Well let's see what the fishin' is doin'. Osteen I idge back to the Geneva Bridge, the bass are slow but they're there . . . up in the grass. Some of them are large, but he d to to, and they're hittin' on live shiners and purple won is. Last Wednesday, I was out flyin', and while we were over Lake Monroe we saw a house boat heading across the lake so we paid them a visit, and it was Harry Robson and a fishin' party going over to the power plant to do some speck fishin'. They had pretty good luck-28 nice specks in two hours and Mrs. Robson said they lost more than they caught.

Harry Hervish reports the fishin' is pretty slow in the area for some unknown reason. Hervish also reports that a lot of black ducks are coming

An outboard motor can sometimes induce fish to start striking when everything else draws a blank. And, it's about as simple as shaking nuts out of a tree. Shake up the weeds and stir up the fish. This bit of advice may startle the fellow who approaches a spread of lilies like he was walking on eggs, but here's what the experts suggest: If your outboard is equipped with a weedless lower unit, make several passes through the aquatic growth and stir it up like a chopped salad. Then sit back, and "take ten." In a few minutes, drop a small bug or frog right where you've stirred up the vegetation, then get set to sink th

Why should the commotion caused by ripping up a weed bed suddenly send the game fish on a feeding spree? Simply this: insects and other forms of squatic life lounging in the protection of the weeds are violently tossed from their strongholds into the epen. Fish, spotting a rare opportunity for feast, quickly move in and gobble up everything in sight. Two words of caution, however. Be sure your motor c take this treatment, and be sure no one's watching.
