Elena Slams Into Mississippi

Power Outages Only Effect Felt Locally

From Staff and Wire Reports
Hurricane Elena smashed into Mississippi's beach resorts today with 125-mph winds and 12-foot storm tides, spawning destructive tornadoes and ripping away power lines that set buildings ablaze.

The center of the 300-mile-wide mass of fury struck at 7 a.m. CDT near Biloxi after raking Florida's Panhandle and Alabama in a terrorizing Labor Day trek across the Gulf of Mexico. More than 1 million residents and holiday vacationers in four states fled the oncoming storm.

A rash of minor power outages in the Seminole County area was the most significant storm-related problem reported locally as Hurricane Elena hovered off Florida's west coast over the weekend.

Florida Power and Light reported short-term power outages from Chuluota to Deltona, ac-ording to Bruce Stephenson, FP&L district engineer.

"We had crews working all day Sunday. As far as I know we restored power to everyone by 10 o'clock Sunday night," Smith said.

He said storm damage was more significant Sunday than Saturday. On Saturday, most of the problems were related to fuses blowing in transformers. On Sunday, the company had at least six power lines down, felled by 30-mph winds and falling tree limbs, he said.

Stephenson estimated between 3,000 and 5,000 FP&L customers were affected by the outages.

Tracy Smith, spokesman for Florida Power Corporation, said the company experienced little damage.

S. Africa Halts Payments On Foreign Debt

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The value of the South African rand surged today in the first day of resumed currency trading, a day after the government suspended payments on its $17 billion foreign debt.

The rand opened at 45.5 cents in the first trading since Tuesday, when the government closed currency exchange markets after the rand plunged to a record low of 35.5 cents.

The rand's surge came a day after Finance Minister Barend du Plessis announced the white-minority government would suspend payment on the foreign debt and take steps to stem the flight of capital from the strife-torn nation.

"Everyone is very nervous and confused," one trader said. "No one knows quite what the measures announced on Sunday will mean."

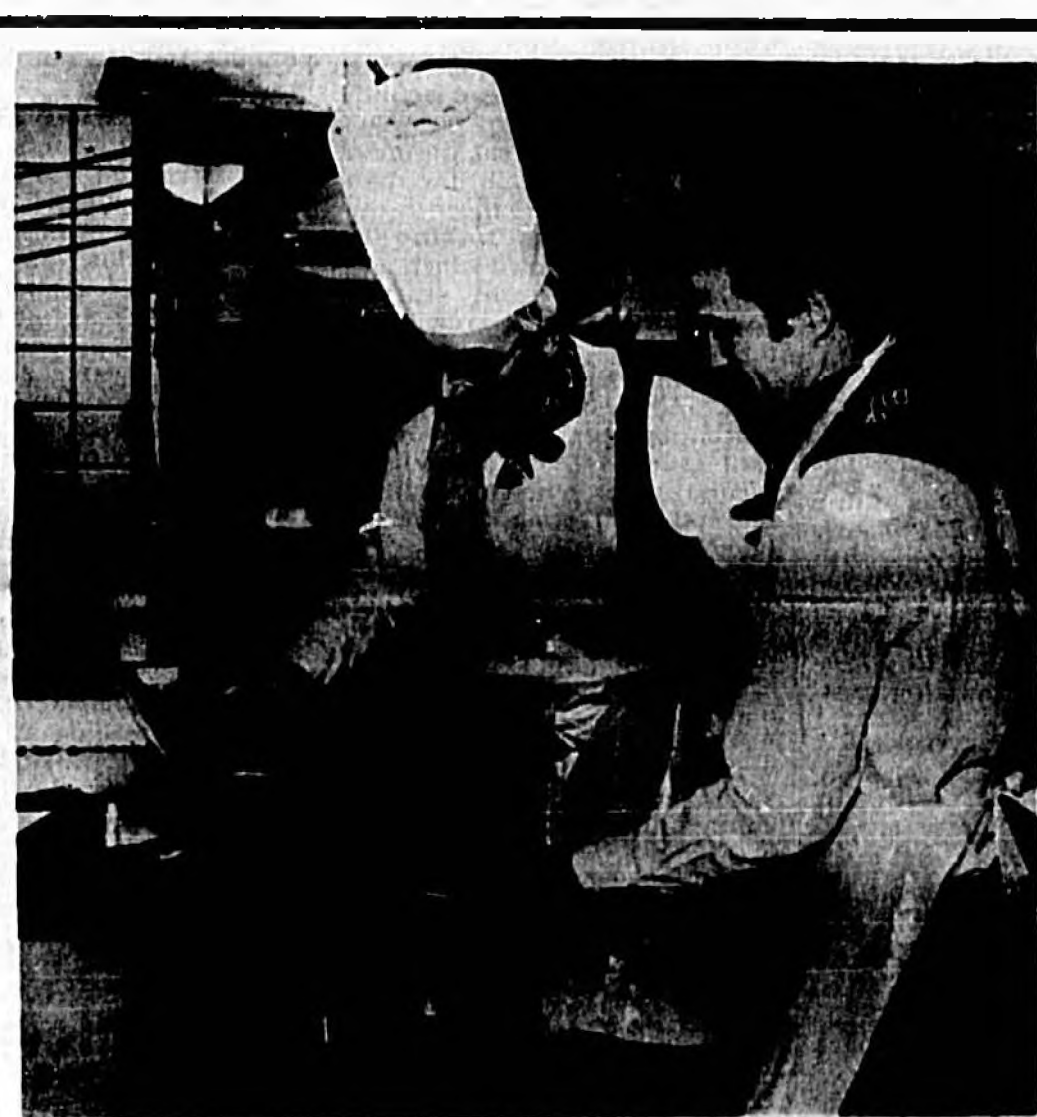

The suspension came on the anniversary of the beginning of a year of racial violence that has claimed about 675 lives and cast into doubt the future of the white-minority government.

The latest deaths were two white men who were stabbed and burned to death by a crowd of black mourners returning from a mass funeral for 18 victims of rioting in East London.

It was the first deliberate attack by blacks on minority whites during the year of violence, which led President Pieter Botha to declare a state of emergency July 21 in 36 black districts near Johannesburg and Port Elizabeth.

"We are not bankrupt, by no means," du Plessis said. "The fundamentals in our economy are in shape. There was an inordinate volume

Ramp Toll Idea Still Shy Details

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Details on proposed toll charges for use of Sanford's five public boat ramps at Monroe Harbour Marina have not been worked out yet, according to Commissioner David Farr. He's still considering the proposal.

Farr said last week he would propose a 50-cent to $1 toll on the ramps after they are repaired.

The ramps were closed for repairs in July after propulsion from the engines of large cruise ships docking in the marina allegedly created 5-foot dropoffs at the base of the ramps and damaged the bulkheads.

Workers have been filling in the holes and extending the concrete ramps farther into the water. The cost to the city for the repairs is about $79,000.

Three of the ramps were to open Friday, according to Chuck Volk, the marina operator.

Farr said he is ready to propose the toll, which he called "a nominal charge," to help cover the cost of the repairs. He also says he believes most boaters would not mind paying the toll. But as for the details as to how it would be collected, Farr said it is too soon to say.

"I haven't gone that far yet. I'm waiting for a recommendation from the city manager," Farr said. City Manager Frank Faison is studying the feasibility of such a toll. He said he would report his findings to the city commission at a later date.

"I don't think it is fair for it to be discussed in the newspaper until the city commission has a chance to discuss it," he said.

Volk said he questions how the toll would be collected.

"Would a city worker or a marina worker collect it?" he asked. The city leases the marina to Monroe Harbour Marina, Inc.

The marina did not pay for the repairs because under the lease it is responsible for only minor repairs while

Barbed Wire Feud Spurs Suit

Sanford has a new ordinance prohibiting barbed wire in residential areas, but a feud between Sanford homeowners and a neighboring private school over a barbed wire fence is headed for the courts.

The Hidden Lake Homeowners Association is suing Loch Lowe Preparatory School to have a fence removed between the subdivision and the school property. The 70-foot fence surrounds Loch Lowe Lake which is on the school's property. The suit states the fence is on subdivision property.

Mary Tumin, of 306 Hidden Lake Drive, says several youngsters from the subdivision has been injured after running into the fence or falling into it on their bicycles.

Unions Celebrate Labor Day, Define Objectives

Employment security, pay equity for workers and dealing with a shifting economy are important themes for labor organizations in Central Florida this Labor Day, according to several labor leaders.

After the holiday, the Seminole Education Association faces the task of re-drafting a contract for 2,200 Seminole County teachers. The proposed contract, agreed upon by union and school board negotiators, was defeated Thursday 786 to 728. It was the first time in the 11-year history of SEA collective bargaining in Seminole, that the teachers rejected a pay pact.

It may be an indication of the union's strength.

SEA Executive Director Marshall Ogletree said he sees a bright future for the SEA and similar organizations.

"My group represents bus drivers, secretaries, clerical workers, maintenance workers, food service workers and teachers in Seminole County. I foresee a bright future here and nationwide. Teachers groups are increasing in population, as are their salaries and benefits. Teachers are the most organized of any employees in the country."

Casselberry police officers unionized four years ago for more practical than philosophical reason, according to the union's chief steward officer Paul James.

He said the officers unionized because city officials were not listening to needs of the officers and would arbitrarily rescind agreements concerning pay and benefits.

Not so now.

"What we have down on paper they can't take away," he said. The union, about 20 officers and sergeants strong, is the only police union in the county and is actually part of the Orange County Police Benevolent Association.

"I think unions are needed under certain circumstances," he said, such as when employers don't respond to gripes or deal with employees fairly.

Apparently, Seminole County employees don't have such problems with their employer. In November, 1984, county staff rejected unionization by almost 7 to 1. An AFL-CIO affiliate was attempting to unionize the county's full and part time blue collar and some white collar workers. Eighty-seven percent of the employees rejected unionization.

County Commissioner Robert Sturm said at the time. "Their vote clearly indicates that they approve of the way in which the county commission and administrative staff have handled their wages and benefits in the past and that they have given us a vote of confidence in the way we will treat them in the future."

Besides the SEA and PBA, area union leaders with members in Seminole County expressed different views of their organizations' future goals, area interests and group identity. But, most agreed the labor industry needs to create a new public awareness of their purpose in this decade of instant communication.

The state president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees-Florida Council 79 is concerned that workers know of their rights to organize and be represented before management.

Blondie Jordan's office is in Orlando and represents 1,600 workers locally. She said her organization's main concern is, "the comparable-worth issue that was dealt with in the legislature last year. Men and women will benefit equally when all workers are paid according to merit and skill."

She said her organization is active in political lobbying at local, state and federal levels and is active in political campaigns. AFSCME has been in Florida since 1962 and numbers 21,000 members throughout the state. It represents members at collective bargaining sessions for contracts, employee grievances and in cases of layoff or termination. Jordan said that 30 percent of an organization's employees must vote to ratify a petition for representation before her organization can represent them.

"Our organization has been active nationwide for over forty years and extends representation to Puerto Rico and Central America. We want employees to know of their rights to petition for organization and I especially am concerned with equal pay for women at the lower end of the employment spectrum. We represent all workers at the local, state and federal levels."

Some leaders are not as certain about the present state of organized labor either locally or industry-wide. R.W. "Red" Edwards, president of the Communications Workers of America Local 3108 whose office is in Orlando, said the present day condition of unions overall is bleak.

"Organized labor has a problem with their negative image. Unions are perceived as being radical and violent; as a whole that is totally wrong," Edwards said. "The public needs to see labor organizations as individual entities. We should not all be judged as one group. The industry needs to hire public relations experts to start looking at ways to change public attitudes."

Edwards said that his group is the most civic-minded of any labor organization, supporting public projects all over America. At the same time he said CWA is intensely dedicated to their members. As an example, Edwards related a recent incident his office took part in. Several unidentified exterminators entered the American Telephone and Telegraph accounting office in Orlando, during working hours, and commenced filtering

Cheers For Tradition

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — There is a century-old tradition of free beer at the Miller Brewing Co. and workers don't want to give it up.

Members of Local 9 of the Brewery Workers union voted overwhelmingly Saturday to reject a bid by the brewery to reopen their contract.

The brewery wanted to reopen the contract to hold talks about having workers give up the practice of drinking beer at lunch and during breaks.

NATION IN BRIEF

A Day Off From Work For Late-Summer Frolics

By United Press International
Labor Day officially honors American workers but it's the unofficial end of summer vacations and thousands of Americans headed today for beaches, picnics and parades to celebrate the wane of warm weather.

Backyard barbecues and softball games also were on tap for the holiday, as well as less traditional activities, such as the Cellar-to-Cellar Run through the Livermore Valley wineries of San Francisco.

Parades will be held in New York, New Haven, Conn., Highland Park, N.J., and other cities. New York police said they expected 200,000 union members — many who will carry signs with anti-apartheid messages — to march up Fifth Avenue in the city's 103rd annual Labor Day parade.

In Escoheag, R.I., about 10,000 people spent Sunday at the Stepping Stone Ranch for the sixth annual Cajun and Bluegrass Festival, which included dancing lessons, Cajun cooking and bluegrass music.

Gorbachev: Summit In Jeopardy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev says superpower relations have drastically deteriorated in the last two months because the United States is waging a campaign of hatred and accusing his country of "every mortal sin."

"The situation today is highly complex, very tense," Gorbachev said in an interview published Sunday in Time magazine. "I would even go so far as to say it is explosive."

"Relations between our two countries are continuing to deteriorate, the arms race is intensifying and the war threat is not subsiding," he said.

Gorbachev and President Reagan are to meet in November in Geneva, Switzerland, but the Soviet leader, in his first interview with Western journalists since ascending to power six months ago, charged the Reagan administration was eroding hopes of reaching an agreement by saying all concessions must be made by the Soviets.

"It appears that even the slightest headway depends exclusively upon concessions by the Soviet Union, concessions on all questions — on armaments, on regional problems and even on our own domestic affairs," said Gorbachev.

"Washington is preparing not for the event we have agreed upon. The summit meeting is designed for negotiations, for negotiations on the basis of equality and not for signing an act of someone's capitulation," he said.

Teachers To Hold Strike Vote

CHICAGO (UPI) — The president of the Chicago Teachers Union, pronouncing the school board's salary offer a "travesty," said teachers in the nation's third-largest school system are ready to strike. Walkouts also loomed in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Seattle.

Teacher strikes already have extended summer vacations for more than 46,000 students in Illinois and Michigan.

In Chicago, 431,000 children would be affected by a strike, the third in as many years.

Negotiations between the CTU and Chicago Board of Education broke off Sunday after a 13-hour session. No new talks were set.

Jacqueline Vaughn, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, said the 26,000-member union is prepared to strike. "Our people are ready, the picket signs are ready, and the ballots are too," she said Sunday.

"The demands we are asking are reasonable," she added. She called the board's latest offer of a 3.5 percent salary increase a "travesty."

But Board spokesman Bob Saigh said Saturday a 10 percent wage increase requested by the teachers was "outrageous."

Pillowcase Rapist Suspect Says He's Also The A/C Rapist

MIAMI (UPI) — While tracking down the notorious Pillowcase Rapist, police nabbed a suspect they say later confessed to being the "A/C Rapist," who posed as an air conditioning repairman and assaulted South Miami women.

Michael Richard Gersley, 30, a night supervisor for a firm that services airplanes at Miami International Airport, was charged with 12 felonies including five sexual batteries, five armed burglaries and two armed robberies.

Police said other charges may be brought against Gersley, who was being held without bond.

Rape squad Sgt. David Simmons said police caught Gersley Thursday after a resident at the Park Hill Apartments in South Miami called police when he saw a man, "running around the complex naked, exposing himself to any woman who cared to look," Simmons said.

The two officers wondered if he could be the elusive Pillowcase Rapist, who is wanted for attacks on 43 women since 1981. The Pillowcase Rapist covers the faces of victims and his face with a towel, hood, T-shirt or pillow case.

Although the Pillowcase Rapist and the A/C Rapist both have type O blood, Gersley lacks a rare subgrouping characteristic present in the blood of the Pillow Case Rapist, Simmons said.

Hit-And-Run Victim Improving

A 21-year-old Sanford man who was hit by a truck remained partially paralyzed in serious condition today as the Florida Highway Patrol continued to look for the truck driver who left the scene of the accident.

Allen King, of 7372 Sylvan Drive, was in severe pain but was talking to relatives after undergoing seven hours of surgery at Humana Hospital Lucerne in Orlando Thursday for a broken back according to his father, Jim King.

King, a student at Seminole Community College, also suffered a broken pelvis when he was hit by the truck while riding his bicycle to work at the Seminole Community Mental Health Center, 201 W. First St. The incident occurred about 9:46 p.m. Wednesday near the Foxfire Restaurant at 3221 U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

King remains paralyzed from the waist down but has some feeling in one leg, which his father said is a sign of hope.

"The doctor said he sees no reason or has no explanation why he wasn't totally paralyzed," the elder King said. "I feel really hopeful this will be a temporary thing and that the long-term prognosis will be better."

An ICU nurse said today the younger King has feeling in his right leg and the foot of his left leg.

Doctors inserted metal rods in his son's back to stabilize the spinal column, said King, who teaches emergency medical services at Seminole Community College. One vertebra exploded on impact, he said. Allen may need another operation in about a week and is expected to be in the hospital for the next three months.

King said Allen was able to talk after the operation and said he was "reasonably certain" he was hit by a red, flat-bed truck. An FHP dispatcher said Friday the trooper handling the case has some information about the hit-and-run but the trooper was unavailable.

King said he plans to meet Saturday with the man who found Allen lying and groaning in the ditch after he was hit to see if he could give him more details about the accident.

Meanwhile, Allen's co-workers at the mental health center and Quincy's restaurant in Sanford have established a fund to help offset the cost of his treatment. Allen is a cook at Quincy's and a psychological technician at the mental health center.

The fund is at Barnett Bank, 3094 Orlando Drive, Sanford, according to Laura Costello, manager of Quincy's. So far, $90 has been contributed, she said.

Ms. Costello described Allen as "an excellent worker" and a "funny guy" who keeps the kitchen crew laughing.

"I hope they find the guy (who hit him)," she said.

Sanford Man Arrested On Cocaine Charge

A Sanford man was arrested and charged with possession of cocaine and possession with intent to deliver after an officer thought he saw the man make a deal.

According to a Sanford police report, the officer was on routine patrol on 13th Street when he saw some men standing around a pickup truck. He said it looked like two of the men exchanged something. When one of the men saw the officer, he put something in the back of the truck and walked away from the it.

A further investigation produced a small jewelry box in the back of the truck. The box had several foil packets containing what is believed to be cocaine.

Arrested at 7:26 p.m. Friday and held in lieu of $8,000 bond was Robert Jackson, 38, of 1121 W. First St.

FRIEND ARRESTED ALSO
A Geneva woman was arrested after she tried to interfere with officers arresting her fighting friend outside a convenience store.

According to a Sanford officer, he arrived at 1119 E. 25th St. about 2:27 a.m. and saw a woman slap a second woman. When he and a second officer attempted to arrest the woman, her friend (not the woman slapped) tried to interfere. Both women were subdued and arrested.

Charged with disorderly conduct and battery was Anne Harvey Davis, 23, of 2411 Cedar Ave., Sanford. Charged with resisting arrest without violence is Kathy Eula Sizemore, 24, of Box 442, Geneva. Both women were released Saturday from the Seminole County jail after posting $500 bond each.

situation that escalated into a confrontation with two nightstick-wielding officers.

According to an arrest report, an officer responded to Lake Fairy Motel, 920 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, around 11 p.m. Friday. There he saw a man with a head wound standing on the sidewalk. A knife was on the ground nearby. Apparently the man had been arguing with his girlfriend when the motel manager interceded, whereupon the man pulled a knife on the manager. The manager shoved the man to the ground causing the head wound, according to the report.

When the officer sat the man down on the sidewalk, the man jumped up, hit the officer in the chest, and while talking to someone in the crowd which had gathered to watch, started walking towards the crowd, the report said.

The officer grabbed the man's arm and he fought with the officer pinning the man against a wall using his night stick. A second officer joined in and they had to hold the man against the hood of a car with their sticks in order to handcuff him.

At South Seminole Community Medical Center where the man was transported for medical attention, he reportedly gave the officers a false name and birthdate. The man, however, was positively identified by his sister, who he asked police to contact.

Arrested and charged with battery on a law enforcement officer, resisting arrest with violence and obstruction by false information was Darryl David Boone, 23, of 878 Turtlemound Drive, Casselberry. He was being held Saturday in lieu of $5,000 bond.

NEW FRIEND'S A CAR THIEF

A Brandon man who went into a south Seminole County convenience store to get a six-pack of beer watched a "friend" he picked up in a Brandon bar drive away in his car.

Harold Anthony Scott, 57, a welder, told deputies he went into the store at Howell Branch Road and State Road 426 to get beer around 5 a.m. Saturday. While in the store, a 25-year-old blond man he picked up in the bar drove away in his 1972 Cadillac. He said the man is 6-foot-2, and weighs about 140 pounds. He did not know the man's name.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Lucious Willis, 32, of 2445 20th St., Sanford, arrested Friday at 10:20 p.m. after his car was seen driving on the wrong side of Sipes Avenue in Midway.

—Earl Richard Chambers, 43, of Box 224, Casselberry, arrested Friday at 9:55 p.m. in Sanford on U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake Mary Blvd. after his car was seen weaving on the road.

—Scott Douglas Odgen, 19, of Box 380, Sanford, arrested Saturday at 1 a.m. at First St. and Laurel Ave., after his car stopped in the intersection of State Road 46 and 17-92 in Sanford.

—Larry Arvin Hildg, 27, of 1275 Lake Heathrow, Lake Mary, arrested Saturday at 2:30 a.m. after his car was seen weaving near South Sanford Ave. and 17-92.

—Michael Alan Oroi, 24, of 1058 Orienta Ave., Altamonte Springs, arrested after a traffic stop at the scene of an accident at State roads 434 and 400. The officer controlling traffic said he smelled alcohol on the man's breath and asked him to get out of the car and take a sobriety test. He failed the test, the officer said.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department responded to the following calls.

Thursday

—6:12 p.m., Higgins Terrace apartments, rescue. Rescue workers were called to the apartments where there was a fight. But Sanford police canceled the call.

—6:28 p.m., 2522 Oak Ave., rescue. A 32-year-old woman fainted while bathing. She refused transport to the hospital.

—7:43 p.m., 13th Street and Pine Avenue, fire. A car fire was put out. There were no injuries or damages.

—11:31 p.m., 2600 Georgia Ave., rescue. A 1-year-old girl had a high fever and stopped breathing. She was breathing easier when rescue workers arrived. She was taken to the hospital by her mother.

—11:41 p.m., Upsala Road, emergency-related. Some trees caught fire after the limbs got entangled in some power lines. The power company was called in to fix the lines.

Orlando Man Gets 12 Years For Swiping Pari-Mutuel Ticket

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

An Orlando man with a long criminal record got 12 years in prison for swiping a winning pari-mutuel ticket from a man at a Longwood dog track.

Circuit Judge Domenick J. Salfi sentenced Samuel Getters, 25, for stealing a winning $150 ticket from a bettor at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club on Dog Track Road. The sentence, within state sentencing guidelines, reflects Getters' 15-year criminal history, Salfi said.

Getters was found guilty by jury June 5, according to Assistant State Attorney Steven Ploinick.

According to court records, Getters grabbed the ticket from an unidentified man at the track on Feb. 6. Security personnel caught Getters, but not before he passed the ticket to an accomplice.

Club officials put a stop payment on the ticket so it could not be cashed. However, without the ticket, the victim could not claim his winnings either, officials said.

Getters' accomplice has not been arrested, and it's not known if the victim had the ticket returned to him.

According to Getters' presentence investigation, he started getting into trouble with the law at age 10 and has been arrested 13 times in the past 15 years. He has been found guilty of manslaughter, grand theft, shoplifting, possession of marijuana, resisting arrest, two escapes and violations of probation, according to court records.

He was sentenced to 10 years probation for the manslaughter conviction, which he finished serving in 1983, records show.

Shuttle Mission To Recover Satellite Huge Success

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Straining with all his might, spacemaker James "Ox" van Hoften heaved a rewired satellite to get it spinning and pushed it back into space Sunday to complete an extraordinary orbital overhaul that may save insurers $63 million.

"There that bad boy goes!" van Hoften said as the 15,190-pound Navy communications station, once written off as dead, drifted away from the shuttle Discovery 225 miles above South America.

The 41-year-old engineer from Fresno, Calif., standing high above the shuttle on the end of its 50-foot "cherry picker" arm, became the first person to launch a satellite with his hands.

Van Hoften and fellow spacemaker William Fisher spent more than four hours working outside Sunday, returning to the safety of Discovery's airlock at 12:40 p.m. EDT. During their cleanup work, they lost a power screwdriver and it too spun away in orbit.

John Lounge operated the robot arm from within the shuttle cabin. Joe Engle maneuvered the shuttle, and co-pilot Richard Covey kept tabs on the two men outside during the spacewalk. The astronauts return to Earth Tuesday.

The first indication that the satellite was in good condition came at 2 p.m. EDT when a tracking station in Guam sent radio commands to turn it on. It responded normally for the first time since it failed after launch from Discovery in April.

"The status looks good," said Robert Springer in mission control.

"That's great news," said Engle.

"You bet it is," Springer replied. "Everybody down here is just proud as punch of the good work that you guys did."

Steven Dorfman, president of Hughes Communications Co., which owns the satellite and spent $10 million for the salvage operation, said: "We are absolutely delighted with the results of today's mission."

But Hughes engineers were not out of the woods yet. Dorfman said he was concerned "that exposure to extremely cold temperatures during the four months the spacecraft was dormant may have caused permanent damage."

Hughes controllers in El Segundo, Calif., must wait two months before they actually send the radio command to fire the satellite's solid-fueled rocket motor to push it toward a stationary orbit. The propellant is frozen and there is a chance the rocket will explode when ignited.

Mutinous Officers Fail To Topple Libya's Khadafy

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Forty-three senior Libyan military officers who tried to topple Moammar Khadafy after he ordered an invasion of Tunisia were arrested and will be court-martialed, an Egyptian newspaper reported today.

Members of the Libyan leader's personal guard crushed the rebellion at dawn Saturday, arresting 30 senior army officers and 13 air force officers, the Al-Ahram newspaper reported.

The mutiny was led by army Col. Khalifa Khedr and air force Col. Mohammed Al-Barghaah, who received orders to invade neighboring Tunisia in an attack spearheaded by 2,000 Tunisian workers.

The reported rebellion coincided with the 16th anniversary of Khadafy's rise to power in a 1969 coup. The newspaper report could not be confirmed.

Relations between pro-Western Tunisia and Libya have deteriorated in the past month with Libya's expulsion of more than 27,000 Tunisian workers. Tunisia retaliated by expelling 253 students and 30 diplomats for spying and by closing a Libyan consulate and cultural center.

Train Engineer Charged In Wreck

ARGENTON-SUR-CREUSE, France (UPI) — Police charged an engineer Saturday with involuntary manslaughter for failing to slow a passenger train that derailed on a curve and was hit moments later by a mail train, killing 43 people.

An inquiry was ordered into France's worst rail disaster in 13 years and the third fatal crash in two months.

Forty-two bodies were pulled from the passenger train and one person died at a hospital, authorities said. Railway officials said about 100 people were injured, 38 seriously enough to be hospitalized.

Engineer Jean-Yves Brisset, 37, was arrested at the scene following the 12:08 a.m. Saturday crash outside Argenton-Sur-Creuse, 186 miles southwest of Paris.

Brisset's 14-car train left Paris' Austerlitz station Friday night and was en route to Port Bou, Spain, when he ignored a signal outside Argenton-Sur-Creuse instructing him to slow to 20 mph because of track under repair, said Pierre Auge, a spokesman for SNCF, France's government-owned railway. Instead, the 14-year veteran sped around a curve at 65 mph, derailing the last five cars, Auge said.

JAL Crash Most Costly Ever?

TOKYO (UPI) — The deadliest single-plane accident in history will likely also become the most costly air accident — with compensation for victims' families alone estimated at $200 million, aviation and insurance industry experts say.

Other insurance payments, including personal life and casualty policies and the $35 million carried on the Japan Air Lines jumbo jet, could add another $100 million or more to the final payout.

JAL and the government have also spent millions of dollars for rescue and recovery operations and for the care of relatives identifying bodies in a town near the remote crash site.

The Boeing 747 crashed Aug. 12 into a mountain in central Japan, killing 520 passengers and crew, the world's worst single-airplane accident in terms of lives lost. Four people survived.

Aviation and insurance experts said the biggest payout item, compensation by JAL and its insurance carriers to the families or estates of the dead, will be higher if investigators find evidence of airline negligence.

Tried To Gouge Victim's Eyes Out

Stalker Linked To Devil Worship

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police have acknowledged that suspected Night Stalker Richard Ramirez may have been driven by devil worship and that he performed Satanic rituals at many of his murder scenes.

KABC-TV reporter Wayne Satz, who disclosed the possible motive for the 16 known killings in an exclusive report, said the Satanic activities included an attempt to gouge out the eyes of one victim and eating a meal of celebration at the house of another.

The devil worship link was triggered by an announcement this week by police that a baseball cap with the letters AC-DC embroidered on it was found at one of the murder sites.

AC-DC is a heavy metal rock band whose music makes repeated reference to devil worship, and some say the letters stand for the words Anti Christ, Devil's Child.

Satz noted that the lyrics from one AC-DC song, entitled "Night Prowler," include — "What's that noise outside your window? What's that shadow on the blind? As you lay there naked like a body in a tomb, suspended animation as I slip into your room."

The Night Stalker killed all of his victims in the pre-dawn darkness by entering homes through unlocked windows or doors. He shot or stabbed many of his victims as they slept in their beds.

Satz said a common link at most of the murder scenes was a five-pointed star suspended inside a circle, a symbol of devil worship, that had been scrawled on walls inside the homes.

Police would not publicly confirm or deny the Satanic link to the Night Stalker case, but Satz said detectives "grudgingly acknowledged" earlier this week that the information was a major part of their investigation.

"I asked them then how they felt about us running the information," he told United Press International, "and they said, 'We can't tell you not to, but we strongly request that you don't.'"

"When I confronted police with what I knew they had to acknowledge that it was true," Satz said.

Satz also revealed at least one attempt to gouge out a victim's eyes, a devil-worship ritual. On another occasion, the suspect ate a meal at the house of one victim, possibly in a Satanic ritual of celebration following a sacrifice.

He also reported that police had matched a distinctive shoeprint — the evidence that police earlier referred to only as something "subtle but distinctive" — found at the sites of several Stalker slayings to those in the hills of Los Angeles "where devil worshippers are known to congregate."

Typhoons Kill 11 In Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Pat struck the northern island of Hokkaido Sunday a day after unleashing heavy rains and strong winds in southern Japan that killed at least 11 people and left 115 missing, authorities said.

The typhoon, one of three storms hovering over the waters surrounding Japan, injured at least 161 people as it destroyed homes and disrupted travel across the southern island of Kyushu Saturday, police said.

At least 12 people were reported killed by the typhoon in Kyushu and a prefecture on the southern tip of Honshu, Japan's main island, police said.

Another 115 people were reported missing in that area, where the typhoon dumped heavy rains that triggered flooding, destroyed dozens of homes and knocked out power to more than 160,000 households.

Japan's coast guard and dozens of private vessels searched southern waters for at least 12 missing fishing boats, authorities said.

The moderate typhoon, packing winds of up to 78 mph, forced dozens of Japanese vessels into emergency shelters. Fifty-nine Japanese fishing boats took refuge in North Korea.

"The Japanese fishing boats will be provided with necessary conveniences while staying in our country," the Korean Central News Agency said.

The Meteorological Agency said Pat hit the southern tip of Hokkaido Sunday afternoon. Gale and high sea warnings were issued in the region.

Two weaker typhoons were also near the island.

Typhoon Ruby, which swept across Tokyo and Honshu Saturday, moved over the Pacific Ocean Sunday. Authorities said on one was injured by the typhoon.

The Meteorological Agency spokesman said a third typhoon — Odessa — was headed toward the southwestern coast of Japan.

Inmates Riot On 'Ireland's' Alcatraz

CORK, Ireland (UPI) — About 70 inmates using a bulldozer broke out of an island prison known as "Ireland's Alcatraz" Sunday, set fire to dormitory blocks and fought running battles with police, officials said.

But police reinforcements rushed to Spike Island Prison in Cork Harbor on the southern Irish coast and prevented the young prisoners from escaping from the small island, officials said.

After more than 12 hours of rioting, 40 of the inmates, some of them wearing guards' uniforms, held positions on one prison roof and refused to give up. Smoke billowed from other gutted parts of the complex, built into an old British installation called Fort Mitchell.

Thirty other inmates were believed hiding out in underground tunnels.

The Spike Island Prison was reopened earlier this year to deal with an influx of young men convicted of such crimes as car thefts and drug offenses. As Ireland's only island prison, it is often likened to Alcatraz, the de-activated prison off the California coast.

The rioting began shortly after midnight and prisoners used a bulldozer to break through one prison gate.

"About 60 or 70 of the 110 prisoners broke out of their dormitories, set fire to the prison complex and ran amok on the island," a police spokesman said.

The prisoners armed with clubs and gasoline bombs set fire to floorboards, ceilings and furniture. A justice department spokesman said they apparently intended "to damage the prison as much as possible so as to make it uninhabitable."

Twelve prison officers and four policemen on duty at the time were outnumbered by the rioters and took refuge in an old house on the island, barricading themselves inside.

About 75 percent of the prison installation was destroyed, officials said. Boats carrying the first police reinforcements were driven off by the rioters who in the early morning darkness hurled stones, bricks and bottles.

Later about 100 policemen and soldiers landed. An army riot squad was also on the island for possible action but officials said they intended to wait for the prisoners to come down from the roof.

The Prison Officers Association said it had complained last week that Spike Island staff was undermanned and that there was too much reliance on trainee officers at the prison.

None of the prisoners were involved in Northern Ireland sectarian violence.

Reagan Renews Tax Reform Push

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan, ending his three-week vacation at his mountaintop retreat today, returns to the maelstrom of Washington and looming war with Congress over taxes, trade and the budget.

On his way back to the capital, Reagan was kicking off his campaign to win congressional passage of his tax reform program by Thanksgiving with a speech in Independence, Mo., the hometown of President Harry Truman.

Reagan was to speak at a festival commemorating pioneer days at the conjunction of the Santa Fe, California and Oregon Trails and will pay homage to Truman, his favorite Democratic president.

Opening his promised fall offensive for passage of his legislative agenda, Reagan will travel to Raleigh, N.C., Thursday and will be on the road at least one day a week through October.

The purpose of the vacation was to allow the president to recuperate from his July 13 operation for removal of a cancerous colon growth — away from the daily flow of staff meetings and other pressures of office.

Reagan made only two public appearances during his 23-day respite — at a GOP fund-raiser in Los Angeles and at a party in Santa Barbara. In both instances, he looked fit, although a little paler than usual, perhaps because of doctors' orders to stay out of the sun after the removal of a small skin cancer from his nose July 30.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, trying to scotch speculation that the cancer surgery might have an effect on Reagan's performance during the critical fall months — capped by the November summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, said at the start of the vacation:

"The president is not out of the limelight by any stretch and certainly will not be when we come back after Labor Day."

AIDS Changing The Gay Economy

Bars, Bathhouses In Decline, Home Spending Up

By Ellis E. Conklin
UPI Feature Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It's a subdued happy hour at the Wellington, a gay bar in North Hollywood. About 15 well-dressed men are having a drink amid the warm, quiet wash of conversation.

The bartender, a wiry young man with short brown hair, breaks the weeknight rhythm and asks one of the men about Greg.

He is still in critical condition. "Might not make it," says Greg's lover.

The bartender shakes his head, pours himself a brandy, and the two men exchange a secret gaze of grief.

The sickening, fear-striking specter of AIDS — the incurable and deadly disease whose victims are mostly male homosexuals and bisexuals — has made another visit to the Wellington.

Jim Kerlian and his friend, Jeffrey, agree to dine at home this night and discuss the wine they'll share together.

"We've left the alleycat bars and those godawful bathhouses," Kerlian later tells a man seated next to him. "I mean, if Rock (Hudson) can't kill it, nobody can."

A few miles away, One Way Bar owner Larry Tagney talks about how he recently put up the "Fight AIDS" posters the former proprietor tore down, thinking them too depressing.

"Business here is down, way down," Tagney says. "People's friends are dying. It's getting to the point where we're looking at each other and saying, 'Who's next?'"

"AIDS, that's all anyone here is talking about. But I'll tell you one thing, it's not good for business."

"Everyone is suffering now," said Melinda Tremaglio, owner of Englebert's, a trendy gay restaurant in West Hollywood. "The guys aren't partying or drinking as much now. The beer distributors tell me most of the bars have gone from 100 cases to 60 cases."

"The guys aren't coming out and I don't blame them," Tremaglio said. "No amount of advertising will change that either."

The virtual hysteria that today envelops AIDS, believed transmitted by sexual contact, has altered the living and spending habits of gay America, perhaps permanently.

The San Francisco AIDS Foundation's recent survey of 500 gay and bisexual men revealed that since August 1984 respondents having more than one sex partner declined from 49 to 36 percent.

Further, the number of two-income gay couples has increased from 52 percent to 61 percent in the last year, according to the Gay Market Report, a quarterly financial survey conducted by the The Advocate, the nation's largest gay magazine.

A surge in the numbers of men in "committed relationships" has sparked changing spending patterns, the report concluded.

"Travel, entertainment, real estate and home entertaining are only a few of the market sectors in which ... gay couples are concentrating their relatively high discretionary incomes," says the report.

With male monogamy in vogue and "safe sex" the new exhortation from the medical community, the gay economy has witnessed some strange twists and turns.

"Some kind of community response to AIDS, I believe, is underlying all the changes in patterns, they way people conduct relationships, the way people see relationships," said Ed Nicholas, president of the Greater Gotham Business Council in New York City, which has more than 200 gay-owned firms as members.

Although bathhouses are shuttered and gay bars are sagging, male dating services catering to "long-term relationships" are gathering momentum.

At the same time, manufacturers of prophylactics have reported a brisk increase in sales over the past six months, responding to warnings against the exchange of potentially infective bodily fluids.

"This (AIDS) has given us a real shot in the arm. We're up 7 1/2 percent in sales over this time last year," said Milt Bryson, director of marketing for the largest condom producer in the nation, Young Drugs Product Co. in Piscataway, N.J.

Some health insurance companies are considering special supplemental AIDS coverage while others, like Nationwide Insurance Co., have started extra screenings of single male applicants from New York, New Jersey, California and Florida in an effort to avoid financial losses from the spread of AIDS.

Coastal Insurance Co. in Santa Monica, Calif. began last January to offer a supplemental policy, advertising extensively in gay publications and medical journals.

About 800 policies have been sold at $194 a year. One policyholder has died and two other AIDS claims are pending.

"Gays are spending their money in other ways now," said Robert Silver, managing editor of The Advocate.

"Our readership survey shows gays are coupling like never before and spending money on home videos, home furnishings, food — couple-type things — rather than going to bars, movies and stuff," Silver said.

The Gay Market Report noted that 55 percent of the 500 men it interviewed owned video record-ers, and that half of the remaining 45 percent plan to buy one in the next 12 months.

Advocate sales director Larry Kaufman said the magazine has had a large increase in vitamin, nutrition and health club advertising, while nightclub and restaurant ads have dwindled.

"And the Club Baths that are in every major city are now calling themselves Club Body Centers," Kaufman said.

"People just aren't socializing now. I just had lunch in a gay restaurant, and it was me and another table," said Gerry Goulet, owner of the Hollywood Spa, a once renowned bathhouse now being marketed as a health club like many other bathhouses across the country.

"No more group sex. It's just a place to meet now or get in shape," Goulet said.

"Gays are much more health conscious now," said San Francisco AIDS Foundation director Tim Wolfred. "The real popular gay bars are really losing business, but in the Castro District (a gay stronghold in San Francisco) we're seeing lots of vitamin stores popping up, and the gyms are doing a strong business."

Harry Boyman, owner of The Ambush, a gay bar near San Francisco's Haight Street, said his business is down 20 percent over the past three months. "Ever since the Rock Hudson thing, it's really gotten bad," Boyman said.

Gregg's, a bar in Hollywood, instituted a "straight night" last month.

"We needed to do something to improve sales," said owner David Essex, who purchased the bar when its former owner committed suicide three months ago after learning he had AIDS.

Dating services are apparently picking up some of the lost bar business.

Dangerous Protection

A record U.S. trade deficit that could reach $150 billion this year is heating up protectionist sentiment on Capitol Hill to a brisk boil. More than 300 pieces of protectionist legislation aimed at imports of everything from lumber and textiles to auto and water beds will be waiting when Congress returns from its August recess. So before things get out of hand, it might be useful to recall the protectionist mood of another era and the disastrous consequences it produced.

For most of the 1920s, America was more prosperous than its major trading partners. Britain and France unwittingly hobbled their own economies by retaining the high tax rates imposed during the war. And the German economy was choking on the taxes levied to pay the ruinous reparations imposed by the Allies. America, alone among the industrialized powers, was expanding vigorously. In time, of course, this cut deeply into America's trade surplus: The dollar value of American exports increased by 81 percent from 1922 to 1927. But the value of imports grew by 117 percent over the same period.

This shift, in turn, generated political support for tariff barriers to limit imports and shield American industry from foreign competition. Congress responded by passing the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of June 1930. Almost all economists now agree that Smoot-Hawley severely damaged the world economy and at least deepened the global recession of the 1930s. Yet many members of Congress, and most Democrats, are talking, if not yet acting, as if Smoot-Hawley and the Depression happened on some other planet.

If Congress goes protectionist in 1985, the consequences are bound to be about what they were in 1930. Foreigners will react in kind against American goods. The U.S. trade deficit would shrink, but so would the American economy and the economies of America's principal trading partners. That cannot be in anyone's best interests, whatever the temptation to punish Japan and other countries that preach more free trade than they practice.

Some argue that the proper remedy for the trade deficit is not to limit imports, which would hurt consumers and invite foreign retaliation, but rather to expand exports. This would be playing offense, not defense. Where is it written that Americans cannot learn to compete successfully against the Japanese or anyone else on the international market?

Congress could help by spending less time on Japan-bashing and more time fashioning the changes in tax policy that would help American industry accomplish what Japanese industry has. Why is the interest on individual savings still taxed, for example, when American savings rates are one-third those of Japan? The larger pool of capital and lower interest rates that would result if government encouraged instead of discouraged savings would provide American industry more of a level playing field on which to compete against the Japanese. Lower taxes would help too.

Japanese export companies traditionally sacrifice short-term profits for long-term market share — a perfectly sensible trading strategy. It is also perfectly legitimate under free-trade rules, assuming that goods are not sold at a loss and that no government subsidies are involved. Can it be that Congress is incapable of devising incentives that would encourage American exporters to take the same long-range view that serves the Japanese so well?

We do not pretend that a $150 billion trade deficit is not a problem. It is a problem. What Congress and the Reagan administration must decide is what to do about it. They can react negatively and thereby risk a rerun of the 1930s. Or they can react positively and thereby strengthen America's economy and the world's as well. The proper choice should be obvious.

BERRY'S WORLD

GEORGE MCGOVERN

Jerry Falwell Vs. Bishop Desmond Tutu

As a longtime public figure, I have tried to avoid wearing my religious beliefs on my sleeve. It is inappropriate in a pluralistic society for a public servant to be too assertive about his personal religious bias. Nonetheless, I can only confess that as a Christian I am appalled at the moral blindness signaled by the Rev. Jerry Falwell's comments on the South African crisis. Either Falwell is a cynical political opportunist, or he is a spiritual and political ignoramus.

Any American — and especially a professed Christian — who can go to South Africa with its odious system of official racism, embrace the president who presides over that system and brand its most eloquent critic a "phony," is himself an obvious phony. The Nobel Prize-winning Bishop Desmond Tutu is known and admired across his native South Africa and around the world as a wise and courageous spiritual leader who has fought the evil of apartheid all of his life.

Yet Falwell, who knows little or nothing about African affairs, was willing, on the basis of a hurried visit to South Africa as a guest of the government, to claim that he knows more about the real thoughts and needs of the African blacks than does Tutu. This kind of nonsense is reminiscent of certain gullible visitors to Nazi Germany in the 1930s, who reported after a few days of superficial observation that Hitler was really dedicated to peace and the well-being of his people.

If we were to judge Falwell in the kind of biblical language that he uses so frequently, we would accuse him of blasphemy. He perverts the Christian faith he professes when he cloaks South Africa's president with righteousness while condemning that nation's most honored spiritual leader. If that is truly the voice of "the moral majority," God help us.

In the late 1970s, when I served as chairman of the subcommittee on African Affairs of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, I traveled extensively in Africa and visited with a broad range of people in all parts of that continent, including South Africa. No person I conferred with impressed me more than Tutu with his thorough grasp and insight on African issues. He steered me to a variety of groups — left, right and center — that helped me arrive at as broadly based judgments as one can make on the basis of a study tour. I concluded at the time that "South Africa's leaders must either lead the way in ending the evil of apartheid or witness a sea of blood comparable to the American Civil War."

This is the kind of warning Tutu — a man of God and a man of peace and justice — has been proclaiming for many years.

South African President P.W. Botha, who graciously received me on this same tour of his country more than six years ago, tried to assure me that he and his associates knew what was best for their black subjects. But, unlike Falwell, I found no evidence to sustain the Botha claims. Certainly I found no reason to prefer his brand of compassion and justice to that of Tutu. I would be interested in knowing who the South African blacks are who allegedly convinced Falwell that Tutu does not understand black Africa.

What South Africa needs is the continued strong, clear voice of Bishop Tutu — not the babblings of a false prophet on a publicity junket.

WASHINGTON WORLD

A Rare GOP Way Of Proof

By Arnold Sawisak
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If the Republicans want to prove their claim that they are enroute to majority party status in the United States, the 36 contests for governor in 1986 offer a glittering opportunity.

With the Democrats holding an overall margin of 34-16 in governorships, the recent Republican trumpeting about mass defections of Democratic voters to the GOP standard can be given something of a field test next year in the very area where it has relevance.

After all, the GOP amply demonstrated in 1984, not to speak of 1968, 1972 and 1980, that it can muster a national majority to elect a president. The only hesitation students of politics have in declaring that the Republicans have achieved majority status in the country lies in the fact that the Democrats continue to dominate state and local governments.

Of the 36 states holding elections for governor next year, 27 are now held by the Democrats, nine by the Republicans. That in itself would be regarded as an advantage for the GOP — a much larger percentage of Democratic seats are on the line.

But there is another factor working for the Republicans. Of the 28 Democratic governors whose terms are expiring, eight are ineligible to seek reelection. In addition, three Democratic governors have chosen not to run again, leaving 11 Democratic seats without incumbents. Only four incumbent Republican governors are ineligible to run again.

Incumbency is the most valuable asset in elective politics. In 1984, only two of six incumbent governors seeking reelection were defeated — both Republicans — but five of seven states where governors retired changed party hands.

Some of those changes were dramatic. North Carolina, where the Democratic governor ran for the Senate, got a Republican governor for only the second time in the 20th Century, and Vermont got its first woman and only third Democratic governor since the Civil War.

Finally, the Republicans in next year's races may have an advantage in terms of name recognition, another important political factor.

Former Republican governors have declared or are regarded as potential candidates for Democratic seats in Arkansas, Texas, Ohio, Wisconsin and Oklahoma, and Massachusetts, where a former Democratic governor is now a potential Republican candidate for the job. The Democrats have one former governor as a possible candidate in South Dakota.

W. Germany's Spies Not Trusted

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The latest West German spy scandal may have shaken the Bonn government, but it came as no surprise to the CIA.

In fact, our CIA sources tell us that at least one more high-level West German intelligence official is suspected of working for the East Germans, and may be exposed any day.

Fortunately, the number of West Germans who have sold out over the years for love, money or ideology convinced the CIA long ago that its counterpart in Bonn could not be trusted with U.S. secrets that are routinely shared with other allies.

The CIA's glum conclusions about

West German intelligence and counterespionage agencies was translated into a highly sensitive White House policy — dating back to President Ford — which has denied the West Germans access to "top secret" information in three military categories: "Combined Military Operations, Planning and Readiness"; "U.S. Order of Battle" and "Military Intelligence."

Four allies are cleared to see the information in all three categories: Australia, Canada, New Zealand and Britain. Japan is allowed to see top-secret data in the military intelligence area.

The CIA's disenchantment with the West German intelligence agency it helped organize and fund began in 1961 with the arrest of a top West German official, who confessed to delivering 15,000 photographs of sensitive files and 20 spools of tapes to Soviet agents in East Berlin, starting 10 years before.

A recent Defense Intelligence Agency report summarized 30 cases of individuals who betrayed NATO secrets to the Soviet bloc since the North Atlantic Treaty was signed in 1949. Eleven were West Germans, five were East German "eight were Belgians, two were Italians and the remaining four were Canadian, British, Turkish and American.

While motivation varied, according to the DIA report, the fascinating thing is how the Soviet spymasters used Cupid's arrow as an effective weapon against lonely German secretaries in positions to provide classified documents. With depressing regularity, secretaries working for NATO or West German ministries fell for smooth-talking East German spies and handed over military secrets.

Here's at least one of the moonstruck traitors listed in the DIA report who were seduced by men known in German intelligence parlance as "blackbirds":

— Ingrid Garbe worked in the West German mission to NATO from 1976 until her arrest in 1979. She was recruited in 1971 by an East German intelligence officer "with whom she had fallen in love." At the direction of the East German intelligence service, she had initially applied for a job in Bonn's foreign ministry.

JEFFREY HART

The Liberals' Disease

It must be something in the very nature of the liberal mentality. Forty years ago, as the Axis collapsed and the Allies advanced across Europe, communist partisans and politicians attempted to seize power amid the chaos. In France, the mystique of Charles de Gaulle weighed heavily against the communists, but the democratic forces in Belgium, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia and elsewhere were disorganized and vulnerable. Almost universally, liberal editorials and columnists attacked the British for opposing the communist takeovers. Almost universally, liberal rhetoric softened, brightened the image of the communists.

In Belgium, columns of armed communist fighters advanced on the Chamber of Deputies and were blocked by steel-helmeted British soldiers. Major General Erskine, the British commander in Belgium, announced that he would intervene on behalf of the Belgian government if the communists refused his order to disarm. He surrounded the Chamber of Deputies with British tanks.

Commented a columnist in The Washington Post: "It is certainly most unfortunate that the Pierot regime found itself compelled to depend on Allied intervention to keep under government control communist and other leftist elements of the Belgian Resistance."

Get that "Pierot regime," referring to a democratic government that fully intended to hold early elections. And get that reference to "Communists and other leftist elements," as if the Belgian Communist Party were merely "leftish."

In Greece, a large communist movement called ELAS, which had sat out the German occupation and armed itself to the teeth in order to seize power afterward, marched on Athens and largely occupied it. The British ordered ELAS to disarm. Incredible atrocities were being perpetrated by ELAS, later fully documented. Churchill ordered the British army to act.

Was this timely action applauded by liberals? Are you kidding? Columnist Marquis Childs wrote: "Winston Churchill and the clique around him want to believe that you can put a little paint and a little varnish on the old order and prop it up in place again. It won't prop." The Washington Post weighed in editorially: "British policy in Italy today, and the same is true everywhere in the Mediterranean, is to see that Governments are established which are willing to do Britain's bidding ... The role which Britain is playing in Greece differs only in degree but not in kind from the role she is playing in Italy."

Now, that Washington Post editorial was flatly incorrect. The goal of British policy was not governments that would do its "bidding," but governments not loyal to Stalin. The effect of The Washington Post editorial was to undercut the British effort and advance the communist interest.

The letters columns of The Washington Post were heavily weighted with material like the following: "No more shameful pages of history can be written ... The British people are losing their friends and the loyalty and gratitude of the nations they freed because the British government is a government of reaction."

In every 1945-56 struggle for power between communists and their democratic opponents, liberal rhetoric tilted to the communist side.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Doing Radicals Research

While Congress is taking an increasingly tough line against communist subversion in the Western Hemisphere, activities in support of the Marxist Nicaraguan regime and Marxist guerillas in El Salvador continue in church and university settings in this country.

The August issue of The Episcopalian reported on a meeting of the Governing Board of the National Council of Churches in Chicago last May. Among the actions taken was "support for the more than 60,000 persons in the United States who have signed 'A Pledge of Resistance' to any escalation of U.S. intervention in Central America." Presumably, the resistance is directed against the lawful government of the United States.

In this connection, the Capital Research Center, of which Willa Ann Johnson is chairman, has published a valuable report on the activities of the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador (CISPES). It notes that this is "one leg of a triad of entrenched Marxist-Leninist Central American support groups operating across the United States." The other elements are the National Network in Solidarity with the Nicaraguan People (NNSP) and the National Network in Solidarity with the People of Guatemala (NISGUA).

These groups aren't well-known to the U.S. public, but the Capital Research Center Journal Organization Trends reports that they are engaged in "teach-ins, demonstrations, boycotts, letter-writing campaigns, and acts of civil disobedience." The joint aim of these groups is to end U.S. support of freedom fighters in the region and advance the interest of Marxist-Leninist forces.

CISPES has almost 400 chapters around the country and seven regional offices. The Center quotes a CISPES organizer as saying that more than 200 of the chapters are on college campuses. "At the University of California at Riverside," says the Center, "CISPES has joined efforts with the Graduate Student Association on Campus to provide sanctuary to leftist Salvadoran and Guatemalan refugees."

Harboring illegals is a criminal offense subject to a $10,000 fine and five years imprisonment. No group has a right to set aside U.S. immigration policy. CISPES also is deeply involved in civil disobedience, including a demonstration against former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in San Francisco in 1984 in which 191 CISPES demonstrators were arrested.

Blackwell, Tribe Runners Get Acquainted

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

There will be some adjustments to be made before the 1985 Seminole High cross country season gets off the ground but new head coach Sid Blackwell says the Tribe will be a team to reckon with — both boys and girls — by the end of the season.

"It takes a while with me being new and the kids adapting to a new coach," Blackwell said. "We've been together about three weeks now and we're trying to establish a base. We're getting acquainted with each other."

Blackwell, whose brother Doug is the boys track coach at Lake Howell High, comes to Seminole High from Meridian, Miss., where he was assistant boys and girls track and cross country for Meridian High. The Meridian girls track team was second in the 5A State Meet in 1985 led by Felicia Roberts who won both the 100 meter dash and 220 yard dash at the Golden South Classic this past May.

Blackwell was at Meridian for one year after graduating from Mississippi College in Clinton, Miss., his home town.

After the 1984-85 school year, Blackwell said he decided to look into some openings and, with the help of his brother, got information about schools in this area. Blackwell secured the Seminole cross country job when he came down for the Golden South Classic. He will also be the assistant boys track coach.

"I'm coming into good system with some good kids," Blackwell said. "It's pretty exciting for me."

Cross Country

I can't wait to see what the kids are going to do in two weeks. It's new for me to be around so much talent."

Leading the way for the boys team in 1985 is senior Billy Penick who had a tremendous junior year in both cross country and track. Penick was 10th in the state in cross country last season after being number one in the county, conference, district and region. Penick came back in the spring to win the 4A state mile title.

Also expected to be among the top seven for the Seminoles are seniors Kelvin Abney and Kelly Faint, freshman David Johnson and sophomores John Herberger, John Skees and Ted Richardson. Last year's number two runner, Larry Cosby, is academically ineligible but should return in nine weeks if he gets his grade up.

"We have several runners who are starting to improve," Blackwell said. "Abney and Faint are good runners. It's just a matter of them getting the confidence to run up with Penick, and they have the capability to do it."

Among the younger runners, Blackwell said Johnson and Herberger have improved tremendously.

"David (Johnson) is showing so much progress, and has the good attitude to improve. He could be in the top five as a freshman. John (Herberger) is improving a lot. He needs speed work but is really handling the long workload well."

Blackwell said Skees is also making tremendous progress while Richardson is trying to fight off leg problems but should be ready when the season begins.

"We're basically going from scratch right now," Blackwell said. "Most of the guys are going to improve a minute from the beginning of season to the end."

The Seminole High girls team may also take a while before it attains where it was ranked in the preseason which was eighth in the 4A poll. The Lady Tribe's top two runners, sophomores Shownda Martin and Dorchelle Webster, were both ranked among the top 10 in the state in preseason but they haven't been working out much since they competed all summer in Junior Olympic meets.

"Shownda and Dorchelle had a summer track program that went on until August," Blackwell said. "So there's no pressure on them as far as coming out yet. I don't want to push them as far as to have injuries."

Martin and Webster, last year's top two runners, will again lead the way this season and senior Debbie Coleman gives Seminole a good top three.

However, after Coleman, the Lady Seminoles don't have much experience since it lost seniors Glenda Bass and Katrina Walker to graduation and junior Jennifer Roberts, last year's number four runner, decided to play volleyball this year.

Talent Is Lacking For Bucs

TAMPA (UPI) — Throughout training camp, new coach Leeman Bennett has stressed the Tampa Bay Buccaneers would not be able to win games because of superior talent.

With one week left before a rugged season opener, who's going to argue with him?

The Buccaneers concluded a 1-3 exhibition season Friday night by lethargically dropping a 20-7 decision to unbeaten Washington. The Redskins are one of the NFC's strongest clubs, but that's little consolation for Bennett — who watched glumly along with 33,840 spectators at Tampa Stadium as the Buccaneers were limited to 148 yards and eight first downs.

The Buccaneers, 0-8 on the road in 1984, open their regular season next Sunday in Chicago against the NFC Central Division champion Bears.

"I didn't get flustered or lose any confidence," said Tampa Bay quarterback Steve DeBerg, who came into the game with a 75 percent completion rate and trudged out with just three completions in 14 attempts. "The results were frustrating, though."

Rookie Alan Risher replaced DeBerg in the second half and hit on 5-of-10 passes while reserve Adger Armstrong was the lone bright spot on offense with 69 yards in 15 carries. Risher's 4-yard scoring flip to George Peoples with 6:25 left averted a shutout.

"We started out sluggish, but picked up as the game went along," Tampa Bay nose tackle David Logan said. "We still feel we have the quality on defense to win the Central Division."

All-Pro cornerback Darrell Green was the game-breaker for the Redskins, who open on the road Sept. 9 against Dallas. Green recovered a fumble and swiped two DeBerg passes before intermission, returning the second theft 42 yards for a touchdown.

"The problem I noticed with Tampa is with a new system it takes a while to get it under your belt," said Washington safety Curtis Jordan, an ex-Buccaneer. "By the fourth or fifth game they should be playing better football. Our defense as a whole is looking ready for the opening gun."

Marino's Back

Dan Marino said Saturday he will return to the Miami Dolphins training camp, ending a 38-day holdout. Marino is still without a renegotiated contract but Miami owner Joe Robbie said he will resume negotiations with Marino's agent, Marvin Demoff.

"At this time, I am not being forced to return," said Marino. "It is totally my own decision. I expect a new offer from Joe Robbie shortly now that I have returned to the team."

Marino also said he felt an obligation to his teammates and the fans. Marino is entering the third year of his four-year $2 million contract. His salary for this year is $300,000.

Dwayne Willis, Seminole running back, tries to avoid his fullback before he can pursue a loose ball in Friday's scrimmage. Willis arrived too late and defense recovered. Seminole plays in a fall jamboree Thursday night at Lyman High School.

Elliott Completes Run As Million Dollar Man

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI) — Even though Bill Elliott left Darlington Raceway with more than $1 million, the Georgia driver said he plans on working Labor Day.

"I'll work on the car that's going to Richmond (next weekend)," Elliott said when asked after winning Sunday's Southern 500 what he planned for Monday.

"I feel we will have some time for ourselves. I feel that is as much celebrating as you can do."

Bill and brothers Ernie and Dan have had little time to spend with their families since preparations began for the 1985 season. They even worked half a day at their shop in the tiny north Georgia town of Dawsonville on Christmas. And Bill, 29, wouldn't commit himself to a vacation at the end of this season.

"It depends on what happens this year," Elliott said. With Sunday's win at the 1,366-mile track, Elliott has ensured himself of becoming the first race driver in the United States to win more than $1 million in a single season.

The $1 million bonus he received Sunday was posted by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. for the driver winning three of the circuit's Big Four. In addition to the Southern 500, Elliott won the Daytona 500 in February and the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., in May. The other event, the World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., in May was won by Darrell Waltrip.

In addition to the $1 million bonus, Elliott received the winner's purse of $53,725. That brought his season winnings to $1,857,243, breaking the record set last year by Mario Andretti when he earned the CART title. Andretti's winnings totaled $932,963.

Elliott's celebration Sunday consisted of waving to the crowd and hoisting on his cool down lap.

"I began watching the crowd with 35 to 40 laps to go," Elliott said. "You could tell the tenacious and excitement was there. You can see them standing and that takes the pressure off you."

Before going to the victory lane Elliott took a lap in a convertible before the estimated record crowd of 68,000.

"I have a lot of mixed emotions," Elliott said. "This track has been good to me. It's where I won my first pole. It's also where I had my first good finish." Elliott's Ford finished about two-car lengths ahead of Cale Yarborough, also in a Ford. Third went to Geoff Bodine in a Chevrolet.

Oregon's Explosive Offense Offsets Inept Defense

United Press International

A backfield of two 1,000-yard rushers and a rifle-armed quarterback usually can't overcome a defense that lets the opponents score practically at will, as Washington State found out Saturday.

Oregon quarterback Chris Miller tossed for 259 yards and three touchdowns and running back Tony Cherry added 143 yards rushing on 35 carries to lead the Ducks to a 42-39 triumph over Washington State in the Pac-10 season-opener.

"Our defense still has a long way to go," Walden said. "Offensively we've stirred the milk and the beat has churned to the top. But our defense is green and it will take time for them to get confidence."

Oregon's Rich Brooks, a loser to WSU last year 50-41, said it felt good to be on the opposite side this time around.

Football

"It was nice to be on the winning side of one of these for a change," Brooks said. "I can't say how pleased I am with the defense — it did what it had to do."

The Ducks' defense held Ruben Mayes and Terry Porter — who have a 1,000-yard rushing year each over the past two seasons — to 119 combined rushing yards. Mayes rushed for an NCAA-record 357 yards against Oregon last year. He gained 84 yards on 17 carries Saturday, but caught an 83-yard TD pass from Mark Ryplen and bulled over for a two-point conversion.

Ryplen threw for 403 yards and three touchdowns, but had three costly fumbles.

Purdue also lost a shootout to Pittsburgh Saturday when Jim Everett's failed two-point conversion pass with 49 seconds preserved the Panthers' 31-30 victory.

Everett passed for 398 yards and three TDs, including a 31-yarder to Ray Wallace to set up the deciding two-point try. A Pitt interference penalty gave the Boiler-makers a second shot at the winning points but Everett's pass to Jack Beery fell short.

Pittsburgh's Charles Gladman rushed for 163 yards and two touchdowns while John Congemi passed for two scores to lift the Panthers. Mark Brasco kicked a 43-yard field goal with 9:23 left.

"This was a total team effort and we achieved our first goal and that was beating Purdue," Pitt coach Foge Fazio said. "Whether the score was 7-6 or 31-30, it was the win that counted."

Fazio's Panthers started last season with a loss to national champion Brigham Young. The defeat started Pitt toward a dreadful 3-7-1 record. Fazio's job may be on the line if the Panthers struggle again.

In other games, No. 18 South Carolina crushed The Citadel 56-17, California clubbed San Jose State 48-21, Florida State trounced Tulane 38-12, Air Force belted Texas-El Paso 48-6, Cincinnati whipped Virginia Tech 31-14 and Kansas defeated Hawaii 33-27.

At New Orleans, Danny McManus passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more to spark Florida State and spoil the debut of Tulane coach Mack Brown. The Seminoles led 14-12 at halftime before McManus scored twice and threw for a TD.

At Cincinnati, Dave McCain threw for two touchdowns and ran for another to lift Cincinnati.

OPEN NOTEBOOK

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — John McEnroe believes in many things: racquetball is not one of them.

"(In tennis) I feel I can hit any shot on a given point, so that no matter what someone does, you have the opportunity to do something with it," the defending U.S. Open champ said. "That is why I never liked racquetball, where if you hit one of those corner things, there is no way anyone can get a shot back."

"In every game there should always be the chance for the other person to get something back, no matter how good that shot was. I don't believe in a game like that."

Would Chris Evert Lloyd have become a star without her two-handed backhand? In her opinion, probably not.

"My backhand's one of my best shots. I was six and I had no strength in my arms at all, so I had no choice. I couldn't hold the racket with one hand, it kept falling out," she explained.

"I naturally gripped it with two hands. My father (a tennis pro) saw that I was doing this naturally, so we stayed with it."

At one point he tried to change it, because he teaches the one-handed backhand, but I was hopeless."

Good concentration leads to victories. Whether a player's concentration improves or diminishes apparently depends upon the individual.

Martina Navratilova: "Four years ago I could tell you who was sitting where and how many planes flew over, what airline they were, what type of plane. I could have told you everything. Now I've pretty much got the blinders on."

Chris Evert Lloyd: "The older I get, I think my concentration wanders a little more. I'm finding it harder to clinch some matches."

Like most tennis fans, Martina Navratilova is interested by the spectra of the potential big match of this year's Open: John McEnroe vs. Boris Becker. And she'd like to get a dollar down.

Asked Sunday who should be favored, the women's defending champion said, "I would have to go with John, with it being played here and all. It should be quite a spectacle." She said none of the women players had started a betting pool on the likely fourth-round matchup, "but I'd be interested."

27 Minutes: Martina Knocks Off Early

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martina Navratilova doesn't get paid by the hour, which is good because she usually knocks off work early.

Navratilova, the U.S. Open defending champion, needed just 27 minutes Sunday to dispose of Italy's Sandra Cecchini 6-0, 6-1 in a third-round match at the National Tennis Center.

"You don't get paid for your minutes on the court," said Navratilova, seeded second.

In her first match she needed 55 minutes to win but cut that to 48 for her second victory.

As impressive as Navratilova's brevity is Jimmy Connors' longevity. The five-time Open titlist ousted Thierry Tulasne in straight sets for his 75th match victory here, tying the record Vic Seixas set between 1940-1969.

Equally notable for his endurance is an obscure entrant at this year's Open: 18-year-old amateur Jay Berger, a Clemson sophomore ranked 733 in the world who eliminated Brian Teacher in four sets to advance to the round of 16.

Navratilova, who will seek to make short work of Caterina Lindqvist today, is uncertain whether her abbreviated matches provide sufficient preparation for the later rounds. "The main thing is to stay tight mentally," she said. "If nothing else, it's good to have close matches just for the sake of having a close match."

After Connors posted his 7-5, 6-2, 6-4 victory over the Frenchman, he said of tying Seixas' mark: "This is something that comes along on the way to trying to win the tournament and I'm pleased about it. But, my job is nowhere near finished."

Connors, who turns 33 today, was pleased to play the steady and tenacious Tulasne.

"It was good for me," said Connors, the No. 4 seed. "He moved the ball around and I got to hit a lot of shots. I was able to hit five to 12 balls a point. I feel I'm getting everything under control."

problem in the Seminole-Orange counties area because of the hurricane and had fewer than 1,500 customers without power.

He said the company's biggest problem was with its customers in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area. He estimated more than 100,000 FPC customers there were without electricity Sunday following the pummeling by Hurricane Elena. He said 40 men and 21 company trucks from the Central Florida area were dispatched to the west coast early Sunday to aid in restoring emergency power. He said the crews were still working there today.

Sanford police did not report any serious storm-related incidents. A boy was successfully rescued Sunday afternoon from a piling in Lake Monroe apparently after attempting to surf on the wind-driven waves.

The Florida Highway Patrol also reported a quiet Labor Day weekend. FHP had no figures today on how many people have been killed in auto accidents during the holiday period which doesn't end until midnight.

A silver lining in the Elena storm cloud was the potential for added business. Seminole Honda on U.S. Highway 17-92 south of Sanford tried to make the best of a bad situation.

Saturday, when the storm's direction was in doubt, shoppers flocked to local stores stocking up on food and other items such as batteries, flashlights and radios. Steve Walker, assistant manager of Publix in Sanford, said business was 30-35 percent higher than expected for the holiday Saturday.

Emergency shelters in Seminole, Orange, and Osceola counties housed about 1,000 people fleeing local low-land flooding and the torrential rains on the west coast, a Red Cross spokesman said today.

All of the shelters in the tri-county area save for one in Orange County were closed by 5 p.m. Sunday, she said. At one time, four shelters were open in Seminole County, as authorities expected an influx of west coast residents if and when Elena drifted east and hit land. The storm turned northwest, however, and the crush did not occur. Only about 75 people spent Saturday night at Lake Mary High School. The other shelters were Lake Brantley, Lyman and Oviedo high schools.

It was reported that the later three schools were ordered closed by the Red Cross which did not notify local law enforcement personnel who continued to direct people to those shelters. The communication problem reportedly is to be worked out this week.

A tornado ripped into an elementary school serving as a shelter for at least 184 residents at Gulfport, 12 miles west of Biloxti. Police Lt. Diane Leslie said there were injuries, but "we've got so many trees and lines down we're having trouble getting there."

Another twister struck the Little Rock Baptist Church at Gulfport but no injuries were reported.

Firefighters battled a raging fire in 100-mph winds at a Gulfport apartment complex that had been evacuated, and a burlesque club called the Gringo Room caught fire in Biloxti.

"We have several fires going. We have debris flying about downtown Gulfport," Civil Defense Director Wade Gulce said.

"Say a little prayer for us." Screaming winds peeled away billboards, blew down trees and knocked cars like toys about downtown streets across the Mississippi coast.

Forecasters said the hurricane was plowing west-northwest over Mississippi at 12 to 15 mph.

"Tides of up to 12 feet above normal are estimated to be flooding the coast near the path of the eye of the hurricane," the National Weather Service said. "Rainfall totals could exceed 10 inches along the path of the hurricane."

Two deaths and six injuries have been blamed on Elena, which has prowled the Gulf of Mexico like a caged tiger since last Wednesday, menacing coastal residents from Florida to Texas.

The storm lurked off the Florida coast for three days, then raked the Panhandle and churned across the Gulf today, lashing the Alabama coast with winds up to 92 mph before plowing into Mississippi.

More than 150,000 people fled tourist-jammed New Orleans, jamming highways inland, and levee workers sandbagged flood-prone areas of the Mississippi River around the city.

Elena's strongest winds were in its northeastern quadrant — the shore side of the storm — and forecasters said on an intensity scale of one to five, "Elena is a strong three."

Elena blasted the rustic Florida Panhandle fishing villages of Apalachicola and Port St. Joe as it passed 40 miles offshore Sunday night. The storm also knocked out power to the eastern half of Panama City.

Port St. Joe was pummeled by 95-mph winds that toppled trees, unroofed homes and a barn-sized metal building and knocked down power and telephone lines, isolating the towns from the outside world.

Elena stalled Saturday 55 miles southwest of Cedar Key, Fla., then backtracked into the Gulf early Sunday, drawing new strength, but luring home residents who had fled.

Thousands of delighted Labor Day vacationers returned to Gulf Coast beaches and happy Florida Panhandle merchants stripped plywood and tape from their stores and posted signs saying: "Hurricane Elena, what a tease!" and "Bye-Bye Elena. Open Labor Day."

By Sunday night, however, most were boarding up their windows and closing their businesses again.

bug spray through the air conditioning system. A CWA member called Edward's office and he was able to persuade the personnel department to order an office holiday.

Second executive vice president Hank Casenove said things are in good shape locally. "There are 17 building trade unions represented in the area and business is looking good. But Washington must stop these unlimited import quotas for foreign manufacturers. The president must care about workers in the labor guilds or business suffers nationwide."

Doug Degley is the business manager for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local Union 606 in Orlando. He represents 850 workers locally in such diverse fields as Merritt Island electrical workers, electricians at Orlando television stations WFTV and WESH, electricians at Disney World and inside/outside construction electricians throughout Central Florida. He said that the fifth district (of his union) encompasses five southeastern states and is the fastest growing district in the nation for his trade.

Degley agreed with his fellow labor leaders when asked of his guild's biggest problem. "Public image is our biggest concern. We make every effort to take part in all phases of community activity, in fact we have even helped to raise money to light more than one high school football field in this area. Our second main concern is the welfare of our workers. Keeping their benefits intact, representing them in health claims and making sure their minimum wage standards stay high are important matters for labor leaders."

in foreign debts to be paid back in a very short time."

Also Sunday, the National Union of Mineworkers, or NUM, called on 70,000 black workers to strike at seven gold and coal mines in a pay dispute that could trigger further violence and pose a fresh challenge to authorities.

NUM officials were unable to assess the impact of the strike call because telephones at their Johannesburg strike headquarters were not working. Mine owners reported only a spotty response to the strike call.

Union leader Cyril Ramaphosa warned that any attempt to break the strike would bring another 350,000 miners out in a show of sympathy, and some political analysts said such sympathy strikes could trigger the worst violence ever in South Africa.

A spokesman for the Gold Fields mining group said 21 workers were arrested at Kloof mine, 35 miles west of Johannesburg, for walking a picket line.

In another incident, the spokesman said 50 "intimidators" tried to prevent night shift workers from reporting for duty, but they were stopped by police.

But the Gencor company said some workers did not report at its Beatrix and Marivaal gold mines and its Transvaal gold mine. No strike was called at the Beatrix mine, but seven black miners were injured earlier in the day when mine security guards fired rubber bullets and tear gas to break up a meeting.

At a news conference in Pretoria, du Plessis said the government would suspend payment on virtually all of its $17 billion foreign debt for four months and would enact measures to prevent the flight of capital from the country.

The government also reintroduced a measure, abolished in 1983, prohibiting non-residents who sell property or other interests from taking money out of the country in dollars.

The measure would make it difficult for foreign companies or nations to sell their investments in South Africa, as opponents of the apartheid policy of racial separation have urged.

The measures were apparently triggered by the refusal of foreign banks, who are troubled by South Africa's failure to move toward a peaceful settlement of its race crisis, to roll over short-term loans.

Of South Africa's total foreign debt of $17 billion, $11.5 billion matures within 12 months.

the city is responsible for major repairs, Volk said.

To collect the toll a worker would be needed 24 hours a day since the ramps never close. Volk said it needs to be determined if a toll would be charged boaters entering or leaving the ramps, or both. Volk said some boaters launch their vessels at Sanford, but end up somewhere else down the St. Johns River.

How much revenue the toll would generate has not been reported. Volk said about 10 to 20 boaters use the ramps each weekday and about 300 use them on weekends. About 90 percent of the boaters are from out of town, Volk said. Farr said he is against charging out-of-town boaters a higher fee than local boaters. Anything other than a flat fee would be an "administrative nightmare," he said.

She asked city commissioners in June to pass an ordinance banning barbed wire in residential areas, which they did unanimously last week.

"Barbed wire just does not belong in a residential area," Mrs. Tumin said.

But school owner Sherrie Hershon says the fence is on her property and keeps children out of Loch Lowe Lake. She doesn't want children in the lake, she says, because if one drowned, she would be liable.

There is also a dispute over the zoning of the property where the fence stands. Mrs. Tumin says city documents show it is zoned residential and therefore must be removed. Ms. Hershon says the property is zoned agricultural, which is exempt from the barbed wire ban.

Because existing situations are not usually covered by new ordinances, it may have to be decided in court. No court date has been set.

Organ Donor's Gift May Last Someone's Lifetime

DEAR ABBY: The letter you published recently from a healthy man asking why he must die before donating one of his kidneys brings to mind my own recent experience...

Dear Abby

Although my life was in imminent danger, neither my surgeon, my family physician, nor anyone at the hospital made such a suggestion. During my recuperation, I saw a group of people on a television talk show who were anxiously awaiting kidney donors in order that their lives could be saved.

Why can't the medical community be more cooperative to those organizations handling organ transplants so that in situations such as mine, the opportunity to gain healthy organs is not lost?

ANONYMOUS ATTORNEY

DEAR ANONYMOUS ATTORNEY: Good question. But it would seem inappropriate, and downright ghoulish, to suggest to one whose life is in imminent danger to sign an organ donor card.

Although millions of people carry donor cards indicating that immediately after their death their usable organs may be harvested to help the living, the majority do not.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to remind others to become organ donors. There is absolutely no cost to the donor or the recipient of any organs donated after death.

This little essay, written by Robert N. Test, brought a windfall of new donors each time it was run. Let's hope history will repeat itself.

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

"When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'bed of life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

"If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses, and all my prejudice against my fellowman.

"Give my soul to God.

"If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever."

Donor cards are available by writing to: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77265. Include a legal size, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope. I have carried such a card for 15 years and feel there is nothing I can leave after my death that will be of greater value.

This is strictly a non-profit organization, operating on "shoestring" as a public service, so please be a sport and send a dollar or two along with your request. It's tax-deductible.

Rotary Golf Classic Set

The annual Rotary Bowl Scramble Golf Classic is set for Sept. 9 at Sweetwater Country Club. This charity golf team-competition is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Seminole County South to raise proceeds for its numerous area charities.

These include special education schools - Pace and Morningstar; volunteer groups - RSVP and Dividends; sports events such as the Golf Classic, high school post-season football bowl games to aid in schools' sports and band programs; children's aid groups - the Methodist Children's Home, the Children's Home Society, Ursula Sunshine Fund; and institutions such as the American Red Cross.

The Rotary Bowl Golf Classic game begins at 1 p.m. Monday with a "shot-gun start." The teams are to be flighted by a combined handicap of at least 40. Teams will be assigned, or self-formed. A $65 fee is asked per each team player. Each member of the winning teams will receive a color television set.

So, get together, come on out, and win for charity! Entries should be sent to the Sweetwater Country Club, P.O. Box 3535, Longwood 32779 to the attention of Larry Galloway.

Seminole District Boy Scouts of America Commissioner's meeting will be at the Rolling Hill's Moravian Church on 434 in Longwood at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 5.

All set to rally for school spirit are the '85-'86 cheerleading squads at Lake Howell High School.

The varsity squad is ready to go with Capt. Shellie Trahan and Co-capt. Denise McAnney. Cheering members are Chris Bordonaro, Kim Bragg, Nicole Bret, Kelly Clark, Dawn Coad, Shannon DeVore, Sami Hedren, Debra Pyle, Beth Robare and Jill Rovinsky.

Junior varsity leaders are Kelly Schrim, Capt. and Claudis Padgett, Co-capt. Squad members are DeAngela Beasley, Donna Brinkman, Anne Florito, Michelle Kight, Kim Kuts, Althea Lawton, Holly Luckenbill and Beth Stafford.

Leading the freshman squad are Sheri Pyle as capt. and Brook Beatty as co-capt. with members Laura DeGennaro, Trisha Hemmen, Ann Henry, Sarah Klinglie, Candice Trolani and Melissa Whatley completing the squad.

The Seminole County Mental Health Center's C.O.P.E. support group for the families of those with mental problems meets this month on Sept. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the center's offices in Cran'e Rood Park, Suite #377. Call 831-2411 for information.

All Lung Nodules Not Cancer; Check Anyway

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — What causes nodules in the lungs and what can be done about them?

DEAR READER — Lung nodules can reflect diseases ranging from simple scarring to malignancy; therefore, treatment depends on the cause.

When doctors refer to nodules in the lungs, they usually are talking about round X-ray shadows. Some shadows which seem to be deep in the chest are not in lung tissue at all; for example, a man's nipple may produce a faint round spot on a chest X-ray.

All lung tumors produce nodules, but all nodules are not caused by lung cancer. Nonetheless, malignancy is of utmost concern in evaluating lung shadows.

I cannot review all of the aspects of this subject here, but these are the major points: All lung nodules are abnormal; some are less serious than others; cancer is at the top of the list; all nodules have to be investigated; microscopic diagnosis is ordinarily necessary; and the causes of most lung shadows can be treated, and often cured.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I hear a ringing in my left ear all the time. What causes this?

DEAR READER — Ringing in the ears, or tinnitus, is surprisingly common and is due to a disruption of the normal hearing mechanism. Although a small percentage of patients with this complaint may have a serious cause — such as a tumor — most people with tinnitus have a benign but bothersome condition that is chronic and untreatable.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Competitive bridge has become a complicated game — some would say too complicated. A relatively new tournament regulation is that a player is expected to alert certain of his partner's bids that have a special meaning.

When South bid two diamonds, North alerted. West passed and North jumped to four hearts. When East asked the meaning of two diamonds, he was told that it was a cue-bid in support of hearts. South now realized that North thought that West's opening bid was one diamond. As permitted by the rules, South asked for a review of the auction. After that review, North realized his mistake. South bid four spades and everyone passed.

Where is the poetic justice? If South had just taken his lumps and passed four hearts, that contract would have made with a probable overtrick. Four spades was doomed to failure. South was within his rights to review the auction (perhaps he himself had misheard the opening bid), but if his purpose in doing so was to correct his partner's hearing error, he got his just deserts when four spades failed to make.

Bridge hand diagram showing North, South, East, and West hands with cards and suits. Includes a note about a special meaning for the opening lead.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

September 3, 1985 Before moving to fresh fields this coming year, try to reap a harvest from the seeds you've already sown. You'll be more lucky with the old than the new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to deal with someone today who can be quite difficult. If you let anger cloud your judgment, you might do or say things you shouldn't. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to take steps at this time to curb non-essential expenditures. Establish a budget and don't fall behind on old obligations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful who you select as a partner in joint ventures today. A poor choice could create an enemy instead of an ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be sure to show the proper amount of gratitude today to a person who goes out of his way to be helpful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to be discriminating today with your social associations. Don't get involved with a group that contains members you dislike.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) To gratify your personal ambitions today, you might tread on the toes of a person who wouldn't use the same tactics on you if the position were reversed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An ideal about which you're enthused should not be voiced today to one who always views things negatively. His lukewarm response will dampen your ardor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be a prudent shopper today or some hotshot salesperson may consider you an easy mark and try to unload inferior merchandise on you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Give and take will be required today in a valued relationship. If you see things starting to get uptight, be the one who makes concessions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who has been kind to you recently may be in need of a favor from you today. You'll know you should help, but for some reason you might not.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful today not to place needless strings on a friendship by expecting too much. Thoughtlessness could leave a scar that will be difficult to heal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation may develop today that pits an outsider against a family member. Before taking sides, remember that blood is thicker than water.
