Chilean President Wounded, State Of Siege Imposed

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Augusto Pinochet suffered a hand wound in an assassination attempt by suspected leftist rebels who fired rockets, grenades and machine guns at his motorcade. A nationwide state of siege was in effect today.

Gen. Pinochet, 70, appeared on television Sunday night with a bandaged hand injured by a piece of grenade shrapnel in the attack by a suspected leftist commando squad that killed five security guards and wounded nine.

His military government imposed a nationwide state of siege immediately after the assassination attempt.

"We are fighting a war between Marxism and democracy," Pinochet said, criticizing his political opponents who are seeking a return to democracy. "It's chaos or democracy. They will have to decide what they want."

Pinochet was returning with a grandson from his weekend retreat in the Andes when his motorcade when was ambushed 30 miles south of Santiago. Authorities said his car was hit by more than a dozen bullets that failed to pierce the bullet-proof windows.

"There was very intense gunfire," the army general said of the attack, in which authorities said two cars blocked his Mercedes Benz. "My first reaction was to get out of the car, but I was traveling with my grandson aged 10 and I covered him with my body."

According to authorities, a commando squad of at least 12 suspected leftists opened fire on the motorcade with automatic weapons, rocket launchers and hand grenades as it crossed a bridge on the way to Santiago at 6:40 p.m.

Three of the motorcade's cars were overturned by explosions, including one that plunged into the dry river bed below — killing its two

Suspect Sought In Sanford Man's Shooting Death

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

A 24-year-old Sanford man was shot to death at about 9:30 p.m. Sunday and today Seminole County sheriff's deputies were searching for a man named as the gunman.

Sheriff's Lt. George Hagood would not identify the suspect early today, but said that an autopsy was scheduled today on victim Floyd Byrd, of 2370 Granby Ave.

Seminole County sheriff's deputy Neal Fowler reported that he was called to the Deluxe Bar at 1905 Southwest Road near Sanford shortly after the shooting, which Hagood said apparently occurred in a dispute over a Sanford woman Byrd was dating.

Fowler reported that a group of people outside the bar told him Byrd's body was outside, behind the establishment.

Fowler found the body lying prone in a field at behind the southwest corner of the bar. He noted that there was an apparent gunshot wound in Byrd's forehead above his left eye.

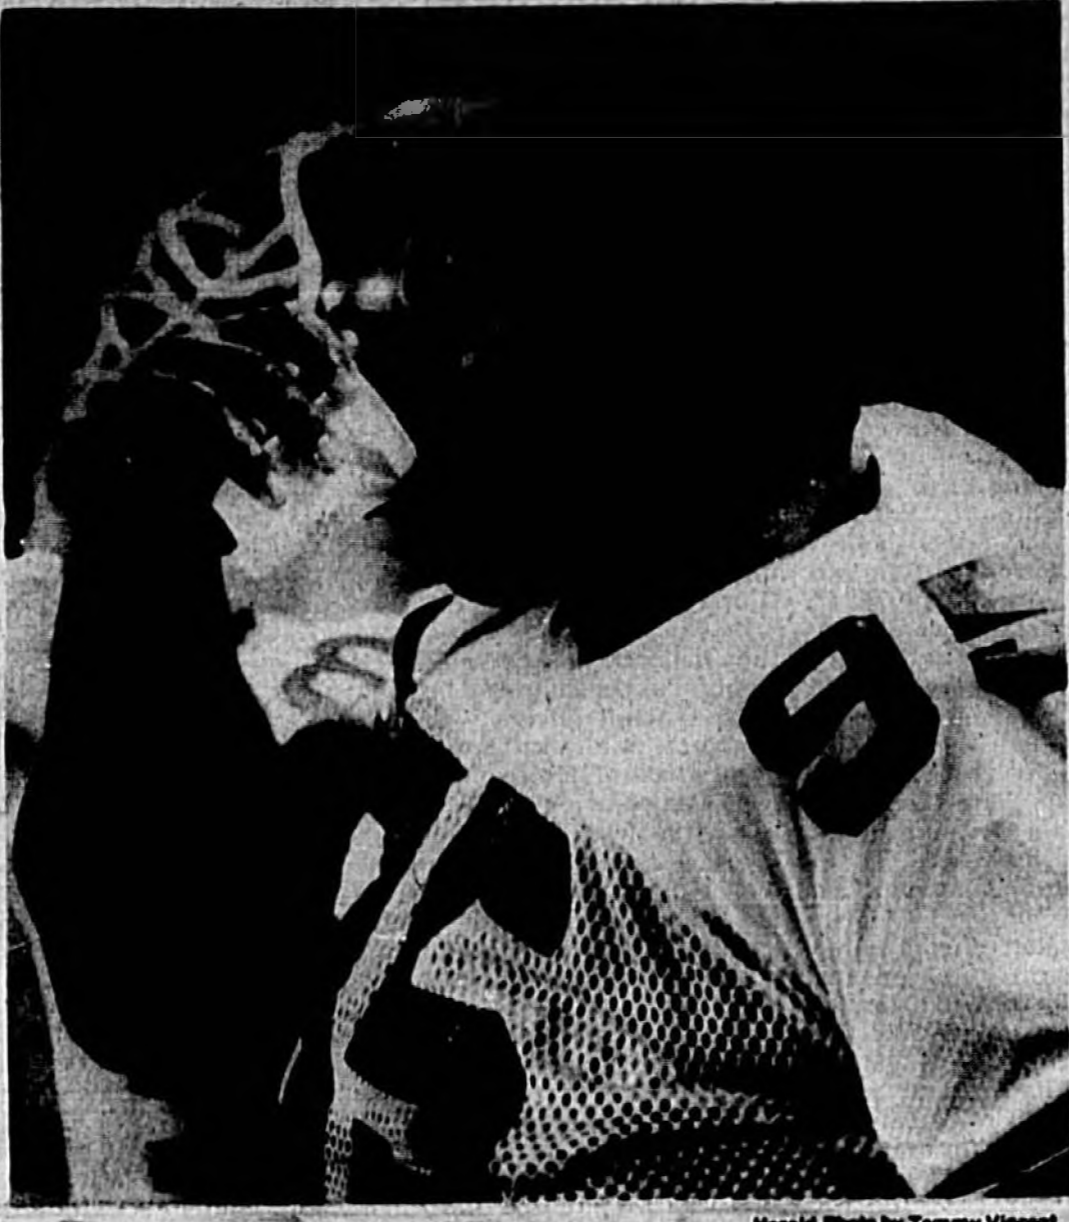

A Seminole County Fire Department medic told Fowler that Byrd was dead, Fowler's report said.

Although there were about 200 people at the scene, Hagood said, information provided to investigators was sketchy. The suspect, before he fled, also allegedly fired three shots at another man, but missed, Hagood said.

A small caliber handgun was apparently used in the killing and it is missing along with the suspect, he said.

The owner of the Deluxe Bar, Orscoola Morgan, said today the victim and suspect were not inside her bar before the shooting on Sunday. She said she has been told that a dispute started between the victim and the County To Consider Land Use Changes

Heathrow, Flea World Among Applicants

By Paul C. Schaefer Herald Staff Writer

Heathrow Land and Development Company's request for a change in land use designation for 485 acres of land it wants to develop into a site for 390 homes is among more than 50 requested changes to the county's Comprehensive Plan scheduled to be considered by the Seminole County commissioners today and Tuesday.

Both the county land management staff and the Planning and Zoning Board, during August public hearings, recommended denial of Heathrow's request for the land use change. Heathrow wants a general rural designation changed to Planned Unit Development.

Hearings before the county commission, at the County Services Building, 1101 E. First Street, Sanford, will start at 6 p.m. both days.

The county's Comprehensive Plan designates land uses, and is designed to be Seminole's blueprint for growth.

Besides Heathrow's request for a comprehensive plan amendment, the commission will consider 43 others today. A group of 17 Maitland Avenue property owners are requesting land use changes from single family dwelling district to medium density residential designation. The request has been recommended for approval by the P&Z board. The change to medium density residential designation will allow for future zoning change requests to office usage on the avenue, in south Seminole County near Maitland and Altamonte Springs.

Among Tuesday's hearings is Flea

World's request for a Comprehensive Plan change from general rural to commercial planned unit development, to allow for expansion at the 103-acre site, off U.S. Highway 17-82. The P&Z board recommended approval of the change, which was unopposed by county officials and area residents at a P&Z public hearing in August.

Heathrow's request was opposed by not only the county staff and P&Z board, but area residents and environmentalists as well.

Area homeowners complained bitterly against Heathrow's proposed expansion, a finger like projection west of the main 1,200 acre Heathrow project from Markham Woods Rd. to near the Wekiva River. They said Heathrow's plans to build 260 of the 390 homes on half-acre lots, is out of character with the neighboring communities, where homes are built on lots one-acre or larger.

An environmentalist group, Friends of the Wekiva, expressed concerns over potential impacts on the Wekiva River and area wetlands.

Heathrow representatives said the proposed project would be not impact the area, and said the 390 homes would be extremely attractive.

The Maitland Avenue residents want the land use change to medium density residential use, because that designation opens the possibility of future zoning change requests to allow their homes to be converted to offices.

The homeowners said in August P&Z hearings that 20,000 cars pass their homes daily, and the property values as

Sanford Woman May Reject Plea Bargain; Be Put On Trial For First Degree Murder

By Deane Jordan Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford woman indicted on a charge of first-degree murder is expected to reject a plea bargain offer that could net her at least 12 years in prison and take her chances with a jury which could free her — or pave the way for a life sentence.

Linda Freney, 31, of 103 Seminole Gardens, will probably go to trial in connection with the April 20 shooting death of her long-term boyfriend Lester Cooper, 48, of the same address.

Ms. Freney has until Oct. 12 to accept the state's offer of 12 to 17 years if she pleads guilty to second-degree murder. If the case goes to trial, the state will not seek the death penalty, according to Assistant State Attorney Steven Plotnick. Trial is tentatively set for Oct. 29 through 31.

"There's no way she'll plead to twelve," said her attorney, Thomas Greene, of Sanford. He said he thinks the case was not one that should have gone before a grand jury. He was apparently hoping at Thursday's plea conference for a manslaughter deal with could have resulted in no jail time for his client.

Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler said he could not accept such a bargain between Greene and Plotnick.

"I don't see how I could ever get down to no prison time," said Leffler.

According to court records, Ms. Freney, free on $10,000 bond, is accused of shooting Cooper in the head. At the time they had lived together for 10 years.

Police arrived at Ms. Freney's home around 12:40 a.m. and found Cooper with a gunshot wound to his left cheek. He had been shot with a .22-caliber automatic handgun.

Cooper, who was charged in 1985 with battering Ms. Freney, was pronounced dead at the scene at about 1 a.m.

After the shooting, the woman reportedly tried to cradle or aid Cooper and then became incoherent.

According to police, the shooting may have been the culmination of a fight the couple had started earlier. The gun, with one spent shell, was found on a kitchen table in the apartment. Cartridges for the gun were found in her purse. The body was in the bathroom doorway.

According to court records, in February 1985, Cooper was arrested on a charge of battery after he grabbed and shoved Ms. Freney while in the presence of officers.

That incident occurred at her home as well.

Cops Crash Coop, Capture Impersonators

MIAMI (UPI) -- A band of police impersonators led real officers on a wild foot chase that sent feathers flying when they crashed through the roof of a chicken coop and injured five officers climbing a booby-trapped fence.

By the time it was over Saturday, police had arrested three men and seized nine stolen guns, four sets of handcuffs and a gold Metro-Dade police badge.

Miami and Hialeah police were investigating a series of robberies by men posing as policemen and had staked out a home they believed to be the gang's headquarters.

Two men, Roberto Rodriguez and a man who uses the names Pablo Prieto, Jorge Rasse and Lucio Rios, walked out of the house. Rodriguez was apprehended but Prieto fled. Five officers chased him over chain link fences and walls and through several yards.

When he leaped atop a chicken coop, so did two officers. The roof collapsed and they tumbled among the squawking chickens and ducks.

The suspect then scrambled over a homeowner's wall. The officers followed, and regretted it. The owner had booby-trapped it against intruders by embedding shattered glass and broken bottles in the cement.

The officers cut their hands and arms, and one cut his stomach. None was seriously hurt. The suspect was finally collared, and police searched the house, finding the guns in a false ceiling and strategically placed around the house.

Two hours later, Frank Rodriguez, 21, drove up to the house. He told police he had nothing to hide, accompanied them to police headquarters and posed for a photograph. Several robbery victims picked him out at once in photo lineups, police said.

Frank Rodriguez is charged with robbery. The other two men are charged with burglary and gun violations. Another suspect, Barbaro Reyes, 29, was arrested a week ago. He was wearing jewelry belonging to a victim, and a car involved in several robberies was registered to his wife, police said.

Miami Robbery detective Michael Torres said the suspects are part of a gang that robbed homes and motorists by posing as policemen.

"They were terrorizing the streets of Miami, telling people they were Miami police," Torres said.

In a robbery last month, two men knocked on a door and announced that they were policemen.

"They flashed a gold badge and a big gun," Torres said. A 56-year-old man, answered the door, and was brutally pistol-whipped. He, his wife, a son and three daughters were handcuffed and robbed of $3,000 and two Rolex watches.

"At the beginning the victims would believe they were policemen," Torres said, "but later, while being pistol-whipped, punched and kicked, they would realize these were not policemen."

Soviets Have More Evidence Against Daniloff, Spokesman Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Soviet spokesman said today Moscow authorities have additional evidence that American correspondent Nicholas Daniloff spied on the Soviet Union and that he worked with a deported CIA agent.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gennady Gerasimov, interviewed on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, said the government newspaper Izvestia planned to publish tonight more information on Daniloff's arrest Aug. 30 and formal spy charges announced Sunday.

"This particular thing which happened to him, when he got the envelope with secret documents is just only one part of the story and only a minor part of the story. So, there is other evidence against him," Gerasimov said.

The Soviet Union, ignoring demands from President Reagan for the release of jailed U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff, charged him with espionage and lashed out at Washington today for launching an "anti-Soviet campaign."

Daniloff, 52, a U.S. citizen, is believed to be the first American journalist ever to be indicted in the Soviet Union for spying. He faces a military tribunal. If convicted, the maximum sentence is death.

His wife, Ruth Daniloff, today talked to the KGB chief investigator, who said she would be allowed to visit her husband in prison Tuesday.

Daniloff told his wife that there were maps marked secret in a scaled packet of papers he got from a Soviet acquaintance just before KGB agents took him into custody.

Gerasimov said Izvestia "mentioned somebody by the name of Stambaugh ... who was a CIA agent and ... he had diplomatic immunity and he was sent away from Moscow ... some time ago and they have in this article a clear connection between this man Stambaugh and Mr. Daniloff."

The State Department had no immediate comment.

Mortimer Zuckerman, chairman of U.S. News & World Report, said President Reagan and Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, have certified that Daniloff had no connection with U.S. intelligence "so I can only assume that this is just another piece of fabrication."

Durenberger, appearing on NBC's "Today" program, suggested Daniloff, page 8A

Witnesses Say 2 Attackers Fled Synagogue Assault

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Witnesses of the machine-gun attack on a synagogue that killed 22 worshippers have disputed the government's report that all of the gunmen were killed in a grenade explosion.

Members of Istanbul's Jewish community, meanwhile, decided to hold the funeral for the 22 victims in the Neve Shalom Synagogue where they were killed, if the temple is not in danger of collapsing, a spokesman said Sunday.

The attackers sprayed machine-gun fire and threw grenades Saturday at worshippers as morning prayers were under way in the synagogue, which reopened for the Sabbath prayers after a restoration.

Witnesses and Israeli officials said the gunmen then poured gasoline on their victims and set them ablaze.

The authorities have not said which group they suspect carried out the attack.

Three Arab groups have claimed responsibility for the attack, and Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres vowed that Israel would retaliate, saying, "The Jewish people are determined to strike the murderous hand."

The groups claiming responsibility for the attack were the Lebanon-based fundamentalist Islamic Jihad, the International Fighters Front and the Palestinian Revenge Organization.

Grenade At Wedding Kills 10

CAGAYAN DE ORO, Philippines (UPI) — Moslem rebels seeking recognition from the government exploded a grenade in a church packed with up to 500 people during a wedding mass, leaving 10 dead and 98 wounded, officials said today.

Two of five guerrillas allegedly responsible for the attack Sunday at a Roman Catholic church in the town of Salvador, 500 miles south of Manila, were gunned down by police and militiamen as they tried to escape, the officials said.

A military spokesman said in a telephone interview the attackers were members of Moro Islamic Liberation Front — the MILF, one of three Moslem rebel factions operating in the Mindanao Sulu region.

Col. Raul Aquino, an army spokesman in Lanao del Norte province, said four people died on the spot and six others later died from shrapnel wounds in hospitals.

Aquino said 98 people, some hit by stray bullets in the gunbattle, were being treated in clinics and hospitals.

Soviets Report U.S. Nuketest

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has accused the United States of carrying out a secret underground nuclear test at its Nevada range — the first American nuclear explosion since the Kremlin extended its 13-month-old unilateral test moratorium until January.

About 400 demonstrators waving anti-nuclear placards and chanting in English, "We want peace," marched in front of the U.S. Embassy in downtown Moscow Sunday to protest the test which the Soviet Union said took place Sept 4. The 20-minute protest was peaceful.

An embassy spokesman dismissed the demonstration as "staged."

The explosion, apparently of relatively low yield, was the 19th American nuclear test since the introduction of the Soviet moratorium Aug 6, 1985, Tass said. Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has extended it on at least three occasions and the last time — Aug. 18 — he told a national television address it would be in effect through Jan. 1, 1987.

Peres Accepts Sharon Apology

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres accepted an apology from Trade Minister Ariel Sharon, ending a Cabinet dispute over remarks by Sharon linking the slayings of 21 Jews in Turkey to Israeli policies, officials said today.

Peres accepted a second written apology from Sharon late Sunday and recommended the matter be closed, they said. Peres earlier suspended Cabinet meetings until Sharon withdrew the remarks made Saturday night.

Holocaust Remembered 1 Day After Turkish Synagogue Attack

NEW YORK (UPI) — With helicopters hovering overhead as a security measure, survivors of the Holocaust met at the Statue of Liberty to remember the Nazi death camps and lament that the days of anti-Jewish violence have not ended.

About 3,500 people, some carrying signs with the names of their hometowns or concentration camps in hopes of finding old friends or family members, attended Sunday's Liberty Reunion, marking the 40th anniversary of the arrival of the first Holocaust survivors in the United States after World War II.

The reunion, the third sponsored by the American Gathering and Federation of Jewish Holocaust Survivors, came one day after gunmen opened fire inside a synagogue in Istanbul, Turkey, killing 21 Jews during Sabbath prayers.

Sigmund Strochlitz, chairman of the Days of Remembrance, was among the speakers who drew parallels between Saturday's attack and the Nazi slaughter of more than 6 million Jews before and during World War II.

"Those Arab animals have learned from the Nazis not only to kill us but to deny our victims a place in a Jewish cemetery," he said, referring to the burning of the victims' bodies by the terrorists.

New Charges Against Rehnquist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats opposed to William Rehnquist being confirmed chief justice have some new ammunition that will likely be presented this week when the Senate begins debate over his nomination.

Civil rights leaders charged Saturday that Rehnquist drafted a constitutional amendment in 1970 that would have permitted racially segregated schools.

William Taylor, an official with the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, said Rehnquist's 1970 proposal "would have sharply curtailed the powers of federal courts to remedy unlawful segregation of the public schools."

The proposal, made available to United Press International, calls for a 28th amendment to the Constitution to "validate freedom of choice and neighborhood schools."

Survivors Describe 'Bellyful Of Hate'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 130 U.S. survivors of the plane hijacking in Pakistan arrived home but many were in shock or injured and only two spoke publicly, praising their fellow hostages and saying they had "a bellyful of hate" for the terrorists.

The Pan Am jet carrying 127 survivors of Friday's terrorist attack that killed 18 and wounded more than 150 landed at Kennedy International Airport at 11:10 p.m. Sunday.

All but two of the passengers avoided a horde of reporters and quickly ducked into a restricted area where they were reunited with hundreds of relatives and quietly headed home.

Catherine Dumas, one of the two survivors willing to talk with reporters, called for execution of the four terrorists.

Dumas said she was "sitting on the plane with a bellyful of hate. If I had a weapon I would have used it."

"I don't care what their cause is — you threaten me and I want to do you in," said Dumas of Lafayette, N.J.

Wijeya Sangary, 19, of Sri Lanka, who came to the United States to enter Texas Agricultural and Industrial University, said he did not expect to come out of the hijacking alive.

"It was a nightmare," Sangary said.

The four terrorists who attacked Pan Am Flight 73 in Karachi, Pakistan, were captured alive, one critically wounded. All four were charged with murder, sources said early today.

The 217 survivors of the 16-hour siege were flown to Frankfurt, West Germany, then 127 flew to New York, 18 to London and 72 stayed in Germany.

Walter Mueller, one of three German medical aides on the flight to New York, said about 20 of the people injured in the hijacking were aboard. Many still were in shock, and some had been "very reluctant" to board the special flight that took them to Frankfurt.

"They were in shock," Mueller said. "They couldn't speak."

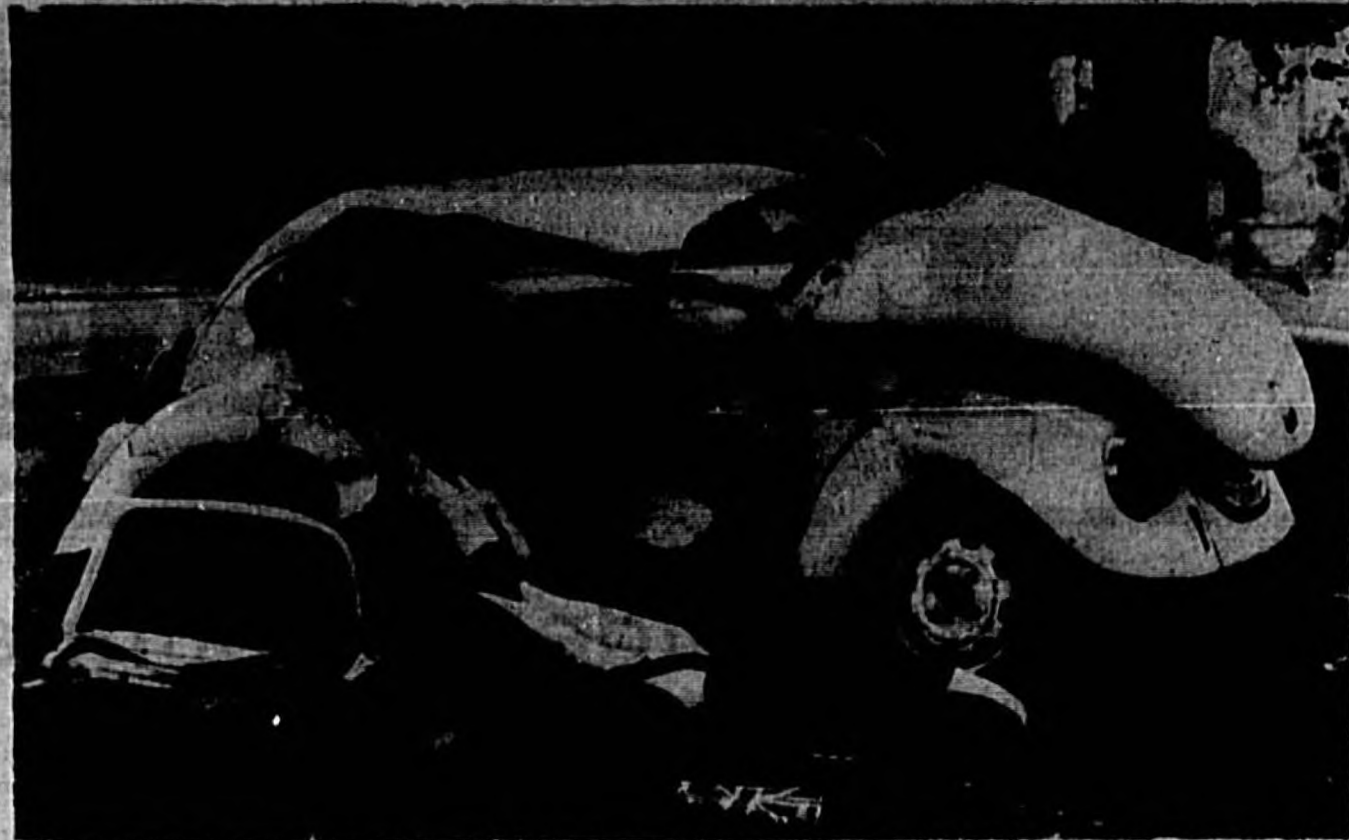

Both survivors said there was a considerable period of time between when the lights on the plane went out and when the shooting began.

And when the rush began to leave the plane finally began, the two said they were surprised.

"The people were wonderful. They were helping each other," Dumas said.

Dumas said when the lights went off there was a period of about 15 or 20 minutes when there was "absolute silence" aboard the plane.

"I felt that something bad was going to happen," she said. "I slid down in my seat so that the seats in front of me would block any gunfire," she said.

Wrecked While Parked

A crumpled Volkswagen rests where it was shoved during a three-car accident Aug. 29 at Celery and Brison avenues in Sanford. The VW, which was for sale and parked on the north side of Celery, was struck by an eastbound car that slid 178 feet out of control after striking another eastbound vehicle while passing. Two teenagers looking at the parked car were injured when the sliding car struck it and threw them. In satisfactory condition at Central Florida Regional Hospital Saturday was Jennifer Conaway, 16, of Sanford. She received several cuts to her feet including a severed heel, which may be reattached. Elmer "Cory" Smith, 14, of Sanford, was treated released with 50 stitches and a broken arm. Charged with driving too fast for conditions was Mark Gibson, 22, of 1005 Cypress Ave., Sanford. Charged with making an improper left turn was Shaun Cornelius, 17, of Box 363 Lake Monroe.

Hijackers Charged With Murder

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Authorities charged the four hijackers of Pan Am Flight 73 with murder in the drama that killed 18 people and wounded more than 150, law enforcement sources said today.

In Italy, police sources said they believed the accused hijack leader had been enrolled in 1984 at an Italian university for foreigners well known as a "crossroads of terrorism."

A Pakistani security source said the four hijackers were charged Sunday with murder, illegal arms possession, hijacking and conspiracy in the Friday drama. He said interrogation had revealed that they were "trained hijackers."

"They failed in their mission," he said, refusing to provide more details.

Other sources from Pakistan's Federal Investigation Agency said the four hijackers — one who was hospitalized and three who were reportedly being held at an undisclosed army camp — were remanded by a magistrate in custody for 14 days without bail.

The security source said the hijackers had two submachine guns, two pistols and grenades but declined to comment on their origins.

He said authorities were trying to trace the movements of the four hijackers prior to Friday's drama, saying "we have to clean the city" in the hunt for accomplices.

Law enforcement sources also said authorities raided student quarters and homes Sunday night and questioned 14 Arabs, later releasing all but two. They searched for three other Palestinians wanted on suspicion of helping to plan Friday's hijack attempt, the sources said.

In Perugia, Italy, police sources said today they believed the alleged hijack leader was registered at Perugia University for Foreigners in 1984.

The man, identified by school records as Gomer Hussein, apparently was one of a group of Palestinians who came to Perugia to pass a qualifying exam to enable them to study Italian at the University of Athens.

Officers checked university records after an Italian survivor, identified as Giulio Bertolucci, said Hussein addressed him in fluent Italian and told him he had gone to the school.

Italian media have long since dubbed Perugia a "crossroads of terrorism." Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca enrolled there before his May 13, 1981, assassination attempt against Pope John Paul II.

Members of the Black September-Palestinian guerrilla group met at Perugia to plan the 1972 massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics.

President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq Sunday ruled out extraditing the four hijackers to the United States, saying they would be tried in Pakistan for the deaths of 18 people.

In his first public comments on the hijacking, Zia told a news conference Sunday that the hijackers were young Palestinians who were operating without the support of any government.

The men face the death penalty if convicted of the 16-hour hijacking that ended Friday night with a bloodbath.

"These hijackers have committed a crime on the soil of Pakistan," Zia said. "We will try them here. I hope that the courts will take full note of this and they receive the full punishment that such a crime deserves."

The United States has issued arrest warrants for the hijackers because Pan Am is a U.S. carrier.

Sources in Pakistan's internal security agency said at least one person was jailed on charges of renting the van the four hijackers used to reach the Boeing 747 on the airport tarmac and shoot their way aboard early Friday.

The hijackers held 383 people on the plane, making various demands, until the power died and the lights went out. The hijackers panicked and hurled grenades and sprayed gunfire through the cabin, officials and survivors said.

Confusion over details of the drama persisted Sunday, with conflicting reports on when Pakistani commandos reached the plane to end the hijacking.

About 300 survivors of the hijacking left Karachi Sunday aboard special flights to Bombay, India, and some to their original destinations in New York and London via Frankfurt, West Germany. Diplomats made arrangements for the bodies of the victims to be transported to their homes.

One American, a newly naturalized Indian man, was killed early in the hijacking. Sixteen people of various nationalities died in the gunfire that ended the ordeal and an Indian man died late Saturday night from his injuries. The U.S. Embassy has refused to confirm reports that one other American was killed.

Hospital sources said the leader of the hijackers was brought to the operating table with a belt of explosives still around his waist and doctors refused to perform surgery until air force officials removed it.

The hospital sources said one bullet hit Hussein in the chest and another in the stomach, missing the belt and avoiding a massive explosion in the plane.

Zia, military leader of Pakistan, said the four men were being interrogated, although one was critically injured.

"They are unfortunately from Palestinian origin," Zia said, alluding to Pakistan's longtime support for the Palestinian cause.

"Where they came from, it is yet to be established," Zia said upon his return to Pakistan from the Non-Aligned Movement conference in Harare, Zimbabwe.

"The interrogation is going on."

"So far, what has been revealed: They are youngsters, but very motivated and highly volatile," he said. "Their ages are between 19, 23, and 25. They must have been motivated by some cause."

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A second straight day of record-low temperatures chilled the Midwest today, while heavy rains in Texas flooded streets and forced scores of residents to flee to a Red Cross shelter. The heavy rains fell on the southeast third of Texas and across Louisiana Sunday, continuing the weekend's deluge and prompting forecasters to extend a flash-flood watch for portions of central Texas early today. "It's pretty much the pattern we're going to see over the next few days," said forecaster Harry Gordon of the National Weather Service. "It's possible there'll be some more flooding. A lot of the area is pretty well saturated. Any additional rain will pose the threat." In the Midwest, a blast of cold air brought record-breaking temperatures for the second straight day. More than 20 records were broken or tied Sunday, and five record lows for the date were set early this morning. Forecasters were expecting as many as a dozen new records. The temperature in Youngstown, Ohio, dipped to 37, a new record, and Topeka, Kan., set a record with 42. In Illinois, new lows were set in Chicago, 45; Peoria, 44; and Rockford, 40. Muskegon, Mich., tied its low for the date with a reading of 40. From 5 to 7 inches of rain drenched southern Texas during the weekend. Three to 4 feet of water covered Highway 36 at Waco Sunday night, the weather service said. At least 50 people in Travis County, south of Austin, were left homeless

Sunday by waist-deep floodwaters that routed them the day before. They were put up in a Red Cross shelter at a junior high school, Red Cross spokesman Floyd Clark said. "Twenty-one homes are uninhabitable. People can no longer live there because of high water and the tremendous water damage," Clark said. "Folks are mainly in the lower-income brackets. The damage to them financially has been devastating." Record low temperatures set Sunday included a reading of 35 degrees in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., breaking a record set in 1917.

Good Times Turn Bad For Pizza Parlor Swindle Suspect

An assistant manager at Good Times Pizza, State Road 434, Winter Springs, has been charged with grand theft after allegedly sending the store manager out to check on a pending order and then stealing cash and leaving the store at about 10 a.m. Thursday.

Friday that suspect was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on a loitering charge in the Southwest Road area of Sanford. He refused to identify himself and was booked into jail as John Doe, a Winter Springs police report said.

The man was questioned by Winter Springs police at the Seminole County jail and identified as the pizza shop employee who was suspect in the theft, the report said.

Arrested at the jail was Mark Benner, 24, of 137A Mosswood Circle, Winter Springs. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

HORSE BITES TOT

A four-year-old Sanford boy who reportedly wandered back into a fenced pasture where a miniature horse bit him on the head, shoulder, back and arms, was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford and released following the 5:30 p.m. incident Friday.

James Raymond Mock of 2808 Narcissus Ave., was reportedly injured on the property of Annis W. Popp, at 2710 Narcissus Ave., a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Mrs. Popp told sheriff's deputies she had told the boy and his brother to go home and didn't realize he had wandered into the pasture with the 2-year-old horse, which is 30-inches tall.

MACHINE MOLESTATION

Three men confronted by Longwood police in front of a soft drink vending machine on the sidewalk in front of Eckerd Drugs, U.S. Highway 17-92 at State Road 434, Longwood, at about 1:43 a.m. Saturday have been charged with molesting a vending machine and petty theft.

After a policeman saw 39 cans of soda valued at $19.50 in the suspects car the three were arrested and one allegedly told him that they were in that shopping center to buy pizza when they found the open machine and took the drinks and a sealed coin box.

Charged and released on $100 bond each were: Thomas M. Saussy, 19, of 801 Bonita Drive, Winter Park; Mark Steven Reinsner, 18, of 286 Maine Ave., Longwood; and Peter Norman Martin, 20, of 414 Westchester Drive, Altamonte Springs.

DOI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—David Donald Rouch, 29, of Orlando, was arrested at 2:08 a.m. Saturday after his car was clocked speeding on State Road 434, Oviedo.

—James Kent Godfrey, 31, of 306, 800 Northern Way, Winter Springs, after his car failed to maintain a single lane on Northern Way. He was also charged with failure to carry a driver's license.

—Clarence Edward Dean, 24, of 311 10th St. W., Sanford, at 9:50 p.m. Friday after he drove onto U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford, with the headlights of this vehicle turned off. He was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

—Landa K. Lafemina, 31, of P.O. Box 305, 100 Bonica Court, Lake Mary, at 3:02 a.m. Saturday after her car was seen driving south in the northbound lane of U.S. Highway 17-92, south of Sanford.

SUSPICIOUS WITH GUN

The passenger in a car that was checked by Seminole County sheriff's deputies after they received a report of a suspicious vehicle in the McAllister Motel area of Southwest Road, Sanford, has been charged with carrying a concealed firearm.

The car was stopped after it was seen leaving the motel in that area which is known for drug trafficking, a sheriff's report said. The driver and passenger were reportedly acting suspiciously and the passenger seemed to be trying to hide something, before being ordered out of the car for a search, the report said.

A loaded .32-caliber revolver was reportedly found near where the passenger had been seated in the car.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Ann Ingrid Hucko, of 2002 Inner Circle Drive, Oviedo, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies she had left the keys in her 1977 Plymouth and it was stolen from in front of her home on Friday. The car is valued at $5,000.

A 1985, 3-wheel Honda motorcycle valued at $1,000 was reported stolen from a porch at 4621 Dubois St., Lake Monroe, on Friday. The theft was reported by Herkey L. Scott, of 4632 Gilbert St., Lake Monroe.

Mary S. Houston, 36, of Orlando, reported to sheriff's deputies that her 1977 Chrysler valued at $600 was stolen while parked at the Jai-Alai Fronton, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, on Friday or Saturday.

Theresa Marie Ballard, 29, of 511 Cape Cod Lane, Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies that she accepted a ride from a man at the Post Time Lounge, U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, at about 1 a.m. Saturday. When they stopped at the Chevron gasoline station on State Road 434 at County Road 427 she went to the restroom and discovered that $400 of $640 that had been in her purse was missing. A sheriff's report said she was intoxicated and didn't know where the money disappeared. She gave deputies a first name for the man that she had been riding with, the report said.

Christine Blxon, 42, of 141 Sandy Oaks Lane, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a $4,000 diamond ring was stolen from her home between Aug. 4 and Thursday.

Arthur E. Grindle Jr., 31, reported to sheriff's deputies that a salesman allegedly took a van from his auto dealership at 2628 N. Semoran Blvd., Winter Park, without permission around 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. The $20,000 van hadn't been returned by noon Thursday and Grindle hadn't been able to find the salesman, who has been assigned another vehicle to drive home. Grindle has told sheriff's deputies he will prosecute if the van isn't returned, a sheriff's report said.

John Talbot Henry III, 20, of 270 Rolling Trail, Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies Monday that a $160 gold chain was stolen from his home between Aug. 20 and 28.

Three Cheval mirrors, worth $375 each, were taken Tuesday from a Sanford apartment undergoing renovations, a Sanford police report said. Those responsible for the theft from Apt. C, 1113 Park Ave. may have been seen by a resident in another apartment who has given police the descriptions of two men he said were near the apartment earlier in the day.

Seminole High School administrators returning Tuesday for the first day of the fall term discovered the school had been broken into during the weekend and a $600 computer keyboard taken from one classroom and a public address system speaker removed from another, a Sanford police report said. The speaker was found broken outside the school; the keyboard has not been recovered, the report said.

An unlocked front door provided entry and exit for the person or persons who took a $475 VCR unit from the 217½ E. Third Street residence of Lorene Collins Thursday, between 9 p.m. and 10 p.m., a Sanford police report said.

An AM-FM stereo unit and meat in a freezer, worth $400 in total, were taken from Apt. 4Q Seminole Gardens between 8 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. Thursday, a Sanford police report said. It is the residence of Laura Dellafield. A screen was removed and a window forced open to gain entry, the report said.

Horror And Hope

The dimensions of the Chernobyl nuclear catastrophe, which were awesome enough when the Ukrainian power plant exploded on April 26, became even more astounding as the Soviets reticenced out the terrible facts during the last four months.

The Russians, in fact, have come to regard Chernobyl as a supernatural disaster. The whole country is talking of a biblical passage from the Apocalypse — formally known as the revelation of St. John the Divine: It speaks of "a great star from heaven" falling and "burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon ... the rivers and upon the fountains of waters; and the name of the star is called wormwood; and the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter ..."

Ukrainian dictionaries define wormwood as a bitter, wild herb used as a tonic in rural Russia. It is known in that language as "chernobyl."

Chernobyl has become a scourge of Soviet life. After disgracefully censoring and playing down the dangers of radiation immediately after the explosion, the Kremlin and its controlled media have subsequently described with increasing candor the extent of the peril. Chernobyl, the worst accident in the 44-year history of nuclear energy, is a pervasive, malignant threat that influences million of Soviet citizens in their daily lives. The emerging facts are truly horrifying:

—The nuclear accident at Chernobyl is believed to have released 30 to 40 times as much lethal ash as the atomic bombs dropped on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945, according to Dr. Shunzo Okajima, a Japanese radiation physics expert. Radioactivity reached as far north as Swedish Lapland.

—In addition to 31 persons who have already died, a Soviet report issued a fortnight ago predicts that Soviet cancer deaths attributable to Chernobyl radiation could reach 8,500. Dr. Morris Rosen, a U.S. director of nuclear safety for the International Atomic Energy Agency, predicts 24,000 cancer deaths during the next 70 years. But physicist Thomas Cochran of the Natural Resources Defense Council, a New York based group, calculates the aggregate human exposure to cesium-137 radiation would mean 200,000 likely cancer deaths in the Western part of the Soviet Union with a population of 75 million. In any case, an additional cancer risk has been imposed on millions of Soviet citizens.

—Within parts of the 1,000-square-mile area of radioactive contamination, topsoil is being scraped up and buried as nuclear waste. Food raised in this area and far beyond will be contaminated with cesium-137 for 70 years; it takes 30 years for the isotope to lose half of its radioactivity.

—More than 310,000 children from northern Ukraine and southern Byelorussia have been evacuated to summer camps elsewhere; another 112,000 persons were moved from contaminated areas; whole villages have been abandoned.

An international symposium on the Chernobyl accident in Vienna recently day heard Soviet officials acknowledge for the first time that serious flaws in the reactor's design played an important part in the disaster along with some incredible blunders by the operating crew, who were conducting risky experiments. American and European nuclear authorities assert that deficient Soviet design representing shortcuts to save time and money have been rejected in the West as being altogether unacceptable. Given such dangerous designing, the miracle is that a nuclear calamity did not happen years ago in the Soviet Union.

If the Chernobyl calamity chills Soviet ardor and adventure and aggression, it could prove to be a peace partner with U.S. armed might in deterring World War III, at least for a while. Chernobyl could be one of the seminal events of the 20th century with its sobering lesson to the Kremlin of how the blunders of a few men spewed radioactive particles across the world and threatened the lives of millions of Soviet citizens and perhaps neighboring Europeans as well.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Hi, folks. I'm your congressman. I'm back to find out what you want to hear — so I can say it to you."

'Tells You What Kind Of News Day It Is'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes chose a jocular way to begin his Labor Day news briefing in Santa Barbara.

"Begin with the top of the news, dated Arazuri, Spain," he said. "A fleet and hungry pig named Kamikazi whizzed past its chief rival, Gadhafi, to win the centuries-old Arazuri Pig Race by several snorts-snouts. The favorite got lost in the crowd. The 175-pound black and white Kamikaze reached a bowl of mush at the finish in one minute and 30 seconds, beating runner-up Gadhafi by 28 seconds in the annual competition."

"What does that tell us?" a reporter asked. "Tells you what kind of news day it is," Speakes replied.

He then went on to say that President and Mrs. Reagan "were up early and watched their son, Ron, host 'Good Morning America.'"

New carpeting, a new paint job, a rearrangement of a lot of office furniture faces the West Wing staffers when they return to the White House from Santa Barbara.

While the president has been vacationing at his mountaintop ranch, workmen have been giving the official side of the White House a facelift. And out on Pennsylvania Avenue many changes are taking place to improve security.

President Reagan's proposed 2 percent pay increase for federal workers is not exactly something they want to write home about. Reagan, a firm believer in free enterprise, has never put a high priority on working for the government.

A lot of White House secretaries could pull down more in the outside world, but don't leave because of the prestige of working in the Executive Mansion.

But the drain continues in the White House police force, whose members make an average of $20,000 a year and who have not had a pay increase in 10 years. District of Columbia policemen earn more.

The president, who has spent three weeks vacationing in California, will also take frequent leave of Washington this fall. He will be doing what he liked to do best in the presidency — campaigning.

He has a political appearance a week in September and two trips a week in October, not to mention his Rose Garden and East Room speeches aimed at promoting Republican interests.

His goal is to keep a GOP majority in the Senate and he has already been a busy factor in adding $13 million to the GOP campaign coffers.

Reagan, who likes making speeches on the road, has a personal stake in the November elections. Republican victories in the midterm elections, especially retention of the GOP majority in the Senate, will help Reagan maintain his effectiveness in the final years of his last term.

Reagan has shunned the term "lame duck" and has succeeded in keeping the emphasis on his revolution of the right. The revolution is aimed at eliminating or reducing the socially oriented programs of the past 50 years, a strategy in line with Thomas Jefferson's belief that "the best government is the least government."

Helping Salvadoran Refugees

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In July 1985, a Salvadoran student activist won asylum in the United States by convincing a court he had good reason to fear persecution and even death in his own country.

Had he not had a psychologist to back him up, however, he would almost certainly have been deported back to the country whose government had killed his brother, "disappeared" his sister and tortured eight fellow students.

The role of refugee advocate is a new but crucial one for psychologists, says Dr. Adrienne Aron, a psychologist in private practice in Berkeley, Calif., and the counselor who helped win asylum for the Salvadoran.

"Psychologists don't usually face life-or-death issues, except of course when they are involved in cases of potential suicide," she said. "Here, one is facing the potential destruction of the client if deportation takes place."

Arriving with no documentation and lacking character witnesses who have known them for very long, refugees seeking asylum must prove their credibility before judges often predisposed to deport them.

The judges for the most part rose through the ranks of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, some coming from border patrols where they take on a hardened cynicism because of experience with malingers, said Arthur C. Helton, director of the political asylum project at the Lawyers' Committee for Human Rights in New York.

Ninety-seven percent of petitions from Salvadorans in past years have been denied, Aron said. Refugee advocates point to political bias, citing the contradiction that would exist if a country supplied another with military aid and then acknowledge that nation's citizens needed protection from their own government.

"The fact is, in most instances Salvadoran refugees do not make good witnesses," Aron said at a seminar during the recent convention of the American Psychological Association.

An applicant may not show emotion on the witness stand while describing fearsome events at home, leading observers to conclude his statement was an act. Yet, refugees often suppress or deny the memory of their experiences and show little emotion about them, Aron said. This is a symptom of post-traumatic stress syndrome.

Hamburger War At Military Bases

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon's exuberant expansion into the fast-food franchise business on military bases has dismayed civilian restaurant owners in nearby towns who are getting shot down by competition from the taxpayer-subsidized hamburger joints. But Congress, through carelessness, laziness or both, has effectively abdicated any control over the situation.

In the past two years, 45 McDonald's restaurants have been opened on Navy bases and 54 Burger Kings on Army and Air Force bases. The number could triple by 1990.

The fast-food outlets are built by the military, partly with appropriated funds. The restaurants pay neither property, sales nor corporate income taxes. The result is that they can sell their burgers

ROBERT WAGMAN

'New-Look' Kennedy

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (NEA) — Nearing the end of a bitter 10-way primary campaign to choose a Democratic candidate for the House seat of retiring Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, the odds-on favorite is a young man named Kennedy.

Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., 33, the businessman son of Robert Kennedy and nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy, is trying to capture the 8th Congressional District seat once held by his uncle John F. Kennedy.

The Democratic winner of the Sept. 18 primary is virtually assured of winning the general election in November.

The 8th District, which covers parts of Boston and Cambridge, is one of the most heavily Democratic districts in the country. Its voters range from students and faculty at Harvard, MIT and Radcliffe, to upper-class residents of Cambridge, to blue-collar workers in towns like Somerville.

"Young Joe," as he is called, has raised the most money of the candidates vying for the nomination. He is said to have the best organization, and he has taken a comfortable 15- to 20-point lead in most polls.

A Kennedy win in the 8th District would hardly be a surprising occurrence: It has been the home base of the family for generations.

But this campaign has produced a few surprises, not the least of which are some of the very "un-Kennedy-like" positions Young Joe has taken on some issues. This has led some observers to label him the "new-look" Kennedy.

Kennedy readily admits that he is not a liberal of the old school. When pressed to put a label on his politics he tends to call himself a "populist." And his campaign manager amends that to call Kennedy an "aggressive populist."

Kennedy's campaign is built around what he has accomplished in founding and running a billion-company that supplies heating oil to low- and moderate-income homeowners at cost. The Kennedy bid features a slick $350,000 TV ad campaign based on the theme that he is a fighter for the common people.

But even more important than this media blitz is the fact that Young Joe has inherited the Kennedy family ability to work a crowd.

He really comes alive when he plunges into a throng at a subway station during rush hour or simply walks down a street. When most people see a politician coming, they walk the other way. But, as with his father and uncle, Joe Kennedy seems to invite people to rush up and shake hands.

He clearly has the Kennedy smile and the Kennedy manner with people — and that ought to be enough to ensure him of a primary victory.

Most of the headlines picture the primary race as a contest between Kennedy and the son of another illustrious Democratic family — James Roosevelt Jr., grandson of FDR and son of a former California congressman. Interestingly (and amusingly) it is Roosevelt who has repeatedly attacked Kennedy for trading on his family name, most notably in a television ad that features Roosevelt sitting under a portrait of his grandmother Eleanor.

Roosevelt is running fourth or fifth in most polls.

Actually, Kennedy's two top Democratic primary opponents are longtime Boston liberal politicians who are attacking him as being too conservative for the district.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Waiting For The Final Day

By Arnold Sawinlak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration and Congress still have a lot of work left to do this year, but most of the pivotal battles have been fought and governmental Washington has become a city-in-waiting for judgment day in November.

The assumption in the capital is that Congress will pass a tax reform bill, give President Reagan funds to aid the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, confirm his Supreme Court nominees, defy him with stiff economic sanctions against South Africa and lash together a federal budget that still leaves the Treasury deep in red ink.

Some of those expectations could be upset, but the real interest in Washington as Congress returns for a scheduled four-week cleanup session is the off-year political campaign and its payoff in the Nov. 4 elections of 34 senators and 435 House members.

Right now, the 99th Congress has 252 Democrats and 180 Republicans with three vacancies in the House and 53 Republicans and 47 Democrats in the Senate.

In order to win control of the House in the 100th Congress, the GOP would have to increase its strength by only 38 seats, which would be a big turnover but nothing like the shifts of 50 to 75 that have occurred in the past.

Five years ago, the Republicans were talking confidently about taking over the House during this decade, but they are far less cocky now about the electoral rewards of the shift toward conservatism that was heralded by Reagan's 1980 election and 1984 landslide.

Nor are the Democrats showing a lot of excitement about the traditional swing of House seats toward the party that lost the presidential election in the last national election. Publicly, both parties seem to expect not much change in the makeup of the House when it returns to work next January.

What suspense there is involves the Senate, where the Democrats need only four more seats to regain control. They have the advantage of only 12 seats at risk this fall, giving them 22 GOP seats to shoot at.

There are some observers who think the Democrats have a good shot at Senate control, but there have been no suggestions that the Republicans are going to have a big loss. Most who see the Democrats taking over are talking about a narrow victory — perhaps as close as the minimum 51-49 outcome they would need.

though, was the Pentagon report's claim: "There is no evidence of any substantial or direct impact on sales in the local civilian community."

The military investigators obviously didn't talk with small-business owners in Lawton, Okla., the closest town to Fort Sill. Our reporter Jim Lynch did.

"They're taking our tax money and competing with us," complained Allen Trueblood, owner of two off-base Burger Kings in Lawton. Since the Burger King on the base opened, Trueblood's restaurant near Fort Sill has lost about $15,000 a month, he said.

His lost customers include civilians as well as soldiers. Because Fort Sill is an open installation, anyone can drive or walk in and buy a Whopper for 13 cents less.

Percy Pulliam opened a pit barbecue restaurant near the base, and his lunchtime business has dropped by one-third since the on-base Burger King opened, he said.

If Lawton's small-business owners think they're being burned by unfair competition, they have a point. Two months before the military Burger King opened, the base commander announced that a new Army regulation banning the wearing of fatigue uniforms off-post would be strictly enforced. Since the troops wear fatigues most of the time, the effect was to put the off-base restaurants off-limits.

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service splits its considerable profits on the Burger King franchise with the commanding generals of the bases, who put the money into the "morale, welfare and recreation fund." Fort Sill's Burger King has racked up sales of about $150,000 a month, and has contributed about $26,000 to the rec fund.

Lendl, Martina Reinforce Rank With Open Victories

Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — After two weeks of upsets and surprises at the U.S. Open, the world of tennis is still as it was two weeks ago — Martina Navratilova the undisputed No. 1 among the women and Ivan Lendl without peer on the men's tour.

John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors fell at the Open. Steffi Graf and Helena Sukova rose but Navratilova and Lendl reaffirmed their already-tight grip on the top spots Sunday with straight-sets final victories.

The Open also illustrated the current strength of European tennis and weakness of tennis in the United States. All four finalists were from Czechoslovakia. Of the eight semifinalists, only one was from the U.S.

Navratilova won her third Open title and 22nd Grand Slam championship with an easy 6-3, 6-2 victory over Sukova, whose late mother was Navratilova's coach when she was playing in Czechoslovakia.

Sukova won three of the first four games of the match before Navratilova cranked up her power game to win seven straight. During the streak, the 6-foot-2 Sukova lost her serve in three consecutive games.

"To win the U.S. Open will always be very special," Navratilova said. "I know I'm not a born American but my heart is very much here and it definitely has an extra edge to it because it is home."

Despite the loss, the world's seventh-ranked player made a strong showing at the Open. She beat Chris Evert Lloyd in a semifinal match, the first time the 21-year-old had beaten the world's No. 2 player in 15 career matches.

Sukova and Graf appear to be the newest threats to the Navratilova-Evert Lloyd domination of women's tennis. Graf, the West German ranked third at the age of 17, had three match points in her semifinal with Navratilova before losing a third-set tiebreaker, 10-8.

Lendl won nine straight games to break open a close match and defeat 16th-seeded Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-2, 6-0 in the men's final. It was Lendl's second straight Open title and capped off a tournament in which he lost just one set.

Lendl, who beat McEnroe in last year's final 7-6, 6-3, 6-4, became the first player to win back-to-back Open titles with straight-sets victories in the final since 1951.

"That's the best I've ever played, the last two weeks," Lendl said. "I was very happy the way I was playing."

Lendl plans to continue his intensive conditioning program to remain at the top of the sport.

"I would like to think that by becoming a better athlete I can play better in the future," he said. "The game is developing, and if I want to keep my position I have to develop."

Mecir was the biggest surprise on the men's side. The reserved 22-year-old defeated No. 2 seed Mats Wilander, seventh seed Joakim Nystrom and No. 3 Boris Becker in consecutive matches to reach his first Grand Slam final.

"I never did so well," Mecir said. "I hope my friends still like me."

The whispers that the 34-year-old Connors should retire became shouts when he lost in the third round to Todd Wittken. Connors, who has not won in two years, claimed he would once again rise and prove the skeptics wrong.

McEnroe, back on the tour after a lengthy vacation, lost in the first round to Paul Anthonis. For the first time in six years he is not ranked first or second in the world. In fact, his poor Open showing dropped him out of the Top 10.

The 1986 Tampa Bay Buccaneers have no chance.

Joe Montana shredded Tampa Bay's young secondary for 356 yards Sunday and San Francisco's eager defense set a club record with seven interceptions, leading the 49ers to a 31-7 triumph against the Buccaneers in a lopsided NFL season opener. Steve DeBerg, an ex-49er, was hounded into a nightmarish performance that left him just one errant toss away from the NFL record of eight interceptions set by Jim Hardy of the Chicago Cardinals against the Eagles on Sept. 24, 1950.

"The guys now know they have the ability to play," said veteran safety Ronnie Lott, who intercepted DeBerg twice and provided a steady hand for cornerbacks Tim McKyer and Don Griffin — two rookie starters who intercepted one pass apiece. "It's tough to play with the kind of pressure we put on DeBerg and he had to throw right away. When you put the pressure on him you can almost anticipate him throwing to a certain spot."

Montana flipped a 4-yard touchdown pass to Mike Wilson. Roger Craig added a pair of 1-yard touchdown runs. Ray Wersching kicked a 30-yard field goal and reserve Jeff Kemp tossed a 10-yard scoring pass to John Frank for the 49ers. San Francisco improved its league-best road record since 1981 to 29-8.

The Buccaneers, who trailed 14-0 in the first quarter, were limited to DeBerg's 31-yard scoring pass to Gerald Carter early in the third period.

Montana completed eight consecutive passes at one point in the opening period and hit on 32-of-46 overall. Dwight Clark was San Francisco's leading receiver with 7 receptions for 100 yards while newly acquired Joe Cribbs carried 10 times for 38 yards.

DeBerg, jeered loudly by the crowd of 50,780, completed 18-of-40 passes for 210 yards and was intercepted seven times to set a Buccaneer record for individual futility; Doug Williams threw five interceptions for Tampa Bay against the 49ers in 1979. The 49ers' previous club mark was six interceptions against Chicago in 1954 and against New England in 1980.

"I lost the game," said DeBerg, a former 49er whose passing woes prompted a segment of the crowd to chant "We Want Young," in reference to second-year pro Steve Young. "The offensive line gave me enough time ... I just have to take the responsibility. This is probably the worst game I've ever had and unfortunately, it came against my old team. They are a good team, but I made it easy for them."

Pro Bowl nose tackle Michael Carter, rookie Charles Haley and fellow defensive end Jeff Stover led San Francisco's pass rush and intense pressure up front was instrumental in four of DeBerg's seven interceptions. DeBerg was sacked three times — all by Stover — while James Wilder led the dismal Buccaneer offense with 81 yards in 18 carries.

Montana was masterful in leading the 49ers to a quick 14-0 lead. After missing on his first two pass attempts, Montana found Clark for 11 yards on third-and-10 and added four more completions before Jerry Rice gained 13 yards on a reverse to the 2-yard line. Three plays later, Craig capped San Francisco's opening 85-yard drive by plunging over from a yard out.

San Diego Charges Past Dolphins, 50-28

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula found little to say about his team following its 50-28 loss to the San Diego Chargers Sunday.

"When you get beat as bad as we got beat, all you can do is congratulate the winner," Shula said.

The 50 points is the most scored against the Dolphins in Shula's 16 years as Miami head coach. Baltimore scored 45 in 1977 and the Raiders did the same in 1984.

"They did nothing that we weren't prepared for," Shula said. "They just did a hell of a job."

The Chargers played an effective ball-control offense that kept Miami quarterback Dan Marino on the sidelines. San Diego held the ball for 38:50, while the Dolphins had it for 21:10.

"A team like Miami, who has an outstanding quarterback and great receivers, can score in a hurry," Chargers Coach Don Coryell said. "I didn't rest until halfway through the fourth quarter."

Coryell had his own concerns about defense entering the game. San Diego, like Miami, was one of the worst defensive teams in the league last season.

"Ten of the 22 (players) on the defense are new ... but they played really well," Coryell said. That's a tribute to the coaches."

Fouts was 23 of 35 for 297 yards and three touchdowns. Marino, who signed a six-year, $9 million contract Saturday, was 23 of 36 for 290 yards. He also threw three TD passes for the Dolphins, who were hampered by four turnovers and netted only 45 yards on the ground.

Nat Moore and Mark Clayton each scored twice for the Dolphins. Buford McGee scored on 4-yard runs in the second and fourth quarters.

Fouts threw touchdown passes of 18 yards to Gary Anderson, 7 yards to Wes Chandler and 17 yards to Pete Holohan. The Chargers also scored on a 17-yard Tim Spencer run and Rolf Benirschke field goals of 26, 36 and 36 yards.

Moore caught TD passes of 6 yards from Marino and 17 yards from reserve quarterback Don Strock. Marino and Clayton hooked up on TD throws of 22 and 49 yards.

San Diego opened the scoring 5:08 into the game on an 18-yard swing pass to Anderson. The Chargers' drive began after Clayton fumbled a punt and Derrie Nelson recovered on the Miami 41.

Linebacker Billy Ray Smith sacked Marino and stripped the ball loose, with Thomas Benson recovering at the Dolphins' 30. Three plays later, Spencer ran 17 yards for a score, making it 17-0.

The Dolphins got on the board three minutes into the second quarter, cutting the Chargers' lead to 17-7. On third-and-8 at San Diego's 22, Marino found Clayton.

Florida players and coaches entered Saturday's game worried about Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde.

They left mumbling about the Hurricane defense.

Testaverde, who finished fifth in the Heisman voting last year, was intercepted three times and missed open receivers on several occasions but his defensive teammates limited the Gators to just 196 yards in a 23-15 triumph. The seventh-ranked Hurricanes used Melvin Bratton touchdown runs of 24 and 20 yards and six sacks of Kerwin Bell to snap Florida's 21-game home unbeaten streak.

"This was a hard-fought ballgame, as hard fought as I've ever been around," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson, who now prepares for Texas Tech in Saturday's home opener. "I can't say enough about the job our defense did again and again. Our defensive front was fantastic."

Testaverde, whose 15-yard touchdown pass to Mike Irvin put Miami ahead 23-9 early in the fourth period, completed 12 of 25 passes for 163 yards. It was the first time in 14 college starts Testaverde failed to hit on at least half of his attempts and his previous low output was a 204-yard effort against Cincinnati.

"It felt great to come up here and beat the Gators because they are a great team," said Testaverde. "Not too many teams have done that in the past."

Bell, who riddled Miami with four TD passes last year in leading Florida to a 35-23 victory, was hounded on virtually every pass attempt. He completed 18-of-30 for 137 yards, including a 1-yard scoring flip to Rodney Jones with 7:11 remaining after a Testaverde interception at Miami's 7-yard line.

Melvin Bratton, left, rejoices his second touchdown run against the Gators. Bratton's scamper around the right side gave Miami a lead it never relinquished.

"Like I said before, they have probably the best defensive front I have gone against since I have been here and the best we will probably face all year," said Bell. "They are good and quick and big and physical."

Miami linebacker Winston Moss had 11 tackles and recovered one of Florida's four fumbles. Defensive tackle Jerome Brown had seven tackles and a sack while end Daniel Stubbs had 2 1/2 sacks. Cornerback Jarvis Williams was a Gator standout with six tackles, a fumble recovery, one sack and two interceptions.

Jeff Dawson added three field goals for the Gators, 1-1, who have a weekend off before a Sept. 20 home date against No. 6 Alabama. Mark Seelig kicked a 35-yard field goal for Miami, 2-0, which limited Florida to 59 yards rushing after the Gators' 258-yard output against Georgia Southern.

Bratton, who rushed for 105 yards and three TDs against South Carolina in the opener, gained 65 yards in 15 carries. He lost 20 pounds in an off-season conditioning program and Brat-

O'Brien Gets His Kicks, 4 Field Goals Derail Bethune

By Scott Sander

ORLANDO — University of Central Florida kicker Eddie O'Brien probably wishes that every football game the Knights play would be against Bethune Cookman.

Last year O'Brien booted a 55-yard field goal as time expired, propelling the Knights to a 39-37 victory.

Saturday, it was the foot of O'Brien that proved to be the difference as he kicked field goals of 48, 42, 31, and 49 yards, leading the Knight to a 26-14 victory before a record 23,041 fans at Orlando Stadium in the college football season opener for both teams.

"For some reason I always kick well against Bethune," O'Brien said after the game in the jubilant UCF locker room. "I was really happy with the way that I kicked."

UCF coach Gene McDowell agreed. "Eddie did a fabulous job," McDowell said. "He won this one for us."

UCF returns to action Saturday at home against West Georgia.

In a move that surprised many, McDowell elected to start former Lake Howell High all-star Darin Slack over Tony Lanham at the quarterback position. However, it was the leadership of Lanham that led to three second-half scoring drives.

Football

"I have confidence in both quarterbacks," McDowell said. "I elected to start Darin because I thought he was better suited to execute our opening drive of the game."

Slack did execute the opening drive to perfection as he audibled the Knights to their first touchdown. The Knights took the lead when senior tailback Elgin Davis capped a 10-play, 76-yard drive with the first of his two touchdowns, a six yard run over the left side of the line.

Davis finished the game with 107 yards rushing, including a key 43-yard touchdown run early in the fourth period. "Elgin did a super job out there," McDowell said. "He is really a quality football player."

Slack finished the game 8 for 20 good for 80 yards. "I was extremely happy with the way we performed tonight," Slack said. "We made less mistakes tonight and most games are won or lost by mistakes."

Senior tight end Mac Lantrip, a Lake Brantley High School product, was also impressed with UCF's mistake-free play. "We really took it to them tonight," Lantrip said. "We got some good licks. They didn't give us the game, we earned it."

Lantrip had his usual solid blocking game and caught a pass for 11 yards. "I'm more concerned with my blocking than with catching the ball," Lantrip said. "That is my primary job."

The UCF defense bent out didn't break in several occasions. Two interceptions cost the Wildcats some easy points and a pair of missed field goals didn't help matters any.

"I was happy with the way our defense played," McDowell said. "They got tough when they had to."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

State, Conservationists Debate Lake Okeechobee Cleanup Plans

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — The Florida citrus industry, severely hit by four killer freezes in five years and rapid urban development in central Florida, has begun moving south to the empty lands southwest of Lake Okeechobee.

The shift comes as state officials and conservationist groups begin a fierce attack on the nutrients which clog the lake and threaten to kill it.

Leading environmentalists began meeting this week to discuss a new plan put forward by scientists proposing steps to save the lake. Some of the measures involve restrictions on agricultural runoff and other farming operations.

The South Florida Water Management District requested the critical reviews as part of the state's drive to begin long-term efforts to clean up the lake.

"We are not asking these people to try and reach a consensus," said Pat Bidal, coordinator of the water management effort. "Even in the environmental group there is diversity of opinion. We just want them to list the pros and cons of the draft plan."

The review sessions began Sunday and continue with a meeting scheduled for today in West Palm Beach and for Tuesday in Okeechobee.

About 100,000 acres of new citrus groves are scheduled for development and applications are pending on 150,000 more.

The area is an important reservoir for populated areas. Environmentalists and regulators fear draining and dredging by citrus growers could pollute the water supply and endanger wildlife.

Electrified Puddle Kills Man

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A puddle of water that was electrified when power lines fell on it electrocuted a man who was running to help put out a fire caused by the fallen lines.

Michael Siegal was carrying a fire extinguisher late Saturday as he ran to a neighbor's van, which had burst into flames when two power lines above it snapped and fell.

He stepped into the puddle and was electrocuted, said Broward County Fire Lt. Fred North. The current also killed a dog that was running in the yard.

"When we arrived he was still lying in the water," North said. "We had to wait until Florida Power & Light cut the current before we could pull him out."

"We heard the crack when the line went down," said Mary Goucher, who lives nearby. "There were blue flashes of light all over."

gued Daniloff's freedom take precedence over the U.S.-Soviet summit conference expected late this year. "I think the approach the secretary of state will use, which is to make Daniloff the No. 1 agenda item, and perhaps the only agenda item in any discussion he or other State Department officials have is the most appropriate next step."

Michael Armacost, undersecretary of state for political affairs, said that sending Daniloff to trial would "complicate" the "resolution of this case."

When asked Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" if a trial would rule out a superpower summit now in the planning stages, Armacost replied, "We haven't said that."

The revelation of the formal charge came less than 24 hours after White House officials confirmed that Reagan appealed to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev for Daniloff's release.

In a letter to Gorbachev, Reagan gave his personal assurance the reporter is not a spy, aides said.

In Los Angeles Sunday, where Reagan was campaigning for Republican candidates, White House spokesman Larry Speakes repeated the administration's profession of Daniloff's innocence.

But Speakes added, "There will be no trade" — a reference to a proposal for an arrangement linking Daniloff's freedom to the case of a Soviet U.N. employee, Gennadi Zakharov, arrested one week before Daniloff and now jailed in New York without bond on spy charges.

Reagan, Speakes said, "is determined to bring it to a proper and successful conclusion," although he declined to go into detail on a timetable for Soviet compliance with the U.S. demand.

Speakes also said no change has been made in plans for the Sept. 19 meetings between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

"We will continue to review our options — what we can do to influence events and impress on the Soviets it is indeed a matter of utmost seriousness to the United States," he said. The Kremlin has been told that Reagan "is personally involved in the matter and that he regards it as serious," he said.

U.S. officials have said, however, something other than a trade — for instance, Daniloff's release and a new U.S. consideration of a request for Zakharov to be released into the custody of the Soviet ambassador — has been suggested to the Kremlin.

suspect on 18th Street and a chase brought them through the brush to the back of her building.

She did not hear shots, she said, because of loud music playing in the bar, but was told that two men were shooting at Byrd.

Seminole County sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey said that deputies believe that there was a single gunman and they have had no reports on a second gunman, only on a second man having been shot at by the suspect.

Mrs. Morgan said she does not know the people involved in the incident.

According to Evening Herald records, Byrd was arrested in April 1985 after running from a Seminole County sheriff's deputy who wanted to question him about a pit bull dog-fight in Sanford. In that incident Byrd was charged with obstructing justice and resisting arrest.

occupants, both secret police bodyguards.

A Mercedes similar to the one used by Pinochet burst into flames, but the president was traveling in a second one, 150 yards behind.

"The presidential motorcade was ambushed by a terrorist commando of at least 12 people with weapons of different types and calibers," government spokesman Francisco Cuadra said.

Cuadra said the weapons used in the ambush were found later in three abandoned cars and were part of a massive arsenal — some of which was discovered in abandoned mines in northern Chile last month.

The arms were landed by Cuban-trained Communist rebels from trawlers in a Soviet fishing fleet off the Pacific coast, authorities said.

The state of siege grants the military government special powers to arrest suspects without due process, censor the press, restrict the right of assembly and association, tap phones and open mail.

Pinochet last resorted to a state of siege on Nov. 6, 1984, to curb a mounting wave of unrest and violent protests by opponents seeking the restoration of democracy.

Cuadra said an army sergeant and two police officers, one of them a motorcyclist escorting the motocade, were killed in the attack.

The two other security guards killed in the ambush were not identified because their bodies were badly charred, he said.

He said three army officers and six police officers were seriously wounded in the ambush, and two were in a critical condition.

Press reports said a Communist urban guerrilla group called the Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front claimed responsibility for the attack in a telephone call to a foreign news agency. But a spokesman for the front called UPI and said he was the only official spokesman for the group and had made no such announcement.

The attempt on Pinochet's life followed a wave of violent protests against military rule that broke out Thursday and Friday. Four people were killed in shootings and authorities deployed army troops to disperse demonstrators in slum areas where residents set fire to car tires to block streets.

On July 2 and 3, Chile was gripped by a general strike to press for a return to democracy. Clashes with police left seven people dead, including Rodrigo Rojas, a teenage Chilean-born resident of Washington, D.C. After the July unrest, the Reagan administration urged Pinochet to return Chile to democracy.

Pinochet next Thursday celebrates the 13th anniversary of the CIA-backed coup that brought him to power, toppling the Socialist government of Salvador Allende.

Man Says 'War' Between Sexes Began With Invasion Of Privacy

DEAR MS. VAN BUREN: You really are a funny little old lady. Both you and "Disillusioned," who lost her cool when her husband "violated her privacy" by looking through her purse, must have conveniently short memories, or else you've never lived in the real world with the rest of us.

Dear Abby

From the year one, women have gone through men's pockets and wallets looking for something they hope will give them yet another reason to nag. And in the past two decades, women in general have been on a crusade to invade every aspect of men's privacy, from his pockets to his private club. You broods go out of the house wearing fake faces and other kinds of fakery, and yet you have the utter gall to talk about "deception." Sometimes a man might get curious as to what's under all the sham. Does she carry it all in her purse? It's big enough!

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, but I cannot believe that I am writing to you. I am a middle-aged wife and mother. I work full time at a job that I like. I am active in church and community work and have many friends. I am suddenly faced with a situation so bleak that I am overcome with depression. My only child will be leaving for college soon. My favorite aunt is fighting a losing battle with cancer. My mother and husband are both in poor health. My pets are elderly, and I know their days are numbered. I have begged, pleaded and yelled with no success. How can I stop her? Or is it me?

STANLEY W. HAYNES BOTHELL, WASH.
DEAR MR. HAYNES: If you are trying to justify a man's looking through his wife's purse — even after she has asked him not to — you'll have to do better than the above. By the way, are you married? If you're a bachelor, please stay that way. And if you have a wife, please give her my condolences.

DAVID IN STATE COLLEGE, PA.
DEAR DAVID: The obvious answer would be to "give her the brush" (a little pun there), but that seems rather extreme for such a minor infraction. The other option: Buy yourself a new toothbrush, and hide it. She may bristle, but it is a solution.

Nerve Disease Leads To Death

DEAR DR. GOTT — There seem to be more and more people with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. Would you please discuss this disease?

DEAR READER — Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) is also called Lou Gehrig's Disease, after the baseball player who died of the illness. It is a progressive neurological affliction that results from a breakdown of certain nerves in the brain and spinal cord. Since these nerves supply muscles, the hallmarks of ALS are weakness and wasting of the muscles of the hands, arms and legs. The disease progresses quickly, involving the muscles of body movement and respiration, resulting in death within five years.

ALS is a disorder of unknown cause; there is no treatment. It usually begins in middle age. I am not aware that ALS is more prominent today than it was in the past. Perhaps we are simply hearing more about it, as we do about many other illnesses.

Nursing care and family support are vital resources in helping ALS victims deal with the disease, as is The ALS Association (15300 Ventura Blvd., No. 315, Sherman Oaks, CA 91403). The National Institute of Neurological Communicative Disorders and Stroke (Building 31, Room 8A08, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20892) publishes a book on ALS that you may find helpful.

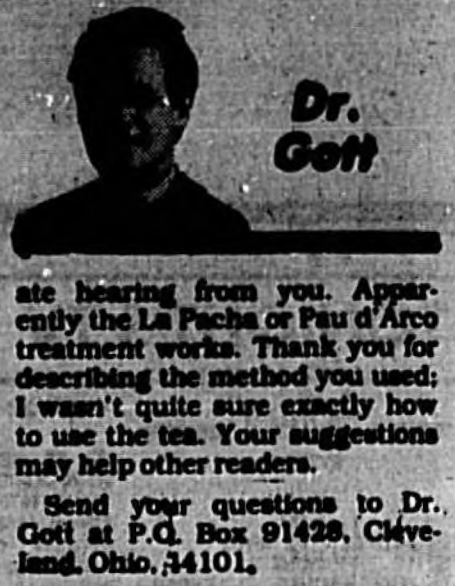

DEAR DR. GOTT — You recently ran a letter advocating the use of La Pacha tea soaks for the treatment of toenail-fungus infection.

I am a registered nurse and have had great difficulty fighting such an infection. I was losing several toenails when, in desperation, I decided to try the treatment. I purchased the tea (which was called Pau d'Arco) in a health-food store, used one teaspoon very cup of water, heated it very hot, then soaked my feet once a day until the solution became cold. Within three days, the pain was gone; in two weeks, so was the infection. It is now two months since I discontinued treatment and there is healthy, pink, new growth under my toenails. For me, this has proven to be a simple, inexpensive and effective treatment for what was a long-term nuisance. I hope you will share this information with your readers, since toenail fungus seems to be a widespread problem.

DEAR READER — Several readers have been kind enough to write their thanks. I appreciate hearing from you. Apparently the La Pacha or Pau d'Arco treatment works. Thank you for describing the method you used; I wasn't quite sure exactly how to use the tea. Your suggestions may help other readers.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Have you ever played with an expert partner who insisted upon using a bidding convention with which you were a little unfamiliar? That was the plight facing Ann Riggs of Boca Raton, Florida, some months ago. The splinter bid. North's three-spade bid said, "I have a singleton spade, four-card heart support and a very good hand." But Ann Riggs was not immediately certain of that meaning. Perhaps North held six diamonds and five spades and a good hand. To be on the safe side, she bid three no-trump.

The situation changed when North confirmed what Ann had suspected all along by bidding four hearts. Now she launched into Blackwood. Her subsequent five no-trump bid guaranteed all the aces and invited a grand slam. Expert North was happy to go all the way. Although the slam would fail if either opponent held J-10-x-x in hearts, it was a high percentage contract.

Kudos to Ms. Riggs for making a strong recovery when she realized the full import of her partner's strong bidding. And maybe someday anonymous North will tell me why he responded one diamond to South's one-club opening bid.

Are We Making Headway Against Drunk Drivers?

By Bill Lehmann
UPI Feature Writer

The national crusade against drunken drivers has succeeded in parsing down the number of people killed in alcohol-related accidents, but to those leading the fight the totals — 22,000 dead in 1985 alone — are still appalling.

"It's a little too early to celebrate conquering the drinking driver problem," said George Marcelle, spokesman for the National Council on Alcoholism.

"The encouraging reduction in fatalities is a wonderful beginning, but the numbers are still unacceptable. The idea of more than 20,000 people being killed every year in alcohol-related accidents is still pretty outrageous."

National surveys indicate substantial headway is being made against drunken drivers:

—The number of alcohol-related traffic fatalities has shown a gradual decrease from 25,170 in 1982 to 22,360 in 1985, according to the National Center for Statistics and Analysis;

—Enforcement is up and so are arrests, as 1,426,700 motorists were charged with drunken driving in 1980 compared to 1,788,400 in 1985, according to the FBI;

—All but seven states have raised the legal drinking age to 21 as a result of pressure by the White House and Department of Transportation, which have threatened to withhold federal highway funds from states failing to comply;

—Police in virtually every state utilize sobriety check-point programs, randomly stopping motorists to catch those driving while intoxicated.

Support comes from all corners of the nation, most notably the federal government, where Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has declared, "Drunk drivers are public enemy No. 1."

500,000 Injuries

Nevertheless, improvement is slow and eradication will not happen soon.

'If we had a foreign country coming in and killing that many Americans each year, by God, we'd declare war and that's what MADD has done.'

The Department of Transportation figures nearly two-thirds of all Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related traffic accident in their lifetime. More than 800,000 people were injured in such accidents in 1985. Alcohol-related crashes continue to be the leading cause of death for Americans ages 18-24.

Repeat offenders are the worst. According to the National Commission Against Drunk Driving, an estimated 7 percent of all drivers account for about 40 percent of all alcohol-related accidents. Getting them off the streets is a persistent problem.

"If we had a foreign country coming in and killing that many Americans each year, by God, we'd declare war and that's what MADD has done," said Norma Phillips, president of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, an organization born in 1980 that now includes nearly 400 chapters. "We've just got to stand up and declare this cannot continue to happen."

Phillips' son, Dean, and his girlfriend, were killed in California on Thanksgiving Day in 1981 by a drunken driver, who was convicted and sentenced to two years in prison. He served one.

Under revamped California law today, the driver would face 8-10 years for the same offense. That's the case in many states — stricter laws and longer maximum sentences for alcohol-related traffic offenses.

But that does not mean drunken drivers are serving the time.

In Texas, state lawmakers toughened the punishment for drunken drivers guilty of involuntary manslaughter and ordered them sent to prison for at least 120 days even if they are granted probation.

In the Fort Worth area — where MADD's national headquarters are located — it was discovered that all seven cases handled by the local Tarrant County courts in 1985 involving drunken drivers guilty of involuntary manslaughter did not follow the law. An investigation by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram revealed none of the seven defendants was imprisoned as prescribed by law. Two spent several weekends in jail and all were granted probation.

Truth In Sentencing

The Tarrant County judges claimed confusion over the new law and promised to do better.

"We really need to look at truth in sentencing," said MADD's Phillips. "In some states, judges will give sentences of 10 years but people will actually stay in prison only two years."

"We're finding judges are giving them community service. But when people are out washing patrol cars, it doesn't appear to them that what they've done is a crime."

As on the highways, the push to clean up the drunken driving problems is making slow headway in the courtrooms.

Judge Robert McDuff, who presides in the Atlanta suburb of Cobb County, said the public perceived the drunken driver a decade ago in an almost-comical light.

"He was a good ol' boy and I think a lot of judges looked at DUIs in a similar light," McDuff said. "As the public has begun to focus on the problem, the court too has focused on it."

Today in many parts of the country, a person could be sentenced to lengthy prison terms only to be released within 30 days if they can muster the funds to enter a treatment program. Years ago, even repeat offenders rarely had to worry about prison at all.

Getting Off Easy

One thing McDuff would like to see changed is the fine for drunken driving in Cobb and elsewhere. The maximum fine for a misdemeanor, the classification for drunken driving in Cobb, now stands at $1,000 — same as it was more than 100 years ago.

"For certain segments of the population, a $1,000 fine just isn't anything," McDuff said.

While penalties generally have become harsher, most judges still do not vigorously send drunken drivers to jail no matter how many previous DUI offenses. Prison overcrowding is a serious problem and drunken drivers remain far down the court system's list of people requiring incarceration.

There also is a widespread feeling among many judges that rehabilitation — not prison — is not what drunken drivers need. There are more treatment programs than ever across the nation reaching more people than ever. But there remains a hard-core segment of society that is unreachable, even by the most effective programs and renowned doctors.

In classes of 15 to 35 at one Atlanta treatment center, one doctor figured "only one or two people will realize they need help."

"You still see a lot of smart asses," said the doctor, who asked not to be identified. "Defiant ones. People who sit in there and sneer. But I still think it's beneficial. Even if you're only reaching one or two people, it sure beats nothing."

MADD and other organizations wonder if it is, claiming too many drunken drivers continue to escape punishment through treatment programs and probation — escape routes supposedly blocked off by stricter laws.

"While MADD agrees with rehabilitation, we're not in favor of rehabilitation in lieu of punishment," said Phillips. "As for probation, what basically is happening is that people are not being monitored."

But there are other voices, perhaps not as loud as MADD's, that do not agree prison is the final answer to ridding the highways of drunken drivers.

"The only thing that works with problem drinkers is effective treatment," said Marcelle of the National Council on Alcoholism. "There's a long history of simply throwing drunks in jail and it just doesn't work. That isn't going to resolve the problem that causes them to drive when they've been drinking."

Education The Key

The issue comes around, every expert agrees, to education.

It is difficult to read any magazine, watch television or travel anywhere without crossing some reference to the evils of drunken driving. The consensus is more of the same — much more — is needed, starting with children in elementary school before they get to either the drinking or driving age.

"There seems to be a history that once the public focus moves to other issues than the incidence begins increasing again," Marcelle said. "It's important to keep this issue in the public eye."

For every person outraged by the horrors of a fatality caused by a drunken driver, there might be another person looking the other way.

"We've made a difference but we've barely scratched the surface," said MADD's Phillips.

It is still legal in many states to have open containers of alcohol in a moving vehicle, and there is nothing illegal about neon signs at gasoline stations flashing "Cold Beer" to lure thirsty motorists.

"Every society where alcohol is legal and some where it is illegal have a significant problem with alcohol-impaired drivers," said Brian O'Neill, president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. "It's one of the prices we pay for having alcohol. What we have to do is work as hard as we can to minimize the problem."
