Area girl gets liver transplant

DELTONA — Dominique Brunner, a 21-month old girl from Deltona, has been desperately seeking a liver transplant operation. Her father, Doug Brunner, was rejected as a donor, and her mother, Amy, was also declared noncompatible.

According to the National Organ Transplant Foundation in Casselberry, Amy's younger sister Gina, flew to Omaha, Neb. on Saturday, and was able to donate a portion of her liver to Dominique.

Amy and her father were expected to return to Orlando today. Both Gina and Dominique were reported healthy and strong after the successful transplant surgery.

Doug, Amy and Dominique will be observing the Christmas holiday in Omaha where they have found many friends.

For information on the National Organ Transplant Foundation, phone Theresa Coker, executive director, at 339-LIVE (5-4839).

ACP sign-up time

DELAND — The sign-up period for Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) practices is currently in progress at the Seminole-Volusia County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, 124-B S. Amelia Ave., Deland.

County Executive Director Ray Thigpen said cost-share requests for annual, long-term and pooled agreements may be made during this period.

The ACP provides both technical and financial assistance to help farmers solve critical soil, water and pollution problems on a farm, beyond that which would be accomplished with the producer's own resources.

The maximum payment limitation for long-term agreements and the forestry incentive program is $10,000 per person, per year. The sign-up period runs through Dec. 31, 1993.

For additional information, phone (904) 734-2535.

Area leaders share ideas at town meeting

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Central Florida Regional Hospital has tried to make itself an integral part of the community through service programs; now they are reaching into the community to find ways to improve themselves and their image.

This morning, a small group of business and community leaders, gathered over a hearty breakfast of eggs, sausage biscuits and fresh fruit for the first "town meeting" led by hospital administrator Roy Vinson.

Since the beginning of the decade, the hospital has undergone more than $20 million in renovations and improvements to make their service better. Yet, Vinson said, no one seems to notice.

There were some concerns that the hospital has not been able to overcome the "small town."

SANFORD — The clinic constructed at the Crooms School of Choice over the last year is expected to open for business shortly after the first of the year.

If the school board approves, as it is expected to do, an agreement with the Seminole County Public Health Unit, a doctor and a registered nurse will be placed at the school's clinic to augment the medical services for students enrolled in the Teen Age Parent Program (TAPP) and for their children.

Presently, TAPP students are transported at district expense to and from medical appointments for pre-natal and postpartum examinations; for physical examinations; for pediatric evaluations and for family planning, counseling and treatment.

The clinic will be able to provide those services once the physician is in place there.

The clinic will also be equipped to handle various health education services to the students.

The cooperative effort between the district and the county public health unit will also allow the young parents to enroll in social service programs, such as Women Infant Children (WIC) and Healthy Start

Houston baby treated for burns

MIAMI — The daughter of singers Whitney Houston and Bobby Brown was taken to a hospital for treatment of burns and released, a spokesman said.

Nine-month old Bobbi Christina was brought in around Saturday at about 1:30 p.m. from Houston's home on posh Williams Island and released within an hour, said Jackson Memorial Hospital spokesman Joseph Rogers.

Neither the hospital nor Metro-Dade County Fire Rescue knew the cause of the baby's burns. She was burned on the arm, said fire Capt. John Spadaro.

Houston, 30, has won two Grammys and is the best selling female recording artist ever, having sold 55 million albums worldwide.

Rental car owners indicted for fraud

FORT LAUDERDALE — The former owners of Value Rent-a-Car are accused of bilking Nissan and Ford out of $2 million on phony repair orders.

Value founder Sidney Cohen, 62, of Palm Beach and sons Jeffrey, 35, of Highland Beach and Steven, 32, of Colorado were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury on fraud charges.

Steven Cohen allegedly threatened to fire anyone who refused a nationwide order to charge for purported work on fleet cars under warranty.

"Value did submit improper warranty claims to Ford and obviously that's just stealing," Ford spokeswoman Kathryn Blackwell said Friday from Dearborn, Mich. She said Ford has been reimbursed.

Nissan officials declined comment. Cohen attorney Michael Pasano called the charges old news, saying they grew out of a settled civil suit by the state attorney general's office which generated payments to automakers.

The Cohens already face a 32-count federal fraud indictment charging they bilked customers, insurance companies and Mitsubishi, which bought Value in 1990. Trial is set for May 9.

Squatter's rights questioned

APOPKA — Area citizens complaining of a camp of vagrants are being told that the homeless people have been there long enough to have some squatter's rights and can't simply be told to move on.

Property owners need to catch people camping on their land right away or else trespassing laws do not apply, says attorney John Ross, who represents Apopka Police Department.

Under state law, "there would be a risk of liability in forcibly removing the individuals from the property," Ross said.

The camp is on land owned by two corporations near U.S. 441 and State Road 436. Apopka police notified the corporations of the squatters last summer, but nothing was done in time, said Ross.

Now, police can't tell the people to leave and neither can the two owners, without first getting a judge's order.

The area in question has been home to as many as nine encampments of squatters at a time, but now only a handful of people live there.

Representatives from two homeless shelters recently visited and offered the four residents they found at one camp a place to stay, training and potential job opportunities. The four said no.

The city is contemplating a law requiring land owners to provide sewer and water service to anyone living on their property. Mayor John Land said, "That would force owners to be more diligent about monitoring their property and less kind about letting people camp on it."

Tricor Corp. and Three R. Corp, which each own about half the property, plan to wait for a letter from Ross before deciding what to do.

Until then, the squatters can make themselves at home.

Buddhist monks protest Splendid China

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — The newest theme park in Florida's land of make-believe represents 5,000 years of Chinese history on a small scale, but not everyone is happy about it.

Most of the featured attractions are authentically detailed, miniature versions of the originals. And the $100 million, 76-acre park is considered more of an outdoor museum than the customary rides-and-thrills playground in this area.

Two years in the making, Splendid China opened its ornately carved gates to specially invited guests and the news media Saturday. It opens to the general public Sunday.

But several Buddhist monks based in Ithaca, N.Y., staged a demonstration outside the park protesting the inclusion of a replica of the Dalai Lama's Potala Palace.

The centuries-old palace was nearly destroyed when China invaded Tibet in 1959. The Chinese government closed it down as a religious center, and it is now open only to tourists although it is still regarded as the world's most sacred place for hundreds of millions of Buddhists.

The protest was limited to eight people, all wearing western-style clothes, holding signs on a road leading to the park gates.

Businesses show spirit

300 needy families to receive help

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

Commercial businesses, as in the past years, are exhibiting the true spirit of the holidays. Many are deeply involved in helping the less fortunate.

SPRINT/UNITED TELEPHONE

Over 300 needy families will be helped this year through an arrangement between Sprint/United Telephone and the Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross.

For years, Sprint/United employees have collected food for those in need during the holidays. This year, the company devised a plan to reach more than ever before.

In conjunction with the American Red Cross, Sprint/United plans to deliver holiday food baskets paid for by employee donations, in addition to money usually spent by the company sending holiday greeting cards.

For every $1 donated by employees, the Red Cross was able to purchase $14 to $17 in food from Second Harvest Food Bank.

Layton Welborn, an employee of Brisson's Funeral Home, displays full container of Toys For Tots.

Sprint/United workers from Wintar Park, Altamonte Springs and Apopka participated in collecting the funds.

This past Saturday, Sprint's "Santa's Elves" gathered at the Red Cross facility to pack the baskets and deliver them.

The spirit didn't stop there however. Sprint/United Telephone chapter of the Independent Telephone Pioneers of America also committed funds for the project in presenting presents to 36 children of mothers enrolled in the South-eastern Counseling Center for drug and alcohol abuse in Winter Park.

AMERICAN EXPRESS Little Brothers and Little Sisters are benefiting from a joint effort by American Express Gift Cheques, financial institutions, and AAA outlets throughout Sanford this holiday season.

For every purchase of American Express Gift Cheques at participating locations through Dec. 31, American Express will donate one dollar to Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America and its local affiliated agencies. The company plans to give up to a total of $100,000.

In greater Sanford, consumers can participate by purchasing American Express Gift Cheques at local American Express Travel Service Offices.

The Cheques are available in $25, $50, and $100 denominations.

Places where they are available in Sanford include Great Western Banks, and the Central Florida Educators Credit Union.

DUI arrest results in murder rap

By Associated Press

FORT MYERS — A Lee County man arrested in South Carolina on drunk driving charges told investigators he dumped his ex-wife's body in Florida after strangling her, authorities said.

The body of Doris Gail Dellinger, 35, of Sevierville, Tenn., was found Sunday in unincorporated area known as Lehigh Acres.

James Andrew Abbott, 29, allegedly confessed Sunday to Lee sheriff's investigators that he killed Dellinger Wednesday, authorities said.

Abbott also said he robbed and stabbed a dispatcher for the Lee County Sheriff's Office. John "Jack" O'Connor, 68, suffered minor injuries in the attack, authorities said.

Abbott reportedly crashed Dellinger's car Saturday in Jasper, S.C., and arrested and charged with drunken driving. Investigators found several of O'Connor's credit cards in the car, said troopers with the South Carolina Highway Patrol.

A Lee sheriff's investigator flew Sunday to South Carolina and Abbott confessed to the crimes, said Doris Dellinger's brother, Sgt. D.J. Kirby of the Sevierville Police Department.

Holiday highway safety

Police want 70 percent safety belt use

By BILL BRONSTROM Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A holiday safety-belt enforcement drive may cut down on highway fatalities running nearly 10 percent ahead of last year, the director of the Florida Highway Patrol hopes.

"The Florida Highway Patrol has a definite obligation to residents of this state to use whatever resources are necessary to reverse the disturbing fatality trend," Col. Ronald H. Grimming said.

The drive is intended to increase the nearly 70 percent of Floridians who already use seat belts, in addition to holiday tactics such as drunk-driving crackdowns.

The Dec. 19-Jan. 8 operation will be the year's fourth safety belt "blitz." Three earlier operations raised average compliance in Florida from 56 percent in April to 69 percent in September, said Col. Ronald H. Grimming, highway patrol director.

"We're getting a lot of people's attention," said Capt. Ken Howes, a highway patrol spokesman.

Nationally, 66 percent of Americans used safety belts in 1993, up from 62 percent in 1992 and 59 percent in 1991 — translating into 600 lives saved and 14,000 serious injuries avoided, the U.S. Department of Transportation said Saturday.

"We're trying to go even higher," Howes said.

Highway patrol officials don't know why Florida highway deaths have topped 2,500, running 220 more than a year earlier, he said. Grimming had noted that the Thanksgiving holiday this year brought 30 traffic deaths — one every 3 hours, 24 minutes — compared with 20 in the same period a year earlier.

-Col. Ronald H. Grimming

The deaths occurred in 24 crashes. Four, or 17 percent, were known to be alcohol related. Five, or 20 percent, were in inclement weather. Twenty-eight of the victims had seat belts available and 14 weren't wearing them.

This week, officers will conduct roadside safety checks and issue warnings to violators of safety belt and child restraint laws. Some seatbelt citations will be issued if motorists are detained for other violations.

In the second week of the drive, more citations will be issued. In the third week, the warnings will cease and all violators will be cited, Grimming said.

"Experience has shown that if strict enforcement and attention to safety belt laws is not maintained, compliance rates will decrease," he said.

Woman jailed on charge of murdering husband No. 9

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo. — Jill Coit is a marrying woman. Ten times she has taken the plunge.

Coit may have to forsake her marrying ways for a while, however, because she and a boyfriend are in jail, charged with murdering husband No. 9, who was shot in October.

"If you were to meet her and talk to her you'd think she's just the greatest person you ever met," one ex-husband, Carl Steely, said of Coit. "Why would all these people marry her if she weren't that way?"

Coit, 50, who is still married to husband No. 10, is charged in the slaying of Gerry Boggs, 52. She and telephone repairman Michael Backus, 48, are being held on $5 million bond on first-degree murder charges.

Neither defendant looked at the other during a court appearance Friday, when they were ordered to appear Jan. 31 for a preliminary hearing.

Clad in an orange jail jump suit, the stocky, curly haired, heavy-eyebrowed Coit hardly appeared the seductress and former model who left a trail of husbands in five states and managed to persuade a wealthy, elderly Californian to adopt her just before he died.

The arrest affidavit naming Coit lists 18 names she has used.

Her husbands have included the lawyer who helped her avoid questioning in the shooting death of her third husband, Clark Coit, whose name she continues to use. Coit, like Boggs, was shot by someone who entered his home through an unlocked back door, in 1972.

Coit checked herself into a psychiatric hospital after Coit's killing and police never were able to question her.

Gun law loophole: quick delivery, no background checks

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — The Brady bill and similar gun-control laws on state books mandate a cooling-off period before anyone can buy a handgun, right?

Wrong. Then they must require a government background check on all buyers.

Wrong again. But at least they dictate that all handgun sales be registered.

Strike three. The Brady bill and most superseding state laws have a loophole large enough to sneak a crate of 9mm pistols through — because they apply only to licensed dealers.

Private gun owners can and do sell their weapons legally to anyone. No questions asked, no background check, no registration and no cooling-off period.

The guns in this so-called secondary market are often sold through classified ads. But an increasingly popular outlet is the gun show, where licensed dealers and private owners often compete side by side.

"Easily millions of gun sales can be transacted at gun shows," says Jack Killorin, a spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington, D.C.

ATF estimates that Americans own 200 million guns of all kinds, including 87 million handguns. Licensed gun shops sold 7.5 million guns last year.

At a Fort Lauderdale show this month, a woman who gives her name only as Karen displays a used .38-caliber police special on sale next to a sign: "Private Sale. $195. No forms. No waiting period."

The Coit sale is legal, she says, because the gun is hers.

Karen is correct, according to the ATF. No law prevents a private citizen from selling handguns to anyone who answers an ad or walks into a gun show. And no clear-cut definition separates private sellers from licensed dealers, such as earnings or number of guns sold. Generally, the ATF says, it requires licenses if gun sellers are running a regular, profit-making business.

"These shows have gotten as common as garage sales, and all this is a problem for us," Killorin says. "It's known that guns have moved out of these shows into criminal hands."

Texas and Florida are particularly worrisome, he says, because they offer frequent gun shows, relatively lax laws and ease of transit for out-of-state buyers.

David Koresch's Branch Davidian cult built up its arsenal with purchases from Texas gun shows, he notes.

"In Texas, traditionally, our agents indicate that a lot of people slide up from Mexico and buy at gun shows, where there are fewer questions asked," says Killorin.

Miami ATF spokesman Bruce Snyder says a 1990 coup attempt in the Caribbean island nation of Trinidad and Tobago was armed through purchases at Florida gun shows. Residents of Northeastern states with tougher gun control laws buy many of the pistols sold legally at Florida gun shows.

Yet neither ATF nor state and local police agencies can patrol the shows routinely — there are simply too many, says Killorin.

That leaves the shows open not only to legal private sellers, but also to arms dealers who abuse the law by claiming to sell private gun collections.

Robert Trokey, owner of the Firearms Plus shop in Fort Lauderdale, has a sizable array of guns set up near Karen's table. He says he has no objection to legitimate private sales, but he's skeptical of some vendors.

"I see some private dealers over and over again," says

Trokey. "He's got the same number of guns on his table as I do, but he's not obeying the same rules I have to — no sales tax, no paper work, no three-day waiting period."

Car dealer Stuart Raskin, who has a concealed weapons permit, walks up to the table to select a gun for his companion, Eileen, who he says was recently robbed at Uzi-point.

Raskin generally opposes limits on gun ownership, but he says that the existing laws should at least be the same for everyone.

"If they're going to try to cover guns, it would be in the best interest of society to cover private dealers, too," says Raskin.

At Tamiami Gun Shops in Miami, utility lineman Simon Stoddard picked up his .45-caliber automatic after the legal waiting period. He says he could easily have bought a gun without waiting.

"You can buy them in the bargain traders you pick up at any 7-Eleven," Stoddard says.

Even the National Rifle Association concedes the wrong people may be buying guns through the private sale exception to federal and state laws.

Let's keep crime out of Christmas

Saturday is Christmas Day. Although it is not observed by people of some religious or atheistic beliefs, it is still an official holiday. Christians consider it a day for peace on earth and goodwill toward men. There is no reason why it couldn't become exactly that, if everyone made an attempt to do so.

The "earth" in the phrase "peace on earth" must start with the very soil under one's feet. Whether the place is in a room, a home with a yard, or even a small resting place in some secluded spot, that is the starting point.

Our cities, county, state and nation are made up of just such places. Millions of pieces of land on which human beings are situated. It's our earth.

If each and every person would refrain from any criminal activities for just that one day, think of what it would accomplish. No one would be injured in a domestic dispute, mugging or assault.

No one would have to recoup the loss of property stolen by a burglar to finance a drug habit.

Motorists would refrain from drinking and driving, speeding, or violating highway rules.

Our citizens go through enough days with crimes being committed, often at their very doorsteps or in their cars or homes. It's time they were given at least one full day when those with criminal intent might force themselves to exercise good will toward men.

Unfortunately, not everyone will have the opportunity to read this suggestion. Even some that do may disregard it. But we see no reason why December 25th cannot be made a crime-free day possible.

If every person in Sanford, Lake Mary, Seminole County, or any other area takes it upon himself or herself to just stop and enjoy the day rather than create problems, we can do it.

Then, and only then, can we truthfully declare it a day of peace on earth and goodwill toward men.

Overcoming hatred

What seed of psychosis has ignorance sown; to grow in the garden of innocent youth, where flowers of darkness and horror have grown;

that have to be hidden from beauty and truth? For humans deny they are sons of the beast and power contention with prisons and laws, to civelize slaughter by warden and priest, while blaming the Devil for failures and laws.

When what we are fearing is what we repress, existing for sons before we could speak. The sin we eternally dread to confess, while praising the virtue and worth of the meek.

Let no one be guilty for being alive. It's hardly a reason for making amends, and only our nature to try to survive. For death is the oldest and darkest of sins.

We're only willing to make a new start and temper our ego to think as a child, we'd maybe discover a love in our heart, to overcome hatred and conquer the wild.

To capture the catcher who hides in the eye and ask him his reason to turn and a fight that made him the reaper with blood on his scythe and doomed him forever to harvest the night.

Berry's World

Exactly why that changed is a question best left for historians to sort out at some calmer, more reflective moment. The most obvious answer explains the combination of a rising tide of black insurrection, which took increasingly violent form; mounting white exhaustion, moral, political and economic; and escalating outside pressure, notably including American sanctions.

Whatever the reasons, the result is best symbolized in the public conversion of President F.W. de Klerk from apartheid's loyal heir to reform's indispensable ally. De Klerk released Nelson Mandela from prison in 1990 after the leader of the African National Congress had rotted there for decades. He proceeded to negotiate directly with Mandela about the terms of white surrender. That, of course, is not the way the process was described, but that is what everyone understood it to be.

Unfortunately, it is easier to end the old than to build the new. That is what Richard Steyn,

God rest ye merry executioners

In its self-congratulatory celebration of frontier justice, the Senate has expanded the death penalty to 82 federal offenses as part of the recently passed crime bill. The disappearing attorney general commended the whole package as "a balanced approach."

And there has been nary a word of criticism from the president who, after all, as governor of Arkansas, presided over the execution of a man so brain damaged he didn't know the difference between yesterday or tomorrow, life or death.

It is said by experts in these matters that few felons will actually be killed under these new final federal penalties, but there are those who will get their lethal injections under the imprimatur of the United States Senate. Justice Blackmun spoke of the "death watch" on those nights when last-minute, desperate appeals come in. At least one clerk from each chamber, he said, is at the court and the justices are at home by the telephone. By morning, the clerks look utterly exhausted and I am too... Maybe I'm not tough enough.

This enthusiastic Senate enshrinement of capital punishment took place as a sitting justice of the Supreme Court gave a remarkable television interview on that very subject. On "Nightline," Ted Koppel and Nina Totenberg spoke with Justice Harry Blackmun. It is unusual for a justice to say publicly that he is on the verge of changing his position on a controversial constitutional issue. But that is what Blackmun did.

At least one clerk from each chamber, he said, is at the court and the justices are at home by the telephone. By morning, the clerks look utterly exhausted and I am too... And there has been nary a word of criticism from the president.

Yet, as the years go by and the majority of his colleagues on the court increasingly restrict the habeas corpus right of people on death row to the Supreme Court, Blackmun is changing his mind.

Livermore redefines its mission

LIVERMORE, Calif. — The birthplace of the H-bomb is trying to go from doomsday devices to save-the-planet technologies. With rhetorical marching orders from President Clinton, the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory is paving new scientific directions aimed at helping the economy, the environment and American business. The move is part survival, and part recognition of the vast global changes that are impacting this legendary nuclear weapons lab, located 45 miles east of San Francisco.

It's also a sign of Clinton's push for Livermore and other national labs to usher in the next era for America.

"When the government focuses on agriculture, they made the U.S. pre-eminent in agriculture," explains Livermore's highly regarded director, John Nuckolls.

"Then before World War II, the government subsidized the development of aircraft... (and) the U.S. became pre-eminent in commercial aircraft as well as military aircraft in World War II."

"Now we've got these national labs, let's figure out where we want to employ them to make the economy healthy in areas the government decides are in the national interest," added Nuckolls.

The director says Clinton has posed to his lab "a rhetorical question, 'Can you have as large an effect on America's future as you've had on its past?'"

Clinton said, "I believe the answer is, assuredly, yes." The two-thirds of the lab's $1 billion annual federal budget still goes to nuclear weapons — from the upkeep of current weapons and the dismantlement of older ones to the efforts to prevent nuclear proliferation around the globe. Nuckolls wants to scale this percentage down to half the lab's budget within five years, the rest going to non-nuclear research and development.

Over 1,500 of the lab's 10,000 employees boast Ph.D.s. Coupled with the world's most sophisticated super computer and most powerful laser, the lab offers great promise.

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary toured the facility last July. After first reiterating Clinton's confidence in the lab, O'Leary told about 400 employees assembled here: "We've got to come out from behind the rhetoric that keeps us so elite and share with the American public what's here."

But simply, the lab's penchant for secrecy is hobbling its efforts. Openness is not easy for an outfit that has long practiced some of the most rigid security the world has ever known. Little of its vast acreage is publicly accessible, and all of it is patrolled by guards with dogs.

Consider the procedure our associate Dave Van Atta underwent to meet with Nuckolls, whose headquarters is in a super-secret area inside an already highly classified complex. Van Atta went through a security check, and was escorted past guards and gates to the inner sanctum where, one employee said, scientists can conduct nuclear "Q" clearance conversations without fear of surveillance on the sidewalks.

Though the lab officials were cordial to Van Atta, walking through the building to meet the director made him feel like a leprous intruder. All computers had to be turned off, so he might not chance to see something secret. All chalkboards that he might possibly glance at had to be erased before he arrived.

And even though he was escorted to the director's office by a lab official, the path was prominently marked off with signs making large capital letters "CAUTION: UN-CLEARED VISITOR UNDER ESCORT IN THIS AREA."

agricultural community." "Why does this hospital have that image?" asked city commissioner Lon Howell.

"Everyone still sees the old county hospital on First Street when they think of this hospital."

Prior to the takeover of the old county hospital 15 years ago by Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) and the construction of the present facility on Lake Monroe, Sanford's hospital had been located in what is now the county services building on First Street and Melrose Avenue.

He said the face of health care is changing. "When President Clinton and Mrs. Clinton were elected, everything changed," he said.

"Managed health care would make it very difficult for us to compete with the big hospitals like Florida Hospital."

A merger between HCA and Columbia Hospital Systems on Feb. 10 will make Central Florida Regional a part of a network which includes Winter Park Medical Center, Lucciani Hospital in Orlando and another hospital in Kissimmee.

Finlon believes the joining of facilities and resources will help make each of these hospitals stronger.

Heart Center, for example, is so great that it will help us boost our image."

Finlon said, as an aside, that his son, who is zoned to attend Lake Mary High School, is applying to the Health Academy.

Finlon said he believes the community is still, for the most part, unaware of the hospital's "quality personal care."

He said the biggest business in Sanford is the emergency room," said Sheila Maynor, Chief Financial Officer.

She noted 41 percent of the money that comes into the facility is written off to Medicare and Medicaid.

"But that's not the whole picture," she said. "The hospital has so much more to offer."

Officials said they hope to have more town meetings in the future, perhaps once or twice a year. They will continue to talk to business and community leaders about how services and image can be improved.

Input from patients will be included in written surveys and letters, Finlon said.

The national race was August 7 in Akron, Ohio. A late afternoon rainstorm delayed the finish of one car class in the qualifying race. Scientists urge delay in bioengineered crops

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — Scientists trying to make a better squash or cucumber through genetic engineering might accidentally turn another pesky weed like kudzu loose on the world, says an organization of scientists critical of the new technology.

It might seem a stretch to equate a crookneck or gherkin with kudzu, the prolific imported weed that has devoured many a Southern landscape.

But the Union of Concerned Scientists says it takes just one aberration out of the hundreds of plants being developed to create a problem here or overseas.

The group said in a report released Sunday that the government should halt approval of crops derived from genetic engineering until it comes up with more proof the plants won't hurt the environment.

The group issued the report because several crops may soon find their way into commercial use. They include a tomato that can stay ripe longer, a squash that can resist viruses, and a cotton that tolerates certain herbicides.

"From an environmental point of view this is a watershed event," said Margaret Mellon, a lawyer and scientist who helped produce the report.

The report noted that the possibility of a new kudzu, crabgrass or other weed coming out of genetic engineering is rare but worth guarding against.

The Agriculture Department monitors 1,500 field tests of genetically engineered crops. But the small-scale trials don't look at how those crops will interact with the surrounding environment, the group alleges.

The group urged more field tests that would put the crops next to their natural "communities."

The crops could become weeds themselves.

overrunning natural relatives that are important sources of genetic material used by traditional plant breeders, the group says.

This is particularly a problem in less-developed countries where many "centers of diversity" are located. Those are areas where domesticated plants have many wild relatives.

Plants could also turn their wilder relatives into weeds once the new genetic traits are carried over to the wild relatives through pollination, the group says.

The report also warned that too little is known about the risks of breeding plants to be virus-resistant or to produce their own pesticides.

The report cautioned that some virus-resistant plants could make it easier for new, more resistant viruses to develop. It also said that plants being bred to produce drugs could poison birds or organisms that feed on those plants.

Other scientists dispute the group's claims.

They say genetically engineered crops pose less risk of becoming weeds than crops derived from traditional breeding.

The traits that turn a plant into a weed won't come from the changes in one or a few genes that occur in bioengineering, they say, even if the new genetic material were to come from bacteria, fish and other animals or unrelated plants.

"The argument isn't new," said Richard N. Godown, senior vice president of the Biotechnology Industry Organization, an industry group.

The plant scientists say they look out for weed characteristics and eliminate undesirable traits when designing plants.

New viruses are formed all the time in nature, biotechnology supporters say. Also, they say, the experiments with drug or pesticide-producing plants have not created any substances that poison any but targeted pests, such as caterpillars and beetles.

Prosecutor predicts probe will shoot holes in conspiracy claim

By The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Shelby County attorney general says he won't have any problems disproving new claims in the shooting of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., including the alleged identification of another triggerman.

"I think we're going to be able to shoot holes all through this thing," John Pierotti said.

Pierotti repeated his contention after a homeless man from Florida denied a claim that he assassinated King in Memphis in April 1968. The Tennessee newspaper reported Sunday in a copyright story that Frank Holt of Orlando, Fla., passed a lie detector test in defending his innocence.

Holt was named as the triggerman by an associate of retired businessman Loyd Jowers. Jowers told ABC's PrimeTime Live last week that he hired someone to shoot King and that person was not James Earl Ray, who confessed.

Willie Akins, who appeared with Jowers on the news program, said Jowers told him repeatedly that Holt was the true triggerman.

Holt worked in Memphis in 1968 and was in Jowers' restaurant, Jim's Grill, near the Lorraine Motel when King was killed. He said he barely knew Jowers and had no knowledge of a plot to kill King.

"Jowers is lying," he said. "Jowers ain't give me no money."

Holt said he did know Frank Liberto, a deceased Memphis produce dealer whom Jowers named as the man who paid him to arrange the assassination.

Holt told The Tennessean he heard Liberto tell a number of produce workers, shortly before King's death, that King "was going to start trouble and the only way to stop trouble is to kill the son of a bitch, then it won't be no trouble."

Pierotti said Holt's denial supports his contention that Jowers' story is a fraud.

He said "(Holt is) obviously the putty in this whole thing," Pierotti said.

But the prosecutor plans to talk with Holt and others named by Jowers as being involved. Jowers has asked for immunity before telling more of his story.

The response to the new charges is varied.

Dr. William Pepper, a London attorney working for Ray, told The Associated Press Saturday that he has known about Jowers' part in King's death for five years and has been pushing for a new probe to clear his client. Ray is serving a 99-year prison sentence.

The U.S. House Committee on Assassinations concluded in 1978 that Ray pulled the trigger but a group of racial bigots in St. Louis might have been involved, too.

Many of the original investigators agree with Pierotti that Jowers' story is either old gossip or "hogwash." Joe Hester, the retired FBI case agent who handled King's death, thinks the lure of talk shows and TV movies is behind Jowers' claims.

"I still believe James Earl Ray killed Martin Luther King and that he acted alone," Hester said.

Free trade: Analysts give Clinton high marks

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Economists give President Clinton high marks for championing free trade in his first year in office, mixed grades for trying to cut the budget deficit and an incomplete on reforming the health care system.

They tend to argue over the relative long-range merits of specific policy efforts so far. But whatever their ideological bent, economists agree that Clinton deserves little credit or blame for the economy's performance this year.

"In general much of the economic environment he is enjoying right now is largely not of his making," said economist Martin Regalia of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "As far as economics goes, this guy is tremendously lucky. His timing is impeccable."

The economy started the year slow. Growth in the first six months of 1993 averaged a dismal 1.4 percent. But it picked up to a moderate 2.7 percent in the third quarter and virtually all analysts say it's doing even better now.

The credit for that belongs largely to the short-term interest rate reductions engineered by the Federal Reserve rather than any presidential policy, analysts said.

In fact, the $16 billion in stimulative spending increases and tax cuts proposed by Clinton early this year were blocked by Senate Republicans. The economy, as they predicted, is recovering without it.

Administration officials have claimed credit for this year's dramatic decline in long-term interest rates, which is fueling a boomlet in housing and business investment. Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages, for instance, fell from 8 percent at the start of the year to 6 3/4 percent this fall.

But economists say the administration's claim that rates fell in response to its deficit cuts is at best only partially true.

They give far greater weight to financial markets' growing realization that inflation, worldwide, wasn't likely to be rekindled in 1993 or 1994.

Home alone

Year after couple left kids, authorities still ask 'why?'

By LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — The case that took its name from a comedy was the stuff of childhood nightmares — two young sisters left alone in their family's suburban home while their parents jetted off to Mexico for a Christmas vacation.

A year later, the girls live in an adoptive home while their parents' troubles mount. David and Sharon Schoo were prosecuted, served as the impetus for tougher child neglect laws, have separated and now face bankruptcy.

But the question asked over and over remains unanswered: How could it happen?

"You wanted them to say something. I'm sorry. I made a mistake," said Joyce Johnson, spokeswoman for the Child Welfare League of America. "Instead ... we never found out why."

The Schoos have never explained why they left the girls at home in St. Charles, a well-to-do suburb west of Chicago, while they spent nine days in Mexico last December.

Diana and Nicole, then 4 and 8 years old, were to have spent Christmas alone, but authorities discovered them Dec. 21, the day after their parents left, when the girls called 911 because a smoke alarm had gone off accidentally.

Their parents were arrested upon their return Dec. 29, unaware of the uproar they had created. The case acquired a catchword from "Home Alone," the hit movie about a boy accidentally left at home by parents jetting to Paris.

"This case hit the nation right in the gut because I think it was so easy for people to almost identify with this family and say, 'Those look like parents that could almost be like me,'" said Ann Cohn Donnelly, executive director of the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse.

David Schoo, 45, then an engineer with a smoke-alarm maker, and Sharon, a 35-year-old homemaker, "really caused people to think about when is it appropriate to leave children home alone," Donnelly said.

Of 3 million annual reports of child abuse and neglect, about one-third involve parents who leave their children unsupervised, Johnson said. But most concern working parents who can't find child-care, or addicted parents who leave their children unattended while searching for drugs or alcohol, she said.

"To leave a child overnight purposefully ... because you're going on vacation is exceptionally uncommon," Donnelly said.

The Schoos pleaded guilty in April to child neglect and received two years' probation in a plea agreement. Kane County State's Attorney David Akemann consented to the plea arrangement so the girls could avoid testifying against their parents. The Schoos had been charged with 64 felony and misdemeanor counts, and if convicted each could have faced more than 100 years in prison.

The Schoos relinquished their parental rights this summer after failing to comply with a family reunification plan that included counseling and supervised visits with their daughters. They also sold their home and moved into separate residences. Earlier this month, they filed for bankruptcy.

David Schoo now does maintenance work and lives in St. Charles. Sharon Schoo is unemployed and lives in nearby North Aurora. They have received numerous death threats and "don't want any publicity, they want it to end," said defense attorney Scott Sheen.

David Schoo, sentenced to two years' probation in July for drunken driving, is working on his "chemical problems," Sheen said.

"I don't think he feels good about anything" about the case, Sheen said. "He's working to get his life back together."

Their attorneys initially said mitigating factors would explain the Schoos' actions. But no explanation was revealed in court proceedings, and their attorneys declined to provide one in recent interviews.

The case prompted the Illinois General Assembly to enact the so-called "Home Alone" bill, which strengthens the state's abandonment law and toughens penalties against violators. The Schoo case also played a role in passage of a new law that puts children's best interests ahead of family reunification.

"There have been many positives," said David Clark, chief administrator for Akemann's office. "In addition to the changes in the two laws ... the girls had a happier ending."

Adopted by a suburban family, they "are loved and love being where they are," Clark said. Information on the girls is limited by a gag order imposed by a judge because the case involves juveniles.

"The focus on children being left alone in very abnormal circumstances was never an issue before," Clark said. "It became an issue not only in this case but also nationwide."

1993 All-SAC squad

Patriots, Seminoles top pigskin selections

From Staff Reports

CASSELBERRY — Lake Brantley and Seminole, the two Seminole County high schools whose football teams won district championships this year, dominate the 1993 All-Seminole Athletic Conference teams announced last week.

The Lake Brantley Patriots, who finished the year 10-3, had a conference-leading seven players selected to the first-team offensive and defensive units.

Predictably, Lake Brantley fullback Jeff Butler, who led the state of Florida in rushing this season, tops the All-SAC first team offense along with Patriot teammates Jeff Butler (quarterback), Darrin McMillon (offensive line), and Jason Dehua (offensive line).

Patriots named to the All-SAC first team defense were Steve Miller (linebacker), Eddie Lee (defensive back), and Tim LeCroy (placekicker).

Actually, LeCroy was the placekicker for the All-SAC first team, being named along with Seminole's Jason Walraven, who also was voted the punter for the All-SAC first team offense.

Other Seminoles earning first team honors on offense were running back Robert Ruffin, receiver Andre Rawlings, and lineman Thomas Wick. Linebacker Damien Burke was the Tribe's only first team pick on defense.

Completing the first team of offensive unit were running back Oscar Dumeau of Oviedo, Lake Howell tight end Fred McCloud, Oviedo lineman Jason Watts, and Lake Mary lineman Scott Bryan.

Filling out the first team defense were Brandon Spalding (linebacker), Nelson Lecour (linebacker), and Shacon Vinson (defensive back) of Lake Howell, Oviedo's William Jennings (linebacker) and Brian Black (linebacker), Jason Perry (linebacker) and Vernon James (defensive back) of Lake Mary, and Lyman's Brad Lokey (linebacker).

Seminole dominated second-team selections, placing Clifton Branch (quarterback), Channing Walton (tight end), and Andreas Key (linebacker) on the offensive unit while Ronald Moore (linebacker), Kiki Hill (linebacker), and Quentin Hunt (defensive back) were voted to the defensive squad.

For Lake Brantley, lineman Brad Fowler was a second-team offense pick while teammates Scott Korb (linebacker), Jerry Harmer (linebacker), Ed Kupchick (linebacker), and Brian Whitman (defensive back) were named to the defense.

Rounding out the second-team offense are Oviedo running back Shawn Sams and lineman Kapoa Conley, running back Kelvin Chisolm and lineman Theron Houston of Lake Howell, Lake Mary running back Dexter Graham, receiver Terrell Jackson, and lineman Aaron Wille, and Lyman punter Mike Krupa.

The second team defense also includes linebacker John Maxwell and defensive back Dewayne Bell from Lyman, Oviedo lineman Drew

Martin, Velho lead Lake Mary

From Staff Reports

TAMPA — Jon Martin scored the game's only goal and Greg Velho registered his ninth shutout of the season Saturday as Lake Mary blanked Tampa-Berkley Prep 1-0 in a high school boys' soccer match.

Jason Tisdell began the game-winning play when he crossed the ball toward the Berkley Prep net. Chris Campbell flicked the cross on with his head to Martin, who headed the ball in with 13 minutes left in the game.

It was the first loss of the season for Berkley Prep (8-1).

"Our defense played extremely well," said Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle. "Brandon Woods, Brandon Mahana, Sean Creasman, Craig Henderson, and Scott Heath were a really big factor."

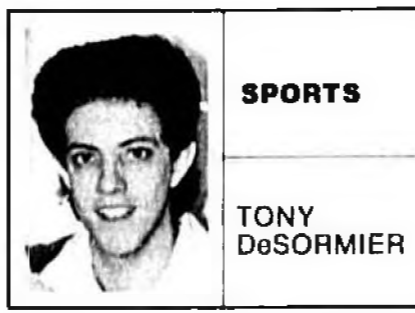

"Tony Hazle really helped us in the midfield. And even though he's a forward, we got an outstanding defensive effort by Aren Cook. He had a high work rate and was winning a lot of balls."

Berkley Prep outshot Lake Mary 15-8 and had a 4-3 edge in corner kicks, but Velho came up with 10 saves to record the shutout.

"Greg took control early," said McCorkle. "He came out and made some big plays in the air and controlled the penalty area."

Now 11-0-3, Lake Mary will play Melbourne at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Cocoa Expo Center.

Embarassing an opponent serves no purpose coaching. It's a thankless task, certainly one that's not financially rewarding. People who go into coaching (and teaching) do it for the love of the sport, for the love of kids. There's no other way to personally justify the time and effort required.

SPORTS

But what motivates someone like the St. Cloud coach? What makes someone want to take a group of high school students and guide them in embarrassing other groups of high school students?

One-sided losses are a part of sports. They're what you risk as an underdog for a chance at an upset of a superior opponent. But there is nothing to be gained by either team in a thrashing suffered by Seminole or Lake Mary last week.

The problem is knowing when enough is enough. When is a lead safe? When is it appropriate to ease off?

Every coach and fan has a favorite story about a team that came back to win from an overwhelming deficit. That's part of the glory of athletic competition. For the most part, if there's time left, you still have a chance.

The key part of that equation is "for the most part." There are instances when the game's over even though there's still time left on the clock. For example, a team that's only scored 20 points in the first three quarters isn't going to make up a 50-point deficit in one quarter.

And there are ways a good team (if they're led by a good coach) can maintain control of a game without running up the score.

Unfortunately, there's no recourse for a team that suffers through such a nightmare. It's been my experience that these things don't have a way of evening themselves out. A coach retires, players graduate... things are never the same.

All that remains is the memory of being athletically abused.

Gembecki Mechanical slugs way to SSC title

Special to the Herald

FIVE POINTS — Gembecki Mechanical Services employed an explosive offense on its way to winning the Seminole Softball Club's Falcon Fall League championship last weekend.

Made up of players from Lake Howell High School, Gembecki Mechanical Services won the first and third games of the best-of-three championship series from American Speedy Printing (Lyman) by the combined score of 34-4.

In the first game, Gembecki Mechanical Services scored five runs in the top of the first inning and sailed to a 14-0 victory in a game stopped in the fifth inning by the 12-run mercy rule.

Leading Gembecki Mechanical Services in the first game were Erin Mahwinney, Cindy Mender, Rene Nieves, Rhiannon Mack, Brittany Scott, and Melanie Waters.

American Speedy Printing earned its berth in the championship series by defeating Seminole High School's team 14-13 in the second half playoff game.

Trailing 12-7, Seminole rallied for six runs in the sixth inning to take a 13-12 lead. American Speedy Printing came back with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to claim the victory and advance to the championship series.

Magic making Western Conference take notice

By The Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The Orlando Magic are making the tough Western Conference take notice.

Orlando, second in the Eastern Conference's Atlantic Division, finished a West Coast road trip at 3-2 following a 97-91 victory over Sacramento on Sunday night.

The trip included wins over Portland and Western Conference champion Phoenix, the latter snapping the Suns' nine-game home unbeaten streak.

"Anytime you come out to the West Coast and return 3-2, you've done a pretty good job," Magic coach Brian Hill said. "We need to continue to play well and play together and we'll become a playoff team."

Orlando lost to the Clippers and SuperSonics.

Shaquille O'Neal scored 27 points and grabbed 17 rebounds in a season-high 45 minutes to lead Orlando, while Anfernee Hardaway, Scott Skiles and Nick Anderson added 16 points apiece.

Mitch Richmond led Sacramento with 32 points, including three 3-pointers, and Wayman Tisdale added 22 points and 10 rebounds.

The loss was the Kings' eighth straight at home, breaking a Sacramento team record. The loss tied a franchise record set during the 1971-72 season in Cincinnati.

O'Neal, coming off a 36-point, 15-rebound effort against Phoenix on Friday night, scored 12 points in the third quarter on 6-of-7 shooting to give the Magic a 17-point advantage.

But O'Neal was held to just two fourth quarter points as the Kings came within four points, 83-89, when Richmond hit a 3-pointer with 1:57 to play.

"I just missed some shots. If I had made those shots it would have made a world of difference," O'Neal said.

The Magic appeared to have the game in control after Skiles' 3-pointer gave them an 88-75 lead with 7:44 to play.

But the Kings came back with an 11-2 run, sparked by Richmond's five points, and his two free throws pulled the Kings within 90-88 with 4:04 to go.

"At halftime we told them don't relax, the Kings will make a run at you," Hill said.

Kings forward Walt Williams, who struggled with only three points on 1-of-8 shooting from the field, will undergo testing to see if he is having recurring pain due to a stress fracture of his left fibula. Williams missed seven preseason games and the first eight regular-season games with the stress fracture.

Treat critters to holiday fare

Tempting seed wreath is for the birds

Get wild with your holiday generosity. University of Florida wildlife experts say.

While you're baking Christmas cookies or making Hanukkah potato latkes, you can make a few treats for the critters that also can serve as decorative touches for your home this holiday season.

"With the influx of migrating birds, there are not enough tree cavities to support additional wildlife," said Michelle Collazo, wildlife information specialist at UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS). "Many of these birds will wind up homeless."

Collazo said wildlife researchers representing the cooperative Urban Wildlife Program, a joint project between UF/IFAS and the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission, along with naturalist Carol Morgenstern of the Broward County Parks and Recreation Division, have designed holiday "decorations" that can provide homes for the holidays for a variety of birds and squirrels.

Some of the easiest decorations, Collazo said, are a bird seed wreath, a gourd house for purple martins, a string of peanuts and pine cone feeders.

For the wreath, just brush a 10-inch, dried bread ring with egg white, cover it with bird seed and bake on a foil lined cookie sheet for ten minutes at 350 degrees. Add a red bow for a holiday accent and hang it outside. To replenish the wreath, spread with peanut butter and add more seed. A wreath can also be made from a sunflower seed head. Simply hollow a circle in the center of the seed head, attach a few cracked pecans and a couple wild grasses to mimic a bow and attach a hanger — place near a window so that you can enjoy viewing the feeding.

GARDENING

To make the purple martin gourd house, draw a 2 1/4" circle about 1 to 2 inches from the bottom on one side of a medium sized gourd. Drill 1/4 inch holes in the following locations: one in the center of the drawn circle, three in the bottom for drainage, and one in the very top for hanging. Then use a keyhole saw to enlarge the drilled hole at the center of the drawn circle until it is the size of the circle.

Instead of stringing popcorn this year, Collazo suggests stringing unsalted, unshelled roasted peanuts on a red or blue dyed dacron fishing line.

"Wrap it around a tree in your yard to attract both birds and squirrels," she said.

"You can even make ornaments for trees by spreading a pine cone with peanut butter, rolling it in bird seed and hanging it on a tree with twine," Collazo added.

Some other wild treats include stringing unsweetened donut-shaped cereal to use as a garland. Cutting whole wheat bread with cookie cutters into various shapes and using ornament hooks to hang on a tree or cutting oranges in half, scooping out the pulp and filling with bird seed.

In addition to providing food and housing for wildlife in your own backyard, Collazo said you can improve the chances of survival for more exotic wildlife during the holiday season and give an exotic gift at the same time. "We recommend sponsoring an adopted animal," she said. "For example, you can help protect the manatee, an endangered species, through the Adopt-a-Manatee program developed by the Save-the-Manatee Club." In return for a donation, you will receive a photograph, biography and adoption certificate of the adopted manatee. Collazo also noted that the Florida Audubon Society has an Adopt-a-Bird program and, through the National Wildlife Federation wolves and whales can be adopted. Donations made to such agencies are used in programs aimed at protecting these specific species and their habitats.

You can also be kinder to our wild animals and the earth by recycling gift boxes, paper, ribbons and bows. If carefully handled these items can be reused next year. A better solution is to produce less trash that would need to be recycled. Decorate gift boxes with sprigs of evergreens, berries, dried flowers and grasses, tree ornaments, lace doilies or candy canes instead of using the traditional paper and bagged bows. Save greeting cards to make name tags next year. Be sure to encourage others to follow in your footsteps — reduce, recycle, reuse! Use your imagination and be creative, the recipient of your gift is sure to appreciate your thoughtful efforts.

Wishing you and yours a peaceful holiday.

Custom officers give visitors hard time

DEAR ABBY: I came to the United States from the Netherlands in 1960 with a fairly good knowledge of the English language, but I took quite a ribbing about my pronunciation, and ignorance of your slang words and expressions.

Over the years, friends and relatives from the Netherlands have come over to visit me, and they all agree that the U.S. Customs officers give foreigners a very hard time. (Not all foreigners are terrorists, drug dealers or thieves, you know.)

ADVICE

My 87-year-old mother was made to wait while the customs officer rewrote all her forms. (If he could read them, they must have been legible, right?)

Recently my nephew came over with his wife. Their plane had been delayed eight hours, arriving at Kennedy Airport at 3 a.m., where the customs officers were downright nasty!

I don't know if the same is true at other international airports, but I'd like to know if other travelers have had problems with customs officers. Perhaps they should all be sent to charm school.

Abby, if you print this, please don't use my name, as I fly back home every year, and I don't want to be "strip-searched" next time I fly.

FREQUENT FLYER IN NEW YORK
DEAR FREQUENT FLYER: It would take more than "charm school"; it would take "reform" school.

I, too, had a nasty run-in with a U.S. Customs officer: On returning from the Orient in 1983, a customs officer in Honolulu insisted that the pearl necklace I was carrying in my purse had been purchased in the Orient.

I told him that I had owned it for 10 years. He refused to believe me, so I telephoned my insurance agent in San Francisco, who verified the fact.

This occurred on a Sunday. All the telephone circuits were busy, so it took four hours to complete the call; consequently, I missed my plane and had to take a later flight home.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter married a man with two children who lived with them. They later had one child together. For many years, we included the stepchildren in our family gatherings. After they were grown, we decided that the stepchildren should be excluded. (We asked our daughter to handle this.)

Our son-in-law and his children were very hurt and angry. (Can you believe they nearly divorced over this?) Now, he no longer speaks to us, and neither he nor our daughter comes to family parties. She insists that we were wrong, but we don't believe we were.

What do you think? And how can we rectify this situation?

PERPLEXED IN MICHIGAN
DEAR PERPLEXER: I think you were not only wrong, you were incredibly insensitive, tactless and cruel. You owe your daughter, her husband and the children you offended an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading about all the crybabies who are angry and disappointed because they did not know their biological parents.

Abby, did they ever stop to think that they might have been the aftermath of a drunken party?

I was adopted by two of the finest people who ever lived. They picked me from a multitude of babies, and they doctored, cared for and loved me with all their hearts.

I would not have walked next door to see my natural mother or father. I am 71 years old. Please withhold my name.

Write A Want Ad That Sells!
YOUR CLASSIFIED AD works best when it contains what the reader wants to know.

GIVE FACTS
 Put yourself in the buyer's place. What would you want to know? List the item's age, condition, size, brand name, model and approximate value. If you're selling a car, state the type of transmission, mileage (if it's low) and special equipment.

DON'T EMBELLISH!
 It's risky business to exaggerate and it won't increase your chances of success. Misleading information may get a buyer to your house. It may also get you a punch in the nose.

AVOID ABBREVIATIONS!
 While a few abbreviations can save you space, too many of them acting together can create confusion. A confused reader won't take time to sort out your meaning.

INCLUDE PRICE!
 Surveys indicate that buyers are more interested in the merchandise when they know the price. This applies to everything from household furnishings to automobiles. Good merchandise, priced fairly, is the best guarantee of success.

BE AVAILABLE!
 A telephone number is fine if you're at home when your ad runs. If you're not going to be home, state the time you will be. Most people won't call back twice.

USE YOUR NAME!
 Put your name in your ad. It gives credibility to the item you are advertising. You may even get results when someone who has read your ad sees you in a restaurant or walking down the street. That's the lasting advantage of being in a small community such as ours.

Is liver function a sign of danger?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are elevated liver functions? Both my husband and I have been diagnosed with them, yet our doctor says they are not high enough to be of concern.

DEAR READER: The liver is a vital organ that carries out myriad functions in the body. It does its job by using enzymes, complex chemicals that are produced by the liver cells themselves. Ordinarily, these enzymes do not appear in high concentrations in the bloodstream.

However, in the presence of liver damage, inflammation or blockage, these enzymes leak into the bloodstream, where their measurement often reflects the degree of liver malfunction. For example, heart failure (causing liver congestion), gallstones (leading to obstruction) and hepatitis (inflammation) are associated with elevated levels of liver enzymes that may be 10, 20 or 100 times normal.

Conversely, a small amount of liver inflammation -- such as that commonly caused by a regular, moderate intake of alcohol beverages -- may produce only a trivial increase.

Doctors frequently order routine measurements of these enzymes and other compounds. Called a "liver profile," "liver screen" or "liver function tests," the blood analyses indicate whether the liver is performing appropriately.

In my practice, the most common abnormality is a slight increase in one or two of the enzymes, due, as I said, to alcohol consumption. Perhaps this is what your doctor was referring to. Nonetheless, I wonder if your (and your husband's) liver function tests are, in fact, of concern.

It is my belief -- and the view of many authorities -- that even minimal elevations of liver enzymes indicate a problem with alcohol -- not necessarily alcoholism, but certainly a level of consumption that should be addressed. In this situation, the increased concentration of liver enzymes may be an early warning that more severe, permanent damage, such as cirrhosis, could occur if the amount of imbibed alcohol is not reduced.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The other night I ate some Chinese food. My fortune-cookie motto was: "Apply yourself to the basics and progress will follow." I never realized Confucius was a bridge player. But it is true -- if you apply the basics of bridge correctly, you will get at least 95 percent of deals right. The hard part, of course, is applying the right basic at the right moment. Take today's deal, for example. You are sitting West. Against four spades, you lead the diamond eight. Partner wins with the queen, cashes the diamond ace and continues with the diamond king, which declarer ruffs with the spade queen. How do you continue the defense? You have two diamond tricks in the bag, so you need two more tricks to defeat the game. The powerful dummy makes it clear that these must come from spades. Did you overruff with the spade king and try to give partner a club ruff? It might work, but it isn't likely. South started with two diamonds. If he has eight spades for his vulnerable overall, he cannot have four clubs as well. Also, with a club void, East should play his diamonds in ascending order: queen, king, ace; not queen, ace, king. Instead, you must apply the axiom that unless you have something vital to do, you shouldn't take an overruff with a card that will always win a trick. Here you should discard a club or heart. Then, as partner holds the singleton spade 10, however declarer wriggles, he must lose two spade tricks. Your eight will be promoted to a winner. Erudition in the essentials produces progress.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 21, 1993

In the year ahead you might have some splendid opportunities to make changes which could offer greater material rewards. Even if you don't initiate these endeavors, you're likely to play a role in guiding them to fruition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a good promoter and sales person today and you'll instinctively know how to arouse customer interest in your wares, yet you may not be equally sharp in handling money matters. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest asset today is your ability to do things for others they cannot do for themselves. If you utilize this gift, you can generate a lot of good will.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Chores of a mental nature will be much easier for you to handle today than physical ones. If there is some type of heavy work that needs doing, hire helpers.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you assert yourself today you should have a very good chance of adding to your material resources. Don't be afraid to try to make money from things that weren't profitable previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Success in your endeavors is likely today, provided you're permitted to use your own ideas and initiative. If these are thwarted, it will dilute your performance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're in a good achievement cycle today, but your victories may not come in ways you initially envision. Effective, last minute changes are indicated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend might lean on you a bit today in hopes of being able to do something he/she couldn't do on their own. Reciprocity is likely, because, you, in turn, might lean on someone else.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Where your career is concerned, there is something from which you may derive benefits if you could figure out a way to change it. Fortunately, concerned associate might do it for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Profit from your own past experience today and don't allow yourself to be penalized by something that penalized you previously. Old mistakes don't have to be repeated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may be able to do much better in joint endeavors than anything you attempt to do single-handed. Look over your agenda of objectives to see who would make an effective ally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're capable of working very well with others today on a one-to-one basis. This is because you're as much of a giver as you are a taker. Your attitude inspires cooperation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to feel personally gratified today, you must be engaged in some form of productive pursuits that produces real benefits for you, as well as for others.
