Too many calls to police, city says

By Bill Kerns
STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Sanford City Commission is debating a proposed ordinance that would establish a charge to property and business owners who call excessively for law enforcement service.

The proposed ordinance is designed to address the high number of repeat calls to individual properties. A comprehensive review by the Sanford Police Department said the majority of police calls come from certain residences, apartments, hotels and businesses.

On a sample list of properties with excessive calls through Nov. 2 of this year, Ideis Mark on 13th Street had 224 calls for service. The West Indies on 13th Street had 210 calls for service, and Sunshine Liquors on 13th Street had 183 calls for service. Rescue Mission on 13th Street had 110 calls for service.

The ordinance was discussed in Monday's city commission work session. It is designed to address nuisance calls, and City Manager Tony VanDerwoorp said the staff would continue working on a version of the ordinance that the commission might accept.

"You can have in your lease that you cannot disrupt your neighbors," Mayor Larry Dale said. "If I had an apartment complex, I would have a provision in my lease concerning noise and drugs. We can delineate between nuisance calls and cases where there's a gun or prostitution. Those aren't nuisance calls."

Commissioner Brady Lessard said property owners should be held responsible for what takes place on their property.

"It's just a handful of businesses that consume police attention over-and-over," Commissioner Brady Lessard said. "I don't see how a property owner can't be responsible for what happens on their own property."

Commissioner Velma Williams opposes the ordinance, which is based on a similar Daytona Beach Shores ordinance. She said the residents in District 2, who she represents, are in need of police service and would become shy to call the police if the ordinance is enacted.

"Most of the places on the list where excessive calls were made are in my district," Williams said. "If I as a businesswoman had to call 25 times per week I would feel its your responsibility to provide service. If I owned property, what am I supposed to do, take the law into my own hands? It's our re-

County remembers Gov. Chiles

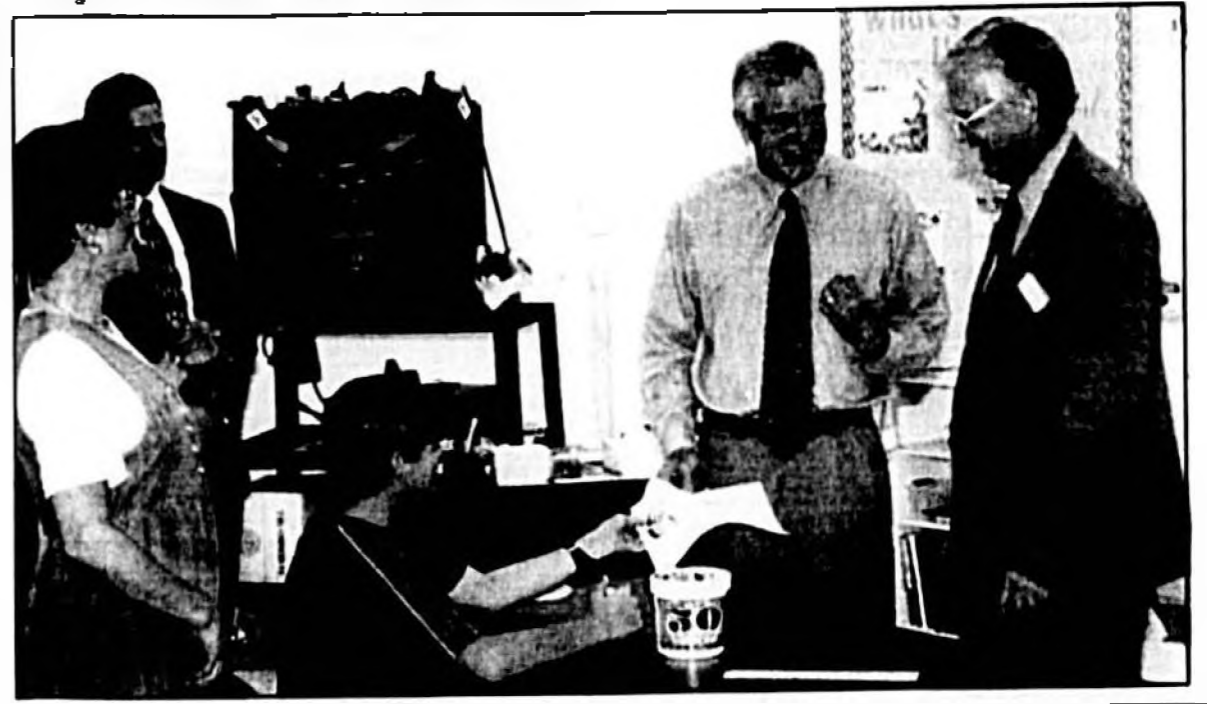

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles will be laid to rest on Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Tallahassee. His body will travel today in a motorcade from Century, in the Panhandle, the origin of 1970 walking campaign, and lie in state in the Old Capitol, in Tallahassee, this afternoon and Wednesday morning.

Sanford city workers (clockwise from upper left) lowered the flag at Memorial Park early Monday in honor of Chiles' death. Chiles came to the area in February, to view the tornado damage; and in August, to visit the Math and Science Technology Magnet at Sanford Middle School. Sanford residents walked with him during his campaign for U.S. Senate. State office, including administrative office at the University of Central Florida, will be closed on Wednesday, in observance of the funeral.

City clears the record on District 2 projects

By Bill Kerns
STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - The Sanford City Commission released a list of utility projects completed in District 2 over the last five years, in response to criticism that the district is being ignored.

Geneva resident Johnell Jackson wrote in a guest column in the Seminole Herald on Nov. 6 that residents of District 2 are ignored except when commissioners need votes, such as in the Nov. hotel/conference center referendum.

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale and Commissioner Velma Williams of District 2 said they wanted to clear the record on the district.

"If you look at the record there have been $51 million in projects in the district over the last five years," Dale said. "The projects run the gamut from reclaimed water lines to parks."

Williams said she was concerned about Jackson's comments.

"I saw the article," Williams said. "I was concerned. It bothered me, because we're working hard for the district. Even before I came to the commission, these commissioners were doing a lot."

The First Street water line extension running along First Street from French Avenue to Mangostine Avenue is costing the city $442,000 and is scheduled to be finished this fiscal year, the report said.

The Holly Avenue water line extension from 10th Street to Sixth Street will cost an estimated $46,000, the report said. City crews are constructing the water line extension, and it is scheduled to be finished this fiscal year.

State to tighten child abuse laws

By Bill Kerns
STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Legislation is being introduced into the Florida legislature that would tighten the controls on the way the Department of Children and Families responds to reports of abuse.

The proposed legislation comes during the aftermath of the death of Kayla McKean, 6, allegedly at the hands of her father, Richard Adams. Kayla was buried last Saturday in Casselberry.

The bill, introduced by Senator Anna Cowin (R-Leesburg), would give law enforcement greater authority to investigate child abuse cases. It also would mandate that, on a second confirmed report of abuse, there will be an immediate court hearing to review the child's complete file to determine if the child should remain in the home.

Parents with violent criminal records would be prevented from gaining custody of children under the bill. People with prior knowledge of abuse who allow it to occur, and those who become accessories after the fact, would receive tougher penalties under the bill.

Climb a mountain in my shoes

Altamonte Springs orthodontist Barry Levin (left) stands beside a six-foot high 'shoe mountain' built in his office's lobby. More than 2,000 nearly-new, barely-used shoes were donated by 12 area schools to be donated to the Mustard Seed in time for the holiday season. Mustard Seed volunteer Ruth Synder was on hand to oversee the loading of the shoes to be taken to the center which provides support for families struggling with homelessness. The shoes will also go to Goodwill Industries of Central Florida. "When we launched the shoe drive on Nov. 1, we never imagined such a phenomenal response," said Levin.

"I'm appalled by the numerous breakdowns in a system created to protect children from the horrors of abuse," Cowin said. "We must strengthen the safety net for those who are powerless to help themselves." The bill will be discussed during the 1999 Legislative Session in Tallahassee.

A sewer line extension at 13th Place constructed by city crews in fiscal year 1996/97 cost an estimated $40,000.

responsibility to respond." Lessard said that while the city does have the responsibility to respond, "it's also our responsibility to recover the funds to be able to respond. Is it right to penalize the rest of the residents by spending our resources on only a few residents?"

Commissioner Whitley Eckstein said he is concerned that the ordinance would be struck down in court.

"You have to look at whether this is a classic case of discrimination against the poor," Eckstein said. "We need to specify the ordinance. It says calls for service, what does that mean? The vagueness will strike it down."

Commissioner Kerry Lyons said administration of the ordinance would need to be done properly.

"Either we'll find out that the property owner is not being responsible or that the police department is not doing its job," Lyons said. "Then, we'll go from there. This is about holding people responsible who own property."

Another successful fall season

SANFORD - Before we all start getting excited about the winter sports season, maybe it's time to look at the recently finished fall seasons that made Seminole County one of the best in the state once again.

It was a season in which Lake Brantley took a state championship in cross country and several other schools either stepped up or made an impact throughout the state.

Start with Lake Brantley's football team. The Patriots looked decent going into the season, but who would have thought they would have run the table during the regular season. They ran opponents into the ground and, led by a strong defense and some unsung heroes on the offensive line, took the district over powerful DeLand.

Lake Brantley didn't fare well in the state playoffs but coach George Clayton has a powerhouse back next season and should be looked at as county favorites.

In volleyball, Oviedo and Lake Mary provided a lot of thrills on the boys' side and the Winter Springs girls' team proved it is a force to be reckoned with next season. The Lions were a senior-laden team that played with a bravado that almost took them to the finals of VolleyFest and Lake Mary was its usual dominating self.

The Winter Springs girls' team made it to the Regional Final Four and could have gone farther if not for being placed in an ugly regional bracket in which they had the top three teams in the state to contend with before going to the state Final Four.

Cross country was also exciting. Lyman's Nate Adams and Lake Mary's Nick Stuart battled all year for county supremacy and in the end, there was no real winner. They have to be considered co-champions as the best the county had to offer. Stuart outran Adams in the SAC race, but the two went at it all season and made it an exciting year for everyone.

In the end, though, Lyman proved to be the county's best with a solid team all the way down the line.

Stephanie Cornell was awesome all year as she led Lake Brantley to its state title. She had plenty of challenges, mostly from her own teammates as the Patriots ran away from the district, but keep an eye on young Winter Springs next season. The Bears are all back and should challenge Lake Brantley's supremacy.

In swimming, don't forget Seminole's Lori Thomas. The 'Noles don't have their own pool, but Thomas has met the challenge for several years and established herself over powers from Lake Mary and Lake Brantley as the county's elite swimmer and that's not a simple accomplishment.

Once again, Seminole County, one of the smallest in Central Florida, stood proud.

Last Second Shot: The latest baseball millionaire, Kevin Brown of the Los Angeles Dodgers, signed a contract which allows him private use of the team plane 12 times per season. Seriously.

Meanwhile, Kenny Anderson of the NBA's Portland Trailblazers, is complaining that the lockout is forcing him to sell one of his eight automobiles.

If his other seven cars go down, maybe he can bum a ride off Brown.

Veteran Ed Kerahner, one of the winningest coaches in Florida history, led Oviedo to a 52-46 victory over Ft. Pierce-Westwood in the championship game of the Central Florida Classic Saturday night.

OVIDEO - Larry Wharton scored 21 points and host Oviedo outscored Westwood from Ft. Pierce, 25-22, in the second half to win the Championship of the Central Florida Classic sponsored by the Rotary Club of Oviedo Saturday night.

The Lions (4-3), who came into the tournament riding a three-game losing streak, definitely got their act together over the weekend with three very strong victories and appear ready to contend for SAC and district honors.

The loss was the first of the season for Westwood (5-1).

In other games from the tournament: University edged Winter Springs, 62-57, for third place and Central Florida Christian Academy from Ocoee wound up fifth with a 41-34 triumph over Eau Gallie.

Oviedo will be in action tonight, challenging a very strong DeLand Bulldog team in a Class 6A-District 3 game at the Dog Pound starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Patriots (3-4) will host Lyman on Wednesday and travel to Seminole on Friday for Seminole Athletic Conference games. Both contests will start at 7:30 p.m.

Options for treating gallstones

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with a gallstone in my common duct. Would a strict diet help, or is surgery the only solution?

DEAR READER: A gallstone that has migrated from the gallbladder to the duct leading to the intestine can cause severe pain and jaundice. Once a stone has formed, diet will not help; the blockage must be surgically removed.

Nonetheless, you do have other options. Some patients are successfully treated with lithotripsy, in which gallstones are fragmented and destroyed by electromagnetic waves. This isn't always as satisfactory as surgery, but it may be appropriate for you.

In addition, doctors sometimes use medicine to dissolve gallstones, although this process takes weeks.

I believe that you would be best served by having the stone in your common duct surgically removed.

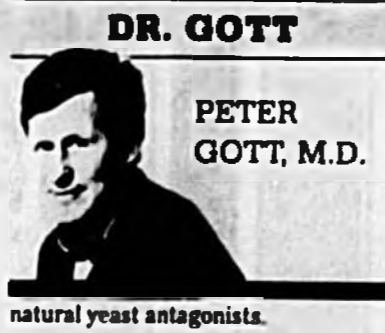

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Gallbladder Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are chlamydia and candida the same thing?

DEAR READER: No, they are quite different.

Chlamydia is a specialized form of bacteria that can affect the eyes, causing conjunctivitis and serious visual difficulties. It can also be spread sexually, causing a disease marked by swollen lymph nodes in the groin, genital ulcers, headache, fever and infertility. A rare type of chlamydia that affects birds can be transmitted to humans as psittacosis (a variety of pneumonia). Chlamydia has been reported to be spread, during birth, from the mother to the infant, causing pneumonia. Almost without exception, these infections are curable with antibiotics.

Candida is a fungus normally found in the mouths, digestive tracts and birth canals of healthy people. In patients with defective immune responses, however, the fungus can cause disease. For instance, it produces diaper rash, dermatitis and thrush in newborns. Diabetics have a tendency to develop candida infections, as do patients whose immunity has been suppressed by AIDS or by anti-cancer drugs. Women taking antibiotics commonly develop candida vaginitis, or yeast infections, because the medicine kills bacteria that are natural yeast antagonists.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 55-year-old friend is gradually losing her eyebrows. Her doctor tells her to eat better. What do you think?

DEAR READER: As people age, they tend to lose hair — eyebrows included. However, nutritional deficiencies, thyroid disorders and skin diseases can accelerate the process. Perhaps your friend would be relieved if the doctor were to perform some tests and give more concrete advice about diet.

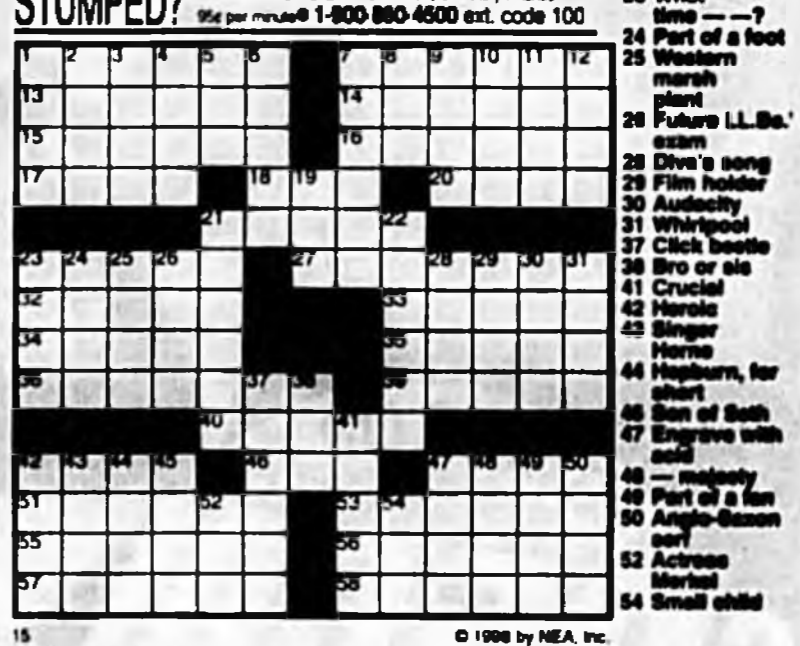

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Eating Right For A Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like a copy should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Covering the problem

By Phillip Alder

All beginners learn the expression "cover an honor with an honor." Yet this is bad advice. The first variation comes if the honor led has a touching honor behind it. If declarer is taking a finesse by leading the top of touching honors, do not cover the first honor — as highlighted in this deal.

Declarer had seven top tricks: one spade, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. There were several chances for an extra trick: the spade finesse could work; the missing clubs might split 3-3; the diamonds could divide 3-2. However, there was a problem. If South lost a trick, presumably the opponents would cash a fatal number of heart tricks.

More in hope than expectation, declarer won the second trick with dummy's heart ace, then cashed his top clubs. No luck there — East discarded a diamond.

Had East made an error, throwing a diamond from three? To find out, declarer took his diamond ace, then played a diamond to dummy's king. Again luck was out to lunch — West threw a heart.

It was time for spades. Declarer called for dummy's queen. Note that if East covers with the king, South wins with his ace, then leads a low spade to dummy's nine. That finesse works too, and declarer makes his contract. Yet East knew not to cover the first of touching honors; he played low.

Declarer might have exited with a diamond, but the defenders would have taken five tricks via one club, one diamond and two more hearts to go with trick one. Instead, declarer called for the spade jack, hoping to pin the 10 in the West hand. East covered the
