

Edward M. House, War Statesman, Is Dead At Age Of 79

had compiled his papers, reveals the steadfastness of his devotion to the man he had served as chief counselor and "super-ambassador."

"There were many doors in the temples that men of old revered to their gods, to the sun and to the moon," he wrote. "Behind the innermost door dwell the mysteries."

"And now you who have had access to my most intimate papers ask me to unlock the innermost door, a door to which I have no key. My separation from Woodrow Wilson was, and is, to me a tragic mystery, a mystery that now can never be dispelled, for its explanation lies buried with him."

"Theories I have and theories they must remain. Never during the years we worked together was there an unkind or impatient word written or spoken, and this to me is an abiding consolation. While our friendship was not of long duration it was as close as human friendship can grow to be. To his letters and mine bear silent testimony."

"Until a shadow fell between us I never had a more considerate friend and my devotion to his memory remains and will remain unchanged."

To the general public Col. House was a man of mystery, holding international secrets and wielding tremendous power as the counselor of President Wilson in the World War days and through the peace negotiations.

A native of frontier Texas who as a boy saw shooting affairs in the streets of Houston, he became the intimate of the world's great personages in the momentous period from 1914 to 1919. A familiar but unobtrusive figure in the capitals of the warring nations, he had on his calling list such names as Kaiser Wilhelm, Clemenceau, Lloyd George and King Albert of Belgium.

The quiet, self-effacing man who went about his important mission abroad so unobtrusively had been President Wilson's confidential adviser and friend since his first election, a position novel in American political affairs. It was said by friends that the president relied upon his judgement and foresight more than he did upon those of anyone else.

"He is a man," said the president, "of remarkable ability. He can hold things off at arm's length and consider them and discuss them without being mixed up."

Wilson did not know House until the beginning of the canvass for his presidential nomination. Wilson then was governor of New Jersey and House was a power in Texas state politics. He was not yet in the public spotlight but his work in Texas had made him known to national leaders of the democratic party.

His father had left him an inheritance of $25,000 a year which enabled him to pursue unhampered his interest in politics. State politics began to pull on him after he had helped bring about his interests to the study of astronomy and became quite proficient in the subject. Banneker accurately predicted the eclipse of 1789. In 1792, aided by James McHenry, a cabinet member under President John Adams, he published his first almanac which was to bring him considerable fame. In acknowledgement of a copy sent him, Thomas Jefferson wrote Banneker: "Nobody wishes more than I do to see such proofs as you exhibit, that nature has given to our black brethren talents equal to (to the other colors of men... Banneker received probably his greatest recognition from President Washington in an appointment to the commission which drafted plans for the District of Columbia. After this commission was dissolved, Banneker returned to the plantation where he devoted much of his time to other almanacs and stores of nature. DOUBLE-DEAD HEAT... An oddity in the annals of racing occurred at Sanford track California, recently when, in two successive races, the result was a dead heat for first place! In the open-air race last December 7, Easter Parade and Miss Ladybug nosed over the wire together in a photo finish that was officially declared a dead heat. The next race ended similarly when Bon Amour and Don Gratton, both long shots, crossed together. Then, strange as it seems, the third race of the day almost ended the same way when Urge Me won from Horn Black, place horse, by a matter of inches. Tomorrow: The Burglar of Buckingham.

Flying Blind In thick weather, it is often necessary for airplanes to "fly blind" . . . to depend on instruments rather than vision and charted landmarks. Almost uncanny in their accuracy, such instruments are nevertheless second choice in the navigation of the air. Shoppers who trot off down-town to the stores without first consulting the advertisements of those same stores are likewise flying blind. And needlessly so. The advertisements in this paper are put here for your guidance, for your safe landing in the Ports of Value. Study them in the comfort of your home . . . map your course before you put on your hat and drop the latch-key into your handbag. Compare the products offered, their prices, their general advantages. Then set out on your shopping-trip prepared for what you will see, what you will wish to have sent home. Let the advertisements serve as guiding beacons of buying. It's the smart thing to do.

Oriando Leads Pack After Ending Two Weeks Drill Period

By JULIAN STENSTROM
Herald Sports Editor

Eight teams in the Florida State League are scurrying down to work in steady Spring training regimens this week in preparation for the forthcoming season as the Orlando Senators are leading the pack.

In Orlando, the Senators have finished two weeks' training and are ready to begin action since the complete club they have secured hope to be a contender for the flag this season.

Next in line are the Sanford Lookouts who started Monday with nine men present out of 40 who have been signed by the president, Henry Watson. The Lookouts have a number of players with talent on hand and a manager this year whose hobby is winning pennants.

Over in Leesburg, Manager Nellie Leach has returned from a northern trip where he secured enough talent to give the Gonda-dollers first division ball club. They are planning to schedule exhibition games within the loop and to date have secured a tilt with the Kansas City outfit of the American Association on Apr. 6.

In Daytona Beach, no new developments have been released concerning the Islanders. However, they are still attempting to get their club release from the St. Louis Cardinals as they may operate on an independent basis.

Don McShane of the championship Gameville G-Men is at the New Orleans camp in that city securing a number of rookies that the Pelicans will shove into the "D" leagues. McShane has the base of his last year's nine but is in need of two or three hurriers.

In Palatka, George Andrews and his Azaleas got training sessions underway yesterday afternoon with four infielders and the hurling corps on hand for duty. Andrews hopes to put Palatka back on a paying basis this season with a strong club. He has secured talent from the Joe Stripp baseball school held in Orlando.

Lyle Judy, new manager of the St. Augustine Saints, reported to the ancient city yesterday to take his choice of left-over rookies of the Trenton Club in the NYP League. Bill Page, business manager of the DeLand Reds is handling sessions by himself until the Red pilot arrives. Page has signed 28 players for Spring drills and according to "Uncle Bill" he has some real talent under consideration.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS

By JULIAN STENSTROM

The baseball park, which has been leased by Henry Watson, proxy of the Baseball Association, looks better at present than it has for the past ten years. The stands have been painted green with gray seats while the bleachers have been given their usual coat of gray.

The dugouts and old club houses have also undergone painting and repairing and in general the seating arrangement is at "top." The infield has been carefully arranged and is ready for the opening game of the season. However, the outfield still has plenty of weeds in it and is a bit rough.

The only thing that needs to be fixed very badly now is the hazardous screen in front of the center section of the grandstand. The protection wire is full of holes and a portion of it is just hanging from the top connections.

Bill "Raw Meat" Rodgers, pilot of the Lookouts last season, was in Sanford yesterday and visited a number of old friends. Bill is undecided whether to go back in baseball or not but he still loves the grand old game as much as ever.

SHORT SPORT SHOTS—Fans will get to see the local outfit work out twice daily starting today as only 18 days remain before the team starts in front of the customers in the stand and yell at the tops of their voices. . . . PLAY BALL, Babe Young, the Sanford hurler who plays ball for his wife and three months-old baby is ready for the season to open and when it does, Babe says: "I'll open with a bang too." . . . He has been practicing with the Chattanooga Lookouts since monies.

Sanford Players Hold First Training Drill At Athletic Field Yesterday Afternoon

Babe Young Leading Youngsters Until Manager Guy Lacy Arrives To Take Over 1938 Managerial Reins

Nine members of the Sanford baseball outfit underwent an initial official workout for the Spring training activities at the Municipal Athletic Field yesterday in preparation for the forthcoming season that opens April 14.

The entire group of boys were in earnest in their work and a number of fans were in the stand watching them limber up muscles and attempt to remove winter "charley-horses" from their limbs.

In the pitching roles, were Duke Patton of Philadelphia and Bob Fisher of Bryan, Ohio. Patton's right arm is rounding into shape and he boasts a delivery with plenty of stuff and a fast ball that carries a full five inch hop. Fisher, who was sent here by the Brooklyn Dodgers, saw a bit of warm-up action and the local fans are taking interest in the 18 year old hurler. He has developed an almost perfect delivery and is able to send the sphere across the platter with a great amount of speed and accuracy.

The only catcher to report to date is Big Babe Young of the Chattanooga Lookouts. Young worked on his hitting and throwing while doing the bit of practice directing as Manager Guy Lacy has still failed to arrive in Sanford. Young has many personal for his accurate hitting ability and his throwing arm has nicked many a runner near the second base sack.

Infielders "Hoody" Scroggins, "Spee" Muntling and Bill Wells worked on their duties of nipping grounders and throwing the ball across the diamond to first base. A perfect timing double play combination has developed between Wells, at short and Muntling in the keystone position.

Dick Murray of Youngstown, Pa., reported for the first time yesterday and he is the only outfielder in this city so far reported. Murray is stocky built and packs a wallop at the plate and nailing tough fly ball appears to be his fancy.

The youngsters are to begin double workouts daily tomorrow with sessions starting in the morning at 9:00 o'clock and at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Bluebill Proves Restoration Truth

By "DING" DARLING
Kind of hard to figure out what this bird should be called. Bluebill, broadbill, lesser scaup, greater scaup, blackhead, black-neck, blackback, dough-breast, there are some of the labels given to this newly related species. Little and big, creek bluebill and bay bluebill. . . . They are so very much alike, except for size, that skilled naturalists at times have difficulty in distinguishing between specimens without making precise measurements.

The smaller species is more inclined to seek sheltered water, the larger bluebill rather more fond of big bays of the sea. Probably America's most popular deep-water duck because of its abundance and wide distribution. . . . An odd addition of origin distinguishes bluebill in flight as far as he can see them. They wheel and bank on the turns, side slip to a landing and rise on the take-off with a precision that might well be the envy of the best of airplane pilots. . . . The bluebill counts breed in prairie sloughs and lake borders from Kansas to the northern Canadian wilderness. Destruction of their nest grounds has cut down their numbers tremendously.

ALEXANDER KORDA'S FIRST MUSICAL PRODUCTION THE GAYETY GIRLS

Chapter One

Miki — darling Miki — had repelled the invader. Had repelled her, and was very carefully leading her away. As their footsteps clattered down the stairs, Jeanette could hear Madame Bernard crying, "Doesn't owe me much, hey? Three hundred francs for a dress and a suit! And I've waited three months!"

"Then you can wait three months longer," Miki suggested reasonably. Their voices died away and Jeanette leaped energetically out of the trunk in which she was hiding, snatched up her purse and hat and flew down the stairs.

Out of the door she turned suddenly as a shower of spray and clotted mud thrown up by an automobile wheel descended on her. "Oh, oh!" she gasped in dismay. The chauffeur had stopped, backed up. Jeanette knew instinctively by the discreet lustre of the hood that his car was one of the very expensive makes.

"Sorry, miss," he spoke earnestly. "Can I give you a lift?"

"That's all right," she forced herself to say. "Taxi!" And then with quick decision, "Yes."

"To the Theatre Comique," she said as she settled in the seat beside him. The streets whirled by swiftly, effortlessly. "My name's Jeanette Dupont," she offered

"Then I have them," Jeanette announced, "because I'm leaving now. Goodbye, girls," she shouted and strode off the stage.

"One hundred and eighty thousand francs for costumes to April 15; 50,000 to Lanson for scenery; 20,000 to Thibaud. Thibaud was concluding his reading of the accounts. That leaves 60,000. Have another cigar, my dear Larousse."

"Oh thank you, thank you," beamed the portly Larousse. "I tell you, Jacques, it's a pleasure to meet a man like you in the artistic field. Such business ability!"

"Everything is paid," Thibaud announced with satisfaction. "We don't owe a penny. Now in order to carry on —"

"You shall need more cash!"

"Well, not exactly; my credit is good." The phone rang and Thibaud heard the door-man speaking.

"Those three gentlemen are here again and they're demanding their money."

"Yes, yes, Mr. Rothschild," Thibaud answered the phone. "I'll call you later."

"Now where were we?" he resumed turning to Larousse whose eyes had bulged at the sound of the name.

"Well, I always believe in paying cash," Larousse announced. "Will a half million do?"

"Quite, quite," Larousse unpeeled three layers of coats to find his

She stood upright in lonely splendor.

"You see, I'm awfully late for rehearsal..."

Crash! Panders locked in mortal combat. An unobserved taxi had darted from a side street and now was locked under the prow of Jeanette's juggernaut. And the taxi-driver was on his feet, brandishing his fists and shouting sulphurous imprecations.

Jeanette's chauffeur was about to reply in kind. Suddenly his face lit up and he shouted "Pierres! Gaston!" cried the taxi-driver. They dismounted and ran head-on into each other's arms. Two long-lost friends had found each other and the greeting followed the effusive style of the French. Jeanette was biting her lip in impatience. The policeman approached and dourly surveyed the wreck. "Whom does this belong to?" he asked, indicating Jeanette's car.

"Rene Martin," the chauffeur answered.

"Rene Martin?" echoed the policeman. "Well, anyhow, you'll have to come to court."

Jeanette slipped out of her seat unobserved and hailed a taxi.

Twenty-nine girls clattered to the end of the routine, right leg forward, came up in air. "How listen girls," Jacques Thibaud announced as he rolled the cigar to the other corner of his mouth. "I'm putting a new ending in that number. Instead of finishing that way, you finish so. He wound up on one knee, came out like a film."

The twenty-nine girls (the yellow poster with the magnolia lettering outside promised fifty) resumed the routine. Jeanette entered from the wings, passed unobtrusively along the line, took her place. The piano clattered the last chord, and she stood upright with her cane above her, in lonely splendor, while all the others knelt.

Thibaud was tired. He turned his wrath on her. "And why didn't you know the new ending?" he shouted. "Because you came in late. You think some day you will be a great star. But you never will!"

"And why not?" she retorted.

"Because you must have punctuality. His expressive features writhed. "And girl, plus talent, to leave the chorus line."

Salvation Army Workers Prepare For Solicitation

The Advance Gifts Committee, following a meeting yesterday afternoon, has started to work on the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal with each worker taking the names of several prospects to be contacted this week. Results will be reported at the "Kick-off Breakfast" for the General Campaign.

To eliminate duplication in the general canvass this year, it is planned that only one team of workers will enter a business establishment during the General Canvass. This is done so that the employees as well as employers will not be bothered by being called on more than once.

Requesting co-operation in the drive, Chairman Fred R. Wilson and other campaign leaders asked everyone to do his best in this humanitarian effort for the city of Sanford and Seminole County.

Mr. Wilson reported that His Lord Castleberry has consented to act as Chairman for the Park district, Mayor Bridge, Jr. has accepted the Chairmanship and appointed a committee for Longwood.

Several others have been asked to serve their respective communities and although some have not reported, it is believed that they will shoulder their responsibility and give a big boost in the annual drive.

E. I. Hoy, chairman of the Chain Store Committee, reported that he has sent letters to a number of chain companies asking them to participate in this community project.

TVA REMAKING A VALLEY, CHURNING UP INVESTIGATION

The Tennessee Valley Authority has spent five years and $155,000,000 doing the things indicated on this map—and churning up a controversy over its merits and methods which is scheduled to resound during a congressional investigation. In this area, the size of England, the TVA has tried to check floods, improve navigation, create electrical energy. Its advocates claim it has reduced electrical rates. Foes say it has given "monopolistic" industries long-time contracts. It has completed Norris dam, Wheeler dam and a reservoir 15 miles above Wilson dam. A dam and a reservoir at Pickwick landing are near completion. Dams at Chickamauga and Gunterville on the Tennessee river and Hiwassee dam on the Hiwassee river have been started. A dam has been authorized at Gilbertville, Ky., but no appropriation has yet been made. TVA officials say the dams will provide 300 miles of navigable lakes.

dairy farms," Mr. Brown said. The meeting will get under way in the Augblitt Hotel at 10:00 o'clock in the morning, with K. C. Moore, Orange County agent, presiding. C. T. Bickford, secretary of the Orlando Chamber of Commerce, will welcome the visiting dairymen and Jim Whitehurst, Tampa dairymen, will make the response. Among the speakers will be Alf R. Nielson, West Palm Beach; V. C. Johnson, Jacksonville; F. M. Cameron, Bradenton; Dr. R. B. Becker, dairy husbandman with the State Experiment Station; William H. Caldwell, vice-president of the American Guernsey Cattle Club; W. T. Nettles, district agent with the Extension Service; H. C. Bates, Southern field representative of the American Guernsey Cattle Club; and four county agents, E. J. L. Ayers, Manatee; F. E. Bantzman, Volusia; John H. Logan, Pinellas; and A. S. Lawton, Duval County.

Since its creation in 1925, the Florida Crippled Children's Commission has provided funds and hospitalization for 86 children who have undergone operations for hairlip and cleft palate at the Tampa hospital.

The Florida Education Association at its three-day convention at Tampa voted to continue to work for a teachers' retirement plan and to push for a statewide tenure law. More than 6,200 attended the convention.

Kurt Schuschnigg Will Be Tried By Nazi Government

VIENNA, Mar. 29.—(AP)—Austria's last chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, will be tried by the German government possibly on charges of high treason against the Reich, punishable by death on the chopping block it was reported last night.

(In Berlin last night, speaking to 18,000 at the Sports Palace, Fuehrer Adolf Hitler termed Schuschnigg's actions "treason." Hitler's speech was punctuated by shouts from the crowd "hang Schuschnigg!")

It was believed the trial would be held in Leipzig this Summer, to public and purposely widely publicized since substantiation of charges brought against Schuschnigg by both Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Field Marshal Hermann Goering would tend to silence critics of Germany's violent annexation of Austria.

Goering speaking in Vienna on Saturday announced briefly that Schuschnigg's "criminal" actions would be settled by the courts. Hitler, speaking at Koenigsberg of the forthcoming Austrian plebiscite, made the same statement and elaborated on it.

Nazi authorities announced they had a Schuschnigg letter in which the former chancellor admitted his sincerity to his Berchtesgaden agreement with Hitler, and that he had no intention of abiding by it. They added that after entering Austria they found posters printed in advance announcing that in the plebiscite (named by Schuschnigg but cancelled by the German ultimatum) 97 per cent of the voters.
