A Miserable Wage Scale!

Last night in Miami a vast audience of some 15,000 persons watched an Italian man hammer the diminutive Tommy Loughran, a veteran of the "light heavy" class and outweighed by 30 pounds, around the ring for 15 rounds. With gate receipts of only $50,000, sports writers had to dig back to the $40,000 Jeffries-Corbett fight in San Francisco in 1903, to find a championship bout which even approached it as a financial flop.

And yet Carnera received $20,000 for his part in the slaughter, and Tommy Loughran $5,000, not bad for 45 minutes work. We know plenty of workmen, skilled carpenters, brick masons, lumberjacks, and longshoremen, who would be glad to work for a dollar an hour. Gen. Johnson would certainly find no fault with the minimum wages paid in the castliferous industry.

Nevertheless, it is a far cry from the $50,000 gate of last night to the million dollar gates of the past decade. When Dempsey fought Tunney in Chicago in 1927, they divided $2,650,000. Dempsey's share of that pot was said to be something like one million dollars in cold cash—for thirty minutes work, or at the rate of two million dollars an hour. During the seven years that Dempsey was champion, he fought before crowds which paid more than $3,700,000 to see him fight.

During those seven years Dempsey entered the ring eight times either to win the championship or to defend his title. Most of these fights were over quickly, but the longest, with Tommy Gibbons, lasted 15 rounds. In all Dempsey "worked" 177 minutes, or about 3 hours. For this work he received something like $5,000,000.

When we criticize Col. Lindbergh for the $187,000 which he earned from aviation companies during a period of five years, which followed his memorable flight across the Atlantic in 1927 and which included the boom year of 1929 we should not forget that others were making money in those same years. Others, besides prize fighters, must have been making money in 1927 in order for hundreds of thousands of persons to be able to pay $2,650,000 to see Gene Tunney fight Jack Dempsey. And when we think of what Col. Lindbergh did to earn the money he was paid, and of the remarkable progress of aviation during the past five years, to which he contributed no inconsiderable part, his little $187,000 seems pitifully small as compared with the $5,000,000 paid Jack Dempsey and with what he did to earn it.

So, Primo Carnera complains of $20,000 an hour! He should strike for higher wages!

Lotteries

In spite of plenty of laws against the purchase and sale of lottery tickets, this form of gambling continues to be one of the worst evils of the average rural community. In view of the fact that it seems to be impossible to enforce such laws, there is some argument in favor of state lotteries which could be operated on the square and which would produce some revenue for the state.

"Italy, Austria, Spain, Prussia, Cuba and many of the Latin-American countries have state-licensed lotteries," says the Miami Herald. "Many of these are extremely complicated. The Irish Free State has re-established the sweepstakes for the benefit of Irish hospitals, and the Calcutta sweepstakes also has subscribers from all over the world. Queen Elizabeth instituted lotteries for government revenue, and England did not abolish lotteries until 1836. During the war, Great Britain legalized lotteries for war charities, but a committee of parliament reported adversely in 1918 on a proposal to raise war revenues by these means.

"In the United States lotteries were common before and after the Revolution. The continental Congress authorized a lottery in 1776 for the benefit of the soldiers in the field, and a premium loan with lottery features was floated in 1784.

"However, in the 1870's states began to forbid lotteries. Federal anti-lottery acts were passed in 1872 and 1876, and a more stringent act of 1890 forbade the use of the mails in any way to promote lotteries. The 1890 act had the effect of abolishing the last state lottery left in the United States, that of Louisiana. All the states now have anti-lottery laws.

"In 1895 Congress enacted a law forbidding the importation of lottery tickets and advertisements. Under this law, the post office department in 1932 denied mail privileges to newspapers carrying news of the Irish sweepstakes. Postmaster-General Farley rescinded this ban in 1933, but continued the ban on advertisements of foreign sweepstakes and lotteries. Radio broadcasting of lotteries has also been forbidden."

One of the strangest characteristics of the mania for buying lottery tickets is that the victims are usually those who can ill afford to lose. It is a frequently heard charge that the most popular market for these tickets is among CWA workers.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

A destructive storm swept the northeastern section of the county yesterday and still was raging late last night. From Pittsburg and Buffalo on the West to the Atlantic seaboard and up through the New England states heavy gales carried rain, sleet and snow, the maximum precipitation in some localities being more than 15 inches. Ships were blown ashore, interurban communication by telephone and telegraph was interrupted for hours and trains were blocked or delayed on nearly all railroads.

The first train to come to Sanford from Tarpon Springs over the line of the Tampa and Gulf Coast Railway rolled into the union depot Sunday morning at 5:40 o'clock, when regular daily service with two trains each way a day was inaugurated.

The Sanford salary stop is making trouble and 23 cars rolled fast week, making a total of 323 cars up to Feb. 21. Prices that week took a decided jump and one day the market reached $1.25 per bushel, a 10-cent advance from $1.15 on the 15th.

During the week ending the 15th, the market was unsettled and prices were generally higher than in the week ending the 8th. The market was unsettled and prices were generally higher than in the week ending the 8th.

FAIR ENOUGH, GENERAL!

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM

General Johnson invites the country to the first round-up in Washington next week for hand-riding of the NRA and all its works. He wants criticism. He will get it. And, on that basis, he promises to make any reasonable revisions in the codes covering 500 industries at the technical hearings which are to follow the public free-for-all.

It is a novel idea. No other governmental agency has ever quite equalled this gesture. And it strikes us as very effective just because it is more than a gesture. It is sincere. No man would be fool enough to invite such criticism in such a forum if he were insincerely trying to trick the public. For obviously an official open forum of this kind cannot be kept in a straitjacket.

We are among those who have been critical at times of the general and the NRA. But we have not been deeply disturbed, largely because the NRA was operating frankly as an experiment in which the general and others openly admitted their mistakes and tried to correct them.

As long as that is the goal, and as long as the Administration moves toward the goal by the intelligent trial-and-error method, the NRA will hold the overwhelming public support which it has earned to date.

Vernon Hawthorne Is Winner Of Medal

TALLAHASSEE, Mar. 2.—(AP)—N. Vernon Hawthorne, Miami state attorney who prosecuted Giuseppe Zangara, who killed Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, in shooting at President Roosevelt, Wednesday, was awarded the 1933 law enforcement medal offered to the person who did most for law enforcement during that year.

The committee which named Hawthorne for the medal, offered by the United States Flag Association, picked him from 11 entries "for his outstanding ability, disinterested courage and conspicuous success in a number of cases."

Honorable mention went to Sheriff C. B. Pearson, of Sarasota county, and J. C. Adkins, state attorney at Gainesville.

2 To Die For Breaking New California Law

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 2.—(AP)—The first death penalty verdict under California's anti-kidnaping law was returned Wednesday night by a jury which condemned H. C. Brooks and William T. Tanager to hang for abducting Henry Bodkin during a torture holdup last Dec. 16.

The jury of seven men and five women returned the death verdict after deliberating six hours. A district attorney's deputy, Gran, Cooper, had previously demanded the extreme penalty after Judge Fricke ruled the mere compelling of a person to move from one place on his own property to another constituted kidnaping under the state law.

Sebring Millage Cut From 160 To 45 Mills

SEBRING, Mar. 2.—Preparation of the city tax books on the basis of a 45-mill levy instead of 160 mills is under way by the board of assessors.

The city council has recalled the original roll based on the higher levy and adopted a new ordinance reducing the budgetary appropriations from approximately $1,500,000 to about $1,450,000. Of the latter amount about $75,000 is anticipated from the municipal light and water department and other sources other than direct taxation.

LEAGUE FINDS DARK OUTLOOK IN WORLD TRADE

Instability Of Rates Of Exchange Blamed For Drop Of 30%

GENEVA, Mar. 2.—It is not yet possible to count on recovery and prosperity in the field of international trade, according to a report issued by the economic intelligence service of the League of Nations, which suggests that recovery in certain national markets is a temporary phenomenon due to the diminution of world trade.

The report attributes the drop in international trade during 1933 of 30 percent in volume and 50 percent in value by comparison with 1929, to the instability of exchange rates, the tremendous movements of gold reserves, the restrictions on trade exchanges and the uncertain political situation.

international trade. It is even possible to assert that recovery in certain national markets is due to the diminution of trade on the international market.

"But for how long will the process of recovery and development of national markets be maintained unless there is a corresponding return to freedom and confidence in the international market? The instability of exchange rates, tremendous movements of gold reserves and the free development of trade."

The report reveals that the total volume of trade between all countries in 1933 was 30 percent under that of 1929.

"Gold transfers have been increasingly difficult," it continues, "and the important gold standard countries have kept only about 35 percent of their trade. The United States was especially hard hit, having retained only one-quarter of its 1929 trade."

The League also points out that the phenomenon of seasonal movements reappeared in 1933 for the first time since 1929, but while the statistics show increases for the last months of 1933, diminutions may be expected, it is added, for January and February, 1934. It remarks that while there has

LINDBERGH BABY KIDNAP MYSTERY ENDS 2ND YEAR

Picked Detectives Of Nation Still Probe Every Kind Of Clue

NEW YORK, Mar. 2.—(AP)—Two years ago last night the world gasped. Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped.

Twenty-two days later the baby's body, buried in a shallow grave, was found near its famous parents' Sourland mountain estate, and a relentless search for the slayers started.

Today the picked detectives of several of the nation's greatest law enforcement agencies still are engaged tirelessly in tracing clues, searching for the mysterious "John" who was paid $50,000 ransom by the baby's father.

The case is in the hands of the department of justice. In addition squads of New Jersey state troopers under Capt. John J. Lamb and New York City detectives under Inspector John Lyons are working on it.

The ransom money is said to be the most important clue the police have. The numbers of the ransom notes—$5, $10 and $20 bills—were retained by Colonel Lindbergh, and some of the money occasionally turns up in banks.

Every bill is quickly traced as far as possible. The results of these investigations are carefully guarded by police and department of justice operatives as is every other clue unearthed. But no arrest has been made.

Dr. John F. Condon—"Jafale"—who negotiated with the alleged kidnapers for the baby's return frequently is called on by police for aid. In the two years intervening since the kidnaping he has visited many regions galleries in a futile effort to pick out the face of the man who was paid the ransom in a Bronx, N. Y., cemetery.

The night the baby's body was found near Hopedew, N. J., President Hoover directed that an unending search for the kidnapers be undertaken. The Roosevelt Administration has adopted the same policy.

WHITNEY IDEAS ARE RIDICULED BY PECORA

(Continued From Page One) Since market records on short sales in aviation stocks just before private air mail contracts were cancelled, Whitney had disclosed that the exchange had been investing the transactions in question. Provisions of the Fischer-Rayburn control measure giving the Federal Trade Commission power to prescribe the form and content of financial reports by corporations were "so onerous and all-embracing," Whitney testified, as to give the commission "complete control over all corporations."

"You think the power to impose forms of accounting is equivalent to giving control?" Pecora asked. "In combination with other sections of the bill, yes."

During a discussion as to the merit of sending a large number of growers to the meeting, Mr. Symes pointed out that the views of the growers will not swing the agreement one bit. It will be the views of the shippers and then on a basis of the number of cars each shipped in recent seasons."

Mr. Symes also stated that Mr. Taylor, expressing the view that the hearing would not require more than one day, had recommended that growers and shippers meet as quickly as possible to select the personnel of the control committee so that in the event Secretary Wallace approves the agreement after a study of the minutes of the hearing and other data, there will be no delay in putting it into practice.

It was indicated during the meeting that the new resolution will embody the following ideas: 1. The season is too far advanced for the agreement to become operative.

BURLESON SAYS AIR MAIL ACTION WAS JUSTIFIED

Lindbergh Telegram Sent To Undermine Confidence, He Says

NEW YORK CITY, Mar. 2.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's telegram to President Roosevelt objecting to the cancellation of air mail contracts was designed to undermine public confidence in the President, Albert Sidney Burleson, Postmaster General in the Wilson Cabinet, asserted recently.

...nise had parcelled among themselves "an unconscionable subsidy muled from the government." Lindbergh, acting on "bad advice," had signed his name to "propaganda" sponsored by a "partisan, political" airway, Mr. Burleson declared.

Mr. Burleson wrote the following statement: "Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is the son of a former insurgent Republican Congressman who revolted against the standpat, reactionary element which controlled his party, and as a result was retired to private life. His son, inheriting some of the parent's characteristics, possesses superb physical courage. He made the first solo flight in a biplane across the Atlantic—which act appealed to the imagination and emotions of the American masses, who at once made an idol of "Lindy." "As a result of his popularity he was voted the Congressional Medal. He was made colonel in the Reserve Army Corps. Unfortunately he had the right to capitalize this popularity in the furtherance of his material welfare—and everyone rejoiced at his well-being. Growing out of the romance surrounding him he became allied with the House of Morgan—and all rejoiced at his increasing prosperity.

"He became connected with the great copper magnates, the Guggenheims—and all were glad that he continued to prosper. There was transferred to him a quarter of a million dollars of stock in an airway company with which he had become associated—and everybody was delighted he was getting ahead, notwithstanding that his company might be enjoying an unconscionable subsidy granted under the questionable circumstances by Mr. Hoover's Postmaster General.

"It is true Colonel Lindbergh had opposed Franklin Roosevelt and given his support to Mr. Hoover, and this he had a right to do, though it may have caused unrest to the spirit of his lamented father. Notwithstanding Colonel Lindbergh's opposition, Governor Roosevelt was elected President and was at once confronted with a task which made the crossing of the Atlantic in an aeroplane look like a summer picnic.

to a condition of depression with-out parallel in the history of the world. It is President Roosevelt's job to break the depression. Can he do it? The tasks of Herculean were play in comparison. For eleven months he has struggled under the weight of his great burden, and during this time his moral courage has been more than once severely tested. He struggles to relieve not a particular class but all the American people, and the task is such that his health, if not his life, is jeopardized.

"He is entitled to the sympathy and co-operation of every understanding American. Has Colonel Lindbergh the right at this juncture to capitalize the popularity of the mass of our people has given him, and attempt to shake their faith in Franklin Roosevelt, who labors for their welfare and upon whom alone we must depend for rescue from this horrible depression? It looks as though Colonel Lindbergh has acted upon bad advice, and that his telegram to President Roosevelt, given out to the newspapers before it was received at the White House, was not intended to help, but was to be used as propaganda to unsettle the confidence of the people in their President.

"Franklin Roosevelt has not lost his capacity for righteous indignation, and when his Cabinet officer brings to his attention the fact that in a room adjoining the office of the Postmaster General, and apparently with his consent and connivance, action was taken by nearly all the airway companies to divide the territory and the contracts for carrying the mails, thereby parceling among themselves an unconscionable subsidy muled from the government, it is not surprising that the President, shocked at the graft and corruption involved, should cancel all airway mail contracts.

"Can Colonel Lindbergh's airway company, through partisan, political propaganda channels, destroy the faith of the American people in their President? I think not."

MRS. ROOSEVELT WANTS EXPENSES OF CITIES CUT

President's Wife Asks Women's Clubs To Assist In Campaign

NEW YORK CITY, Mar. 2.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has issued an appeal to women's clubs throughout the country to start a campaign for reduction of expenses of local government.

"A large portion of American tax money is spent in city, county, township and village governments," she states in her monthly department in the Woman's Home Companion. "I have often wondered if women throughout the country really make an analysis of the way the tax money is spent, whether they might not find certain things that they would eliminate."

Mrs. Roosevelt believes that the money thus saved in the cost of local government ought to be diverted to education. "Throughout the country," she says, "we find unsatisfactory conditions in the schools. There are a million more children in the schools than there were in 1920. This is partly the normal increase, and partly the result of the fact that with great numbers of people out of work we are trying to keep children longer in school in order that they may not enter the competitive industrial world.

"While the number of school children has increased, there are 25,000 teachers employed today than in 1920, and more than one out of every four cities have shortened their school terms. Six of ten books has dropped 70 per cent.

"The cost of every four teachers receives less than $750 a year. Eighty-four thousand rural teachers get less than $450 a year. In 18 states, teachers are being paid in warrants payable at a discount ranging from five percent up, and $40,000,000 in back pay is due to 400,000 teachers.

"Education is the one subject that we cannot afford to neglect, no matter what happens to public and private finances."

Attempts To Settle Wisconsin Strike Fail

MILWAUKEE, Mar. 2.—All efforts to settle a half dozen industrial disputes in eastern Wisconsin failed Wednesday, and indications were that 2000 will join the ranks of approximately 10,000 strikers in three cities today.

In Milwaukee and Racine there were short-lived outbreaks of violence, as a result of which three Racine strikers were arrested and a Racine police man was injured slightly.

Employees of the main plant of the Nash Motors Company at Kenosha plan to leave their jobs and to begin picketing today.

GENERAL STRIKE CALLED

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 2.—Nine cities were faced Wednesday with the possibility of going without light and power as a result of the calling of a general strike of electrical workers by their national federation, effective Mar. 10.

The strike call was the result of a long dispute with the plant-owned by the Electric Light and Power Corporation.

8 Held As Robbers Of Vero Beach Station

FORT HERCE, Mar. 2.—City—Five men and three women are held here on a charge of holding up a Vero Beach filling station Sunday. They were arrested in an automobile bearing a Philadelphia license plate after three men, heavily armed, had robbed the filling station of $40 cash and a slot machine.

One of the men, James Gowen, was said by authorities here to be wanted in Greensburg, Pa., for burglary. The other men gave their names as Jennie Gates, Thomas Gowen, Francis Blarda and Henry Dyson. The Gowens and Gates allegedly held up the operator of the filling station and an attendant, picking up the others a short distance away. They were captured when officers ran their car to a curb in the heart of the city.

Late Events In U.S. Prophesied In 1917 By Lindy's Father

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 2.—(AP)—The late Charles A. Lindbergh, 27, Minnesota congressman and father of the famous flyer, which was suppressed by the government during the World War, entitled "Your Country a War," the elder Lindbergh's work is described by the publishers as brought it out today as prophetic. In its attacks on war time profiteers, bankers and gas monopolies, the volume makes predictions which have materialized in the years since the representative's death in 1924.

The book even predicted a plan almost identical with the NRA, says an introduction in the author's former law partner, W. K. Quigley, of Minneapolis.

The Peoria investigations of bankers and high finance are revealing things in 1922 and 1923 that were foretold by Lindbergh in 1917.

on promoting the "common good" but drew a sharp distinction between the motives underlying their "idealism." His views were given in an article in the American, student newspaper of Antioch college, of which he is president.

"I am of the opinion," Dr. Morgan wrote, "that the Wilsonian ideal, insofar as it was a social ideal, became his religion, though genuine was largely nullified by his self-centered ambition to secure a great historical position. Instead of demanding the perfection of the present, the Wilsonian ideal, he had been willing to be the relatively unknown instrument of a great purpose, his very great ability would have had fuller expression and the course of events might have been different."

"President Roosevelt," he said, "presents a striking contrast. From rather intimate acquaintance with a strong feeling that the main drive of his life is no longer for personal aggrandizement, but a sincere and selfless desire to promote the common good."

He quoted a word of warning in his article, "No refund on errors. It must be remembered," he wrote, "that for a time President

FARM BUREAU IS READY TO PROVE CONTROL NEEDS

Figures Reveal Extent Of Agricultural Development In Nation

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH, WASHINGTON, Mar. 2. (AP)—The farm administration was armed today with figures said to prove the necessity for restriction of agricultural production.

An inter-department committee, after a special study pointed out that:

Even during the 1925-29 boom period, when domestic consumption was high and exports flowed more freely than today, the United States was piling up an unmarketed surplus the production from 1,000,000 acres.

During 1922 and 1933, when consumption of agricultural products had decreased and exports had declined almost to the vanishing point, the production of 11,000,000 acres was unmarketable surplus.

If immediate aims are accomplished, between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 acres of cotton, wheat, tobacco and other products will be taken out of production.

During the pre-depression period the production of 299,000,000 out of 3,600,000,000 acres harvested was sold for food products consumed in the United States.

The production from 32,000,000 acres was exported, and a surplus from 3,000,000 acres was produced while the quantity imported was equivalent to the production of 5,000,000 foreign acres.

During 1932 and 1933 the total acreage of crops harvested had declined by 2,000,000 acres, and the area required to furnish food and raw material farm products to some 100,000,000 people had increased to 100,000,000 acres.

If the figures were adjusted to the population of 125,000,000 people, the United States a total of 100,000,000 acres could be required to furnish food and raw material with cotton, clothing and tobacco.

This acreage, however, would still be 52,000,000 acres in excess
