Hospitalized biker paid a visit

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — A hospital patient undergoing cancer treatment has an old friend for a roommate: his Harley-Davidson motorcycle.

Mike Ewing, a member of a local bike club, donned a bandanna and leather riding gloves Tuesday when his buddies wheeled his 1972 Electra Glide into his room at St. Joseph's Medical Center.

Ewing, 33, a tow-truck driver and South Bend area resident, has been hospitalized for three months undergoing treatment for lymph cancer. His wife, Pamela, and nurses thought it might lift his spirits to see his prized bike.

So fellow riders Donald "Animal" McCarty of Niles, Mich., and Bob Folk of South Bend, with hospital permission, drained the oil and gasoline from the motorcycle's 1200 cc engine, and rolled the machine into a hospital elevator for the ride to Ewing's sixth-floor room.

"When one's down, we're there to help them out," Ewing said. "We're all family."

Judge suspended after scolding

NEWARK, N.J. — A judge who berated a woman for being an unwed mother, telling her that children born out-of-wedlock end up in jail or are shot, was suspended Wednesday by the state Supreme Court's chief justice.

Justice Robert N. Wilentz removed Superior Court Judge Eugene P. Kenny after listening to a tape recording of the 76-year-old jurist lecturing the woman, Debbie Rivera.

Rivera, 27, of Jersey City said Kenny turned her court appearance into a lecture on morality.

"He just came out of the blue, screaming and yelling," Rivera said. "I went there for justice, and instead I got discriminated. I want him to be disbarred from the bench."

The matter is being referred to the Supreme Court for consideration, Wilentz said in a statement.

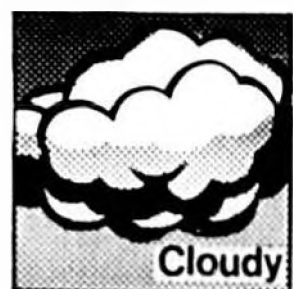

On March 25, Rivera went to Hudson County Special Civil Court to recover $300 from a check-cashing agency she accused of short-changing her. The judge ruled against her.

LAKE MARY — A new Postmaster will take over management of the Lake Mary Post Office Saturday.

Richard Sherrill has been transferred to the Lake Mary facility from the position he has held for the past 6 years as Assistant Postmaster in Winter Springs.

Born and raised in Oklahoma, Sherrill, 41, has been with the postal service for 12 of his 16 years as a Florida resident.

"One of the main projects I see at my new location," he said, "will be to make sure the post office is capable of continuing to meet the needs of that fast growing city." Sherrill said, "Having served in Winter Springs, which has been another rapid growth area of Central Florida, I feel I am well acquainted with the needs of such rapid growth areas."

Sherrill

Sherrill will be taking over the Lake Mary operation following the resignation of former Postmaster Naomi Wallace who retired August 31, 1990.

Wallace had served in the post during the construction and early months of operation at the new Post Office facility on West Lake Mary Boulevard which opened in September of 1989.

Since Wallace's retirement, the post office has been managed by John Boyce who supervised the operation for three months, and Bob Borak who took over last November 30.

Borak said he would now be returning to his normal duty as a postal manager in the Orlando area.

Panther fans support tag sale

Specialty plates vie for Seminole residents help

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Though not as popular as the Manatee auto license tag, the state "panther" tag does have its fans.

A total of 331 of the automobile tags have been sold in Seminole County since they were first offered last October. Statwide, 8,140 have been sold by March 1. By comparison, 9,288 Manatee tags have been sold in Seminole County since they first went on sale in March 1990, according to information provided by the Seminole County tax collectors office.

Statewide, 98,007 Manatee tags have been sold since they first went on sale.

There are currently 29 specialty tags available to Florida motorists. Tags are available commemorating the Challenger space shuttle crew and bearing the emblem of state universities. Other tags are available to only special groups, such as prisoners of war and Pearl Harbor survivors.

The Legislature currently has 10 more specialty auto tags in various steps of approval. The Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday approved a Patriot tag for Persian Gulf veterans and sent it to the full Senate. A bill to create a Save Our Children plate cleared the Finance, Taxation and Claims Committee.

The Finance panel last week approved bills for eight other specialty tags for the Special Olympics, Ducks Unlimited, marine turtles, Vietnam veterans, all veterans, Purple Heart recipients, Coast Guard Auxiliary members and Civil Air Patrol members.

A panther tag, actually called the "Florida Communities Trust" license plate, costs an additional $27 per year above the renewal rate, which is $22.50 for a mid-sized car. There is a one-time $10 plate charge when the tag is first obtained.

Of the $27, $2 is an administrative fee. The remaining $25 is divided into three portions to pay for different state environmental protection and education programs.

Half the fee, $12.50 from each tag, goes to the Florida Panther Research and Management Trust Fund, administered by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, Tom Logan, chief of the game and fish commission bureau of wildlife research, the fund is used to help the state's $500,000 annual effort to protect the remaining Florida panthers.

There are believed to be anywhere from 30 to 50 Florida panthers remaining in the wild today. Most are believed to be in the Everglades and Big Cypress National Preserve, but evidence has been confirmed to show panthers have roamed as far north as central Florida along the St. Johns River, said game and fish commission spokesman Mary Davis.

Logan said the state mainly researches panthers in the south Florida area, learning of their ways and the diseases that harm them. He said no use for the $53,000 from panther tag sales have been established, but he said the tag money will probably be used to

Saporito scoffs at rumors

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee does not believe rumors that committee members publicly promoted Democratic campaigns last year.

"I suspect that nothing is there," said party chairman Mike Saporito. "I think it is either a case of either posturing by some future candidate or Monday-morning quarterbacking. There's no way he could've won except.... that sort of thing."

Last month, Saporito called for an investigation into persistent rumors that some committee members had publicly promoted Democratic opposition candidates, a violation of the party loyalty oath. Such actions are grounds for removal from the committee, but not without a two-thirds vote of the committee, Saporito noted.

"Even if something were proven, it would take two-thirds of the committee to remove them," Saporito said.

Although Saporito said the inquiry might add some credibility to the rumors, he felt committee members

A retaining wall is the protective wall built to prevent rainfall from washing away earth near buildings constructed in sloping areas. Those walls constructed around individual homes or developments where there is no need for holding back water or earth erosion are not considered to be retaining walls, and are not included in this ordinance.

Lake Mary dedicates tree for Arbor Month

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — Members of the Lake Mary City Commission and visiting members of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County joined together in dedicating a newly planted tree at Central Park, on the South side of City Hall Wednesday night. The tree, dedicated in keeping with April being Arbor Month, will be used as the city's official December holiday lights display.

John Holland, Lake Mary's Parks and Recreation Director said he and a crew had spent a considerable length of time in finding a suitable tree.

"Would you believe," he said, "the one we chose was located right in back of the City Hall on right of way property."

Holland said the addition of the tree was another step in the continuing work at Central Park, which will be fully dedicated in a city wide observance scheduled for May 4, complete with a number of events for all ages as well as entertainment.

The installation of the tree was part of a continuing effort by the CALGO Council. Lake Mary City Commissioner David Meador, who chairs the council, extended the city's appreciation to the group for the tree.

Legislature to vote on budget

No tax hikes, but cut in services predicted

By BILL KAGZOR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles tried to find a cure for his ailing health care proposals at a hospital while the Legislature prepared to take some bitter budgetary medicine.

The House and Senate were scheduled today to vote on differing versions of a $28 billion-plus state budget. But both had something in common: no major tax increases and deep cuts in services to make up a $1.4 billion shortfall in revenue.

That austerity is threatening to kill two proposals Chiles has made top priorities: a $91.5 million "Healthy Start" plan to increase prenatal care for poor pregnant women and money to offset a $61 million deficit in an indigent health care fund.

In an effort to breathe life into Healthy Start, Chiles arranged a tour Wednesday of the neonatal intensive care unit at Tallahassee Memorial Regional Medical Center.

The governor and several lawmakers were shown a 4-day-old baby, born eight or nine weeks premature, whose mother had received no prenatal care. The baby has fetal alcohol syndrome and apyphills and is addicted to cocaine.

She has had bleeding on the brain and numerous transfusions. She has a problem with her digestive system.

Patterson said the baby probably will be hospitalized as long as four months at a cost of up to $3,000 a day. Chiles stressed that prenatal care can be provided for $400 for each mother.

The governor said a House plan that pared his proposal to $60 million was a better start on Healthy Start than a Senate version allocating only $20 million.

Chiles wants to pay for his programs by replacing an existing 1.5 percent assessment on hospital net revenue with a sliding fee schedule based on the amount of charity care each institution provides. Hospital lobbyists have dubbed the proposal a "sick tax."

House is home

A lone osprey hovered over the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford this morning, possibly deciding if this house could be called a home. With wings and talons extended, the bird landed on the roof of the building, ready to build a nest with a view of the St. Johns River.

Sweetheart swindler stumps cops

Associated Press

KENOSHA, Wis. — A man accused of being the "sweetheart swindler" who romanced women across the nation and then bilked them of their savings has so far stumped investigators trying to determine his true identity.

Authorities said the man held in the Kenosha County jail under the name of Robert J. Koch is believed to have used dozens of aliases to steal money, blank checks and credit cards from his victims.

"To find out who he really is looks next to impossible," Lt. Dennis Conrad said Wednesday. "The FBI has been checking for four days. They've got nothing."

Leads and criminal arrest warrants have poured into the office from across the country and Canada since Koch's arrest. But authorities said his many aliases have frustrated efforts to establish his true identity.

On Wednesday, the possibility that Koch, 50, who gave a Louisville, Ky. address, is a 50-year-old man wanted by police in British Columbia, Canada.

A number of Canadian agencies have criminal complaints against that man, who is believed to have used five aliases there as he accumulated 87 drunken driving arrests, Kenosha police said.

The story of the "sweetheart swindler" was shown recently on the television program "Unsolved Mysteries," but authorities said the telecast apparently did not figure in Koch's arrest.

Kennedy nephew named as rape suspect

The woman reported meeting the Kennedy group late Friday or early Saturday, then going to the estate "for a couple of cocktails," Terlizze said.

Smith, a student at Georgetown University Medical School and the son of Sen. Kennedy's older sister, Jean Kennedy Smith, and the late Stephen Smith, a New York businessman, had not been available for comment until he released a statement Wednesday night.

Burglary, grand theft under investigation

LAKE MARY - Electrical and hand tools have been reported stolen from a pad-locked van at Heathrow Elementary School on Markham Woods Road. Gary L. Preston, who reported the incident said he became aware that the vehicle had been tampered with when he found two pad-locks that had been used to lock the rear door, lying on the ground Monday morning.

Among the items listed as missing were a Homelite generator, a tripod, a chainsaw, a cut-off saw, four extension cords and several hand tools. Reports said the vehicle, a 1979 Ford Stepvan, was being used for storage by W.W. Daniels Construction Company of Lake Mary.

Officers from the Seminole County Sheriff's department are conducting an investigation into the burglary and grand theft incident.

Two arrested after straddle dance

FERN PARK - Two persons were arrested by a plain clothes deputy of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Tuesday, and charged with violating the County's Adult Entertainment Ordinance.

The deputy, at the House of Babes, 6400 Highway 17-92, reported seeing dancer Jerry D. Stringfellow of Orlando, who uses the professional name of "Mercedes", performing a straddle dance with Clint Fowlkes of Lighthouse Point, Florida, a patron of the club.

Both persons were arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. While there, a further check was made, and it was discovered that there was an outstanding bench warrant on Stringfellow, issued by Judge Davis March 13, 1990. The warrant was said to have been issued in a case of failure to appear in court on charges of resisting arrest with violence and driving under the influence of alcohol. Stringfellow is being held in jail without bond.

Gun reported stolen from parked car

SANFORD - A gun was reported stolen from a vehicle parked at Hopkins Meal Packing, 900 Michigan Avenue in Sanford early Tuesday afternoon.

The owner of the 1983 Ford Escort, Laurie J. Markey of Deltona, said the missing .357 caliber Smith and Wesson handgun was in a security encased holster, and hidden under some clothing on the front seat of her vehicle.

Deputy Alan Tyrrell of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department is continuing an investigation into the case.

Paul Tremel put on road authority

By NICK PFERPAUF

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Commissioner Paul Tremel was elected last night to represent the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County on the County's Expressway Authority.

Following a lengthy discussion during which time four separate candidates were considered, Tremel was given unanimous approval on the second vote. The other three suggested candidates were Oviedo Councilperson Ida Cook who was named to the position by her City Commission, Mary Joe Miller named for reappointment by Commissioner Whitey Eckstein of Sanford, and Winter Springs Commissioner Cindy Kachler.

Both Cook and Kachler expressed concern that their cities could be properly represented by the person selected, especially in consideration of a major expressway exit in their areas. Tremel assured the Council he would do so.

Tremel, who was nominated by Council Chairman David Meador who represents Lake Mary, said, "While the majority of right-of-way for the expressway has already been taken care of, one of my big concerns is the right-of-way still to be selected from Lake Mary Boulevard to Interstate 4."

Tremel said he will work to be sure this is handled in the proper way, especially in the areas where it will impact Lake Mary and Sanford, but reassured the members that he will represent all of them equally.

SCC awards ceremony honors three aspiring poets with plaques, money

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Stephen Caldwell Wright, faculty chair of multicultural studies and poet-in-residence at Seminole Community College, presented three aspiring poets with plaques and financial rewards for their efforts in a ceremony in the school's Fine Arts auditorium yesterday.

Debra Wilk of Sanford took first place honors and $100 for her poem.

Ronnie Radner won second place and was presented with $75 for her efforts.

Lake Rain Vajra was the third place winner and was rewarded with $50.

The Stephen Caldwell Wright Poetry Awards were established in 1984 by Gwendolyn Brooks, Poet Laureate of Illinois, who endowed the first awards and continues to offer her financial support at this time.

"She wished to support poets at Seminole Community College in this way," Wright said. "During one of her visits to the campus she established the awards for us."

Wright said that the young poets who enter the contest come from all walks of life and are not necessarily enrolled in the creative writing or English programs at Seminole Community College.

"It is an open contest," Wright said. "The entrants must only be students at Seminole Community College."

The winning poems will be published in Chronicle, a compilation of poems published by the college.

Wright said that though there were at least 100 entries submitted for the contest this year, the judges had little trouble agreeing on the winners.

"In this, and in other contests that I have judged," Wright said, "the judges have come in with the top poems though the readings were done independently."

The judges for this year's contest were Wright; Dr. Robert Levin, dean of arts and sciences; Dr. Elaine Greenwood, director of arts and sciences; Bruce Aufhammer, chairman of the English department and Bryce Bodnaruk, a student-poet.

Various honorable mention awards were also given at the ceremony on Wednesday.

No buried barrels found

Associated Press

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Acting on a tip from former employees, environmental officers spent several hours digging a huge hole at a paint company, trying to find buried paint barrels.

They found nothing.

"I told 'em they weren't going to find anything," said Ed Quinn, chairman of the board of Markings and Equipment Corp., a company that paints yellow stripes down the center of state highways.

But a second group of state officers who raided the company's Tallahassee warehouse Monday had better luck.

"They've found evidence of contamination, and they're going to continue," said Lt. Don McMillen of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. He did not elaborate.

According to state records, the company in 1988 was fined $545 by Broward County for dumping paint in a sewer drain in Deerfield Park and $590 for pouring paint on the ground in Pompano Beach.

Arms bazaar

"It would be tragic if the nations of the Middle East and the Persian Gulf were now, in the wake of the war, to embark on a new arms race." President Bush recently told Congress. But the starter's pistol has already sounded, and the Bush administration does not seem inclined to sound the recall.

With the war having served as one long televised commercial for U.S. weaponry, Middle East buyers are already lined up at the Pentagon to purchase the high-tech hardware for their own forces.

The Saudis want F-15 warplanes, M-1A1 tanks, Apache helicopters, Patriot missiles and multi-launch rocket artillery. The United Arab Emirates, Egypt, Bahrain and Turkey also are in line for the equipment that helped win the war, and the Bush administration seems eager to accommodate them: It has reportedly sent an arms sales wish list to Congress that amounts to $23 billion for members of the anti-Iraq coalition.

"There's just no way in hell we're going to say no to our friends in the region," a State Department official recently told the Los Angeles Times.

is this possibly what Secretary of State James Baker meant when he said, "The time has come to try to change the destructive pattern of military competition and proliferation in this region and to reduce arms flow into an area that is already over-militarized."

To be sure, realistic arms restraints can't be achieved in the absence of broader accords that resolve the insecurities and antagonisms in the Middle East. These arrangements are still far out on the horizon. But the allied coalition's victory over Iraq has at least shaken up the region and created diplomatic opportunities that didn't exist before. The United States must try to exploit that moment before it passes.

With Iraq's military power destroyed, countries friendly to the United States face no imminent threat that justifies a quick or massive infusion of arms to the region. Indeed, such a buildup could be counterproductive if it reignited the competitive resupply of client regimes by the United States and Soviet Union that has, over the past three decades, helped make the Middle East such a heavily armed and dangerous place.

Administration officials, skeptical about the usefulness of conventional arms control in the Middle East, tend still to see arms sales as a more realistic way of cementing friendships and security arrangements in the region.

But the experience of the United States, which sold arms to the Shah of Iran in the 1970s and military technology to Saddam Hussein in the 1980s should have been enough to teach it that such marriages are often fleeting and dangerous. This time, the United States ought to look for security measures bolder and more lasting than writing up more weapons orders.

What black students don't need

A group of conservatives are calling for a national test for high-school seniors that will measure what they have been taught during their high-school years. Its purpose is to give the nation a kind of psychometric score card.

"Americans don't know how they're doing," says Chester E. Finn Jr., an assistant secretary of education in the Reagan administration. "They get these misleading test results in which everyone scores above average. It's as if the teachers went to smile school."

Not in the black community. Average black students, especially males, score below Finn's national average. Very few teachers in predominantly black schools regard their instructional residency as a "smile school."

"Looking at the achievement data, the dropout rate and other indicators," says Milwaukee board member Joyce Mallory, "made me ask myself, 'Are black boys inherently bad or inherently dumb?'"

To find the answer, Milwaukee has set up two "African-American Immersion Schools," open to all students, but designed specifically for young black males. Students will get heavy pedagogical doses of black history and the black gestalt taught by black males serving as role models.

Other locations are following suit with African-American Immersion Schools: Baltimore, Dade County, Fla., New York City and Washington, D.C. Black educators in Baltimore claim that their all-black classes are already showing immediate results in lower dropout rates and slightly higher test scores.

But most Americans deplore this sly resurrection of "separate but equal." I heartily concur. That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, and that which we call an all-black male school extolling black male pride would reek as putridly as an all-white school extolling white supremacy.

But Americans cannot have it both ways. They cannot seek to establish national standardized tests that ipso facto relegate the average black student to a second-class existence while seeming to confirm the controversial psychometric thesis of Arthur R. Jensen of the University of California that blacks are genetically inferior.

Standardized tests are a perpetual reaffirmation of the awesome achievement gap between white and black students. That's why I propose a four-year moratorium on all standardized or norm-referenced tests. Instead, schools would use criterion-reference tests. These measure the same cognitive abilities, but they do not compare the pupils' achievement levels to a national norm that is based as much on white upper socio-economic status as it is on predictive validity.

There is a myth fostered by meritocratic fanatics that the abandonment of standardized test scores somehow lowers standards. That's sheer nonsense.

Before we can talk about an honest meritocracy, we've got to level the playing field to the point where students of all ethnic backgrounds are at least educated to stand on the threshold of accessibility to a meritocracy.

Frozen Iraqi assets hurt U.S. business

WASHINGTON — The embargo on trade between Iraq and the United States was designed to put the squeeze on Iraq, but some American companies say they are the ones feeling the pinch. They're happy to oblige current foreign policy, but it may cost them their businesses.

Joseph Kilani, export manager for Top Value Auto Exporters of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., has had a particularly tough eight months. His company exports parts for General Motors cars, and he lost $3 million because Saddam Hussein decided to invade Kuwait.

Top Value once sold its business in Saudi Arabia, but in 1985, the company began sending auto parts to Iraq too. By 1990, Iraq purchases made up half the company's business. That was because the Iraqi government bought 30,000 GM cars in the 1980s from GM Canada — Malibus, Celebrities and Cutlasses. GM Canada even sent technicians to Iraq to train Iraqi mechanics, and the company drew up plans to build a plant in Iraq. Top Value kept the spare parts coming.

Kilani was paid through an American bank that held accounts for Iraq. But when President Bush ordered a freeze on Iraqi assets after the invasion, Top Value's money for parts already delivered was frozen too. Kilani couldn't collect on what he had already shipped to Iraq and he lost his best customer.

Weeks after the invasion, the Iraqi Embassy in Washington offered to meet with the bank and authorize payment to Kilani, but the bankers were prohibited from having such a meeting under Bush's executive order mandating the freeze.

The Treasury Department, which is enforcing the freeze, finally agreed that Kilani should get his money, but it was too late. Iraq's letter of credit with the American bank expired two months after the invasion.

Kilani is looking forward to the day when the United Nations embargo against trade with Iraq is lifted so he can go back to business as usual. Kilani told our reporter Jonathan Ullman, "If we have to close the business, who will win? The Japanese or the Germans will."

Other American companies that used to do business with Iraq aren't so sure that lifting the embargo will make a difference now that Iraq's economy has been decimated by the war. A spokesman for one air conditioning company in York, Pa., said even without an embargo Iraq won't have the money to buy our equipment.

The companies are looking to Kuwait to take up the slack as that nation begins shopping around for the things it needs to rebuild.

Larger companies, such as Hewlett-Packard, are diversified enough that the loss of Iraq will not hurt them, but they are still in the dark about what happened to their offices and employees in Iraq. Some said they have been afraid to contact those employees for fear that the contact may endanger the workers' lives.

While few high-tech firms put most of their eggs in the Iraqi basket, American farmers are a different story. Before the invasion, Iraq was the 10th largest recipient of U.S. food exports. It was the eighth largest consumer of American wheat in the year before the invasion. Iraq also bought 20 percent of all American rice exports.

The loss of Iraq as a customer won't cripple the American wheat industry, according to the National Association of Wheat Growers, but it doesn't help a market that is already flooded with too much wheat.

America just place with guns?

WASHINGTON — Raymond Drake is president of an organization he calls "The American Society for the Defense of Tradition, Family and Property," and he recently inserted a large and costly advertisement in one of the capital's newspapers; the ad was in the form of an open letter to the president of the United States.

"Dear Mr. President," it began. "During these days of victory, the entire nation hails you for your prudent and courageous leadership of our troops during Operation Desert Storm ... the whole nation has stood side by side with you and, thus, truly participates in your glory and that of our courageous combatants."

The letter goes on to mention "magnificent patriotic loyalty." It cites the "applause of countless Americans." It also touches on a population "overflowing with joy," the "worthy action" of field commanders, the author's own "devoted admiration," blah, blah, blah — and it works in the word "glory" several more times.

The kindest thing to say about R. Drake is that he needs an editor. Beyond that, temperance. The ad is a celebration of adjectival and, worse, chauvinistic excess. There is scarce glory in war, less in gloating; there is something to be said about fighting for ideals, but not normally in newspaper notices.

On the other hand, the advertisement seems fitting. Millions of people are indeed genuflecting at the altar of victory over Iraq, and there is much earnest nonsense coupling the triumph with patriotism. Patriotism, as Ambrose Bierce put it, can be as fierce as a fever, as blind as a stone and as irrational as a headless hen.

Al Capone used to say he was 100 percent American. Some people believe anything wrapped in the flag. George Bush is presiding over a recession, a banking disaster and a budgetary free fall, yet he has taken the nation to the grinning face of war two times in two years and, thus, he is lionized in newspaper advertisements.

War rules the day where it rules the fashion. And, quite sadly, it now rules the republic. Beat 'em up, knock 'em down, leave them to rot — and rejoice. A Florida pub is said to have sold a special concoction during the hostilities: The Collateral Damage. "One drink and you take off for Baghdad with a .357 revolver."

What fun. It's noted that war has no fury like the noncombatant. Especially when the war is short and far, far away. Albert Einstein had a particular contempt for those who march in safe lock step while others take the risks; he felt they received their great brains by mistake — spinal cords would be amply sufficient.

Einstein would have understood two young men who terrorized a Washington peace demonstrator a few months ago. The demonstrator had a yellow ribbon on the placard he carried, and the young patriots took offense. They said, good Lord, that he was not fit to support the troops, and so they pushed him around and off his feet.

The incident took place at high noon near the White House. The streets were crowded, but no one intervened. The protester had Vietnam ribbons on his coat. He said he'd fought in the Ia Drang Valley. He was ruffled, but unrepentant; whoever serves his country well, really well, has no need to explain himself further.

It's not surprising no one came to the man's aid. National egotism is catching. Likewise prudent. A Pennsylvania newspaper editor was fired earlier this year after writing an anti-war commentary. And 232 members of Congress are being treated as if they were traitors for voting against the use of force in the Gulf.

Surely, the country has gone mad. The wallowing glorification of killing does not serve democratic interests. The United States survives as the beacon of the planet because it stands for justice, and hope, and compassionate forbearance; without peace and restraint it is just a place with better guns than anywhere else.

The noblest American motive is charity. Dropping bombs on people is no cause for cheer. The Iraq military was a second-rate force under the charge of a grievously incompetent reprobate. The nation defeated a wild beast, but also his pathetically misbegotten supplicants, who died like dogs; hold the festivities.

The poets claim all combat is fratricidal. Two men meet, one dies and says: "I am the enemy you killed, my friend." There is no glory here. Shut up, Mr. Bush. The glittering generalities about a New World Order will only have merit when nations select leaders with the capacity to prevent, not promote, wars.

As for Raymond Drake and his newspaper advertisement, sigh. He licks the executive's boots and jumps on the popular bandwagon for a purpose. He believes the nation should give thanks for the "brilliant conclusion" of the fighting by flying "Old Glory" to "glorify the whole nation" and the "holocaust" of U.S. suffering.

"The ad is a celebration of adjectival and, worse, chauvinistic excess."

"Top Value kept the spare parts coming."

Tomato soap

Farmers bugged by pest find solution

Associated Press
GAINESVILLE — Florida tomato farmers are taking a helpful hint to a grand scale, spraying household soaps on their plants to clean up a bug problem.
While University of Florida agricultural experts are still studying the sudsy approach to killing whiteflies, they say it may have some merit for Florida's $500 million industry.
"From a homeowner's perspective or for a small user, soaps have been used off and on for years, but now there is quite a bit of interest in it from a number of growers," said Norm Neasheim, UF pesticide information coordinator. "Dishwashing detergent seems to be one of the ones that is being tried the most."
Using detergents in tomato fields has become so popular in some areas of Florida that some warehouses have experienced a run on some brands, and one dealer has begun stocking 55-gallon drums of generic soap for his customers.
Detergent apparently coats the flies' wings, killing them, although scientists say another cause of detergent's effectiveness may be that it makes flies' membranes permeable — so their insides leak out.

The whitefly is a costly pest that weakens tomato plants by draining the sap out of foliage. It also can transmit a host of viruses, said Calvin Arnold, director of the university's Southwest Florida Research and Education Center in Immokalee.
"We're just beginning to examine the detergents from an experimental standpoint," said Arnold, adding that the detergents have had some success in controlling whiteflies in tomato fields.
The flies, which prefer chewing on the underside of leaves, ruined an estimated $200 million worth of tomatoes in Broward, Collier, Dade and Palm Beach counties in 1987 and are the target of a statewide task force.
Though growers suffered unusually high losses in 1987, University of Florida officials estimate that tomato growers now spend at least $25 million a year fighting the bug.

Florida exorcism to be televised

Associated Press
NEW YORK — Two Roman Catholic priests have opened the door on a mysterious, centuries-old ritual by agreeing to let ABC broadcast an exorcism.
A 26-minute segment showing a priest's exorcism of a 16-year-old girl will run Friday night on the network's "20-20" news show. The New York Times said today.
Many church figures, who have not seen the footage, questioned the wisdom of allowing the segment to be shown. Exorcism, intended to drive satanic influences from the body and soul, has traditionally been a private act.

The six-hour exorcism was performed in October in the Wellington, Fla., chapel of St. Rita's Catholic Church. The Palm Beach Post said today.
The Rev. James J. LeBar, a priest in New York, said he agreed to ABC's request as a way to encourage belief in the existence of the devil and to show the church can provide relief from diabolical influence, the newspaper said.
In addition, the Times reported, the archdiocese of New York and a Vatican official were aware the program was being prepared, and Bishop J. Keith Symons of the diocese of Palm Beach, Fla., finally authorized the filming.
"It is my ardent hope that this film will be helpful in promoting awareness for the ongoing need for humble prayer and penance to counteract diabolical activity," Symons said in a statement.
Symons, a consultant on ritual for the New York archdiocese and a chaplain at Hudson River Psychiatric Center in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., said New York Cardinal John O'Connor was fully informed of his work on the program.

"If he had told me don't do it, I wouldn't have done it," LeBar told the Times.
Several priests said they were dismayed at the prospect of the broadcast.
"Despite my respect for '20-20' and their professionalism, I'm not so sure that television can do anything but exploit something like that," said the Rev. James J. Gardner, head of the Tri-state Catholic Committee on Radio and Television, a group of Catholic broadcasting outlets in the New York area.
The Rev. Richard Woods, a professor at Loyola University in Chicago, said the broadcast violated an understanding in the church that public spectacle should be avoided in exorcisms.
"There is a place for exorcism in the healing ministry of the church, but it is very rare and extraordinary," Woods told the Times. "The place is not in the public media."

Explorer rescued after 4 days in cave

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer
CARLSBAD, N.M. — Rescuers pulled an injured explorer from the nation's deepest cave early today, ending a four-day ordeal during which she hobbled on a broken leg and was pulled across treacherous chasms.
Emily Davis Mobley emerged on a stretcher, her leg in a splint, a few minutes after 1 a.m. and immediately telephoned her husband, saying: "This is your loving wife, coming up from the depths of the earth to see you."
"She's out! She made it," Carlsbad Caverns National Park spokeswoman Lyn Carranza said. Ms. Mobley, emerged from a 1,565-foot-deep, 54-mile-long Lechuguilla Cave.
The 40-year-old woman from Schoharic, N.Y., was to be taken to a hospital in Carlsbad.
Her condition was not immediately known, but her husband, William, reached at the couple's home, said. "She isn't exhausted. She's in great shape.

She's an absolutely incredible person. She can't be very comfortable being in there for five days."
"I feel like calling everybody. I called her parents. I called one of our closest friends in Tokyo," he said. "I feel great."
The rescue effort drew some of the nation's top cave rescue experts to New Mexico.
Mobley, a 22-year cave explorer and expert in cave rescues, was about 1,000 feet down and about two miles into the cave Sunday when an 80-pound rock she had been holding onto gave way and fell on her, breaking her left leg below the knee.
During the rescue, the woman hobbled when there was space to stand upright and was carried or slid on stretchers elsewhere. Rescuers used a network of ropes and pulleys to get her through a treacherous labyrinth of chambers, narrow passages, sheer rock faces and wide chasms.
A doctor with her in the cave gave her painkillers.

The rescue went more quickly than expected Wednesday night after moving in fits and starts since Sunday.
The undeveloped cave in a remote area of the park is closed to the general public. The National Park Service lets a limited number of experienced cave explorers in to explore and map it. Mobley was part of a mapping expedition.
On Wednesday, Mobley spoke to reporters via a line rescuers stretched to her from the entrance.
"I'm feeling real good this morning. I'm being taken care of real well down here," she said. She was about 600 feet down at the time and about to begin the treacherous journey through the boulder-strewn area with large holes called The Rift.
"This cave rescue couldn't be run better," Mobley said. "I'm comfortable at all times. ... I'm not being treated like a package. I'm being treated like a person."

Rescuers moved her through The Rift and across a formation known as Glacier Bay by Wednesday evening. Earlier in the day, she was taken across a 40-foot-wide chasm known as Freakout Traverse, the longest in the cave.
Rescuer Mark Rosbrook said ropes were anchored to two boulders, and Mobley, who was on a stretcher attached to pulleys, was pulled across the chasm, which has a 100-foot drop.
Mobley told reporters she had been exploring caves since 1969, when a friend introduced her to spelunking.
"The first time I went caving I thought it was the most exciting thing I've ever done," she said. "Ever since then, caving has been a major part of my life."
Mobley said she hopes her leg will heal by summer so she can resume exploring Lechuguilla Cave.
"There's no way this is going to slow me down at all," she said.

who had been wrongfully accused should be cleared.
"I just thought it was unfair to the people that were the subject of the rumors," Saporito said. "I didn't want them walking around with a cloud over their heads. If nothing is found, they will be cleared. If something is found, then the committee I appointed will report back to the executive committee."
Committee woman Marty Chan, appointed by Saporito to head the "inquiry" committee, said she doubts there is validity to the claims.
"I don't expect to find anything," Chan said. "This is nothing more than any other hot and heavy election cycle."
Chan said members of her committee has made some informal inquiries but had neither proven nor refuted any claims. Chan said she plans to report the committee's findings to the full group April 18.
Among the rumors that had come to Saporito was a donation made by Pam O'hab, chairman of the Young Republicans of Seminole County to the Democratic legislative campaign of Joe Rosler of Lake Mary. Saporito said he checked the claim "a long time ago" and found the contribution was made by her husband on a joint account check that also bore her name.
Another claim was that Seminole County commission candidate Dick Fess was seen at the Lawton Chiles inaugural party. Saporito said Fess is no longer a member of the executive committee so there was no violation, he said.
Another claim that former county manager Ken Hooper assisted the Democratic county commission campaign of Larry Furlong has also been mentioned, Saporito said. Again, Hooper is not a member of the executive committee so he could not violate the oath he has not taken, Saporito said.

Another 25 percent of the $25 fee will be added to the Florida Communities Trust Fund, administered by the Department of Community Affairs. Program director Anne Peery said the money will be used to help cities and counties buy plant and animal habitat for preservation.
About $30 million of the grant and loan money will come from the state's Preservation 2000 program, Peery said. The program will enable cities and counties to receive grants and loans that they could not have received under state Conservation and Recreation Land (CARL) policies for spending Preservation 2000 revenues.
The remaining 25 percent will be used in the Save Our State Environmental Education trust fund, administered by the Department of Natural Resources. Madeline Strong, executive director of the Florida Advisory Council on Environmental Education, said the $2.1 million program is used to educate the citizens of the state about environmental resources.
Strong said the proceeds of the panther tag will be used solely to inform the public about panther habitat. Other sources of revenue are 50 percent of the fees collected from the Manatee tag, interest on other state environmental trusts and proceeds from saltwater fishing licenses.

landscaping required near the walls, proper handling of tree areas near wall construction and the type of beautifying finish that will be allowed on the walls.
During a recent meeting of Lake Mary's Planning and Zoning Board, the proposed ordinance was recommended for approval by a unanimous vote. The actual creation of the recommendations contained in the ordinance were suggested by the city commission last fall.
The ordinance will also include certain prohibitions including a restriction against retaining walls built with wood timber, exposed concrete masonry block, or stucco. Members of the Lake Mary city staff expect the first reading of the ordinance will pass with little or no opposition.

Also on tonight's meeting agenda is a request for approval, from City Manager John Litton of the disbursement of budgeted funds to non-profit organizations. The amount, approved in the 1991 budget is $15,000.
Seven organizations have submitted requests for the funds this year. During 1990, nine organizations were given $15,000.
Tonight's City Commission meeting will begin at 7 p.m., at the Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

Catholic schools advertise

Advantage over non-sectarian schools touted

By VICKI DESCHNER
 Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Roman Catholic schools are trying to lure parents and financial supporters from public schools with a national advertising campaign touting their high test scores, low dropout rates and emphasis on ethics.

Dr. Margaret Curran, principal of All Soul's Catholic School in Sanford, believes her elementary and middle school gives students a strong background for the rigors of high school.

"Catholic schools give students that preparation," she said.

The school, at 810 Oak Ave. in Sanford, is under the jurisdiction of the Diocese of Orlando.

"Catholic schools must tell the story of their academic excellence and value-based education," said the Rev. Stephen O'Brien, executive director of the Chief Administrators of Catholic Education.

The National Catholic Educational Association on Tuesday announced the campaign, which will use the slogan "Discover Catholic Schools" on billboards, T-shirts and newspaper ads.

The Diocese of Orlando will take part in the cooperative effort to promote the schools, but individual schools will not be touted in the ads.

The goal is to boost enrollment and attract financial contributions, especially from businesses that now aid troubled public schools.

"Why throw good money after bad?" asked Sister Catherine McNamee, association president. "Why give it to the schools that are in the worst condition? Why not give it to the schools that have a proven record of quality?"

A Rand Corp. study of 13 inner-city high schools in Washington, D.C., and New York City found the public schools had an average graduation rate of 55 percent and a 842 average Scholastic Aptitude Test score out of a possible 1,600.

The Catholic schools in the study graduated 95 percent of their students and had an average SAT score of 815.

Declining enrollment at the nation's nearly 9,000 Catholic schools is being reversed, but money remains a problem, Catholic educators said.

A thinning of the ranks of priests and nuns has forced the schools to hire lay employees at a higher price. Insurance and maintenance costs have also drained their budgets.

Richard Miller, president of the American Association of School Administrators, said students at Catholic schools succeed because their parents often take a more active role in their education than parents of students in public schools.

Also, Miller said Catholic schools can be selective about which students to accept, a luxury the public schools don't have.

More university billings audited

By DEBORAH NESCE
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration is targeting 12 major universities for audits of federal research programs following questions about Stanford University's billing of luxury costs to the government.

Investigators from the Department of Health and Human Services have begun financial reviews of the overhead costs of programs at four of the schools under a new long-range auditing plan, officials said.

Development of the plan began about a year ago, but officials said its implementation was speeded by the General Accounting Office's inquiry at Stanford, which was found to have billed the government for items such as an antique commode, a cedar-lined closet and depreciation on a yacht.

The HHS inspector general's office has begun audits at Yale University, the University of Pennsylvania, Johns Hopkins University and Dartmouth College, said Judy Holtz, a spokeswoman for the office.

The office is contacting eight other schools about upcoming audits, she said, but she could not identify them until they had been notified.

The office plans audits at eight to 10 additional schools, but they have not been identified, Ms. Holtz said.

The schools were selected based on their share of federal grants, their overhead rates and on their location because the inspector general wanted to include institutions in various regions of the country, said one official.

Johns Hopkins, Yale and Pennsylvania were among top recipients of federal money in 1989, according to the inspector general's office.

Johns Hopkins topped the list with $411 million. Yale was 11th with $146 million and Pennsylvania was 14th with $133 million.

Schools are allowed to bill the government for certain costs — overhead — that are not earmarked specifically for a particular sponsored project but result from combined or joint use, such as costs for utilities, library services and building depreciation.

Johns Hopkins and Pennsylvania had overhead rates of 85 percent, and Yale, 68 percent, of their direct research program costs.

But the auditors said Stanford University billed the government for expenses related to a $1,200 antique commode, a $10,000 set of donated silverware and a university-owned shopping center.

Fannie Mae chairman paid $27 million in 1990

By DAVE SKIDMORE
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Retired Fannie Mae Chairman David O. Maxwell became a $27 million man last year.

The company, which paid him that much in annual compensation and retirement benefits, said he was worth every penny. A consumer advocate, however, called the payment outrageous.

Maxwell, 80, retired Jan. 31 after a decade with the Federal National Mortgage Association, a government-sponsored enterprise known informally as Fannie Mae. He received $7.6 million in salary, stock options and other bonuses in 1990. He also received a $20 million retirement payment.

"He earned it. He deserved every penny," said David R. Jeffers, Fannie Mae vice president for corporate relations.

Fannie Mae is owned by stockholders, who trade their shares on the New York Stock Exchange. Originally, it was chartered by Congress to promote housing.

Together with its sibling organization, Freddie Mac (the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.), Fannie Mae finances roughly one in every four home sales in the nation.

Jeffers said Maxwell's compensation was tied to the company's performance. When Maxwell took over in 1981, the company was "teetering on the brink of insolvency."

U.S. unemployment system weakest since World War II

By KAREN BALL
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — A smaller percentage of Americans on the unemployment line received benefits in 1990 than during any other recession year since World War II, according to a report released today.

Only 37 percent of the nation's jobless received unemployment benefits in an average month of 1990, said a study by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a labor-backed research organization that studies government social programs.

That was a record low for the percentage of people receiving unemployment help for a year in which the U.S. economy was in a recession, the report said. "This low level of protection ... is unparalleled," it said.

During 1975, for instance, when the country also was in a recession, 75 percent of the nation's unemployed received benefits, the report said.

Last week, the Labor Department said the number of new claimants remained above the half-million mark for two straight weeks in March, something that had not happened in more than eight years.

Today, the department was releasing the number of Americans who filed new claims for unemployment benefits for the third week of March.

The number of people filing new claims can vary widely from week to week, but analysts said the persistent high levels in early March suggested that the recession was continuing despite other, more favorable reports on improved consumer confidence and a rebound in the housing market.

The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities' report is the latest in a string of criticisms of the unemployment insurance system, which was created in the 1930s as a cushion for jobless Americans during lean economic times and as a way to keep money flowing through the economy.

The center said the share of the unemployed who receive benefits tends to go up in hard times because more people are fired or laid off — and thus are more likely to be eligible for benefits than those who quit voluntarily.

But the trend of low unemployment insurance protection, which averaged 33 percent for the unemployed from 1984 to 1989, continued into 1990, a recession year, rising only slightly to 37 percent.

In five years between 1984 and 1989, the report found, the percentage of unemployed receiving benefits fell to record lows.

In contrast, in the nearly four decades from the end of World War II through 1983, the percentage of the unemployed receiving unemployment benefits dipped below 40 percent only once. That was in 1966, when it was 39 percent.

In recent years, states, which pay the benefits with money collected from employer taxes, have tightened eligibility requirements so that fewer people qualify for assistance.

For instance, many states have stiffened requirements for how long people have to hold jobs before they can receive benefits if they get laid off.

AAU at SCC

SANFORD — The 64th National AAU Women's Basketball Championship will be played at Seminole Community College's Health and Physical Education Center starting today and will run through Sunday.

This tournament will determine the best women's team in America. The eight team field features the survivors of Association and Regional Championships held throughout the U.S.A.

Game times for Today's opening round are 2, 4, 6 and 8 p.m. Admission is $2 with senior citizens and servicemen admitted free.

Warriors hold off Heat

OAKLAND, Calif. — Chris Mullin scored 12 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter and Tim Hardaway had a career-high eight steals as the Golden State Warriors clinched a Western Conference playoff spot with a 127-114 victory over the Miami Heat Wednesday night.

Mullin had nine rebounds and seven assists, while Hardaway scored 20 points with 13 assists. Glen Rice scored 27 points and Kevin Edwards 25 for Miami, while Sherman Douglas had 23 points and 13 assists.

Florida tops Bethune-Cookman

GAINESVILLE — Bo Campusano, Eddie MacDonald and Dave Majeski all doubled in the sixth inning to lead Florida to a 6-2 victory over Bethune-Cookman Wednesday night.

Florida (24-12) tied the score at 2-2 after three innings before scoring three more runs in the bottom of the sixth to open up a 5-2 advantage.

Min Park, Ron Scott and Nick McClellan combined on a three-hitter with each working three frames. Scott (5-1) picked up the win by striking out eight of the nine batters he faced.

Joe Rittman (0-5) picked up the loss for Bethune-Cookman (8-22).

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

South Florida joins Metro

ATLANTA — The Metro Conference, forced to expand because four of its members left for other leagues, announced Wednesday the addition of South Florida, North Carolina-Charlotte and Virginia Commonwealth.

All three left the Sun Belt Conference, reducing it to four members and enhancing the possibility of a merger with the seven-member American South Conference. The NCAA stipulates that a conference must have a minimum of six members.

They join existing members Louisville, Southern Mississippi, Tulane and Virginia Tech in a conference that does not compete in football. Louisville has given the Metro two national basketball championships.

The changes left the Sun Belt with Jacksonville, South Alabama, Western Kentucky and Arkansas-Little Rock, which moves from Trans America Athletic Conference effective July 1.

The American South membership consists of Arkansas State, Central Florida, Lamar, Louisiana Tech, New Orleans, Southwestern Louisiana and Texas-Pan American.

FOOTBALL

MyKyer, Dolphins still at odds

MIAMI — Dolphin Coach Don Shula says he would welcome back cornerback Tim MyKyer, but the talented and outspoken MyKyer says he won't return under any circumstances and called Shula "ultraconservative."

"I don't want to be there and I'm not going to be there," MyKyer said Tuesday. "It's just not the place for me."

The Dolphins have tried to trade him for two months. The team would love a second-round pick in this year's draft for MyKyer, and is discussing that possibility with at least four teams — Houston, Atlanta, Dallas and the L.A. Raiders.

Culverhouse has tumor removed

TAMPA — Hugh F. Culverhouse, owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, underwent surgery Wednesday for removal of a malignant lung tumor, a spokesman for the NFL team said.

Culverhouse is expected to remain under care at St. Joseph's Hospital for about a week.

"Doctors are optimistic of his chances for a complete cure," said Rick Odioso, Buccaneers' spokesman.

Tests so far indicate that the malignancy, a very small tumor, did not spread beyond the tissue removed — an upper lobe on his right lung, doctors said.

Sampras, Classic roll on

Singles, doubles in second round

By PHIL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

HEATHROW — As the Prudential Securities Tennis Classic approaches the midway point, the dream match-up between top-seeded Andre Agassi and defending U.S. Open Champion Pete Sampras is one step closer.

Wednesday evening, second-seeded Sampras defeated Diego Nargiso 6-3, 7-6 (10-8) in a second round match bringing closer the rematch of last year's U.S. Open final.

Sampras got off to a quick start in the first set when he recorded three aces on his first three serves. However, he had trouble with his serve throughout the rest of the match, only getting 62 percent of his first serves.

The turning point of the first set was the sixth game. With Sampras holding a 3-2 lead and Nargiso serving, Sampras started to zero in on Nargiso's serve and took Nargiso to eight deuce points before finally losing.

"At that point, I started to read his serve really well. I was starting to return real well and he started staying in the backcourt," said Sampras. "That was a big game even though I lost it because I felt pretty confident that it was in the back of his mind that I was on his serve."

After holding serve to go up 4-3, Sampras then broke Nargiso's serve and held serve again to win the first set.

In the second set, both players held serve throughout the set and they turned up the heat as they approached the tiebreaker.

"We both knew that it was going to the tiebreaker unless something strange might have happened," said Sampras. "We both played better and better as the match went on."

Sampras rallied from a 5-3 deficit to record a 10-8 victory in the tiebreaker to close out the match.

In other second round matches Wednesday, No. 4 seed Derrick Rostagno defeated Thomas Hogstedt 4-6, 6-2, 6-2; No. 6 seed Jimmy Arias outlasted David MacPherson 6-7 (7-2), 7-6 (7-3), 6-1; and No. 8 seed David Pate defeated Jeff Tarango 6-2, 6-7 (7-4), 6-1.

The doubles completed their first round matches Wednesday with the third-seeded team of Ken Flach and Robert Seguso defeating Grant Connell and Joey Rive 7-6 (10-8), 6-1. Mianca-Lon Nastase and Larule Crayner cruised past Alexis Hanover and Malivan

Rams, Patriots to meet in Colonial semifinals

From staff reports

ORLANDO — Mike Merthle belted a home run and a double while Chris Haney and Scott Davidson contributed two RBI each as the Lake Mary Rams came from behind to defeat Boone 10-4 in the quarterfinals of the Colonial Classic Baseball Tournament Wednesday afternoon.

"(Mike) Merthle swung the bat very well," said Lake Mary Coach Alan Tuttle. "The whole team swung the bat well. It was a nice comeback after a slow start."

Lake Mary, now 11-7 on the season, will take on Seminole Athletic Conference foe Lake Brantley in Friday's 3:30 p.m. semifinal. Lake Brantley advanced with a 6-3 win over No. 7-state ranked Merritt Island Wednesday. The finals are set for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Today, Oviedo plays in the semifinals of the consolation bracket against Euclid, Ohio at 1 p.m.

Lake Mary had advanced to the quarterfinals by defeating West Orange 5-1 behind Scott Davidson's three-hitter Saturday. Lake Brantley got to the quarters with a 2-1 win over Neptune Beach-Fletcher.

Boone, 13-7 and receiving votes in this week's state poll, took a 3-0 lead with two runs in the first and a run in the second. But the Rams came back with three runs in the bottom of the second to tie the game. Both teams added a run in the third to keep the score tied at 4-4.

Lake Mary took its first lead of the game with a run in the fifth and put the game away with a five spot in the sixth.

Winning pitcher Chris Jackson improved his record to 4-2 on the season. The senior right hander shut the door on the Braves after the third, allowing no hits the rest of the way.

"Chris did a real good job," said Tuttle. "After (Paul) Wilson hit the home run in the third inning, he retired 14 of the 16 batters he faced and the only two that reached base, walked."

Merthle led the way at the plate going 3-for-3 with a run scored and one RBI. Also contributing to the 10-hit attack were Scott Davidson (2-for-3, run scored, two RBI), Neil James (2-for-3, two runs scored), Dana Dearth (2-for-3, run scored), Chris Haney (1-for-3, two RBI) and Chris Barfield (1-for-3). Wilson led Boone with two hits.

Stars make early lead stand up in win over SCC

SANFORD — Jon Farrell scored three runs and drove in two more as Florida Community College at Jacksonville held off a serious comeback effort by Seminole Community College to post an 11-6 win in a North Central Conference baseball game at Raider Field Wednesday afternoon.

The Stars, 23-13 overall and 12-6 in the conference, took a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning. The Raiders then fought back to trail 8-6 after seven innings. But FCCJ scored a run in the eighth and two in the ninth to secure the victory.

SCC's comeback was hindered by the fact that FCCJ threw out four Raider baserunners at the plate, two in the second inning and two in the sixth.

"We've been playing pretty well," said SCC coach Jack Pantelas. "We had a chance to win the last two days but gave up too many walks. We have a lot of freshmen who are still trying to learn how to win."

Farrell's two-run homer capped the four-run first for the Stars. The inning also featured an

The Raiders answered with three runs in the second. Jason Sandberg reached on an error and went to second on a single by Rich Knizner. Both runners moved up a base on an error before Scott Cursi reached on a fielder's choice to load the bases.

Jack Niles singled to score Sandberg before Blane Barroso singled in Knizner and designated runner Chuck Whitener.

FCCJ avoided further damage when Niles was thrown out at the plate after a single by Chad Epperson and Stanley Evans grounded back to the pitcher with the bases loaded.

The Stars scored four more runs in the third to go up 8-3. The big hit was a two-run double by Bob Russo and an RBI double by Dave Richard.

SCC cut two runs off the lead in the sixth. Knizner and Cursi reached on singles before Gregg Beck singled to score Knizner. Cursi scored on a double by Epperson but Beck was thrown out at the plate. The Raiders had a chance to score another run but Epperson was thrown out at the plate after a single by Dacks Rodriguez.

Evans singled, stole second, advanced to third on Knizner's third hit and scored on a passed ball in the seventh to cut the lead to 8-6 but it was as close as SCC would get.

Contributing to the 15-hit Raider attack were Epperson (4-for-5, double, RBI), Knizner (3-for-4, two runs scored), Evans (2-for-4, run scored), Barroso (2-for-5, two RBI), Beck (1-for-2, RBI), Niles (1-for-3, RBI), Cursi (1-for-4, run scored), Rodriguez (1-for-4) and Sandberg and Whitener (one run scored each).

SCC, 8-20 overall and 4-12 in the NCC, will play at home again today and Friday. Today, the Raiders will play an NCC contest against St. John's River Community College and Friday, they will host Niagara County Community College of New York. Both games start at 3 p.m.

Sanford Elks Lodge turns 80

SANFORD — Sanford Elks Lodge is 80 years. That's 80 years of brotherhood and service to the community, state, and nation. Exact dates are unknown but we can assume that sometime in late 1910 or early 1911, a group of Sanford civic leaders decided to form a new lodge of a relatively new fraternal order. There were at that time 15 Elks lodges in Florida. The changes that have taken place since 1911 are hard to imagine. The population of Florida was 750,000; Seminole County did not yet exist but Sanford was already a thriving city of almost 6,000 people. Miami had a population of almost 30,000.

Sanford Elks Lodge began with 53 members and first met in what was then the Sanford City Hall. Like most organizations, Sanford Elks have had their share of ups and downs over the years. During the first few years the lodge prospered and available records indicate a membership of approximately 200 by 1915. They then had a beautiful building constructed as their first lodge home. Shortly after that, however, hard times hit, and this coupled with the absence of many members due to World War I, led to the loss of this beautiful building. Most old timers will recall this building as the old County Courthouse.

In the early 1920's, the lodge began a comeback and purchased what was then known as the Rod and Gun Club Building on the lakefront. Just as things began to look up, disaster struck again. The building was completely destroyed by fire along with most of the club's records. Not to be held back, the members again persevered and purchased the property on Oak Avenue formerly owned by the Order of the Eagles.

Things began to look up again, but following the now familiar pattern, disaster struck again in 1929, and this time it was a major disaster. The Great Depression wiped out businesses and individuals world-wide and the Sanford Elks Lodge was no exception. After losing all their property in 1930, the lodge moved to the second floor of the Bishop building on 1st Street and Palmetto Avenue. Money was very scarce during this period and the lodge dues were $7.50 a year, a large sum of money at that time. It was during this very bleak period, however, that all Florida Elks began what was to become one of the finest children's hospitals in the country.

In 1931, Harry and Anna Miller of Eustis offered the Elks a hotel building in Umatilla for use as a hospital or Elks home. In 1933, Florida Elks opened the Harry-Anna Home for Crippled Children. Today, this is a very modern facility known as the Florida Elks Children's Hospital and it provides care for disabled children from all walks of life without regard to race, creed or background. Older Elks still refer to this facility as the Harry-Anna Hospital.

It is a matter of record that though money was very scarce during the early '30s, Sanford Elks supported and gave generously to support the establishment of this hospital. But the lodge leaders never gave up on the dream of a new lodge home.

Finally, after five years of hard work, the lodge purchased another building on August 1, 1935. This property on the corner of 2nd Street and San Juan Avenue is the present home of Sanford Elks Lodge. This time, disaster did not strike and the mortgage was paid off in July, 1941. Since that time the lodge has still had its share of ups and downs but always moved forward with a dedication to the principles of the order — charity, justice, brotherly love, and fidelity.

There are those who don't understand just what the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks stands for. A few years ago, a well-known talk show host referred to the Elks as a bunch of old men sitting around a bar. He later apologized on his show when he found out all the charitable works the Elks do for their communities, for children, for veterans, and the list could go on and on.

The Sanford Elks Lodge has a long history of service to mankind. In the last few years, the lodge had been very fortunate to have had exalted rulers firmly committed to the principles of Elkdom. Men like Sam Dunn, noted for his dedication and hard work; Carty Prevatt noted for his infectious enthusiasm; Gary Fehl, noted for his calm and competent leadership; and our present exalted ruler Joe Rogers, noted for his friendly and sociable manner while working hard to uphold the Elks' traditions.

Next year's exalted ruler Les Cox, to be installed April 6, will bring his youthful creativity to bear and, no doubt, put another successful year into the his cry book.

To Elks of other lodges, Sanford Elks are referred to as the friendly lodge in that friendly city.

Officers installed

Officers for 1990-'91 Sanford Ladies of the Elks were installed recently. From left: Ann McKibbin, treasurer; Sue Ingle, secretary; Penny Dunn, vice president; and Paulette Thomas, president.

'Happy' wife's affair puts her in despair

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a married man. He has four children. I am also married with two children. I have a great job and appear to be very happy. In truth, I am under great stress, break into tears for no reason at all, can't sleep or eat, and feel that my life is on a roller coaster. From the first, we agreed that neither of us would ever leave our spouses and we would not let our affair interfere with our marriages. Of course, that's impossible.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Is it worth it? Of course not. But I'm terrified at the thought of not having him in my life — and I don't know why. We both have loving, caring spouses, so it's not as though we are lonely, abused or sex-starved. Some days I feel as though I'm coming apart at the seams.

How can I break this cycle? "Just break it off" sounds so easy, but I just can't do it. I see him often because we have mutual friends and community activities in common. Please help me.

Signed... MESS UP IN MICHIGAN DEAR MESS UP: This may sound like a broken record, but you are sick! Lovestick. And the only cure for that is psychotherapy. Yes, counseling. I have long maintained that love is a "mental disease" — and people can actually become lovestick. You need a therapist to help you become better acquainted with your emotions, and learn how they are tied to your physical desires.

DEAR ABBY: I am quite sure that everyone who reads your column has been bored by people who are in the habit of telling long, drawn-out stories that are usually pointless and seem endless.

May I share a wonderful suggestion given to me by a very wise friend? To test the interest of your audience, if someone interrupts you in the middle of a story and nobody asks, "And then what happened?" — shut up! I have tried it many times over the years, and I must admit, I have shut up a lot.

Former staffer: Lippman 'wonderful to work for'

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The sexual harassment claims of a former Florida House staffer against a key lawmaker got little support from several of her former co-workers who branded her accusations "ridiculous."

A special House committee investigating the case against Rep. Fred Lippman heard Wednesday from several of Kathie Jennings' colleagues during their time in the mid-1980s at the House Regulatory Reform Committee.

None witnessed any sexual harassment by Lippman or staff director Ken Sarvis and several doubted it could have happened.

"Mr. Lippman and Mr. Sarvis have never done anything that I have ever witnessed, that wasn't professional — in or out of these offices," said Kathy Crum, who was a committee secretary for six years.

She said Lippman sometimes displayed physical affection for female and male staff members, but she never considered it harassment. Both he and Sarvis have denied Ms. Jennings' claims.

"In the mornings he walked up to each of us secretaries and kissed us on the cheek. That's how he was,"

Asked her opinion of the claims, Ms. Crum said, "I think it's ridiculous."

Ms. Jennings, 36, was paid $47,000 in a secret 1988 agreement reached to keep her quiet about her sexual harassment claims. The agreement was voided earlier this year by a circuit judge and criticized by a Leon County grand jury.

Before testimony began Wednesday, the panel voted unanimously to hold in public its deliberations on whether there is good reason to believe Lippman was guilty of misconduct. Special Prosecutor Judy Hoyer had recommended the deliberations be closed.

"I think because of the cloud that has really hovered over this entire process, I think it is best for the process that the deliberations be in public," said Rep. Lois Frankel, a West Palm Beach Democrat who chairs the panel.

The committee was scheduled to resume hearing testimony this afternoon. Its recommendations could result in Lippman's censure, reprimand or removal from office.

Marcie Vaallinda, another former Regulatory Reform secretary, told the panel Wednesday that Lippman, D-Hollywood, sometimes touched her hair or hugged her but "not sexually."

Prednisone often used in treatment of pemphigoid

DEAR DR. GOTT: Do they know any more about pemphigoid than they did 20 years ago? What do studies show relative to the use of gold shots in the treatment of the disease?

DEAR READER: Pemphigoid is a benign, chronic eruption of blisters on the skin. It is seen chiefly in persons older than 60. Because the skin lesions resemble those of other skin diseases, pemphigoid must be differentiated (by biopsy) from pemphigus (a more serious eruption, requiring cortisone treatment), drug reactions and similar disorders.

Pemphigoid usually responds to prednisone (purified cortisone) pills. Some studies have suggested a favorable response to gold injections; this needs further study. At present, prednisone is the therapy of choice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an 80-year-old female with a history of heart attack nine years ago and a bilateral mastectomy six years ago. My current problem is hot flashes. My only medication is Lopressor, and my doctor doesn't seem to take the problem too seriously. What would you advise?

DEAR READER: It would help to know how long you have had "hot flashes," because this symptom may, in the elderly, be confused with recurring fever. If you have experienced "hot flashes" for years, I suggest you see a gynecologist. Obviously, you're way past menopause; yet I have seen an occasional older patient with vascular instability (the cause of hot flashes) that responded to low-dose estrogen therapy. In your case, this treatment might be contraindicated, however - especially if your operations were needed for breast cancer, which can be stimulated by female hormones. If your "hot flashes" appeared weeks or months ago, I'd worry that the cause might be a hidden infection or, worse, a recurrence of your breast cancer. I advise a referral to an internal medicine specialist, who is adept at diagnosing obscure and difficult diseases.

I doubt the Lopressor (metoprolol, a beta-blocking agent for hypertension and heart disease) is the cause of your symptom. Nonetheless, if your "hot flashes" appeared shortly after you began the drug, you could be experiencing an idiosyncratic reaction or drug reaction. The internist can address this issue. To give you more information,

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder. One of the arts of defense in bridge is taking control when you know how to administer the killing blow. Don't leave things to your partner, who cannot see through the backs of the cards and might make a logical play that proves fatal to your side rather than to declarer's.

more winners in the suit. At six of these tables, West was worried that his partner had seven clubs for his pre-empt. As a consequence each West continued with a fourth heart, hoping East could overruff the dummy. No such luck. Declarer gratefully ruffed with dummy's jack of spades, drew trumps and discarded his club loser on one of dummy's diamond winners.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol. YOUR BIRTHDAY April 5, 1991. Your financial status looks rather encouraging in the year ahead, but money isn't likely to be handed to you on a silver platter. You'll have to be enterprising and earn your own.

But, it mustn't be carried to extremes today, such as acting in a self-serving manner when an arrangement calls for cooperation.
