

City Scrambles To Strengthen Land Suit Stand

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

In a hastily convened session this morning, Sanford city commissioners and administrators met to strengthen their Yankee Lake condemnation effort just minutes before leaving for a Melbourne courtroom to defend it against dismissal motions.

The city representatives' 10 a.m. session was called to amend the minutes of the Nov. 8 special meeting which initiated the eminent domain proceeding. The decision to hold this morning's meeting was made by Sanford Mayor Betty Smith late Saturday evening.

It was Sanford's "legal" response to "last minute" charges Seminole County filed Friday to disclaim the condemnation suit's validity, City Attorney William Colbert said.

"We can't change what happened at a meeting," Colbert said, "but we can lawfully amend the minutes to show exactly what was done."

On Friday, the county filed additional charges in its attempt to have the suit dismissed on the grounds that Sanford representatives violated the city charter and state statutes during the Nov. 8 meeting. County attorneys contend the meeting and, thus, the condemnation suit, is invalid because the commissioners' individual votes were not recorded on the condemnation resolution which was entered in the city minute book.

This morning, during a roll call poll, commissioners again unanimously approved the proceeding and it was duly inscribed as part of the city's record.

It will be produced "if necessary" during today's hearing before Seminole-Brevard Circuit Judge Tom Waddell, Colbert said.

Commissioner Milton Smith, who was not present at the Nov. 8 meeting, did not vote today, although the county has also targeted his absence in an attempt to invalidate the suit. Attorneys

The meeting between representatives of Sanford, Seminole County and the state Department of Environmental Regulation to discuss use of Yankee Lake will be held Thursday, not today as reported in Sunday's Evening Herald. Today, litigants in the city's suit to obtain the property through condemnation are meeting in Melbourne to address defense dismissal motions in Circuit Judge Thomas Waddell's court.

Police Seek Driver Who Rammed Bar

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Three occupants of a Sanford bar barely escaped with their lives Saturday night when a car smashed through the front of the building with a force that crumpled three-inch walls and embedded several stools in the bar's service counter.

Police are seeking the at-large driver, who took off on foot immediately after gunning the light-blue 1972 Mercury into Harry's bar at 114 Park Avenue across from the Atlantic Bank parking lot. The incident occurred around 11 p.m.

Sanford police have requested warrant from the State Attorney's office for the arrest of George Zook, address unknown, believed to be the driver of the vehicle. Police want to charge him with three counts of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle and criminal mischief. Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said today.

Bar seats are jammed into counter by pool table, hit when a driver rammed his car into Harry's Bar in downtown Sanford late Saturday. Patrons leapt for safety when they heard the car's engine rev. Below right, scene of the damage from outside front of bar. Wall and window were demolished.

The car allegedly belonged to bartender Sherian Rudish, who was spending her first night on the job. She reportedly knew the driver and had asked him to leave the bar approximately 15 minutes before the 11 p.m. incident.

Martha Chapman, a witness watching the event from the second floor window of the Central Florida Legal Services office, said the incident occurred as if it was a cinema stunt.

"He must have thought he was in a Clint Eastwood or Charles Bronson movie," Ms. Chapman said of the driver. "He had the car across the street with its lights turned off and he sat there for a few moments, revving the engine. Then he turned the lights back on and flew across the street.

"I saw a hubcap roll across the street, but the car had completely disappeared into the bar," she said.

According to a Sanford police report, two patrons in the bar and the bartender headed for the back of the bar when they heard squealing tires and saw the car racing towards them. The car stopped about 5 feet from the serving bar. No damage estimate was available early today. The bar is owned by Pansey Moyer, of Sanford, according to a police report.

"We got the hell out of there as fast as we could," said Fred Limica, one of the bar's patrons. "We didn't know what was going on."

While Limica, Ms. Rudish and another patron, William Leep, ran out the back exit after the crash, the driver reportedly got out of the car and hot-footed it through the gaping new entrance.

Ms. Chapman said she went down to the bar immediately after the incident and found the driver already gone.

"I thought for sure he would be stuck in the car, but it was empty," she said. "I can't believe he was able to walk away. The place was destroyed."

82 Applicants Line Up For Longwood Job

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commissioners are busy pouring over the 82 applications received for the job of city administrator now being held on an interim basis by city Police Chief Greg Manning.

The commissioners, who have previously said they hope to hire someone in February, are expected to discuss how they will go about narrowing down the field of applicants when they meet Monday night.

Mayor Larry Goldberg said he intends to bring it up at the 6:30 p.m. worksession prior to the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

"There are some really well-qualified applicants," Goldberg said. "I expect the commission to hire someone in February, but it will probably be the March 1 before they come aboard."

Among the hopefuls are 46

applicants from out-of-state, three women, two finalists in last year's search for a city administrator, a city staff member, and several Seminole County residents.

Wallace Payne, 49, city manager of Crystal River, who was runner-up for the job last year has applied again, as has Ronald L. Waller, city manager of Schuylkill Haven, Pa., who was also a finalist but was unable to be in Longwood on the day of the interviews.

City Finance Director Barry Weeks, 38, who was hired last year, has applied for the job of city administrator.

One of the applicants, Peggy Atherly Dionne, 27, with the Air Force in Hawaii learned of the opening when she was in Longwood visiting relatives over the holidays.

Other women applying include

Haiti Asks Return To Work

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Officials asked merchants and workers to return to their shops and jobs today and said their safety was guaranteed after a bloody crackdown on anti-government protesters.

Doctors said Sunday security forces killed at least 55 protesters during a two-day crackdown on demonstrations against President-for-life Jean-Claude Duvalier. Their figure conflicted with government reports that said 16 people were killed.

The capital apparently was calm Sunday after two days of widespread unrest, and state-owned national television broadcast communiques urging a return to work.

The broadcasts asked residents of Port-au-Prince to pursue their normal activities and called on stores to reopen.

2 Die On Roads

A Gainesville man was killed Saturday when his motorcycle skidded out of control and crashed headlong into a pickup truck. In a separate incident early today, Oviedo police reported a one-car traffic fatality in that city around 7:26 a.m. Details were not available at press time.

Dead in the Saturday crash is Roger C. Raduna, 20, of 5327 Southwest 80 Terrace.

According to a Florida Highway Patrol report, the cyclist was southbound on Markham Woods Road, one-quarter mile south of Markham Road when he lost control of the vehicle on a curve and crashed into a 1972 pickup driven by Jerry Gills, of Eustis. Gills was not injured. Raduna died at the scene.

No charges were filed pending an investigation.

It's Clean-Up Month

Sanford Officials Sweep Through Town

Their sweeping gesture may have attracted curious stares, but Sanford's five city commissioners took it in stride as part of their attention getting effort to instill civic pride. They met at city hall on Saturday morning and proceeded along the streets and sidewalks of downtown Sanford to kickoff cleanup month.

In tandem with their efforts were those of the Sanford Rotary Club-Breakfast, whose members fanned out into the community from the 24th Street Salvation Army building. The organization plans to lend its assistance during the next three Saturdays as well, and the Sanford Womens Club will begin doing its part early this week.

In addition to several bags of refuse, commissioners came away from their hour long effort with several recommendations for their constituents.

"Get it clean and keep it clean," said Commissioner John Mercer. "If we all do our part, the city will look terrific."

Sanford City Commissioner Milton Smith bags trash at First Street and Park Avenue Saturday.

before tossing their cigarettes."

As an ex-smoker, the mayor said, "I know it's easy to be thoughtless, but a few steps to an ash can isn't far from anyone's way."

Commissioner Milton Smith expounded upon her point by saying the city might want to make it easier for smokers by installing additional ash cans in the downtown area.

He also said parents "should be teaching their children to use garbage cans. It's amazing how many candy wrappers I've picked up today."

Commissioner Dave Farr would like to see the open mail on 1st Street made "cleaner and more comfortable" for residents.

With the right touches, "better benches and more tables and garbage cans," Farr said, "We'd have a very pleasant little meeting spot."

For Commissioner Bob Thomas, "unoccupied lots cluttered with garbage" raise his ire. "Just because they're empty doesn't make them anyone's dumping ground.

"Residents should treat the city like they do their own homes," Thomas said. "Make it an inviting place, full of good feeling for visitors."

The word of the day was "thoughtlessness," according to commissioners, who said the cleanup effort would not be necessary if residents remained continually cognizant of their community's upkeep.

"We wouldn't have to have such a violent effort if the stuff wasn't thrown down in the first place," Mercer said.

"We want to remind folks to take a bit of extra time, that's all," said Farr. "It will definitely make a difference."

Several merchants picked up, so to speak, on the commissioners efforts by emerging from their shops with broom and garbage bag.

NASA Studies Flame From Booster Rocket

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Pulling together the threads of disaster, NASA investigators have focused on a deadly jet of flame from one of Challenger's solid rocket boosters that apparently triggered the spaceship's tragic destruction.

NASA officials will not say how long the official investigation into the disaster will last, but sources say if the cause of Challenger's explosion can be firmly pinned down and corrected, the shuttle program could be back in the air by June.

Industry sources, however, indicate that may be an overly optimistic forecast at this early stage of the investigation.

A fleet of ships continued searching today for debris from the shuttle wreck, including detailed looks at three large objects that could be major pieces of the destroyed spaceship.

Challenger's reinforced crew cabin has not been found, assuming it was not obliterated by the explosion, and neither has the ship's beefed-up engine compartment. NASA refuses to comment on whether any bodies or crew personal effects have been recovered.

Two robot submersibles are being used to investigate the objects, two in shallow water 16 miles offshore and another at depths of up to 1,200 feet 40 miles out to sea.

Saturday night, after four days of official silence, the space agency released previously unseen films of the shuttle launch that showed a jet of flame lashing out from the side of Challenger's right-side rocket booster.

While the official review panel investigating the disaster will not discuss the possible causes of the accident, experts believe the flame, near the back end of the booster, either cut into Challenger's loaded fuel tank or heated it enough to raise the internal pressure to a point that resulted in rupture.

The seven-member crew, including space teacher Christa McAuliffe, never had a chance.

Enhanced videotapes of the shuttle's final seconds clearly show a series of fires near the base of the 500,000-gallon external fuel tank before a large cloud of material, apparently liquid hydrogen, suddenly gushed from its rear.

Disabled Vet Killed Trying To Return Home In Wheelchair

MIAMI (UPI) — Stranded in Miami because of a bureaucratic foul-up, a 75-year-old disabled veteran was killed by a motorist while trying to roll 160 miles to his Key West home in a wheelchair.

William A. Miller still had 149 miles to go when a car slammed into his wheelchair early Saturday, hurling him 100 feet and breaking his neck.

Attorney Joel Hirschhorn said the unidentified driver, a "clean-cut young man who doesn't do drugs, a hard-working college kid," would surrender to the Florida Highway Patrol today, although he has not been charged.

"It was like an apparition," Hirschhorn said. "A wheelchair in the middle of the road. He thought he was seeing things. Then he tried to swerve. It was unavoidable. He cannot talk about it without weeping. He is literally crushed."

Miller suffered from arthritis, anemia and kidney problems and his right foot had been amputated. He was picked up by Key West police last month and taken to the Monroe County Social Services Department. The department sent him to the Veterans Administration hospital in Miami, providing him with a one-way bus ticket.

Hijacked Pilot Still In News

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — John Testrake, the TWA pilot held hostage with crew members and passengers by Moslem terrorists who hijacked his Athens-to-Rome flight last year, says eight months later, he is still besieged by autograph seekers and people curious about the 17-day ordeal.

Testrake spoke during three Sunday morning services at Good Shepherd United Methodist Church. He called his Middle East captors "bizarre in the extreme."

"They could sit and ask me, seriously, about my family. But then their behavior could shift violently to the other side of the spectrum," he said.

Testrake, promoted from Boeing 727s to Lockheed L-1011 jumbo jets since last summer, has been flooded with requests to appear on television and to speak about the crisis that started June 14, when terrorists took command of Flight 847.

Fisher Accused Of Giving Fake

MIAMI (UPI) — A fisherman says an 18th century silver coin that treasure hunter Mel Fisher gave him as payment for shipwreck research is a certified fake.

The fisherman, Albert Richard McReynolds of Honolulu, said last week he tried to sell the Peruvian coin in Philadelphia, where an appraiser told him it was counterfeit.

"This guy is another one of these crazy hunters. They come out of the woodwork," said Fisher, whose crew found the estimated $350 million mother lode of treasure from the royal Spanish galleon Nuestra Senora de Atocha in July.

McReynolds, 39, said last week he signed two contracts with Fisher in 1985 to help research potential treasure sites he learned about from oldtime fishermen.

McReynolds said Fisher offered him the coin and advised him, "It's worth a hell of a lot more than the expenses you're trying to give me."

A coin dealer from Lima, Peru, also told him it was a counterfeit, he said.

He then sent the coin to the American Numismatic Association Certification Service in Colorado Springs, Colo., which also declared it a fake.

Soviets Say Drop 'Star Wars' As Tribute To Challenger Crew

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviets sharing U.S. grief over the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger feel the abandonment of "Star Wars" to be a fitting tribute to the memory of the seven astronauts who died in the incident, the newspaper Pravda said.

The Communist Party newspaper Sunday repeated the line carried by the official media two days after the Challenger explosion that saw the disaster as a warning to advocates of the "Star Wars" program to build a space-based shield against ballistic missiles.

"As far as the Soviet people are concerned, sharing the grief of the American people, they are convinced that the best tribute to the memory of those who were killed in the Challenger catastrophe would be a more sensible approach to present-day plans to militarize outer space," it said.

OPEC Tries To Stem Price Slide

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers gathered for a meeting today of a special five-member committee to prepare for an emergency summit to halt the plunge in oil prices with production quotas.

With oil prices falling to under $20 a barrel, Saudi Arabia has demanded a summit soon and flooded the already bloated world market with oil to compel non-OPEC producers to curb output and stabilize prices.

The task of the committee, established at the last Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ministers' meeting at Geneva in December, is to try to determine production quotas for OPEC nations.

In the face of falling prices, OPEC members have produced more to keep up revenue, thus accelerating the drop in the world price of oil.

Memorial Services Held For Heroes

United Press International
Hometown memorial services for Christa McAuliffe will be held today while the memories of Dick Scobee, Michael Smith, Ron McNair and Ellison Onizuka were held yesterday in communities that knew them best.

On the day Christa McAuliffe's hometown hoped to cheer her return to Earth, services are planned in a small church to mourn the death of the nation's first "ordinary citizen" in space.

About 500 family and friends were expected to attend a private funeral mass at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church today.

New Hampshire Roman Catholic Bishop Odore Gendron will celebrate the memorial mass and address mourners in the simple brick church where McAuliffe taught Christian doctrine classes on Saturdays.

In a sermon prepared for the services, Gendron said that without risk, "we would not be able to reach for the stars," as the N.W. Hampshire school teacher had encouraged her students to do.

"If we were not given this freedom, then we would never experience the real joy of discovery and achievement which God wants us to have," the sermon read.

"After all is said and done, I dare to proclaim today that Christa McAuliffe lives. She lives in our hearts. She lives in our dreams of 'reaching for the stars.' But, most importantly, Christa McAuliffe herself lives in eternity, enveloped in the love of our Heavenly Father."

The shuttle Challenger was scheduled to touch down at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida today after what would have been six days in orbit.

Scobee McAuliffe

Residents of two Carolina hamlets gathered at memorial services honoring Challenger astronauts Michael Smith and Ronald McNair, two hometown heroes who died "reaching for the heavens."

About 400 people, including South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, attended McNair's service Sunday in Lake City, S.C., a town of 5,600 whose main street is named Ron McNair Boulevard.

"This person was a good man, a compassionate person, a person who taught excellence and took his time to serve as a model for us all," Riley told the crowd at Wesley United Methodist Church. "Ronald McNair was reaching for the heavens when he gave his life for us."

Four astronauts — Vince Brand, Robert Gibson, Bruce McCandless and Robert L. Stewart — were joined at the service by a host of political figures, including Sens. Strom Thurmond and Ernest Hollings, North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin joined 1,500 residents in remembering shuttle co-pilot Smith in the coastal town of Beaufort, N.C.

"Although the loss was a great national one, the loss seemed overwhelming in Beaufort because Mike was one of us," said Carl Tilghman, vice chairman of the Carteret County Board of Commissioners and a high school classmate of Smith's.

Friends and family members attended the memorial service at the elementary school where Smith's childhood dreams of flying were born. Half the mourners spilled from the overflowing gym into the warm, breezy coastal air.

Eulogies by Martin and astronaut John Young came after five days of mourning in the close-knit town of 4,500, where flags still were flying at half-staff and black wreaths marked many doors.

More than 500 people gathered in Auburn Sunday to pay tribute to Francis "Dick" Scobee, the hometown commander of the space shuttle Challenger.

About 60 relatives also gathered at the Auburn Bible Baptist Church to eulogize the astronaut. Also in the church were members of the Auburn High School Class of 1957, Scobee's classmates.

Scobee's widow, June, told the assembled crowd that one of the proudest moments of her husband's life came when Auburn High School students gave him a standing ovation during his appearance there in 1984.

Immediately behind the speakers on the altar was a basket of flowers sent by President and Mrs. Reagan.

About 500 people attended a memorial service at a Buddhist temple Sunday for astronaut Ellison Onizuka who died in the Challenger disaster.

Onizuka, 39, an Air Force lieutenant colonel, grew up in Hawaii but was married at the Jodo Shinshu Buddhist Temple in Denver in 1969 while attending the University of Colorado.

Although he lived near Houston, Onizuka visited Colorado in recent years to speak to high school students about his life as an astronaut.

Kanya Okamoto paid tribute to the first Buddhist and the first Asian-American to go into space.

Judy Resnick was memorialized in Dayton, Ohio Friday and Houston, Texas paid tribute to Greg Jarvis on Saturday.

Mexico Slashes Oil Prices

By Roz Liston
United Press International

Mexico, America's largest foreign oil supplier and a major independent producer, slashed its oil prices by an average $4 a barrel over the weekend and OPEC member Ecuador announced it will abandon official prices for its crude.

In Jakarta, Indonesia Oil

Minister Subroto said a five-member OPEC committee scheduled to meet today in Vienna will discuss oil production levels needed to prevent prices from falling below $20 a barrel.

Subroto said the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had anticipated the current oil price collapse when it decided to scrap output curbs in early December to recapture its share of the oil market from independent producers.

In a widely expected move, the Mexican state oil monopoly Petroleos de Mexicanos lowered the price of its heavy Maya crude by an average $3.85 a barrel and reduced its light Isthmus crude by an average $5.02 a barrel, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Pemex trimmed the price of its heavy crude for U.S. clients by $4.55 to $21.70 a barrel and dropped its light crude by $2.50 to $19.50 a barrel.

In late December Mexico cut its oil prices by an average $1 a barrel.

Development Ban Causes Dollar Dip

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The moratorium on development in Longwood, which has been in effect since Oct. 15, 1985, has cut the city's income in this fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, 1985, to a fraction of what had been anticipated.

The city's Land Planning Agency and city staffers are so concerned lest the moratorium, scheduled to run out March 25, expire and the city's comprehensive plan update still be incomplete that they have asked the city commission to bring someone in to work on the plan.

When the ban expires the city expects a flood of applications from developers whose projects have been held up and muddled City Planner Chris Nagle, who is alone in the building department. This will leave him no time for working on the plan, they fear.

City Finance Director Barry Weeks told the commission at a special meeting Jan. 27 that although $175,000 was budgeted as income from building permits and application fees, only $12,000 has been collected because of the building ban and predicted a shortfall if something isn't done. The commission is scheduled to act Monday night at the 7:30 p.m. meeting to transfer funds from the $26,000 general services contingency account to hire someone.

Staffers pleaded with the commission to act on hiring help on the plan for City Planner Chris Nagle during the special meeting because of what they deem to be an emergency situation, but the matter was tabled a week until the next regular meeting Monday.

Nagle first asked for (and got) a 45-day moratorium in order to catch up on the backlog of applications and work on updating the city's comprehensive plan. Before it could run out on Nov. 29, the commission agreed to his request for a 120-day extension because he needed more time to clear the rest of the applications and work on updating the comprehensive plan.

"The moratorium is quickly running out," Nagle told the commission last Monday, "and the LPA has recommended the staff be authorized to solicit bids and enter into a contract with a comprehensive plan consultant to update our comp plan based on a 'not to exceed' amount to be set by the commission. The plan was adopted in 1980 and the character of Longwood has changed in that time."

Acting City Administrator Greg Manning said a $12,000 cap would be about right for the plan consultant.

"Everything relates to the comprehensive plan," Nagle said, "now when something comes in under the plan we nothing to hang it on. For instance, he said, the zoning ordinance doesn't refer to what's in the comp plan. A development on the face of it appears to meet requirements, but there is no way to determine its actual impact."

Weeks said, "We'd better get our act together before the moratorium is lifted if not you're going to have to decide where we are going to cut the budget."

The good news is the $109,000 surplus carried over from the 1984-85 fiscal year, which along with other unbudgeted revenue, will be divided among the departments for unexpected costs. They include insurance, upgrading the computers, and fire department overtime wages and equipment. The commission is scheduled to amend the budget Monday night of these transfers.

The commission is also scheduled to vote on a transfer of approximately $11,000 from the city commission contingency fund to the drainage line item in the Public Works Department budget to correct the drainage problem in the Tiberon subdivision.

Also on the agenda Monday night will be:

- A change in paving policy changing the present formula in which the cost for paving streets is divided in thirds between the two property owners and the city to a policy of property owners each paying 45 percent and the city only 10 percent.
- Alan Fickett of Dyer, Riddle, Mills and Precourt consulting engineers will present a plan for the expansion of the Skylark Sewage Treatment Plant Monday with the Longwood City Commission when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the city hall at 175 W. Warren Ave.
- Site plans for for Stone's Furniture Gallery expansion, Parkway University, and Pioneer Savings Bank addition will be reviewed.
- The city administrator will discuss the low water pressure problem in Harbour Isle subdivision where the water line taps were improperly made.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT:

Showers and thunderstorms broke a dry spell as they spread across the southern plains today, causing some flooding in northeast Texas, and residents near Fort Worth assessed damage from a tornado that ripped through several buildings and injured one woman. Rain fell today in much of Oklahoma, eastern Kansas, Missouri and about half of Texas. For the first time in 51 days, rain fell in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, ending the longest dry spell since 1955, when the two cities saw 54 days pass without rain. Wichita, Kan., received rain for the first time since Dec. 20. Minor flooding was reported in northeast Texas, which also ended an arid period. "Until today, it's been real dry here," Bonham Police Communications Officer Kim Kavanaugh said early today. "Looks like we got our rain all at once." Kavanaugh said 3.6 inches of rain had fallen since Sunday. Water in some of Bonham's streets was 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 feet deep, and four people had been evacuated, she said. In Weatherford, Texas, a tornado dropped Sunday from a thunderstorm near the Brock community in the southwest part of the county about 9:45 p.m., destroying three mobile homes, severely damaging two barns and a two-story house under construction, and slightly injuring one woman, who suffered a bump to the head. "It laid open a path about 10 to 12 miles long and about 150 yards across at the widest place," said Parker County Civil Defense Director T.R. Tanner. "It got trailers, barns, houses, everything in its path. "We won't really know if we've lost any livestock until daylight, but there's a lot of tree damage across that area," Tanner said. The National Weather Service issued a traveler's advisory for the Lake Tahoe area in the northern Sierra Nevada range today for falling and blowing snow. Snow fell most of Sunday afternoon through the Sierra and motorists were slowed due to slippery roads, reduced visibilities and requirements that vehicles have chains on their tires. Both California and Nevada highway agencies imposed chain controls for most roads around the Lake Tahoe area, which encompasses several ski resorts and a half-dozen gambling casinos on the Nevada side. Traffic was delayed two-to-four hours on Interstate 80, which traverses the Sierra, connecting San Francisco with north Lake Tahoe and Reno, Nev.

PROSTITUTION PICKUP

A Sanford woman was arrested on a prostitution charge after reportedly agreeing to have sex with an undercover officer.

report, the woman told the man the cost of sex with her was $20. After the fee was paid, officers moved in and arrested the woman, who then reportedly laid the money on the dash of a car. The incident occurred at 4 p.m. Friday.

Arrested and charged with assignment to commit prostitution was Gloria Ann Allen, 24, of 3 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford. She was being held Friday in lieu of bond in the Seminole County jail.

SMOKING BEHIND THE BAR ROOM

Two men were arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and paraphernalia after they were observed smoking in a car behind a Sanford bar.

According to a Sanford police report two officers, hidden next to the car the men were in, watched them smoke a marijuana cigarette. The incident occurred Friday at 9:30 p.m. behind Uncle Nick's Lounge and Oyster Bar, 2605 Park Dr., in Sanford.

Arrested were William Dale Trammell, 22, of 419 Valencia Ct., Longwood, and George W. Hughes, 3300 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford. They were released on $500 bond each from the Seminole County jail Saturday.

MAMMA'S CREDIT CARDS

An Orlando man was arrested in Seminole County after his mother told authorities he took two of her credit cards and used them without permission.

According to an arrest report, the man charged a $1,000 worth of items on the cards.

Arrested Friday and charged with uttering a forgery was Terrance Wayne Moore, 22. He was being held Saturday in lieu of $1,000 bond.

TAXI TO MOTEL TO JAIL

A man who ran up a $50 taxi fare then balked at paying was arrested on three charges after an officer saw him drop a hypodermic needle into a sink.

The scenario began around 1:23 a.m. Saturday at Lake Kathryn Motel, 1995 Highway 17-92, in Longwood. A taxi cab driver told the officer that a fare wouldn't pay his bill and ran from the cab. The driver chased him and dragged him backed to the cab and halted the passing officer, the report said.

The man told the officer he could pay the bill if he could go to his room to get the money. The officer followed. Inside the motel room, the man reportedly dropped a hypodermic needle into a sink.

After the man was arrested on charges of theft of service and possession of drug paraphernalia, he was transported to the jail. The officer then found in the patrol car what is believed to be a packet of cocaine, so a charge of possession of cocaine was also logged against the man.

Being held Saturday in the Seminole County jail in lieu of bond was Gary Lee Lewis, 30, of 1 Lake Kathryn Motel, Longwood.

CASH IN CAR

A Lake Mary woman told a deputy someone entered her parked car and took $90 from her purse. The incident occurred Friday between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

According to a deputy's report, Cheryl Ann Deshields, 22, of 5316 Carter Road, said the money was taken while her car was parked at 5344 Carter Road.

There is a suspect in the case.

FLEE AND EASY

A speeding motorcyclist, who successfully fled a deputy only to be easily found because of a witness, has been cited for out-turning the officer.

According to a sheriff's report, the deputy saw a motorcycle traveling about 85 mph in a 35 mph zone in Longwood. The incident occurred around 12:15 p.m. Friday. The officer said the high-speed chase was complicated by numerous noontime drivers and pedestrians, and that the cyclist gave him the slip before he could copy down all of the license plate numbers.

The cyclist reportedly drove behind a home at 102 Knollerest Dr., to evade the deputy but a person in the home called the sheriff's department and reported the cyclist. The deputy went to the scene and located the bike rider.

Cited to appear in court on charges of driving with a suspended driver license, willful and wanton reckless driving, and fleeing and eluding an officer was Lynn McHaul Wilson, 19, of 307 Sweetwater Blvd., Longwood.

DISAPPEAR PARTS

"Oh yeah. It doesn't have an engine either," were among the words that prompted a businessman to reclaim his truck from a former employee and report the disappearance of various parts of the vehicle.

According to Michael Gary, secretary and treasurer of Florida Fence, Fern Park, a former employee had a 1973 company truck in exchange for parttime work. Gary said, however, he decided to cancel the deal made Dec. 15 because the man was unreliable. When he contacted the Apopka man he reportedly told Gary that the truck would have to be towed because it didn't have any brakes. Then he added as an afterthought, "Oh Yeah. It doesn't have an engine either."

Gary said the man told him the motor "blew up" so he took it out and hauled it to the dump. He didn't get a receipt for it, according to the sheriff's report filed Friday.

Also missing from the truck, besides the motor and brakes, are the bumpers, according to the report. The report did not indicate what action might be taken against the man.

Lawyer Wins $15.9 Million Judgment

By Jeff Bater

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — A lawyer, who claimed hatred drove late billionaire John D. MacArthur to coax a client to fire him, calls his $15.9 million judgment against the insurance tycoon's former firm a "great tribute" to justice.

A Palm Beach County Circuit

Court jury's award Friday to lawyer Joseph Farish Jr. may be the largest ever handed down in the county, said Jack Scarola, who represented Farish in a three-week trial.

"I feel great," said Farish, beaming after the verdict. "This is a great tribute to the judicial system."

The jury found that Banker's Multiple Line Insurance Co. meddled in a 1973 contract between Farish and a widowed client, Jill Smith. Farish claimed during the trial that MacArthur hated him because the lawyer had beaten the firm in previous cases and persuaded the young woman to fire him.

Mac Arthur, who died in 1978, once owned Banker's Multiple Line.

Michael Mullen, who represented the insurance firm, said after the verdict that a motion for a new trial would be filed next week. He would not discuss the motion, but said during closing arguments that the firm should not be punished for the actions of a man now dead.

"This corporation is a different corporation than it was in 1973 when it was owned by different people," Mullen said. He added that a Kentucky holding company, ICH Corp., bought the firm in 1984.

In 1973, Smith, then 20 and pregnant, was walking down Highway A1A in Palm Beach Gardens with her husband Donald, 22. A drainage pipe rolled off a passing truck and crushed him to death.

The truck's owners were insured by Banker's Multiple Line.

Mrs. Smith hired Farish and filed suit against the insurance firm.

Scarola said MacArthur despised Farish and could not accept losing to the lawyer again. The billionaire began to seek Smith's favor and lavished the widow with gifts, Scarola said. MacArthur told Smith lies about Farish and urged her to fire the lawyer, which she eventually did, Scarola said.

Scarola said the company hid internal memos detailing a conspiracy to interfere with the lawyer-client relationship between Farish and Smith. The memos showed company officials knew what MacArthur was doing, Scarola said.

He said Smith later hired another lawyer, one who had been handpicked by MacArthur, to represent her. A jury awarded Smith $118,000 in 1976.

Farish sued Banker's Multiple Line, and in 1979, a jury found the firm interfered in his contract with Smith. Jurors awarded $2 million in punitive damages, but the judgment was reversed last year by the Florida Supreme Court because of an error in instructions to the jury.

Scarola said a suit has been filed against MacArthur's estate, also on the grounds that the tycoon interfered in the Farish-Smith contract.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.
New Super "Dream Pill" Lose Weight As You Sleep!
No Dieting — Eat All You Want

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — An amazing new super "dream pill" has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose up to 25 pounds of fat and put on 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure."

This remarkable new diet pill combines two natural substances which cause adults to lose weight fast by "tricking" the body into acting like a teenager. These nutritional substances, called L-arginine and L-ornithine, stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine in Stafford Springs, Connecticut, was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

"Pill Does All The Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation 'diet menus' to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs." The pill is not a drug! It is 100% safe consisting of natural amino acids just like those found in the foods you eat everyday.

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Dirk Pearson and Sandy Shala, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident.

Sandy fell and broke her foot and started taking L-arginine because of its well-known healing qualities. Much to her amazement Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 10 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Dirk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

Lose Weight While You Sleep

One beautiful thing about these miracle pills is the ease with which they work. You don't have to count calories and you don't have to follow special diets or eat special foods. You don't even have to exercise. The best time to take the pills is just before you go to bed at night. That way, the pounds melt away even as you sleep. You wake up every morning, slimmer, happier and feeling younger!

The super dream pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Tax Reform Will Abate Abuses

The Internal Revenue Service, not recognized for apologizing, mailed out 1985 income tax forms to U.S. taxpayers shortly before New Year's with a rare bid for public understanding of its mistakes, which have been monumental. And with good reason.

Last year was a disaster for the IRS, the worst in the agency's history. For more than 60 years, Americans have considered the IRS sufficiently efficient and ruthless to ensure that every taxpayer paid his or her fair share. But after a series of blunders during 1985, the IRS is perceived to be as ruthless and arrogant as ever, but inefficient.

And because the agency's omnipotent image has been seriously compromised, some tax experts fear a significant increase in tax cheating that could cost the U.S. Treasury billions of dollars. "I think a lot of harm has been done...." said Jerome Kurtz, IRS commissioner from 1977 through October 1980. "People ... have a sense that it (the IRS) doesn't have its act together and that it doesn't know what the hell is going on...."

In other words, unprecedented IRS bungling is an invitation to tax cheating. The "audit lottery" has become an attractive, low-risk game to play, according to Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

A sampling of IRS fiascoes during recent months:

- At Austin, Texas, between 4,000 and 6,000 letters from businesses asking the IRS to adjust their tax accounts were destroyed last December without the approval of top officials.

- As many as 63,000 letters from businesses in connection with past-due taxes were destroyed prematurely at Fresno, Calif.

- A clerk in the Fresno service center hid 39 bags of mail, including $800,000 worth of checks from taxpayers, in his home in order to hold down his backlog of work.

- Ninety-two tax returns were dumped into the trash at the Philadelphia service center.

- After announcing a crackdown on questionable tax shelters last year, the IRS fell on its face. Personnel received only one hour of training in the complexities of spotting abusive tax shelters. And this training was not provided until mid-April 1985, by which time many abusive tax-shelter refunds had been erroneously issued.

- The IRS revised its draft manuals on detecting abusive shelters so many times — seven in all — that criteria became so broad the agency would have had to review almost all 1040 forms, according to the General Accounting Office.

- Roscoe Egger, Internal Revenue Service commissioner, recently conceded that 25,000 Americans are still waiting for income tax refunds due in 1985 from overpayment of 1984 taxes. Mr. Egger blamed glitches in a newly installed computer system.

- Although offering assurances that "our new system is up and running," Mr. Egger admitted "we probably are not over the people problem yet." He promised to combat the legendary rudeness and arrogance of IRS personnel with special "sensitivity training."

Inasmuch as the IRS's "people problem" remains — and who doubts this? — the agency is still in deep, deep trouble. A review of its boo-boos confirms that most of them are people-caused and at all levels from top to bottom. Without detracting from IRS employees who are able, polite and conscientious, the proven fact is that all too many of them are as arrogant as they are inefficient. They forget in their dictatorial rudeness that they are servants of the taxpayers, not KGB masters.

We agree with former Commissioner Kurtz that it will take more than rhetoric to mend the IRS.

In fairness, it should be recognized that the IRS doesn't have enough help to handle the 200,000 letters taxpayers write each day. Congress has recognized this and authorized $31 million more than was requested in this year's $3.6 billion IRS budget; 700 additional processors are being added. Fair enough. But until there are basic improvements in organization and attitudes, throwing money and people at IRS inefficiency won't suffice.

Economic And Social Problems Need Fixing

By Arnold Sawinlak
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Find out what went wrong. Fix it. Start again.

That, to their credit, is what most who were asked last Tuesday said should be done about the space shuttle program. It was an encouragingly adult response to a shocking mishap and, one would like to think, it was typical of the American character.

If only we could apply the same "get it right" determination to our current economic and social problems. Obviously, problems of technology are different from those of human behavior, but the American trait of refusing to accept what is as what must be never has been limited to things mechanical.

Some examples.

—Americans invented a successful form of representative government, but the framers of the Constitution sensed their work was not perfect. Perhaps the most innovative feature of the Constitution they created was the means to change it peacefully.

—The United States was formed by people from societies where rigid divisions of class largely determined at birth the course of each person's life. Americans broke that mold with, among other elements of opportunity, universal free education.

—Americans adopted a free market economy developed in the Old World, and with it created wealth, mass employment and a great middle class. But they also recognized abuses inherent in the system and had the wit to devise measured controls that probably saved capitalism at a time when others were turning to systems that promised but never delivered perfection.

These peculiarly American accomplishments generally did not occur in some individual flash of inspiration. They were mostly trial and error, a process that continues in some cases.

But it is hard to see how this American characteristic is addressing such contemporary problems as disappearing jobs, intergenerational poverty and violent crime and punishment.

We simply do not seem to be finding successful ways to train and employ the unskilled, to break the cycle of welfareism or to wean ourselves from the use of deadly force, either in breaking the laws or enforcing them.

The "sea change" of ideology that came to the United States six years ago offered not new answers to these problems but a return to the responses of the past — restoration of an unfettered economy in which strength or cleverness is the primary determinant of survival, application of traditional moral absolutes in personal conduct and tougher penalties, bigger prisons and refurbished electric chairs and gas chambers to deal with crime.

These are based on the central proposition of what we call conservatism — that our recent troubles are the result of abandoning values and systems that served us well in the past.

The people we call liberals continue to question that proposition, posing a conflict that may be the reason that we remain unable to agree on the causes of and the solutions to our most intractable problems.

If we are loyal to our own standards for peaceful resolution of differences, we may be able to work through the conflict to a national consensus. If we are also lucky, we may have the time to do it.

New Jets Too Hot To Fly?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Those within the Pentagon often complain that the brass develop new weapons that are too complex and high-tech for the men in the field to operate. The Navy's hottest jet fighter may be a case in point.

The F/A-18, called the Hornet, is the Navy and Marine Corps' No. 1 attack aircraft. It's the most advanced attack fighter aircraft carried by the fleet; and one of its prime missions is air-to-air combat. The Hornet is made by the St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas Corp. and has been on line since mid-1983.

The Hornet is meant to land both on carriers and on the ground — but the ground landings are a problem.

On the night of Dec. 3, 1985, Navy Capt. Henry Kleemann was landing an F-18 at the Naval Air Station at Miramar, Calif. Kleemann was one of the Navy's top and most experienced fighter pilots; he led the F-14 squadron that was attacked by, and then shot down, two Libyan fighters over the Gulf of Sidra.

It had been raining at Miramar and the runway was wet. The landing seemed normal and the aircraft rolled about 5,000 feet down the runway — but it suddenly began to swerve, first left, then right. It then darted off the runway, spun completely around and flipped over, killing Kleemann.

The accident shocked the Navy; Kleemann was one of its very best. Yet the Kleemann accident — although by far the the most serious — was the sixth such landing mishap involving Hornets. It's reported that in one other accident, a Hornet skidded, flipped over and was badly damaged after landing on a wet runway.

Now experts are raising two questions: First, is the Hornet simply too delicate for ground landings in adverse weather? All of the accidents have occurred either in the rain or the presence of strong crosswinds, or both. Second, are the accidents caused or exacerbated by the plane's complex systems?

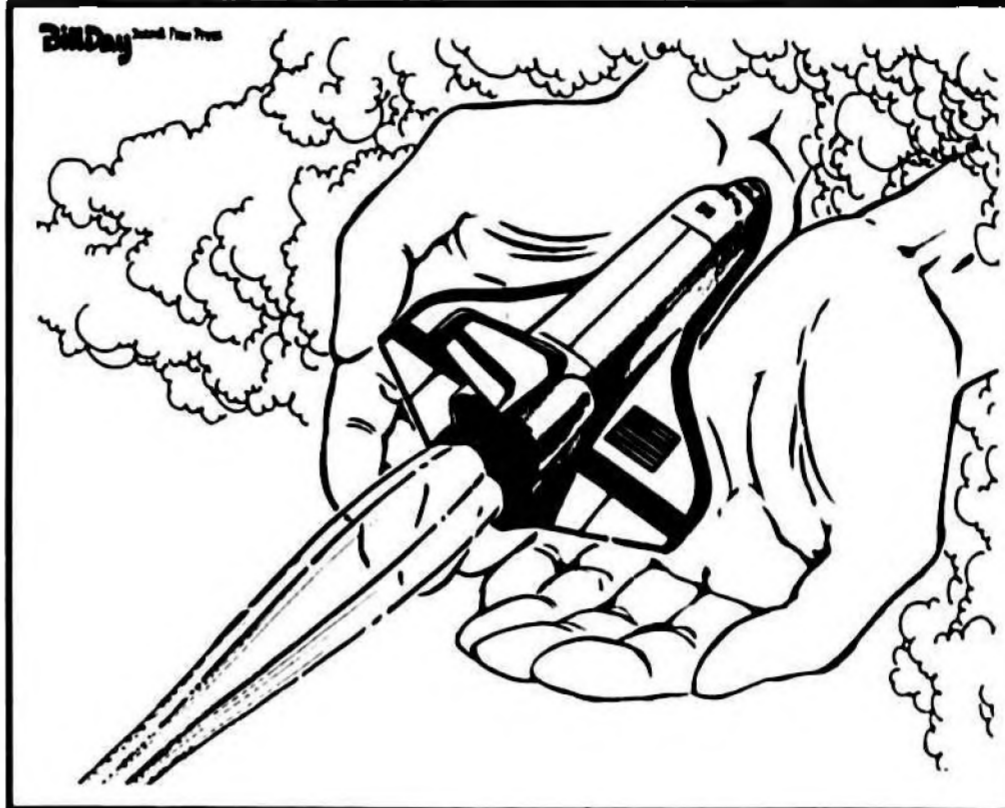

The Hornet is almost entirely computer-controlled, and the computers involved are among the most complex ever put aboard an aircraft. McDonnell Douglas likes to say that the Hornet's computer control is so advanced that the plane can almost land itself. The manufacturer notes that its test pilots have conducted "hands-off" carrier landings in which the plane actually has landed itself.

ROBERT WALTERS

Rethink The Shuttle

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Was this trip necessary?

The trip in question is STS-25, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's designation for the 25th mission of the Space Transportation System, popularly known as the space shuttle.

The post-liftoff explosion that killed all seven crew members aboard that craft was a tragedy, but perhaps the pause required to assess the calamity will produce a thoughtful re-examination of the space program.

The awful truth is that manned flight is wholly unnecessary to fulfill the space shuttle's principal task of launching satellites into orbit.

To understand why there are people aboard, it is necessary to go back to spring 1961, when the Soviet Union defined the terms of space competition by propelling an astronaut into orbit.

President Kennedy promptly responded in kind, committing this country to land a man on the moon and return him safely to earth before the end of the 1960s.

NASA's Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs all were structured to attain that goal — and that meant placing astronauts aboard virtually all of the flights.

After the first lunar landing, which took place in the summer of 1969, NASA was in the difficult position of having to follow its own spectacularly successful act. The agency was not especially enthusiastic about a White House task force's statement later that year that the country should "accept the basic goal of a balanced manned and unmanned space program."

The agency had learned an important lesson in the early years of space flight: People on the ground — the public, the press and the politicians — cared a great deal about manned flights but had almost no interest in unmanned flights.

Almost nobody came to Cape Canaveral to view the unmanned launches of scores of communications, geodesic, meteorological, navigation and other satellites.

When manned flights were scheduled, however, the television networks preempted their regular programs for live coverage and the public was transfixed by the spectacle.

The human drama provided by the astronauts also mesmerized Congress and intrigued the White House — the indispensable sources of political support and federal funding for NASA.

Like other government agencies, NASA was willing to do whatever was necessary to enhance its prestige and enlarge its budget — so the agency fabricated an elaborate myth about the importance of manned space flight.

The astronauts, for example, were to preside over manufacturing processes that could be performed only in space, such as the production of perfectly spherical ball bearings — but efforts to exploit the space shuttle's commercial potential have been very disappointing and the flawless ball bearing remains an unattained goal.

Similarly, NASA offered a vision of astronauts as cosmic handymen, available to fix malfunctioning satellites. No, explained, however, was how passengers on a space ship orbiting the earth at a height of about 200 miles would reach satellites in geosynchronous orbit 22,300 miles above the planet.

Dyslexia Can Be Overcome

By Steven Bredice

BEVERLY, Mass. (UPI) — Success is not the only common thread running through the lives of Albert Einstein, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Robert Rauschenberg, Cher and Bruce Jenner.

These famous people from the worlds of science, politics, letters, the arts, entertainment and sports overcame the same stumbling block on their way to prominence.

All were dyslexic. Dyslexia is a poorly understood central nervous system dysfunction that can turn reading, writing and arithmetic into gritty, almost impossible chores. It affects an estimated 25 million Americans.

To a dyslexic, digits in a telephone number or letters in a printed word might appear reversed. This can bring frustration, embarrassment and humiliation, especially if the cause is not diagnosed.

"Everyday tasks can be very hard, and it can be very frustrating for teachers, because when they find a 12-year-old who can't tell time, they often think he's either lazy or stupid," said Dr. Charles Drake, founder of the Landmark Schools, which are devoted to helping dyslexic children get a quality education.

"The fact is, very few of our kids, if any, were able to make progress in normal school systems. They all have very checkered academic histories," said Drake, who conquered dyslexia on the way to his doctorate in psychology.

In public schools, Gregory Child, an 18-year-old dyslexic from Boxford, Mass., managed to get by with Cs and Bs — without so much as cracking a book.

"I never read a book. Ever. I could read, but I hated it," Child said. "From class discussion on a book, I could get a C or a B on a test. But it was more of a chore than a pleasure."

When Child transferred into a private prep school, the chore soon became impossible. Each night, he stayed up into the small hours trying to plough through his homework.

"I was working five times as hard as everyone else," he said. "I couldn't figure it out. It of course bothered me a lot. I just attributed it to the fact that I had a hard time concentrating."

Finally, Child's French teacher encouraged him to seek help. To day, Child has dug himself out of an educational morass, and has his sights firmly set on a career in yacht design.

MINI-EDITORIAL: What did Congress accomplish last year? We'll give you the statistics: you be the judge: The House was in session for 152 days, the Senate for 170. Together, the two distinguished debating societies filled more than 37,000 closely printed pages of the Congressional Record. They passed 1,179 bills, including 240 new public laws. Only six pieces of legislation — all of which originated in the Democratic-controlled House — were vetoed by President Reagan; one of these vetoes was overridden by Congress. Finally, 55,000 civilian military appointments were confirmed by the Senate.

END RUN IN ATLANTA: The Georgia legislature is trying to ram the proposed highway to Jimmy Carter's presidential library through historic districts of Atlanta and a famous park, even though the state supreme court forbade condemnation proceedings. Construction had already started when the court blocked further work. Now the legislature is considering a law that would authorize the state to finish the road. Neither the ex-president nor Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has agreed to talk to residents who oppose the project.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Insiders on Capitol Hill say the White House quietly decided some time ago to back the candidacy of Corazon Aquino for president of the Philippines in this week's election — at least to the point of backing away from its earlier support of President Ferdinand Marcos. Raiders Stun Florida Junior

Roberts Hands Out 17 Assists As SCC Moves Into First Place

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Basketball

If Tony Roberts had been handing out money Saturday night instead of basketballs, Seminole Community College's Raiders could have banked a bundle of cash.

As it was, they banked their most important victory of the year as Roberts doled out 17 assists in a 72-57 Mid-Florida Conference victory over Florida Junior College before 800 fans at the SCC Health Center.

The victory pulled SCC into first place with FJC in the conference with 8-2 records. The Raiders, ranked fourth in the state, are 22-5. The Stars, ranked first in the state, are 19-5. Daytona Beach, 21-6 and 7-3, remained one game in arrears by beating Central Florida, 63-52. Sanford's Connection of Willie Mitchell (15), Darryl Merthie (12) and Fred Miller (10) supplied 37 points.

Seminole travels to Daytona Wednesday. Florida Junior goes to Valencia Wednesday. There are four conference games left. The conference winner earns an automatic bid to the state tournament. The others play a post-season qualifying tournament.

Florida Junior became the third top-ranked team to fall at the Health Center this year. Previously, Florida College and Santa Fe were also humbled.

Seminole's victory was built on desire and coaching prowess (see related article on page 5A). The Raiders moved to an early lead and then milked the 45-second clock for 30-40 seconds before scoring.

Vance Hall, SCC's 6-8 freshman center, scored 28 points including 20 in the second half when Roberts, freshman point guard Darris Gallagher, sophomore wing Mike Landell and 6-7 forward Greg "Slim" Johnson didn't leave the floor.

It frustrated the Stars, who rely on a fast-paced, wide-open game to wear down their opposition. "That's our style," Roberts said of SCC's Saturday attack. "We'll take the break if its 3-on-1 or 4-on-2, but when we don't have it we're more deliberate."

The deliberation frustrated and eventually broke down coach Buster Harvey's Stars. "We would play good defense for 30 seconds," Harvey said. "Then, they'd make the shot. It was frustrating and I think we hurried ourselves too early."

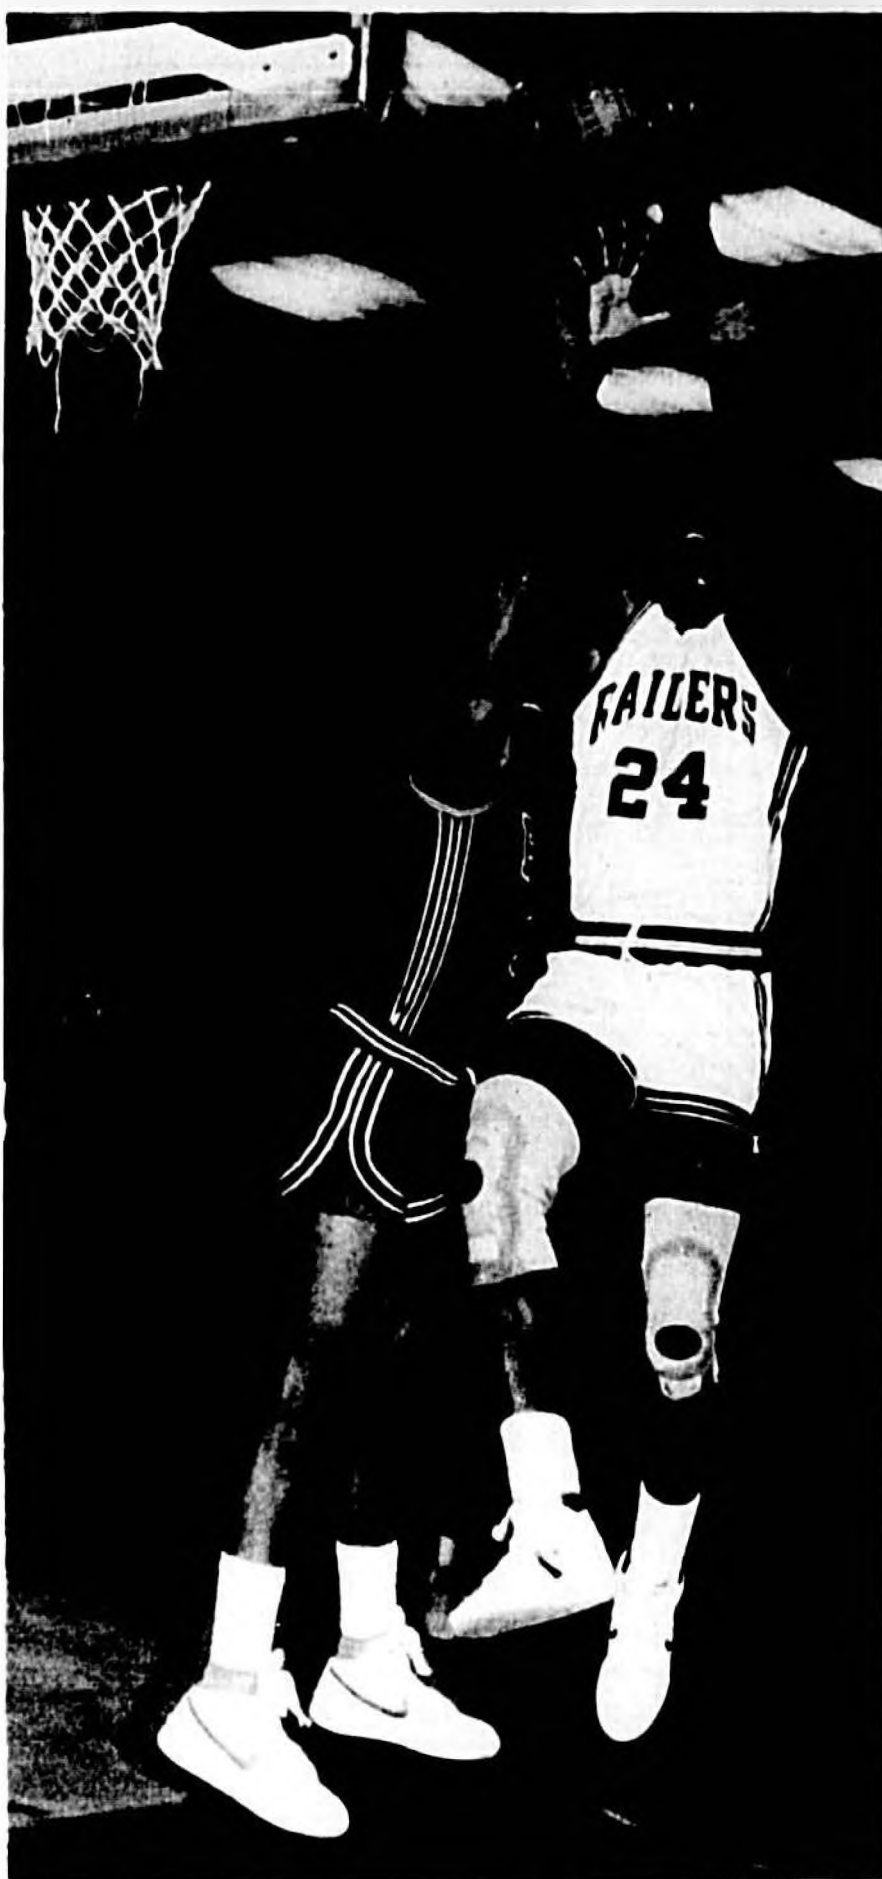

Johnson finished with 14 points and 13 rebounds. Roberts added 14 points and 12 rebounds to his strongest all-around performance of the year. Gallagher was also impeccable against FJC's night-long three-quarter court pressure. Landell had nine points and along with Hall combined for 13 of 16 big free throws.

"We played their style in Jacksonville," Roberts pointed out. "Tonight, we played our game."

Hall set the tone for the game when he reverse dunked for a 4-0 lead. Landell hit consecutive jumpers for a 10-6 edge. Hall followed up a missed free throw and Landell added two more charity tosses for a 14-6 bulge with five minutes gone.

Payne's Masterpiece Was Built On Desire

Bill Payne, presently basketball at Seminole Community College, has outwitted many coaching peers during his career. None, however, was more impressive than Saturday night's masterpiece against Florida Junior College.

Payne overcame adversity, injury and the state's most high-powered and talented offensive team. The Stars aren't ranked first in the state's junior college poll on reputation. These Jacksonville kids can play ball.

But Saturday night. Adversity finished second best to desire. Injury was overcome by heart and the state's most potent offense was runnerup to the state's best defense. The final count was, 72-57.

The defense was so impressive it had official John Robb raving the next day. "They (Raiders) came up some tremendous defensive plays," he said Sunday night. "There were a lot of no calls because of the way they took the ball away."

The fact that SCC beat FJC is not earth-shaking. When Payne's Raiders are clicking on all cylinders, they can vanquish any team in the state.

The impressive aspect was how the Raiders beat the Stars. The Raiders have been without starting point guard David Gallagher (sprained ankle) for over a week. Claude Jackson, a key backup forward, has been out for the same period with the same injury.

Already minus two key players, the adversity took another step away from victory Friday afternoon when three players — sixth men Efreem Brooks and James Morris along with Carl Hackworth — missed practice.

Payne promptly benched them for Saturday's game. He didn't waver. Even though his Raiders were facing the biggest game of the year and a berth in the state tournament — something for which Payne would give his eye teeth — was on the line.

How many coaches would have handled it the same way?

Sam Cook
SPORTS EDITOR

This one did. "It's standard policy," he said. "It never entered my mind to do anything else."

Payne handed out the punishment without malice. Another thing many coaches would have been unable to do. And if the Raiders would have succumbed, excuses would not have been forthcoming.

Payne handed it out because he realizes basketball is more than a game to be won or lost. And junior college is more than a temporary stopover for good players without grades. Or good players developing into great players. And the Raiders definitely have some of the latter.

"We're here (SCC) to teach," said Payne, who emphasizes that his player — as athletic director Joe Sterling did before him — leave SCC with degree in hand. "They're freshmen and they have to learn. That's part of process."

Brooks, Morris and Hackworth were uncomfortable because of the circumstances. They seemed out of place not in uniform and didn't quite know how to behave dressed in civilian clothes on a basketball bench.

"They felt bad," Payne said. "But I think they learned something. When it was all over they were as happy as the guys who played."

With just eight players, the Raiders' odds plummeted considerably. Florida Junior had spanked them by 11 points at Jacksonville and no doubt that weighed heavily on the Stars' minds as they took casual glances at the small group

Rowdiness In The Arena

Poor Officiating, Immature Fans Hinder Players

(Editor's Note: Today's article is the first of two parts entitled "Rowdiness In The Arena." The second part will appear in Wednesday's Evening Herald.)

Covering high school athletic events is my livelihood and it is also something that I thoroughly enjoy. Thursday night, for the first time ever, I considered walking out in the middle of an athletic contest.

No, the Lake Brantley at Lake Howell girls basketball game wasn't a bad game as far as closeness of the score or the desire of the competitors. What made it such a travesty was the officiating — or lack of officiating by Leo Rollman and Dave Morton — and the immature behavior of the spectators.

When I attempted to question the officials about the game, both said they had no comment.

The coaches had plenty of comments, though.

"I don't know where the officials' heads were," Lake Howell coach Dennis Codrey said. "It's too bad that the kids have to put up with the foolishness."

Chris Fister
SPORTS WRITER

The spectators didn't help matters. Ridding the officials is nothing new. It has always been a part of athletic events. But, shouting obscenities at them and making insults about them and their families is uncalled for. Some of the spectators even sunk so slow as to insult players on the opposing team.

In the long run, what these officials and a few obnoxious fans seemed to be doing, was taking the game away from the people it was meant for — the players.

Now I know what they mean when they say stupidity is more difficult to control than evil.

The more I think and try to make sense of what happened, the more sickening it becomes. I've been interrupted by phone calls and writer's block while transferring words from my mind to the computer, but never by the need to bow before the porcelain throne.

● Example: Lake Brantley's Tracy Brandenburg is involved in a vicious collision with Lake Howell's Kellee Johnson. While trainers attend to Brandenburg (during an officials' time out) the other players go to the sidelines to converse with coach Cindy Frank. One of the officials steps in and says the players must go to the center of the court where they could not talk to the coach.

The rule book says, during an injury timeout, the players have to stay on the court, but they can stand wherever they want on the court, and they can talk to the coach," an official, who wished to remain anonymous, said Sunday night. "The officials were wrong if they said the players couldn't talk to the coach."

● Example: Lake Howell guard Erin Hankins is trying to get back on defense to prevent a fast-break layup. However, seeing she cannot stop the basket, she backs off of the player, Hankins, although at least two feet from the player, is still called for the foul apparently just for "being there."

"They (officials) didn't call anything in the backcourt," Codrey said. "But they looked for weird things underneath the basket."

● Example: Lake Brantley's Kim Waln comes down with a rebound with five seconds left in overtime and the Lady Patriots holding a 54-52 lead. Waln, who wore a black eye to school Friday as a result of the game, holds the ball and looks for an outlet when a Lake Howell player comes up and tries to get the ball away from her, hacking her in the process. Lake Brantley celebrates the apparent call against Lake Howell. The foul, though, is called against Waln.

● Example: Brantley forward Michelle Hagan is jostling for position with a Lake Howell forward. Hagan is pushed around pretty hard but no whistle is blown. Then, when Hagan tries to and gets position, she is called for pushing off. She is called for the same thing again with seven seconds left in the game.

● Example: Probably the most outrageous call of the night came with about three minutes left to play. Brantley had just turned the ball over and a few Lady Patriot fans were berating the official for what they thought was a bad call. The official turned to the crowd and called a technical foul on a fan.

Holbert Team Outrides Gloom

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — When dawn broke Sunday at Daytona International Speedway, things looked black for Al Holbert's racing team.

Because of a damaged throttle linkage that cost them 47 minutes in the pit, Holbert, of Warrington, Pa., England's Derek Bell and Al Unser Jr. of Albuquerque, N.M., found themselves 35 laps behind the A.J. Foyt group with nine hours remaining in the 24 Hours of Daytona.

"It was quite a team effort — you saw some wonderful repairs made out there and that stems from the seasoning of my crew," said Holbert, who overtook Foyt with 90 minutes remaining and held on for his first 24 Hour victory here. "What's important is the way the win came. There's one thing I preach to my crew: don't make mistakes from mistakes."

In a startling reversal of last year's race, Holbert's team capitalized on a broken throttle spring suffered by Foyt's Porsche with just 1 hour and 50 minutes remaining and won by 1 minute, 49.15 seconds to share $45,000.

Foyt, shooting for his third victory here in the last four years, had his Porsche 962 in front by six laps before persistent mechanical problems helped Holbert's team take the lead after 661 laps. Holbert drove for more than nine hours to exact his revenge while Foyt's team finished in second place ahead of Jim Busby, of Laguna Beach, Calif., in another Porsche 962.

Pashe Gets First Goal; District: 'Noles, Trinity

Although she's been playing four years for Lake Mary's Lady Rams, Sheryl Pashe has rarely ventured into the offensive end of the field. Pashe, a senior co-captain, is known as a defensive midfielder.

Saturday afternoon, in her last regular season game as a Lady Ram, Pashe scored the first goal of her career as Lake Mary ripped Winter Park's Lady Wildcats, 5-1, at Winter Park.

Pashe's goal was the second of the game for the Lady Rams and turned out to be all they needed.

Soccer

She scored it on an assist from Kelley Broen.

"It was nice to see her (Pashe) score one," Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele said. "She doesn't go on the goal, she (Pashe) got a cross from Broen and one-timed a nice shot over the keeper's head."

The Lady Rams ended the regular season with a 13-5-3 record and will be the third seed

Lake Mary JVs Follow In Championship Mat Steps

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

Lake Brantley High School is turning into a pretty popular place for the Lake Mary wrestling Rams. A week ago Saturday, Lake Mary's varsity took the Seminole Athletic Conference championship. A Saturday past, the Rams came away with the Patriot Junior Varsity Tournament to complete the sweep.

The junior varsity Rams won the tournament with 150½ points over runner-up Lake Brantley (143) and third-place Seminole (109). The other teams that followed included Lyman (104), DeLand (84½), Oviedo (55) and Lake Howell (0).

Even though the Rams only beat the Patriots by seven and one-half points, it was the Rams who dominated the finals. They won five of the 13 matches for the title.

Winning first for the Rams was 103-pound Tim Richmond. Richmond easily won the lightweight title by pinning his opponent in a swift 30 seconds. The second winner of the tournament for the Rammies was Archer at 110. Archer easily disposed of Myriel Reid of Seminole, 11-1.

Another junior varsity Ram who didn't want any hassles on the night was Ed Shuckman at 117. Leading the entire match over his adversary, Shuckman got a pin only 11 seconds after the final period began.

A name familiar to the Ram wrestling program is Johnson. In the Patriot Tournament, there was not exception although no relation to varsity performers Craig and Jeff. Joe Johnson, at 137, took it right to his grappling companion in the finals. Like Shuckman, Johnson led the entire match and pinned his opponent early in the final period.

Supplying the final victory of the evening for the Rams was at 172. Doug Kolbjornsen waited a little longer than his teammates to pin his opponent in the third period. However, Kolbjornsen finally got the job done in 4:56.

The Seminoles had some fine performances from some young grapplers also.

"We had a pretty good tournament," head 'Nole coach Glenn Malolini said. "I really wanted to bring home a trophy, but we didn't wrestle as well in the finals as I had expected."

Two Seminoles who did have a great meet included Cecil Scarbrough at 131 and Shane Jarrells at 190. Both Seminoles won in their weight classes pretty handily.

Scarbrough had it a little easier in the finals than Jarrells did, however, when his opponent didn't show up for the finals. Jarrells won his match 11-9 over Lyman junior David Calliguri.

"It was a great match," Malolini said. "Jarrells doesn't start well, but he's a great come-from-behind wrestler."

Jarrells opened the match giving Calliguri a five-point first period gift. He then answered with and escape, a reverse, three near fall points while his opponent only received a takedown and one penalty point.

After the second period came to a close, Jarrells controlled the entire third period. Jarrells quickly got an escape for one point, a reverse for two and two near fall points while Calliguri was held scoreless for most of the period.

With three seconds remaining in the match, Calliguri got an escape to pull the score to 11-9, but time ran out before he could do anything else.

"Calliguri got the escape and I thought that Jarrells might have been in trouble," Malolini said. "But the kid (Calliguri) couldn't get the takedown to tie the score and the clock ran out on him."

In other grappling action, the Oviedo Lions competed in the Orange Belt Conference Championships at Bishop Moore this past weekend. But like the rest of their season, they just couldn't get it together.

The John Horn coached Lions could only manage to place three wrestlers in the top four in the entire tournament.

At 100, Shawn Dezegel gave the Lions their highest finish by taking a third and at 108 and 130 Kenny Schrupp and Charles Vela added two fourths, respectively.

"We didn't have such a great weekend," Horn said. "I don't feel too bad though. My kids tried their hearts out and that's all I can ask for."

The hosting Hornets walked away with the title over second place Leesburg. The Lions finished in last place, falling a point and one half short of the Jones Tigers for fourth place.

...RESULTS IN SCOREBOARD

In this week's District 3 Tournament.

The top four seeds, Lyman, Lake Brantley, Lake Mary and Lake Howell, will host their first-round matches Tuesday night at 7. There will be an opening round match tonight to determine who plays top-seeded Lyman between eighth-seeded Seminole and ninth-seeded Trinity Prep at Seminole High School.

Lake Mary opened the scoring five minutes into the game Saturday when Broen blasted a shot off a dead ball over the keeper's head. Pashe's goal came 15 minutes into the game and the Lady Rams held a 2-0 halftime lead.

Michelle Mattingly gave Lake Mary a 3-0 lead seven minutes into the second half when she beat two defenders and scored. Winter Park came back within 3-1 when Julie Peters booted in a penalty kick.

Lake Mary sewed up the win with late goals by Donna Rohr and Mattingly. Rohr's goal came on an assist from Marlo Baumester while Mattingly's second goal was assisted by Amy Kurach.

Defensively, Eiselle said Marjan Stonerock, Dorrie Ehlers, Marcie Lazar and Vickie Warner turned in strong performances.

BRANTLEY RIPS SEMINOLE

Julie DeRusso and Colleen Lievertz scored two goals each Saturday as Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots rolled past Seminole High's Lady Seminoles, 6-1, at Lake Brantley High.

The Lady Patriots, ranked 10th in the state, concluded the regular season with a 17-3-1 record with all three losses to top-ranked Lyman, Seminole, meanwhile, fell to 4-14-2 with its fifth consecutive loss.

The Lady Patriots built up a 4-0 lead in the first half with Lievertz scoring the first goal, DeRusso the second and Lievertz the third. Jennifer Josephs booted on in with 1:15 left in the half for a 4-0 lead.

"Of the four goals, that last one (by Josephs) was the only hard shot," Seminole coach Suzy Reno said. "And it gave them a big boost scoring that late in the half."

In the second half, goals by DeRusso and Jennifer McMaster sewed up the victory for the Lady Patriots. Seminole avoided the shutout in the second half when Cindy Benge scored on an assist from Rachel Morton.

"It was the last game of the season so we tried to do some different things," Reno said. "We won't play the same lineup in the districts."

HAWKS, HORNETS TIE

For the fourth time this season, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks wound up in a scoreless tie. This time, it was against Bishop Moore's Lady Hornets Saturday afternoon at Bishop Moore.

The tie gave the Lady Hawks a 7-8-4 record at the conclusion of their second season. A year ago, Lake Howell had an 0-17-1 record.

Lake Howell coach Art Raynor said the game was just as even as the score as the Lady Hawks had 14 shots on goal to Bishop Moore's 13. Lake Howell keeper Darcy Misiak came up with eight saves in recording the shutout including one that Raynor said was on a point blank shot.

Raynor also said defenders Angie Smith and Pam Blanchette did a good job controlling Bishop Moore's scoring tandem of Michelle Eichner and Cris Geltz. Offensively, Raynor said Kirsten Reesman did a good job filling in for injured Tory Campbell.

"Kirsten (Reesman) hit a couple really nice shots," Raynor said. "One shot was headed toward the left hand side of the goal that was deflected by the keeper and hit off the post."

Broennle's Return Sparks Rams

Soccer

Rick Broennle's return to the lineup couldn't have come at a better time for Lake Mary's Rams. Saturday afternoon, Broennle scored the only goal of the game seven minutes into the second half as the Rams blanked Winter Park's Wildcats, 1-0, at Winter Park.

"He (Broennle) looked pretty good for someone who's been out since January 4," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "It was a good time to get him back, not just because he scored the winning goal, but because it gives him another week to get ready for districts."

Lake Mary, ranked second in the state (4A), improved to 16-4-2 for the season. The Rams return to action Wednesday in their final regular season game at home against Bishop Moore.

After a scoreless first half,

Broennle broke the ice seven minutes into the second half. "It was a deflected ball that bounced out to Rick (Broennle) and he shot it in from about 25 yards out," McCorkle said.

Neither team had many scoring opportunities Saturday as Lake Mary took 17 shots to Winter Park's six.

McCorkle said Vinay Jotwani had probably his best match of the year as the Lake Mary defender marked out Winter Park's dangerous attacker Nhan Lee. McCorkle said Kevin Noonan, Chris Riske and Louis Rosen also played well on defense while Jerry Meyers had a nice game up front.

In junior varsity action Saturday, Lake Mary ended Winter Park's unbeaten streak with a 1-0 victory. John Yurick's goal provided the winning margin for the JV Rams.

Lake Mary's JV will try to avenge its only loss of the season Wednesday when it hosts Bishop Moore (JV 5 p.m., varsity 7).

In other action Saturday, Lake Brantley's Patriots claimed the Greater Gainesville Invitational title with a victory over Cocoa Beach.

Brantley, 12-3-6, struck for two goals in the first half and added an insurance goal in the second while getting a shutout from goalkeeper Aaron Kindel. Scoring for the Patriots were Joe Pledger, Mike Shanahan and Chris McManus.

Elsewhere, Lake Howell was blanked by Bishop Moore, 1-0, and Seminole dropped a 2-0 decision to Orlando Colonial.

pumper after a timeout and Johnson scored six of the next eight points for a 24-19 lead with 8:20 left.

Dwayne Taylor, who finished with 12 points, rallied the Stars to within 26-25 with 5:29 left but Gallagher hit a jumper and Roberts, who drove the lane feverishly all night, added a three-point play for a 31-25 lead.

John Crawford, who led the Stars with 18 points, and Taylor eased the Stars within four but Roberts hit a corner jumper and Day dropped a free throw for a 34-27 halftime lead.

The Stars came out pressing and running in the second half. A 10-6 burst pulled them within three with five minutes gone and Payne called a timeout. Hall followed the break with a bucket, an occurrence which would plague became standard procedure the second half.

"Slim and I crisscrossed underneath and broke up to the high post to get open," Hall said. "Once I started hitting, I thought I got to be on."

Florida Junior closed within 42-41 with 12:22 left but Hall dunked on another great fed from Roberts and added the free throw for a four-point lead. Buckholtz, nevertheless, finally evaded Gallagher for two long jumpers to tie the score at 45 with 11:15 to play.

Hall, though, came back with two free throws and a turnaround jumper for a 49-45 lead with 10:18 to go. Crawford came back with two free throws but Hall dunked yet another one and Landell added a free throw for a five-point bulge.

Gallagher and Roberts then combined for a steal and Hall scored again to up the lead to seven with eight minutes to play.

The teams traded baskets for the next four minutes until Crawford hit consecutive buckets to pare the lead to 59-57. On the second, he switched the ball from his shooting hand (left) to his right and popped in a 12-footer with 2:12 to play.

SCC, though, wouldn't fold. Roberts arched a lob to Hall to push the lead to 61-57. After Crawford missed the other end, Hall dropped in two more free throws which started a string of the final 11 points for the Raiders.

Fittingly, Roberts stuffed the final two with three seconds to play.

No assist necessary.

warming up at the other end. Small but mighty.

No one has yet been able to weigh desire. It doesn't register heavy or light on the scale. And defense, which usually finishes second best because of the offensive greatness of today's cagers, is also very dependent on that desire.

You have to want to play defense. It's damn hard work. You have to get down on the floor sometimes. That hurts. Then, you have to get back up when the opponent goes flying by you. That's embarrassing.

Darris Gallagher, Mike Landell, Tony Roberts, Greg "Slim" Johnson and Vance Hall all wanted to play defense Saturday night. And that's half the battle.

Those five players didn't leave the court during the second half. That's endurance.

And not because Payne doesn't have faith in his bench. But as things evolved, it was this quintet's game — to win or lose — even though Payne said he didn't realize he didn't substitute until after the game.

Payne, assistants Dean Smith and Mike Gaudreau, have delivered the message about defense to this year's group. And Saturday night the Raiders delivered the message to Florida Junior.

The Stars shot 35 percent. The Stars didn't take poor shots either. "They were more hungry than us," FJC coach Buster Harvey, still numb from the unbelievable goings-on, said. A coach's cliché, of course, but none was more accurate.

"They took it to us and that's why they're in the other locker room now enjoying it," he said.

"I thought we missed some shot that usually go in. They were easy shots, close to the basket, layups. I don't know why they didn't go in."

Defense. "We talked a lot about team defense," Payne said. "The ball bounced our way a lot and it appeared as though we got a lot of breaks."

Breaks they made possible. Gallagher, filling in for his older brother David, hounded FJC's Verdy Buckholtz unmercifully. Buckholtz had been the key factor the first time with 10 of 11 shooting and 21 points.

"I got pretty tired but I had to suck it up," Gallagher, who played all 40 minutes, said. "My goal was not to let him get anything. But knowing the kind of player he is, that would be tough."

Buckholtz missed his first three shots and finished with 5 of 13 and 10 points. The biggest factor became factorless.

Along with his defensive expertise, Gallagher handled the ball the majority of the time against FJC's relentless three-quarter court press. It was a job which took the greatest of patience. Patience to wheel the ball to Landell and then Roberts counterclockwise, finding the small holes.

Landell, the best defensive player on the floor, seemed to be everywhere always cutting off or interfering. So pumped up was the sophomore from Dudley, England that he said, "I'm not even tired," after the game. "That was fun."

The young man who had the most fun was Roberts. It left him close to speechless. "What can I say? I don't know what to say," he said. "Desire. We know we have to win every game to win the conference. I don't know what to say I'm so excited."

Hall, who made the difference offensively in the second half, had another reason for joy. His parents — Eugene and Mary Hall — made the trip all the way from St. Petersburg for the game.

It was a trip worthwhile. Hall, after getting eight the first half, exploded for 20 points and several crowd-pleasing dunks in the final 20 minutes. He made every big shot.

Once in control by three to five points, Payne had his Raiders milk the 45-second clock, using 30-40 seconds on each possession before going inside to Hall, Johnson or Roberts.

It drove FJC crazy. "We'd play good defense for 30 seconds," Harvey lamented. "Then, they'd hit the shot. It was frustrating. It seemed like the pressure was on us all night."

The Raiders did have one injured player who participated. But that's nothing new, though.

The old man — 28-year-old Johnson — has been doing it all year. This Navy veteran has been a hustling inspiration to his teammates all year.

"Slim goes to the doctor's office every Tuesday," Payne said about Johnson's lower back injury. "That's standard procedure."

Just like his nonstop performances. The 6-7 Johnson scored 14 points, pulled down 13 rebounds and blocked two shots. He must have altered five more. "We knew that defense would win this game," Johnson said. "The more time we used (on offense), the more we took them out of their game."

"If they don't score, we're in good shape."

No one was in better shape at 9:15 p.m. Saturday than the Raiders.

All 13 of them and three coaches.

Lady Hawks Try To Cool Off Lake Mary's Lawson Tonight

Lake Mary's Lady Rams will try to strengthen their hold on first place in the Seminole Athletic Conference tonight when they go up against Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks in prep basketball at Lake Howell High.

Tonya Lawson

The Lady Rams, 14-4 overall, are 5-0 in the SAC with four of the five wins coming on the road. Lake Howell is 14-5 overall and 2-3 in the conference.

Fo. Lake Mary, junior guard Tonya Lawson has been on fire the past few weeks and has upped her scoring average to 15 points per game.

In other games tonight, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots try to avenge an earlier defeat when they go to Orlando Evans while Oviedo has an Orange Belt Conference game at Orlando Jones.

Atlantic, Tip Top Post Wins

Atlantic Bank received scoring from just three players Friday night but it was enough to hand First Federal a 42-18 drubbing in Sanford Recreation Department Junior League basketball at the Salvation Army gym.

Clarence Ferrell tossed in a game-high 18 points while Shawn Washington added 14 and Brian Grayson totaled 10 for the winners. Atlantic Bank, 2-0, built a 16-8 halftime lead.

First Federal, 0-2, got six points each from Jeff Ingram and Adaryl Jones. A. Polk added a bucket.

In Friday's second game, Tip Top Supermarket improved its record to 2-0 with a 28-13 victory over O-2 McCoy's Cleaners. Tip Top and Atlantic Bank battle for first place next Friday.

Richard Anderson led Tip Top with 10 points. Ricky Anderson and John Jones each had six while Thomas Gilchrist had four and Cornelius Moore chipped in two.

Travis Perkins had all 13 of McCoy's points.

Shirley's 24 Lead Brantley Win

Lake Brantley's Barri Shirley scored a career-high 24 points as the Patriots ripped Wymore Career Education Center, 79-56, in prep basketball action Saturday night at Eatonville.

The Patriots improved their record to 8-9 on the season. They travel to Winter Park to face the Wildcats Wednesday. The last time the Patriots met the Wildcats, the 'Cats chipped away at a five-point Brantley lead with under a minute to play to claim a one-point victory.

Shirley, usually relegated to a reserve role, came off of the bench to show his stuff. "Shirley came to play Saturday night," Patriot coach Steve Jucker said. "If he didn't play as well as he did, I don't think we would have won by as much. He really showed me a couple of things."

Mark Moser added 17 points and Brent Bell had nine. Moser had seven assists. Shirley snared eight rebounds. David Hardwick had four steals.

Evert Lloyd Wins Easily

KEY BISCAIYNE (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd needed six games to find her rhythm and then she easily defeated Steffi Graf 6-3, 6-1 in the finals of a $250,000 women's tennis tournament.

The event was sponsored by Virginia Slims. The top-seeded Evert Lloyd earned $40,000 Sunday in defending her title. Last year Evert Lloyd beat Martina Navratilova, who withdrew from this year's tournament because of the flu.

The 16-year-old Graf, who has been playing professional since 1982, served to open the match and was broken by Evert Lloyd. In game six, the second-seeded West German broke back in a game that included three deuces.

Evert Lloyd, 31, broke Graf in the next game, and won at love on her next serve and again broke Graf in game nine to win the first set 6-3.

"I guess I just got going after those first six games," said Evert Lloyd. "It took me a while to get my rhythm going out there."

"Steffi is still a young player and I have the experience on her so I should have been able to get it going against her," she Evert Lloyd. "She's a good young player and she'll be a champion in just a few years."

The second set started off with Graf breaking Evert Lloyd. In the next game Evert Lloyd broke back, winning the game on a questionable call. Graf complained to both the umpire and linesman but to no avail.

From that point, Graf was able to win only four points the rest of the match.

"That call was the turning point of the match," said Graf, who earned $20,000 for her second place finish. "I wasn't able to concentrate much after that because it was a bad call at the crucial point of the match."

"I don't think it would have made that much difference. I've never seen Chris playing as well as she's played this week. There wasn't much I could do against her. I was just confused at the end of the match."

It was the first tournament of the year for Evert Lloyd, who had taken six weeks off since the Australian Open.

the fans can be done, it usually isn't called unless the fans are creating a disturbance that is affecting the play on the court. Although the fans in question weren't acting very much like the adults they appeared to be, they were not on the verge of inciting a riot.

Later, after a discussion with the other official, the technical was rescinded. However, the two fans were asked to leave the gymnasium, which they did. One left without saying much but another lost a chance to salvage his dignity by making an obscene gesture to the official, with the entire crowd looking on.

"It's up to the school administrator to handle the crowd," the anonymous official said. "Officials can assess a technical to a fan and they can assess it to either the visitor or home team if they know the fan is from the team. That is not specifically covered in the rules so the referee has the power to make the decision. I think they (officials) did the right thing in asking for the fans to leave. The person at fault in this case is the school administrator who's duty it is to control the crowd."

Example: Other spectators at the game may not have been as unruly to the officials, but some chose to taunt and shout names at the players. After colliding with Brandenburg, Kellee Johnson received a few choice words from some of the Brantley faithful. The collision was a result of two determined players coming from opposite directions going for the ball.

When Johnson got up and Brandenburg didn't, some people may have thought Johnson was at fault. But nothing could be further from the truth.

Example: On one play, Lake Brantley's Sherry "Ice" Asplen hustled for a loose ball near the out of bounds line and fell, sliding into the bleachers. Asplen, still nursing a tender ankle from a sprain two weeks ago, said her ankle was pinned against the bleachers by a Lake Howell fan. Instead of getting out of the way, or helping Asplen, she said the spectator put pressure on her ankle.

The job of an official, in this reporter's opinion, is to enforce the rules and, if need be, keep the game from getting out of hand. An official should never have anything to do with the outcome of the game. That is up to the players. That's the way it was meant to be.

The officials supposedly have a self-imposed "gag rule" whereas they will not talk to the press concerning anything that happens during a game. "I'm not at liberty to discuss it," official Rollman said. "That was a game, it's over, and I'm not going to discuss it anymore."

If officiating of this nature continues, there should at least be a modification of the rule or else the players and coaches will be the ones "gagging" from disgust and frustration.

However poor the officials handled Thursday night's game, the players still tried their best right down to the last second. No official or fan can ever take that away from them.

And, to the people, for the next time you attend a game — as a parent or just a spectator — keep this in mind: When the players excel, applaud them. When they falter, console them. But never, for goodness sake never, belittle them.

NATION IN BRIEF

Phil Fails To See Shadow; Early Spring On Way

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (UPI) — Punxsutawney Phil, oblivious to his forecast of an early spring, was smuggled back in his temperature-controlled burrow today at the downtown Groundhog Zoo.

At 7:32 a.m. Sunday, Phil reluctantly emerged from his second home on chilly Gobbler's Knob and failed to see his shadow — the legendary sign that winter soon will be over.

About 1,000 people were on hand for the annual Groundhog Day extravaganza at daybreak in this small community in western Pennsylvania.

They cheered wildly when the animal kingdom's chief meteorologist failed to see his shadow. Had he seen his shadow, it would have meant six more weeks of winter, according to lore.

"Punxsutawney says Spring is on its way," announced Groundhog Club President James Means, who, in top hat and tuxedo, presided over the ceremony on the drizzly 40-degree morning.

Below the Mason-Dixon line in Snellville, Ga., groundhog General Lee joined the consensus of the Yankee groundhog that spring was around the corner. He emerged from his burrow at the Yellow River Game Ranch Sunday and stayed outside for 15 minutes before returning to his underground home.

Across the plains in Sun Prairie, Wis., Jimmy the groundhog indicated snow and freezing rain would soon give way to sunshine. In Lander, Wyo., Lander Lil, the groundhog of the Wild West, also predicted an early spring.

Fed Meat Inspection 'Whitewash'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former meat inspection reviewer has charged that Agriculture Department investigators hid evidence that senior officials turned down reports of contaminated meat and poultry, including processed beef covered with feces, hair and flies.

An official with the department's inspector general's office vigorously denied the allegation, outlined in an appeal to be filed today with the U.S. Office of Special Counsel, which investigates complaints of federal personnel abuses.

Seven meat inspection monitors alleged in supporting affidavits that the inspector general's inquiry slanted questions to avoid comments critical of department officials and misrepresented the criticisms it received.

"I tried to tell (the investigator) about my reports being changed," said Norman Lawrence, a former inspections overseer who worked for the department for 29 years. "He said he wasn't interested in hearing about it."

Ruth Blackburn, who monitored meat inspections from 1979 to 1985, described the investigative report as "a whitewash."

The affidavits are being filed in support of an appeal to the special counsel's office by Dr. Carl Telleen, a former inspections monitor for the Food Safety and Inspection Service in Lawrence, Kan.

Telleen was transferred to Washington and out of the inspections branch after complaining that his reports had been altered.

Artificial Heart Patients Well

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A 39-year-old man has become the fourth patient to receive the Jarvik-7 pump to keep him from death while he awaits a human heart transplant.

The operation came just days after the nation's only female artificial transplant recipient received a human organ after a 45-day wait on a mini Jarvik-7.

A spokesman at Presbyterian-University Hospital said there were no complications reported during the five-hour operation that ended at 12:45 a.m. EST today.

Sunday Mary Lund, 40, opened her eyes and squeezed her husband's hand and was described as alert and oriented by her doctors at Abbott Northwestern Hospital in Minneapolis. She received the heart of a 14-year-old girl Friday, after spending 45 days with a smaller version of the Jarvik-7 implanted.

The mini version was banned by the Food and Drug Administration earlier this month. The FDA said it was not approved for human use and needs further tests to see how it affects blood flow and if it damages blood cells.

Lund received the mechanical organ when doctors determined she was near death because of a rare viral attack that destroyed her own heart's pumping capacity. Doctors said it performed flawlessly with her.

Gander Crash Hearing To Start

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials are scheduled to appear this week before a House panel that has been investigating the Dec. 12 crash of a chartered jet that killed 248 U.S. military personnel.

Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Ala., said his investigations subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee has completed a preliminary investigation into the policies and procedures governing the use of charters for military personnel.

The hearing scheduled for Wednesday will take testimony from officials of the Federal Aviation Administration and the Military Airlift Command, Nichols said.

The chartered Arrow Air DC-8 crashed on takeoff at Gander, Newfoundland, after a refueling stop on its flight from Egypt to Fort Campbell, Ky.

Shcharansky To Be Traded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky will be traded this week for up to 12 East Bloc spies in the biggest swap in the postwar era, sources close to the deal said today.

"It could be any day now," said a source in New York's Jewish community, who asked that his name be withheld. A Washington source close to the deal said it was "very sensitive."

Shcharansky, a Jew, has been seeking permission to emigrate since the 1970s.

The swap, six weeks in the making, would free Shcharansky, 38, who has served eight years of a 13-year sentence for spying for Washington — a charge President Carter called "ridiculous."

Gunfight Leaves DeLand Couple Dead

A shooting Sunday afternoon has left a DeLand couple dead and their parents and one of their children wounded in what the Volusia County Sheriff's Department said was a gunfight apparently prompted by a marital dispute.

Sheriff's Captain Edward Carroll identified the victims as Jerry McDowell, 40, and his estranged wife, Lynn.

Mrs. McDowell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith, 2195 Pear Tree Lane, DeLand, and the McDowell's seven-year-old daughter were wounded.

The incident, which was witnessed by the couple's three children and several neighbors, occurred around 5:15 p.m. at the McDowell home, 3734 Saratoga Rd., DeLand, Carroll said.

The shootings appeared to be the result of a "turbulent breakup of the McDowell's marriage," he said. Although the exact circumstances are still under investigation, the incident appeared to result when McDowell confronted his wife on her return to the home, Carroll said.

An argument between the couple ensued and one of their children called the Smiths, who proceeded to the house, he said.

Upon the arrival of Smith, who was armed, the shooting apparently started, Carroll said.

The victims were found on the driveway of the home, and an autopsy is expected to be performed today or tomorrow, he said.

The Smiths were taken to Halifax Hospital in Daytona. Although their condition remains unconfirmed, one is believed to be in critical condition, Carroll said.

One of the McDowell's children, who was struck by a bullet, was taken to West Volusia Memorial Hospital, where her condition is also unknown, Carroll said.

Sanford Teen 'Fine' After Bullet Wounds

A 15-year-old Sanford boy today is recovering from four gunshot wounds inflicted apparently accidentally by a 15-year-old hunting buddy at about noon Sunday.

Jimmy Wesley of 119 Hughes Ave., was "nicked" by three of the .22-caliber rifle bullets Henry Bryant of 113 Scott Drive in Sanford, apparently fired at a snake. But a fourth bullet, which Wesley's mother Obbie said lodged in his thigh, will stay there. She said doctors said operating to remove the bullet would cause greater damage than leaving it alone.

Mrs. Wesley said her son is "fine" today. She said the four shots aimed at the snake "ricochet" and hit her son in the upper and lower left arm, the left shin and thigh.

The rifle didn't have to be cocked between shots and it all happened before the boys really knew what was going on, Mrs. Wesley said.

The boys were hunting rabbits in a field east of Washington Oaks in Sanford when the shooting occurred.

Wesley's father was with him when he was questioned by Seminole County sheriff's deputies at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, where he was treated and released, a sheriff's report said.

Bryant's mother was notified of the shooting, which deputies are investigating as an accident, the report said.

Pamela Slotak of Ocala, Fla., who is assistant manager of Bethany, Okla., and Peggy L. Salisbury, Charleston, W.Va., who has 30 years experience in management of technical personnel.

Longwood resident J.B. Bukewicz, 46, of 170 Columbus Circle, is among the applicants. According to his resume, he is a systems engineer with a computer science group and has 25 years experience in management and engineering.

Roy Wright III, 33, of 1311 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, who has worked for the Seminole County School Board for 13 years, is another area resident interested in the job.

Others include Curtis Ayers Jr., of 521 Liliac Road, Casselberry, who has a degree in marketing and administration with a minor in criminal justice; Thomas F. Dougherty, 1027 Chokeberry Drive, Winter Springs, a retired Navy officer; Ray Provost, Fern Park, who is employed in administration by Freedom Savings & Loan.

Last year, following the resignation of former city administrator David Chacey, the city received 63 applications for the position. Manning served as acting city administrator during that three-month period. William T. Powers, assistant manager and finance director of the city of Perry, was the choice of the commission, but contract negotiations fell through in a disagreement over salary. They had offered Powers $35,000, but balked at his demand for $40,000 and a $5,000 pay raise after nine months. Chacey had received an annual salary of $34,250.

The commission then hired City Clerk Don Terry as city administrator on April 8, 1985 with a salary of $35,000 a year. When Terry resigned and returned to his duties as city clerk, Manning was again named acting administrator on July 1.

Challenger exploded moments later.

The suspect area on the 12-foot diameter booster rocket with half-inch thick steel walls is near or at a joint that connects two of the rocket's four fuel segments together. The joint is just above a ring that holds the three struts that join the base of the 149-foot rocket to the external tank.

The rocket normally is blown away from the tank by explosive bolts when the booster burns out two minutes after blastoff.

The tracking pictures released by NASA Saturday showed what was described as an "unusual plume" 58.32 seconds after launch. The first clear indication of flame from the wall of the booster came 1.5 seconds later.

NASA sources said there is evidence, however, of something abnormal occurring even earlier in the flight.

The space agency's review board met at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., Sunday to review records and data analysis that should hold clues to exactly what happened and possibly how. Marshall is the NASA center responsible for the ship's boosters, its external fuel tank and the three main engines.

William Graham, NASA acting administrator, would not discuss possible shuttle timetables Sunday but he said early indications are the shuttle system is basically sound and will not require extensive re-design.

He said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that it was too soon to say what impact the Challenger disaster would have on the shuttle program, but that the shuttle "is fundamentally a sound system ... and we don't think it will take a very long time to get this problem corrected."

"I think it's great," said haberdasher and ex-city commissioner Eddie Keith as he cleaned the awning at First Street Clothiers. "I think all citizens should get involved."

Boyd Coleman was also doing his part, sweeping the sidewalk in front of his Gifts by Nan shop while calling the commissioners' efforts "fine, just fine."

As a protector of the downtown district through his membership on the Sanford Historic Preservation Board, Lon Howell termed the cleanup "great."

"It's a solid and very important effort," he said.

The commissioners said their purposely conspicuous presence on Saturday was a way to get their aesthetic message to as many residents as possible.

"We're demonstrating what we all ought to do to help the city," said Farr.

"If people see us, they might go home and clean up their own neighborhood," Thomas said.

Mercer certainly took stock in his colleague's advice. After the commission's clean sweep, he spent the rest of Saturday morning cleaning the street in front of his house. —Karen Talley as required by state law.

Colbert said he is prepared to cite case law to dispute this contention.

"We believe all that we originally did was proper," Colbert said.

This morning's roll call vote was described by Colbert as "an abundance of caution, added insurance. They say they've found a flaw because the individual votes were not specifically set out in our (condemnation) resolution. We're taking an extra step to dispute this."

Sanford filed its condemnation suit two days after the county entered into a Yankee lake purchase agreement with Jeno Paulucci. Both governments vied for the property last fall as site for their respective waste management efforts.

Today's dismissal hearing will be followed by Thursday's meeting of representatives from Sanford, Seminole County and state Department of Environmental Regulation, who will discuss the possibility of a joint waste management arrangement that could lead to an out-of-court settlement of the land dispute.

Elderly Patients Get Good Mileage From Jogging Suits

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted in Ontario" complained that her niece had sent a 78-year-old uncle who was terminally ill in a nursing home a jogging suit for Christmas.

Dear Abby

"Disgusted" said: "This same idiot niece sent me a 10-quart kettle. I'm a widow, living alone in a small condo, and I can't imagine where she got the idea I could use anything like that."

Abby, please tell "Disgusted" that a jogging suit is a very appropriate gift for an elderly person in a nursing home. And she can use the 10-quart kettle to soak her head!

DISGUSTED WITH DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Did I get letters! Read on.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a nurse's aid in a nursing home, and I'd rather see the male residents in jogging suits than pajamas. Most of the time their flies are wide open.

SEEM AN EYEFUL IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: I have an 88-year-old mother who is frail, but she lives in her own home. This lady has always been very proper and had never worn slacks in her life, but last year her granddaughter sent her a powder-blue jogging suit, and it changed her way of living! Abby, she laughed when she saw it, but after trying it on she didn't want to take it off.

I went right out and bought her five more jogging suits in pretty bright colors, and they are now her uniforms. Not only that, but some of her "girlfriends" who have visited her have picked up on the idea, and now they all wear jogging suits.

M.J.L., ELMIRA, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a nurse in a nursing home for many years, and I think the jogging (or warm-up) suit is the best invention since the wheel.

No matter how inactive a resident is, we "get them up" every morning even if it is only to get them out of bed and place them in a wheelchair. They always feel (and look) more "dressed" in a jogging suit than a bathrobe.

A handicapped, stroke or paralyzed patient is not always completely covered, and need not worry about being exposed while in the wheelchair or being transferred from chair to bed.

ALL FOR JOGGING SUITS

DEAR ABBY: May I say a few words about jogging suits for patients in a nursing home? My mother is in a nursing home in the Midwest, and once she wore a jogging suit, she would wear nothing else. They are a godsend to nursing home attendants who must dress and undress the residents.

Many elderly people have poor circulation and are continually cold: warm-up suits offer warmth. Many complain of dry, delicate skin, which is irritated by most fabrics: the warm-up suits are soft and cuddly. Many older people spill food and drink: warm-up suits are easy to launder and require no ironing.

There are other advantages: no small buttons for arthritic hands to fumble with; no trouser zippers to fight when a trip to the bathroom is urgent; no tugging, pulling or binding when lying down. One can not only lounge in them comfortably, but sleep in them, and they are acceptable attire for receiving guests where many are embarrassed by pajamas.

One might also want to investigate athletic footwear for older people. They are comfortable, provide support and cushioning, and are much easier on swollen joints than leather shoes. Their notched rubber soles are an important safety factor, and they're washable.

DEAR ABBY: How ridiculous to assume that jogging suits are used only for jogging. My husband has worn cowboy boots for years, and he's never been on a horse.

Senior 4-H Members Take Top Honors In District Horse Bowl Competition

Senior 4-H members took top honors in six-county District Horse Bowl competition held in Volusia County in January.

Members of the Senior team will now go on to compete in the Annual Florida 4-H State Horse Bowl to be held at the Central Florida Fair in Orlando, March 8.

The 4-H District awarded each member of the Senior team a scholarship to be used for travel expenses to the State Bowl. Members of the Senior team were: Barbara Ann Buccino, Longwood, a member of Nickers & Neighs, Debbie Sargent and Tiffany Wallace, both of Sanford and members of Nickers & Neighs, and Laura Hardman, Longwood, a member of Bits 'N' Boots. The Seminole County Junior team placed fourth in their division.

Members of the Junior team were: Allison Wallace and Jenny Brotsch, both of Sanford and members of Nickers & Neighs. Andrea Massey and Jennifer Bilotta, both of Longwood and members of Nickers & Neighs. The primary objective of the State 4-H Horse Bowl is to provide an opportunity for 4-H youth to demonstrate their knowledge of horses in a competitive setting while ensuring an attitude of friendliness and fairness.

Home Landscape Program To Be Held At Agri-Center

The Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service will offer a short course on home landscape maintenance on Saturday, Feb. 8. The short course will be held in the Agri-Center Auditorium, located at the Five Points Seminole County Operations Center, one mile south of Lake Mary Blvd., off Hwy. 17-92. The program begins promptly at 9 a.m.

Topics to be covered include: pruning practices, watering trees and shrubs, turfgrass culture, and mowing and de-thatching demonstrations, weather permitting. Residents new to Florida who want to learn more about taking care of their lawns and landscapes are encouraged to attend. There is no charge for the program.

Program Is A Compromise

By AL ROSSITER, JR.
UPI Science Editor

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The space shuttle was conceived during the crest of the Apollo project as a revolutionary break from the past to serve as the bridge to America's future.

The dreams were great, the expectations high. But from the beginning, the program was shackled by a shoestring budget and unrealistic goals. The shuttle is a product of compromise.

That the winged spaceships have flown successfully 24 times is a tribute to the same kind of technological perseverance that surmounted overpowering obstacles to put men on the moon.

That Challenger's 10th flight ended in disaster is testimony to the fact that man is not infallible. His machines can fail. Sometimes his best efforts are not good enough.

The space shuttle was a bold step forward in the effort to provide easier access to orbit. Never before had a rocket, or a spacecraft, been designed to fly more than once. The Saturn 5 that shoved men to the moon only had to operate for a matter of minutes.

The development of a spaceship able to take off like a rocket but land like an airplane, able to make 100 flights into orbit and back, big enough to carry a bus and safe enough to carry relatively untrained passengers was difficult.

But it was accomplished. $1.6 billion over budget and nearly three years behind schedule.

Money was no obstacle to the Apollo moon program. When a technological obstacle lay ahead, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had the resources to simultaneously try different approaches to get around it.

Not so with shuttle. Because of severe fiscal constraints from the start, its development was keyed to a "success-oriented" schedule. As long as everything worked, the project was all right. There was no room for money for error.

The gamble backfired. There were major developmental problems and as a result the initial shuttle space flight was delayed from 1978 to April 1981.

The severity of the shuttle's problems began to crystallize in the summer of 1977 when a House space science subcommittee criticized both NASA and its contractors.

"The space shuttle program has been austere from the very beginning and program reserves have been inadequate to cope with cost growths and schedule delays, which have resulted from work deferrals from one year to the next throughout the life of the program," said committee chairman Don Fuqua, D-Fla.

In 1978 a National Research Council committee expressed concern that pressure to get the shuttle flying and to keep extra expenses to a minimum might lead to corner cutting in crucial tests then underway of the shuttle's main engines. NASA said safety was paramount and always would be.

The panel, which investigated the program at the request of Congress, said the plan then to launch the shuttle Columbia by March 1979 "is so compressed it generates an atmosphere that seems to inhibit realistic evaluations of the problems encountered so far."

An independent evaluation in September 1979 by a committee established by NASA concluded that the shuttle system "faces significant development and operational challenges and uncertainties."

"In the effort to live with funding limitations while still progressing acceptably toward common, shuttle management has generally set up work schedules that demanded more performance than could be delivered."

But until Tuesday, it appeared the shuttle's serious troubles had been licked.

Columbia had returned from orbit 10 days earlier and NASA's target of 15 shuttle missions this year seemed within reach.

The loss of Challenger and its crew of two women and five men has at least temporarily crippled the shuttle project, and with it the nation's space program.

The entire effort faces a tough period of retrospection. Whether the shuttle program will emerge stronger — as Apollo did from the fire that killed three astronauts on the launch pad 19 years ago — depends on the will of the White House, Congress and the American public.

Congress and the people have yet to be heard from. But NASA and President Reagan vow to press on.

"We'll continue our quest in space," the president said after the accident. The gamble backfired. There were major developmental problems and as a result "There will be more shuttle flights and more shuttle crews and, yes, more volunteers, more civilians, more teachers in space."

And at Friday's memorial in Houston to the dead astronauts, Reagan promised a space station will be built.

Because of the shuttle's spectacular string of flight successes, NASA and the nation's aerospace industry placed increasing dependence on the shuttle as an orbital cargo hauler. Assembly lines for two expendable rockets used for decades to launch satellites have been shut down.

Only the Air Force's big Titan 3 remains in production, thanks to an order for 10 placed by the Air Force as a hedge against just the kind of catastrophe that occurred Tuesday.

The Search For Causes

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — America's space shuttles are flying bombs, heavily monitored and full of back-up systems intended to prevent the kind of inferno that consumed Challenger in history's worst space disaster.

The shuttle's fiery demise thus poses a complex riddle for engineers desperately seeking the cause.

In addition to its two enormous solid-fuel booster rockets, the shuttle uses 17-inch-wide fuel lines feeding three liquid-fueled rocket engines that develop 37 million horsepower — the equivalent of 23 Hoover Dams.

With that kind of power, nothing can be left to chance. Myriad electrical and mechanical systems are constantly monitored to provide fail-safe operation, a design philosophy credited with 55 successful manned spaceflights in a row before Tuesday's horrifying explosion.

To pin down just what turned Challenger into flaming debris in the blink of an eye, NASA is conducting a massive investigation, during which the agency will not discuss possible failure scenarios.

The blast not only killed the shuttle's seven-member crew, it also destroyed one-quarter of the nation's manned spaceflight capability.

A review board is scrutinizing miles of computer printouts and examining videotapes searching for hints of any abnormality. The debris of the explosion is being collected for analysis.

Still, attention has focused on three possibilities.

— A Leak in Challenger's thin-walled 500,000-gallon external tank.

— Trouble with one of the ship's twin solid rocket boosters.

— Problems with the three powerhouse main engines.

The 154-foot external tank, built by Martin Marietta, carries more than 385,000 gallons of explosive liquid hydrogen and some 143,000 gallons of liquid oxygen to power the shuttle's three main engines.

The external tank serves as the structural backbone of the shuttle system, handling the 6.6-million-pound thrust of the main engines and solid rocket boosters.

Videotapes of Challenger's launch clearly show a flickering flash of fire around the lower end of the huge tank 72 seconds after liftoff.

A second burst of flame suddenly appears one-third of a second later about halfway up the tank, directly under the shuttle — and in another tenth of a second an immense explosion under the crew cabin swallows the shuttle in a ball of churning flame and debris.

The structural connection between the tank and shuttle is provided at two points near the rear of the orbiter, where the giant fuel lines are joined to the belly of the shuttle with explosive bolts so the tank can be jettisoned once the shuttle reaches orbit.

The sixth space shuttle mission — Challenger's first — was NASA's first use of a new lightweight fuel tank that allowed the shuttle to carry a bigger payload weight into orbit.

The tank weight reduction was accomplished by removing some structural "stiffeners" running the length of the hydrogen tank, modifying major sections of the hydrogen tank and switching to lighter but stronger solid rocket attachment fittings.

A leak in the hydrogen tank would have allowed explosive fuel to fall into the flame of the main engines.

engines and rocket boosters, creating an explosive environment with deadly consequences.

Get Guidelines To Avoid Overdosing

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm concerned that I might be "overdosing" on vitamins. Where can I find the RDA for my group (age 66, 5 feet 8, 137 pounds)?

DEAR READER — The Recommended Daily Allowance for vitamins and minerals can be found in most diet books, medical textbooks and diet brochures. These are available in your local library, at your hospital's library or from any certified nutritionist in your community. I have found the following references to be useful: "Vitamins and Minerals: Help or Harm?" by Charles W. Marshall, Ph.D. (George F. Sickley and Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19106).

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says I am a borderline diabetic and put me on a diet. I've started walking and am up to three miles a day. One of my worst complaints is tiredness. My energy doesn't last long. I'm 49 and in menopause. Will the diet and exercise control the diabetes, or must I look forward to being put on medication? Sometimes I cheat with a small dish of ice cream, but I'm doing all I can.

DEAR READER — Tiredness can result from a wide variety of problems, including diabetes, anemia, low thyroid and menopause. If your doctor has found you to be normal (except for your blood sugar), I think it is likely that strict dieting and exercise will, in time, correct your borderline diabetes. Your tiredness should improve as your weight and blood sugar fall. I don't know whether you will require medication; that is a decision best left to you and your doctor. The important consideration now is that you follow instructions and do the best you can.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My boyfriend has an itching on the end of his penis and a pressure-like feeling in the testicles after sex. His other girlfriend is prone to yeast infections. I'm not, although I did have a slight infection one time, but that cleared up without treatment. Can you tell me what might be causing his problem?

DEAR READER — I think he has too many girlfriends. Perhaps he would have less pressure and itching if he were to limit his affections to one partner. Evidence clearly shows that multiple sexual partners increase the risk of an astounding assortment of venereal diseases, not only for the central character, but for everyone with whom he or she has relations.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
A thoughtful play by defender West went for naught when declarer kept his own thinking cap tight on his head. Declarer won dummy's diamond ace to take a spade finesse. If West wins the king, it's simple for South to draw trumps and then play a heart to dummy to take a club finesse. When that works, declarer has enough tricks for the slam — five spades, two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs. West was up to a clever play often missed by greedy defenders who grab their tricks quickly. He casually refused the spade trick led around to declarer's queen. He wanted to encourage declarer to waste an entry to dummy to try the spade finesse again.
What about declarer? He did plan to return to dummy for what he presumed would be another successful spade finesse and so played a low heart to the queen. But then he was shrewd enough to consider the remote possibility that West might be trying to hornswozzle him. Was there anything he could do to neutralize such a nefarious play?
Of course. He played dummy's diamond queen, on which he jettisoned his heart ace. Now when East showed out on the spade led from dummy, South went up with his ace and played another spade. West won the king, but now what? A red card would put declarer in dummy and a club would be doing declarer's work for him.
When a finesse works, always remember that an astute opponent may be holding up his winning card to lead you astray. Look for ways to counteract his stratagem.
