

The Black Community

Let's Walk Down W. 13th St.

Second in a series

By LEE DANCY

Newly cut turnip greens sway in an old-fashioned bathtub brimming full of cool water to keep them fresh.

John Burke, 69, rolls the leafy vegetation and purple-tinged turnips through the water to make sure they are free of grit. Clusters of the greens lie neatly distributed on the tailgate of a battered pickup truck, waiting for a buyer.

Every hair on Burke's head matches the white sand he scuffles through. The small steel-blue pupils of the black man's eyes contrast distinctly against a full, bushy beard framing his face.

Burke begins sifting through the rows of greens to choose an appropriate bunch for a neatly dressed little girl. Pleasure Sutton, 9, carefully cradles the turnip tops as she mounts a bicycle piloted by 9-year-old Damien Burke, the elderly man's nephew.

canopy, sheltering Burke and his tiny business. Blotchy shade cools other elderly black men who recline beneath the trees on this unusually warm Saturday.

Burke sells his greens alongside W. 13th Street in Goldsboro, one of Sanford's well known black communities. Forty years ago he moved here from Monticello, a rural town on the perimeter of Tallahassee.

As Burke works quietly on his vegetables and greens, a friend a 69-year-old retired tractor driver, reflects on 15 years of life in Goldsboro.

He says life in Sanford's black community has become more violent, especially for the elderly. Younger blacks prey on the old folks, trying to steal their Social Security or welfare checks, he says.

"They'll take you down in the daytime," the retiree says.

But he says relations with Sanford's whites have improved.

"It's better to live here now. We can talk to whites or blacks or anyone."

He says he feels black people continue to mistrust whites, however.

"I can go to your part of town and you all treat me nice," he said. "You all come down here and a nigger wants to fight you."

The placid atmosphere of the corner where he and Burke pass the day contrasts distinctly with a more violent situation farther east on 13th Street.

Younger blacks meander across an open dusty lot beside Richard's Super Market at 1506 W. 13th St. In the gap between cars parked in front of the dark brown concrete-block structure, a man with huge biceps is hunched over, flailing both fists on some unfortunate individual in the dirt, hidden from view by the cars.

Two other men try to pull the angry man away from his helpless victim. Twice the hulking assailant returns to pummel the object of his momentary ire.

After nearly five minutes of beating and the sound of fist against flesh, the fighter releases a slender woman from the ground. She staggers to her feet and slips inside the store before the threatening figure can grab her again.

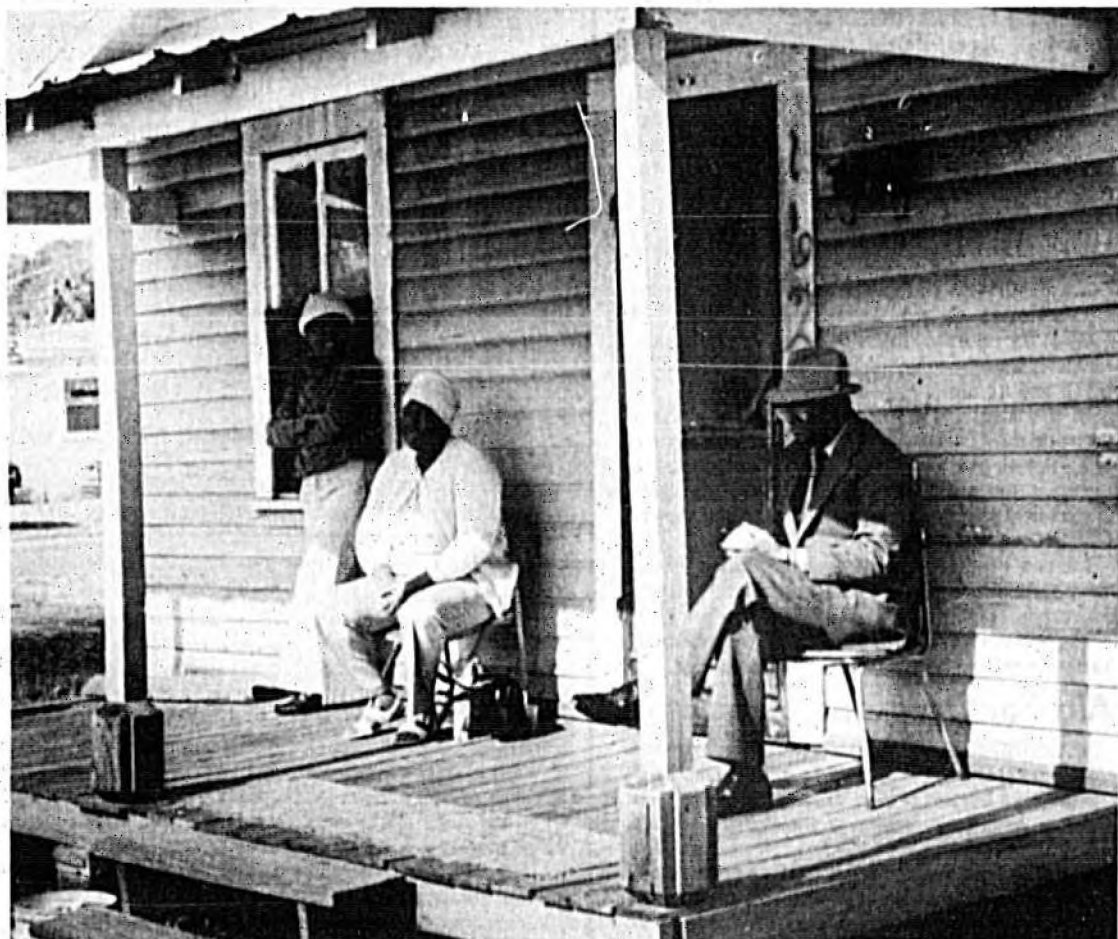

The man spouts a chain of obscenities in the direction of the grocery store's entrance and staggers down the street.

"You see, that's just what I mean," says a young man sporting a sparse beard and battered derby with an up-turned brim. "People down here are just plain frustrated."

It didn't help matters any, some say, when Crooms, a formerly all-black high school, was integrated. That seemingly innocuous action created an identity crisis for many young blacks.

Common was the feeling of an articulate fellow in his mid-20s who says the school should have been spared the arbitrary hand of integration. If whites wanted to attend, fine. But forced busing to mix the races didn't sit well in the

Police-Black Relations Debated

By TENI YARBOROUGH

The man behind the badge represents law and order. Whether or not that badge goes into a white or a black community, law knows no color, only right and wrong. It's that simple.

But is it really? Are blacks in the community treated with unbiased law-enforcement and police service, or has that right been tarnished by unwarranted harassment of community members because of the color of their skin?

The answer to the question "Does prejudicial law enforcement exist between police and the black community in Sanford?" will vary depending upon who is asked.

Police contend relations between law-enforcement officers and the black community have improved in recent years, and while a few problems remain, "All is well."

However, there are those in the black community who disagree that relations have improved, and they are willing to cite examples that faith in local custodians of peace is deteriorating.

"It (life in the black community) is not a rose garden, like some would have you believe," says Bruce Scott, 25, a native of Sanford's black community. "I'll admit it isn't heaven on W. 13th Street (in Goldsboro, a primary black business-residential community in Sanford), but it isn't the hell everyone makes it out to be, either," he says.

Scott of 2718 W. 23rd St. is a paralegal at Legal Services of Central Florida Inc. on Park Avenue. He says he knows "first hand" that blacks are not always treated justly by area police.

A case in point — Scott says he was arrested July 18, 1980, on W. 13th Street by Sanford police. The University of Central Florida graduate recounts the events of that evening:

"I was standing along W. 13th Street with a client of mine. I was there on business. And this officer came up to me and my client and told us we were unlawfully assembled."

I had heard the police had started a sweep of the area to rid the street of pimps, dope pushers, drug addicts, drunks, prostitutes, gamblers, burglars, etc.

"Anyway, I identified myself and said (to the officer), This is my client, and the officer — dressed in full riot gear, helmet and all — said he didn't really care who I was. He told us we were unlawfully assembled and told us to move on."

"Like I said, I was there on business, so I walked with my client away from the area, and then when he was safely gone I was walking back to my car, which was parked

Motorcycle Hits Train, Man Dies

An investigation is continuing today into the Sunday morning death of a Casselberry man whose motorcycle collided with a train in Altamonte Springs.

The dead man was identified as Chester Coleman, 39, of 522 Jupiter St., according to Altamonte Springs police Sgt. Richard Daniels.

Police said Coleman was driving his Harley-Davidson motorcycle eastbound on State Road 436 about 4:21 a.m. when it crashed through a wooden railroad crossing arm just east of Longwood Avenue and collided with the 54-car train.

"He was going about 30-35 m.p.h. at impact," Daniels said. "But he didn't start braking until he was about 18 to 20 feet from the crossing. He would have needed about four times that distance to stop."

Daniels said his department is investigating the accident and that "it will be a while before we know anything."

"He hit the 12th from the last car of the train broadside and it dragged him northbound about 92 feet," Daniels said.

Coleman's motorcycle was destroyed in the accident and about $400 damage was done to the crossing arm. The Seaboard Coast Line train car Coleman hit received minimal damage, police said. — TENI YARBOROUGH

They Forgot To Eat Their Rice

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — You'd think a team of native Chinese would have the edge in a rickshaw race.

Rickshaw-pulling teams from three restaurants staged a relay race, with the three members of each squad taking turns pulling rickshaws carrying pretty girls over a winding 300-yard course at Universal Studios.

Two of the teams were composed of Americans and the third was made up of three Chinese men who had come to this country to work as waiters. The Chinese team finished last.

Her Mother Arrested, Jailed

Fern Park Girl, 8, Found Shot

A 25-year-old Fern Park woman was being held today on $25,000 bond in the Orange County jail following her arrest Sunday night on charges of shooting her 8-year-old daughter.

Orange County sheriff's deputies arrested Kathy Ruth Oviatt, 240 Oxford Road, at 8 p.m. Sunday after her daughter, Pamela, was found by a motorist at about 2:45 p.m. along a dirt road off State Road 535 near the Walt Disney World employee entrance. Ms. Oviatt has been charged with aggravated battery and possession of a controlled substance, possibly amphetamines, deputies said.

The girl was listed in serious condition today at the Orlando Regional Medical Center pediatric intensive care unit, suffering from gunshot wounds to her chest and arm, according to hospital spokesman Cynthia Sucher. She was operated on at about 10 p.m. Sunday at the Orlando hospital for the injuries.

Deputies said that minutes before the girl was found, Ms. Oviatt had called Orange County sheriff's deputies and reported her daughter had been kidnapped in the parking lot of Denny's restaurant, 8485 S. Orange Blossom Trail, Orlando.

Ms. Oviatt told deputies she and her daughter were sitting in her car about 2 p.m. when they were approached by three men, one wearing a ski mask and another wearing a brown paper bag over his head, deputies reported. The two masked men abducted her daughter while the third man got into the car and drove Ms. Oviatt around for about 20 minutes, she told deputies.

The alleged abduction was not reported to authorities until Ms. Oviatt got to a friend's house in eastern Orange County and called authorities at about 3 p.m., according to deputies.

Orange County deputies said today that no motive has been established for the incident.

'Would Look At It Very Seriously'

Sturm Leans Toward Backing Tax Hike

By MARK VOGLER
Herald Staff Writer

Robert Sturm, chairman of the Seminole County Commission, says he is leaning toward support of the proposed local-option half-cent sales tax.

Sturm, who recently attended a three-day meeting of the State Association of County Commissioners in Daytona Beach, said he feels the tax proposal was probably the major item of business discussed by the group last week.

"Although our county commissioners have not yet taken a position on it one way or the other, I would have to look at it very seriously, since the county will have to seek new sources of revenue in the future as more federal funds are cut back," Sturm said.

"A majority of the county commissions around the state support the half-cent tax; I guess about two-thirds of them have already endorsed it. It is an issue our commission will have to consider if it's passed by the Legislature," he said.

Under the tax plan, the county would get 30 percent of the new revenue, with the additional 70 percent distributed on a population-percentage basis among the cities and the county.

"Seminole County would generate approximately $5.5 million if the new tax passes in the Legislature," Sturm said.

"And that would mean that about $1.4 million of that amount would be earmarked by the county for use in corrections and law enforcement," he added.

Reagan's Budget Prompts Disappointment, Hostility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones expects Congress, fearful of huge deficits and disappointed by cuts in social programs, to rewrite President Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget sent to Capitol Hill today.

Although Jones, D-Okla., thinks Reagan's $75.6 billion budget blueprint for the year beginning Oct. 1 is more credible than last year's plan, he said it will be perceived as "unfair and unwise" to continue cutting deeply into social programs for the second year in a row while exempting military spending from the budget ax.

Human Rights Focus Shifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration has promised to end the "double standard" of spotlighting human rights violations in friendly countries while ignoring similar problems in the Soviet Union and its allies.

"A consistent and serious policy for human rights in the world must counter the Soviet Union politically and bring Soviet bloc human rights violations to the attention of the world over and over again," the State Department said in a package of human rights reports sent to Congress today.

The new reports cited bad or deteriorating human rights situations in the Soviet Union, Poland, Nicaragua, Cuba, Vietnam and Afghanistan while noting progress or little change in El Salvador, China, South Korea, Argentina, Chile and South Africa.

Aid For Poor, Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, putting concerns of President Reagan's new austere budget temporarily on the back burner, is more worried this week about rushing emergency money to the unemployed and poor.

Congressional leaders hope to provide funds soon to extend unemployment benefits and help the poor pay fuel bills even though the amounts will increase the current year's already big budget deficit.

Nuclear Records Dummied

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A former Army medic, breaking 25 years of silence, said Sunday he followed orders to prepare phony records hiding high levels of radiation exposure to soldiers at four atomic tests in 1956 and 1957.

Van R. Brandon said his top secret medic group kept two sets of ledgers to record radiation readings from film badges worn by soldiers at the Yucca Flat, Nev., test site. The badges were designed to record the levels of radiation to which the men wearing them had been exposed. One set of books showed no exposures over approved limits, while the other showed far greater exposures.

NATIONAL REPORT: The harsh Winter of '82 retreated a bit today, giving Midwesterners a chance to search for their sidewalks under a five-week accumulation of ice and snow and prompting a run on "I survived the coldest day in Chicago" T-shirts. A harsh blast of cold that punished the upper Great Lakes for the fifth straight weekend calmed to at least merciful levels Sunday — almost marking to the day the middle of the winter — and the most the forecast called for was scattered snow showers. Even the South has gotten a taste of the arctic this year, but Texas began to thaw out after three days of unaccustomed freezing rain and drifting snow that caused havoc on roadways during the weekend. However, weather forecasters said the respite might be brief. Light snow was falling from eastern Idaho across Wyoming into western Nebraska late Sunday. A few snow showers were reported through the northern Great Lakes.

Lock Clerk In Cooler

Gunmen Rob Lil' Champ

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Two armed gunmen robbed a Sanford convenience store and locked the store clerk in the cooler today before making their getaway with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Russell Frysinger, 33, of Sanford, told police that a man came into the Lil' Champ convenience store at 1920 French Avenue at about 3:55 a.m. today, walked to the rear of the store then back to the front counter and said, "This is a holdup."
Frysinger picked up a stick and told the robber he would hit him if the man didn't leave, police said. However, the robber warned Frysinger he would be shot if he struck him.

Frysinger said he turned and saw another man standing in the store's doorway, holding a "large, black-handled revolver," police reported.

The store clerk then put an undetermined amount of money into a money bag and handed the bag to the thieves. The men forced Frysinger into the store's food cooler, blocking the doorway with milk and soft drink cartons, police said.

The two men then fled from the store. Frysinger later managed to escape and notified police.

SANFORD HOME ROBBED

Burglars made off with about $350 worth of property from a Sanford man's home and police have a suspect in the case. Glenn C. Utt, 39, of 417 W. 2nd Street, told Sanford police he believes a boarder at his home stole his child's organ, a floor buffer, electric heater, a gas heater and a gasoline lawn edger, police reported.

Utt said the incident occurred sometime between 8 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, police said.

his home Friday and robbed him of about $120.

Clemmie Hudson, 32, of 408 Palmetto Avenue, told Sanford police he was walking in the alley behind his home at about 9:15 p.m. when two men attacked him, hit him over the head and stole $120 from his wallet, police said.

Hudson said he was unable to identify either of his assailants, police reported.

MAN SHOT WITH BB

Two youths fired a BB-gun at a Sanford man at about 10:15 p.m. Friday, striking him in the left side of the head.

Sanford police said the unknown youths fired on Robert L. Taylor of 2702 W. 22nd Street, as Taylor was driving his vehicle eastbound on Florida Avenue. Police said Taylor was not seriously injured in the attack.

GABRIEL'S ROBBED

Gabriel's Sub Shop at 2415 French Avenue, Sanford, was robbed of about $912 worth of food and other property Saturday night.

Sanford police said unknown culprits broke into the shop sometime between 9:15 p.m. Saturday and 9:44 a.m. Sunday.

The burglars broke into the shop through a rear window, police reported.

Sale Of SHA Tract On Sanford Agenda

The sale of the final piece of property to close out the Sanford Housing Authority's (SHA) defunct federally financed Community Development Block Grant program is scheduled at the 7 p.m. meeting today of the Sanford City Commission.

The apparent high bidder on a 50-by-120 foot vacant lot at the northeast corner of Eighth Street and Orange Avenue is the Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church.

The church has bid $2,750 for the parcel. The only other bidder was Israel Black Jr. at $2,300.

The church's representative, Alfred DeLattibeaudiere, has not revealed what the church plans to do with the property if its bid is accepted by the City Commission.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said today the property cannot be used as the site for a new church because it is not large enough to provide adequate off-street parking.

Although the church was the high bidder for the property at $2,500 in January, the commission rejected bids after one of the bidders complained that the church did not include a check for a 10 percent deposit, as required.

The money from the sale of the land will go into the fund to close out the federal grant program. The accounting firm of Greene & Dycus, of Sanford, is conducting an audit of the program. According to accountant Roger Bowen, the audit should be completed within a week.

Bowen said copies of the audit are to be sent to the Atlanta and Jacksonville offices of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and to the city of Sanford and the Sanford Housing Authority.

The City Commission withdrew its sponsorship of the Community Development Block Grant program last April after it was found that nearly $500,000 in federal money had been spent by the SHA but only eight houses had been purchased and renovated for resale.

The program was designed to acquire dilapidated houses and property, renovate the houses and resell them to low-income families.

In other business, Tim McCauley, manager of the Sanford office of the Florida State Employment Service, will ask the commission for assistance in keeping federal funding to retain the office in the city.

Parolee To Be Questioned In 5-State Crime Spree

PUNTA GORDA (UPI) — A balding, 36-year-old parolee from Wyoming is expected to be the object of an extradition battle among five states who want him for a total of 13 murders.

Investigators from three of those states examined evidence Sunday that could confirm paroled convict Robert Dale Henderson's confession to a 16-day sex crime and murder spree.

Cuban Criminals Tattooed

MIAMI (UPI) — An intelligence analyst from the federal Drug Enforcement Administration says some code-like tattoos are keys to criminal backgrounds of Cuban prisoners who arrived at Key West in the 1980 Mariel sealift.

"The criminal element from Cuba that arrived on the boatlift did them to each other," an intelligence analyst with the Drug Enforcement Administration told the Miami Herald Sunday.

"They applied them to each other when they were in prison (in Cuba). It's like a secret society handshake, so they could recognize each other when they were out on the street."

Pot Plane Crashes

FORT PIERCE (UPI) — Two injured men who survived the crash of a light plane in a remote pasture will be charged with possessing 1,300 pounds of marijuana, authorities said.

The twin-engine Navajo crashed Saturday night, but Donald L. Abbott, 42, of Adairville, Ky., and Robert Jackson, 31, of Fort Lauderdale weren't found until Sunday.

Cargo Ships Collide

MIAMI (UPI) — Two cargo ships collided about 150 miles southeast of Key West, Fla., early today, a Coast Guard spokesman reported.

Most of the crew of the 450-foot motor vessel Banglar Bani, registered in Bangladesh, abandoned ship when the vessel began sinking after a collision with the 572-foot U.S. Potomac, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

There was no immediate explanation for the incident.

Polish Archbishop Says Military Humiliates Poles

ROME (UPI) — Polish Archbishop Jozef Glemp, in an emotional sermon, said Sunday martial law has profoundly sickened, humiliated and angered Poles, pushed them toward revenge and pitted them against each other.

In a homily at a mass for Polish residents of Rome, Glemp also predicted the Solidarity free trade union will find an important place in Polish society, just as the Roman Catholic Church rose to become a powerful force in the communist nation.

Tokyo Hotel Fire Claims 32

TOKYO (UPI) — At least 32 people died today in Tokyo's worst hotel fire since World War II, with flames raging for more than six hours while trapped guests cried for help, plunged to their deaths or tried in vain to get fire hoses to work.

Fire officials said 32 people died and at least 20 others were injured in the fire that started on the ninth floor of the Hotel New Japan in a fashionable Tokyo area of nightclubs, offices and hotels at 3:39 a.m.

Minorities Need More Health Care, Get Less

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blacks and other minority group members often need more health care than whites but they generally get less, partially because of discrimination, a National Academy of Sciences report says.

The 185-page report said there is no question that although minorities need more health care than whites, they use less and may receive lower quality care.

"There is also considerable evidence that race and ethnicity have a strong influence on where people obtain medical care, which hospitals they use, whether they obtain care from clinics or private physicians, and the credentials of the physicians from whom they obtain care."

The report by the academy's Institute of Medicine did not fix the blame for the disparity squarely on discrimination, but said there was strong evidence racial bias played a role. It cited particularly "striking" differences in dental care and nursing home use.

"The committee reached the general conclusion that race is associated with differences in the use of health services and that these differences do not mirror differences in need," according to the recently released report, "Health Care in a Context of Civil Rights."

Among the findings listed in the report:
— Blacks are less likely than whites to see private doctors and are less likely to see specialists rather than general practitioners. Blacks are twice as likely as whites to visit emergency rooms or hospital clinics, which often serve people without private doctors.

— "Racially identifiable hospitals continue to exist in many large cities," in part because Medicaid reimbursement policies concentrate blacks at a limited number of institutions.
— Hypertension is 63 percent higher among minority women than white women, but the rate of doctor visits for treatment are "virtually identical."

— There is evidence care provided to some minority group members comes from "comparatively less qualified" professionals.

black community.

While he was at it, the same young man took a swipe at Sanford's power structure. "Look at what they did to us," he snaps. "They took away our swimming pools, our school, our jobs. And forget trying to go to the City Commission. Look who runs City Hall. That guy has been there 30 years. You think he cares about us?"

Such political tirades crop up frequently when talking to blacks about how they perceive the problems facing them. But invariably, the conversation always returns to more pressing, immediate concerns . . . like jobs.

The young man and four others perched on various parts of a scrapped and dented pickup truck agree — if young blacks want to become successful, they must leave the Sanford area to look for work.

"A man leaves Sanford and makes it (financially)," the young man says, "and he comes back home and it's gone (the money he has saved)."

Tuesday: Meet the community's black business people; and the story behind Crooms High School.

"They need to bring in more jobs," says a muscular fellow wearing a "Crooms Panthers" T-shirt. "You've got to go out of town to get yourself a good job."

The five agree that between 50 and 60 young blacks had been working for Auto Train prior to its financial demise last April. Many of those people have not secured new employment since leaving Auto-Train, the young men agree.

So if employment opportunities in the Sanford area are sparse, why don't these able young people leave town for better opportunities?

"We're trying to make it the best way we can here in Sanford," says a tall, bony fellow sitting in the truck's driver's seat. "You've got to come home some time."

Older blacks in Goldsboro sometimes doubt these expressions from the young of their willingness to work.

"A lot of younger people just sit around," says Alexander Mitchell, 71, a retired bar owner.

"Haitians are coming in and taking jobs because a lot of younger people don't want to work," Mitchell adds.

The elderly man brushes some dust from his grey pin-striped suit. Most of the people on W. 13th Street this Saturday afternoon are garbed in light, casual clothes, but Mitchell appears ready to stride into the church sanctuary.

A dapper checked fedora shades the man's eyes as he surveys the activity on Goldsboro's main street from his chair on

John Burke, 69, sells a bunch of turnip greens to Pleasure Sutton, 9, on W. 13th Street in Sanford.

Mary Helen Miller's front porch. His aristocratic demeanor clashes with the more flamboyant men of passersby.

Mitchell once owned the Goldsboro Bar, a former bustling night spot a few doors down from Mrs. Miller's home at 1622 W. 13th St. Today, the wood-frame building where Mitchell once did business lies unused, with plywood blocking windows and doors.

Single mothers living in the Goldsboro area echo older people's complaints about robbery and other crimes. They also find life frustrating, knowing that if they take a job picking fruit or vegetables with local farmers, a monthly welfare check must be forfeited.

Unpredictable weather may cut employment short, however. In that circumstance, these women find themselves with no paycheck, and no welfare money either.

Women such as Mary Noble, 36, of 32 William Clark Court, near where several cops were standing.

"I had to pass through them earlier, when I first got to the street to meet with my client, and not one of them told me anything. No one said I couldn't go down that street."

"Anyway, I went back up to the officer who had told me to move on and asked him, calling him by name in a courteous manner, what constitutes unlawful assembly. He replied he didn't know and for me to ask my lawyer. I asked him how could he enforce the law he doesn't even know and he said it (unlawful assembly) is three or more people gathering in an area.

"That's when I asked him why he made me and my client move on because there were only the two of us standing there talking.

"About that time, however, another cop came up behind me and said, 'Don't argue with him, just get him in the (patrol) car.' With that, the cop jerked my arm behind me in such a way that there was numbness in my index finger and shoved me into the police car.

"I told him, 'Look, you don't have to treat me like an animal. I'm a human being, so tell me what you want me to do and I'll do it.'

"They took me and a couple of other black guys to the (police) station where they charged me with disorderly conduct. I said, 'Wait a minute, you told me before I was under arrest for unlawful assembly.' But they said now I was charged with disorderly conduct.

"Later, the state attorney's office asked for a continuance in my case because there wasn't a charge to really hang on me. But eventually they changed the charge again to resisting a police officer without violence. I had to pay bond to get out (of jail) because they wouldn't release me on my own recognizance.

"The case was later dismissed and my records expunged, but I still have my fingerprints on file in the nation's capital with the FBI."

Scott says he feels his "character has been assassinated" by the events of July 17, 1980. He adds that "to this day friends and professional colleagues ask, jokingly or not, if I've been in jail recently. I'm resentful, although I know they (police) were just doing their job, but there are those who don't understand and are very, very resentful."

Scott says he is convinced his treatment during the arrest was prejudicial because he is black.

"When they asked me what I did (for a living), I told them I worked for Legal Services of Central Florida," he says. "One officer then asked me, what do you do, clean up there at night? I said no, I'm a paralegal. Also, I had $96 on me that night and they wanted to know if I'd just been paid or if any of my 'ladies,' meaning a prostitute, had paid me my cut.

"I guess it's unthinkable that a black could be employed downtown in the white community," Scott says.

He adds that he is considering taking legal action against the city, citing false arrest and First Amendment violations as his grounds for a lawsuit.

Like Scott, Sanford police recall the events of those three sweltering summer nights when riot gear-clad officers "cleaned up" W. 13th Street. However, versions vary.

"The City Commission had received complaints from black residents and business people along W. 13th Street and we were told — at least (Police) Chief (Ben) Butler was told by the commission to correct the situation," says Sgt. Herb Shea, assistant to Butler. Shea was on duty during the incident.

"The man (Scott) was on the street with five or six other men who were drinking in front of the Goldsboro bar," he says. "A police officer asked them to move on down the street away from the bar or go back inside the bar."

Shea said the police were trying to handle an "extremely volatile" situation on the street to rid that area of reported burglaries, profanity on the streets, drinking on the streets, fighting and other problems.

"We were called in as a backup group to assist Sanford police because they (members of the black community) were bouncing bottles and rocks and things off (police) cars and the officers," says John Spolski, Sheriff's Department spokesman. "There was no over reacting on the Police Department's part that first night. I can't comment on the following two days of the incident, because we didn't actively participate but were on standby as a backup."

Chief Assistant State Attorney Chris Hay says 12 to 15 arrests were made during the three-day "clean up" but that, "As far as I can recollect, all charges eventually were dropped against all of them."

"The first time we went down there (W. 13th Street) we had rocks, bottles and things thrown at us and about 12 to 14 people were arrested," Shea says. "When we went back, sure, we wore riot gear for protection, and that's when this guy (Scott) was arrested."

"He was given a lawful order by a police officer to move down the street, but instead he argued with the officer, and I don't care who he is or what color he is, a lawful order by a police officer is to be obeyed," he continues. "When he continued to refuse to comply with the order, he was cuffed, not jerked, and placed, not put, in the car, taken and booked at the station."

"I was there," Shea adds. "We definitely had a problem out there. Complaints from the black community came in, and we effectively took care of it, and there has not been such a problem since."

Shea says that shortly after the incident a police foot patrol was started along W. 13th Street at the request of black business people and residents and as a "goodwill effort" to encourage relations between police and the community.

In an informal survey of area business people and community members along the W. 13th Street police beat, all indicate the presence of the police officer is welcomed and that no problems have resulted in his regular presence in the area. The foot-patrol officer there is white.

Other black community leaders say that before relations with police can improve, the lines of communication between the two, without prejudice, must be opened.

"We have more programs started in the black community to better relations other than the foot patrol, although that is an important one," Shea says. "We've sought to recruit black police officers and also have officers involved in programs on alternating Fridays for four hours at Seminole High School and Lake Mary High School."

The Sanford Police Department currently employs two black officers and one black sergeant.

"At one time we had the largest ratio of black officers in any department in Seminole County," says Sgt. William Bernosky. He adds, however, that many black officers in the past have sought employment elsewhere, including the military, and one as a Dallas Cowboy football player.

"I've never seen color as a criterion for anything here," 13-year-police veteran Bernosky says. "We have tried on numerous occasions, through the news media, through presentations in schools and Seminole Community College, in a message in area black newspapers, to recruit black officers, but we don't have any takers," he adds.

One former black police officer says she was treated "equally" and "courteously" by other department officers and administrators during her employment with the Sanford police.

Yvonne Taylor, formerly Sanders, says she left the department "for an 8-to-4 job because I didn't want to work shift work at night with my children having to stay home alone. I got a job with the probation office, but I quit on my own. I wasn't forced into quitting and I wasn't fired."

Ms. Taylor says she feels her "merit increases in pay kept up with other officers in the department and there was no discrimination there."

She was employed by the Police Department from November 1973 through December 1976, and again from March 1977 until her resignation in November 1979.

Asked whether police fear working in the black community, Bernosky says he has worked the black areas of Sanford as a who left high school before graduation to care for younger brothers and sisters, say life on welfare is exasperating.

"There are very few jobs available," Ms. Noble says. "They (employers) won't give you a job unless you have a diploma and experience. A lot of black people don't have either."

Mary Noble and her friends, Daphne Sippio, Norma Carr and Virginia Thomas, sit around a heavy wooden table in the kitchen of Ms. Thomas' apartment. The concrete-block walls of the room are freshly painted gold, and a large cupboard behind them holds assorted collections of china.

Ironically, the women are playing a game called "Trouble." Players move their wooden game pieces across the board according to the roll of dice.

If they land on the wrong spot on the board, however, they are forced to return to the starting point and resume their efforts. A similar analogy can be drawn for these women's lives.

All the women are single mothers. Ms. Thomas is the only one of the group who receives no welfare money, she says.

Ms. Carr, for example, cares for her four children. She receives $265 each month from the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) in welfare money, plus $240 in food stamps, she says.

Waiting for the postman to bring her welfare check at the beginning of each month is an anxiety-filled experience, she says. By the end of each month, little money or food remains in her home.

All the women except Ms. Sippio live in the William Clark Housing Project, one block north of W. 13th Street. Although their rent is subsidized by the federal government, their power and food bills are not.

Ms. Carr says her monthly rent is only $46 but that her electricity bill was $170 for a two-room apartment during December. Those two bills alone drained $216 from her total budget of $306, which includes the $240 in food stamps.

Life revolves around a welfare check for these women. Consequently, they take precautions to make certain no one steals it.

Checks arrive on the first day of each month. Ms. Carr and other welfare recipients spend most of their day waiting for the postman, who sometimes does not deliver the vital mail until 3 p.m., Ms. Carr says.

"In case somebody steals your check, that's it — they don't replace it," Ms. Sippio adds.

The women all agree that being single with children to care for is not a lifestyle they chose.

"Nature takes its course," Ms. Noble says. "You don't try to get pregnant."

Women accepting AFDC welfare checks do not have direct assistance in finding a job within Seminole County. An organization does exist, however, which will provide low-cost day care for children so their mothers will be able to find a job rather than accept welfare.

In hopes of a better lifestyle for her children, Ms. Carr drills a lesson home to her daughters every chance she gets.

"I tell them to finish high school and leave those babies where they're at," she says.

police officer and "I felt no fear."

"There are really decent people there, as there are in other communities, and I had no fear purely because I was a white cop in a black community. And if I ever need assistance, it doesn't matter to me whether he's a black guy or white guy — he's a man, and that's who I'm asking for help — the man. A man's a man in preserving the peace."

Although Bernosky says the Sanford Police Department has never fired a police officer during Butler's administration, some black residents said they feel the pressure placed on a black officer is "unjust."

"One officer I know of was more or less pressured into leaving the department," Scott says. "He couldn't take it any more, verbal abuse and racial slurs by white officers, and he left."

Shea says the officer Scott was referring to left the department "because he realized he was not yet ready nor mature enough to handle a career in law enforcement. The job isn't for everybody."

"We've had plenty of trouble in this county with law enforcement and blacks in the past," says Louise Crawford, civil-rights officer for Community Action, in Sanford. "I said in the past, and I hope it stays that way."

However, Ms. Crawford says she feels there are still "rumblings of discontent" among blacks toward police and that the only solution is increased communications between the two entities, "with an undercurrent of genuine concern."

"Now the Sheriff's Department has begun programs to alleviate problems with a domestic-violence task force, rape victim assistance program and such, but what they need is to go into the community, sit down, and show some real concern for correcting the bad feelings," she says.

"I just don't feel things are as rosy as some would like to paint it," she adds. "And relations will remain strained until someone bends."

Scott says he "grew up" with racial prejudice on the part of white officers toward blacks.

"When I was a kid, growing up in Sanford, it wasn't unusual to be stopped every block or so outside the perimeter of the black community and asked for identification by a police officer," he says. "Once I was even questioned as to whether I had robbed someone because I was going home from work — I was a waiter at the time — with a pocketful of tips, and the police thought I'd stolen it."

"There's no doubt that a black kid in a white neighborhood could be stopped and questioned," Shea says. "On the other hand, a white kid in a black neighborhood is also going to be stopped and questioned. Not because of any racial prejudice, but because it is just not a common thing."

"Blacks just aren't being represented in this area (Sanford) fairly," Ms. Crawford says. "Politically, there's no single-member districting, so blacks are not represented on the City Commission or other major authority slots. No one is looking out for their rights and needs. So it's only natural that the discontent is reaching the boiling point under the surface."

"It's a subtle resistance," Scott says. "There aren't any out-and-out marches or riots, but there is growing concern and rejection of past and present treatment of black residents today."

Ms. Crawford says she has been receiving more and more discrimination complaints than ever concerning blacks, in general.

The police maintain, though, that efforts are being made through community projects and increased patrols to ensure that the rights of blacks are protected in the community.

"The W. 13th Street incident is an example of trying to solve problems which the black community itself complained about, and quite vehemently at that," says Sgt. Shea.

"We took care of it, and the community appears, from the input our beat cop has received, to appreciate what we did to clean up that area," he adds.

However, Scott disagrees, saying, "The relationship between the black community and the police is not good, and it's not getting better."

Suggestions For Selling To Japan

In its climb to world trade supremacy, Japan has had the best of both eastern and western worlds—easy access to markets abroad and a door protectively shut to foreign imports at home.

But the days of such easy pickings should be brought to an end. Japan's closed-door trade policy not only arouses world-wide resentment, but risks a return to protectionism in the United States and Europe that would undo 40 years' effort to free international commerce.

Concessions approved by the Japanese cabinet recently appear to fall far short of what will be required to fend off retaliatory measures by Japan's major trading partners. They are, however, a recognition by Tokyo that change is necessary.

Faced with an $18 billion annual trade deficit with Japan, the Reagan administration and Congress are running out of patience. It is not surprising that some congressmen are drafting bills to erect retaliatory barriers against Japanese imports.

The administration has a list of 51 tariff and non-tariff barriers it wants Japan to drop. The list includes import quotas on 24 different agricultural products and restrictive standards which shut out American semi-conductors and other high-technology products. The Japanese have moved to ease restrictions on a number of other items on Washington's list, including cosmetics, autos, and medical supplies.

Washington also is asking, with considerable justice, for the removal of Japan's restrictions on U.S. investment in banking, financial services, and insurance.

But, frustrating as Japanese protectionism is, part of the trade deficit with Japan is of our own making. Even if Tokyo agreed to all 51 of the reforms sought by the administration, the U.S. trade deficit would only be reduced by an estimated $800 million a year.

Something else is obviously needed to increase U.S. exports to Japan. And that, as some Japanese businessmen insist, may be more efficient industrial production and more effective marketing techniques. This may require U.S. labor to link wage gains to increased productivity. It will certainly mean a readiness by U.S. firms to master the intricacies of the Japanese distribution system and a willingness by U.S. sales executives to learn Japanese language and culture and to do business on Japanese terms, just as the Japanese do business in this country on our terms.

This is not an argument for allowing Japanese industry and agriculture to hide from foreign competition behind a wall of tariffs and import restrictions. These must be removed if bilateral trade is to be pursued on even terms. But even the failure of the United States to breakdown such barriers during years of negotiations may reflect inadequate negotiating techniques as much as Japanese intransigence.

As Donald Kendall, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, noted recently, American negotiators have too often dealt with trade issues piece-meal rather than taking an overall approach. The Reagan administration began to remedy this failing last year by sending a cabinet-level delegation to Japan. And some progress was observed in Tokyo recently, where Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's blue ribbon commission has developed a package of trade concessions, with more to come in March.

Change, when it comes, is likely to be slow in tradition-bound Japan, however. This means the Reagan administration will have to keep up the pressure for concessions, while U.S. business will have to try harder to penetrate Japanese markets.

These efforts will pay far better dividends than would erecting retaliatory tariffs that would surely dry up international trade and deepen world recession.

BERRY'S WORLD

The Sanford-Seminole Jaycees have invited State Rep. Lee Moffitt, D-Tampa, and chairman of the House Reapportionment Committee, to come to Seminole County to explain redistricting plans for the county. The letter of invitation signed by George W. Currie, president of the Jaycees chapter, said, "We can accommodate you at the Holiday Inn and your explanation can be given at the Sanford Civic Center to Sanford and all of Seminole County."

Currie noted that Air-Florida flies into Orlando daily. "Please let us know and we will meet you at Orlando International and welcome you to Seminole County," Currie's letter said.

A bill dedicated to the memory of young Adam Walsh, murdered in Hollywood, Fla., seven months ago has been introduced in the state House and Senate.

The bills would create a statewide committee to investigate the increasing incidence of the disappearance of children and subsequent crimes against them, and the response of law enforcement agencies to their disappearance.

Committee members are to include: the Attorney General, the commissioner of the Department of Law Enforcement, the president of the Florida Sheriff's Association, an expert in the field of criminology and a lay person who has had the experience of having a missing child, and one member from each the House and Senate.

The proposed law was introduced in the House by Rep. Everett Kelly, D-Tavares, and in the Senate by Sen. Kenneth C. Jenne, D-Hollywood.

The Lake Mary Charter Revision Committee will be meeting at 7:30 p.m., at City Hall on the first and third Tuesdays of each month, the committee decided.

The meetings will be held to two hours in length each. Since the committee has eight members, five will be considered a quorum and the same number will be considered a majority in voting on all matters.

The committee stated its objective of examining and recommending any revisions article by article.

The committee's next meeting is Feb. 16 and it expects to have revisions completed for presentation to the City Council sometime during the summer.

The charter committee is composed of: Burt Perinchief, former councilman, chairman; Mayor Walter Sorenson, Councilman Gene McDonald, former Councilmen Harry Terry and Pat Southward, Ric Stanley and Al Wichman, members of city boards, and A.W. Troelstrup of The Forest.

Not Much Choice For World

Almost everywhere in the world, the root problem is that expectations exceed resources.

In times past few countries expected to enjoy prosperity, let alone riches. Nowadays, the poor countries of the world expect to have a high living standard—a standard as high or almost as high as that enjoyed by the United States. Americans, themselves, have come to imagine that they have a virtual right to boom times.

These expectations are bound to be crushed in the remaining years of this century. The prosperity that much of the world enjoyed in the 1960s and early 1970s—before the oil shock—was an extraordinary condition, a temporary thing.

The impact of superhigh oil prices, of course, has had a devastating effect on many countries. The United States is fortunate in that it has oil, gas and coal in great abundance. Western Europe, however, is without adequate energy resources. The imports of oil and gas have extracted billions from the European economies and slowed their growth. The anti-nuclear movement is in process of stripping Western Europe of the alternative energy source that it desperately needs.

It is worthwhile noting, in an historical context, that Europe is paying for the loss of colonial empires and protectorates. Prior to the 1960s, Britain, France, Belgium and Portugal had ready access to energy and minerals from their overseas territories.

The ease of borrowing from the World Bank and other international financial institutions, plus an abundance of foreign aid from the United States, has led many nations to believe that there is a permanent Santa Claus. Foreign countries, like millions of Americans, are living on borrowed money. The funds continue to be pumped out. India has just received a $6 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund—over objections of the Reagan administration.

The West European countries, notably West Germany, have loaned vast sums to the Soviet Bloc. These loans make it difficult for Western Europe to stand up to the Soviets. The West is faced with bad debts on a colossal scale, as in the case of Poland.

Where trade is concerned, both the United States and the West European countries are the targets of Japanese economic offensives, and are suffering as a result. Japan stands apart from other nations as a huge economic success. This success, however, is achieved by a uniquely monolithic, disciplined society. Moreover, it is only a matter of time before other nations will call a halt to the Japanese economic incursions.

The mounting economic difficulty in all parts of the world signals a global recession. It's more than that, however; it is a sign that much of the world attempted to climb too high too fast. Expectations have to be reduced. But, it's as hard for a nation to reduce its expectations as it is for a family to reconcile itself to lower income. Still, the world today has no other choice.

Marie Weinberg's Own Story Told

WASHINGTON—The ABSCAM story has taken a bizarre twist.

An inquest will be ordered into the violent death of Marie Weinberg, wife of the FBI's hired con man. Meanwhile, I have obtained a dramatic 18-page narrative, which she wrote in her own hand the day before she died.

This deathbed document implicates the FBI's ABSCAM team in an alleged criminal cover-up. She decided to blow the whistle, she wrote, after discovering Mel Weinberg's secret diary. In terse prose, she related: "Nov. 1, looking for passport—find black book—read book—sick."

She telephone a confidant to report the discovery. According to her account, he warned her: "Marie, don't do anything rash. They will kill for it."

Nevertheless, she began calling the FBI agents who had worked with her husband on the ABSCAM caper. She had come to regard them as personal friends. They responded with varying degrees of alarm. She quoted agent Bruce Brady, for example, as pleading: "Do me a favor, Marie. Can you keep me out of it?"

Next she "looked up Jack Anderson clipping," she reported. "Hit me like a ton of

JEFFREY HART

Serious About Defense

It sometimes seems almost impossible to get informed discussion going on military matters in this country.

People assume the issues are too complex, and therefore best left to experts.

Even in Congress we get for the most part a kind of mindless debate about how many billions to spend. The liberals automatically want to spend less, the conservatives more.

Questions of what and why are seldom addressed.

If anything can change this intellectually dreary and even dangerous state of affairs, it is Tom Etzold and his new book, "Defense or Delusion? America's Military in the 1980s" (Harper and Row).

Etzold is a very impressive young man out of Indiana and Yale, where he taught and earned a Ph. D. in diplomatic history, and he is now director of the Strategic Research Center for Naval Warfare at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I.

I find intellectually exciting the qualities of mind being brought to military issues by the new generation of strategists. These young people really think.

Tom Etzold is an outstanding representative of the new breed. He writes with scholarly thoroughness but unscholarly lucidity. He calls for a measured renewal of our forces, which have serious weaknesses, and he has a number of practical suggestions to make.

First and foremost, he believes that we need more people willing to make a career in the military.

It has become so expensive to train middle-level personnel that the present high turnover rate is expensive and destructive. His recommendations in this regard he summarizes as "pay, pride, and opportunity." Military careers are a first-class outfit, an opportunity to better themselves, and they don't expect their family to be on food stamps.

Etzold doesn't think we need the draft now, since it would not meet our most critical requirement. The draft produces large numbers of men at the lower levels; what we need are professional military personnel at the middle level.

Etzold is well aware of the marvels of modern weaponry, but he also thinks that we have succumbed to over-complexity. Our F-15 fighter, believed to be the best in the world, averages 40 percent of its time on the ground for repairs. The new M-1 tank, which costs $2.7 million apiece, averages less than 100 miles before mechanical breakdown. As a leading Soviet general once put it, the best can be the enemy of the good enough.

Yet Etzold's recommendations are level-headed.

We are going ahead with the M-1 tank. Given the difficulty of transporting it, the likelihood is that it will be deployed in Europe and stay there. It follows that the Army needs another and more transportable tank for possible use elsewhere.

He believes that there is a good case for a new manned bomber; that the MX missile is "flawed in concept," and that we should wait while on that one for the situation to clarify; that a ground-based anti-ballistic missile probably will not be adequate and that the future of missile defense lies in space and lasers.

No doubt there are arguments in all such issues, but Etzold makes a very informed case for his conclusions.

His book stresses the principle of "no more illusions." For example, he writes: "In more than five years of experience as an umpire and adviser in high-level Naval war games, I have witnessed the unwillingness of senior Naval officers to permit carriers to be sunk, even when taken under overwhelming attack... The carriers' sacrosanct role in modern Naval thought prevents in many, if not all cases, the realistic assessment of possible results of combat even in the Navy's own internal games and analysis."

That kind of thinking is a sure prescription for disaster.

DON GRAFF Wrong On The Rights

To absolutely no one's surprise, President Reagan has given the government in El Salvador a passing grade in human rights.

He did so under terms of the aid program approved by Congress last December, which requires him to evaluate periodically the military-dominated junta's performance. Should he at any point flunk the generals, $25 million worth of military aid and $40 million in economic assistance would be cut off.

The Washington Post, which has not had many favorable words for this president's performance, is on his side for a change. It believes he did the "right and necessary thing" and criticizes Congress for forcing him to jump a hurdle in doing so.

As the Post sees it in a curious, reasoned editorial for that liberal thunderer, the United States under two presidents has had no choice in El Salvador but to adopt a "grit-your-teeth policy."

"For people who can't take the junta, the honest response is not to say the junta is—surprise—beset and flawed, but rather to make the case that it's acceptable to the United States if El Salvador goes the Cuban way."

The Post is wrong. The reasons are to be found on its own news pages in the dispatches of its own correspondents on the scene.

From Mozote, near the Honduran border, they report the aftermath of a Salvadoran army operation in December. The targets were guerrillas but the victims were several hundred civilians. According to survivors, troops arrived in helicopters, herded men, women and children into the church square and massacred them.

Entering Mozote a month later, Alma Guillermoprieto reports, "the overwhelming initial impression was of the sickly, sweet smell of decomposing bodies."

From authorities in San Salvador, there has come a denial of military responsibility and an attempt to finger the guerrillas. Whatever weapons the latter may be receiving from their Cuban friends, not even the U.S. State Department is yet saying helicopters are included.

So much for human rights, Salvadoran style.

Meanwhile, Christopher Dickey details in a front-page report the guerrilla attack on Ilopango air base that destroyed a good part of the Salvadoran Air Force, included five of 14 American helicopters on loan. It was a totally surprise assault that recalls guerrilla tactics during the Vietnam War.

It's not the only such echo. In San Salvador, the junta and the American Embassy continue to score paper advances against the guerrillas and to claim that the country is effectively under government control.

But outside the capital, on the first-hand testimony of Post and other reporters who have visited the areas, the guerrillas are in command of large regions and their military capabilities are obviously growing, to the point that they can mount a successful attack on a key military installation on the outskirts of the capital itself.

Meanwhile, the Salvadoran military directs its fire primarily at civilians, driving what may originally have been an apolitical population increasingly into the ranks of the rebels.

"John Good called: 'If I sent two agents down to Florida, will you talk to them?'"

Marie: "No."

"John Good called: 'Marie, remember (agent) Kenny Zucker? I said no. John: 'He's a great guy. He's in West Palm Beach now. How about me sending him over? You can talk to him.' I said 'No.'"

"John calls back: 'Marie, suppose I come down next week—Monday 1-11-82. I have to get clearance from Washington.' Marie: 'Sure, John.'"

"John Good called from Sheraton Hotel, Singer Island, Fla., 843-6171, Room 502. I had temperature—sick—hypoglycemia—told John I couldn't see him."

Meanwhile, Marie learned from her son and a neighbor that FBI agents had been prowling around their condominium. She related: "J.R. said right after I left cars were riding around condo—strange men—saw neighbor next morning—agents all over—watching place."

Marie Weinberg's life ended on Jan. 28. Shortly after her body was discovered, police reported, Mel Weinberg ransacked the apartment. He seemed to be looking for something.

bricks... Now I understand." Then she picked up the telephone, called my office and spoke to my associate Indy Badwar.

She said that her husband had committed perjury, that he had made off with some of the ABSCAM bribe money and that he had extorted valuable gifts from the ABSCAM defendants.

There were more telephone interviews; Badwar also flew to Florida twice to question her in person. For the next three months, I investigated her story. Not all the details could be checked, but I was able to confirm many of her charges.

This led inevitably to a confrontation with her husband. "I'm standing in kitchen," she wrote. "Mel sits at counter—very nervous and looks petrified." She gave this account of their conversation:

Mel: "Where's the book?"

Marie: "What book?"

Mel: "You know what I'm talking about."

Marie: "No, you tell me."

Mel: "You were talking to Jack Anderson."

Marie: "No, I didn't speak to Jack Anderson." She adds in parentheses "(I spoke to Indy)."

Mel: "They have you on tape. What did you tell him?"

Marie: "Nothing."

Mel (very frustrated): "There'll be a congressional hearing. They'll make mincemeat out of you. You can't take the pressure."

Marie: "I can't be hurt any more... All I have is the truth."

Mel: "I want to know your source of information."

Marie: "I'll give you my source—you!"

Mel: "Let me tell you something. If you talk to anyone, they'll find out about your past—your attempted suicide. They'll make you out a crazy lady. They'll take J.R. (their son) away from you. And I can get guys to say you were sleeping around. You'll be an unfit mother. They'll take J.R. away." Marie added: "The blinders came off. I saw Mel as he really was. I am scared."

Then Mel repeated: "Now where's the book?"

Marie: "I burned it."

The FBI's chief ABSCAM agent, John Good, picked up where Mel Weinberg left off. He was one of the agents Marie accused of covering up her husband's crimes. According to her handwritten statement, Good called her frequently and urged her to cooperate with him. Here are some excerpts:

IN BRIEF

Mayor Defends Crown In 5th Annual Seminole Shoot

Sanford Mayor Lee Moore will be out to defend his hard earned title Tuesday night when he and a host of other local celebrities once again hit the court for the 5th Annual Seminole Shootout.

Moore will test his skills in a best-of-10 free throw shooting display Tuesday night at Seminole High during halftime activities of the Fighting Seminole-Spruce Creek Five Star Conference basketball battle.

Other local celebrities expected to be on hand in efforts to wrestle the crown away from Moore include Sanford Chief of Police Ben Butler, Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, Seminole County Superintendent of Schools Bob Hughes, Lakeview Middle School principal Ted Barker and Sanford Middle School principal Dan Pelham.

Tribe, Rams Tennis Tuesday

Coach Donald Knight's tennis teams swing into action Tuesday at 3 when they entertain Trinity Prep at the Bayhead Racquet Club.

Action begins at 3 p.m.

Elsewhere in the county, coach Beth Whigham's Lake Mary Rams have their home opener against Mike Hargis' Lake Howell squad. That match begins at 3 p.m. also.

Lakeview Topples Sanford

The Lakeview Mustangs of coach Charlie Steele made it 11 straight over the weekend in Seminole Youth Sports Association basketball action.

Lakeview got a hot second half from Chris Jackson and Robert Hill to overcome neighboring Sanford 41-41 by a 78-54 margin.

Sanford had edged out to a 27-26 halftime lead. But the Mustangs, slowed by foul trouble in the first half came alive behind Jackson and Hill. The pair combined for 35 second half points to break the game open for Lakeview.

Hill chalked up 19 of his game high 23 points in the third and fourth quarters and snatched 17 rebounds while Jackson, held in check the first half and slowed by three first-period personal fouls, tossed in 15 of his 18 points in the second half.

"They really gave us a game," said Steele. "But we made some free throws down the stretch and played well with several of our guys in foul trouble the whole game."

Lakeview connected on 18-21 free throw attempts while Sanford was unable to keep the game in range by missing opportunities at the foul line.

Sanford Middle got a strong balance in the scoring column.

Michael Wright paced Sanford with 12 while teammates Alvin Jones and Jerry Parker tosses in 11 points each.

Lakeview goes after its 12th win of the season Saturday when the Mustangs square off against Hock Lake at Lake Mary High School in a 3:30 p.m. tilt.

SUNDAY SOCCER

Sanford Soccer Club goalie Chuck Roll awaits a shot. Both Sanford clubs lost at Red Bug Park in the Regional Championships. Coach Wayne Albert's team lost 8-2 as Chris Ray had both goals. Coach Suzy Reno's team dropped a 4-1 decision as Steve Sapp had the lone goal. Both squads lost to Seminole Soccer Club entries.

Allison Battles Through Pack For Busch Clash Checkered Flag

Bobby Allison won the big event of the day at Daytona International Speedway as the fans were treated to an exciting triple header of action. Allison fought his way to the front of the pack on the fifth lap of the Busch Clash. Luck of the draw had him starting 12th in the 13 car field.

The race started out with Terry Labonte and Ricky Rudd battling it out for the lead with Rudd managing to take and hold it for three laps. Neil Bonnett then took over command of the race for one lap in the Wood Brothers Ford.

Allison in his first race for a new team to him put the Gatorade Buick out front to stay. In the race open only to winners of a pole position in 1981 Allison ran the 50 miles in 15 minutes and 39 seconds at an average speed of 191.693 miles per hour. For his effort Allison earned $50,000 or as he said $1,000 a mile.

The day started out with qualifying for the 24th Annual Daytona 500 with Benny Parsons setting a new track record for Winston Cup cars. His 196.317 mph broke Buddy Baker's 1980 mark of 196.049. Richard Petty surprised everybody with a speed of 195.469 as he usually does not go after the pole position.

Petty said "to tell you the truth, we didn't know how fast we could run. Since we've been down here, we really haven't tried to run that fast. We got close for a change. We were pole hunting. It has gotten feasible to run hard on qualifying day with the money Busch is putting up."

Harry Gant will set on the outside pole as he put the Skool Bandit Buick around the track at a 195.609 speed. Both Parsons and Gant will be guaranteed their spots in the 500 with the rest of the field being decided in the twin 125 mile races on Thursday.

The ARCA 200 was won by Joe Ruttman as he held off early leader Billy Harvey. The race started off with Harvey and Ruttman hooking up with a draft and walking away from the rest of the field. On lap 13 Bob Dotter was forced into the first turn wall bringing out the first caution. On the 26th lap Dennis Crowder and Delmar Clark crashed at the entrance of the trioval.

Due to the cautions the three cars of Harvey, Ruttman and Davey Allison, son of Bobby Allison, stayed close and made it an exciting race for the first 50 laps. Davey Allison was the first to drop out as he lost a motor in his Matador. Harvey then lost a cylinder on his motor and dropped back leaving Ruttman all by himself for the victory.

Sweetheart Charity Ball Set Saturday

Valentine Girls Honored At Tea

By LOU CHILDERS
Herald Correspondent
Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Girls were honored at a tea hosted by the Xi Beta Eta Chapter at the home of Eve Rogero.

The hostesses, Marty Colegrove, Marion Farella, Eve Rogero and Charlotte Blades, served finger sandwiches, assorted pastries, petits fours and mints, and poured tea and coffee from a table decorated in traditional Valentine reds and whites.

The centerpiece, a floral arrangement of red and white carnations and white pompon mums, added a "sweetheart touch" to the candle lit tea.

Following the tea, the Valentine Girls, candidates for Queen of this year's Charity Ball to be held Feb. 13 at the Knights of Columbus hall, were individually presented to the Orlando Area Council Officers, who served as judges. They include: Lisa Stratton, president; Doris Tomlinson, vice president; Pat Duffield, secretary; Lynn Bucklen, corresponding secretary; and Louise Baker, treasurer.

Their secret ballot decision will become known at the ball when Tom Hunt, Southern Bell representative and member of the Board of Ronald McDonald House, emcees the gala event.

Doc Should Win 'Best Smeller' By A Nose

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you had a letter from someone who smelled bad and had gone in vain from doctor to doctor in order to determine the cause of the mysterious odor. The following is a true anecdote that I used on my CBS radio program, "Speaking of Health":

Dr. Marion Sulzberger, a San Francisco dermatologist who has been world-famous for over 50 years, tells a story that dates back to his early medical practice in New York City. A once-prosperous tailor came to Dr. Sulzberger desperately seeking help. It seems the man's wife — and most of his loyal customers — had left him because he suddenly started to smell so bad! He had gone to doctor after doctor who agreed he smelled terrible, but no one could tell him why.

Dr. Sulzberger used his head, followed his nose and started to sniff out the reason — literally. First he smelled the poor man's head, and it smelled OK. Then he smelled his face, his chest, his legs — all smelled all right. When he got to the patient's hand, he discovered the culprit!

It seems the man was wearing an intricately carved ring whose nooks and crannies contained a foul-smelling gunk, most probably a malodorous mixture of bacteria and fungi. The doctor removed the ring, instantly freeing the patient from his offensive affliction.

As in any happy ending, the tailor's wife returned and so did his flourishing business. Oh, yes, the grateful patient insisted that Dr. Sulzberger keep the ring.

DR. STEVEN ANDREW DAVIS, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

DEAR DR. DAVIS: Belated congratulations to Dr. Sulzberger, a distinguished best smeller.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about that 15-year-old girl signed "Brokenhearted Four Times." She wants to stay a virgin until she's married, but says it's not easy because guys don't want nice girls anymore.

Dear Abby

I totally agree with you, Abby, when you say it's not true, but maybe she'll believe it if she hears it from a boy.

I'm 19-year-old guy. I'm not a virgin myself, but I never mess with nice girls. When I get married I hope to get someone like her.

A. IN W. VA.

DEAR A.: Just because a girl is not a virgin doesn't necessarily mean she's not "nice." You say you never mess with "nice" girls. Well, every girl was a virgin until some guy came along and changed her no to yes. If a guy wants a virgin for a wife, he himself should remain one.

DEAR ABBY: Now that you've scared almost every mother in the world against feeding her children peanut butter, I think a little more should be said on the subject.

Many years ago I read the same warning in Prevention magazine. It stated that peanut butter, when eaten alone, could collect in the throat, obstruct the air passages and cause choking. But when it's combined with jelly and eaten with crackers or bread, it's easy to swallow and causes no problems.

I hope you think this explanation is important enough to print.

PEANUT BUTTER MUTTER

DEAR MUTTER: It is. I'll spread it around.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: P.O. Box 32323, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jewish Community Officers

The Sanford Jewish Community held its annual meeting at the home of Zelda and Melvin Siakind on Jan. 25.

Officers elected to serve this year are: president, Zelda Siakind; vice president, Sara Epstein; secretary, Esther Cohen; and treasurer, Joe Oritt.

The following committee chairmen were appointed by the president for 1982: Sunshine, Rose Zuckerman; Social, Doris Stein; Charity, Melvin Siakind; Membership, Stella and Joe Oritt and Lewis Cohen.

Following the meeting, coffee and dessert were served to 18 members and one guest who attended the meeting.

Area artists will be exhibiting their work at the annual Membership Show of the Sanford-Seminole Art Association.

The exhibition is open to the viewing public Sunday from 1-5 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

The tea reception will be hosted by past presidents of the art association from 2:30-4:30 p.m.

Spectators and artists attending the Sunday afternoon tea will be invited to cast their vote for their favorite work.

The exhibition will close with a raffle of art work donated by the membership and an announcement of the prize winners in the adult and junior divisions.

The Sanford-Seminole Art Association extends an invitation to the public to spend a Sunday afternoon surrounded by art.

THE REV. AND MRS. HORACE WALSH

Aimee Miller, H.E. Walsh Repeat Vows

Horace E. Walsh, pastor of the Forest Lake Seventh-day Adventist Church, and Aimee H. Miller were married on Jan. 19. The wedding service was performed at the pastor's home in Altamonte Springs with Ron Rodgers, associate pastor of the Forest Lake Church, conducting the service.

Others attending were: Art and Pearl Perez, Pastor Ray West, Forest Lake minister of evangelism, Mrs. Eileen West, Mrs. Denise Rodgers, Mr. Mark Gillis, and the pastor's, son and daughter, Bryan and Bronwyn Walsh.

The reception given by the Forest Lake Church on the following Saturday evening, was attended by some 700 people in the church youth center.

The following out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hahn, parents of the bride from Tunkhannock, Pa., Alice and David Ayers from Mount Dora, Robert and Faye Murrell and Victoria Horvath from Miami, and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Pommer from Holly Hill.

Entertainment was provided by Bill and Pat Kirstein, who sang "At Dawning" and Phyllis Marie Hoebeck who selected tunes from the "Sound of Music" and "Around the World in 80 Days". Eileen West played the wedding music and the accompaniments on the piano. Jack Gillis, first elder of the Forest Lake Church, was the master of ceremonies.

Hosting the reception were the church staff and the Social Committee Sue Regal, Dorothy Closser and Katie Reilly. Joree Neilson and her deaconesses prepared and served the attractive buffet.

Pastor Walsh was born in Hawley, Pa. After graduation from Columbia Union College he began his ministry in Salisbury, Md. From 1951 to 1964 he served as a United States Army chaplain in Germany. During most of this tour he served in the Fourth Infantry Division. He was chief chaplain and Bible instructor at the Loma Linda University Medical Center in Loma Linda, Ca., and later pastor of the Rochester, N.Y. SDA Church. He was pastor of the Miami Temple SDA Church from 1972 until coming to the Forest Lake Pastorate in August of 1979.

Aimee Hahn Walsh was also born in Pennsylvania. She worked in hospitals in NE Pennsylvania in nursing, laboratory and X-ray. She pursued a career as an X-ray technologist followed by working as reservations agent for the Northwest Orient Airlines in Chicago, and later flew as a hostess with Allegheny Airlines. She is presently employed as an X-ray technologist at West Orange Memorial Hospital, Winter Garden.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDESOL
For Tuesday, February 9, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
February 9, 1982
You could experience a number of changes in your lifestyle this coming year. All of them should work out rather well, even those brought about by conditions you don't control.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Joint ventures hold promise today, especially if you are in harness with someone who is enterprising, and also not afraid to think big. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The aspects look encouraging for you today where legalities are concerned. This could be a lucky day to sign agreements, provided you are directed by wise counsel.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rewards for good work are apt to be more substantial than usual today. Do your very best, even though you may feel no one is checking or cares.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be asked to take charge of something today a companion or associate feels is too complex to manage. The project won't intimidate you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to wrap up things of major importance which you've left hanging. If you feel you're lucky where end results are concerned, you're right.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with others today look for their virtues, not their faults. They, in turn, will act accordingly with you. Each will experience happy discoveries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Material opportunity hovers about you today, but you'll have to make an effort to probe for it. A very promising area could be close family contacts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An optimistic attitude will do wonders for you today, even in areas where you may have recently faltered. Go in thinking you'll win, and you will.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be quite fortunate today in involvements with persons to whom you feel strong emotional ties. Follow suggestions they initiate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's to your advantage today to participate in group activities. Someone with whom you may rub shoulders could prove exceptionally lucky for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) A caring friend may be instrumental in helping you accomplish something today which you might not be able to achieve on your own. Keep secret what transpires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) Friends put considerable credence in your opinions and views today. Let them know what you think, but be sure your thoughts are worthy of emulation.

Gallstone Cure: Surgery Or Drugs

Dr. Lamb
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am recovering from an attack of gallbladder colic. I had severe pain just below my right rib margin and into my back. I was also sick at my stomach and thought I was going to vomit several times. My doctor took X-rays and found that I have gallstones. He says I have a sack full of small ones and should have my gallbladder removed.

I have heard there is a medicine that will dissolve gallstones. Will that work for me? If I have my gallbladder removed, how will that affect me? It must have some purpose or we wouldn't have one. Will I get liver damage if I don't have my gallbladder removed?

DEAR READER — Yes, there is a medicine that dissolves some gallstones. It has been undergoing studies for several years. It appears to be useful in about 25 percent of patients with gallstones. Your gallbladder must work well enough to concentrate the chemical in the medicine inside the gallbladder before the medicine can dissolve the stones. It is a slow procedure and may take two years. While you are taking the medicine and still have stones you might have more gallbladder attacks. Discuss it with your doctor.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was given shots of penicillin for V.D. Later I found out I did not have it. Then a few years later it turned out that I have lymphoma. Could the lymphoma have been caused by the penicillin shots?

DEAR READER — Absolutely not. If you were treated for syphilis because you have a positive blood test (VDRL) it is possible that your lymphoma caused the abnormal blood test.

The standard screening test for syphilis may be positive in people who do not have syphilis. Other diseases seem to cause the reaction. This includes malaria, lupus erythematosus and rheumatoid arthritis. It may also be caused by pneumonia.

The chances of having such a false positive test for syphilis increases with age. You'll be surprised to know that 10 percent of people more than 70 years of age have false positive tests. Any positive VDRL test for syphilis should be investigated with other, more sensitive, tests before making a final diagnosis.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Alan: "In bridge articles we usually show the declarer at work because it is easier for our readers to watch him operate. It is also easier to be a good declarer than to be a good defender since declarer plays with 26 cards, each defender with only 13."

Oswald: "North's raise to six notrump is conservative. With 19 HCP's he might well have tried to get to seven, but his 4-3-3-3 distribution held him back."

Alan: "When South looked over dummy he saw that if clubs broke he would still need to get two heart tricks to make six. He won the first club, led a second and then saw that only a miracle could bring the slam home. He needed three heart tricks."

Oswald: "South cashed the last top club and since East had chucked a diamond and a spade, he ran those suits also. Then he threw West in with the fourth club and West had to lead a heart. He led the four."

Alan: "This put it right up to East to save the slam. The 10 was played from dummy. If East played the jack, South would take his queen and have a winning finesse against West's king. But 'Defense' came through. East played a low heart and the slam was doomed."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "When the crowd at a football game yells 'Defense, defense!' it recognizes the fact that while the offense gets most of the credit, the defense is just as essential."
