Pay As You Go

When Congress meets next month one of the biggest problems it will be called upon to solve is merely a matter of policy, a matter which practically every individual in the United States has himself considered during the past few years. Some of them have faced the situation squarely and have solved their problem before it was too late; others have preferred to face the exigencies of the situation as it developed from them. The question is whether the United States shall finance itself throughout the remainder of the depression by the comparatively painless policy of borrowing money, or balance its budget by the more drastic method of increasing its revenue and reducing its expenses.

To increase revenues can mean only one thing: that taxes will have to be raised. We in Florida know something of the painfulness of this procedure as a result of the almost innumerable attempts of the recent legislature to find something to tax which would please everyone. We have come to realize all too well that no such animal exists. Already we hear from some of our leaders in Washington arguments in favor of increasing income taxes "in the high brackets," which means making the men of money pay the bills. Naturally there is some objection to this process by the men of money themselves, and certainly during this administration they have some influence in Washington, enough it seems, to put forward very strongly the more radical proposal of laying a tax, such as a sales tax, which hits everyone.

WHY LEAVE IT TO LUCKY

The Ocala Star and the Miami Herald are the only newspapers which know of the things which are being done in the Department of the Interior, and the Department of the Interior is the only department which knows of the things which are being done in the Department of the Interior.

Both have answered that they are far from satisfied with the character of the bill. The Herald doesn't think anything can be done about it and would in nature take its course, leaving to the future "Grand Jury," says the Herald, "that the 1932 Democratic delegates acted like headless chickens." There is no reason to think that the next delegation will be any better than the present one. All we can say is that if they are not to be given a vote, they should not be given a vote.

The Star is more constructively in favor of the bill. It says that if the bill is passed, it will be a good thing. It says that if the bill is passed, it will be a good thing. It says that if the bill is passed, it will be a good thing.

OBSCURE SUGGESTION

Although generally a considerable nation, it has never occurred to your country officials to put baggage checkers on the steamship piers for the convenience of travelers. One of the Government's few remaining pleasures is to see returning voyagers. Remember that the beauty of a gold fish is only skin deep.

Illinois Milk War

When hard times set in the spirit of competition is apt to become vigorous in many cases. In fact, it is in such times that people have become depraved, or, at least, more so. It is simply that they can't make a living the way things are and the inherent urge of survival impels them to do things upon which they would otherwise abstain.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

F. E. Turner, the west side grocer, is still confined to his bed on account of sickness. Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Woodruff, accompanied by Mrs. B. L. Pack, moved to Orlando yesterday. A. P. Connolly, general manager of the Sanford and Everglades railway, will be in Jacksonville next week on business. A party of local celebrities, including several of the city's prominent citizens, will be in Sanford next week on business.

WIDENING THE MARKET FOR TUNG OIL

Interesting and thorough information comes from H. W. Bennett, owner of Tung Acres, east of Lacrosse, in Alachua county, that the effect of the new tariff on tung oil is being studied by the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Bennett says that heretofore not more than twenty to twenty-five per cent of the tung oil produced in this country has been exported.

Sport Ames Is Bath Victim In Hotel Suite suggested, and about 100 sleeping powders were in a box in the bathroom.

Dr. Marrovi expressed the belief Ames had died during the morning.

An assistant from the medical examiner's office directed the removal of the body to the morgue for an autopsy. Two detectives who visited the suite reported "an investigation is being made pending the outcome of an autopsy." The sleeping powders were ordered analyzed.

Thursday night Ames saw his father and Allen Fagin, brother of Ina Claire, the actress, in his suite. Fagin called at the hotel last night and immediately telegraphed Miss Claire of Ames' death.

Friends said Miss Claire was to have left Hollywood, Calif., Thursday for New York, but found she was unable to do so. Ames telephoned her from the hotel three times Thursday. He and Miss Claire were understood to be considering appearing in a play of only two characters called Interview, which Tom Van Dyke proposed to produce.

Ames had dinner Wednesday night with Miss Claire's mother, who lives in Port Chester, N. Y. She said he appeared in good health then.

After dinner with his father and Fagin Thursday night, police learned the trio went to the Grand Central terminal where the actor's father boarded a train for Hartford, Conn. Fagin said he then asked Ames where he was going, and the actor replied "I'm going back to the hotel. I have a date with one of my former wives."

Ames, Fagin said, did not mention which of his four former wives he meant and the police did not know whether the meeting took place.

A telegram sent from Hollywood, found in the actor's room, read:

"Darling, I am necessarily delayed.

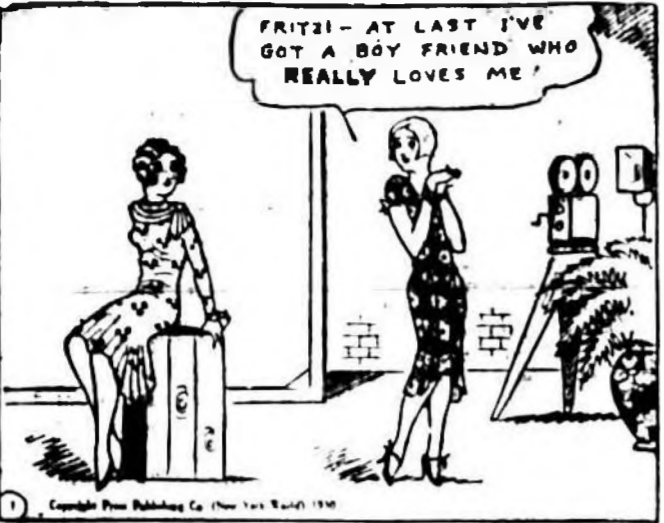

"Signed Ina."

The last of three calls Ames made to Ina Claire in Hollywood was put through at 2:30 A. M.

Several photographs of Miss Claire and other young women were found in the suite.

"With the sleeping powders" the assistant medical examiner took for analysis a full bottle of whiskey, a partly empty bottle and a small quantity of sediment found in the bottom of a glass in the bathroom.

JAPAN'S ENVOY ASSURES U. S. ABOUT ATTACK

ington government last night rose to a critical pitch of expectancy as a Japanese expedition, heavily equipped, moved toward Chinchow in disregard of American representations and the Japanese pledge. State department dispatches threw no light on the situation.

The American concern arose from two sources. It is feared, on the one hand, that Japanese control of Chinchow, a south Manchurian crossroad of communications, would be a serious blow to any exercise of Chinese control over her war-torn province.

Furthermore, a Japanese attack following closely on Tokyo's promise of restraint, would go a long way toward convincing the American government that Japan meant to take Manchuria completely, in violation of all her international commitments.

A swift American protest is expected to go forward. Its exact form has not been determined, and the action taken may be agreed upon beforehand in conference with the League of Nations.

Withdrawal of diplomatic representation from Tokyo has been suggested.

Whatever steps are decided upon probably will be taken under the nine-power treaty, in which Japan specifically agrees not to respect the integrity of China.

This is not the first time Washington has had reason to look questioningly on Japanese activity since the Manchurian advance began on Sept. 18. From the beginning Tokyo has assured this government she meant no aggression, and proposed to make only advances necessary to defend her interests.

Yet one Manchurian city after another, some of them hundreds of miles away from the Japanese railway zone, have fallen under Japanese assault. Every time Japan has expressed regret and said it wouldn't happen again. At first, officials here were given the impression that the military party, which is not under complete control of the civil government, simply had run amuck. But the Japanese promise of three days ago bore the explicit assurance of both civil and military authorities, and until yesterday it had been felt here that real progress was being made toward peace.

On Monday last, when news reports of a possible attack on Chinchow reached here, Stimson informed the Japanese that American patience must reach a limit sometime. He declared a march on Chinchow just now would do much to break down the structure of conciliation being so tenaciously erected at the Paris conference.

On Tuesday, Baron Shidehara, the Japanese foreign minister, replied there would be no more upon Chinchow. Orders to that effect, the reply said, had been issued to the command in Manchuria.

Making these disclosures yesterday to newspaper correspondents, Stimson declined to draw conclusions in comment otherwise.

Manifestly worried, he turned again with solemn face to delve into the fast-accumulating official files under the troublesome heading of "Manchuria."

The question yesterday occupied
