CARDS IN SLUMP AS THREE CLUBS CONTINUE FIGHT

Six Defeats in Last Eight Starts Reduce Lead From Six And Half To Two Yankees Win Fifth Straight

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Reeling under savage attacks by three rival clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals today are in the throes of a slump as bad as the one from which the New York Yankees have just emerged.

The Cubs put the bee on the Cards again yesterday, winning, 4 to 2, behind the fast-ball pitching of Patrick Percival Malone. Home runs by Hack Wilson and Kiki Cuyler caused Flint Klem to swallow his wad of chewing tobacco and wafted the big mountaineer clear into the clubhouse.

New York's four-star pitching staff—Penock, Hoyt, Pipgras and Helmach—has turned in five straight wins and the Yanks are five full games ahead of the Athletics, who were hit yesterday.

AL CONVINCED HE HAS SUPPORT OF FARMER GROUPS

Nominee Puts The Finishing Touches On His Acceptance Address; Farm Relief And Dry Issue To Be Emphasized

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Convinced that he has won the support of farm leaders from various parts of the country because of his stand on farm relief, Governor Al Smith today was to put the final touches on the address he will deliver one week from tomorrow in formally accepting the Democratic presidential nomination.

Although the 10 farm experts with whom he conferred for five hours at the executive mansion yesterday, left for their homes without announcing that they would publicly support him, the governor feels, according to his advisers, that eventually a majority of them will throw their strength to the Democratic ticket.

According to reports at the capital today, two or three of the farm leaders made a futile attempt to induce Smith to take a decided stand in favor of the qualification fee as contained in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which was vetoed by President Coolidge.

Governor Smith's acceptance speech, which he will deliver from the east steps of the capitol, will contain about 10,000 words.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

THE NEW SONG—I will sing a new song unto thee, O God: upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing praises unto thee.—Psalm 144:2.

PRAYER—"Praise God from Whom all blessings flow."

THE IDLER

Idle stand that I may find employ,
Such as my Master when he comes will give;
I cannot find in mine own work my joy,
But wait, although in waiting I must live;
My body shall not turn which way it will,
But stand till I the appointed road can find,
And journeying to his messages fulfill,
And do at every step the work designed,
Enough for me, still day by day to wait,
Till Thou who form'st me find'st me too a task,
A cripple lying at the rich man's gate,
Content for the few crumbs I get to ask,
A laborer but in heart, while bound my hands,
Hang idly down still waiting thy commands,
Jones Very (1815-1860)

Jim Reed's Last Stand

The results of the recent primary elections in Missouri are interesting because they tell the story of a bitterly contested but futile campaign waged by Jim Reed, staging his last political battle before retiring after thirty years' public service. This time, however, the white-haired Reed was not fighting for his own nomination but for that of another. His campaign was no less dramatic and picturesque than if the fiery Missourian had again been seeking office. It was a typical Reed fight, colorful as only he could have made it, and the defeat of his candidate, James A. Collett, takes away none of the glory that was Reed's in transforming a negligible aspirant into a serious contender for the nomination of a man to succeed him.

The storm center of politics in his own state for three decades, Fighting Jim has turned many a political contest into a battle in which he asked no quarter. His friends loved him for his honesty, his enemies respected him for his unconquerable spirit. His magnetic personality dominated and overshadowed all other factors in the campaign and made the issue clearly Reed or anti-Reed.

There have been many to criticize the veteran legislator, but none to question his sincerity. That which he championed he did so with firm conviction as to its good; that which he opposed he fought faithfully and conscientiously. The Missourian often found himself standing alone in the espousal of a cause. Indeed, he was frequently in conflict with the leaders of his party, but this fact made him none the less vigorous in his pronouncements.

The many years, which he spent in the United States senate, were a series of ups and downs for Reed. He was by himself in his bitter opposition to the League of Nations, sponsored by his party chieftain, Woodrow Wilson. His ostracism from Democratic councils culminated in his expulsion from the San Francisco convention. Such a setback would have been permanent for many men but to Reed it was just another incident in an eventful career. Two years later, in 1922, he was elected for a third time to the senate after one of the greatest victories ever recorded in the political history of this country.

Reed's retirement no doubt will bring satisfaction to his enemies but to his thousands of friends and loyal supporters it will be noted with genuine regret. Gifted in speech, endowed with a fearless spirit and possessing other notable attributes, he served state and nation constantly and devotedly. Despite the mistakes he may have made, he has had a distinguished public service career. Missouri will have a difficult task in filling his place.

The Cost Of Crime

Another slant on the criminal industry in America today is given by the Kansas City Star. It views crime from a financial rather than a moral angle, but concludes that lawlessness cannot be coped with by the paid minions of the law alone. The church, the home and the schools must also enter the prevention fight if it is to be successful in the long run. Says the Star:

"A division of the Baumes crime commission of New York, which has gone pretty thoroughly into the subject, finds that the American people are paying annually for crime something like 13 billion dollars. It is an enormous, almost incomprehensible sum, amounting to about two-thirds of the nation's war debt and to one-seventh of the country's total yearly income. The money goes for the maintenance of prisons, the courts and for police protection and includes losses from stolen or destroyed property and from criminal activities generally.

"How to reduce the expense and at the same time make human life and property more secure is one of the most trying questions before the country today. The commission's report proposes one procedure in particular. It is not offered as a complete solution but with the assurance that it would be measurably effective. More and better trained police, it is held, would be a certain means to prevention of a considerable amount of crime. If only a relatively small part of the cost of crime were invested in this way, the returns, it is declared, would be large. Lawlessness would be reduced, there would be fewer prisons and prisoners to maintain and property losses would be smaller.

"The value of the expedient is declared obvious. It would be so on one condition: That the emphasis were placed upon the quality or training of the police rather than upon mere numbers. The size of a police force alone can afford no basis of security. A few efficient, well trained and industrious members of a force may be of more service than scores of police who are incompetent, indifferent or subject to political or other detrimental influence.

"Where the police are zealous and capable in the performance of duty, as in the running down of the Home Trust Company bandits in Kansas City, for example, the value of the protection and its aid in discouraging crime in general are unquestioned. Every community in the country should encourage and seek to maintain that kind of police performance.

"But other things are necessary. Police activity, however vigilant, faithful and thorough, can be of limited value unless all the other agencies concerned with crime perform their duty to the end that the guilty shall be adequately punished. The machinery of prosecution, the courts, prison officials, all have an essential part in reducing crime. The constant aid of the home, the church and the schools also must be enlisted if there is to be genuine progress in crime prevention. It is the task of all the moral and constructive forces of the nation."

SUMMER WIDOWERS

ORLANDO REPORTER-STAR

The large army of summer widowers in Orlando does not mean that all of us who stay on the job are busted; some of us may be a little hard up and therefore economize by sending wifey on a long summer vacation, but most of those who are keeping the home from being entirely dark this summer are here because there is business for them.

There is more business activity in Orlando this summer than there has been during any summer for three years. It is not that activity that was experienced during the boom period, but a normal activity—a normal amount of building, as much as is good for a city of this size, and a normal amount of commercial business being done. Wholesale houses are doing a normal summer business and all of the leading retail stores show a weekly turnover that will compare with any city of 25,000 in the North.

attending strictly to business (this latter for the benefit of his absentee wives) shows a wholesome regard for business responsibilities and obligations.

There is no denying the fact that there is an atmosphere of optimism here. Men detect a gradual improvement in business lines and they see the signs of an approaching period of prosperity. The boards have not been entirely cleared of the litter left in the wake of the boom, but adjustments are rapidly being made and normally will the sooner be here because business men do stay on the job in an earnest effort to clear up matters and put the house in order for a better day. And in all probability, the summer widower will be just as comfortable in Florida as anywhere else.

THE BULB INDUSTRY

DELAND NEWS

At this season of the year growers of flowering bulbs are learning the results of their recent plantings. Bulbs are being graded, the marketable bulbs segregated from those that will be put back into the ground for propagation next fall; the growers are ascertaining the productivity and probable margin of profit. These bulbs will be placed in cold storage until Sept. 1 or 15, when they will be put on the market for next season planting.

Bulb growing has become an industry of no small importance in this section of Florida since 1925, when attaches of the federal department of agriculture made soil analyses and experiments that proved the adaptability of the soil to prolific bulb culture. Today there are commercial plantings in Duval, Clay, Seminole, Orange, Alachua Lake and Volusia county, with the latter county leading in production. Development of the bulb industry has given impetus a little more than a year ago, when the United States government established an embargo against importation of foreign bulbs. This created a larger market for the American grown bulb and stimulated interest in development so that today buyers are convinced that the American grown bulb ranks as high in quality as the product formerly imported from China or Japan or The Netherlands. For a time buyers were skeptical and prejudiced against the American product and millions of dollars annually went to foreign countries for lilies, narcissus, gladioli, iris, freesia, tulip and other bulbous flowers.

Today, it is shown by statistics, Florida has built up bulb production that meets but one-third of the demand so that there appears a field for much greater activity before the market can be overburdened.

Doubtless the average person does not realize the vast amount of money that is annually expended for flowering bulbs. Records show that prior to the embargo importations of narcissus bulbs alone annually amounted to $2,000,000, while lesser amounts went abroad for bulbs of various other kinds.

Investigations proved that Florida was the logical section of the United States for the development of this industry on a commercial scale, and a number of persons entered the field. Results show that those who acted wisely and followed expert advice have profited in an industry that a few short years ago was considered a wildcat proposition by many.

It is not the purpose of this article to urge persons to rush blindly into the investment of money in the bulb industry. It is rather to remind Floridians of this potential wealth of the state, and to congratulate those whose same judgement and energy have made possible the development of that wealth.

Any persons contemplating culture of bulbs must not rush into the business blindly. As in any other industry, it requires experience and sane business methods; and it is due to men of experience and energy that this industry has come to the Sunshine State measure that has assured its permanence and expansion in years to come.

HOW DO YOU BUY?

When you enter a store to buy anything, how do you ask for it? Do you call for the articles by name, or do you generalize—a can of tomato soup; a bag of flour; an aluminum kettle; so many square yards of linoleum; a meat grinder?

It is much better and far more satisfactory to specify the articles you want by name, for merchandise that is good enough to be sold by name is almost always better in quality, and usually no higher in price, than goods of uncertain lineage and less certain quality.

The advertising columns of this newspaper carry advertised names that are familiar to millions of people. Soap, flour, sugar, cereals, kitchen ware, rugs, linoleum, automobiles, etc. They represent those articles that stand for the best in their respective classes of merchandise—quality all through.

Advertising keeps these names before you constantly. Advertising is a constant reminder that the articles you want are the same articles that you see advertised day after day—that justify their being by the service they render. And advertising brings you news—of inventions, discoveries, improvements that keep you up to date.

Tell the sales-clerk what you want by its advertised name. You'll get it—and your money will purchase full value. It pays to read advertising and remember advertised names.

CRUSADE AGAINST VICE IN GOTHAM GETS UNDER WAY

Night Clubs To Draw Most Attention While Gambling Violators Are Also Sought; Lottery Is Growing Evil

NEW YORK Aug. 15.—(INS)—Police and Government operatives, functioning in New York City have entered upon another strenuous drive against organized gambling and alleged "slot" night clubs of the "Great White Way." Although there is nothing new in the fact that members of the law are seeking to run violators of the law to earth, promise of drastic action against many has been made in both police and government circles. With two raids to the credit of the police in the war against base-ball lotteries and 108 indictments by the Federal Grand Jury of persons alleged to have some part in the operation of eighteen night clubs, habitues of New York's pleasure palaces and gambling resorts are awaiting future developments. No less known characters than Texas Guinan, who has been habitually in the limelight as the outstanding night club hostess of all times, Helen Morgan and N. T. Garland, radio announcer for Station WHN, are included in the list of indictments. Conspiracy Charged Charged with conspiracy, this famous trio and 105 others, will face the possibility of a maximum of two years in prison and fines of $10,000 when their cases come up for examination on the trial calendar. Complaints by wives are said to have resulted in the renewed activities of police in attempting to curb base-ball pools and lotteries. Several women have revealed shrinkages in their husband's weekly allowances to them, which, they claim, were caused by their mates' participation in pools and lotteries. The lure of becoming rich overnight, through a successful pool or betting ticket, has attracted thousands of men to the "web" of pool operators and their agents. One base-ball pool is alleged to have taken in $150,000 weekly, paying out only $75,000 in prizes, while others, of less respect for an "even break" to its customers, are supposed to have taken in thousands weekly without paying out more than a few dollars, if any, in comparison. The pools, operating from central headquarters, have ramifications throughout many states. Waiters, cigar-store clerks, drug-store "cowboys," hangers-on in pool rooms, and some few persons whose intelligence affords them a little higher rating among human endeavors act as agents for the higher ups. Enlarge Program The revelations already made in connection with recent raids and arrests have spurred the police to a larger and wider program, and it is expected that soon some of Broadway's hangouts for pool agents will be visited. Declarations by the for Committee of Thirteen, now the Committee of Fourteen or Fifteen; New York's unofficial protector of the morals of women, that wayward girls, and some who are not wayward but are susceptible to waywardness, have found haven in cabarets and all night dance establishments of the city, recently aroused bitter denials from leading club owners and managers, including Texas Guinan. But the repeated denials of vice conditions have not quashed the ardor of reformers, nor have consistent promises to abide by the Eighteenth Amendment curtailed the ambitions of dry enforcers to make New York's night life free from forbidden beverages.

Economy of The Month

THOSE days are only a memory when, in their season, fresh tomatoes were as plentiful and almost as inexpensive as potatoes. For, alas, since that time the tomato has grown aristocratic, one might almost say "high hat." In some city markets we must even buy it by the "piece," each tomato carefully swathed in a tissue paper jacket. In those olden days we used fresh tomatoes for every cooking purpose in summer. Today, if we are wise, we hoard our fresh tomatoes for slicing in salads, and use the canned product whenever the vegetable is to be cooked. Canned Tomatoes Good Buy At this time of the year canned tomatoes are an especially good buy.

New Museum To Be Erected In Chicago

CHICAGO, August 14.—(INS)—A new million dollar historical museum will be constructed in Lincoln Park here to be completed in time for Chicago's World's Fair in 1933. It was announced by the Chicago Historical Society. The new museum, which will replace the old Inaugurate building, will be of the Georgian colonial type. Authorization for the structure was granted by the Illinois State Assembly last winter. Included in the building will be an auditorium, for public lectures, class rooms for children as well as a group of exhibition rooms. It will be so designed as to portray the outstanding points of historical development in the city, county and state.

Clifford Russell has returned home after an extended trip throughout the southern states. During his absence he had months he visited relatives in Florence, S. C., in Tennessee, and in Jacksonville.

Seminole Tire Shop Plans August Sale

The Seminole Tire Shop yesterday announced an August tire sale. Prices on Oldfield, Courier and Airway tires will be cut. Purchase of these tires in large quantities enables the company to sell them at a reduced figure. The sale is being conducted on the "cash and carry" plan, which makes possible additional reductions. Oldfield, Courier and Airway tires are made in the Firestone factories at Akron, O., the largest factories in the world devoted exclusively to the manufacture of tires, according to the Seminole Tire Shop. Only fresh, new standard tires are offered at this sale.

Modistes To Urge Women To Change Dress Thrice Daily

PARIS, Aug. 15.—(INS)—Women will dress three times a day instead of one, if the Paris dressmakers succeed in carrying out their present plans of making the winter season the most pretentious one that has dawned since the war. The "all-around-the-clock" dress has survived long enough, they argue, and the hour has struck for women to sweep some of the practicality out of their wardrobes and inject a little art into their dressing. The feminist wave has finally gained ground and young debutantes reared in the post-war period will have to learn mother's old tricks of lingering before a full length mirror and really taking time to dress. Until the present season when bouffants, flimsy materials, lace and soft billowy effects appeared, the afternoon atmosphere was completely missing in women's clothing and the simple one-piece frock which came in with the war will still survive in modified form, set aside to stay on forever. The Paris creators of fashion on how to now say, No.

Mason Is In Picture Relations

has produced another "The Wife's Relations." The story of the complicated life. The plot and a young in, enter stage to a beautiful has run away from made an elevator (p. 1) and a woman (p. 1) are introduced, a penniless actor and an artist. They all together on the scene. The former awakes his parents visit and are received by the chauffeur, the man, butler, and are making a strong impression on the former lover. The story begins, and gives an excellent wayward girl, she has her own way, makes an ideal, housewife inventor, but the center of the entire and Arthur's audience in good impersonations as adapted from Stephen Cooper, with the direction of Max. Some beautiful scenes, including shots of and winter scenes. Miss Pland and the atmosphere. The story and change to a new and clever with the picture which this picture anyone will like "The Relations" which is being shown at the Milane

SHIRLEY MASON

The WIFE'S RELATIONS

with GASTON GLASS and BEN TURPIN

Patricia was an elevator girl and had her ups and downs. Tom Powers, a penniless inventor, told her she would find life far more fascinating as his wife than she did at work. She took a chance and then things began to happen—there are over a thousand laughs in this rollicking comedy of domestic relations.

"Mighty easy to like—Chesterfields"

Mild enough for anybody ... and yet they Satisfy

To blend tobaccos is one thing... but to blend cross-blend tobaccos so as to give both mildness and taste is the Chesterfield way!

Chesterfields satisfy. They have a full, rich, rounded-out taste that makes a merely mild cigarette taste flat by comparison. They're mild... and yet... they satisfy.

ATTENTION ADVERTISERS

The attention of classified advertisers is called to the sixth paragraph in the rate box which reads:

No ad under three lines accepted.

This simply means that our minimum charge for a classified ad is three lines, counting five words to the line.

Should advertisers desire to run a one or two line ad, the minimum charge of three lines will apply.

This has been a Classified rate rule of The Herald for years but as there seems to be some confusion in the minds of advertisers about it we direct their attention to the rate schedule in the upper left hand corner.

Provided, that no local or special law shall be passed, unless notice shall have been published in the local newspaper... (Text continues with details about legislative procedures and amendments.)
