RADICAL SHIFTS MADE AS TO FOOTBALL RULES

Most Drastic Revisions In 25 Years
Aim To Cut Injuries

By ALAN GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(A.P.)—The safeguard school and college football from the mounting toll of casualties which reached an unprecedented number last season, the national football rules committee yesterday announced the most drastic revisions the game has known in a quarter-century.

Chief among six major changes in the playing code for 1932 are regulations which abolish the dangerous "flying wedge" formation, from kickoff, and outlaw the aggressive use of hands on the defense, with severe penalty for violation.

Chief further in its sweeping aim to root out the source or causes of gridiron injuries and deaths, the rulemakers decided to liberalize the substitution rules, to permit the re-entry of any withdrawn player in any subsequent period; to abolish the flying block or tackle, recently developed by many high-powered offensive systems; to make the ball "dead" when any part of the ball-carrier's body touches the ground, except his hands or feet; and to alter the player equipment, with greater safety and protection in view.

Not since the forward pass was introduced, paving the way for the modern "open" game, has the gridiron been given a more severe shaking-up.

The committee's decisions, jointly announced after a three-day session at Hanover by Chairman Edward K. Hall and Secretary William S. Langford, were hailed today by leaders all over the country as the solution to manifold troubles besetting the sport. Hall expressed the conviction that these illa had been properly diagnosed and the remedies applied to accomplish a "great forward step" in reducing the chances of player injuries, leading coaches and officials collaborated with the committee in framing the changes that apparently cover all factors blamed for the heavy toll in youth fatalities.

Based chiefly on the exhaustive investigation of newspaper reports by Fielding H. Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan, the committee's analysis developed a maximum of 21 deaths attributable to football, as compared with approximately 80 listed in newspaper reports from all parts of the country. Misleading or incomplete reports, the committee learned, were responsible for the erroneous charging of a number of youthful lives of the game. In one instance Yost found a reported victim alive and healthy.

The committee, although charging exaggeration, did not minimize the sport's dangerous trend nor modify its action. For example, it ruled unhesitatingly against the so-called "flying wedge" on kickoff despite conclusive evidence that not a single fatal injury resulted from such mass formations. Dick Sheridan, the Army end who died from injuries in the Yale game, was hurt in tackling the ball-carrier on kickoff.

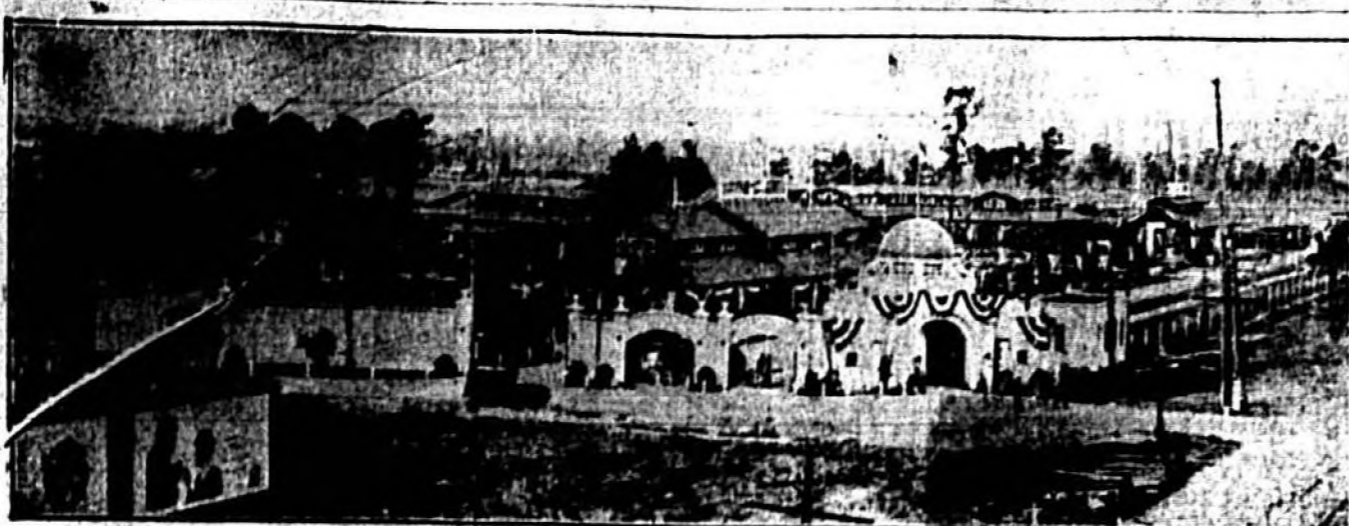

Under the new kickoff rule, the ball may be put into play from its customary spot on the 40-yard line by any one of three methods—kickoff, punt or, as formerly, the place-kick. On the defensive side, at least five men must remain on their own 45-yard line until the ball is kicked. This provides for more strategy on the kickoff, besides preventing a mass formation to protect the ball-carrier, who will nevertheless be given an opportunity to make a fair catch.

The new rule covering use of hands on the defense deals with what many coaches considered the most serious factor in injuries on the line. "Players on defense are forbidden to strike an opponent on the head, neck, or face with hand, wrist, forearm or elbow," the new regulation provides, adding: "such players may however use the palms of their hands on the head of an opponent to ward off or push such opponents in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it."

This, apparently, will call for some fine arts of discomfit by officials, charged with the task of distinguishing between legal and illegal use of hands. The penalty for violation is disqualification of the individual and loss of half the distance to the offending team's line.

Abolition of the flying block or tackle, with a five-yard penalty substitution, extracts something from the defensive but it appears that by the rule making the ball "dead" at any time the carrier's body touches the ground, except his hands and feet. This is considered a dangerous "flying on" situation of numerous injuries, and it will cut down the possi-

Rosenbloom Rules Favorite To Beat Young Bob Godwin

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 16.—Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion rules a 7 to 5 favorite to turn back Young Bob Godwin in their ten round decision battle here Wednesday evening. Rosenbloom displayed speed and class in his workouts here. Local fans will back Godwin to a man and by the time the two principals enter the ring much Godwin money will have been wagered.

Rosenbloom announced today that the Godwin bout will be his last Florida ring engagement as he expects to defend the title late in March in New York against Mickey Walker. He reports himself in splendid shape for the Godwin encounter and expects stiff opposition from Bob who twice beat Battling Boz with a Godwin in at his best against clown type of fighters like Boz and Rosenbloom.

Promoter Major Livingston will arrive here Wednesday noon. Matchmaker Lou Diamond today stated that the main event participants will enter the ring at 10 P. M. sharp. In the event the semifinal between Sammy Mandell and Jimmy Spivey is not over at 9:30 P. M., he will order the bout stopped and the decision awarded to the contestant in front. At 10 P. M. sharp Rosenbloom and Godwin will climb through the ropes to settle their flint feud.

The referee question will be decided at a conference between the Godwin, Pete Stone, Rosenbloom's representative and Matchmaker Diamond at 10 o'clock today. In the event the principals are unable to decide on a third man, a compromise will be made by Matchmaker Diamond who will name Major Livingston as the official. Livingston has had a wide experience in the role of third man and has handled some of the major bouts decided as far west as California.

Gandhi's English Girl Secretary Is Ordered To Leave

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 17.—(A.P.)—The British government yesterday ordered Miss Madeline Slade, who forsook London society, adopted the name Shrimati Mira Behn and became a follower of Mahatma Gandhi, to abstain from all unlawful activities and get out of Bombay within 24 hours.

Miss Slade said she wouldn't budge. "If you are going to arrest me, please don't disturb my sleep at midnight," she declared.

The order was issued by Sir Patrick Kelly, commissioner of police, and was based on the emergency ordinances forbidding all nationalist activities which were proclaimed to put down the Mahatma's civil disobedience campaign. Miss Slade is about the only one of the principal assistants of Mr. Gandhi remaining at liberty.

The powers of many a back who specializes in making progress under difficulties or in getting loose after a partial knock-down.

Under the new rule affecting substitution it will be possible for one player to enter and leave the game four times, instead of twice. The withdrawn player can go back in any subsequent period. Thereby one of the causes for keeping a star in the game until he seems the point of exhaustion is removed. However, the team making a substitution will be charged with a "time out," unless time already has been called for some other reason.

Recall Petitioners Seeking Ouster Of Atlanta's Mayor

ATLANTA, Feb. 17.—(A.P.)—Recall petitions seeking ouster of James L. Key, Atlanta's 61-year-old mayor and veteran of numerous political and other battles, were filed with the city clerk yesterday by labor leaders.

The mayor, who recently described as "whiffle bats" those who blocked the city budget sheet in council, said he had no comment to make.

The city clerk said he would check the petitions with the voters' list and certify the results to council on Mar. 7.

Last December Steve Nance, president of the Atlanta Association of trades, announced the recall petition would seek recall of the mayor or on charges that he is incompetent, forgot his campaign pledges regarding handling of city finance and that he sought to break down the moral standards of the city by permitting Sunday movies for charity.

The mayor defined a "whiffle bat" as a "super sort of a bird that flies backwards, knows very little about where he is going and nothing about where he is coming from."

He said "these birds" blocked the finance sheet carrying a balanced budget and on which depends payment of long overdue salaries to nearly 4000 city employees.

HALL POINTS OUT BENEFITS FROM NEW GRID RULES

States Game Will Be Made Safe For Average School Boy

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(A.P.)—The far-reaching changes in the national gridiron code for 1932 not only will further safeguard players, in the belief of Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, but make it easier, rather than more difficult for the officials to check defensive tactics that have contributed to the toll of casualties.

"You ask me, first, whether I think the game now is safe for the average schoolboy player," responded Hall, "and my reply is, without qualification or reservation, yes."

"The game is now as safe for high school boys as it is for older players, providing always that the boys are physically fit and that they have the proper supervision, especially as to the treatment of any injuries. If I had 10 boys of high school age I would urge every one to play football if he had the chance."

"Secondly, and for several reasons, I feel certain the new rules will lighten, instead of adding to the responsibilities of the officials. The 'dead ball' rule now is virtually automatic. Moreover, the distinction between legal and illegal use of hands, where any and all 'striking' becomes a foul, is now so clear that there can be no misinterpretation."

"Lastly, the punishment for illegal use of hands is now so severe, involving disqualification of the player and a penalty of half the distance to the goal line, that no coach will instruct or advise his players to take any chances. Of paramount importance in the new rules is the abolishment of the rolling block and flying tackle, in Hall's opinion. He does not hesitate to answer the few critics whose first reaction has been antagonistic.

"The committee's action here was based upon thorough analysis of hundreds of injury cases, minor as well as major," the chairman said. "This analysis showed us conclusively that a great number of accidents were due to the flying tackle or the rolling block. Curiously enough, our reports showed it was the player making such a block or tackle, not the objective player, who suffered the injury, in nearly all cases."

"We satisfied ourselves, in short, that the whole method of diving at a player, designed to bring him down hard, is dangerous. Our evidence showed that two players were fatally hurt, although they missed their man entirely and hit nothing but the ground."

"A great many coaches, in high schools as well as colleges, have taught their players to leave their feet in going for the object. Over-scrupulous prompts many players otherwise to risk the flying tackle. The new rule is designed to check this dangerous trend. Its application may call for some hairline decisions, but this is a minor consideration, when the full facts are understood."

As to the new substitution rule, permitting a withdrawn player to re-enter the game in any subsequent period, Mr. Hall calls the attention of critics to the provision that checks, rather than encourages indiscriminate replacements.

"No substitution can be made except when there is time-out," he explained. "Thus, if time is not called for any other reason, a team desiring to make a substitution will be obliged to take a timeout for the purpose or, if its allotment of three time-outs per half is exhausted, take a five-yard penalty. This is bound to discourage unsportsmanlike substitutions."

FLORIDA CASE REVERSED

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17.—(A.P.)—The United States circuit court of appeals yesterday reversed and remanded to the Southern Florida District the case of Henry Meyers against the city of St. Petersburg in which Meyers won through the lower court a judgment of $33,000 allegedly due on a contract to construct two yacht basins on the city's waterfront.

They were asking each other what made a good cigarette. And after discussing one thing and another, they agreed that a cigarette should be milder. They thought also that it should taste just right—that is, not over-sweet, but on the other hand, not bitter—just sweet enough. And everybody, they said, wants anything that is placed in the mouth just as pure as can be. Then they began to think what cigarette, if any, filled this bill; and agreed that CHESTERFIELD was milder—tasted better—and was pure. The girls were satisfied, because "They Satisfy."

An Unfair Deal

Just how a person can be guilty of reckless driving while his car is at a dead stop was recently demonstrated in Long Island where a woman had her driver's license suspended for 15 days as the result of an accident.

In this particular case the defendant at the hearing was a poor woman whose husband was out of work and whose only means of getting to her job every day was in her car. The complainant was the wife of a large corporation president and her chauffeur was operating the car at the time of the mishap. Evidence indicated that the offending car had merely stopped behind another car which had halted its course at an intersection.

The liveried limousine, with its important occupant, and probably bearing a special police plate, attempted to maneuver around the two halted automobiles and became entangled, with the result that a bit of glass got in the face of the limousine's owner. Of course some one ought to pay for this, and in this case, the poor woman with no influence was made the goat.

Now, there are many times when the owners of cars parked on the highways are guilty of reckless driving. There are times when a driver should be put in jail, when, in changing a tire, he leaves it, along with a lot of tools, in the middle of the road to menace traffic. Yes, a man can be guilty of reckless driving when he may be miles away from his car.

But this interpretation of the law should not be a cause to "railroad it" over an innocent and unfortunate person. It is difficult to understand the outlook on life of a woman who would, for the satisfaction of a selfish whim, add to the miseries of another while she herself lives in the lap of luxury.

Hardships Of War

While negotiations for peace in the Far East are continued, bombs are still falling from speeding airplanes and giant howitzers drop their shells dangerously close to the International Settlement. Here, safe from such disturbing factors, we may think our lot in life is unpleasant, because of unseasonal weather, or poor business conditions. But the Chinese of the Chapel or Woosung area know what real trouble is. The hardships of the natives involved in the Shanghai conflict are described by Miss Zee Chin-mei, a member of a prominent Chinese family, who said:

"For the last week, my family of thirteen has been attempting to escape from the zone of hostilities, living in dugouts, moving from one uncertain refuge to another. During our flight, a child was born to my sister-in-law while we were hiding in a makeshift barricade against the Japanese artillery bombardment.

"Our family consists of ten adults and three children. When the Japanese bombardment from the rifle range was started, we were living in our country home between the Chapel and Kiangwan districts. Firing of large shells alarmed us and we constructed a dugout in a dry creek behind our house, using planks, furniture, bedding, etc. It was there that my sister-in-law gave birth to her child.

"We were in the midst of a terrific bombardment and threatened with fighting. We were forced to move about, remaining with a community of forty refugees, including some friends and relatives, one mile from Woosung, throughout Saturday, Sunday and Monday, while shells were falling thickly on the countryside. Troops engaged in the battle for the Woosung forts deployed around us.

"This morning I walked a circuitous route across country to Shanghai to learn whether we could find refuge with my cousin, Mr. F. C. Nyl, associate editor of 'The Chinese Nation.' He arranged to accommodate six of us. Six others were given places with friends.

"I walked back to Woosung with the glad news. I finally found the others, and we started for Shanghai, leaving the war area in wheelbarrows and on foot. The roar of guns rumbled in our ears constantly and the acrid smell of powder vividly emphasized the warfare raging in the Yangtze Delta, while alien troops are attempting to seize our territory without provocation and without even a formal declaration of war."

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Interest in qualifying to vote at the Democratic primaries this year is manifesting itself. A number of persons called at the registration office in the court house this week to find out matters in regard to voting. Mr. W. L. Doherty, the supervisor of registration, will open his books in the court house on Monday, March 13.

W. S. Baldwin and T. J. Miller have returned from Jacksonville where they have been jurors at the term of the United States Court.

Mrs. Joseph D. Rogers and little son, Julius, of Savannah, have returned home after spending 10 days here with the former's sister, Mrs. Alfred L. Lyle.

Miss Mary McKim entertained very delightfully several days ago at her home on Silver Lake in honor of her house guest, Miss Katharine Ellis, of Knoxville, Tenn. The chief diversion of the afternoon was a spoolst, "The Tale of Mazy Anthony," Miss Martha Fox being the successful contestant. The guests were then favored with two earnest solos by Miss Clara Morrow. After other contests refreshments were served and the party ended with a pleasant ride to the city. Some present were: the Misses Katharine Ellis, Clara Morrow, Carrie Lovell, Lois Williams, Martha Fox, Annie Simpson, Margaret Davis, Joseph Simpson, Lucie Chappell, Mercedes Munson, and Mary McKim.

H. R. Stevens has returned from Chapel Hill, N. C., where he was the guest of his son, Ralph, who is a student at the University of North Carolina.

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Robeson entertained at their lovely home on Sanford Heights several days for about 25 young friends of their two sons, Alfred and Claude, who celebrated their birthday anniversary at that time. The charming

ENTITLED TO A CLEAR ROAD

Robert A. Gray was appointed Secretary of State by Governor Carlton, to succeed W. M. Igou, who, after being appointed to succeed H. Clay Crawford, deceased, resigned on account of ill health. The circumstances were such that, shortly after his appointment, Mr. Gray had to enter a statewide campaign for election for the unexpired term, in the primaries of 1930. The election was for only two years, instead of the full term in which a state officer is usually entitled after winning an election. Now it is necessary for Mr. Gray to be again nominated and elected—which demands carrying on a campaign twice in two years.

This, we take it, is piling it on the shoulders of one man, however willing and capable. In all fairness and justice, Mr. Gray is entitled to nomination and election for the full term without opposition.

We don't know that any opposition is contemplated. There should be none. Not only is Mr. Gray entitled to a clear road because of the circumstances requiring him to be elected twice in two years, but there isn't any good reason why he should be displaced. He has been a most capable, diligent and courteous Secretary of State. He has a stack of appreciative testimonials from all parts of the state which would discourage any opponent—the fruit of good service.

We have not heard of any formidable opposition to any of the officers who constitute the Governor's Cabinet. They have made good records, which opposing candidates would find it difficult to successfully attack. We mention Mr. Gray's case specifically, because he has been called upon to do more in a political way than is usually required of a state official.

CHINA'S EFFECTIVE RETORT

The Chinese official "summary" of the Sino-Japanese imbroglio, published from Washington on Friday night, presumably in reply to the Japanese official statement of February 7 to which it makes some reference, is undoubtedly the most finished diplomatic composition that oriental affairs have drawn from any nation during the last five months. This does not mean that it covers all points in the Sino-Japanese dispute with unanswerable arguments, for its method of dealing with Japan's very strong plea of provocation both in Manchuria and Shanghai is generally one of discreet omission. But its tone of perfect restraint and patient reasonableness and its careful avoidance of any claim in which the newspaper reader might detect an error in fact make it a far more effective appeal to world opinion than any of Japan's recent overzealous efforts to cover Admiral Shirozawa's blunders at Shanghai.

When the final adjustment between Japan and China comes the matter of provocation, of course, cannot be overlooked. Just as deliberate Chinese treaty repudiation and pickpocketing over a period of years must enter into any judgment upon the Manchurian case, so must the boycott, which actually antagonized Japanese disciplinary measures and involved every possible criminal offense against Japanese persons and property, be balanced against Japanese naval and military action in the vicinity of Shanghai. These remarks have reference to the issues between Japan and China only and have little if any bearing upon the grievances which the Occidental powers with an interest in Shanghai's security and integrity have against Japan. And it is in this field particularly that the Chinese "summary" will impress the reader of all Japanese protestations as a particularly devastating retort to them.

The Chinese statement does not prove that violent and criminal activities in the name of the officially fostered boycott did not justify drastic Japanese action. It does not prove that the Japanese force sent to Shanghai to take such action was out of proportion to the emergency and interests in the port. It does not prove that Admiral Shirozawa's demands were unreasonable. But it is established that the Chinese military reaction to them was not a response to the Japanese. But it does very effectively present the contention of all official and news reports from Shanghai that Admiral Shirozawa needlessly violated the neutrality of the Settlement, used it as a base for attack and a haven in retreat and therefore made it the objective of Chinese counter-movements.

Finally, in quoting the Municipal Council's statement that "Japan is solely responsible for acts of the Japanese armed forces in Shanghai," it refutes effectively the Japanese claim that her campaign has been co-operative and defensive only. This does not prove by any means that China's cause is fundamentally sound; but it does let off a heavy charge under Japan's international position, which is at least good tactics.

WHAT RESPONSE TO THE BILLBOARD?

Billboards are again attracting attention in New York State. But not the kind of attention they are intended to attract. It is expected the question of roadside advertising will come in for considerable discussion in the current session of the State Legislature. Billboards evidently are not wanted at any rate, by most users of the highways.

As in Massachusetts, New Jersey and several other states, where more progress in the direction of billboard control has been made, public opinion as expressed through civic bodies in New York state is becoming more and more anti-billboard. Proposals to tax roadside advertisers are being considered. One bill proposes not only that a license fee be levied but that a ban be put on billboards within fifty feet of a highway or five hundred feet of a railroad. It must be strange to a those that the public is not always favorably impressed by this form of advertising. The motorist, an whose response the value of roadside advertising depends, usually considers it a kind of trespass against his right to enjoy the countryside. Many, indeed, are turned against the product thus advertised at the expense of their enjoyment of motoring. When business interests awake to the fact that the good will they seek to develop through other advertising mediums may be largely destroyed by thoughtless attempts to attract attention along the highways, they and the public will gain together.

Cardozo's Choice As Supreme Court Jurist Is Opposed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (A.P.)—The elevation of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo to the United States supreme court was protested yesterday by two of his fellow residents of the state of New York. They were invited to appear Friday before a Senate judiciary sub-committee and express their objections in person.

The protests came from William H. Anderson, general secretary of the American Protestant alliance, and O. R. Miller, Albany, an official of the New York Civic league.

Anderson is a former state

Anti-Saloon league official. He served a term in prison for several years ago. The state court of appeals, of which Judge Cardozo was a member, upheld Anderson's conviction. Anderson said yesterday in a telegram that he would testify "against Judge Cardozo's fitness as indicated by his contribution to the consummation of an infamy of injustice perpetrated through the Tammany control and prostitution of the courts, shown by Judge Seabury's revelations."

Miller's protest said Cardozo's elevation to the supreme court would "be an offense to the whole dry sentiment" of the state of New York.

Merid And Fantastic Picture, Doctor Jekyll and Hyde At Milane

Every day he is a handsome, kindly man, a distinguished physician recommended by his friends and beloved by his adorable fiancée. But by night he is a prowling fiend, a monstrous creature bent on a career of horror and torture.

Those who admire this man know him as "Dr. Jekyll." Those who hate and fear him know him as "Mr. Hyde."

Now if you want to meet this mysterious man face to face—and you want to know why he is the evil, loathsome side of his nature to dominate his soul, you must see Paramount's unique and weird production of the world-famous Robert Louis Stevenson story, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," at the Glasse Theater tonight and Friday.

Playing the dual roles of "Jekyll and Hyde" is that splendid young actor, Frederic March. Now the "Jekyll" is young, handsome, confident—and then Hyde, the menacing, lustful monster, March gives a performance of lasting significance. The two leading female roles are portrayed by Miriam Hopkins, as the beautiful innocent girl who falls under the spell of the seductive Dr. Jekyll, and Hobart as the devoted fiancée of the doctor.

Both of these young actors are splendidly suited to their talents.

DEMPSEY RISKS TITLE TONIGHT IN CHICAGO BATTLE

Manassa Mauler Will Get Real Test With Wild King Levinsky

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Jack Dempsey comes back to a Chicago ring tonight to risk his pugilistic future against wild-swinging King Levinsky.

Dempsey, at 37, a seeder after the truth about his chances of regaining the world heavyweight title, and Levinsky, 21, cocksure and believing he is going somewhere, will meet in what is billed as a four-round exhibition at the Chicago stadium. There will be no decision given if both are on their feet at the finish.

Dempsey will risk everything he has gained in his long career on the comeback path, except a very satisfying amount of money. He has been knocking out opponents of greater or less merit, in his barnstorming but there have been no Levinsky's among them.

He has specified his training gloves in most of his exhibitions, but tonight the gloves will average less than 10 ounces each, plenty light enough to permit serious damage.

Levinsky is ranked among the first 10 heavyweights of the country. He is tough enough to have beaten Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzcudun, and he gave Primo Carnera a routing battle before losing a close decision. A beating from Levinsky will mean the end of the trail for Dempsey.

It will be the old mauler's first battle in Chicago since September 1927, when he tried and failed to regain the title from Gene Tunney before the highest attendance in boxing history in Soldier field. Dempsey has lost none of his box office appeal. Stadium officials expect a capacity attendance of more than 22,000, a record indoor crowd for a professional fight. The gross "gate" is expected to reach $70,000. Of this amount Dempsey can take 60 percent and pay Levinsky $7,500 or take 45 percent, leaving 15 percent for the Kingfish.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion who has signed for a four-round bout with Frankie Wine, Battle, Mont, here next Tuesday night, will address the Kentucky legislature at Frankfort the next day.

A special session of the house will be reserved for Gov. Ruby Laffoon, Lieut. Gov. A. R. Chandler and members of the legislature. Dempsey will go to Frankfort as the guest of the lieutenant governor, and will address the legislature on the provisions of a boxing and wrestling bill pending before the lawmakers.

The measure provides for reduction of license fees from $500 to $100 a show, and would authorize referees or judges appointed by the state boxing commission to give decisions. No decisions are permitted under the present Kentucky law, and newspaper editors must pick their own winners if there is no knockout.

Stocks Fluctuate As Market Shows Uncertain State

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—The stock market made several ineffectual efforts to penetrate recent high yesterday, but finally gave up under active profit-taking. In a busy opening and during a subsequent rally the market virtually duplicated Tuesday's best prices, only to fall back each time when new buying was insufficient to provide the necessary push.

Net losses in many instances ranged from $1 to $5, the average decline of $2.80 being about exactly the amount of Tuesday's advance. Transactions totaled 2,180,813 shares.

The market was under pressure throughout the afternoon. Reaction of the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 by American Telephone & Telegraph company was the signal for selling, resulting in a loss of $1.00 on the theory that the "good news" was bad.

U. S. Steel, a popular vehicle for bull market operations since last week, touched Tuesday's high of $54 and then encountered difficulties. It sold down to $46.60 and closed at $47, off $2.50.

Wall Street, however, maintained a cheerful spirit. Brokers pointed out that the market's technical position had been improved by the heavy covering during recent rallies and that Tuesday's unexpected advance came before the reaction from last week's sensational upturn had been completed.

The bond market was firm. Liberty bonds were recorded by heavy railroad issue.

Godwin Gets Draw With Rosenbloom In 10-Round Fight

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Young Bob Godwin of Daytona Beach, earned a 10-round draw with Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, in a fast 10-round non-title bout at the National Guard City 15 arena here last night.

Rosenbloom weighed 178 and Godwin was two points lighter. Godwin carried the fight to the champion all the way, battling on even terms except for two rounds, the fourth and eighth, when Maxie had an edge. But piled up points in the second and sixth.

The final round was fast and furious with Godwin making two all-out attacks and Rosenbloom had to defend and give as good as he received. Maxie was on the ropes most of the round.

Among the spectators was Sir Makom Campbell, British speed driver, who joined the several thousand spectators in cheering lustily as the fight waxed warm.

Sammy Mandell started his comeback in quest of the welter crown by outpointing Jimmy Spivey, a tough plain knit from Columbus, Ga., in the 10-round semi-final, but could not stop the Columbus boy.

Mandell used Spivey for a charging black and had him down for the count of nine in the second, but Spivey, out black with his eyes as well as his chin and withstood the best Mandell gave him. Mandell obviously tried for a knockout from the second round on but Spivey fought back power.

Spivey's blows lacked power and frequently landed low without doing any damage.

Referee Morris Minor gave Mandell eight rounds, and called two even.

Henny Levine, Newark, N. J., welter knocked out K. O. Miller of Jacksonville, in the fifth round of the first eight round preliminary. Miller, outboard, was down for nine in the fourth.

Junior Hitch, Daytona Beach, 115 pounder, won a referee's decision over Eddie Wilson of Jacksonville, in the second preliminary, also an eight rounder. Hitch won five rounds and two were even.

Sanford Women Golfers Do Well In Early Rounds

The Sanford County Club's team of five women golfers who are among the 22 crack Central Florida women golfers entered in the first annual Central Florida Invitational Tournament being played over the Jubaladee Country Club course, Winter Park, have come through their early rounds with success.

Miss Jane Lelloy, who was kept out of the first flight by one stroke, and who heads the list of golfers, in the second flight, defeated Mrs. Paul Yell one up over in holes this morning in quarter final play. Tomorrow morning she must meet Miss Frances Hutchison, Winter Park, who defeated Mrs. A. Ward, Winter Park, two up this morning.

In the third flight Mrs. Allan Stewart lost a two up match to Mrs. Arthur Baker, Orlando, while Mrs. A. C. Fort defeated Miss Leon Lelloy, eight and six. Mrs. Stewart will meet Mrs. R. M. King in semi-final play, while Mrs. A. C. Fort will meet Mrs. J. Harrison, of Deland. All semi-final matches are for 18 holes.

Allan Stewart, professional at the club, this morning stated that the women's championship tournament for 1933 will begin next week, and that all women expecting to enter must have played qualifying rounds by next Thursday night.

Hope Revived For Carrying Supplies

DURANGO, Colo., Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Moderating weather today revived the hope that several hundred snowbound residents of Northwest New Mexico will be reached before their dwindling food supplies are exhausted.

Two Denver and Rio Grande Western freight trains are expected to clear a long stretch of snow and ice blockade leading out of Cimarron Pass 10,000 feet up in the clouds.

One out of the pass the train, laden with foodstuffs, grain, and hay for starving livestock, will head directly into the stricken Rio Arriba county.

Distribution of the supplies must be made in isolated districts by horse and pack burro. In parts of New Mexico, 184 inches of snow have fallen this season. Livestock losses are estimated in Northwest New Mexico and Southwest Colorado at more than 2,000,000.

Celery Feds Beat Rollins Cagers In Rough Engagement

Battling desperately the full route, The Seminole High Celery Feds last night defeated the Rollins College Freshmen five, 38 to 21. A small crowd turned out to watch the Celery Feds defeat the Baby Tars in what was probably one of the roughest games staged in Sanford this year.

Heater and Lyles played a valuable part in the Celery Feds' victory. The sharpshooting of Heater, Smith and Kanher was the feature of the evening. But there were two good blockers the Tars path to the goal many times.

Atwell was the outstanding man for the Rollins College freshmen. He fully deserves individual honors for the Baby Tars. He played a consistent floor game and handled his position as a guard in great style.

The Celery Fed point making was fairly evenly distributed, with Kanher and Heater leading with ten points, Smith with nine, while Lyles collected six and Heater three.

Coach Mike Houser will invade Sanford Friday night with his basketball team from Andrew Jackson. Although the Celery Feds lost to Andrew Jackson in Jacksonville earlier during the season they promise to put up a stiff battle against them in their last home game of the season. Every basketball fan in the city should make a great effort to be on hand at the High School gymnasium Friday night to cheer the Celery Feds to a victory.

Coach McLure has drilled his boys and put into them a never-die spirit and the boys did give a full gym at least once during the season, and what game will be better than the Andrew Jackson-Sanford game.

Canadian Mounties Slay Their Man In Race From Justice

AKLAVIK, N. W. T., Feb. 18.—(A.P.)—Albert Johnson, the mail carrier of Rat River, was killed yesterday after successfully eluding police for days in the frozen wastes north of here.

In a battle, which preceded Johnson's killing, Staff Sergeant Hershey was shot and dangerously wounded. Two bullets entered his body.

Johnson, who had killed one "Mountie" and wounded another, was fleeing down Porcupine valley towards Alaska when death ended the dramatic chase.

For three weeks the finest "mushers" in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police had pursued him with poses of traps and Indians. Many times they had been close to Johnson but each time his skillful woodsmanship helped him elude them.

Johnson, known as "The Killer from Rat River," was one of the most desperate and resourceful bushmen in the Arctic.

Blizzards that swept down from the Arctic Circle seemed to have no effect on him and day after day he kept up his killing pace over the barren.

The scarlet-jacketed "Mounties" never far behind him, pursued often as to how he kept himself going, as to when and where he slept and as to how he got his food.

Though known as "mad," he showed uncanny skill in eluding them, and at the time of his death was barely 170 miles from Alaska, where he might have been safe, at least temporarily, from his grim pursuers.

He was wanted for the slaying of Constable E. Millen, a member of the posse which trapped him 100 miles south of here and sought to arrest him for the wounding of another "Mountie," who tried to arrest him on complaint of Indians that he had collected their traps. He escaped into the open country after killing Millen.

MILLS SUITED BY EXPERIENCE FOR HIS APPOINTMENT

New Treasury Secretary Long Connected With Finances

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Mr. Ogden L. Mills, slated for the job of Secretary of the Treasury, has in the last few months come to be a power in American financial matters and will be one of the strongest characters in the revised cabinet. By training and inclination he is suited for the task, and as financial matters have become more and more to dominate international and domestic relations Mr. Mills has been more and more in the public eye.

President Hoover has sent his nomination to the Senate. It also has been announced formally that Mr. Arthur A. Ballantine will succeed Mr. Mills as Undersecretary.

A full length picture of Mr. Mills was offered as he gave testimony recently before the Senate Finance Committee, when he made the principal defense of the Hoover memorandum bill. It was an unusual scene. Rarely has a Senate committee, or the surrounding group of newspaper men and spectators, been so silent. Rarely has anyone gained the complete attention in such a group that Mr. Mills commanded.

He is heavy and thick-set. His face is smiling but truculent. He spoke to the assembled group in a voice that did not attempt oratory or rhetorical flourishes. But he spoke in a convincing way, and he never let up of abated his insistence, who hammered home point after point, never hurried, and was never at a loss for words.

Such a man is the hard-hitting hard working, aggressive Mr. Mills, who is called to take over the nation's financial affairs; a man fortunate in inherited wealth, who has not once stopped to live comfortably in his money, but has gone ahead in the government's service, following the star of his ambition, energy and unflinching ability.

To be exact, he was born in Newport, R. I., in August, 1884, and accordingly today is 48 years of age. His grandfather was Darius Mills, a small town merchant who followed the gold rush to California and made his stake not in digging gold but in selling provisions to those who dug; and who returned with his pile to New York, where he left $100,000 accumulated by dealing in New York real estate.

Mr. Mills got his Harvard degree in 1904, and a law degree three years later. He entered the New York bar and decided to enter politics from the Central Park seventeenth district, in which the brownstone Mills family home is located in the upper 60's.

Mr. Mills did the ordinary routine work of the political circle, and got the promotion he wanted as state senator at Albany in 1911. He served in the World War and came back a captain, continued going to Republican national conventions, and in 1920 reached the first part of his real goal when he came to Congress. Two years later he barely managed to hold his post by a plurality of only 190 votes over his Democratic opponent, but he was re-elected in several succeeding battles.

In Congress, Mr. Mills got a reputation for knowing all about finance; of being able and hard working, but his colleagues were a little afraid of him.

Jack Visitor Sees Business Revival Nearing Country

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 18.—"Things are going to get better and in two years we'll look back on today and regret very much that we hadn't borrowed every cent we could and bought stocks or invested in real estate which, I believe, is lower now than it ever will be again."

Such is the opinion of E. M. Sams, owner of the New York Financier, oldest banking publication in this country, and a retired, successful broker of New York City. Mr. Sams is spending some time in Florida and while in Jacksonville is a guest at the George Washington hotel.

"Work hard and live within your means," is the suggestion that Mr. Sams offers to the young business man of today, laying emphasis on the latter phase, because of late he has seen so many wrecks of the present economic situation as the result of fast stepping over and above apparent incomes.

An extensive traveler, Mr. Sams prefers Florida to California and he sees great possibilities in this state, but cautions, in that connection, that the development "will take a few years, now." He looks upon Jacksonville as the business city of the South. This, incidentally, is his first real visit here in 10 years. He first came to Jacksonville 25 years ago and has seen this city's great development with his own eyes.

Mr. Sams knew Ann Harding, Dorothy Gately, in real life. When the now famous actress was a youngster, her father, Brigadier-General Gately, and Mr. Sams being personal friends, Miss Harding's recent visit to the city brought her name into yesterday's conversation. Mr. Sams paying a tribute to her by saying "I never knew a brighter, wittier girl than Dorothy, who was always a tomboy, and could jump on a horse and ride like an Indian."

Mr. Sams is a lover of reading and in his youth his greatest inspiration came from biographies, in which, he said, he caught the vision of how successful men had made the grade.

Relative to the national economic situation, Mr. Sams looks upon the editor of his paper, Peter Bain, as one of the best informed men in the country. "He told me," Mr. Sams said, "that we'd struck rock bottom, and that there would be an improvement from now on in stock value and in general business conditions."

Morris Plan Group Opens Branch On North Park Avenue

The Morris Plan Company of Orlando today announced the opening of an agency at 116 North Park Avenue, has named Ira E. Southward as its agency manager, and is ready to offer two distinct services to the community it serves.

First, it provides a place for investments where interest on savings accounts return five per cent on demand certificates and six per cent on time certificates. The safety of Morris Plan Investment certificates has given rise to the following slogan: "No one has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest in a Morris Plan Savings Account."

Second, it provides for the issuance of small loans to worthy applicants at a reasonable charge. According to Mr. Southward, the Morris Plan cannot be confused with the small loan companies making excessive interest charges. The loans are repaid in weekly installments over a period of six to 12 months, and the security may be in the form of collateral or personal guaranty.

The Morris Plan is not a new organization and is not a chain organization. Each Morris Plan bank or company is locally owned and controlled with local officers and directors, but has national supervision and audit. The Morris Plan companies in Florida are also supervised by the State Banking Department.
