

Military Training

Training course, each trainee would be transferred to the reserves for seven and a half years. The Defense Department would operate the whole program. UMT proposals have been before Congress off an ever since President George Washington's time. He recommended it—unsuccessfully—and many other Presidents have also tried to get it through Congress. The idea behind UMT is that the country's safety demands a large, trained force of young men who can be summoned to active duty—and who would be ready for demobilization. It is too expensive, the UMT argument runs, to maintain a huge standing army indefinitely. On the other hand, those opposed to UMT say that it is not really a reserve force. It is a standing force for training and might militarize the country. Each trainee would remain subject to call during the seven and a half years following his six months' basic training. The draft UMT bill includes these other "major points," according to Senator Russell. They are all connected with the draft, not UMT. 1. Persons deferred from induction for occupational reasons, such as a defense industry job or college study, remain liable for service until they are 35 years old. Under the present law liability ends when they reach 28. 2. Physical and mental standards for induction are cut back to about the same minimum levels used during 1945, or during the last war. Sponsors claim the new standards will make 150,000 men, previously selected and still in the present 10 through 25 year old draft pool, eligible for induction. 3. Authority for local draft boards to require conscientious objectors to take civilian jobs "contributing to the national health, safety or interest." At present they are merely deferred. Failure to comply could bring five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. 4. Expansion of the so-called "foreign legion" in the Army from 2,500 to 12,500 in the next five years. The Senate had proposed 125,000. These carefully screened aliens become eligible for seek citizenship after five years' honorable service. 5. Removal of the present limitation of two per cent of total strength of women in the Army services, such as the Army Wacs and Navy Waves. 6. A $500,000 ceiling upon military personnel in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines. The actual goal is 3,462,205. 7. Lowering of the minimum

Roy Wall Moves To His New Building

Roy Wall, plumber, who has been in business here for the past five years, moved recently into his new building at 1007 Sanford Avenue.

The building is of concrete-block construction, has a frontage of 36 feet and depth of 44 feet, and a 24 by 8 foot glass front. Lighting is fluorescent. Concrete floors are covered with asphalt tile, and ceiling material is asbestos. Adequate parking facilities have been provided for customers. Prior to coming to Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Wall were engaged in business in Tampa. They plan the opening of their new building during the next two weeks.

Taken under consideration was a $1,000 offer by William Phillips, home builder, for 25 lots on Willow Avenue, near Orange Avenue and the Sanford Park development.

A deal from Leo Hutner, granting right-of-way on Grapeville Avenue was approved, and construction work on the road is now due to proceed. An application for a railroad crossing on Red Avenue, near Oviedo, was approved.

draft age from 19 to 18½ with a requirement that local draft boards call all men available in the present 19 through 25 pool before calling any 18 year olds. 8. Extension of the required combined active duty and reserve service to 8 years. It now averages about six years. 9. Extension of the present 21 months' draft service to 24 months, and a similar term for reservists called to active duty. Reservists who qualify as veterans of the last war could ask for discharge after 17 months duty.

10. Deferral of high school students until graduation—or age 20—and college students until the end of the academic year. 11. Extension of the Draft Act, now due to expire July 9, to July 1, 1954.

12. Authority to the Secretary of Defense to regulate the use, possession, sale or traffic in beer, wine, and other alcoholic beverages in and near armed forces installations.

Korean War

Eumson indicated the Eighth Army was trying to provoke another Communist offensive, and if it doesn't come the Allies may sweep the Choswon-Kumhwa-Pyongyang area without a bitter fight.

"The Eighth Army sloggers are digging in again," he reported, "with only tank-led raiding parties lashing out at the frontlines."

This recalled Lt. General James A. Van Fleet's statement that his ground forces might provoke another premature Red offensive, such as they launched Apr. 22. If the Reds don't come out again, Eumson reported, "the U. S. soldier might walk right in" and take over the strategic flat lands.

Hints of a possible new type of warfare in Korea came in an unconfirmed report from Taipei. The China Union Press said 30,000 Soviet satellite troops have arrived in Red Korea.

The Chinese Nationalist agency said 1,000,000 conscripts are digging deep tunnels, immune to air and artillery attack, linking strong points from which this new force will fight.

Thirty thousand Red guerrillas still are operating in South Korea, a Korean Republic spokesman said. He reported 110,000 have been killed or captured since October.

The Eighth Army gave this picture of the front Wednesday: West only patrol action on the dragging left flank south of the 38th Parallel. Gains of up to two miles near Yonchon, six miles north of the border.

Center: U. N. forces gained a little more than a half mile in the Yonp'yong area; one to two miles to the east and northeast. Limited gains were made in the Hwachon area.

East: Reds put up heavy resistance north and northeast of Yangju at the eastern end of Hwachon Reservoir. This was the communists' only reference to heavy resistance.

AP correspondent George A. McArthur said fierce fighting flared all along the eastern sector from Yangju to Inju.

North Koreans, fighting stubbornly from their dugouts in the hills, held attacking Allies to slight gains above Yangju.

U. N. infantrymen attacked through a mortar barrage north and northeast of Inju. They hacked out small gains.

"Despite mounting Red resistance," McArthur reported, "there were no indications that the Communists were fighting anything but a defensive action."

He said no Chinese were encountered in the area, only North Koreans. The Fifth Air Force reported that with a lull in the rains it mounted 400 air strikes during the day. Pilots complained a low haze hampered their effectiveness.

The Eighth Army described virtually all ground fighting as light to moderate. But the headquarters view of what constitutes light or heavy fighting doesn't necessarily agree with the viewpoint of the doughboys.

Field reports said Allies were less than ten miles from Choswon, western gateway to the wide and long Pyongyang valley. The flat lands, beyond the rugged ridges over which the infantrymen are fighting, is ideal tank country.

The Pyongyang valley leads almost due north to the east coast port of Wonsan, which Allied naval units have battered daily for nearly four months.

A committee of teachers was appointed to work with the Seminole County School Board in obtaining needed information about teachers' salaries in adjoining counties, and average salaries paid in other states. The committee includes E. T. Milver, chairman, Paul Miller, Roger Harris, Mrs. Ruth Hamilton and Mrs. Egan Price.

The club voted that Mrs. Brock request the president of the County PTA Council to appoint a group to act as a Citizens Committee of Seminole County to work for a raise in teachers' salaries. This action was reported to have been in keeping with that of several adjoining counties.

Another called meeting of the Seminole County Teachers' Club is to be held on June 18. The hour and the place will be decided later.

Government Drops "Mother Hubbard" Anti-Trust Suit

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The government today dropped its so-called "Mother Hubbard" anti-trust suit against the U. S. petroleum industry.

Attorney General McGrath, in announcing the action, said the litigation—originally filed in September 1945—was too unwieldy for prosecution as a single case.

Instead, he said, the Justice Department has decided to press individual anti-trust cases against various segments of the oil industry in actions involving fewer defendants and more limited issues.

The "Mother Hubbard" case was brought against the American Petroleum Institute and 357 corporations engaged in various phases of the petroleum business.

Among lawyers, it has often been said facetiously that the case was never brought to trial because the government did not have a court house big enough to hold all of the defendants and their attorneys.

Dismissal of the case was obtained in the U. S. District Court here.

The leftist organ Ruznameh Ayandeh declared Mossadeq's "unclear, vague" policy is helping AIOC to postpone enactment of the oil law.

The newspaper Shahed, a supporter of Mossadeq's national front, charged the oil company with a "fox" British trick because it said it could not get its representatives here for the midnight deadline last Monday the government originally set for beginning of the talks.

In London the British cabinet approved a four-man AIOC mission to leave for Tehran this week. It includes Sir Thomas Gardner, one of the government's two representatives on the oil company's directorate. The British government owns more than 50 per cent of the stock in the company.

Iran's government, however, continued to delay its moves to finally take over the oil properties. Deputy Prime Minister Hussein Fatemi said today the three-man temporary board of directors set up to run the nationalized oil industry "may leave" Thursday for Khuzestan Province, site of the chief Anglo-Iranian holdings.

after the aggression stopped, that was the place where it should be considered.

"There is not anything in our action to indicate that the United States changed its attitude on these problems in any way, or that it would change its attitude in any of the discussions, but it was considered, and I think soundly, that if the aggression ceased, these matters were the subject of discussion."

Critics have contended the United States by endorsing this plan had risked a situation in which it would have been outvoted by a coalition of the Red Chinese, British and Russian representatives.

"We're not moving into a rather unhealthy climate to discuss these matters before that (United Nations) committee," Russell asked.

"No, sir," Acheson said. An "appropriate body," he said, "could be a very much larger body, and indeed it would have been our purpose to have insisted that it should have included all of the FEC (Far Eastern Command) powers who

"Yet the opponents of direct controls still say all this would have happened anyway," he said. "If that is true, why didn't it happen until a general (price) freeze order was issued?"

DiSalle said these critics propose three things: 1—Tightening up on federal spending; 2—Curbing public and private credit expansion on 3—Increasing taxes "where they will most help take the pressure off markets already under strain."

DiSalle said he "wholeheartedly subscribed" to the idea of eliminating any waste in government spending and favored credit controls with allowance for credit expansion to finance defense production.

On taxes, he said, the critics have not said where the tax loads would fall or how high those taxes should be.

"Intentionally enough," he added, "the suggestion comes from sources ordinarily opposed to higher taxes on the grounds that higher taxes blunt incentives and interfere with productive capacity."

are interested in foreign questions—at least those powers: there may be others, too." "We should have proposed for discussion other problems also," he said, in addition to Formosa and U. N. representation.

"So that there is nothing in this resolution to indicate that the nations named were to be the only nations who will discuss these matters nor is there anything in the resolution to indicate that the two problems mentioned were to be the only problems."

One point in the proposed cease fire agreement called for the Formosa and China representation issues to be considered by "an appropriate body which shall include representatives of" Britain, France, the United States, Roviet Russia and the Chinese Red government. That was the "committee" to which Russell made reference.

It was Acheson's fifth day of testimony at the inquiry. As have all witnesses, he testified behind closed doors but a stenographic report of what was said was given to newsmen after first going through the hands of censors.

There was nothing in the first portions of the transcript to indicate any notice had been taken of charges Senator Brewster (R-Maine) made against Acheson in a Senate speech yesterday. Brewster accused the Secretary of State of "bare faced distortion" in reviewing U. S. Far Eastern policies for the senators.

Allies Straddle Two Hills Dominating Red "Iron Triangle" Area

Chinese Battle Desperately To Save Piled Up Supplies In Chorwon Region

TOKYO, June 7—(AP)—Allied troops today straddled the two most important mountains guarding the approaches to Chorwon and Kumhwa, Red strongholds in North Korea.

Sweating United Nations infantrymen clambered to the top of 2,700 foot (Mount Kodae four miles) south of Chorwon.

(The name and location of the mountain were deleted by the censor, but neither this story nor previous censored field dispatches left any doubt as to the identity of the mountain.)

From this height the Allies dominate the mountain road and valley corridor up which other troops were pushing. They are in position to pump artillery fire into battered Chorwon, 17 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Further to the east mid-cavalry United Nations troops Wednesday seized 3,100 foot Kwangdok Mountain, southwest of Kumhwa, a delayed front line dispatch said. The mountain looks up another valley route and towers over hills to the north.

Allies bent off a series of battalion-sized counterattacks early Thursday morning on the road to Kumhwa, then they clawed their way 2,000 yards closer to the southeastern corner of the Red's prized "Iron Triangle."

Many units burned up their normal supply of ammunition early in the attack. Tanks re-supplied them, turning a gantlet of Chinese artillery and mortar fire.

To the east, Allied troops were driven from one prominent ridge (Continued on Page Two)

5 Youths Caught Setting Dynamite Blasts In Miami

MIAMI, June 7—(AP)—Five teenage youths were detained by police today in an investigation of a series of dynamite blasts set off against public buildings in the Miami area.

Officers are sought to uncover dynamite caches of the youths who, police were told, sometimes carried as many as 60 sticks of the explosive in their car.

Questioned by police and booked for investigation, according to Deputy Capt. William J. Hines, are Alex John Pennell, 18, former Miami High School student and now a University of Miami freshman; Samuel Chambers, 17, member of Miami Senior High School's 1951 graduating class; Donald I. Reed, 18, also a Miami High School senior; John and James Stefanick, 17-year-old Miami High school twins.

The series of mystery blasts that have rocked whole areas but caused only minor damage was climaxed Tuesday night by the dynamiting of a half-built Miami Jewish Center.

Howard said one youth told of retreating with his companions to a soda shop near Miami Jackson High School to listen for the explosion of eight sticks of dynamite planted against the school on the night of Mar. 7. The explosion blew out 127 panes of glass in the school.

A similar blast rocked Shedd Junior High School on the night of Mar. 26. The same night dynamite exploded against the walls of a downtown hotel, leaving 75 to 100 windows.

Detectives said they got the impression the Jackson High School explosion was the outgrowth of Keen High School football rivalry.

The youths will be brought before the Dade county solicitor today for further questioning, Howard said.

MISS FLORIDA
MIAMI BEACH, June 7—(AP)—Mary Godwin, a tall, blonde 19-year-old from Gainesville, was chosen Miss Florida early today at a beauty pageant held in connection with the Junior Chamber of Commerce convention.

She is a freshman at the University of Florida, five feet eight inches in height and weighs 122 pounds. She will represent Florida at the Miss America contest in Atlantic City, N. J., in September.

Miss Godwin was chosen at the Casa Blanca Hotel, Miami Beach, in the early morning hours after the contest was moved from Bayfront Park because of heavy rain.

British Diplomats Are Suspected Of Infecting To Reds

Head Of Department For United States Missing From Home

LONDON, June 7—(AP)—Two British Foreign Service officials—one the head of the American Department—have disappeared amid speculation they might have gone behind the Iron Curtain.

The Foreign Office announced today the two men have been missing from their homes since May 25.

The two are D. D. MacLean, 38, head of the American Department of the Foreign Office, and G. F. De M. Burgess, 49, who returned here on leave last month from his post as second secretary of the British Embassy in Washington.

A Foreign Office spokesman declined to speculate on the whereabouts of the two, but a search by police and intelligence operatives has been started both here and in France.

"There is no reason to believe that they have taken any official papers with them," the spokesman told questioning newsmen.

As head of the American Department, MacLean would have a complete and thorough knowledge of top Anglo-American diplomatic secrets. Burgess, having served in Britain's Washington embassy, would be in a similar position.

The London Daily Express said the two men, until a friend they planned to go to Moscow to "serve their idealistic purpose."

The London Daily Herald said M. L. S. Britain's ultra-secret military counterespionage arm—has been hunting the two men.

The Foreign Office issued this formal statement: "Two members of the Foreign Service have been missing from their homes since May 25th. One is Mr. D. D. MacLean, the other Mr. G. F. De M. Burgess. All possible inquiries are being made. It is known that they went to France a few days ago."

Mr. MacLean had a breakdown June 5, after going to overstrain, but was believed to have fully recovered.

"Owing to their being absent without leave both have been suspended with effect from the first of June."

In reply to questions, a Foreign Office spokesman added: "We have no information of their whereabouts since they left this country."

The spokesman refused to comment on the Daily Express report that the two may be making their way to Russia or to Soviet-dominated Eastern Europe.

The Express said all French aircraft and frontiers are being watched, that plain clothes detectives are searching Paris' Montmartre district, and that a check was being kept on visitors to the Soviet Embassy in London.

MacLean is the son of the late Sir Donald MacLean, leader of Britain's Liberal Party, and Lady MacLean. He entered the Foreign Office in 1942.

Two Sanford men who are senior ROTC Cadets at Stetson University will attend a six week summer training program at Camp Gordon, Ga., beginning June 17.

They are Laurier A. Beard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beard and Sylvan J. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Davis.

Cadet Beard is a Marine Corps veteran of World War II and Cadet Davis is a Navy veteran of the same war. They will participate in a variety of field exercises at the Military Police Corps Camp, designed to develop qualities of leadership and increase technical knowledge.

Upon completion of the summer camp, Cadet Beard will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Organized Reserve Corps.

Lucas was driving an anti-aircraft truck with the U. S. 7th Infantry Division in Korea. An enemy bullet went through the windshield ricocheted from a metal bracket, cracked Lucas' lip, chipped two front teeth and poked up against his tongue.

Lucas shook his head and spat out the bullet.

Russian Armies Mass Menacingly On Iran's Border

Negotiations Between Britain And Iran Are Bugged Down

TEHRAN, Iran, June 7—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady said today intelligence reports indicated increased Soviet military activity along Iran's northern frontier. But he added he saw "nothing particularly significant" in the reports.

Authoritative government officials in confidential reports that unusually large Russian military concentrations had been seen on the northern frontier and that Soviet battle exercises are continuing in that area.

The Soviet armies were described as engaging in "unprecedented" military maneuvers on both sides of the Caspian Sea. Iranian border police have heard the sounds of gunfire continuously for three days.

Grady made his statement at a news conference when queried about the reports. He said U. S. intelligence knows that there has been some increase in Russian defensive fortifications, but nothing further. Other sources said the Soviets have installed a giant field gun opposite an Iranian guard post along the Azerbaijan frontier.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, and Iran's army chief of staff have been informed of the latest developments along the frontier.

The larger activity reports come in the midst of tension between Britain and Iran over the nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

A crowd of more than 2,000 enthusiastic supporters of nationalization jammed the railroad station this morning as two of Iran's three temporary directors of the country's oil industry left for southern Khuzestan province—the oil field area.

The crowd cheered wildly as (Continued on Page Four)

Peron Inspired Article Blasts United States

Interference In Internal Affairs Of Argentina Claimed; News Agencies Hit

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 7—(AP)—Democracia, a semi-official newspaper, which speaks authoritatively for the government charged today the United States is financing a campaign to discredit Argentina.

This is an added indication of worsening U. S.-Argentine relations since the government shut down and seized the independent newspaper La Prensa, an action sharply criticized in the United States.

The Democracia editorialist signed "Descartes," believed to be a pen-name of President Juan D. Peron himself. It said U. S. policy is being "conducted by amateurs," adding that this was particularly true with regard to Argentina.

The editorialist said that since the time the economic blockade by the U. S. sought to sabotage and boycott Argentine economy and that the U. S. embassy in Buenos Aires provided huge sums to "defame our country."

The editorialist attacked the Associated Press and the United Press, describing them as "official or semi-official agencies charged with disseminating false news in order to discredit our country in the world." (Actually, neither agency has any connection with the U. S. or other governments.)

The writer said newspaper and radio campaigns in Brazil and Uruguay, "financed by dollars and pesos and calumnies."

"Documents prove that the United States embassy has directed a campaign against Argentina in Mexico," said the editorialist.

This seemed to be a reference to a recent unsupported news story by a small Latin American news agency from Mexico that "Lt. General Harry Henson" had predicted invasion of Argentina and other countries which would not bow to the will of the U. S. Lt. General Henson said he had received a campaign against Argentina in Mexico.

Loxett said, "We have provided funds to support the essential procurement programs through these minimum lead time periods (the time required to get contracts in work started and the product rolling from manufacturing lines)."

In addition, if subsequent evaluations of the world situation require "additional forces or further expanded procurement, it may be necessary for us to request additional funds during fiscal year 1952."

Loxett told the committee it is impossible to estimate how much of the military outlay (Continued on Page Two)

Judges for the Miss Sanford Beauty Contest to be held at 9:00 o'clock tonight at the Ritz Theater will be Mrs. Helen Bennett, Orlando; Lloyd Galtner, Leesburg; and Lieut. (jg) John Russell, of the Sanford Auxiliary Naval Air Station.

The contest is being sponsored by the Business and Professional Woman's Club.

Stinecipher, Hall To Represent Kiwanis

J. W. Hall will represent the Sanford Kiwanis Club as delegates at the Kiwanis International Convention in St. Louis, June 12 through the 14th.

Mr. Stinecipher, vice president of the club, will leave Friday with his wife and daughter to spend a week in Chattanooga, Tenn., and attend a family reunion before going on to St. Louis. The family, he said, includes seven sisters and two brothers.

Sportsmen's Fish Fry Attended By Over 200 People

Williams Is Praised By Porter Lansing For Fish Law Vote

George Miller, president of the Seminole County Sportsmen's Association, welcomed more than 200 members, their wives, children and guests at a fish fry at Mullet Lake Park last evening.

The menu was tasty and included a variety of fish, corn on the cob, salad, bread, coffee and soft drinks.

Using sound track facilities, Porter Lansing, president of the Florida Wildlife Association, State Representative Volie Williams, and Mr. Maxine Holgren, Lincoln County, Del. and recording secretary of the Wildlife Association and past president of the Volusia Sportsmen's Association and Wade Priest, chief wildlife officer of the Fifth District, made brief talks.

Mr. Lansing protested against the findings of a special committee that had recommended commercial fishing north of the Volusia Bar on the St. Johns River and in Lake Okechobee on the grounds that there is an over-supply of salt fish in those areas.

Mr. Lansing thanked Mr. Lansing and the Association for the commendation, but pointed out that the vote of the Legislature was done for what he considered the best interest of all of the people.

He declared that if this pleased the sportsmen, he was glad and that the interest of the people would be served by the Legislature. He reviewed a number of bills handled in the House and Senate which were in any way related to sports, fishing and hunting.

One of the bills, which would have allowed retention of the hunting and fishing rights was sponsored by Mr. Williams, who also quoted Lynn Twinn, commander of the Disabled American Veterans Post, as having been against the bill.

Mr. Holgren told the Sportsmen that their own holding an outing to be sponsored by entire families was progressively as a means of cementing family ties and combating the loneliness of the family life brought about by the automobile and other modern forms of transportation and sources of entertainment that ended toward separation.

"When we seek recreation together as a family we begin to know each other better, to be patient, understanding and considerate," she declared. "When families are more closely knit together, the entire country must of necessity be more closely knit together."

Mr. Jones praised the work of Mr. Lansing in behalf of sportsmen, and commended Mr. Williams and Mr. Boyle for their efforts for conservation.

Assisting in cooking, providing supplies, selling tickets and making the outing a success were E. V. Turner, Carl Carlton, Bob Williams, James Simgularity, P. A. Metz, John Welch, Hal Johnson and C. C. Whittington.

Bar Members Asked To Attend Induction

William Akerman, chairman of the program committee of the Orange County Bar Association, has invited attorneys of Sanford and Seminole County to attend the short program Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Orange County Court House, Orlando, for the purpose of formally inducting the Hon. Terry H. Patterson into his office as new Circuit Judge.

In a letter to State Senator L. F. Boyle, Mr. Akerman wrote, "We would also appreciate your contacting the members of your county delegation to the legislature, advising them of the program and extending to them a cordial invitation to attend."

DRAFT BILL
WASHINGTON, June 7—(AP)—House passage sent to President Truman today a bill lowering the draft age to 18½ years and laying the groundwork for Universal Military Training.

Acheson Declares U.S. Cannot At Present Halt Occupation Of Europe By Russia

WASHINGTON, June 7—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson today called a "hard question" whether Russia could stop the Korean war even if it minded.

Acheson made the statement in response to questions at the Senate's MacArthur hearings. Previously, the Senators had heard top U. S. military men testify they believed Russia could call off the fighting in Korea.

Like the military men, Acheson said he does not believe the United States has the military strength yet to prevent Russia from overrunning Europe if the Soviets turn to aggression there.

Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) asked of Acheson "has enough influence to bring enough pressure to bear to stop the aggression in Korea if it wanted to?"

Acheson said "that is a hard question for me to answer. It is purely in the realm of speculation. I think the Kremlin's influence will be very helpful if directed in that line."

Also in response to Lodge's questions, Acheson said: "I believe 'good use' is being made of the time which, as far as we are concerned, is being made for us in Korea." Acheson Lodge phrased it, "our men are doing 'everybody involved in the effort wishes that things could go faster, but I don't know of any way myself in which they could be made to go faster.'"

He does not think the U. S. made a "mistake" when it pulled its troops out of Korea in June, 1949, Acheson said it was the recommendation of the United Nations, and also "the recommendation of our military establishment. I think our troops were much more seriously needed somewhere else."

He would not favor pulling U. S. troops out of Europe.

He agreed with Lodge it was a mistake for the U. S. to have disbanded so rapidly in 1946.

Under questioning from Lodge and other Senators, Acheson said whether, in retrospect, Acheson did not think that agreement was (Continued on Page Two)

Officers Elected At Annual Meet Of Farm Co-operative

The Seminole County Veterans Farm Co-operative, at its annual annual meeting held at the High School Farm Building, elected four officers and four members to the board of directors.

Samuel A. Tindel was re-elected president; Charles T. Thawson, vice president; Ross D. Hunter, secretary and Carl F. Lind, treasurer.

The following directors were re-elected for another year: George W. Arnold, Theodore Austin, Jr., Roger Bimney, and Frank Jones. George M. Jankis was elected to fill the unexpired term of Louis Matheson who re-entered the Naval service several months ago.

Guy Schimel, Homer E. Carter and John Peterson will serve as advisors.

The committee in charge of the Co-operative's packing house reported, said Mr. Peterson, successful cash sale of all products, and stated that more buyers than usual at this time of year had been attracted.

They were unable to fill out all orders received. The venture has proved so successful, that plans are being made to operate on a year-around basis and handle all commodities that they can process and sell, F.O.B.

Plans were made to cooperate with the Seminole County Farm Bureau and the Veterans On The Farm Training Class on June 16. The City Commission recently authorized these groups to use the play ground, swimming pool, shuffleboard courts and picnic tables for the occasion. This use will not be exclusive, however.

ORION: OCTOBER (From Wake)

AS FIRELOGS hiss, Orion gleams
Recurrent in the eastern cloud;
And did when not a roof was here,
Nor any brain to think him old.

MARY VAN DOREN

An honest man is likely to trust those around him. A dishonest man cannot trust anyone because he attributes his own qualities to everyone else.

We see by the papers that Calgary, Canada, is paralyzed by a snow storm. Just now we would be in the mood to exchange some of our perspiration for some of their paralysis.

In another ten years, we are told, the improving standard of living will require us to learn to live 25 percent better than we do now. Out in Texas that would mean everyone would have to buy another quarter of a Cadillac.

Telephone poles are a substitutal part of the means by which we enjoy one of our most used channels of communication.
Oddly enough, they are also the means by which certain motorists learn that it doesn't pay to hit an immovable object at 60 miles an hour.

Our U. S. Ambassador Henry
F. Grady has suggested to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company that it provide funds to the Iranian government "to sweeten the discussions" over nationalization of the country's oil resources. This is no less than we can expect when most of our foreign policies are based on political techniques which had their origin in Missouri where the late Tom Pendergast once ruled the roost and his successors now are "cock of the walk."

The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to raise the capital gains tax on both corporations and individuals from the present 25 percent to 28 percent. Citizens who have any concern over their financial well-fare should write their senators and representatives in Congress to vote against this iniquitous tax bill. You may think this piece of legislation won't affect you but if you bought a home a few years ago for $3,000 and sell it in the near future for $9,000 almost 30 percent of your profit will go to the federal government.

In the Senate passed a supplementary defense appropriation bill. Defense officials were attacked sharply with charges that they are not doing as much as they might to hold down the cost of the military expansion. Such attacks are not unusual, as wastefulness is almost a standing accusation against the military services, made not only by senators and representatives but also by an overwhelming majority of voters, who base their remarks on their own observations.
It is neither fair nor accurate to say that nothing is done about it.
In the general reorganization required by the unification program, and in other specific reform measures, some of the reform recommendations of the Hoover Commission, the services have done many of the things which formerly seemed impossible. They have improved some of their equipment and purchasing methods.

Petaim's Long Life

His own happiness might have been greater had he not lived so long. This must be the verdict over Henri Philippe Petaim, field marshal and former head of the French state, gravely ill at 95, imprisoned on an island.

His army career in World War I was of great service to France. He was a capable subordinate, to whom the chief command was entrusted when a series of reckless attacks had decimated the French forces and brought many of the survivors to mutiny. Petaim, calm, paternal and firm, inspected the entire army, listened to grievances and repressed them, restored the soldiers' morale and gradually brought them back to fighting pitch. Without his contribution, Foch's final victory would not have been possible.

Even then the observant could have noted one defect, his profound pessimism, which could easily become defective. World War II saw this quality burst into full flower. In 1919, when France collapsed before Hitler, the 34-year-old Petaim was summoned to save the remains of a once-great state. Convinced that all was lost for France and that England would follow immediately, Petaim surrendered, and became a caretaker for the Nazis. Occasionally under pressure from the United States, he held out against the obedience to the Nazis which was the policy of the traitorous Pierre Laval. But at his great age he was incapable of sustained effort, and was often found dozing and forgetful. After the war he was tried for treason, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

This was a sad end to a great career. The reason may have been that he carried burdens which never should have been given to a man of 84.

Election Ethics

The Senate subcommittee which is to study ethics in government will give part of its attention to political campaign practices. The question has been raised whether there is much to be gained from a congressional inquiry into general matter of ethics. The examination of election tactics might provide a strong answer to this question.

The methods by which candidates seek election can be an indication of their character and probable fitness for office. The campaigner who resorts to slandering his opponent is usually trying to blind the voter to the real issues. Some politicians manage to circumvent the spirit of laws regulating election practices, while they conform to the letter of the law. In doing so they demonstrate an attitude toward law which is a dubious qualification for officeholders.

Honesty, like other virtues, is often destroyed by compromise. The man who would not himself indulge in shady campaign tactics, but who finds it acceptable to benefit by such tactics carried out by his supporters, may not be too hard to persuade to misuse the power of a public office.

If the committee can make unethical campaign practices clear to the public eye, without indulging in personal accusations, its work will be useful. If it does no more than catalogue the methods by which unscrupulous politicians tame the citizens, its service will be great. Most citizens want good ethics in government. Perhaps we are not skillful enough at recognizing good and bad ethics at the time when recognition counts most—election time.

Untouchable Files

Don't put all the blame on the so-called bureaucrats if they waste time and money in making unnecessary copies of letters and documents. Tiling them away and getting hold of them afterwards. They are not the only ones. Dr. Luther Gullick, who is heading an efficiency survey for Mayor Mupfelter of New York City, told the League of Women Voters that banks, railroads and insurance companies are just as bad. They all make unneeded copies of ephemeral letters, and then keep them till the end of time.

Dr. Gullick's survey has taken over as one of its functions the discarding of this rubbish. It got one city department head to throw away 73 per cent of his filed materials. Taxpayers generally look askance at the creation of new offices, but it might be worth while to establish an official throw-away. He would have to be deaf to such ideas as that of the fabled department head who, asked if a truckload of unimportant documents could not be thrown away, replied, "Yes, provided you make copies of them."

If the United States is ever destroyed, it and may come from suffocation under unnecessary documents.

His brother, Alan MacLean, is secretary to Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's representative on the United Nations Security Council.
He is now on leave in England.
Burgess during the war was a member of the News Department of the Foreign Office. As such, he frequently acted as the Foreign Office spokesman.

He went to Washington as Second Secretary in 1939. Foreign Office officials expected that he would receive routine reassignment to another post at the end of his home leave here.
If the two missing men have gone into the Soviet sphere, it could be the biggest break in British security since Prof. Bruno Pontecorvo slipped across to the east last October. A nuclear physicist, he was regarded as the atom bomb research establishment's most valuable man in Canada, also. Pontecorvo, an Italian-born naturalized British citizen, disappeared after a vacational visit with relatives in Italy and was reported to have entered the Soviet Union through Finland.
One report said Pontecorvo had just been working on research in tritium, a raw material in the hydrogen bomb.

Eight months before that another naturalized Briton, German-born scientist Klaus Fuchs, was convicted of sending atom secrets to Russia and sentenced to 14 years in prison.
MacLean was married to an American, Melinda Marling in 1940, by special permission of the Foreign Office. They have one son born in New York in 1946. Neither his wife nor his child was with MacLean when he disappeared.

Both missing men carried diplomatic passports, and they are believed to have left the country before their official departure on June 4. It is a loss to say whether the men left by ship or plane.

would be needed for fighting the war in Korea.
"It does not appear feasible even now to attempt to forecast the extent to which additional funds may be required to support our efforts in Korea," he said.

Instead, he added, it is proposed to use production financed under this budget to give first priority to the demands of the Korean war and then ask Congress later for funds to meet these obligations.
Lovett said the budget proposal is based on action of the National Security Council which approved an armed force setup in the next fiscal year of about 3,500, 000 men. (Some estimates have ranged slightly higher than that.) The armed force would be composed as follows:
1. An Army organized into 18 divisions plus a number of regimental combat teams and supporting units. (A division is 18,000 men; the size of a regimental combat team varies, usually between 4,000 and 7,000.) 2. A Navy of 1,100 ships with necessary aircraft and supporting elements.

3. A Marine force of 2 1/3 divisions. The Marines now have two divisions. The Defense Department opposes current legislation which expands the Marine force even beyond the 2 1/3 divisions.
4. An Air Force "to continue building toward a 96-wing structure and certain separate squadrons and supporting units." (Present strength of the Air Force is about 95 wings. The size of wings depends on the type of planes. A medium bomb wing of B-29s is 45 planes. The "wing" is the group of planes plus the support and service units which are part of the wing.)

cacy beloved of gourmets, is a fungi which grows underground.

THE NATION TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—

There was a chance, but there's not much now, that this country and its Allies could sit down and talk with Russia about some way of restoring peace to the world, peacefully.

They've been talking about it for three months now, but not really talking about ways of finding peace. They've really only been talking of how they later could talk about ways of finding it.

Now even the talk about talk seems hopeless. By going back a bit you can trace the road they followed to this dead end.
Because the Western Nations—the United States, Britain, France and nine others—were afraid of a Russian attack, they made a military alliance, the North Atlantic Pact, in April, 1949.

But in June, 1950, Communism went to the attack. It was the since that pact was signed. The move was not in Europe, but in Korea. This country and some of its Allies threw men in to stop the aggression.

It was and is a serious fight for the United States and its Allies unity and their ability to wage war. Their ability to wage war was a lot weaker than had been suspected.

Last September in New York
Secretary of State Acheson met with the foreign ministers of the other 11 partner-nations and there they set up machinery at last for really unifying, or working together, on military defense.

(It was there, too, that Acheson suggested the Allies arm some of the Germans and let them take their place in the Allied ranks.)
So the pact was made and General Dwight D. Eisenhower was appointed supreme commander of this unified Allied military force in Europe.

Then on Nov. 3, Russia, who eyed this Atlantic Pact with misgivings, suggested that the foreign ministers of the Big Four—
U. S., Britain, France, Russia—meet to discuss the disarmament of Germany.

Right there the word-slanging began. For five months the Big Four, in a high-toned diplomatic style, argued and argued among themselves as to whether there should be such a meeting and what should be discussed.

Russia said she wanted to talk about a number of things. For instance, on the "unification" of Germany, she wanted $8,000,000,000 for the West and $5,000,000,000 for the East. She also wanted 600,000 live in the Western zone occupied by the U. S., France, and Britain.)

Finally they agreed there'd be a meeting. But not a meeting of the foreign ministers. Just a meeting of the foreign ministers who'd draw up a list—called an agenda by the diplomats—of the things that the foreign ministers would talk about when they met.

So on Mar. 5 the deputy foreign ministers—Phillip C. Jessup represented the United States—went down in Paris to begin talking about what the foreign ministers should talk about.

They have now met 65 times.
The hair-splitting over words and phrases that went on in these meetings is almost unbelievable.
Still, they reached some agreements on what the agenda for the foreign ministers should be. For example: "International terrorism,"
"peace treaties for Germany and Austria, and the problem of German disarmament."

But about everything, they disagreed on this: Russia wanted the Atlantic Pact placed on the agenda as something the foreign ministers should be talking about. "International terrorism,"
"peace treaties for Germany and Austria, and the problem of German disarmament."

And that's where the four deputy foreign ministers in Paris ran into a dead end. The Paris meeting had bogged down so badly that on May 9 Secretary Acheson held a news conference in Washington that this country had about come to the end of its rope in negotiating with the Russians —except for a Big Four meeting of the foreign ministers.

Still, in what must have been the last effort to save the whole line of a peace meeting from ruin, the only meeting that Thursday, May 31, that the four foreign ministers met in Washington on July 5.

The Russians threw a torpedo in this Monday when they gave their answer, which amounted to this:
"Fine, we'll meet in Washington.
But you must agree we shall agree over this whole problem of the Atlantic Pact and U. S. bases in Europe."

AND that seems about the end of the whole effort. It's a standoff, with both sides trying to convince the other that this country is not a threat to the other's peace and that the failure of a conference is the fault of the other.

80 To 100 Killed In Brazil Wreck; Train Hits Truck

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 7.—(AP)—

A jammed commuter train hit a stalled gasoline truck near here today and a spokesman for the railroad said at least 80 persons—and perhaps as many as 100—burned to death in flaming gasoline. Fifty other persons were hurt.

The spokesman for the line—the government's railway central to Brazil—said the blazing gas-sprayed the first passenger car as the engine hit the truck. Then the engineer, trying frantically to halt his train, stopped so that the last car was in the middle of the burning wreckage of the truck. All the deaths occurred in the first and last cars.

The train was enroute from Quilombos to Rio. It hit the truck, carrying 1,500 gallons of gasoline, near the town of Nova Friburgo at about 4:25 A.M.

The spokesman said fire caused all the deaths and that, frackly-ing, all the deaths occurred in the first and last cars. He said this was the account he received.
The engine hit the truck on the tracks and continued forward with gasoline spewed from the truck landing upon and within the first passenger car. The engineer flamming on his brakes and sparks from the wheels apparently set off a big explosion and fire.

The engine slid along the wet tracks, unable to stop until the last car came to rest in the middle of the wreckage of the blazing truck.

Acheson Testifies

"a tragic miscalculation."
"No, I don't share that view," Acheson replied.
After general references to the European arms aid program,
Acheson asked Acheson:
"Do you think today we are able to insure that our Allies will not suffer occupation and destruction?"

Acheson said: "Not with the forces available today."
At another point Acheson said it was the Defense Department which ruled out "hot pursuit" of enemy planes across the Korean-Manchurian border.

Acheson told senators investigating the loss of General Douglas MacArthur that the State Department simply relayed to the military department the reaction of six other members of the United Nations to the idea.

The six had not asked about the plan, but asked to pass upon it.

Earlier in the hearings, when military men were in the witness chair, it was developed that the "hot pursuit" plan got top level approval here late last year but was never put into effect because of objections from other U. N. members. The other nations were concerned that flying over Chinese territory might greatly widen the Korean war.

Acheson was testifying for the sixth day at hearings by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees into MacArthur's dismissal.

In other high spots:
1. Acheson said there was no connection in his opinion between the Far Eastern concessions made to Russia at Yalta and the defeat of the Chinese Nationalist leader, welcomed the agreements which gave Russia entry into Manchuria through concessions at Port Arthur and Dairen.

2. Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) demanded an investigation of gold credits the United States extended to Nationalist China in 1942. McMahon said he thinks the American taxpayers were "robbed" by a "corrupt gang of crooks" in the clique around Chiang.

Questioning of Acheson was suspended at 11:03 A. M. EST.
for lunch. He was asked to return at 1:30 P. M. EST.

Senator Cain (R-Wash.) raised with Acheson the question of why he did not crush and discredit the "hot pursuit" plan which he said still ought to be carried out —had been dropped.

Acheson said the reaction of the six other nations against the proposal was relayed to the Defense Department.
"After this information was conveyed to the Defense Department, the Joint Chiefs of Staff
decided that they would not engage in this tactical operation,
and therefore it was not necessary to go further," Acheson said.

MacArthur had advocated the
"hot pursuit." General Hoyt Vandenberg, chief of staff of the Air Force, testified to the senators that the pursuit was proposed to give additional protection to American bomber pilots and lift the morale of U. S. fighter pilots.

line by Red counterattacks at noon. Elsewhere in the mountainous east the Allied advance grounded to a halt in the face of stubborn North Koreans.

"They've suffered tremendous losses," a U. N. officer said.
"The bodies must be stacked on each other."

The U. N. advance in the west was paced by infantrymen storming up Mount Koda, four miles southwest of Chorwon. They pushed the Chinese back to a point 40 miles from the deepest penetration of their abortive spring offensives.

Atop the 2,700 foot Mt. United Nations forces dominate entrance-ways to the Chorwon-Kumbyu-Yonggang triangle. On their left is the Seoul-Chorwon highway.
On their right is the opening of Pyeonggang valley, which splits the triangle.

Chorwon itself lies in front of the low hills straddling between the Allies and the city.

But front dispatches said the Reds have quit retreating. They've dug in to fight.

The U. S. Eighth Army communique Thursday night reported the smallest gains of its counteroffensive. Distances were given for two advances.

Troops capturing Koda, and their supporting forces, gained 1,000 to 2,000 yards, through artillery and mortar fire. Flanking units spreading west across the Imji River near Yonchon ran into bitter fights.

U. N. forces on the east flank, spearing toward the center of the Iron Triangle, advanced 2,000 yards. Ceasefire obscured their position.

Elsewhere, where the Allies rained at aid, it was an inch-advance paced by probing tank forces.

Reds threw up their heaviest artillery batteries of the war.
Some captured hills were strewn with equipment and bodies of Communist soldiers.

"Heavy enemy resistance" was reported from the eastern dike toward Kumhwa on across the rest of the front.

Despite air and artillery power the Allies were able to make only two small penetrations of the Red wall in the east. A correspondent George A. McArthur reported.

North Koreans stuck to their low-topped bunkers and foxholes.
They hit back at attacking U. N.
forces with sporadic mortar and 105 millimeter artillery fire.

Communists have held one spiny ridge north of Inje for four days, despite ceaseless air and artillery bombardment and repeated infantry attacks. U. N. infantrymen pushed up the ridge four times Thursday. Each time they were driven back by machinegun and rifle fire.

Acheson said the reaction of
the six other nations against the
proposal was relayed to the Defense Department.

"After this information was conveyed to the Defense Department, the Joint Chiefs of Staff
decided that they would not engage in this tactical operation,
and therefore it was not necessary to go further," Acheson said.

MacArthur had advocated the
"hot pursuit." General Hoyt Vandenberg, chief of staff of the Air Force, testified to the senators that the pursuit was proposed to give additional protection to American bomber pilots
and lift the morale of U. S. fighter pilots.

HOLLYWOOD

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—(AP)—Honors for the youngest and handsomest film producer on this continent would probably go to Miguel Aleman, Jr., son of the president of Mexico.

Nineteen-year-old Aleman was here for three days this week to talk to Hollywood film moguls about his new production company, which is being set up to make films in Mexico.

"I am not here to finalize anything," he told me in his hotel suite. "This was despite reports that he had signed up Ann Sheridan and Joseph Cotten for his first picture."

"The purpose of my visit is to talk to certain people and find out what kind of deals we will be able to make. I do not like to make commitments and say later I cannot carry them out. When I make a deal I want it to remain that way."

Miguel said this is his first venture in film making. "But I have been a movie fan all my life," he added. "I know everybody in the film colony in Mexico and they often come to me with their troubles. I have also visited Hollywood four or five times, so I am familiar with all the lots here."

Armed with Mexican capital, he has set up a production company designed to make films at a low cost. At least one of them will be from a script written by himself.

I asked him about the state of the Mexican film industry. "It is in pretty good shape," he replied. "But we cannot make too great a profit on most of our films. Our market is Mexico and Latin America. They provide a good return, but the only way we can make a big profit is to get a

Barbara McNab Given Graduation Party

Honoring Miss Barbara McNab, a member of the Seminole High School graduating class, Mrs. C. D. Forrester entertained with a lovely garden party and turkey dinner in the outdoor garden at her home on West First Street last evening.

Guests were received at the door by Mrs. Forrester and Miss McNab and the guest book was presided over by Mrs. Jack Russell. The Forrester home was decorated with quantities of summer flowers carrying out the class colors of green and gold.

Tables which were set up in the garden were beautifully decorated with arrangements of yellow gladiolus, fern and lighted yellow tapers in crystal holders. The napkins were embroidered with small silhouettes of caps and gowns and favors were party snappers in gold and green.

Following the dinner, group singing and dancing were enjoyed and a number of piano selections were rendered by Miss JoAnn Strawder. Those who assisted in serving were Mrs. Max Fundom, Mrs. Roy Reel, Mrs. George Pittard, Mrs. Clarence Knight, Mrs. D. K. McNab and Mrs. W. D. Gardner. Dr. Gardner carved and served the turkey.

Colored pictures of the group were taken by Mr. Russell and a gift was presented the honoree by Mrs. Forrester.

Those enjoying the party were: Miss McNab, honoree, the Misses Joyce Anderson, Pat Casabue, Betty Peacock, Jo Anne Strawder, Jean Young, Frances Edwards, Kay Holtzclaw, Barbara Ann France, Penny Wallace, Kathryn Cullum, Joyce Mae Jones, Jackie Roland, Ethel Williams, Margaret Hunt, Bobbie Jean Galloway, Mary Jane Johnson, Betty Lou Partin, Shirley Middleton, Carolyn Patrick and Dial Boyle.

Also, Bobby Casley, Morris Mittle, Rudolph Smith, Jimmie Hanson, Herman Swaggerty, David Hester, Walter Graham, Buddy Bass, Bobby McNab, Edson Myers, Lloyd Reynolds, Ronnie Garner, Louie Thompson, Richard Hoolahan, Harold Gresh, Mrs. E. C. Echols, Mrs. McNab, Mrs. Fundom, Mrs. Pittard, Mrs. Reel, Mrs. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Morris, Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Brooks, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John L. Miller and Dr. and Mrs. Gardner.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—(AP)—Honors for the youngest and handsomest film producer on this continent would probably go to Miguel Aleman, Jr., son of the president of Mexico.

Nineteen-year-old Aleman was here for three days this week to talk to Hollywood film moguls about his new production company, which is being set up to make films in Mexico.

"I am not here to finalize anything," he told me in his hotel suite. "This was despite reports that he had signed up Ann Sheridan and Joseph Cotten for his first picture."

"The purpose of my visit is to talk to certain people and find out what kind of deals we will be able to make. I do not like to make commitments and say later I cannot carry them out. When I make a deal I want it to remain that way."

Miguel said this is his first venture in film making. "But I have been a movie fan all my life," he added. "I know everybody in the film colony in Mexico and they often come to me with their troubles. I have also visited Hollywood four or five times, so I am familiar with all the lots here."

Armed with Mexican capital, he has set up a production company designed to make films at a low cost. At least one of them will be from a script written by himself.

I asked him about the state of the Mexican film industry. "It is in pretty good shape," he replied. "But we cannot make too great a profit on most of our films. Our market is Mexico and Latin America. They provide a good return, but the only way we can make a big profit is to get a

Buying Spree Indicates Prices Have Put Damper On Purchases

By SAM HAWSON

NEW YORK, June 7—(AP)—Why price wars? Bargain-happy men and women don't care—at long last they're having their inning. Merchants do care—at long last merchandise is moving out of the stores. Department store sales, which had been creeping along, suddenly jumped in New York to 25 per cent above last year.

Price wars may be popular with customers, but after merchants have been kind words for them. Scaplica are saying that—sure, when you can buy the traditional "sale" into a "price war" with a lot of free advertising, and contagious hysteria among customers—then you really move the stagnant goods off your shelves. But what happens when the war is over? Where are your customers then?

The present price-cutting spree, complete with circus trappings, has demonstrated two things: 1. There is still a lot of unsatisfied demand for the goods—if priced within the buyer's reach. The country isn't, as some have said, entirely overwhelmed as the result of two waves of scarce buying.

2. There is still a lot of purchasing power. It went into hiding for a time when prices jumped so high, and credit terms were made so steep, that together they cut off a lot of families at the pocket. Lower-income bracket customers became excited because they didn't have the cash to pay the prices, nor to meet the higher monthly payments.

The law the Supreme Court dealt state fair-trade laws is wide enough to be only an excuse for the present price-cutting. Newspapers were full of ads before that, as stores tried to work off top-heavy inventories with sales promotions by reducing their mark-ups on goods that wouldn't move.

Fair-trade goods—those retail prices had been supported by law—came the first targets in the price wars, because the stores hadn't been able to advertise them in the sales already going on. Inventories of the fair-traded goods had, in many cases, stayed embarrassingly high. All agree now that many merchants guessed wrong last summer and fall when they started to build up inventories. They thought consumers' "scar-buying" would continue as long as the goods lasted. They thought scarcities would come sooner and production be far less than it turned out to be.

When production started, when a big prop to inflation was knocked out by the federal budget's getting into approximate balance, and when consumers stopped searching so easily—the buyers' market developed suddenly.

Merchants are doing what they traditionally do at such times—reduce their mark-ups. In the case of price wars, this will go on until prices drop to the break-even point. Then the price will be low to pay the store's overhead unless these loss leaders attract enough traffic into the store to move other goods on which the profitable mark-ups are still retained.

When the merchants cut prices enough to lose money and when—more important—the big inventories are worked down to comfortable size, price wars will stop that probably isn't too far off.

The Federal Reserve Board notes that for the last three months department stores have been buying less than they sold. But, meanwhile, banks have been pressing to have the old inventories cut and bank loans on them repaid.

The manufacturer who has invested heavily in endowing his brand name products with prestige is very unhappy to see them sold at about as low leaders and their value belittled in the public's mind.

The small businessman may be the most worried of all, because he knows that his well-heeled bigger competitor can outlast a little fellow in a price war. If it goes out long enough, the war could close down some small stores.

The present price cutting, however, makes the dollar in your pay check look bigger. It gives your savings account a new look. It makes inflation seem a more remote danger.

It also makes the American competitive system look more viable in its feeding a controlled economy. Slip the fetters off the law of supply and demand, and sometimes even the consumer gets a break.

J. J. McDermott was the first U.S.-born golfer to win the U.S. Open when he captured the 1911 crown in a playoff.

TOUGH JOBS TO DO AT VERY LOW WAGES

All-round handy man will work tirelessly, around the clock. Welcomes hard, back-breaking chores, and can do equally well on delicate jobs requiring patience and skill. Will "live" on premises but needs no food or lodging. No bus fare either.

Although inflation has pushed other prices sky high, does scores of jobs for pennies a day. In fact, his average hourly "wage" for all sorts of work around the house is less than half what it was when his Company started in business. Address inquiries to
