need to be able to respond the best way we can." In Seminole last year, officers say, there was a 16-year-old boy who committed suicide. He was known to have carried an M-16 rifle in his car and had bragged "how he'd like to spray some people," according to officers. In the central Florida area there are magazines that contain a frightening amount of information that can be used by terrorists and hostage takers. One officer showed a magazine that had been purchased in this county that has advertisements offering automatic weapons, books on how to make homemade bombs and incendiary devices, and a wide assortment of military equipment and knives. When situations develop, depending on the type incident, one department may not be able to handle them and this is where S.W.A.T. teams can step in to control the situations without disrupting normal law enforcement and pulling all available patrol officers to the location, according to Spolski. Altamonte Springs Police Chief Justus East says his department's S.W.A.T. team of nine hand-picked officers has been in training for 18 months. "I think the citizens realize the need for S.W.A.T. teams," East says, and notes that citizen reaction has been good for its department's efforts. South Seminole Jaycees are working to raise money for the one remaining item needed — a command van to transport the S.W.A.T. team. The van will serve as a highly mobile command post with its own electrical supply and communications equipment. "I'll take whatever measures are necessary to protect citizens of Altamonte Springs to the point where they're safe," East said.

Lk. Mary Plan Okayed

The Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Board Tuesday night approved a comprehensive plan for the city and ordered the plan forwarded to the city council for appropriate action. At the public hearing on the plan, required to be completed by Oct. 1, this year, only half a dozen citizens turned out to listen to the board's consideration. City officials present for the hearing were Councilman DeLoree Leas and Mayor Walter Sorocum.

Salfi Ruling Backs Teachers

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the Seminole County School Board violated its contract with the Seminole Education Association when it refused to grant arbitration on a grievance filed by an Oviedo High School teacher. The court decision clears the way for Mrs. Carol Edwards, a former teacher of French and Spanish at Oviedo and the chairman of the language arts department, to go before an arbitrator with her grievance, which charges she was fired to make room for an athletics coach. The SEA stated that it shares Mrs. Edwards' concern on educational priorities. "While both academic and extracurricular activities are important aspects of student development," the association said, "one cannot condone extracurricular activities superseding the importance of a strong academic education."

Terrorist Menace Mounting In U.S.

There was such relief at the safe release of 134 hostages held by Moslem terrorists in Washington, D.C., that the ramifications of this bizarre incident may be slow to emerge. We have seen a dozen gunmen create a condition of "siege" in the very heart of the nation's capital and sustain it for 39 hours. And we have seen it end with an extraordinary grant of temporary freedom to the ringleader. The country owes special gratitude to the ambassadors of Iran, Pakistan and Egypt for their willingness to inject themselves into the effort to dissuade Hamas Abdul Khaalis from some of his farfetched demands. They went well beyond their responsibilities as foreign diplomats to help solve an agonizing problem for Washington police. The terrorists managed to gain the suspension of showing of a controversial movie about the prophet Mohammed, but failed in the more serious demand to have prisoners convicted of the 1973 murder of members of Khaalis' family brought before them.

Granting Khaalis and some of his cohorts freedom without bail, is an awesome risk and a questionable compromise with principle. We have to assume that the risk to 134 lives in letting the siege continue outweighed those considerations in the minds of Washington authorities. The trust they have placed in the good faith of a man capable of doing what Khaalis had done is, to say the least, remarkable.

Official Washington has now tasted, in an agonizing and intimate way what is probably the greatest threat, short of war to the peace and safety of people throughout the world. It is the seizing of innocent hostages to satisfy real or imagined grievances and pressure governments to do what they don't want to do. Crimes of this kind are increasing.

Whether they involve passengers in an airliner, children aboard a school bus, athletes in an Olympic village or people in a Washington office building, and regardless of whether the issue is politics, religion or a purely personal grievance, the problem they present is the same.

To declare that better "security" is needed is no answer at all. Literally every street corner is the potential target of a terrorist who is desperate or demoted enough to plan such a crime. Our protection must arise from a foregone certainty that taking hostages will accomplish nothing but bring universal moral condemnation and swift, appropriate punishment.

We do not know what course justice will take in the Washington incident, but we cannot be satisfied with the course it has taken so far. The bargain struck to gain the release of the hostages may have been the best the negotiators could see at the time, but it only underscores negotiating with any terrorist holding hostages.

Indeed, the temporary freedom granted Khaalis and some of his followers may have the effect of leaving society even weaker in the face of the menace of terrorism. It demonstrates what considerations a terrorist can still expect when circumstances and persuasive talk have convinced him that the game is up.

Concorde Pressure

Whether or not the British-French supersonic Concorde can use Kennedy Airport in New York City without violating existing noise standards is a matter to be determined. But there is no doubt that the orchestrated French uproar calculated to make the U.S. approve the New York landings is at the upper decade level on the political scale.

President Carter has been lobbied on the subject by French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and Ambassador Jacques Kościuszko - Morizet, who have told him that a grave political crisis will be precipitated if the Concorde cannot use Kennedy Airport. Delegations have marched on the U.S. embassy in Paris with hundreds of thousands of signatures and the French media is hating of French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and economic reprisals if New York makes the wrong decision. And the symbolism of British Prime Minister James Callaghan coming to the United States in a Concorde for his talks with President Carter is, considering the small rewards that could possibly flow to France and England if they can tap the New York air travel market. On the basis of existing evidence, the Concorde is not economically viable and New York landings would only postpone the inevitable.

One time, after a social hour with notorious mobsters on the California coast, he hitched a ride back to Washington with then-President Richard Nixon in Air Force One. More recently, Fitzsimmons has been seen on the golf course with House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

Unabashed, Fitzsimmons has always thumbed his nose at his detractors. His voice is squeaky, but his criticism is "go to hell." Once he told his critics bluntly to "go to hell."

Last year, nine bold citizens dared to protest his reelection as Teamsters president at the union's Las Vegas convention. Fitzsimmons promptly dumped them unceremoniously outside on the sidewalk. Benignly observing the incident from the dais was then-Labor Secretary William Urey who had only praise for his boss.

But Fitzsimmons' fortunes have now changed. Since the Democrats came to power, he has become the object of the special attentions of the Labor Department, Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service.

Squirreling from the heat, the uncomfortable Teamsters boss has put out the word that he would like to resign. His desperate hope, according to our sources, is that the feds would leave him alone if he made a discreet exit.

Legalized Gambling Hard Game

A decade or so ago, legal wagering in states other than Nevada was confined almost exclusively to racetrack betting. At the end of last year, 44 states had some other form of legalized gambling and legislation to permit new types of betting games was pending in 37 states. Thirteen states now operate lotteries.

The rationale behind the growth of legalized gambling seems to be: People will gamble, whether it's legal or not, so why shouldn't society cash in on it and perhaps at the same time undercut one of the foundations of the criminal underworld?

There is no doubt about the popularity of gambling. The recently published final report of a federal Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling states that 61 per cent of adult Americans — about 88 million persons — participate in some form of gambling in a year.

Total volume of legal betting is about $13 billion a year and that of illegal betting is estimated to range from $10 billion to as much as $13 billion.

But society is playing a very dangerous game when it legalizes gambling, warns Bernard Kaepke in an article in the Journal of Legal Insurance, a publication of the Insurance Information Institute.

The two goals of producing revenue for the state and curbing criminal activities are mutually incompatible, he says, because taking a tax bite out of gambling proceeds inevitably drives gamblers to the illegal gambling market for its higher payout. The end result is an increase in all types of gambling, legal and illegal.

Not only do legalized or government-sponsored games of chance recruit multitudes of new gamblers, he says, but a percentage of these recruits are likely to become compulsive gamblers. And among them are many whose gambling ultimately will lead to crime to get money for betting or to pay off bookmakers and loan sharks.

"The addiction known as compulsive gambling," Kaepke asserts, "provides one explanation of the mystery of what makes many an apparently respectable, often successful or highly placed individual turn to such crimes as embezzlement, forgery or fraud."

Fitzsimmons Hooked Twice

WASHINGTON — Frank Fitzsimmons is accustomed to the mob life. He has always manicured, soaped, pressed and pomaded. His $350 suits are of conservative color and cut. He files in a private jet between his fashionable homes in the Washington suburbs and the California coast.

He draws down $136,000 a year from the Teamsters Union, with two unlimited expense accounts to take care of the incidentals. He consorts with the crown princes of the underworld, the shadowy figures who live off protected crime. Yet he has equal access to the nation's most prominent politicians.

One time, after a social hour with notorious mobsters on the California coast, he hitched a ride back to Washington with then-President Richard Nixon in Air Force One. More recently, Fitzsimmons has been seen on the golf course with House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

Unabashed, Fitzsimmons has always thumbed his nose at his detractors. His voice is squeaky, but his criticism is "go to hell." Once he told his critics bluntly to "go to hell."

Last year, nine bold citizens dared to protest his reelection as Teamsters president at the union's Las Vegas convention. Fitzsimmons promptly dumped them unceremoniously outside on the sidewalk. But Fitzsimmons' fortunes have now changed. Since the Democrats came to power, he has become the object of the special attentions of the Labor Department, Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service.

Squirreling from the heat, the uncomfortable Teamsters boss has put out the word that he would like to resign. His desperate hope, according to our sources, is that the feds would leave him alone if he made a discreet exit.

Homer and Jethro, a sunny country and western duo, recorded a song called, "I'm My Own Grandpa," some years ago. By virtue of a series of improbable marriages, divorces and adoptions, the entertainers claimed to have achieved the geological impossibility of self-grandfatherhood.

If a recommendation adopted last Monday night by the Seminole County Port Authority Board of Directors is pursued at the federal level, the ensuing situation would be reminiscent of the old song. The tale involves two presidents, two federal agencies, a recent vote by the Florida Cabinet and Monday night's vote by the SCOFA board.

Our story begins on Feb. 1, 1971, the day Seminole County's port officially opened. The port was built on the assumption that it would be a vital link in Florida's water transportation system, whose covering level was to have been the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

The canal had been authorized by Congress, which had appropriated funds for the project.

President Lyndon B. Johnson had joyously signed the legislation.

But on Feb. 1, 1971 — the day the port opened — officials were shocked to learn that President Richard M. Nixon had signed an order which, in effect, killed the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

Subsequent attempts to revive the project failed, by the Seminole County Port Authority Board and the Port of Development, factory and warehouse space to companies not primarily concerned with the marine travel possibilities dashed by the decision to kill the canal.

The first phase of port construction cost $1,750,000. A Federal Economic Development Administration grant supplied $823,000, with the rest to be provided by a SCOFA bond issue of $927,000. The bonds would be backed by $60,000 a year from the state race track trust fund.

We now return to the present. The Florida cabinet recently withdrew its support from the canal project and voted that all persons or governments who invested in the canal or canal-related projects should be reimbursed by the federal government. Seminole County's port is such a project.

The SCOFA board voted Monday night to support the state cabinet's action. Several bills on the subject will be considered this year by the state legislature.

Federal legislation would probably be required for the state cabinet's proposal to become a reality. In that case, Congress would appropriate money to pay the bondholders who invested in construction of the Sanford port.

And who bought those bonds? None other than the Department of Housing and Urban Development, a federal agency.

In effect, Uncle Sam would take money out of one pocket — and stuff it into another.

All of which explains why reporters can sometimes be spotted buying at the full moon. And humming the haunting strains of "I'm My Own Grandpa."

Job Corps History One Of Waste

WASHINGTON — If ever there was an example of throwing good money after bad, it's President Carter's decision to double the Federal Job Corps budget to $946 million. In fact, the very day before Carter sent this proposal to Capitol Hill, as a part of his overall package to deal with the youth unemployment problem, Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall announced an experimental six-month program to deal with what he called the Job Corps "inordinately high early drop-out rate."

Even defenders of President Johnson's Great Society programs — such as Robert Taggart, executive director of the National Manpower Labor Force, and Sam Levin, professor of economics at George Washington University — are critical of the Job Corps.

Writing in their new book, "The Promise of Greatness," these two gentlemen observe that there is "little convincing evidence that the Job Corps worked according to the standards applied to other manpower programs — that the current dollar value of participant gains exceeded program costs by a significant margin."

Noting that during its first decade the annual cost per man for a Job Corps graduate was about $9,000, Taggart and Levin say that the payoff of this program "is still uncertain." While there are some indications of improved performance over the 1970's, they observe, "there is no dependable proof that benefits significantly exceed costs."

Indeed, what "proof" exists as regards the efficacy of the Job Corps program since its first center opened in January of 1965 is of Congress, evaluated the Job Corps program at 18 centers across the country. Typical of the comments were the following:

— The center in Drums, Pa., was found to have no adequate means of measuring its effectiveness, uniform objective standards for training were not established, the dropout rate was high, there were numerous errors in academic progress reports, and career counseling was inadequate.

— In Mesquite, N.M., the Job Corps center's projects had limited utility toward providing skills for marketable trades, and there was a general lack of emphasis on academic training, reducing the opportunity of trainees to achieve their potential.

In March of 1969, the GAO reviewed all Office of Economic Opportunity programs, and said of the Job Corps specifically: "The Job Corps employment experience is disappointing. In light of its costly training, we doubt that resources now being applied to this program can be fully justified."

In July of 1975, the Dept. of the Interior's Office of Audits and Investigations evaluated nine of the 10 Job Corps centers that the Interior Dept. operates. Astonished to discover that none of these centers had any method of evaluating their performance, investigators set up their own system. This report, as yet unpublished, reveals that during the 2,032 Job Corps trainees at that time, the average vocational training skill rating was 74.9 out of a possible perfect score of 100.0.

Interior Dept. officials, who asked not to be identified, told me the Job Corps program is "a loser, a revolving door" that wastes the taxpayer's money.

Finally, in a report issued this month, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office says that the plan of doubling the Job Corps budget that "there doesn't seem to be an annual earnings gain (among graduates) sufficiently greater than those associated with other training programs, to offset the higher cost of the Job Corps program."

Oh, I almost forgot. Phil Mason, an information specialist in the Labor Dept.'s Employment and Training Administration, tells me that he agrees that "in a broad sense it's true" that another problem with the Job Corps program is that it is training young people for many jobs that simply do not exist now.

Footnote: Incidentally, during the past 10 years since Lou Harris' poll evaluating the effectiveness of the Job Corps, there has been no new evaluation.

Although there is a general idea as to the placement rate of Job Corps graduates, there is no known data showing how long these jobs are held. Only late last year did the Ford administration let a contract to learn this information. A source in the Office of Management and Budget says initial results will not be known until next year.

Grimsley's Sports World

Carry On Or Leave Stage?

NEW YORK (AP) — Say it ain't so, Joe. Hang 'em up, Ali.

C'mon, Arthur, grab that brief case instead of a racket.

Three of America's most imposing sports figures of the last decade — Jets' quarterback Joe Namath, heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and tennis star Arthur Ashe — have reached the fork in their remarkable careers and must make a decision: carry on or leave the stage in dignity.

All apparently have chosen the ego trip. More's the pity. Namath, 33, with knees held together by safety pins and adhesive tape, is flirting with a last hurrah as a member of the Los Angeles Rams. If he goes West — and every indication is he will — then he will go with helmet in hand, at a reduced salary and in the role of a football "designated plucker."

The 35-year-old Ali, his old fighting skills tarnished, his speed slowed but his mind and mouth keen as ever, has committed himself to take on some obscure Italian punching bag named Lorenzo "Rocky" Zanon in Korea next month.

Ashe, 33, the black policeman's son who fought the battles of racial injustice while winning highest honors on the court, has undergone an operation for a heel injury that hobbled him for years and has ended his long backcourt career.

Now he plans to resume big time tournament tennis. It is a laudable gesture but, in our mind, a foolish one. He should make periodic appearances in the big ones — Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and even the Davis Cup — and turn his talents in another direction, perhaps as an aide to United Nations ambassador Andrew Young, his good friend.

There is something tragic about a great sports hero striving to keep alive fading glories. It is depressing to see a once mighty champion reduced to a battered, humiliated victim because he failed to heed the red signal which said, "Stop."

This was particularly true in the case of Joe Louis, the revered Brown Bomber, one of the greatest fighting machines who ever lived. He was beaten by Ezzard Charles after emerging from retirement in 1950 and then crushed in eight brutal rounds by a young Rocky Marciano in 1951.

"I didn't want to fight," Louis was to say later. "I needed the money."

Marciano went on to win the title in September, 1952, run up a record of 49 victories without defeat and retire, virtually unmarked, in April, 1956, at age 32. He died in a plane accident three years later.

Marciano, nevertheless, as did Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and others, left his admirers an unforgettable legacy.

"I don't take my ball players aside," McGuire said. "I want to talk to Bernard last week. I made an exception."

Toone, a sophomore averaging only 4.3 points a game despite immense potential, and McGuire had their private discussion before the Marquette-Wake Forest game last Saturday. Toone responded with 18 points, 16 in the second half, as the Warriors won 82-68 for the NCAA Midwest Regional title.

McGuire and Toone have quarreled almost constantly since Marquette was a major recruiting battle and signed the 6-foot-9 Yonkers, N.Y., high school star two years ago. Toone believes he should be starting, but McGuire maintains Toone first must improve his defense. Toone plays without Bill Neary, who has no shot but plays defense, rebounds and sets picks well.

"No one man should have to shoulder that much responsibility or have that much power," said George Steinbrener, principal owner of the New York Yankees. "My point is that this is just too much responsibility for one man to carry on his back. It's unfair to him."

"Also, the license to take any action he deems 'in the best interest of baseball' is much too broad to be in one man's hands."

Talk of diluting Kuhn's power is not on the owners' agenda. But Finley's situation, termed "franchise relocation" on the agenda, is expected to be part of the talks.

One report has club owners from the American and National leagues teaming to purchase the franchise. If Finley sells, then the franchise would be shifted to Washington, D.C., as a National League team for the 1978 season.

That would give baseball a pair of 13-team leagues — the second item on the owners' meeting agenda. Presently, the American League has 14 teams and the National League has 12.

According to the report, Finley was cautious about the proposal, indicating he would prefer to stay in baseball, but that he would listen to offers. Later, he said he wouldn't go along with the plan, which reportedly was proposed to him on March 10 by AL President Lee MacPhail.

"It's true I've spoken with Finley from time to time about the critical fact that Mr. Finley was trying to sell his club to baseball several years ago and has been continuing this effort ever since, including the means of bringing a franchise to Washington, a move he has favored for some time."

The other matters on Thursday's agenda, under the heading of "Scheduling," are: limited interleague play, three divisions within each league and schedules for the league championships and World Series.

Wiggins Pitches, SHS Past DeLand

Bobby Lundquist and his Seminole High baseball team have won nine games this season, but the first eight weren't nearly as satisfying as No. 9, which came Tuesday night at the expense of arch-rival DeLand, 7-1.

David Wiggins went the distance, pitching a six-hitter and Terry Smith came up with the big hits, driving in four runs.

"If I play, I know I can hit," Page said after driving in one run with a triple and scoring the winning run as Oakland edged the San Diego Padres 3-2 in an exhibition game Tuesday.

Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade last week, Page has 11 hits in 18 at-bats this spring. Five of his hits have been for extra bases.

In the fifth inning, with the score tied 2-2, Page walked, moved to third on Jerry Tab's single and scored on a ground-out.

In other exhibition games Tuesday, the Montreal Expos defeated the Minnesota Twins 12-8, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0, the Detroit Tigers stopped the Boston Red Sox 6-2, the Milwaukee Brewers crushed the Cleveland Indians 13-4, the Baltimore Orioles trounced the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Cincinnati Reds 10-2, the Seattle Mariners downed the California Angels 10-5, the Houston Astros nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5, the New York Mets defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4, the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Yankees 7-5, the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-5 and the Texas Rangers topped the Kansas City Royals 6-5.

Veteran Steve Carlton and rookie Randy Lerch combined to pitch a five-hitter as Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh. Carlton gave up two hits in five innings, while Lerch struck out six in four innings.

A one-out double by Sandy Alomar in the fifth inning snapped a 5-1 tie and led Texas to its victory over Kansas City. Bliff Pocerba slammed a pinch-hit single in the seventh and scored the winning run on Barry Bonell's double in the eighth.

John Montefusco hurled four hitless innings and scored San Francisco's first run after walking to lead off the Giants' three-run third. A triple by John Miller in the fifth drove in Lee Mazzilli with the tie-breaking run and leading the Mets to their first victory in three games against the American League expansion Blue Jays.

Jose Cruz drove in four runs with a homer and a triple, leading Houston over Los Angeles. Rookie Juan Bernardi homered and tripled twice as Seattle pounded 15 hits in three innings and led the Mariners to a four-game losing streak. A three-run homer by Roger Pritchard and John Denny's one-out pitching over the first five innings led the Reds to victory over the defending world champion Reds.

Lee May pounced out a pair of homers, driving in five runs and pacing Baltimore's victory over the White Sox. Sixty-two-year-old Steve Cadey of the Orioles burst Milwaukee attack that buried Cleveland. Tom Verzer followed with a tie-breaking three-run homer with the same pitcher as Detroit exploded for six runs in the fourth inning.

By The Associated Press Mitchell Page is a realist. He knows that the speedy .610 batting average he now has will not last a whole season.

How Credible Can The State Ethics Commission Be?

TALLHASSEE (AP) — Senate President Law Brantley's request for a hearing on questions about his business interests poses the greatest challenge so far to the credibility of the state ethics commission.

The panel will meet March 21 to decide whether Brantley, D-Jacksonville, violated the code of ethics by promoting legislation requiring Public Service Commission regulation of firms that provide transportation for the handicapped. Brantley owns such a business in Jacksonville.

He said that reports by Jacksonville television WTV on the bill and the business accused him of violating the code. Brantley denied accusing WTV of anything, saying they just reported the facts.

That's a remote question in this case. However, Brantley's power and prestige raise much more serious questions in the immediate case.

What happens when the commission finds probable cause of a violation by a state senator? Its recommendation for disciplinary action goes to the Senate president.

In other words, should the commission find probable cause of a violation by Brantley it would be in the ludicrous position of asking him to punish himself.

The Senate president would refer such a recommendation to the Rules Committee — which he has hauled to carry out his marching orders.

There simply is no way under the current Ethics Commission procedures to assure the public of impartial treatment of the complaints involving the governor, Senate president or House speaker.

Ethics commissioners have compounded the problems built into an awkward system by engaging in politics to an extent that should be questioned.

For example, Chairman Don Reed says he may excuse himself from the Brantley case because he is a registered lobbyist. Reed is lobbying for beer interests. The legislature will consider Gov. Reubin Askew's call for sharp increases in beer, wine and liquor taxes.

It is not in lobbyist Reed's financial interest to antagonize the mighty president of the Senate.

Commission Vice Chairman John Grant says he is close to Brantley and has asked the Senate leader to appoint him to the Constitutional Revision Commission. He says he could be impartial.

But how much confidence can the public have in an ethics commissioner hearing the case of a powerful official whom he has asked for prestigious favors?

Analysis

Officials denied accusing Brantley of anything, saying they just reported the facts. Brantley requested and received a hearing under the so-called "Doyle Corner Memorial Act," a 1976 law that allows public officials a forum to respond to questions concerning their conduct.

Commission director Larry Gonzalez said the law is a good one that allows officials to shed the clouds of suspicion raised by allegations about them.

But such hearings also raise as many questions as they answer. Anything short of a commission finding that Brantley violated the law will raise questions about the thoroughness and independence of the commission's investigation — no matter how unjust.

"There usually are whispers of 'whitewash' when the commission clears an official who

Seminar To Focus On Spouse Abuse

The first area seminar open to the public on the problems of "Spouse Abuse: The Violent Home" will be held Saturday in Orlando. The one day session is free, and will offer information on the facts of spouse abuse in the central Florida area, what the law can and cannot do in violent home situations, and where people can go for help when they are physically abused.

Panelists for the session who will make presentations and answer questions include: Orange County Judge James Stroker, State Representative Dick Butcher, Assistant State Attorney Frank Bankowitz and representatives from the Mid-Florida Center for Alcoholism, the Orlando Police Department, the Behavioral Science Department at Rollins College, Orange Memorial Hospital, We Care, Spouse Abuse Incorporated, and other community agencies dealing with this problem.

The session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and conclude at 2 p.m. The public is invited to attend all or part of the program. Persons may bring their lunch or purchase a lunch for $2 at the door. It will be held in the Friendship Room, Fifth Floor of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association Building, 145 South Magnolia St. (intersection of Magnolia and Church streets) Downtown Orlando.

The seminar is sponsored by the Central Florida Commission on the Status of Women in cooperation with the Council for Continuing Education for Women at Valencia Community College and the 21st Century Women's Project at Seminole Community College.

Chamber Sponsors 'Lil Abner' Show

To show appreciation for the talented and hardworking Seminole High School students, and to encourage the local residents to come out and see for themselves the kind of live entertainment that they can put together, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has set April 28 as Community Night at SIS by sponsoring one performance of the play, "Lil Abner."

The Chamber hopes to sell 425 tickets for the benefit performance of the enjoyable Broadway musical based on Al Cap's popular comic strip. Tickets will be available from the Chamber office. Proceeds will go to pay royalties and to the concert choir.

If your club needs an entertaining program, contact SIS drama teacher to arrange for a show preview. Members of the cast will present selections from the production — Jane Casselberry.

Area Engagement

Barkley Sr., Central City, Neb. Miss Famm is a 1975 graduate of Seminole High School where she was active in CHE and Chivettes. She is employed by A. Duda and Sons, Inc. She was born in Omaha, Neb.

The fiance, born in Winter Park, is employed by Panzer, Inc., Winter Park.

The wedding will be an event of May 6 at Carriage Cove Club.

Fechtler Gets Girl Friday

Randi Russell, Lake Howell High School Senior, will be Vince Fechtler's Girl Friday during the week of April 10.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Russell, Winter Park, Randi is looking forward to running errands, attending meetings, filing and typing in Fechtler's office.

She is a member of the South Chonole-Maitland Chamber of Commerce. Randi is interested in politics and may minor in political science. "I'd enjoy acting as an interpreter at the U.N.," she said.

Anniversary At Deborah Court

The Heroines of Jericho, Deborah Court 22 invites the community to their anniversary, Sunday, at 2:30 p.m. at New Mt. Calvary MB Church, 115 W. 12th St., Rev. G.L. Sims is pastor; Ms. Julia Davis, most ancient matron.

Speaker for the occasion will be Thomas Wilson III, Sanford Housing Authority executive director. Theme for the occasion is: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity" (Psalm 133:1).

Pre-School Sets Registration

Registration for the 1977-78 school year will open April 1 at the Pre-School Center, First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. The school is open to all children in the community, not only members of the Presbyterian church.

Classes are offered to three, four and kindergarten age children. The three-year-olds attend Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 a.m.-noon.

Five certified teachers give pupils experience in art, music, language and social development.

To register, call the church at 323-2682.

Singers Present Easter Village

Meet Mr. Rabbit, Seminole County's Women of the Year and shop for the holidays with the Seminole Singers.

The group of 18 sweet-voiced women are directed by Ms. Aida Howe, and during the past months have performed for a number of clubs and organizations in Seminole and Orange Counties.

But now a far greater adventure lies ahead.

The Singers were recently honored with an invitation by the Performing Arts Abroad, of Michigan, to tour four European countries this summer, including Belgium, Holland, Germany and Luxembourg.

To help raise the money need for the 15-day singing tour, the group is sponsoring an Easter Basket Village, at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center, Friday, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Easter related arts and crafts will be on sale, with lunch and dinner available. Photographs of youngsters with the Easter Bunny will be taken. There will be three fashion shows, with fashions from Harriett's, Seminole Plaza, Polly Plunders, Casselberry Plaza; and Fantastic Fashions, Fern Park.

Highlighting the event will be the awards presented to the 10 most outstanding women in Seminole County.

There will be donations of one dollar for adults, to benefit the Seminole Singers, with children 12 years or younger, free. More information may be obtained from Pat Terebo or Aida Rowe. — Elda Nichols.

New Projects Sustain Senior Citizen

By ELDA NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

Mollie Steudle, Casselberry, is not about to sit back and take it easy, even though she is a senior citizen.

From receiving the key to the city, of Union, N.J., and a leading-up to the newly-organized Happy Senior Citizen group, Mollie is always willing to take on new projects. As president of the Casselberry American Legion Auxiliary, Mollie enjoys preparing new and original dishes when they have a get-together.

On St. Patrick's Day, she had a group of friends over for a hearty meal of corned beef and cabbage. "I love to have guests come and eat," she said. "What's the sense of cooking a roast or leg of lamb just for two? That's just too much food for only the two of us. So I just call some of my friends and they come over and help us eat."

Young girls starting to cook could take a few tips from Mollie's vast store of cooking knowledge. "You can really eat cheaper at home. You also know what you are getting. They'll never get rich on me if I feed them to eat out!"

Laughing, she continued, "Know your butcher! You don't need the most expensive cut of meat, but get a good cut. It goes further."

Mollie began cooking when she was very young, after her mother died. "Later, my brother-in-law was in catering, and I used to help him." She makes up her own recipes and believes in plain, ordinary cooking. "No gourmet things for me!" she exclaimed.

SWISS STEAK
(For four people)
6 nice slices of brisket
1 can Arturo sauce
1 can water
Place meat in skillet with small amount of oil. Brown after you season meat with garlic salt, paprika and onion salt. Add sauce and can of water. Cook slowly about 1 hour. Then cut up 2 or 3 potatoes and add to meat, cooking for at least 1/2 hour more, until potatoes are soft. Thicken gravy and use any vegetable as side dish.

ROLLED STUFFED CABBAGE
Makes 4 servings
1 head of medium cabbage
1 lb. ground chuck beef
1/2 cup cooked rice, strained
1 egg
small onion, cut up
Dash sour salt, pepper, onion salt and garlic salt
1 cup cracker meal or Matzo meal
Brown onion and garlic salt in small amount of margarine. Mix rest of ingredients, except cabbage. Parboil cabbage for a few minutes to soften. Drain and run cold water over same. Cut core from back leaves. Place 2 or more tablespoons of mixture on leaves. Start rolling from bottom up, turn sides in so meat will be secured. Keep rolling until all the leaves are up. No toothpicks needed. Place rolls in pot (2 qt. size). Add 1 small can tomatoes and 1 can water. I can tomato paste. If more water needed, it may be added. Season after it comes to a boil, with 2 tsp. sugar, 1/2 tsp. sour salt. Cook slowly one hour or more.

POPK CHOP DINNER
4 servings
1/2 cup rice-unoaked
one-third cup sliced cooked mushrooms
2 tbs. butter or margarine
1 can onion soup
1/2 can water
Cook rice for 10-15 minutes. Lightly brown rice and mushrooms in butter or margarine. Stir in onion soup and water, cook covered, over low heat for 25 min. Season pork chops with salt and pepper, fry or broil until done. Serve rice supreme in center of large platter, surrounded with the cooked pork chops.

RSVP Welcomes Wright As New Director

Ms. Brenda Wright, newly appointed director of the Seminole County RSVP involved in the program. Volunteers are now working in schools and at Seminole Community College. They may find the information booth in the office.

County for five years with her husband and two children. She smilingly invited new recruits by saying, "All senior citizens are invited to become involved. Even though we have 250 already enrolled, we welcome each and every one." The RSVP office is located on the Longwood Elementary School campus, on Orange Avenue, Longwood. — Elda Nichols.

We Care To Train Volunteers

We Care-Teen Hotline will begin a new training session for volunteers on April 11, from 7:30 p.m. and will meet for the following six weeks each Monday and Wednesday evening.

Training sessions will be held at the Broadway United Methodist Church, corner of Broadway and Amelia, Orlando. Sessions are open to all who are interested in working as volunteer telephone counselors or in a number of other jobs at We Care in either Altamonte Springs or Orlando.

Topics covered in the sessions include: communication techniques; family and marriage problems; mental health resources; understanding sexual problems; understanding children and spouses; understanding grief and loss; suicide and depression and crisis procedures.

Homemade Has Charm Frost Cake Like A Pro

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Can you give me some tips on frosting a homemade layer cake? My cake plate is usually smudged, even after I wipe the rim. The layers often slide and the cake looks like the leaning tower of Pisa. — WILLING BAKER.
DEAR WILLING BAKER: A cake that looks homemade has a certain charm. You may be doing better than you think. But here are answers to your questions.
About keeping a cake plate slick-and-span. I never frost a cake before I have prepared the plate I am going to put it on. To do this tear off 3 or 4 strips of wax paper, each a few inches wide; place these so they cover the top surface of the plate. With a pastry brush remove any crumbs from the sides of the cake layers after they have cooled and are still on the rack; frost with the next layer added, insert toothpicks or cake-testers through the top on two opposite sides to act as anchors; let set. Now frost the sides of the cake, then remove the anchors and frost the top. — C.B.

After the first layer has been frosted, let set. Pull out the rack, insert toothpicks or cake-testers through the top on two opposite sides to act as anchors; let set. Now frost the sides of the cake, then remove the anchors and frost the top. — C.B.
Remove all but 2 tablespoons of drippings from the skillet; add onion, celery and tomato to skillet and cook gently until there is no excess moisture; off heat stir in bacon, rice, cheese and salt and pepper. Place peppers in a shallow pan and mix rice mixture into them; cover pan tightly with foil. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

2/3 cup granulated sugar
2/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
2 1/2 ripe medium bananas, mashed
6 ounce package semisweet chocolate pieces
Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream the butter, sugars and vanilla; beat in egg and bananas, then the flour mixture just until blended; stir in chocolate. Turn into a greased and lightly floured 13 by 9 by 3-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 30 to 40 minutes. Cool in the pan on a rack. Cut in bars. Adapted from "The California Heritage Cookbook" by the Junior League of Pasadena (Doubleday).

Pineapple's The Secret Macadamia Cake Has Easter Flavor

PINEAPPLE MACADAMIA CAKE

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Around spring and winter holiday times, I see mail-order advertisements for a delicious-looking Pineapple Macadamia Cake. I would love to take the cake this Easter but I can't find a recipe. Would you happen to have one? If so, I would appreciate it. I use many of your recipes and find them all very very good. — PEARLE.
DEAR PEARLE: Thanks so much for your kind words. Because I couldn't find any recipes for Pineapple Macadamia Cakes, I experimented and baked some. They were delicious but didn't duplicate the bought ones. So I asked my friend, Modane Marchbanks, who is a wiz at solving cookery problems, to help out. She did a marvelous job of copying and I am happy to present her recipe. — C.B.
MODANE'S PINEAPPLE MACADAMIA CAKES
5 cups (about) Home Candied Pineapple, see below
1 1/2 cups called macadamia nuts, coarsely chopped
1 cup flaked coconut, chopped
2 cups flour, fork stir well to aerate before measuring
1/4 cup butter or margarine, at room temperature
1 1/2 cups sugar
5 large eggs
2 tablespoons milk mixed with 1 teaspoon vanilla
Line 3 loaf pans (each 7 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches) with wax paper. Reserve 1 cup of the pineapple. Coat remaining pineapple, macadamias and coconut with 1/2 cup of the flour. Use Extra Fancy (1 1/2 size) in electric mixer at low speed; in the large bowl of the mixer cream the butter and sugar; add eggs 1 at a time, beating each 20 seconds before adding the next; beat in the remaining flour alternately with the milk mixture until blended. With a spoon stir in the pineapple-nut mixture. Divide evenly among prepared pans. Divide reserved pineapple and press lightly into top of batter. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours. Cool in pans on a rack for 15 minutes. Turn out of pans and cool completely; remove paper. Store in refrigerator. Makes 3 loaf cakes.
HOME CANDIED PINEAPPLE
Three 20-ounce cans pineapple chunks in heavy syrup, undrained
3 cups sugar
1 1/4 cups light corn syrup
1/2 cup unsalted butter or margarine
In a 5-quart saucepot heat the pineapple, sugar and corn syrup, stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil gently, stirring occasionally in the beginning and often as syrup thickens, for 50 minutes. Add butter and continue cooking until pineapple is lightly caramelized and syrup is very thick — about 10 minutes. Off heat, let pineapple stand in syrup for 30 minutes. With a slotted spoon drain well and place in a single layer on a rack over a shallow baking pan. Place in a 225-degree oven for 45 minutes. Cool several hours (or overnight) on rack. There will be about 5 loosely packed cups of candied pineapple. The amount of syrup will vary from 2 to 3 cups; refrigerator store as you see on canches or waffles. It's a good idea to prepare the pineapple one day and make the Pineapple Macadamia cakes the next.

MOROCCAN STEW

Moroccan Stew Good Enough For Company

DEAR CECILY: Can you recommend an interesting recipe for a stew, one that's good enough for company? — ENTERPRISING.
DEAR ENTERPRISING: Our company recently enjoyed a Moroccan stew, a combination of lamb and dried apricots. If you try the following recipe, be prepared for a minimum of sauce rather than the usual generous amount of gravy. The recipe comes from an excellent paperback, "Simply Stews" by Shirley Sarvis (NAL), that bears out its subtitle: "42 Ways to Cook Easy, Exotic, Elegant, Economical One-Dish Feasts."
In Morocco this kind of stew is called a "tajin." Harva Hachten in "Kitchen Safari" writes: "The tajin (the plural is tajajin) is basic to North African cookery. The word is actually the name of the covered earthenware dish the recipe is sometimes cooked in and usually serves. The dish is comparatively shallow and the top is cone-shaped and pierced with a hole near the top. This convenience keeps the food properly steamed, but permits some steam to escape through the hole so the meat won't get soggy; moist before it is eaten."
Some day when we visit Morocco, we're going to bring back a tajin to see the difference between it and the sort of utensil we use for stew in this country. When we do, we'll let you know how things work out. — C.B.
MOROCCAN TAJIN OF LAMB AND APRICOTS
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, very thinly sliced
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon powdered saffron, if desired
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon sticks
2 to 2 1/2 pounds lean boneless lamb, cut in 1 1/2-inch cubes
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 cup dried apricots
1 1/2 tablespoons honey
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
Pistachios, if desired
Lemon wedges, if desired
In a large heavy saucepot cover moderate heat, heat the butter and oil. Add onion, pepper, ginger, saffron (if used) and the cinnamon; cook, stirring often, for about 4 minutes; add a slotted spoon remove the onion to the saucepot and add the garlic. Cook tightly and simmer, stirring occasionally and without adding any liquid, until lamb is just about tender — 1 1/2 hours. Stir in apricots and simmer 1 about 20 minutes longer. With a slotted spoon remove lamb and apricots to a heated serving dish and keep warm. Add honey and lemon juice to saucepot and, stirring, heat; pour over the lamb and apricots; sprinkle with the pistachios and garnish with wedges, if desired. Makes 6 servings. Adapted from "Simply Stews" by Shirley Sarvis (NAL, paperback).

WORKER LEAVES CAB WHERE SAND PINNED TRUCK DRIVER WHO WAS TREATED AND RELEASED

9-Vehicle Crash In Fog Kills Woman On SR-46

A nine-vehicle accident on fog-shrouded SR-46 between I-4 and the Wekiva River west of Sanford this morning killed one driver and caused more than $100,000 in property damage.

The name of the victim was withheld pending notification of her next of kin.

She died in Seminole Memorial Hospital where she and a Ft. Lauderdale driver of one of the trucks were taken after the 7:30 a.m. smashup in a fog pocket on SR-46 at Lake Markham Road.

State Trooper P. C. Wright and other officers remained at the scene until about 11 a.m. trying to sort out the events.

SR-46 was closed to traffic for three hours as firemen and emergency workers freed two pinned drivers and the wreckage of three tractor-trailers, two pickup trucks and an auto, which was crushed.

Florida Highway Patrol troopers and sheriff's deputies assisted Seminole County and Sanford firemen using portable power tools to separate a smashed Cadillac sedan to free the woman driver, and also to free the trapped driver of a sand-hauling truck.

Occupants of two cars and two pickup trucks were reported uninjured. One auto wasn't damaged, and another containing six children on their way to school was only dented slightly in the side.

Witnesses at the scene gave the following account of the accident: An auto had just entered SR-46 from Lake Markham Road in the low visibility fog when a rock-hauling tractor-trailer collided with the oncoming Cadillac sedan. Two more eastbound tractor-trailers crashed trying to avoid the other collision and the two pickup trucks, one carrying a camper, collided almost head-on in the fog near the other two collisions.

The Cadillac collided with the rear of the rock-

County To Spell Out Double-Tax Stance

County Commission Chairman Dick Williams has called a special news conference for 10 a.m. Monday to announce the county's position on the controversial double taxation issue.

Williams said this morning he will define the county's position on the 28-year-old issue and will name the cities county government will deal with on a priority basis.

"We told the cities we're going to get with them on the issue, but we think the only way it can be handled is individually," the chairman declared.

Williams said the county is "ready for a real firm position" on the double taxation issue.

In essence, cities claim some services rendered by the county are exclusively beneficial to residents of unincorporated areas. Types of services listed by city officials include sidewalks built up to city limits, county traffic lights and many services provided by the sheriff's department.

Williams will announce at the conference — to be held at the courthouse in Sanford — which city or cities has the highest priority.

ACCORDIONIST IN TOWN

Myron Floren plays the accordion — some say better than his boss, Lawrence Welk. And he'll be doing it tonight at the Sanford Civic Center, starting at 7:30. What's he really like? And what's the mystique Welk holds for the older segment of our society? Find out in Friday's Evening Herald.

CITY HALL: MAKING IT OFFICIAL

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore (above left) signs $1,106,000 contract with Williams Development Company for construction of new city hall. Alan Williams, the company's project manager; Dale Lewis, and Wayne Heasley, look on. Lewis and Heasley are representatives of Watson and Co., the architectural firm which designed the project. Meanwhile, City of Sanford employees Israel Walker and Gilbert Strawter (above right) prepare the site where the new city hall will be built — on Park Avenue, next to the present facility.
