Celery Seems Only BARUCH Slightly Damaged

the season, coming on the which virtually wiped out-all tender leafy crops around the county, celery in the Sanford section today appeared to have survived without any apparent damage. Belief was expressed on many farms that no celery was killed outright, and that the principal damage will be a delay of from two to three weeks in harvesting and a possible heavy stripping at that time. What little letture and escarole that was standing in fields around the gity appears to have been almost killed, except for isolated cases. Oviedo celery suffered to a great extent than that here because of the muck land plantings. However, reliable observers hesitated setting any figure as to the damage. all of them saying "It is impossible to estimate although there seems to be little serious damage at this time." Frost which was like snow, an inch deep in many places, covered the celery delta this morning. Official government weather reading was a low of 24 on the West Side, 28 in Sanford, and 26 on the East
