Outlaws bikers arrested in gang mop-up

By EVAN PEREZ Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - Authorities have struck against the Outlaws motorcycle gang for the third time in three years, arresting seven members on racketeering and other charges. Wednesday, federal agents and local police raided homes and hangouts of the group in Key West, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, Orlando, Tampa, and near Macon. Ga., looking for 10 Outlaws, some on charges dating back to the 1980s.

Together, the 10 Outlaws were responsible for eight alayings, five robberies, three bombings, 24 extortions and several other offenses including drug dealing, witness intimidation and trans-portation of explosives, according to an 18-count federal grand jury indictment.

Among those arrested were two of the more infamous Outlaws in Florida: Clarence "Smitty" Smith, 52, a former Louisiana death row inmate and graying former club president sought in six killings: and Wayne "Joe Black" Hicks, 42. another former president accused in two slayings, drug dealing and the firebombing of a rival gang's clubhouse. Many of the charges stem from a dispute over biker gang turf, officials said. "The Outlaws consider Florida to be their territory," said Ken Staab, a of the Metropolitan Intelligence Unit in Broward County.

The Outlaws roared into Florida on their Harley-Davidsons in the 1960s and once claimed up to 300 members in the state. Today, they are down to less than 30 members, authorities said.

Federal authorities last went after the gang in 1994 and 1995, netting 14 convictions of Outlaws in St. Petersburg, Tampa and Daytona Beach. A previous bust won six convictions in 1989 in Fort Lauderdale, including then gang boss James Thomas "Big Jim" Nolan.

But the Outlaws continued their run, dominating turf wars with other national motorcycle gangs trying to move in on their Florida stronghold.

An expert on biker gangs doubted the arrests would mean the end of organized biker crime gangs. Other gangs will just move in, said Terry Danner, a St. Leo College criminologist who studied biker gangs. "It's like anything where there's an opportu-nity to make money ... you'll have people interested." Danner said.

Authorities have repeatedly used racketsering statutes to go after the gang, painting the Outlaws in the same light as traditional organised crime groups.

CORAL GABLES - Two fraternity brothers are facing sexual battery charges for incidents police say may have involved Rohypnol, the so-called "date-rape drug" also known as "roofies."

Lucas Folse, 19. and Michael Allen Schoeppner, 20. are accused in attachs on fellow students, police said Wednesday. They were arrested Friday.

Two 18-year-old women told police they were assaulted at the Sigma Chi fraternity house at the University of Miami on Nov. 2

Victims who are slipped the drug have trouble moving their arms and legs. They often lose consciousness and have little memory of what happens.

On Sunday, the 7-pound, 9-ounce Cheyenne was born by Caesarean section. One hour later, she was in surgery.

Five hours later, there was a new heart in her body, beating on its own. This morning, she was in stable but critical condition, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Cheyenne suffered from a form of hypoplastic left heart syndrome. The condition affects about 150,000 children a year around the country.

Late in the pregnancy, doctors gave Alberta and Stephen Pyle three options: let their daughter die naturally, put her through a series of operations that would keep her alive but impaired, or hope for an organ donor for a transplant.

The Constitution lost the election

There have been American presidents to whom the Constitution has been a nulsance to be overruled by any means necessary. In 1796, only seven years after the Bill of Rights was ratified, John Adams triumphantly led Congress in the passage of the Alien and Sedition Acts, which imprised a number of journalists and others for bringing the president or Congress into "centempt or disrepute." So much for the Piret Assendment.

Piret Assemilment. During the Civil War, Abraham Lincoln ac-tually suspended the writ of habeas corpus. Alleged constitutional guarantees of peaceful dissent were everpt away during the First World War - with the approval of Woodrow Wilson. For example, there were more than 1.900 prosecu-tions for anti-war books, newspaper articles, pamphlets and speeches. And Richard Nixon esemed to regard the Bill of Rights as primarily a deviliah source of aid to his enemy. No American president, however, has done so much damage to constitutional liberties as Bill Clinton - often with the consent of Republicans in Congress. But it has been Clinton who had the power and the will to seriously weaken our binding document in ways that were almost entirely ignored by the electorate and the press during the campaign.

Unlike Linc for example, Clinton did a lot more than temporarily suspend habeas corpus. One of his bills that has been enacted into law guts the rights that Thomas Jeffer-son insisted be included in the Con-stitution. A state prisoner on death row now has only a year to petition a federal court to review the constitu-tionality of his trial or sentence. In many previous cases of the ACLU's Laura Murphy recently told the National Law Journal -- "The most wiretap-friendly administration in history." And Clinton ordered the Justice Department to appeal a unanimous Third Circuit Court of Appeals decision declaring unconstitutional the Communications Decency Act censoring the Internet.

There is a chilling insouciance in Clinton's elbowing the Constitution out of the way. He hitthely, for instance, has stripped the courts of their power to hear certain kinds of cases. As Anthony Lewis points out in the New York Times, Clinton has denied many people their day in court.

For one example, says Lewis, "The new immigration law ... takes away the rights of thousands of altens who may be entitled to le-galize their situation under a 1996 statute giving amnesty to illegal altens." Cases involving as many as 300,000 people who may still qualify for amnesty have been waiting to be decided. All have now been thrown out of court. There have been thrown out of court.

There have been unrown out of court. There have been other Clinton, revisions of the Constitution, but in sum -- as David Boas of the Cato Institute has accurately put it -- Clinton has shown ''s breathtaking view of the power of the federal government, a view directly opposite the meaning of civil libertarian.''

SARA ECKEL SPECIAL PRESECUTIONS Divorce: Rules don't add up

The old way wasn't so good: Estranged husbands and wives, hiring photographers to track down their spouse and record their infidelities. Accusations of mental illness. Charges of psychological torture. All in the interest of finding "fault" in a divorce. But the new way isn't working out very well, either. That's the conclusion of two new books. "Divorced From Justice." by Karen Winner (HarperCollins) and "Still Unequal." by Lorraine Dusky (Crown). And the big interes, both authors say, are women.

We have to look at our own neighborhood. The City of Sanford's foundation is based on immigrants mostly from Sweeden and Scotland. While General Henry Sanford may have given them jobs, no one gave them handouts. But they succeeded, and produced our neighborhoods, our city, and our county.

Let's not let this survey and probably others which will be brought forward change our attitude toward what immigrants have given and are giving to our society. Let's look, instead, at changing the way our governments give free-handouts. There are many needs faced by our government which require financing. Helping someone who has come into the country to only receive some-thing for nothing, shouldn't be one of them.

In the meantime, as store-keepers look skywerd watching cars sipping by, we, the tempsyers, are going to have to pay two million deliars to correct the problem. However, we should be grainful, according to a spokesperson with the reads department, because had they not been able to correct the problem now, we may have had to buy the shopping center at Red Bug Rd, and Tuskswills Rd. for eight million deliars. I guess we're supposed to thank them for little mistakes. Maybe we would have been better of buying the shopping center, so that we could put it to work, to help pay for the road. The problem is that on the referendum to tax ourselves to improve and build new roads, we deler't include buying adjacent shopping centers. (JUDY

Now, the question is did the County Commissioners know about this before they voted not to sudit Public Works and Roads? (And just Tuesday voted again not to sudit the whole department?)

Another question: I voted in precinct 74, the stormwater issue was not on my ballot! If you encountered the same problem please let the supervisor of elections know about it!

Great ideas waft out of pain

WASHINGTON--Funny how great ideas can waft, like perfume, out of pain. Mathematician-turned-romance writer Jean Favors' first story materialised after a tragedy on a tennis court. Artist Toni Reed Rashid's first serious piece was conceived when she needed a quick gift to cheer up her sister, bedridden after an accident.

Allegra Bennett's great idea hit her like a right job during a "box aerobics" class. Ten minutes into the workout last December. the ex-journalist was weary, winded and primed for a break when she spied a gray-haired woman bobbing and weaving like nobody's business. "Hang in there." Bennett scolded herself. "Take a break when the old lady does." Fifty minutes later, the "old lady" and a chastened, sweat-drenched Bennett were still doing the Ali shuffle. That taught me an important lesson," says Bennett, 50, of Baltimore. "We really do not go as deep as our reservoirs are. People quit after they reach the edge of their comfort level. But if we push past our discomfort, we find a reservoir that's magical."

Bennett's inspiration was Loretta Lessiter, then 65, a retired Baltimore banker whose taut skin, omnipresent smile and serious golf obsession "mesmerized" her. Bennett thought: If seeing a strong woman over 50 "get down" could inspire me, it could inspire others.

"I decided to do a calendar." she says.

Peaturing a dosen photos of dynamic, 50-and-over black women in sometimes quirky poses-author Favors, 57, grine from a perch within a theatrical trunk; Bennett's lithe body is arranged in a headstand--the 1997 "Fabulously 50 Plus" calendar celebrates the beauty of women who are stretching their minds and bodies to the limit the limit.

it is not for those who feel, as the joke says, that "pushing 50 is exercise enough.

That I love the black-and-white calendar's attitude doesn't surprise Bennett, who says women under 50 have responded more enthusiastically than many in the age group it honors. Bennett has watched several older women pick up the calendar, realize whom it celebrates, and drop it like a

"A lot of women don't want to be reminded of (their age)." Bennett explains. In a society that deems women's physical beauty paramount. "they've bought into the notion that you hit a certain age and you're worthless.

Such women overlook "all the women at 50 and older start school and lesses, who find themselves able to stop telling fibs to make a situation comfortable. ...We're conditioned to compromise to keep the peace with our husbands, boyfriends, children, employers. You spend all this time getting to know other people so you can make them comfortable, but you don't know about you.

"All you know is this bad feeling."

Not these calendar girls. New York Times feature writer Karen De Witt, pictured pumping iron in great jeweiry, has accomplished all her goals except for living in a country manse and writing novels---which she's working on. "Still, at 52, I have moments where I think, 'God, I should have done things earlier." she says. "So anyone in their Sos thinking. "Id really like to try this," should do it."

In 1961. Favors was a government analyst yearning to write. After a tennis buddy dropped dead while playing. Favors awoke with a complete. tennis-related mystery story in mind-which eventually won seventh place in a Writer's Digest contest. Just 42, Favora quit her job and has since penned 10 young-adult novels, and four Harlequin romances under her maiden name Elizabeth Morris.

Elizabeth Morris. "I wouldn't be 20 again for all the world," Favors says. "I was so...contained. Now I feel like I can do just about anything." The calendar proved that to Bennett. Told by publishers in January that it was impossible to produce a 1997 calendar in less than a year, Bennett found female photographers and layout artists to help her disprove it. The calendar (which can be ordered by sending $14.95 plus $3.50 postage and handling to Pabuloualy 50 Plus Calendar, P.O. Box $3581, Baltimore, MD. $1503-5681}-precedes Bennett's book, "Renovating Woman: A Oulde to Home Repair, Maintenance and Real Men." due in April, which demystifies home repairs for women.

The new regulations favor dividing up a couple's assets, rather than giving the person with the lower income an alimony settlement. This might sound fine, and indeed it poses no inherent problem for childless career women. But

women who have deferred their careers in favor of their husband's -- either by moving for his job, or reducing their hours at work to devote more time to the children -- this can be disastrous.

For older women, especially, the years out of the workforce have drastically reduced their earning potential, and yet they receive little or no compensation for the many valuable services -- child-rearing, housecleaning, meal preparation, etc. -- that they provided during the marriage. Instead, it is assumed that after receiving some short-term "rehabilitation" funds, she'll be able to pick up where she left off. A legislator speaking to the New York task force on women and the courts, quoted by Dusky, sums it up best: "(The judges) think any woman -- no matter her age or lack of training -- can find a nice little job and a nice little apartment and conduct her later years as she might have done at age 25." Indeed, it is ironic that the women who have dedicated their lives to their families -an act so smiled upon by society -- suffer the most if their marriage ends. "Whether or not they quit their jobs happily," writes Dusky, "they do it in a culture that alternately encourages them to be good homemakers and mothers when the marriage is intact, then not only devalues those skills in the job market but drastically penalizes them for the time that they have been out of the labor force.

Compounding this problem is the fact that at the time of divorce, women usually have at the time of divorce, women usually have fewer financial resources than their hus-hands. "Women, even professional, affluent women, typically don't control the family assets. Consequently, they often find themselves in the peculiar position of being cash-poor at the end of the marriages." writes Winner, a former investigative writer for the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs, whose book is a practical guide for women undergoing a divorce. Obvioualy, lack of sufficient funds puts anyone undergoing a divorce at a supreme disadvantage.

We do not need to go back to the bad-old days of fault divorce, but we do need fami-iy-court judges to recognise the reality of many women's lives. And we need to guar-antee that women who choose to limit their careers in order to devote more time to their families do not merely receive the approba-tion of conservative politicians and religious tenders. They also deserve financial security.

PHILADELPHIA - What's the true cost of Christmas? 813.195.86.

That's what a bank estimates it would cost to buy the gifts sung about in "The Twelve Days of Christmas." from the par-tridge in a pear tree to the seven swans-a-swimming and 12 drummers drumming.

That's up 5.72 percent from last year, according to PNC Bank, which has released its Christmas Price Index measuring the cost of the carol since 1984.

"The increase in the PNC Bank Christmas Price Index is due to entertainment costs, not prices of goods," said bank spokesman J. Patrick Bradley. For example, the price of nine

Troops could move into Zaire

WASHINGTON — Up to 4,000 U.S. troops could begin moving into Central Africa next week as part of a Canadian-led force trying to help a million malnourished refugees languishing in Zaire.

President Clinton agreed in principle on Wednesday to dispatch a force, spearheaded by 1,000 U.S. Army paratroopers from their base in Vincenza, Italy. About a dozen other countries are expected to participate.

A call-up of U.S. reservists in also possible, a senior Pentagon official told reporters in a briefing.

Clinton placed several conditions on U.S. participation, including that the American troops, numbering 3,000 to 4,000, stay no longer than four months and that local combatants allow them to arrive peacefully.

WASHINGTON — More people might have survived the Oklahoma City bombing if the 20-year-old federal building had been designed like modern structures in carthquake-prone areas, government engineers said today.

At least half the bombing damage could have been prevented if the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building had met current design standards for buildings in areas of high seismic activity, according to the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Such designs were not an option in 1976, when the Murrahbuilding opened.

It's not a big drop — roughly 3 percent — but it's the first sustained decline in cancer mortality since national record-keeping began in the 1930s and possibly the first since 1900.

"One of the most intractable diseases of the 20th century is now in decline," declared Brad Rodu, who with University of Alabama, Birmingham, colleague Dr. Philip Cole uncovered the trend.

Added National Cancer Institute Director Richard Klausner: "The 1990s will be remembered as the decade when we measurably turned the tide against cancer."

Balanced budget amendment

WASHINGTON — President Clinton will contest Congress' expected approval of a balanced-budget constitutional amendment, despite earlier remarks that softened his longtime opposition to the plan, administration officials say.

In an unusual effort to prevent a stampede of votes for the proposal. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin and other administration officials telephoned reporters Wednesday to say that the president never meant to voice support for the amendment. Officials were hoping to retain a slim chance of defeating the plan, or at least force its supporters to agree to revisions acceptable to the White House.

"Your first line is to actively oppose it," Rubin said in an interview. "Hopefully that would be successful. If it's not successful, you work with the proponents to construct an amendment that is the least harmful possible."

Cardinal Bernardin dead at 68

CHICAGO — Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, the soft-spoken son of immigrants and one of the Roman Catholic Church's strongest voices for social involvement, died early today of cancer. He was 68.

Bernardin died at his home at 1:33 a.m., Bishop Raymond Goedert said.

Bernardin, the senior Roman Catholic prelate in the United States and leader of Chicago's 2.3 million Catholics, underwent surgery for pancreatic cancer in June 1995, and announced Aug. 30 that the cancer had spread and was inoperable. He gave up his day-to-day duties Oct. 31.

KIGALI, Rwanda — An American survey team landed today in the Rwandan capital to prepare the way for up to 4,000 U.S. troops who may join a multinational operation to feed more than a million refugees in Zaire.

The 43-member team, led by U.S. Army Mai. Gen. Edwin P. Smith, arrived on a mission to assess what kind of security would be necessary for U.S. troops, if President Clinton gives the green light to their deployment. "We are here to conduct an initial assessment for possible

"We are here to conduct an initial assessment for possible humanitarian assistance either unilaterally or multilaterally." said Smith, commander of the Southern European Task Force, part of the U.S. European Command.

Fighting resumed at dawn today in Goma, the Zairian town bordering on Rwands, and shelling prevented the distribution of food. As relief is delayed, thousands face starvation or death from disease.

From Associated Press reports

Reinforcing steel would have held many of the building elements in place, keeping large portions of the building erect long enough to allow people to escape, according to the report by the Building Performance Assessment Team, composed of engineers from the American Society of Civil Engineers and the federal government.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency requested the study three weeks after the April 19, 1995, blast killed 168 people. The 4,800-pound truck bomb ripped the northern face off the nine-story federal building and damaged businesses 10 blocks away.

The search for bodies — some trapped under fallen debris and crushed walls — was called off May 4, 1995, for fear the crippled structure would collapse. The building was demolished May 23, 1995.

The engineers concluded the direct effects of the blast accounted for only a small portion of the damage. Most of the ruin, was caused by "progressive collapse" of the building, the report said.

But reinforced steel and modern design details could have prevented 50 to 85-percent of the destruction.

The report recommends that new federal buildings be constructed to withstand earthquakes, blast damage and other seismic activity. Such precautions for new buildings, which now are only required for buildings in areas where earthquakes are common, would add about 1 to 2 percent to construction costs, the report said.

The engineers also recommended that existing buildings should be renovated to strengthen columns, add structural walls and supplement supporting frames. Such renovations are more expensive, the engineering group said. It planned to release estimates ioday.

FEMA did not endorse the report's recommendations, but merely funded the study so those responsible for federal buildings would have adequate information, the agency said.

In addition to private engineers, the team included engineers from FEMA, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the General Services Administration and the National Institute of Standards Technology.

LAKELAND - The Six Flags Over Lake Mary roller coaster ride of a season finally screeched to a halt.

A season of steep rises, long drops and never a steady moment on its thrill ride came to an end Wednesday afternoon in the state volleyball semifinals at George Jenkins High School in Lakeland with a 15-12, 15-11 loss to Palm Bay of Melbourne.

Lake Mary, which played all season just trying to stay in contention for a playoff berth, finished at 18-14, and entered the Final Four with a Cinderella reputation. It also entered as the team in the tournament with the most losses, but that didn't matter since the Rams won when it counted.

The season included such ups and downs as a 2-0 start, followed by six losses in seven matches. Next came eight wins out of 10, then five losses in six matches.

Then, the Lady Rams got hot.

A win over Spruce Creek ended the regular season and the Rams rolled through districts without a loss. Wins in the regional over Ocala-Forest, Orange Park and Cypress Creek led the Rains on an improbable ride to Lakeland.

Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry tried to make sense of a season that didn't make much sense.

"This was such a reverse of what we did all season," Henry said after the loss. "But once you get to the Final Four, it doesn't matter. We talked about winning districts and, I've been here 20 years and this turned out to be a dream."

The dream came crashing down when Lake Mary surrendered a 12-7 lead in the first game and allowed eight straight points. The Rams started well, playing to a 6-6 tie and running off three straight points off Jackie Van Looven's serve. Jeannie Manz, only 5-8, was slamming home everything in sight, and the Lake Mary contingent which made up most of the crowd, was smelling upset.

The Pirates (28-1) fought back and eventually took control.

"It's upsetting because we know we didn't play as well as we could have." Manz said-

The Rama took the court for what would be their final game of the season and quickly fell behind 4-0. Then it was 4-1. 4-2. Eventually, with Manz slamming and Debbie Duber blocking everything in sight, the Rams led 7-4. Duber and Sarah McWeeney are the only two seniors on the Lake Mary team and weren't about to let the season get away without a fight. "They mean a lot to us." Manz said of the seniors. "They have a lot of talent and we'll miss. their leadership.

Paim Bay eventually came back and took a 12-10 lead. The Rams cut it to one but that was as close as they got as the Pirates closed it out at. 15-11.

Then came the learn.

The Rama went farther than anyone expected but left the court thinking about what might have been.

"I just told them to remember that they were in a Final Four," Henry said after she talked to her players for the final time in Lake Mary uniforms. "That's nothing anyone can ever take! away.'

DEAR ABBY: Please add this to your collection of "acts of kindness."

The physician mentioned her objem to another patient of his to happened to be a prominent lo--PPC

A good 'stache, I figure, shouldn't take a fellow more than two weeks. If it's not in by then, forget it. Will'e Bradford, the owner of the Mop City barber shop in Eatonville, is amused how many men simply don't get the hang of growing a good mustache.

Hollywood's great stars used to have magnificent mustaches. Gable had the most distinguished and handsome 'stache. Groucho's was just ducky. David Niven's was pencil thin and accompanied by a grin. Einstein had a brainy mustache.

Tennis player John Newcombe was an ordinary looking bloke until he grew his dashing mustache. Mustaches remain a must for

Barbershop singers. Webster's defines a mustache

A local wit said that the women's 'stache didn't prevent President Bill Clinton hitting on her.

A mustache-growing can-didate has to take a good deal of verbal abuse.

"Got something growing there?" people will ask.

The most consistent riding I ever had came from Baseball Hall of Famer Ted Williams, who was strictly a no-mustache man.

"Get that thing off." he used

Consumer debt: Give yourself credit

Easily available credit and slick advertising can make living beyond one's means very tempting. The average debt load of American households has increased significantly over the past decade. Some households owe 20% or more of their net pay for consumer credit expenses (e.g., credit cards, car loans). ## Easy to overlook

By Phillip Alder

William James, in "The Principles of Psychology," wrote, "The art of be-ing wise is the art of knowing what to overlook."

If your luck at the bridge table is like most people's, when you overlook a particular line of play or defense, it is bound to be the best one — like in today's deal. How should West continue against five hearts after winning trick one with a top club? The auction was strange — but this is how it happened. North's four-club cue showed a major two-suiter, but it is usually bid on a 5-5, not a 6-4. He should have started with a takeout double. Then, when South bid four hearts, continuing with Blackwood was debatable. If North couldn't bring himself to pass, he should have bid four spaces. West led the club king and switched to a diamond to dummy's queen. Now declarer just played the ace and an-other heart. When East ducked, South led another trump. Whatever East did next, he couldn't get more than one trump trick, and so the contract suc-coded.

Now consider the difference it makes if West taps the dummy with another top club at trick two. If declar-er continues with the ace and another er continues with the ace and another heart. East just plays low. If South continues with a third heart. East wins and forces South's last heart with another club, dummy being out of trumps. And if declarer abandons trumps. East ruffs the third spade with his low trump and cashes the hing. Either way, the contract is de-fected.

Forcing declarer to ruff at an inop-portune moment for him is one of the hardest defenses to spot.
